

Bands, Floats, VIP's Will Highlight Homecoming Parade

By STEVE DEWOLF
Staff Writer

High-stepping marching bands, floats and University, city, and state dignitaries will highlight this year's Homecoming parade.

The parade will start at 7 p.m. next Friday in front of East Hall and will disperse about 8:45 p.m. several blocks east on College Street.

Advanced members of Air Force ROTC will be stationed as patrols along the parade route to keep the parade moving and help out in case of emergency. They will be aided by radios and walkie-talkies.

TWO OTHER Friday night activities will be centered around the parade's reviewing stand, located at Iowa Avenue and Clinton Street.

Immediately after the parade a pep rally sponsored by Pep Club will be held near the reviewing stand.

Following the pep rally, ROTC officers will escort the dignitaries on the reviewing stand to Old Capitol steps for the crowning of Miss SUI.

The SUI Marching Band, the Scottish Highlanders, approximately 15 floats, 14 state high school bands, and the ROTC Drill and Air Force ROTC Drill teams will participate. The parade does not as yet have a grand marshal, however, according to Chris Hagen, co-chairman of the Homecoming subcommittee on parade organization.

Hagen, A4, Des Moines, said he was "fairly sure" SUI President Howard Bowen would be the grand marshal. But at present, Hagen said, there has been no confirmation from the President or his office on the committee's invitation. WITH THE EVENT more than a week away, many details of the parade are still unsettled. The questions of which officials will be on the reviewing stand or in the parade and the order of the floats and the bands in the parade still have to be worked out by the various committees, Hagen said.

Hagen said invitations to ride in the parade or be on the reviewing stand have been sent to prominent alumni, University, city, and state officials, but few replies have been received.

Students, faculty members, University administrators and other residents of Iowa City who had hoped to catch a glimpse of Gov. Harold Hughes either in the parade or on the reviewing stand will be disappointed, Hagen said. It was almost certain that Gov. Hughes would not attend the parade.

GOV. HUGHES will, however, attend Saturday's football game. The route of this year's parade will be the same as in previous years. Bands and floats will organize on Iowa Avenue. The parade will then turn north on Du-bouque Street and go three blocks to Bloomington Street. Here it will turn west and move south on Clinton Street to College Street, where it will turn east and disperse.

HAGEN SAID there had been hope among committee members of extending the parade route an extra block on Dubuque Street to take in more of the campus.

"But after much consultation it has been decided not to extend the route. There were too many pressures — all of them with good cause — against it," he said.

The 14 state high school bands will arrive in Iowa City by bus Friday afternoon and assemble on the Jefferson High School playground.

According to Bill Henderson, A3, Council Bluffs, a new system of selecting the parade bands was used this year. Members of the subcommittee made a selective list of high school bands and invitations were sent to the bands.

In past years, the bands were chosen on a rotation basis. Each band will receive a participation prize of a large satin banner reading: SUI Homecoming.

The high school bands participating in this year's parade are: Jefferson High School, Cedar Rapids; the Decorah Kilties of Decorah High School; Mount Pleasant High School; Iowa City High School; Belle Plaine High School; Valley High School, Des Moines; Midland Community School, Wyoming; Wapello High School; Pella High School; Mount Vernon High School; Washington High School; and New London High School.

First Sale

Dean of Students M. L. Huit sets an example for Hawkeye supporters as he buys the first 1964 Homecoming badge from Cherry Chuck, general chairman of badge sales. About 13,000 of the badges must be sold to support the Homecoming this year.

Badges on Sale Today For 53rd Homecoming

Homecoming Badges go on sale today as SUI begins preparations for its 53rd annual Homecoming festivities.

From today until Oct. 26, students from 29 housing units will be trying to sell about 13,000 of the 50-cent black and gold badges. This year's badge features a silhouette of Herky passing a football.

Proceeds from the badge sales pay for all Homecoming activities, said Cherry Chuck, A3, Mason City, chairman of badge sales.

Housing unit sales chairmen will pick up the badges at 4 p.m. today in 2 Gilmore Hall.

The housing units will be competing against each other for prizes which include a television set, a stereo record player and a typewriter.

Claim 'Engulfment'

Anti-Annexationists Blast City Council

By DENNIS WILCOX

The city council was blasted Wednesday night by Joe Zajicek, leader in the fight against annexation of approximately six square miles to the City of Iowa City.

Speaking in Montgomery Hall at the 4-H Fairgrounds, Zajicek told about 45 persons that "You are being pushed around by your city administration."

He said the city council refused to take "no" for an answer last June when local citizens voted almost two to one against the annexation of 12 square miles to the city.

INSTEAD, according to Zajicek, the council devised a new scheme of "divide and conquer." They cut down the area to be annexed and left out the proposal's most avid opponents, he said.

"Don't kid yourself, you're going to be engulfed," Zajicek told the residents not included in the present annexation plan.

Referring to the information sheet inserted by the city council in the Tuesday edition of the Press-Citizen, Zajicek called it a "sugar sheet" and said, "There is a fine line here between propaganda and facts."

HE CLAIMED that the increased cost of annexation as reported by the city was inaccurate. If the city now pays $194,000 yearly in police protection for nine square miles, Zajicek said, how can they provide adequate protection for another six square miles for only a $1,000 a year more.

Zajicek, referring to the "dictatorial trend in city administration," said, "Anyone that disagrees with them is ruled out of order."

He also criticized the city council for combining the park board with the recreational commission, effective Jan. 1. He claimed the action was "railroaded" through.

City Councilman Max Yocum attempted to speak at the meeting but was shouted down by such comments as "Set him down," and "You're trying to spend all the people's money."

YOCUM SAID, "I personally feel that I can help build a better Iowa City."

Zajicek replied, "We'll see after the next election whether you can help build a better Iowa City."

The anti-annexation group is planning another meeting before the Nov. 3 election. Attempts will be made to get more volunteer workers to bring out the vote against the annexation proposal.

Negro Leader Awarded Nobel Peace Prize

Martin Luther King Cited for Non-Violence In Civil Rights Move

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., an American Negro leader in the national civil rights movement, has been awarded the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize.

In announcing the 1964 winner of the coveted award, the Oslo Nobel Institute said Wednesday "Martin Luther King has consistently asserted the principle of nonviolence."

In an Atlanta, Ga., hospital for a routine physical checkup King said: "I'm deeply moved, gratified and honored to be chosen for such a significant award."

"I do not consider this merely an honor to me personally, but a tribute to the discipline, wise restraint, and majestic courage of the millions of gallant Negroes and white persons of good will who have followed a nonviolent course in seeking to establish a reign of justice and a rule of love across this nation of ours."

King said the prize money would be spent on the civil rights movement.

King is the 12th American and the third Negro to be awarded the prize. Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, U.N. undersecretary for special political affairs, was the first American Negro so awarded, winning the prize in 1950.

The other Negro prize winner was South African leader Albert Luthuli, in 1960.

Johnson Aide Resigns After 'Morals' Arrest

Demo Disclosure Prompted by GOP

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter W. Jenkins, a top aide to President Johnson for two decades, was arrested in 1959 and again last week at the YMCA on morals charges, police records showed Wednesday night. The White House announced his resignation.

An Army major in World War II and the father of six, Jenkins is a 46-year-old Texan who has been associated with the President since Johnson's days in the House. His resignation was announced by the traveling White House in New York after he had been hospitalized with what was described as "extreme fatigue."

Asked to comment on the charges against Jenkins, a White House spokesman said: "I'm not going to leave any implication one way or the other. I am not going to be placed in any position of compromising Mr. Jenkins."

IN BOTH CASES, records at the moral division of police headquarters showed, Jenkins posted collateral and was released. In the first instance, on Jan. 15, 1959, he was charged with "disorderly conduct (pervert)." In the second, last Wednesday, the charge was "disorderly (indecent gestures)."

Jenkins' arrest came to light after Republican National Chairman Dean Burch had telephoned a statement to news media which said: "There is a report sweeping Washington tonight that the White House is desperately trying to suppress a major news story affecting national security."

GEORGE REEDY, White House press secretary, said then, when asked about Burch's statement: "I don't know what he's talking about."

Reedy, traveling with Johnson on a campaign foray into New York, said that Jenkins "who has been suffering from extreme fatigue for some time, was sent to George Washington University Hospital by his physician, Dr. Charles Thompson."

In Washington, Thompson confirmed that he had put Jenkins in the hospital.

According to records at the morals division of police headquarters, Jenkins was arrested on a charge of being "disorderly (indecent ges-

Says Max Lerner — 'IQ Outweighs Arms Race'

The weapons race of today's world is not nearly as important as the race for intelligence, according to Max Lerner, noted columnist of the New York Post.

Addressing an SUI audience of about 1,000 Wednesday night at the Union, Lerner said, "We can no longer exercise absolute sovereignty. Using it would reduce us to ashes."

