

Cards Win First World Series Championship Since 1946

Beat Yanks 7-5 Behind Bob Gibson

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Iron man Bob Gibson, working with only two days rest, pitched the scrappy St. Louis Cardinals to their first world championship since 1946 with a 7-5 victory over the favored New York Yankees in Thursday's crucial seventh Series game.

The rangy right-hander who once played basketball with the Harlem Globetrotters broke all Series strikeout records with a total of 31, including nine in the finale with big money on the line.

A CROWD of 30,346 boisterous fans roared, trumpets blared and horns tooted as the Cardinals completed their rags to riches rise from seventh place July 24 to the championship of all baseball at the expense of the proud Yankees.

A tumultuous crowd poured out of the bleachers and surrounded the happy knot of white-uniformed Cardinals after Dal Maxvill snared Bobby Richardson's pop for the final out. Maxvill was warmly embraced by Dick Groat and then the whole club converged on the mound, pounding the exhausted Gibson on the back.

Gibson needed help from a burly cop and two special park attendants to escape from the well-wishers, finally scooting under the rally in front of the dugout.

HUNDREDS of youthful fans stood in front of the Card dugout for several minutes, chanting, "We want the Birds. We want the Birds." Only a posse of police kept them from charging down the steps toward the clubhouse.

Obviously tiring under the heavy burden of pitching a 10-inning game in New York Monday afternoon and another complete nine-inning job in this one for all the dough, Gibson staggered a bit in the ninth. Solo home runs by Clete Boyer and Phil Linz narrowed his lead to two runs but Manager Johnny Keane never made a move in a fine tribute to his big pitcher.

Gibson's strikeout feat erased Sandy Koufax's total of 23 piled up in last year's Los Angeles Dodgers four-game sweep over the Yanks. It even surpassed the musty record of 28 set by ancient Bill Dinneen of the Boston Red Sox in 1903 in an eight-game series.

THE VICTORY was a sweet personal triumph for Keane, who had been reportedly on the brink of being fired in late season before the Cards started their spurt. It was equally sweet to Bing Devine, the general manager who was let out by the Cards Aug. 17 and later looked on with the New York Mets.

The Cards nestled in fourth place in the National League, 11 games out, on Aug. 23 and still trailed the Philadelphia Phillies by 7½ lengths as late as Aug. 31. They won the pennant, of course, on the last day of the season and followed it up by going the route in an exciting Series.

Gibson's opponent, rookie Mel Stottlemyre, also was attempting to come back with two days rest in his third starting job of the Series. The 22-year-old right-hander left for a pinch hitter in the fifth after his Yankee defense let

British Labor Party Moves Toward Victory

LONDON (AP) — Harold Wilson's Labor Party moved Friday toward victory in Britain's national election but a late surge of Conservative votes indicated the final result would be close.

Returns from 427 of the 630 parliamentary districts gave:

Conservative party ... 179 seats
Labor party ... 247 seats
Liberal party ... two seats

The Labor party took 47 seats away from the Conservatives, two from the Liberals and one from an independent. But Labor lost four seats to the Conservatives to make their net gain 46.

LABORITE spokesman, watching the late count, drastically scaled down earlier claims that their party would control the 630-seat House of Commons by 50 seats. They said they still thought the party would get in but only by 15 to 25 seats.

The Labor party leaped into an early lead only to see the Conservatives stage a come-back as the counting switched from the big cities and industrial areas to agricultural districts.

Neutral experts said the count up to Friday morning showed that the Conservatives could hardly hope for much better than a dead heat. They said the Labor party was moving toward victory but still had to establish a commanding margin.

COMPUTERS operated by the commercial independent television network and the British Broadcasting Corp. forecast a final Laborite margin of 17 to 19 seats.

If late reporting results continue the trend of the districts already tabulated, Wilson will become prime minister and succeed Sir Alec Douglas-Home with an opportunity to give a leftward slant to this island kingdom's government after 13 years.

Wilson, puffing his pipe, told reporters at his home district of Huyton near Liverpool that he "found the over-all results moderately encouraging."

Before Parliament was dissolved Sept. 25, Conservatives and allies held 362 seats, Laborites 261 and Liberals 7.

AT LABOR PARTY headquarters in London's Smith Square there was champagne on ice for a victory celebration, but only two bottles were cracked thus far. Not a single official comment came from the Conservative headquarters across the same tree-shaded square.

In early returns the Laborites did well in the marginals — the districts thinly held by the Conservative side. But the Conservatives held on remarkably well.

If Wilson and his followers are declared the ultimate winners they will have a five-year mandate to attack the nation's economic problems along socialist lines and revise the foreign and defense policies.

Khrushchev Given Release, Soviets Name New Officials

On Annexation Issue—

SUI Sends Protest To Coralville Council

SUI sent a strongly-worded protest letter to the Coralville City Council Thursday urging reconsideration of the city's annexation plans in light of future University plans.

Iowa City protested the Coralville annexation Tuesday when the City Council claimed it was "shocked" at Coralville's action.

The problem involves a voluntary petition annexation approved Sept. 22 by the Coralville City Council. It extends south from Coralville, west of Hawkeye Apartments past the IOWV road and the county home to the Rohret road.

CORALVILLE MAYOR Clarence H. Wilson, Iowa City Mayor Richard W. Burger and SUI Business Manager Ray Mossman met Thursday in an attempt to reconcile the differences between the communities.

After the meeting, Burger said he thought progress had been made. Each representative will consult with his respective council. A joint meeting between the councils, and possibly SUI, is anticipated in the near future.

In the SUI letter, Mossman said SUI first learned of the Coralville annexation at a meeting Tuesday.

"IT SEEMS extremely unfortunate that this action, which vitally affects the City of Iowa City, University Heights, Johnson County and the University, was taken without opportunity to consider the implications of the action for all involved," he said.

"SUI would welcome an opportunity to discuss this matter with the Coralville council and governmental units concerned," according to the letter.

THE UNIVERSITY bases its protest on three claims:

• Any long-range plans for SUI expansion might involve acquisition of substantial land area to the west. One problem created by the Coralville annexation, would be the eventual possibility of SUI being located in two municipalities.

• Possible Coralville zoning of the area for heavy industrial use is not compatible with the SUI plan for development of married student housing.

• The recent annexation action could result in delay of a proposed by-pass south and west of Iowa City which SUI has consistently supported.

Conservatives, Liberals Debate Rights

Liberal and conservative attitudes toward the civil rights movement were aired before the SUI Friends of SNCC Thursday night.

The conservative beliefs, which were frequently greeted with laughter by members of the large audience, were presented by Ron Zobel, Al Olewin, president of the SUI Young Conservatives, and Richard Dickens, E3, Washington, Ill.

Dave Cunningham, past editor of the Iowa Defender and Paul Clark, a transfer student from Drake presented the liberal viewpoint.

The debate opened with five-minute presentations by each member of the panel followed by a discussion of civil rights issues by all the debaters.

"Conservatives fear proposals for furthering the civil rights movement through legislation because the power this legislation gives Government endangers the freedom of the people," Zobel said. Cunningham said, "The important question is how power is going to be used?" The point he said, is to give the Negro access to every governmental power to get his rights.