HE STRESSED that national sovereignty was not something to be hoarded but something to be spent. "If we refuse to spend some of our national sovereignty, we shall find ourselves on top of the pile of ashes with no sovereignty at all," he said.

"If we share it," he continued, "perhaps we can find some system of world will."

Lerner said a democracy must develop two groups — one, a commanding group to make the big decisions of society, and the other, an intellectual group to furnish the words and ideas.

"WE MUST NOURISH elites of these kinds," he said, "but we are not going to be able to develop these creative elites if we put obstacles in the way of our young people."

Lerner said the West must make use of every split in the Communist world. "We must use this struggle between the centers of Communism to gain some time in learning the practical art of political warfare."

Lerner viewed poverty as being pathetic but not tragic. "It is man-made," he said, "and thus it can be resolved. We should make use of the fruits of our prosperity to remove some of the pathos in our life."

Although he did not mention the two presidential candidates by name during the speech, Lerner commented, "In American politics there has always been an area of agreement on certain issues. One of the parties today is making a bid to depart from consensual politics in favor of ideological politics."

"WE NEED to take up what we have built up and not allow it to be smashed so easily," he said.

In a question-answer period following the lecture, Lerner said President Johnson's functioning as President had been "masterful."

Commenting on revolutions in technology and morality, Lerner said that one of America's most important struggles was "the search for meaning in life."

HE SAID AMERICA had lost its idea of dignity in work and that it placed its emphasis on the "job" concept.

"But a job doesn't make a life," he stressed. "Work does. Work fulfills. I hope we can go back to the dignity concept of work."

He said he hoped a "values revolution" was taking place to counteract undesirable changes in American life.

A native of Russia, Lerner is a journalist, teacher and author and is currently a process professor at Brandeis University, Waltham, Mass.

Iowa City Annexation Vote Nov. 3

By PETIE SARLETTE
Staff Writer

In addition to the names of candidates on the Nov. 3 general election ballot, the voters of Iowa City will also find a question about adding 5.64 square miles to Iowa City. It will be the second time in six months they have been asked to decide if the city should annex more land.

The proposed annexation would increase the area of the city by nearly two-thirds. The present city limits enclose approximately 9.74 miles.

IOWA CITIANS defeated an annexation proposal on the June 1 primary election ballot that would have doubled the size of the city.

The area proposed for annexation nearly encircles the present city and would add 114 residences to Iowa City. City Manager Carsten

Leikvold, however, predicted in a report to the city council "that the proposed annexation area will soon fill up with houses and other developments."

In addition, the proposed area of about 3,610 acres would add some 10 miles of unpaved streets to the city. Iowa City now has about 100 miles of paved and unpaved streets.

But, Leikvold pointed out, "the determining factor in drawing the proposed boundaries of the annexation was our ability to serve the area by sanitary sewers."

HE SAID any sewer mains necessary to serve the area would be paid for by the properties benefited. Iowa Citians would face no additional taxation.

Leikvold estimated "the total cost of annexing this property will be approximately $5,000 a year."

Approximately $2,000 of the total cost each year would be used for an additional truck for the fire department. Another $2,000 would be used to extend garbage collection to the area. The remaining $1,000 would be used by the police department to patrol the roads of the area.

The city manager also reported that residents of the area, which is predominantly agricultural land, would receive a tax reduction if the city votes to annex the land.

UNDER STATE LAW, farm land that is not a part of an incorporated area pays a tax of 10 mills each year to the county of which it is a part. If the agricultural area becomes a part of a city, it pays one and one-quarter mills a year to the city for road maintenance.

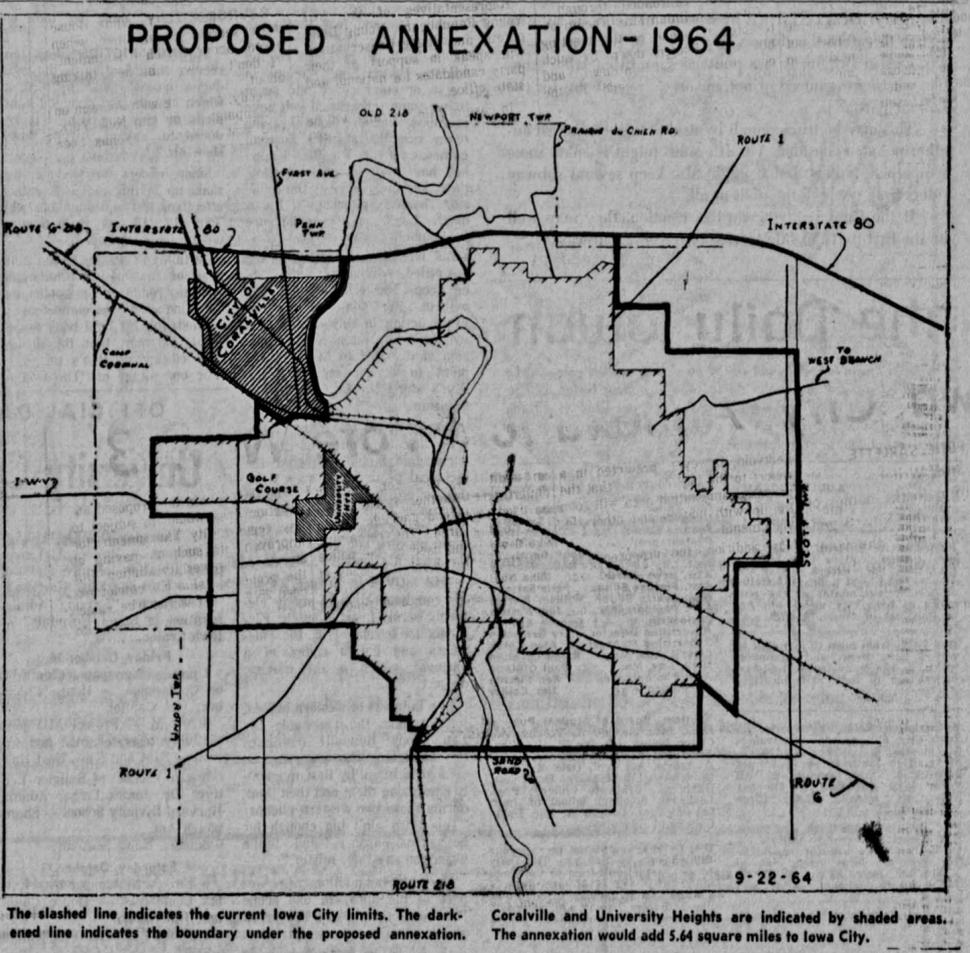

Any non-agricultural land is annexed on the same tax basis as that land already within the city limits. This would mean an increase of approximately 20 mills to equal present city taxes.

The land within the proposed annexation area would be subject to any regular city assessments for improvements such as paving of streets and sewer installation. But the property valuation cannot exceed 25 per cent of the true value.

All of the land would come into the city zoned as RIA, first class residential. However, all non-conforming uses would be allowed to continue.

The city council is following the "involuntary" method of annexation in its second attempt to add to the city's size. In order to comply with state requirements for this type of annexation, the city council held a public hearing after two weeks of publication of the notice of the hearing.

Student discounts: the first step

STUDENT DISCOUNTS from local merchants was one of the planks in Wally Snyder's platform when he ran for student body president last spring.

His administration took its first step toward fulfilling that promise Tuesday when the senate established a commission on city relations. Dick Mundy, who will head this new commission, plans a study of possible discounts as one of his first projects.

We have no doubts that a discount program would be welcomed by students, but we are not optimistic about the chances for establishing one.

It is true that such programs have been established on other campuses, but programs such as the one at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis might not work in Iowa City.

Most merchants here depend on student trade for at least a part of their business. Many depend solely on students. Anyone visiting Iowa City in August, when the students are gone, can see the volume of business which they take with them.

In Minneapolis-St. Paul the University is a part of the community and part of the business, but it is a relatively small part. Merchants there can afford to give a discount since it means a bigger volume of student business in their stores.

Other stores can get along nicely without student business and discounts.

Perhaps a sort of student co-op store could provide discounts to students here, if merchants do not buy the discount idea.

If the proper administration and planning could be provided, it would seem probable that 15,000 students could organize to control the market at least enough to gain some discounts.

It is obvious that much study will be needed to find answers to this discount question.

This study is the first step of the senate commission, we hope it will not be the last.

Changing times

NEWSPAPER PICTURES of Boston's Cardinal Cushing and Protestant evangelist Billy Graham have provided a specific human symbol of the changing tone of Vatican attitudes toward the rest of Christianity.

As if in immediate illustration of the new atmosphere, Cardinal Cushing reportedly said he hoped Roman Catholic young people would go and hear Dr. Graham. And Dr. Graham said he felt closer to some Catholic traditions than with some of the most liberal Protestants.

It is encouraging to see men of differing beliefs talking together instead of tightening the tensions of the past. The Vatican Council's decisions could have the result of helping half a billion adherents foster a dialogue that too often has been broken or complicated by suspicion and fear.

No decision by any organization will change the facts of man's relationship to God. But there is no reason why men should not live together in harmony and respect as they work together or separately toward an effective understanding of that relationship.

An unusual ride

A WILDCAT STRIKE by workers in London's subway system threatens the chances of the Labour party in today's elections in Britain. It is a political axiom that labor trouble, whether organized or not, means a loss of votes for the Labour party.

This may be true enough by itself, but there is still another point to consider. A traffic snarl might alienate some sympathetic voters, but it might also keep several subway riders from going to the polls at all.

If the Conservatives win this election, they may well be the first party to ride to victory on static subways.

"And I Can Lick The Man Who Says It Isn't So!"

Letter to the Editor

Johnson's record criticized

To the Editor: No doubt all of you have heard President Johnson say, "Elect a responsible man for President. One who will keep us out of war." Of course, when he says this he is referring to himself.

Now let's look at President Johnson's peace-abiding record. This past spring hidden Russian microphones were discovered in our embassy in Russia. These microphones had probably been there for years, stealing many of our government's secrets. This incident called for stern action on our part. What did President Johnson do? He issued a statement nothing less than an apology to Russia. But it wasn't just an ordinary apology. It was a stern apology, thus showing President Johnson's tremendous ability in dealing with the Russians. And he kept us out of war didn't he?

THIS SUMMER a couple of enemy P.T. boats attacked our navy, spraying us with machine gun fire. This is like an ant attacking an elephant. But President Johnson seemed to think we were in grave danger. He called the incident a national crisis and sent our nearly invincible forces to crush the P.T. boats. And he kept us out of war didn't he?

There are other examples of President Johnson's peace-abiding record. Too such as the glorious test-ban treaty that has allowed Russia and Red China to make huge gains on us in the field of nuclear weapons. Such as staying in the U.N. at all costs even if we have to pay most of the bill for a small percentage of the negotiating power. And such as giving the communists foreign aid so they'll like us better.

With this kind of man running the show let's thank God we aren't in war.

Six reasons short . . .

To the Editor: In your publication of Oct. 8, you printed a letter from Kuris Raitis in which he said he read a Goldwater Publication listing to reasons why we should elect Goldwater for President. The Daily Iowan then proceeded to complement his ignorance with a headline reading, "Ten reasons why . . ."

I found four and I believe the other six may be worth printing. Even the four that were printed were abridged and thus taken out of context.

I was also rather surprised that Kuris Raitis values the beauty of Vietnamese trees over the loss of American life.

Let Dr. Lao cure your ills

By G. C. VITALE Iowan Reviewer

If, by any chance, you are a Yankee fan and fear that tenth inning blast by McCarver was a death knell, if you are rooting for the United States' teams in Tokyo or outer space and seem to see some setbacks, if you have cramped fingers from keeping them crossed at SUI football games, or if that Phi Beta Kappa key has finally become a nuisance, then let me suggest the Varsity Theatre's offering, "7 Faces of Dr. Lao," as a possible cure for your ills.

But buy only one ticket at the box-office, making sure the usher keeps the critic within you without. For you will find no great acting in this movie. You will need to stretch your suspension of disbelief to the snapping point to accept not only the film's story but its poor craftsmanship.

Finally a moan may escape your lips as Hollywood proves once again it does not have the technical proficiency to create a dragon or dinosaur of sufficient cinematic reality. But stuff the critic inside you with some buttered popcorn and enjoy the film for what it is worth.

THE MOVIE is, in fact, a motley conglomeration of many elements barely fused together. Elements as unrelated as the side-shows and garish colors of a carnival, which is the movie's subject.

In a lampoon of western heroes, for instance, the venerable Dr. Lao (Tony Randall) dismisses two bouncers, who are roughing up a good injun, by first magically paralyzing them and then thundering those two western cliches: "This town ain't big enough for both of us, pardner," and "Smile when you say that, mister."

Even old vaudevillean jokes are part of the stew. In one scene Dr. Lao is fishing in a dry creek on his first trip to the town, and fish in that creek; as a matter of fact there ain't no water in that creek. "That all right," replies Lao, "Have no bait on hook."

SCIENCE FICTION films, too, receive a lambasting as the good doctor quashes the dragon which threatens mankind and picks up the tiny fish it is reduced to, saying, "Well, that's show biz."

Since, except for Medusa, the make-up in this movie is rather effective, it is questionable why Tony Randall was made to play all the faces of Lao.

Certainly he was up to the zaniness of the ancient Chinaman, and his rendition of Apollonius, the blind seer, was competent, if studied. But his light body movements did more than the shoddy film editing of Pan's dance to mar our image of "The God of Joy." And his Medusa was ludicrous.

ALTHOUGH his palsied hands were exaggerated, the senile Merlin stands as Randall's best acting accomplishment. The character of the gentle and chivalrous magician who has now forgotten most of the magic words and can do nothing more spectacular than fill the pitiable stage he is reduced to performing on with flowers is sensitively drawn by Randall. In fact, the camera work, writing, make-up, and set design in the movie seem to rise to the occasion of Randall's acting in the Merlin sequences.

ALL IN ALL "7 Faces of Dr. Lao" will not be remembered as one of the great film fantasies. It is, however, a little more "hip" than Disney. And it may be the best we can do in the face of the nuclear reality of our age.

Iowa urged to move ahead with Democratic slate

By PAUL FIALA For The Young Democrats

WAKE UP IOWANS - It's time that we join the other 49 states and move forward into the 20th century.

The year 1964 provides YOU, the citizen, with the opportunity to extend the American traditions of equality of all the people, the worth of the individual, our socially conscious attitude which abhors traces of poverty and illiteracy in the midsts of the greatest economically prepared society in the history of the world.

Let us not shirk from this opportunity, in fact this responsibility, on November 3, when the world will be breathlessly watching Americans go to the polls, knowing in their hearts that these American voters control the destiny of every man, woman, and child in this globe.

LYNDON B. JOHNSON, 36th president of the United States will be looking to the people of this nation to give their support to the programs and policies which he has promoted since the unfortunate and untimely death of his predecessor.

Programs like the Civil Rights Bill, which goes a long way towards giving every American, regardless of his race, or color, the right to be treated not as a black, yellow, or white, not as an African, Asian, or European, but as a fellow American who has thrown his abilities and ingenuities into this society to make America the true guiding light of freedom and opportunity for all people to follow.

Programs which have tackled the raising rate of unemployment and strived to give each American the opportunity to fulfill his necessities of life and look towards a bright future when the problems of poverty will be forever erased from the land.

Programs of higher education which will help to assure that every American child will have the opportunity, regardless of his heritage, to compete in this rapidly advancing technological world of ours.

PROGRAMS WHICH have halted the spread of Communism in Latin America, in Europe, and are striving to block the barbarous infiltration of the Red Chinese in Asia. Let us not turn our backs to a man who is dedicated to America and its way of life. The re-election of Lyndon Johnson is imperative to a forward looking America.

The election of a dedicated President is not enough, however. It is essential that the Congressmen we send to Washington work with the President to enact the necessary legislation of his programs.

For the people of Johnson County and the First District of Iowa, this man is Mr. John Schmidhauser.

Mr. Schmidhauser's unique ability and training in combining the political aspects of a public servant with the knowledge of an accomplished academician will doubtless prove invaluable to Congress and the progressive policies of President Johnson.

JOHN SCHMIDHAUSER knows the problems which face the people of Iowa. He understands the grave agricultural problems which one way or another affects all of us. He knows from experience the problems that fact the Labor population and is vitally interested in expanding labor opportunities in the first district. Most important for many of us, Mr. Schmidhauser is a man who understands the needs of our educational institutions and can sound a experienced voice in Washington on what role the Federal Government should play in education.

The election of John Schmidhauser as Congressman from the First District if the election of a progressive Democrat who can, and will, strive to eliminate the many problems which afflict our nation and our state.

The responsibility of citizenship does not stop when we have chosen our national leaders, we must also provide effective leadership on the state level. We need only witness the last two years of growth and change in Iowa to verify the capabilities of our governor.

Only two short years ago Iowa was promised action on liquor-by-the-drink, reapportionment utility consumer protection, industrial development, medical care for the aged, civil rights and home rule, — and we got it.

IF ELECTED to a second term, Gov. Hughes has promised to do something about tax reform, secrecy in government, and Iowa's outmoded bureaucracy.

In view of his record, it is evident that we can count on his enthusiastic determination to raise Iowa from its horse-and-buggy stall into the new and ever changing life of the 20th century.

Great advancements have been made under Democratic leadership in all levels of government, it is up to you, whether we shall continue.