"The oligarchy of the Southern white politicians must be removed before the civil rights movement can be completed," Clark, the second liberal spokesman, said.

He said the formation of the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party marked "the most important step in the movement." This party challenged the credentials of the all white Mississippi delegation at the Democratic Convention this summer.

Dickens said there must be general popular acceptance of civil rights before the movement can achieve success.

A lengthy question period, directed mainly at the conservative members of the panel, closed the program.

Didn't Know Candidates Discuss Iowa School Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said Thursday night that he had no information or report of any kind until late Wednesday that "had ever raised a question" with respect to the personal conduct of Walter Jenkins.

Flying back from a campaign tour of New York State, Johnson issued his first personal statement on Wednesday's resignation of Jenkins, his long-time friend and key aide, who quit after being arrested on a morals charge.

The President's statement was, in effect, a reply to an allegation by Dean Burch, chairman of the Republican National Committee, that Johnson had covered up for Jenkins for five-and-one-half years — an allegation based on the fact that Jenkins had been arrested on a morals charge in 1959.

The chief executive said: "Until late yesterday, no information or report of any kind to me had ever raised a question with respect to Jenkins' personal conduct."

Johnson, who was said to have told friends that he could hardly credit the accusations against Jenkins, gave high praise to his associate of 25 years.

Johnson said: "No man I know has given more personal dedication, devotion and tireless labor."

The President said that in any such case, however, "the public interest comes before all personal feelings."

And he went on to say he had requested and received Jenkins' resignation. Wednesday night's White House announcement had not disclosed that Jenkins had resigned at the request of the President.

In addition, Johnson said, "with-in moments after being notified last night, I ordered Director J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI to make an immediate and comprehensive inquiry and report promptly to me and the American people."

Candidates Discuss Iowa School Problems

"There is unbelievable hostility in the Legislature against school boards," Bruce E. Mahan, Democratic incumbent state representative, said during a panel discussion sponsored by the Iowa School Study Council Thursday.

Six candidates for State Legislature participated in the panel. Dr. Ralph Janes, professor of anatomy, served as moderator and set forth three issues concerning needed school legislation.

Each panel member was given a chance to comment.

Members of the panel were: D. C. Nolan, Republican incumbent senator from Johnson County; Samuel B. Whiting, Republican candidate for representative; Robert J. Burns, Democratic representative and Bruce Mahan, Democratic incumbent representative.

Mahan said the hostility concerns a raise or complete withdrawal of the present seven mill limit on school bond issues.

In addition to withdrawing the limit on school bond issues, Janes said the committee was in favor of investment in common stocks, a part of the IPERS Fund containing money for teachers' retirement benefits and an increase in state aid to education.

Mahan said that due to the hostility in the Legislature, the bond limit could not be eliminated but could possibly be raised to 10 mills.

Burns said he advocated investing part of the IPERS fund in common stock. He spoke against changing the 7 mill limit on school bond issues, commenting school districts must be kept from going too far in debt. He also said he favored a proportional sharing of the tax burden to stop property tax increases.

Burns' opponent for the Senate, D. C. Nolan, said he was against investment of the IPERS fund in common stock. He also said he was in favor of a program to ease the burden on property tax.

Erickson said he favored increasing state aid to schools in a way that would equalize the property tax burden and provide a broader tax base. He indicated that an increase in sales tax might be used to ease property tax burdens.

Mrs. Doderer spoke against the repeal of the bond issue limit, but said she thought an increase in retirement pay to teachers was reasonable.

Whiting said he favored a 40 per cent program of state aid to education as a good aim but was against the investment in common stock of any large per cent of the teachers' retirement fund.

He said money to increase aid should be distributed on a broader tax base.

Bicycle racks have been provided in the south portion of the lot near the streets. Motorcycles and scooters are to park in the north portion of the lot next to the Chemistry Annex.

Campus Police said they are considering additional sites for cycle and scooter lots which will be opened when and if possible.

Moscow-Peking Policy Change Seen Possible

MOSCOW (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev is out of power in the Soviet Union — officially because of his age and health but no doubt under the weight also of Peking-Moscow repercussions and the shortcomings of the Soviet economy.

The announcement of his departure came at midnight Thursday, along with the disclosure that his protégé, Leonid Brezhnev, has taken the key Communist party post Khrushchev held, and Alexei Kosygin has succeeded Khrushchev as Premier in a division of the top jobs.

Five hours later Pravda came out, with a strong indication the party will continue to carry out policies of de-Stalinization and economic improvements as outlined in past years by the party.

It said in bold type: "The Communist party of the Soviet Union firmly and consistently carries into life the Leninist general line worked out at the 20th and 22nd congresses."

KHRUSHCHEV delivered his vigorous speech against Stalinism at the 20th congress in 1956. The 22nd congress in 1961 set long-term goals for improved economic conditions and the attainment of Communist goals.

The statement appeared to be aimed at reassuring Russian readers that the shift of leadership would not mean a return to evils that Khrushchev ascribed to Joseph Stalin — and to tell them they still can hope for better living conditions.

The shift in leadership opens the possibilities of policy changes, however. Most dramatic could be an attempt at reconciliation between Moscow and Peking. This would pose new questions of Soviet relations with the West.

BREZHNEV, at 57, is 13 years younger than Khrushchev. Kosygin is 60.

The shifts meant, in any event, that the 10-year Khrushchev era is over. It embraced cold war and coexistence, and brought a liberalization of the regimes in Eastern Europe which now seems likely to go into abeyance, at least for the time being.

In the last two days Khrushchev has disappeared from public view. A picture of him mounted near the Kremlin was taken down Thursday night. Three hours later, at midnight, came the official announcement of the changes, capping hours of rumors that Khrushchev was on the way out. Tass said the changes were decided upon Wednesday and Thursday.

Brezhnev, a burly native of the Ukraine who has been a Communist 33 years, has assumed the party post from which both Joseph Stalin and Khrushchev controlled Soviet affairs. The Premier's role was secondary for many years, and both Stalin and Khrushchev assumed it after first serving as first secretary. It seems likely to become again the No. 2 spot in the Soviet hierarchy.

THE SOVIET news agency Tass, in carrying the announcement, said

Khrushchev was "released" from the top jobs and also lost his membership on the Presidium of the Central Committee, a job he had held since 1939.

When Khrushchev defeated his leading party opponents in 1957 in a struggle for supreme power, he ousted them from the Presidium and banished them to remote jobs. Stalin killed many of those he defeated in power struggles.

There was no indication Khrushchev attended the party Central Committee meeting at which he was shelved. His release as first secretary was agreed upon Wednesday and his retirement as Premier was voted Thursday, the announcement said, citing his age and health.

Tass said Anastas I. Mikoyan, the durable old Bolshevik who succeeded Brezhnev this summer in the largely ceremonial job of president, presided at the Thursday meeting of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet.

THE ACTION closes a decade during which Khrushchev dominated most of the Communist world. He wound up with the Red world shaken as Lenin and Stalin never could have imagined — in the midst of an ideological scramble with Red China.

What effect the changes will have on the Soviet Union's relations with the West remains to be shown.

In the eyes of Western diplomats, Brezhnev has seemed to take action and to speak in a responsible way, always of course within the Soviet viewpoint.

Kosygin has been a leading spokesman on the Soviet side in the dispute with China, a quarrel that has tended at times to take some of the heat off U.S.-Soviet relations.

Poor health, and conceivably an appraisal of poor results, were probably the factors behind Khrushchev's fall from power just three weeks before he hoped to preside over a triumphant celebration of the 47th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

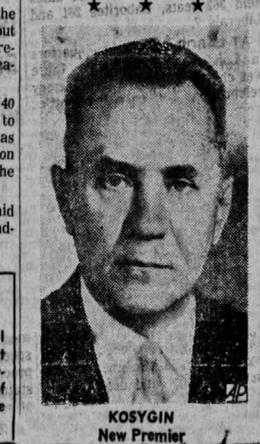

THE DECISION that Khrushchev must go was reached at a session of the Central Committee of the Communist party which began Monday, informants said.

Mikhail Suslov, another spokesman in the Kremlin's dispute with Communist China, delivered the key address. Suslov has appeared at times to be lukewarm in his support of Khrushchev.

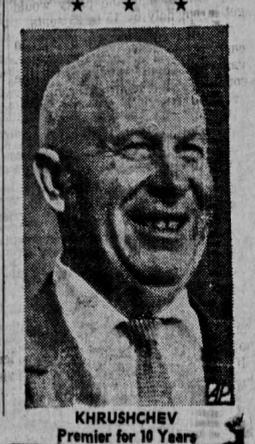

But Khrushchev, now 70 and suffering from high blood pressure

Mr. K's retirement surprisingly sudden

NIKITA KHRUSHCHEV'S RESIGNATION as Premier of the U.S.S.R. and Secretary of the Communist party comes as a surprise because of its suddenness. The former Premier has often mentioned the possibility of retirement. He is 70 years old, but no warning of the resignation came out of Moscow before the change was effected.

During his decade as head of the Soviet Union, Khrushchev has reversed many policies of Stalinist origin. Relations between Russia and the West have grown warmer. Domestic policies are less harsh. The culmination of these reversals is seen in the Chinese-Russo split.

Nikita has even won a good degree of popular support among the Russian people. Observing this, U.S. News & World Report once wrote:

"Somewhere along the line, Nikita Khrushchev made a discovery — that people, his fellow countrymen, actually liked him. Many distrusted him, many feared him, many would prefer another, less colorful leader. But, by and large throughout the Soviet Union, people have a grudging admiration for this tough, shrewd Communist."

Ford Thomson, a British press magnate, after meeting Mr. K earlier this year, wrote in the London Sunday Times:

"What a salesman! I think one of the world's greatest. He projects his views to his people so forcefully that it is little wonder that his leadership is so accepted. The ordinary people's attitude to Khrushchev is unique. They admire and respect, and yet are in no way awed by him. Rather it is the pride and affection of a perhaps humble family towards a member who has made good in a big way."

Details behind Khrushchev's resignation remain fuzzy. They may never become clear. If health and old age were the only reasons behind the move, why did it come so suddenly, with no official announcement? Yet Leonid Brezhnev, the new Communist secretary, and Alexei Kosygin, the new Premier, appear to be "Khrushchev men."

Brezhnev has been mentioned as Khrushchev's choice as successor for some time.

Time describes Brezhnev, former President of the Soviet Union, as "A self-styled fifth-generation steelworker, tough as a 7 beam and as elusive as a Black Sea eel. . . Brezhnev, or any other Soviet leader who may come to power in the next few years, will be dealing with a situation no Soviet leader has ever faced."

It would seem that the Moscow shake-up is following Khrushchev's plans, since Brezhnev has been made party secretary. This is the position which Mr. K held when he ruled with Molotov after Stalin's death. This is the power position which both Stalin and Khrushchev have used to control the country.

The questions raised by the change in Soviet leadership are many, but of major importance to Americans is how the new men will act on "peaceful coexistence" and the Sino-Soviet split.

The fact that Khrushchev has evidently picked his successors personally supports the U.S. State Department's statement that it is not worried about policy changes by the new government. There is no indication of a return to "hard-line" Stalinist-Chinese policies in Russia.

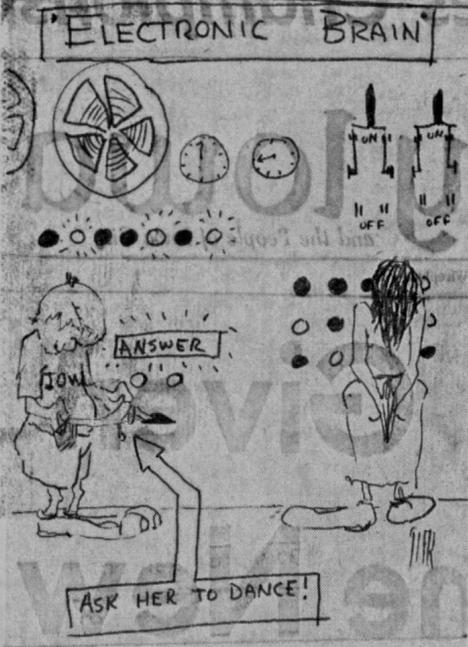

Khrushchev's move puts the Soviet Union in the company of the United States and Britain, that is, all three are having "elections" this fall.

Since President Kennedy's death a year ago and Conrad Adenauer's retirement in West Germany last year, the picture of international leadership has been rapidly changing. New faces in the Soviet Union add much to this change.

The new generation of world leaders may be able to solve the problems of living together better than their predecessors. In an age of nuclear power and an ever shrinking world, solving these problems becomes imperative.

New blood, new ideas may further pave the way to world peace and an end to the cold war, we hope so.

Metropolitan Opera— Studio group illustrates opera's most important aspect—talent

By LARRY R. CULLISON
Iowan Reviewer

The Metropolitan Opera Studio Performance of Mozart's "Così fan tutti" was definite proof that a developed talent and a thorough knowledge of one's art are the most important ingredients in opera production. The cast of six Studio members, without the aid of orchestra, extensive lighting, chorus or full stage settings gave a fine performance for a large house Wednesday evening at Macbride Auditorium.

Even though some of the voices showed the usual strain and tension connected with an opera tour, the production, performed in English did not drag and the fine stage presence of the company made up for any vocal weakness.

AT THE opening curtain it was obvious to all that Gimi Beni's Don Alfonso would be both musically and dramatically satisfying. AS he moved about in this prize bass comedy role, Beni very quickly judged his audience and soon had them feeling as if they too were a part of this plot to disprove the faithfulness of women.

Beni, winner of two Fulbright grants for voice study in Europe, also gave the most consistent vocal performance of the evening. This was most evident in the aria "Women cannot be trusted" which is quite near the end of the opera. The praising and the vibrant high E made this short aria one of the vocal highlights.

THE ROLE of Fiordiligi, which is the most difficult vocally, was given a very musical performance by Miss Dorothy Coulter. Although she had worried about a sore throat all day and had consulted a doctor, her performance was free and well-colored for the most part. Especially pleasing was the low voice and the excellent vocal line which she maintained in the difficult tenth and twelfth interval skips in the first act aria "Bold intruders."