Miller woos Cuban exiles in Miami campaign trip

By MARY MCGRORY

MIAMI, Fla. — Rep. William E. Miller wound up his two-day Southern tour Wednesday night with praise and promises for a minority group.

The circumstances is noteworthy, since he and Barry Goldwater have in general taken the attitude that the minorities must not give way to self-pity. Goldwater has told the poor to buck up and both he and his running mate have ignored the Negro.

But Miller devoted his last evening in Dixie to the Cuban refugees of Miami. The occasion was dampened by a heavy rain that fell just before curtain time and discouraged attendance to the point where the Miami Stadium, which seats 12,000 was only a third full.

THE POLITICAL purpose of the evening was rather misty, too. The number of Cuban refugees in the city is difficult to determine, as many of them fan out to other parts of the country. Estimates between 100,000 and 200,000. While Floridians sympathize with their plight they resent their presence. Supposedly a third of them are eligible to vote.

Miller in his speech directed himself to their future as liberators of their homeland. Local Republicans are not so reticent. Paul O'Neill, who is running in the Third District against the incumbent, Claude Pepper, puts the matter bluntly in his campaign brochure:

"Paul O'Neill favors the recognition of a Cuban government-in-exile and assistance rather than harassment of Cuban patriots so that Communists might be thrown out of Cuba, Cubans might return to their homeland as free men and Miami might return to their jobs."

Miller was hard put to it to be more fiery than his fellow speakers in his demands for this consummation so devoutly wished for on both sides. The whole occasion was one during which he appeared most visibly to yearn for the peace and quiet of his old job as Republican National Chairman when these matters were fought but on the mimeograph machines.

FERNANDO PENEBAS, head of the Cuban-American division of the Republican National Committee, referred to the Bay of Pigs as "an unprecedented and inexcusable fiasco."

Raymond Molina, a veteran of the Bay of Pigs, presented the embarrassed candidate, whose dapper little figure was all but obscured by the burly khaki-clad soldiers around him, with an empty flag.

staff. It symbolized, he said, the empty promise of President Kennedy, to whom the flag of the 250th Brigade had been presented in January, 1963.

The empty flagstaff, which Miller self-consciously examined while Molina spoke, symbolized the emptiness of the Kennedy promise that the standard would be returned to Cuba by liberating invaders.

A local candidate for the Senate, Claude Kirk, spread some of the blame on the living — pointing out that Lyndon Johnson didn't speak out during the Bay of Pigs or the missile crisis.

LOCAL GOLDWATERITES whooped it up but were slightly defensive about having Cubans tell Americans to vote for Goldwater, although one of them said he didn't think it was any worse than having the European press pushing for Johnson.

Miller, having heard the Bay of Pigs reviewed in rancorous detail, confined himself to the missile crisis of October, 1962. He asked the crowd to consider with him the possibility that some kind of a deal had been made — "their weapons out in exchange for our pledge not to invade."

The crowd roared. "Yes!"

The local politicians were delighted with the evening and it said it was Miller at his best — on the attack.

ACTUALLY, he had his best audience response earlier in the day, at the Confederate monument in Augusta, Ga., where he deflected himself against charges in a local newspaper advertisement. In it the Democratic county chairman, Joseph Cummings, said that Miller had misrepresented himself as an assistant war crimes prosecutor in Nuremberg. Miller said, breaking away from his routine castigations, that he had done pretty much what he had been told to do.

"I can't imagine," he said, "they want to debate the respective war records of the candidates. I hope the press will give me a break — I didn't bring this up. He said Cummings brought it up. Hubert Humphrey wasn't in the military service at all because he had a double-hernia and was color blind. Lyndon Johnson was in the service seven months. Barry Goldwater and I served a total of eight years."

It was the one time Miller has spoken up for himself, and it was the one moment of personal rapport he has had with his Goldwater audiences, who haffie him with their enthusiasm and optimism.

Barry's Nomination Comes At Wrong Time

By STEVE deWOLF
Staff Writer

"The nomination of Sen. Barry Goldwater has come at the wrong time in our civilization," social theorist Max Lerner said at a press conference in the Board Room of the Union Wednesday.

This is the time when there must be comprehension of the political war against the communist, Lerner said. "But Goldwater has no understanding. He tries to solve everything by issuing other countries ultimatums and this would lead only to disaster." A well-known author, teacher and columnist, Lerner also discussed crime and delinquency problems in America.

Growing up in America is hard," he said. "There are no models for young people to follow. In the upper middle class suburbs, for example, the family is almost nonexistent. There are no intellectual standards."

If growing up in America is difficult in the suburbs, it is more so in the slums, according to Lerner. "There is an enormous gap between what people in the slums want — from what they see and hear on the mass media — and what they can reasonably expect to get."

Lerner, a professor of American civilization at Brandeis University, said that college students for the most part have come to realize that they are a part of our time, not removed from it, as they often have been in the past.

Lerner said he believed college students would in the future turn inward toward themselves in search of their identity as human beings.

He covered various topics during the press conference which preceded an evening lecture on "America as a Civilization." America is on the threshold of becoming a leisure society, not simply a society with a leisure class, according to Lerner. "The big question is what content we will give to leisure."

The guest lecturer also spoke on civil rights. "What we are seeing now is a struggle against the caste system, with the old ways gradually being torn down."

Lerner asserted that the civil rights problem must first be settled by law, and not in the minds and hearts of the people, as some have advocated.

The book was edited by Bruce Hooton and Nina N. Kaiden with a foreword by A. Hyatt Mayor, curator of prints and drawings in the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Caldwell, Collins Radio Co.; Dec. 8, 10 — "Plane Wave Propagation in Anisotropic Media," Marvin Stippes, University of Illinois; and Jan. 12, 14 — "Using Rockets and Missiles To Explore the Ionosphere," R. W. Knecht, National Bureau of Standards.

Each lecture will be presented at both Iowa State University and SUI, and will be open to the public. The meetings will be at 4:10 p.m. on Tuesdays in the Electrical Engineering Auditorium at Iowa State, and at 3:30 p.m. on Thursdays in Room S107 Engineering Building here.

Profs Publish Stereo Photos In Med Book

A book entitled "Stereoscopic Manual of the Ocular Fundus in Local and Systemic Disease," co-authored by two faculty members of the SUI College of Medicine, has been published by the C. V. Mosby Co.

Authors of the book are Frederick C. Blodi, associate professor of ophthalmology, and Lee Allen, associate in the Department of Ophthalmology.

A stereo viewer comes with the book, which contains 105 full color stereo photographs and 95 photomicrographs.

The book is the result of a technique developed at the SUI Medical Center for taking three-dimensional stereoscopic photographs that reveal details of the ocular fundus — the posterior part or interior of the eye.

Two photographs of the fundus, taken at slightly different angles, have a number of diagnostic advantages when examined in a stereo viewer. For instance, the physician can recognize the estimate elevations of masses and tumors, which cannot be done with monocular methods.

The stereo photo technique also is considered particularly useful in the study of hypertensive (high blood pressure) diseases and diabetes.

A scientific exhibit of the technique won a Certificate of Merit award at the 1963 meeting of the American Medical Association.

Ralph Miller Starts To Build His First Iowa Team Today

By JOHN BORNHOLDT
Sports Editor

Revealing his own "winning edge" program for the first time Wednesday, new head coach Ralph Miller said, "it will be impossible to wear out Iowa's 1964-65 basketball team this year."

In a press conference preceding

'63 SUI Captain Becomes City High Swim Team Coach

Dennis Vokolek, 1962-63 captain of the SUI swim team, has been named swimming coach at Iowa City High School.

Vokolek's appointment was approved Tuesday night at a meeting of the Iowa City Board of Education. He will also teach elementary physical education.

Vokolek was a record-breaking breaststroke swimmer at SUI under Coach Bob Allen. He has been a graduate assistant at the University, helping Allen with the Hawkeye freshmen swim team.

This will be City High's first season of competitive swimming. Six dual meets have been scheduled. The team will compete in conference, district and state meets. Home meets will be held at the new Community Recreation Center on Saturday nights. The first home meet is Dec. 5.

the opening basketball practice today, Miller said this year's team won't ever run out of gas.

"I'M PRIMARILY not worried about the condition of our ball club," he said. "The boys have made excellent improvement during the last three weeks, running cross country six days a week and lifting weights three days a week."

On the days they were lifting weights, the running was cut down to sprints of short distances," he added.

Starting with today's practice, the Hawks will start another conditioning program of jumping and getting good body position under the boards for seven minutes without a rest.

"WE WILL ALSO HAVE a three to five minute session of rapid jumps from one to six inches," he said.

"Eventually, we will get so the whole squad will be conditioned to go for 25 minutes of constant body movement without any rest except for an occasional 60-second break," said Miller.

"I'M PRIMARILY an offensive-minded coach," said Miller, "and I feel a pressing defense is just another offensive weapon that can be used to win games."

Miller conceded he probably won't be able to apply all his basketball theories with his first team at Iowa. Maybe he will only be able to use parts, since he didn't recruit any players, except Chris

Returning Veterans

Pervall, to fit into my style of basketball, he said.

Pervall, a 6-2, 186-pound junior guard, is a transfer student from Newark, N.J. He has been clocked at 10.3 for the 100-yard dash. "He should help us quite a bit this season," said Miller.

WITH SIX WEEKS to go before the season's opener against South Dakota, Dec. 1, the Hawks will have 36 practice sessions to adapt to their new coach's style of basketball.

"I have made no judgments about this year's team, especially since I have no way to rate the sophomores," he said. "From what I have seen of last year's films, the returning lettermen have good speed, reaction and recovery on defense."

"Our problems will deal with handling the ball, especially on the fast break," he said. "We will have to recondition them, and through repetition, build up their confidence in a running game. They will have to learn to anticipate when to run to get a one-step jump on their opponents on the fast break."

LAST SEASON Iowa had an 8-15 overall record. Miller came to Iowa last spring after his teams compiled a 13-year record at Wichita of 223 wins and 133 losses. His only losing season was in 1951-52, his first there.

"I like our schedule this year," he said. "A tough December schedule will prepare us better for the Big Ten slate, which is always going to be tougher on you, no matter how you look at it. I can't complain about our Big Ten games. If we had Ohio State and Michigan at home, I'd say it was perfect."

Miller said he has some concern for the guard position on this year's team. "Gary Gottschalk, a 5-10 sophomore from Dubuque, is the only boy on our squad who has been a guard all his life. All the rest have been converted at one time or another."

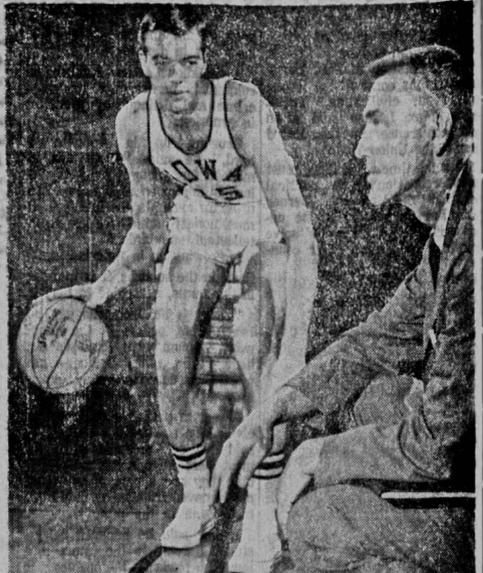

"I CAN'T TELL about Jimmy Rodgers, this year's captain who has played two years at guard for Iowa, until I see more of him on the court," said Miller.

"Chris Pervall will help us at guard this year. He is a fine ball handler and playmaker. That's what we brought him to Iowa for," said Miller.

Miller called George Peoples, a 6-8, 204-pound junior from Ecorse, Mich. "the biggest jumping jack I've got. I like a large post man for defense. I don't care if he is a high scorer or not, as long as he makes a few defensive saves, gets the ball off the boards and guards the bucket with success."

MILLER SAID Peoples will be used strictly as a center but that Gary Olson and Ed Bastian will be trained to go either as forwards or centers.

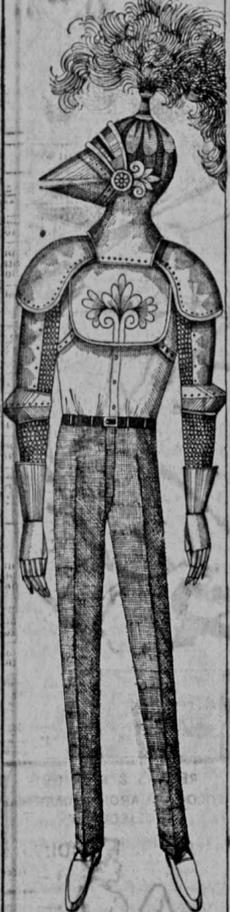

He ended by calling this a rebuilding year for Iowa in basketball. "I would definitely put us in that position, since we finished ninth in the conference race last season," he said.

Looking Ahead

Looking ahead to the 1964-65 basketball season are captain Jimmy Rodgers and new head coach Ralph Miller. Rodgers was the second highest scorer for the Hawks last season with a 12.9 average in 23 games. Rodgers was tied for the conference lead in free throws with an .855 completion average. Miller came to Iowa last spring after his teams compiled a 13-year record at Wichita of 223 wins and 133 losses. He is being assisted by Dick Schultz and Lanny Van Eman.

Maris, Mantle, Pepitone Connect As Yanks Fight Back With 8-3 Win

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The slumbering New York Yankee power awoke with a grand slam home run by Joe Pepitone and back-to-back blasts by Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle in an 8-3 victory behind Jim Bouton Wednesday that squared the World Series with St. Louis at three games each.

MARIS AND MANTLE broke open a 1-1 duel between Bouton and 35-year-old Curt Simmons with a quick flash of old Yankee thunder in the sixth inning. Pepitone's slam atop the roof of the right field pavilion climaxed a five-run burst in the eighth.

Until the M and M boys cut loose on Simmons in the sixth, this had been a re-run of Saturday's battle between the same two pitchers, won by Mantle on a ninth-inning homer off relief man Barney Schultz.

IT WAS SCHULTZ again in this sixth game who was roughed up in the eighth although Pepitone's clout came off Gordon Richardson, a lanky left-hander.

Bouton, a strong youngster who throws himself at the plate with every pitch, finally needed relief help from lefty Steve Hamilton to put out a last-gasp Card rally in the ninth. It was Bouton's second victory in a Series that now goes down to today's decisive game.

NOBODY HAD HIT back-to-back homers in Series play since Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig accomplished the feat in both 1928 and 1932 until Maris and Mantle ripped into Simmons in the sixth.

Maris' drive to right was just barely fair down the line and landed atop the pavilion. Before the crowd of 30,805 at Busch Stadium had settled down, Mantle drove Simmons' next pitch into the screen over the 322-mark in right. The ball stuck in the screen, gleaming in the bright summery sunshine.

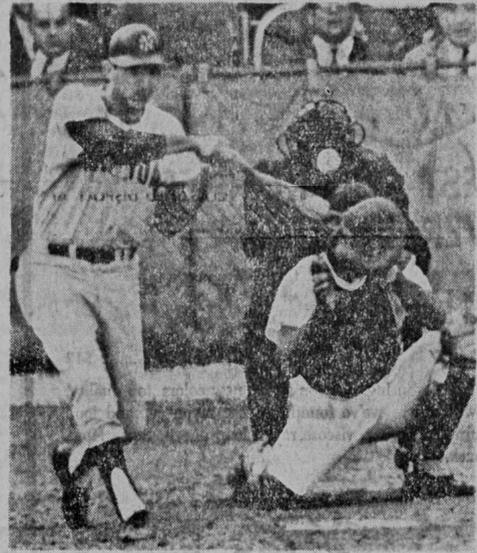

Bouton, losing his cap periodically as he finished up with his hard follow through, had to get the base hit that squared matters in the fifth after giving up a Card run in the first inning.

SINGLES BY the speedy Curt Flood and Lou Brock, the first two men to face Bouton, put men on first and third with none out. When Bill White rapped into a double play, Flood scored.

That run looked big as Simmons handcuffed the Yanks with his tantalizing change-up and fine control until Tom Tresh bounced a ground-rule double into the stands in left to open the fifth.

Simmons, working carefully, struck out Pepitone and made Clete Boyer roll out. But Bouton took a ball and then hit a change-up pitch into left for a single that scored Tresh with the tying run.

U.S. Leads with 20 Medals

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer
TOKYO (AP) — Strong man Al Oerter and Edith McGuire, America's chief hope for gold medals in women's dashes, got the United States off to a lightning start today toward adding more medals to their leading collection of 20 in the Olympic games.

Oerter, who has been bothered by a rib cage injury, broke the Olympic record in the discus with his first throw in the qualifying round. He sent the discus 198 feet, 7 1/2 inches, surpassing the distance of 194-2 he established four years ago at Rome.

Oerter, a 260-pounder from West Babylon, N.Y., also has been wearing a collar for a pinched nerve in his neck for several months. There was some apprehension as to how well Oerter would do in defending the championship he has won at the past two Olympics. But the 28-year-old former world record holder quickly dispelled those fears.

Miss McGuire, a 20-year-old speedster from Atlanta, Ga., led an advance of all three American entries in the 100 meter dash. She won the second heat of the qualifying round in 11.4 seconds, one-tenth of a second off the Olympic record set by Wilma Rudolph in 1960.