Strongly founded, June Genovese as Dorabella gave a very artistic performance after overcoming a shaky beginning in the early scenes. The second act provided Miss Genovese with the opportunity for some truly beautiful singing.

Associated Press Farm Writer

WASHINGTON — Great uncertainty clouds the outlook for federal farm programs after the presidential inauguration next January — whether the chief executive is President Johnson or Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Both the Democratic and Republican parties have put forth rather vague farm planks in their platforms. But the candidates of both parties have issued statements or made speeches indicating that they would approach the perennial problems of low farm incomes and costly surpluses in a somewhat different manner than advocated by their parties in the past.

Since the 1930s Democratic Administrations have espoused strong farm policies — some employing rigid production controls — to meet these problems. Republicans, on the other hand, have pledged less control and greater reliance on what they call a free market system to stabilize agriculture.

Johnson and his Vice Presidential running mate, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, are committed to the continuation of farm programs of one kind or another.

GOLDWATER IS committed to elimination of these programs. In his case, the big question is when he would do this.

Before his nomination, Goldwater was on record favoring their repeal — and without qualifications. But since he was named by the GOP convention, the senator has said that he would not withdraw them immediately, but over a period of five to 10 years.

Certainly, while he was in Congress, Johnson supported legislation for strong farm-aid programs. But Goldwater, like many fellow Republicans, advocated their elimination.

The GOP nominee did vote for some of the farm proposals of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, but these recommendations were in the direction of eventual repeal.

IN DRAFTING the party's platform, the Democratic conventions have given the candidates a relatively free hand to make changes from current farm plans. Unlike most previous platforms since the days of the Roosevelt New Deal, the 1964 versions did not go into details.

Four years ago, the Democrats, for instance, offered what turned out to be a controversial supply-management plan under which the government, with producer approval, would have invoked tight controls to hold production of most farm commodities in line with demand.

But the supply-management approach ran into trouble in Congress and was never able to get off the ground. The Kennedy-Johnson Administration turned to other approaches, mainly the use of big subsidies to encourage farmers to cut down production voluntarily.

THE DEMOCRATIC farm plank this time offers commodity programs "to strengthen the farm income structure and reach the goal of parity in every aspect of American agriculture."

It offers also consumer programs — including the food stamp plan, school lunch and other surplus food programs — acceleration of research into new industrial uses of farm products and efforts to reduce food costs.

In addition, the Democrats offer community programs to assure rural America "decent housing, economic security and full partnership in the building of the great society." Their platform also promises continued support for Rural Electrification Administration power and telephone programs.

The uncertainty as to Democratic farm policies is further deepened by a post-convention statement by Humphrey that a bipartisan "blue-ribbon" commission composed of leading economists, farm leaders and farmers, financial experts and consumers should be created to "take a good look at where we have been and where we are going" with regard to farm programs.

This statement by the Democratic Vice President candidate — who obviously speaks with the full approval of the President — is serving to minimize the importance of the convention platform.

TURNING TO Goldwater, his pre-convention book entitled "The Conscience of a Conservative" calls for "prompt and final termination of farm programs."

He said they represent an unconstitutional intrusion of the federal government into agriculture that has failed dismally to solve the farm problem.

The book went on to say that there are too many farmers and that the only way to "persuade them to enter other fields of endeavor is to stop paying inefficient farmers for produce that cannot be sold at free-market prices."

"What has been lacking," Goldwater's book said, "is not an understanding of a problem that is really quite impossible to understand, but the political courage to do something about it."

"DOING SOMETHING about it means — and there can be no equivocation here — prompt and final termination of the farm subsidy program. I cannot believe that this course will lose politicians as many votes as some of them seem to fear."

"Most farmers want to stand on their own feet. They are prepared to take their chances in the free market."

Since his nomination, Goldwater has stated that he goes along with the GOP convention farm plank. In this, he said he favors government price supports or subsidies designed to achieve orderly marketing within the framework of our dynamic American market system.

SUI Professors Say—

Soviet Change Not Shakeup

By MIRIAM TOMASEK Staff Writer

Nikita Khrushchev's sudden resignation as Soviet Premier and the announcement of the election of Leonid I. Brezhnev and Alexei Kosygin to top Governmental posts shocked the United States and other world powers Thursday.

Professors at SUI were surprised at the change, but few showed alarm.

The consensus of those interviewed by The Daily Iowan was that the Soviet change is no shake-up. Few predicted any major changes in Russian policies as a result of the shift in leadership.

MAX OPPENHEIMER, chairman of the SUI Russian Department said he interpreted the change as an orderly progression of succession in Communist leadership.

"Russian leaders are trying to show the United States and the rest of the world that they are capable of agreeing on compromise and effecting an orderly succession of leaders," he said.

He said Brezhnev, the new first secretary of the Communist party, is an orthodox Communist and a follower of Khrushchev's way of thinking. Kosygin, he said, is a revisionist, favoring the separation of party and state and the strengthening of the state.

"By promoting both men, the Communists have proved they can compromise two factions within their own party. It is their way of showing harmony in the process of government."

OPPENHEIMER also said Brezhnev has been "riding the fence" politically in Russian relations with Red China. He has not criticized the Chinese and has not brought their anger, as Khrushchev often did.

This may mean Russian leaders were dissatisfied with Khrushchev's handling of Peiking and the Chinese-Russian dispute.

In looking for a successor they were looking for someone with good Chinese relations, Oppenheimer said.

GEORGE GINSBERGS, assistant of political science, said he was not surprised that Brezhnev was chosen to succeed Khrushchev.

"Brezhnev was groomed for the job. His career is tied to Khrushchev's career, and his rise to power has paralleled Khrushchev's," Ginsbergs said.

He said Brezhnev was never considered a rival of Khrushchev. Since he gave up his position as chairman of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet six months ago, Brezhnev has been considered heir apparent to the top Soviet office, Ginsbergs said.

"KOSYGIN HAS been a Communist leader longer than Brezhnev, Ginsbergs said, but he has been in and out of favor with Khrushchev.

"He fell out of favor when Malenkov was eliminated as a Soviet leader, but staged a comeback in 1957 and 1958."

Kosygin is a "technocrat," or a technician with a background in administration. He was master planner and economic adviser in the Soviet party, and served as a deputy premier under Khrushchev.

Brezhnev has served as chairman of the Presidium since 1963. Before that, he was President of the Soviet Union. A metallurgical engineer by profession, he entered Soviet politics under Stalin.

He suffered setbacks after Stalin's death in 1953, but rose to power again in about three years.

HUGH KELSO, associate professor of political science, said Brezhnev had been trained by Khrushchev for the past two or three years. He said the change looks like a Khrushchev element in the Soviet Presidium, since Brezhnev was Khrushchev's favorite.

"We began to wonder about the possibility of a change in Soviet leadership when Brezhnev moved to Communist party work six months ago," Kelso said. "The change has been coming for a long time."

Maritime Administrator To Address SUI Y.D.'s

Nick Johnson, former Iowa City resident and present U.S. Maritime Administrator, will speak before the SUI Young Democrats at 8 p.m. today in the House Chambers of Old Capitol.