Marilyn White of Los Angeles raced to a victory in the first heat, also in 11.4, while Wyoming Tyus of Griffin, Ga., captured the fifth heat by a good two yards, equaling the record of 11.3.

Miss McGuire won her heat by three yards, then rested before running in the 200 meter dash qualifying round.

Iowa Is Big 10 Offense Leader

CHICAGO (AP) — Two teams lightly regarded in preseason ratings, Iowa and Purdue, are the Big Ten

Burns Calls Odds-Makers Crazy for Favoring Iowa

Coach Jerry Burns' optimism was tempered somewhat Wednesday after learning from the latest doctor's report that his top punter and defensive back Larry McDowell will be out of action for at least two or three more weeks.

As for Wisconsin, Burns said, "I discount entirely our role as 7 to 14-point favorites in this game. The odds makers are crazy. It should be rated, at best, an even game, with Wisconsin a slight favorite with the advantage of the home field."

Burns called Wednesday's practice "A good workout," but expressed concern for a large number of minor injuries, sustained in Indiana game, that haven't completely healed yet.

offensive and defensive leaders in the freshly started conference football race.

Pass-minded Iowa is tops on attack, based on its 21-20 league-opening victory over Indiana, with an average of 5.4 yards per play stemming mainly from 263 aerial yards, both league high marks.

The Gary Snook-paced Hawkeyes flipped 40 passes against Indiana, completing 18, both highs.

Actually, runner-up Minnesota, off its 21-18 conquest of Northwestern, has the best balanced attack with a net of 356 yards — 172 by rushing and 184 by passing.

Official league statistics Wednesday credited Purdue with the best offensive ranking, based on a yield of 147 yards, including only 43 by rushing, in its 28-7 opening triumph over Wisconsin.

Another, once-victorious team, Michigan, is second best defensively, allowing Michigan State only 53 plays and eight first downs in the 17-10 comeback triumph over the Spartans.

Ohio State, now considered a prime title contender after defeating Indiana and defending champion Illinois, is rated No. 3 both offensively and defensively.

The Buckeyes lead in only one department, but an important one, yielding an average of only 4.5 points in two games.

Badgers Stress Pass Defense for Iowa Game

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin's Badgers stressed pass defense Wednesday in preparation for their Big Ten encounter with aerial artist Gary Snook and Iowa's Hawkeyes Saturday.

The Badgers also devoted 20 minutes of the practice session to kicking, including punts, kickoffs and field goal and conversion attempts.

Wisconsin was bolstered by the return of Phil Sobocinski, a sophomore who missed last week's game against Purdue.

Sobocinski moved into the defensive left tackle spot vacated by Mike London, who is sidelined with an arm infection.

HELP YOUR FRIENDS SHAKE THE CIGARETTE HABIT THE EAGLE WAY: WEAR A TROMBLEE!

ONE school of motivational theory holds that the popularity of button-down collars stems from fear that somebody will steal your necktie. If that is so, what better way to keep friends from spitching your cigarettes than a button-down pocket, too? ★ So don't delay; "A Tromblee in time saves nine," and occasionally the whole pack. ★ If you yourself are still trying to stop or cut down, try a Tromblee. It beats the hell out of will-power. ★ The first step is to buy a triple" button-down Tromblee, for about $7.00; in white and various conservative colors and stripes. ★ As to the name, it is to honor Mr. Douglas Tromblee of Baytown, Texas, where it is no-coat weather offender than not. Over the years he has become an authority on using shirt pockets to carry things in. We therefore sought his opinion on button-down flap pockets. He thought it was the worst idea he had ever heard of. Having decided to fly in the face of his judgment the least we can do is name it for him. So there's a Tromblee in your future if not in Tromblee's.

Geologists Schedule Trip

A group of 25 geology students, led by Dr. William M. Furnish, professor of geology, will take a field trip this weekend to study the Middle Mississippian formation, a classical example of North American geology.

The trip is part of the annual Tri-State Geological Field conference. More than 200 geologists and students from Iowa, Illinois, and Wisconsin are expected to attend. The group will begin its study at Fort Madison on the Mississippi River and will collect samples and observe the geological aspects of the area south of Hannibal, Mo.

This area has been an object of study for geologists for more than a century, according to John B. Hayes, assistant professor of geology. The 300 million-year-old formations are extremely rich in fossils and also hold geodes, Hayes said.

Also included on the program for the conference, will be a banquet in Quincy, Ill., Saturday night. A speech on the origin of geodes will be given at that time by Hayes.

City High Senior Day Lake Outings To End

The annual City High School spring outing at Lake McBride was discontinued Tuesday night by the Iowa City Board of Education.

A motion, adopted at the board's regular meeting, states that Senior Day as conducted in the past is to be discontinued and that Supt. Buford W. Garner, and Principal Robert K. Sorenson, are to discuss with school seniors activities to replace the annual outing.

Supt. Garner noted that the outing has been a spring occurrence for the past fifteen years, but is now "logistically impossible." The senior class at City High School numbers 370.

Also discussed at the meeting were leaves of absence for school personnel participating in the domestic job corps.

Board member Dale M. Bentz, described an alteration of school policy to cover leaves for job corps workers as "recruitment for the corps."

Present policy, which was left unchanged, grants leaves of absence for one year and does not allow personal advancement during that time.

Effective July 1, 1965, school buses will transport children in accord with the two- and three-mile limits instituted by the Iowa Legislature. Children in kindergarten through the eighth grade who live more than two miles from their school will be transported to school by bus. Students in the ninth through the twelfth grades who live farther than three miles from school will be transported by bus. Exceptions were made for transporting by bus physically handicapped children who live closer to their school than the prescribed distance.

Dennis Vokolek, SUI freshman swimming coach, was appointed as elementary swimming coach by the Board for the present academic year.

Coed Named Angel Flight Commander

Joy Stoker, A4, Des Moines, has been chosen the new Commander Cadet of Angel Flight, an auxiliary of the SUI Air Force ROTC and the Arnold Air Society. In addition to her position in Angel Flight, Miss Stoker is a active MISS STOKER on the Central Party Committee and is social chairman of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

The main objectives of the Angel Flight service organization is to promote interest in the Air Force and Arnold Air Society. Members also assist at various University functions.

British Elect New Commons Leaders Today

LONDON (AP)—British voters elect a new 630-seat House of Commons today deciding whether to keep Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home's Conservatives at the helm or to replace them with the Labor party led by Harold Wilson.

The race appeared so close that both parties were worried. But bookies—legal in Britain—still were giving odds that Labor would win.

Douglas-Home and Wilson made last-minute pleas for support Wednesday night and trumpeted conflicting claims of victory. Their tone and the worried expressions of their aides indicated, however, that they were none too sure.

Wilson, 48, onetime Oxford University faculty member, and Douglas-Home, 61, a former nobleman, are rivals for the prime ministership. The job goes to the man whose party wins control of the House of Commons.

Either will be the person that the winner of the U.S. presidential election Nov. 3 will have to deal with on an intimate basis in Western alliance matters.

A puzzling campaign, Britain's most disorderly this century, produced contradictory clues as to the outcome.

About 28 million men and women, out of an eligible 36 million voters, will choose the persons they want to represent them in Parliament for the next five years. The polls will remain open from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Balloting is on a district basis. The voter designates the man he wants to represent him in Parliament. Wilson and Douglas-Home get votes only in their own districts.

Annexation—

council adopted a resolution to submit the question to the voters of the city. If the voters approve the proposal, the city will file a petition in District Court. The defendants in the petition will be all property owners within the annexation area.

The city must then prove it is capable of extending services to the area. The court makes the final decision on whether the area will become a part of the city.

The "voluntary" method of annexation—the other legal procedure for acquiring additional territory—requires property owners outside the city limits to petition the city council for annexation of their area. Then only a majority vote by the council is necessary to bring the area into the city. This was the method Coralville used recently to obtain its increased area.

Iowa City also has taken advantage of the second method. The most recent land acquisition by this procedure was that of property owned by Archie Kodros. The city acquired this land in September.

IN AN ATTEMPT to insure the passage of the current annexation proposal, which is backed by the Citizens' Advisory Committee, the Planning and Zoning Commission, the Chamber of Commerce, the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the League of Women Voters, city officials have begun an "educational program."

Mayor Richard Burger has spoken to local organizations explaining the city's reasons for annexation. Both the city manager and City Attorney Jay Honohan have issued reports to the city council and the public stating that the annexation is essential for the orderly growth of the city.

The city council also listened to local opinions on the question at a special meeting Tuesday night.

SUI Grad Students Act As Traveling Scholars

Two SUI graduate students are studying at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, this fall as part of the Traveling Scholar Program of the Committee on Institutional Cooperation.

The students are Ann Frankel, G. Iowa City, who is studying medical genetics, and David Hendricks, G. Coralville, who is studying civil engineering.

The traveling scholar program, sponsored by 11 universities, allows students to travel to other universities for short periods for study or research.

In its recently completed first year of operation, the Traveling Scholar Program enabled graduate students in more than 20 disciplines to cross institutional lines to take advantage of the special resources offered by other member institutions.

One SUI student took part in the program last spring, and four studied on other campuses during the summer session. The program also allows students

To Bring Students Facts—

Discussion Club Reactivated

By MIKE ELLIOTT Staff Writer

A recently reactivated SUI student organization, the Political Science Discussion Club, seeks "to bring facts about politics, current news and contemporary political thinking not ordinarily discussed in the classroom, to the student," according to chairman Richard Pundt, A3, Homestead.

THE CLUB has adopted a broad format so many different subjects can be discussed. "We want to have a wide appeal to the student body. This is more than just a club for political science majors," Pundt said.

Future programs will feature addresses and discussion about Medicare, congressional campaigns, duties of the State Department, the FBI, and a debate between liberal and conservative spokesmen.

Each program will be divided into an address by the guest speaker and a lengthy question discussion period. This group functions primarily through discussion, Pundt said.

PUNDT SAID that most speakers the club will feature this semester are not charging a lecture fee, so the club will be able to grant free admission to most meetings. He said, however, a few sessions may have an admission charge.

Dues for the club are $1 a year which includes admission to all meetings. Membership is over 40 students now, Pundt said.

The Political Science Discussion Club opened the semester with a "coffee chat" with the faculty of the Political Science Department Sept. 24. Mason Ladd, dean of the College of Law, spoke to the club Oct. 8 about the study of law and law as a career.

Speakers scheduled for this semester are: Dr. George Scanlon, Iowa Medical Association, on his opposition to "medicare" legislation; C. H. DeFord, FBI agent, on the jurisdiction and work of the FBI; John Schmidhauser, candidate for state representative from the First Congressional District, on the conduct of a Congressional campaign; Manuel Mentez, a Cuban refugee now teaching in Muscatine, on life in Cuba.

Arrangements are still being made for other speakers this semester, Pundt said.

THE CLUB was officially reactivated by the Office of Student Affairs on March 12, 1964. The next meeting will be on Oct. 22 and will feature U.S. Senator Jack Miller. It will be a joint meeting with the Young Republicans.

Students interested in joining the discussion club may attend this meeting or contact Richard Pundt at 8-3848.

Goldwater Urges Strength at Home

DENVER (AP)—Republican presidential candidate Barry Goldwater pledged Wednesday night to take off "bureaucratic shackles" if the people make him president.

"We want strength at home," he said, "and we want it through freedom."

The Arizona senator charged a "White House whitewash" in the Bobby Baker case, the issue he thinks is hurting the President most in this political campaign.

"The man who occupies the White House does not want Bobby Baker exposed because Bobby Baker's affairs lead straight into the White House itself," he declared.

"I thought that was Bobby Baker," he quipped at a boozing Johnson supporter in Omaha, and when a billhorn let loose, commented, "That sounds like Lyndon."

LBJ Wants Caution In Foreign Policy

NEW YORK (AP)—President Johnson said Wednesday night foreign policy management requires "caution in the cockpit and an experienced pilot."

Implying that he is the candidate with experience and caution, Johnson pledged that, if elected, he will make new efforts to lessen East-West tension and slow the arms race.

The President delivered a full-dress foreign policy statement at the 20th annual Alfred E. Smith memorial dinner.

He said: "I believe we may be nearing a time for further and more lasting steps toward decreasing tensions and a diminishing arms race. I will try to take those steps."

The President's words seemed to reflect his hope, expressed privately, of arranging a meeting next year—assuming he is elected—with Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Sulowan Escapes Burning Car After Dump Truck Crash

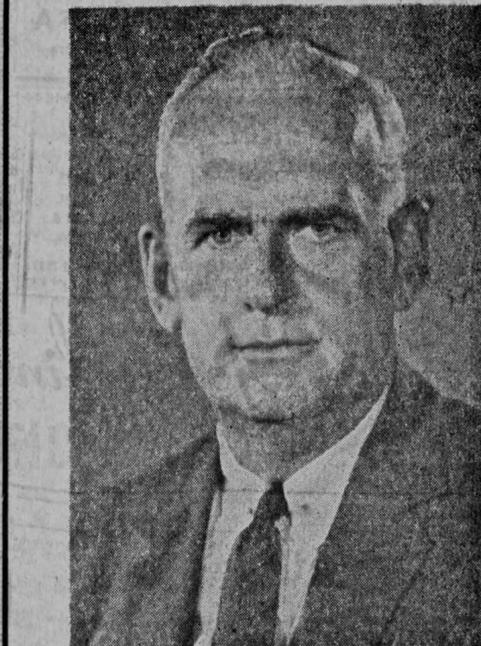

Paul A. Biorn, G. Northfield, Minn., escaped serious injury Wednesday morning when his small foreign car collided with a dump truck, spun around and burst into flames.

After the impact, the small car spun around and came to a sudden halt, throwing Biorn out. Witnesses said he landed on his feet and started running away from the car as it exploded in flames.

The accident occurred as the car, coming north on George Street collided with the rear of the truck, which was headed east on Highland Drive.

Deputy Sheriff E. J. Ruppert said the truck driver, Ken R. O'Donnell, 411 Washington St., was charged with failure to yield the right of way. The truck is owned by the Albrecht Construction Co. of Iowa City.

In Miss SUI Pageant—

Secrecy Shrouds Judges' Identities

By CARLA SCHUMANN
Staff Writer

The official judges for the 1964 Miss SUI Pageant will be faced with a decision Saturday that might stump even the Supreme Court.

They will be asked to select the five finalists for Miss SUI.

Secrecy shrouds the identity of the "Board of Experts" this year. "It isn't that we're afraid of reprisals but we're protecting the innocent. 'No one can say there was any favoritism this way,'" Pageant Director Bill Parisi, 43, Chicago Heights, Ill., said. Parisi said the three "experts" are qualified, having judged both Miss America and Miss Iowa Pageants.

The judges have two important decisions to make this year. They will select both the 10 semi-finalists and the five finalists following the presentation of candidates at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Union Main Lounge.

IN PREVIOUS years only the semi-finalists were named by the Pageant judges. The five finalists were then selected by an all-campus male vote the following week.

This year SUI males will vote only on the five finalists, Parisi said. Election day is Oct. 22.

As in previous years, candidates are scheduled for 15-minute interviews with the judges prior to the Union presentation. Parisi said the interview ratings are based on a candidate's poise, natural attitude, ability to express thoughts and capacity for rationally responding to questions of a probing nature.

Each judge will make his own list of top 10 which will not be announced.

FIRST TO APPEAR before the judges Saturday night will be 1963 Miss SUI, Joeth Mannebach, 44, Glenview, Ill. Following Miss Mannebach, the 24 candidates will be called to face the "court"—the judges and the 1,800 students, faculty and parents viewing the presentation.

Each woman's housing unit will present a skit as testimony to its candidate's personal qualifications.

Parisi said the judges will rate the skits on a scale similar to the interviews.

The skits are judged on ingenuity, originality and talent displayed by the housing units sponsoring each candidate. Publicity Director Bob Baron, 44, Smithville, Tex., said.

The ballots cast at the end of the skit presentation will be added to those previously cast following the interviews. The 10 candidates with the highest ratings will be declared semi-finalists by the judges, he said.

The total possible points will be weighted two-thirds on interviews and one-third on skits.

The judges next decision will be to choose five of the 10 semi-finalists.

The 10 semi-finalists will be called to the "witness stand" at the Union presentation. Each coed will answer one question on the responsibilities of Miss SUI, Parisi said.

AFTER PRESENTING the final testimony on their behalf, the "defendants" will await the judges' decision.

The judges' final decision will be made in favor of the five coeds who exhibit the greatest poise while responding quickly and intelligently to the question.

One-fourth as much weight is placed on the questions as to the first voting on the interviews, Parisi said.

A recess will be called during which the total for each semi-finalist is added to the votes from the questions.

The final verdict of the selection of the finalists will be announced at the Pageant.

Editors To Participate In Publishing Confab

SUI will play host to editors from New York publishing houses and university presses participating in the first Conference on the Publishing of Fiction Friday and Saturday.

The conference, sponsored by the SUI Program in Creative Writing, will include three panel discussions, covering the commercial aspects of publishing and the qualities and defects of American writing from the editors' points of view.

R. V. Cassill, conference chairman and lecturer in the SUI Creative Writing Program, urged all interested persons to attend.

The panel discussions, to be led by New York editors, are scheduled as follows: "Buying and Editing Fiction Manuscripts," 2 p.m., Friday, Shambaugh Auditorium; "What Happens When A Book Is Published?," 8 p.m., Friday, Chemistry Auditorium; and "Publishing and the Shape of Literature," 10 a.m. Saturday, Shambaugh Auditorium.