Johnson, whose appointment to the Maritime Commission was one of the first personnel selections of President Lyndon Johnson, has been touring the country, speaking on the Presidential race and problems in maritime law.

Johnson is the son of Wendell Johnson, head of the speech pathology department.

RUSSIANS UPSET MARKET—

NEW YORK (AP)—Foggy reports of a switch in Russian leadership triggered so much nervousness on the stock market Thursday that for a while prices took their worst beating since the assassination of President Kennedy last November. Stocks rebounded strongly from their lows, however, and the worst losses were almost halved.

Failures Hurt Khrushchev

Khrushchev—

and a recurrent heart condition, appeared to have kept his own men in power.

Khrushchev himself said last year: "I am already 69 and I have the right to say so. Everyone understands I cannot hold for all time the position I now have in the party and the state."

This year, presumably with Khrushchev's approval, Brezhnev was moved from the largely ceremonial job of president to a position of more power in the Communist party.

THE CHANGEOVER, no matter who initiated it, began casting shadows a year ago.

On the personal side, Khrushchev spent so much time outside Moscow it was obvious he could not be in active control of the highly centralized Soviet government. If he wasn't touring abroad, he was making speeches in the hinterlands.

Gold in hand, the Soviet Union had to go to the United States and Canada for wheat to feed its people. This was despite Khrushchev's boasts that Communist agriculture was rapidly overtaking the capitalist kind.

The once-monolithic control of the Kremlin over the world Communist movement was crumbling. This was especially evident in its violent quarrel and virtually complete split with Communist China. Peking leaders denounced Khrushchev as a lackey of capitalism and a traitor to communism.

THIS DOUBTLESS had its effect, although the attack on the home boy could have delayed rather than hastened his departure.

Most bitter of all, in the quarrel with China, the Communist parties Khrushchev had considered most loyal to him—the Italian and French—showed no inclination to follow him straight down the road. Both insisted on their right to make up their own minds.

Khrushchev had also failed in his avowed aim of driving the Western powers from Berlin and had also been forced by the late President John F. Kennedy to back down in the Caribbean and remove his missiles from Cuba.

To top that last jolt to his prestige, Prime Minister Fidel Castro refused to permit a Khrushchev-promised international verification of the removal and then went on to refuse to sign Khrushchev's cherished partial nuclear test-ban treaty.

It was a far cry from 1960 and 1961 when Khrushchev seemed sitting on top of the world.

HIS SPACE PROGRAM had outdistanced the United States; he had humiliated President Dwight D. Eisenhower over the U2 spy plane incident and snubbed him at the abortive Paris summit conference; the split with China was still just what Khrushchev called "an invention of Western warmongers."

Khrushchev, although on the wagon because of his heart, was just as ebullient as he had been in his drinking days. After his Vienna meeting with President Kennedy, he called in Western reporters to watch him dancing the cha-cha-cha with visiting President Sukarno of Indonesia — on the same day President Kennedy said the session could be described as "somber."

Then little by little the juice seemed to run out him.

The first clear indication that some major announcement was in the making came Thursday when the newspaper Izvestia canceled its evening edition and reported it would publish simultaneously with Pravda on Friday morning.

Khrushchev had not been mentioned "publicly" for two days, a very unusual thing for the buoyant premier.

A TASS STORY about Kremlin talks Thursday with the visiting president of Cuba, Osvaldo Dorticos, said Dorticos met "the leaders of the CPSU — Communist Party of the Soviet Union — and the Soviet government."

After the listing of Brezhnev, Kosygin and Anastas I. Mikoyan were the names of Nikolai Podgorny, Yuri Andropov and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko. Podgorny and Andropov are secretaries of the party.

Every top leader except Khrushchev attended a luncheon for Dorticos.

Khrushchev was at his Black Sea vacation home Tuesday where he met with French Cabinet Minister Gaston Palewski. Rumors started to fly when Palewski was hurried out of town while the talk was still on.

A more obvious sign to the average Soviet citizen that something was in the wind was Khrushchev's failure to follow his normal custom of telephoning returning cosmonauts to congratulate them. Although this week's orbiting of three men was the most spectacular Soviet achievement yet, Khrushchev remained silent after their landing. He had been reported earlier as speaking to them Monday.

Iowa City Man Held in Ames On Gun Charge

AMES (AP)—An Iowa City man who survived an accident that took the life of a companion was arraigned in Municipal Court Thursday on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

James Edward Ryan, 26, was bound over to the Story County grand jury on a $2,500 bond. He is being held in the county jail at Nevada.

The sheriff's office said they found a loaded German Luger pistol in Ryan's possession Tuesday when they investigated an accident that claimed the life of Thomas Arthur Ryan, 37, of Hutchinson, Kan.

Thomas Ryan was killed when the car in which he and James Ryan were riding with a 16-year-old girl went out of control on Highway 69 near Huxley and struck a power pole.

The sheriff's office said the Ryans were not related.

Juvenile authorities returned the girl to Iowa City Thursday.

U.S. Collects 34 Medals

Associated Press Sports Writer
TOKYO (AP)—World record holder Henry Carr and two teammates raced into the second round of the 200-meter dash today as the United States pressed its quest for a mush-rooming number of medals in the Olympic games.

THE AMERICANS, making an unexpectedly all around showing, already has 34 medals in their bundle — 15 gold, 9 silver and 10 bronze. Russia, looking somewhat weaker than expected, had 7 gold, 6 silver and 9 bronze for a total of 22.

Carr, from Detroit ran eased up and was just nosed out for first place in his heat of the 200 meters by Heinz Schumann of Germany. Each was timed in 21 seconds flat, well off Carr's world record 20.2.

PAUL DRAYTON, 25, of Cleveland made the best showing of the three Americans, winning the first heat in 20.7. Dick Stebbins, 19, of Los Angeles, finished second in the eighth and final heat, running behind defending champion Livio Berruti of Italy.

Carr, a speedster from Arizona State University, was the United States' main hope of recapturing the medal lost to Berruti after five consecutive victories in Olympiads.

CARR NEARLY MISSED the trip to Tokyo. He won the qualifying race in New York but ran a poor fourth in the Los Angeles qualifier. Officials, however, dropped the No. 3 man in the second race and selected Carr. No. 3 was Bob Hayes of Jacksonville, Fla., who won the gold medal in the 100-meter dash Thursday.

Shortly before the first round of the 200-meter dash got underway in sunshine and temperatures that were in the 70s, Russia's Elena Gorchakova smashed the world record for the women's javelin on her first qualifying throw.

Iowa's Noonan Is Nation's 2nd Best Receiver for 3 Tilts

Iowa flanker back Karl Noonan finds himself the second best pass receiver in the country going into the Wisconsin game this Saturday.

His 23 receptions are the most for any player for three games. The nation's top pass receiver is Ted Schraub of California, who has 24 catches in four games. NOONAN follows Notre Dame's flanker Jack Snow in total yardage gained with 352 yards in Snow's 358 yards. Both have played three contests.