Publishers and publications represented in the conference will include "Book Week," "Saturday Evening Post," Gold Medal, Crest, Bantam Books, "North American Review," Dial Press, and University of Michigan Press.

Newspapers Are Honored This Week

This week many American publications are celebrating National Newspaper Week by recalling some outstanding moments in the history of the nation's newspapers. And there have been many.

"... were it left for me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers, or newspapers without a government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter." Thomas Jefferson wrote in a letter to Col. Edward Carrington, Jan. 16, 1787. Today Americans are reminded often of this statement as newsboys deliver papers filled with reports of the world, nation, state and city.

The first newspaper published in the American colonies was "Publick Occurrences Both Foreign and Domestic" in Boston in 1689. This three-page paper lasted only one issue. It was suppressed by the colonial governor within four days.

The Boston News-Letter became the first continuously published newspaper in America in 1704. A Tory paper, it ceased publication when the British evacuated Boston.

The Boston Gazette was started in 1719 by Benjamin Franklin's older brother, James. It ceased publication in 1798.

The first daily newspaper in America was the Pennsylvania Evening Post, published by Benjamin Towne in 1783. The paper lasted 17 months during which time the publisher was indicted for treason.

Francis Childs' New York Daily Advertiser, founded in 1785, was the first American newspaper to be founded as a daily. Daily papers came into the picture mostly to compete with the coffee-shop bulletins in giving reports to merchants of the offerings of importers.

During 1963, according to the Editor & Publisher Yearbook for 1964, more than 7,500,000 tons of newsprint were used by 1,755 U.S. daily newspapers with a total circulation of more than 58,000,000.

Today there are also approximately 9,000 weekly newspapers published in the United States.

Elm Spraying Scheduled In Iowa City

Iowa City elm trees will be sprayed by hydraulic sprayers, when the most of the leaves have fallen and songbirds have gone south, according to the city forestry department.

The department currently is completing spraying contracts with three tree firms which will spray the same areas as last year from Nov. 5, 1963, to Dec. 7, 1963. Private trees also will be sprayed.

Areas to be sprayed will be posted with "No Parking" signs, at least 24 hours in advance, according to Ed L. Bailey, city forester.

"Please cooperate with us and bear with us in this essential evil chore we have had forced upon us. With public acceptance and cooperation we will be able to get a distasteful job over quickly and efficiently," Bailey said.

He will talk on the "Organization Required for Regional Hospitals Treating Trauma," and the "Use of Image Amplifier in Treating Common Fractures." For the Youngsters

Children in eastern Iowa elementary schools will hear informal concerts next week by the Iowa String Quartet, from left, Allen Ohmes, John Ferrell, violins, Joel Krosnick, cello, and William Preucil, viola. The four musicians are all members of the SUI music faculty and have already performed for Iowa City children this fall.

Quartet To Play For School Children

Students in 10 elementary schools in eastern Iowa will hear informal concerts by the Iowa String Quartet next week under sponsorship of Young Audiences, Inc.

The resident quartet from SUI will appear at three schools Monday — West Liberty Community School, Lincoln School, Muscatine, and Adams Elementary School, Davenport at 1 p.m.

Wednesday the quartet will play at Arthur Elementary School, Cedar Rapids, Mt. Vernon Elementary School and Tipton Elementary School.

The group will play at Mechanicsville Elementary School, Shannon Elementary School, Monticello, and Briggs Elementary School, Maquoketa, Tuesday.

The quartet will close its first series of concerts with a program at the Whittier Grade School, Clinton, Thursday. Members of the quartet, who are on the SUI music faculty, will return to the campus each day to meet classes. In order to return to Iowa City in time for their campus commitments Thursday, the quartet will travel by plane to Clinton and back.

The quartet members are Allen Ohmes and John Ferrell, violins; William Preucil, viola, and Joel Krosnick, cello. Principals of 26 schools have been invited to hear the group's program for children at Arthur Elementary School, Cedar Rapids.

French will discuss the Young Audiences concert series in a taped interview to be broadcast by radio station WSUI (heard at 910 kilocycles) at 8:30 Monday a.m.

Young Audiences, Inc., is supporting the series of concerts in the Iowa schools through a grant from the Old Dominion Foundation. Organized 12 years ago in New York City to promote performance of live music in schools for children who might otherwise be limited to music heard on radio and television programs, Young Audiences, Inc., now sponsors some 5,000 concerts a year in 26 states.

Prof. Smith To Speak At Conference

Dr. Ian M. Smith, associate professor of internal medicine in the SUI College of Medicine, will speak on the "Metabolic Response of the Host to Staphylococcal Infection" at a medical conference in New York City, Oct. 22-24.

The conference, which is on "The Staphylococci: Ecologic Perspectives," is being sponsored by the Section of Biological and Medical Sciences of the New York Academy of Sciences.

After the conference, Dr. Smith will confer with another conference speaker, Dr. Per Oeding of the University of Bergen School of Medicine, Bergen, Norway. The two scientists are doing research in similar areas.

A third speaker at the conference, Stephen D. Elek of St. George's Hospital Medical School, London, is scheduled to visit the SUI College of Medicine in February.

SUI Students, Faculty Receive Health Grants

Seven SUI students and faculty members have received fellowships and research grants from the U.S. Public Health Service.

Margaret O. Osborn, associate professor of home economics, and Margaret A. Ohlson, professor of internal medicine, received a $15,695 grant for a study of the effects of gluten (a protein found in wheat) on the intestinal tract and internal organs of humans and animals.

Luther O. Nolf, professor of zoology, was granted $9,630 for research on tissue response to two worms (Hymenolepis and Trichinella) which live as parasites in the body and cause disease.

Three graduate students in psychology received Public Health Service fellowships to enable them to pursue doctoral degrees in research. The fellowships are adequate to provide for the entire support of the students during their study.

Gerald Cooke, G. Forest Hills, N.Y., will do research on "the relative efficiency of two therapy procedures as a function of anxiety level," James F. Williams, G. Topeka, Kan., will do research on the development of aggression in children.

Sister Mary John Catherine Leonard, G. Glendale, Calif., a member of the Clarke College psychology department at Dubuque, will do research on verbal learning.

Roy P. Peterson, G. Alexandria, La., received a fellowship for investigation of the influence of hormones on the growth process in reproductive tissues. His work will be conducted under the guidance of Eugene Spaziani, associate professor of zoology.

FORMER WIVES MEET—
LONDON (AP)—Eddie Fisher's former wives, Elizabeth Taylor and Debbie Reynolds, say they spent a pleasant evening together during a voyage to Europe aboard the Queen Elizabeth and that they plan to meet again soon.

Louis Nizer, Lawyer, Writer To Speak Here

Louis Nizer, noted lawyer and best-selling author, will lecture at SUI Oct. 30.

His address on "Jury Trials" will be presented at 8 p.m. in the Main Lounge of the Memorial Union.

Nizer is the author of several books, including "New Courts of Industry" and his recent best-seller "My Life in Court."

His address is being presented in conjunction with an SUI legal institute on "The Medical Witness and Damages" to be held Oct. 30-31 for the lawyers of Iowa.

Following registration Oct. 30, the institute will open with greetings from Mason Ladd, dean of the College of Law.

Saturday morning's program will begin with an address on "Revolution in Choice of Law for Tort" by Russell Weintraub, professor of law and will conclude with a talk by Atty. William Tucker, Iowa City.

Hubbell Works To Encourage Self-Help

Robert N. Hubbell, SUI's new counselor to men, sees his work as "helping people to help themselves."

Hubbell is responsible for the coordination of the programs for men in three main campus housing units and he is assisted by head residence hall adviser Tom Frith, Fraternity Adviser Eldridge Roark and Off-Campus Adviser James Rhaigan. Hubbell said he thought his new job would be "a good learning experience." He added that SUI has gained favorable national recognition for its student personnel work.

HUBBELL is also an assistant professor in the College of Education.

"I hope to coordinate a program with Dean Huft and Dean James of the College of Education to involve more students in a practicum arrangement where they can work in the Office of Student Affairs and receive credit toward graduate degrees," Hubbell said.

Hubbell explained the arrangement as a working seminar so students could learn by doing and get credit for it.

"This kind of a working relationship between the Office of Student Affairs and the College of Education would be a major source of future student personnel workers," he said.

"I WOULD also like to have the social and intellectual spheres of the University become more inter-involved," Hubbell said. "Through student-faculty discussions of various current issues, the students could become a part of the mainstream of intellectual involvement here."

Concerning the function of his office in student personnel work, Hubbell said, "If we didn't have any interest in students and their concerns, we could easily be replaced by IBM machines; there would be no reason for our being here."

Hubbell and his wife, Joann, are the parents of two sons, Scott, 9, and Brian, 6. They are living at 521 5th Ave., Coralville.