Iowa's Dalton Kimble is tied for 10th in national scoring with 30 points in three games. The national scoring leader is Jack Twilley of Tulsa, who has five touchdowns and 12 extra points for a total of 42.

The Hawks held a secret workout Thursday afternoon in their final preparation for the Wisconsin game in Madison Saturday.

EVERYONE except sophomores Larry McDowell and Tom Ross will be ready for heavy action.

After one conference game played, Iowa has chalked up some rather undesirable defensive and penalty statistics.

The Hawks have given up the most points to an opponent: 20; have yielded the most number of first downs: 27; have given up the largest total of rushing yardage: 407, (210 on the ground and 197 by passing); have allowed their opponent the most number of plays from scrimmage: 88; and have been penalized the most number of yards: 87.

COACH BURNS indicated he hopes to see a great defensive improvement against the badgers Saturday.

Although the Hawks are last in the conference on offense, they are rated first on defense. They have the highest average in yards gained per play with 5.4 for 65 plays. The Hawks also lead in pass completions with 18 for 40.

After Thursday night's practice, No. 1 defensive left end Dave Long, of Cedar Rapids, said "the defense is bound to improve. If the defense plays the kind of game it is capable of, we are going to be tough to beat, by any team."

Junior Transfer Student Brings 16-Point Average

Iowa's basketball squad, which opened practice in the Field House Thursday, has been bolstered by the addition of a junior college transfer student.

He is Chris Pervall, a 6-2 guard, from Newark, N.J., who played last year at Coffeyville, Kans., Junior College.

The highly ranked Coffeyville team was beaten by Dodge City J.C. in the Kansas Junior College tournament. However, Dodge City proceeded to win the National J.C. tourney.

"Pervall is an all around ball-player," Coach Ralph Miller said. "He's a good playmaker and a tough defensive man. He's also a heck of a team man."

The 19-man Hawkeye squad went through a rugged workout Thursday, alternating between fast moving ball handling drills and free throw shooting.

Series—

him down in the Cards' three-run fourth inning.

ST. LOUIS added three more in the fifth, starting off with Lou Brock's homer of Al Downing, and finished their scoring with Ken Boyer's homer in the seventh.

The Yanks, shut out for five innings, came up with three in the sixth when Mickey Mantle smashed his own Series record with his 18th homer, a three-run blast into the bleachers in left center over the 379-foot mark.

The home runs by Clete Boyer and Lintz in the ninth served only to delay the inevitable outcome. Roger Craig and Ray Sadecki were heating up in the bullpen but Keane wisely let Gibson finish his own job.

RECORDS FELL all over Busch Stadium. Mantle contributed four with his 18th Series homer, 123 total bases, 39 runs batted in and 42 runs scored.

Richardson's two hits gave him a total of 13, more than any player in Series history. But Tim McCarver, the Cardinal catcher, wound up the batting leader with a .478 average on 11 hits in 23 at bats.

It was the seventh Cardinal Series victory against three defeats and their fifth straight in a seven-game set. The Yanks now have a 20-9 record in Series competition. This 61st Series left the American League with a 37-24 edge.

GIBSON'S DETERMINED performance probably meant each Cardinal will collect about $8,400 from the player pool of $696,520. Each Yankee loser will get about $5,200.

Science Seminar Features Famous Scientists, Writers

Twenty editors and broadcasters are attending a three-day seminar on the dissemination of news and information about science at SUI today.

The participants will hear a blue-ribbon panel of scientists and science writers at the Union.

Here are some brief sketches of the men to participate in the program.

Dr. Thomas Vrehalovich is an aerodynamicist at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory of the California Institute of Technology. He is presently a project scientist on the Ranger mission, and a photo-science group supervisor in the Laboratory's applied science section.

As project scientist, Dr. Vrehalovich is concerned with the scientific integrity of the Ranger television system — ensuring that the system will transmit results of value to the scientific community. He was in charge of a team that Before becoming associated with the laboratory, Dr. Chernick was a research associate at the University of Manchester, and at Indiana University.

He is a member of the American Chemical Society, the British Chemical Society, Phi Lambda Upsilon, and the Research Society of America.

Victor Cohn, staff writer and science reporter for the Minneapolis Tribune, has been hailed by the New York Times as "one of the best science reporters in the country." In 1961 Newsweek listed him among seven "top newspaper science writers today."

He has won many awards, and is the only two-time winner of the Westinghouse Prize of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, presented to him for "the most distinguished newspaper science reporting" of 1951 and of 1959. His 1959 honor was awarded for a series on Soviet science, education, and progress: "The Year of the Sputnik." Mr. Cohn was among the first American reporters to tour Russian centers of physical science.

His articles, about space and the stars, new scientific weapons, the war against cancer, heart disease, and polio, and many other subjects, have been syndicated in major newspapers throughout the country.

The author of a book, 1959: Our Hopeful Future, he has also contributed numerous articles to publications ranging from the Saturday Evening Post and Reader's Digest to the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists.

A past president of the National Association of Science Writers, he is currently a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science's Committee on Public Understanding of Science, and on the board of incorporators of the Council for the Advancement of Science Writing.

Dr. Joseph Kaplan is a member of the department of physics at the University of California at Los Angeles, president of the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics, a director of Microdot, Inc., and a member of the Technical Advisory Board of the Aerospace and Electronics Corporation.

He is senior consultant to the Geophysics Corporation of America, a member of the Science Advisory Group of the Space and Information Systems Division of North American Aviation, Inc., and also serves as consultant to the Office of Science and Technology in the White House.

Currently his principal interest is in furnishing international scientific cooperation and in teaching elementary physics to the non-science major.

He has served on many important committees in Washington, including the Air Force Scientific Advisory Board and the United States National Committee for the International Geophysical Year. In addition, he is a Fellow of the Institute of Aerospace Sciences and a member of the National Academy of Sciences.

Dr. Kaplan's early research work did much to clarify understanding of the fundamental process in the high atmosphere.

Dr. Jack Kevorkian has since 1961 been an associate pathologist at Pontiac General Hospital in Michigan, where he is engaged in routine pathology and research.

He began research activity in 1955, during his first year of pathology residency at the University of Michigan. Subsequent work has led to his publication of eleven articles as well as two booklets, "The Story of Dissection" and "Medical Research and the Death Penalty."

Before starting his second year of residency at Michigan, he conducted research work in Munich and Bonn, Germany in 1957, on a free-lance basis.

After completing four years of residency, he was certified in morphological pathology by the American Board of Pathology in 1960. Before moving into his present post at Pontiac, Dr. Kevorkian practiced for six months at St. Joseph's Hospital, Ann Arbor.

Dr. Eugene Mechtly is a physicist at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Alabama. Currently attached to the Research Projects Laboratory, he is engaged in the study of solar system problems, specializing in radio physics.

After coming to the Huntsville center in 1954, Dr. Mechtly was assigned to Dr. von Braun's Guided Missile Development Division at Redstone Arsenal. There he helped develop the program device tape recorder for the Redstone missile.

Dr. Dan Q. Posin, a professor of physics at DePaul University, is a recognized authority on missiles, satellites, and outer space. He has delivered more than a thousand popular science talks over the past fifteen years, in the United States, Canada, and England. But he is probably best known for his work in the field of knowledgeable and ethical science reporting.

A native of Iowa City and a graduate of SUI, he has covered activities of the Midwestern medical and scientific community for almost twenty years.

Among his outstanding contributions have been a constant effort to improve the lot of Chicago's mentally ill, a continuing campaign to bring additional research facilities to the Midwest, and intensive reports on scientific progress in the fight against disease.

Mr. Snider's efforts have won him numerous awards and honors. Most recently, he received a National Headliner award for the "best domestic series of 1963." The subject was Kreblozen.

Previous awards include two in 1962, from the Chicago Science Teachers' Association and the Air Force Association's 1958 Maggie Award from the magazine industry for his monthly column in the Science Digest; an Open Door Award from the Chicago Committee on Alcoholism, in 1957, for his contribution to the greater public understanding of the disease; and the 1955 Helen Cody Baker Award for science writing.

Dr. Frederick C. Steward has been a professor of botany at Cornell University since 1950, and is now director of its Laboratory for Cell Pathology, Growth and Development.

He is author of more than a hundred articles in scientific journals, and has edited a Treatise on Plant Physiology in six volumes. A more elementary text, Plants at Work, has recently been published.

Dr. Steward received the Botanical Society of America Merit Award in 1961, and a Guggenheim Fellowship for 1963-64. This year, he was presented with the Stephen Hales Award, by the American Society of Plant Physiologists.

He is a Fellow of the Royal Society in London, and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and is a member of several biological and botanical professional societies.

Defiant Rebel Is Executed In Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A firing squad Thursday executed Nguyen Van Troi, 19, a Viet Cong terrorist who sought to blow up U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara last spring.

Troi went to his death at the stake in a prison, soccer field, shouting defiance.

"Long live Ho-Chi Minh!" he screamed in salute to Communist North Viet Nam's president. "Americans get out of Viet Nam!"

In a Saigon courtroom, the possibility of death sentences loomed before 13 military officers and seven civilians called to trial on a charge of treason in the abortive coup Sept. 13.

Brig. Gen. Lam Van Phat, a former interior minister who is one of the chief defendants, testified that U.S. Deputy Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson told him 10 hours after the rebel troops occupied Saigon: "Do anything you want, but avoid bloodshed."

In the political field, sources close to the 17-man High National Council said it had decided to junk plans for a general election to choose a new Congress and instead would appoint the congressmen.

The reported reason was a danger that the Communists, who control much of the countryside, could score a moral victory through demonstrations and casting of blank ballots even though they listed no candidates.

From Foreign Ministry sources came word that Lt. Gen. Tran Thien Khien, absentee member of the ruling military triumvirate, will be South Viet Nam's new ambassador to Washington.

Ike Supports Goldwater In Ohio Talk

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower coupled a plea for the election of Sen. Barry Goldwater and other Republicans with a warning Thursday that the Democratic administration appears preoccupied with headlines at the expense of national security.

Eisenhower called attacks on Republican defense, foreign and domestic policies "tommy rot" in what he jokingly referred to as his first political speech since turning 74 Wednesday.

The general made a flying visit to Ohio's capital city to ask that voters keep the state in the GOP column as they did in 1952, 1956 and 1960.

Recalling "the shocked amazement of our opponents" when Ohio went Republican four years ago, Eisenhower prescribed another "shock treatment" in the Nov. 3 election.

Police estimated that 10,000 to 15,000 turned out to hear Eisenhower speak from a balcony of the Veterans Memorial Auditorium in downtown Columbus at noon in warm, sunny fall weather.

Eisenhower listed three "grand purposes of the Republic" as: security against a destructive onslaught, strength in U.S. global partnerships and demonstration of the ideals, virtues and rewards of a free society.

He asserted they could not be realized "in an administration that seems preoccupied more with bold headlines and roaring crowds than with the solidarity of our national position."

Senior Class Officers Ask Policy Changes

Senior class officers presented a slate of suggestions concerning SUI academic life to two faculty committees Thursday.

The officers, headed by Connie Hipwell, Correctionville, sampled student opinion through a form letter, an open meeting and discussion with several campus groups to form the suggestions.

The faculty groups, the Executive Committee of the College of Liberal Arts and the Educational Policy Committee, will review the suggestions and act on them as they see fit.

The main proposal offered by the senior officers was for closer student-faculty relations. This could be established through more personal communication between students and instructors, advisers and major departments.

Suggestions for establishing more personal communication included a departmental open house during Orientation, faculty open houses and faculty-student retreats.

Specific suggestions proposed by the officers included recognition of honors courses on official grade transcripts, encouragement of more undergraduate independent study (including more credit for such study), opening of classrooms for study at night and publishing of the final schedule at registration.

An extension of Mercy Day was also discussed. Vice president Steve Shank, Iowa City, suggested a one-day extension. The faculty committees countered with a suggestion for extension of the examination period which would spread the tests more evenly.

Secretary Rich Edler, Homewood, Ill., suggested students be encouraged by instructors to attend campus cultural events. He proposed the events replace homework for the night on which they are scheduled.

SUI Young Politicians—

Debate For Mock Election

SUIwans debated national and local issues Thursday in a political rally promoting the upcoming mock election.

Young Democratic, Young Republican and Young Conservative party members voiced opinions on national and state politics. Merle Wood, A4, Cedar Rapids, Neal Rains, A4, Fairfield and Ron Zobel, A2, Oelwein, were representatives of the three parties.

Wood spoke first for the Democratic party, criticizing the "old-fashioned" Goldwater philosophy. Moving to state politics, he commended the Hughes administration for achieving liquor by the drink and reapportionment of the state.

He also contrasted Fred Schwengel and John R. Schmidhauser, opposing candidates for U.S. Representative from the First Congressional District. Wood said Schwengel's "mee-tooism" could not compete with Schmidhauser.

Zobel, representing the SUI Young Conservatives, spoke in defense of Goldwater. He does not, he said, support Robert Dilley, Conservative candidate for governor.

Zobel criticized the Johnson Administration for what he called "collectivism in government and weak policies toward Communism." Citing the "long line of corruption from Bobby Baker to Walker W. Jenkins," he said politics doesn't need corruption." Neal Rains, president of the SUI Young Republicans, spoke on state Republican politics, praising Evan Hultman, candidate for governor; Bill Mooty, candidate for attorney general and Schwengel.

Rains cited Hultman's program for public safety, his short term tax program, and his plans for educational progress.

About 75 people attended the rally. A skit, in which the Student Senate Elections Committee encouraged SUI students to vote in the mock election, preceded the speeches.

The mock election will be held Thursday. Students will be allowed to vote for candidates for state and national offices.

Wilson Proposes Volunteer Plan To Assist Law

Johnson County Deputy Sheriff Donald L. Wilson, speaking to the local citizens band radio club, Hawkeye Citizens Band Club, Wednesday night, suggested that an expanded voluntary deputized citizens organization could alleviate enforcement problems in rural county areas, Coralville and McBride reservoir areas.

Shortage of full time sheriff's personnel prevents night and off-hour control of rowdiness in such areas, Wilson said. He suggested that the Hawkeye Citizens Band group, with ready radio communication, was the type of organization whose volunteer help might be called on by the sheriff's office.

Wilson said that the sheriff could provide training for volunteers and that radio call frequencies could be monitored. It would be strictly a service to the community, Wilson stated, without compensation and without accident or liability protection.

Float Parade Plans Revised

By RON ROSENCRANS
Staff Writer

Several changes have been made in the organization of this year's homecoming float parade.

The main change according to Dan Merta, A3, Fairfax, chairman of the Homecoming floats subcommittee, is that this year the winner of the three competition divisions and the overall sweepstakes winners will be exhibited on the Women's Athletic field Saturday.

Merta said he thinks this will give the float builders more recognition for their work and will enable those who missed the parade to see the floats the following day.

The floats will be lined up along the fence on Madison Street.

THE JUDGING procedures will be changed somewhat from last year. Merta said his committee is attempting to recruit judges from the faculties of other colleges, possibly Drake, Iowa State, Grinnell, Cornell or SCI. The purpose, Merta said, is to have an impartial authority, possibly in the fields of art or home economics, select the winners.

Another change is that the Homecoming floats subcommittee is made up of students instead of faculty members. Members of the committee are Jean Fee A2, Denison; Susan Nelson, A2, Lakehurst, N.J.; Karen Cottrell, A3, Wilmette, Ill.; and Steven Rosenberg, A3, Des Moines. Faculty co-chairman is Clifford Trinder, assistant controller. This committee determines whether a proposed float is acceptable for the parade.

SEVERAL WEEKS before Homecoming, the committee sends a letter to every student organization announcing that it is accepting ideas and plans for floats.

If the organization wishes to enter a float, it mails an enclosed card to the committee. It then has several weeks to come up with an idea and draw a set of plans.

After the committee receives the plans, it determines whether the idea is in good taste and eliminates duplicate entries.

Another function of the committee is working with the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce to get sponsors for the entries. The Chamber of Commerce submits a list of merchants willing to sponsor a float to the committee. The committee then draws names to see which entry gets which sponsor. The sponsors furnish half the $175 expense allowed for each float and some also furnish a place to build the float.

Merta said the parade will have no particular theme. A designated theme increases the chance of duplicate entries, he said.

THE HOMECOMING parade will consist of 19 floats. Most are being built by housing units. Usually one men's and one women's housing unit cooperate in building a float.

The Young Democrats and Young Republicans have also entered floats.

The floats will be judged as they pass the judges' stand in front of University Book Store. There will be two trophies given in each of the three classes—beauty, humor, and originality. There will also be a sweepstakes winner for the best over-all float.

The winners will be announced on the steps of Old Capitol Friday night before the crowning of Miss SUI.

Last year's sweepstakes winner was built by Alpha Xi Delta and Pi Kappa Alpha.

Republicans Plan 2-Day Caravan In First District

A two-day caravan through the First Congressional District to encourage the election of GOP candidates has been set for Wednesday and Thursday, by the Iowa Council of Republican Women.

The caravan will leave GOP headquarters in Davenport Wednesday morning and make coffee stops in Iowa City, Tipton, West Liberty, Muscatine, Wapello, Columbus Junction, Washington, Wellman, Williamsburg, Marengo, and Ainsworth.

The Wednesday Caravan will end in Lone Tree at a rally that night.

The five counties on the southern part of the First District are on the Thursday schedule.

Group Backing LBJ Lists 2 Area Women

The roster of a newly-formed state-wide group of women, "Union Women United for LBJ and HHH" includes the names of two area women.

Mrs. Wayne Stratton, Tiffin, and Mrs. George Parks, 1125 E. Davenport, are members of the Iowa political organization which states as its goal, "a strong America in a world of peace."

Latest Storm Might Miss East Coast

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Hurricane Isbell, swirling on a wobbly course toward the northeast, became less of a direct threat to already flood-ravaged North Carolina late Thursday.

Hurricane warnings on the South Carolina coast were dropped but gale warnings with a hurricane watch were in effect on the North Carolina coast.

THE WEATHER BUREAU said Isbell's future course was uncertain although a continued north-easterly movement was predicted with a turn to the north likely late Thursday night.

Coastal residents in both South Carolina and North Carolina had braced earlier in the day for a direct hit along the same areas devastated on the same date by Hurricane Hazel exactly 10 years ago. Hazel caused $150-million damage and 21 deaths in the Carolinas.

Isbell, still packing winds estimated at 90 m.p.h. with gales extending out 175 miles to the east and 80 miles to the west, destroyed hundreds of homes and numerous crops during its sweep across Cuba Tuesday night and Wednesday. Reports said three adults and one child died during the storm.

Florida, directly in the path of two previous hurricanes this season, suffered the least damage from Isbell as she passed through the Everglades.

Red Cross workers and other officials set up headquarters along the North Carolina coast.

North Carolina coastal plain residents, inland as far as Kinston and Goldsboro, were worried about the heavy rains accompanying Isbell. Torrential rains 10 days ago caused the Neuse River to overflow its banks flooding several counties and causing more than $10-million damage.

Hundreds of persons, evacuated during the flooding, still have to return to their homes.

Won't Comment On Jenkins Case Says Goldwater

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater flew into Texas for a fourth time Thursday and set a meeting to map strategy for the last days of his campaign.

Although arranged some time ago, a source close to Goldwater said, the discussion was bound to include the latest development involving former White House aide Walter W. Jenkins.

"I don't intend to comment on it at any time," Goldwater told reporters when questioned about Jenkins' resignation from the White House staff. It was disclosed Wednesday that Jenkins had been arrested last week on a morals charge.

Goldwater is known to hold a personal belief that it would be best if Republicans did not mention the Jenkins case. If this does become an issue, Goldwater believes it already is one without the GOP making it so.

Scheduled to huddle in the tightly guarded conference are GOP National Chairman Dean Burch, campaign director Denison Kitchel, research director Edward McCabe and a representative of the vice-presidential candidate, Rep. William E. Miller.

In his first stop in President Johnson's home state, Goldwater continued to rip into the President on the Bobby Baker and Billie Sol Estes cases.

Mrs. Goldwater Gives Views On White House

DES MOINES (AP) — Mrs. Barry Goldwater said in Iowa Thursday that she has no plans to redo the White House if her husband becomes President. But she offered some ideas on what her own role as First Lady would be.

"The job of the President's wife she said, is 'to make her husband happy for one thing — to try to make his life as easy as possible despite a difficult job.'"

Of her plans for the White House, she speculated, "Perhaps in our own living quarters we would add Western paintings or our Arizona library. I'm not sure yet. It's lovely as it is."

Mrs. Goldwater attended a Storm Lake luncheon and an evening reception in Des Moines Thursday, both sponsored by Iowa Republican women's groups. She made no formal speeches, but shook hands and signed autographs, saying, "How do you do." "Nice to meet you."

Several state officials and many northwest Iowa Republicans attended the luncheon — including Lt. Gov. William Moody, Mrs. Evan Hultman, wife of the Republican candidate for governor, and retiring Sixth District Congressman Charles B. Hoeven of Alton.
