Regents Pass New Fee Policy

By JON VAN
Staff Writer

CEDAR FALLS — President Howard Bowen was literally "blown out" of Friday's Board of Regents meeting in Cedar Falls. Winds up to 80 miles an hour tore across the State College of Iowa campus as the Board considered University business — without the presence of Bowen. He called about 11 a.m. to tell the Regents he was stuck in Minneapolis and couldn't make the meeting.

Bowen had attended Thursday's committee sessions, but left Cedar Falls to speak before the Iowa Association of School Boards in Des Moines. He was scheduled to fly back to Cedar Falls Friday morning, but his plane could not land because of the stormy weather. It went on to Minneapolis. Cedar Falls weather was so bad at noon that an SCI bus was used to transport the Regents to their dinner at the Union, which is about 250 yards from the Board's meeting room.

During Bowen's absence the Board approved a policy which calls for assessing the resident student fee from all graduate students (including those from out of state) who hold appointments for assistantships in teaching or research of quarter-time or more.

The policy, adopted for the 1965-66 academic year, has the effect of granting a $150 scholarship to non-resident graduate student assistants.

The Board also accepted resignations from John Schmidhauser, professor of political science, and Harvey C. Bunke, professor and chairman of the department of Economics.

Schmidhauser will become the U.S. representative from Iowa's first congressional district at the first of the year. Bunke will become president of Western Washington State College in Bellingham, Wash.

Kenneth L. Moll, research associate professor in medicine, was granted a one-year leave of absence beginning next July to accept a fellowship for study at the University of Michigan.

Three resolutions were passed in a group by the Board which provide for a general study of the future role of Iowa's state schools in the over-all picture of post-high school education.

This report is to be initiated by the presidents of SCI, ISU and President Bowen. It will be done in conjunction with the State Board of Public Instruction, the junior colleges, the private colleges, the Legislature and the general public as well as the Regents' schools.

The report will cover the roles of private institutions, state schools, community colleges, vocational schools and others in providing instruction after high school.

Recommendation is also given to legislative action which further "growth and development of the private colleges and universities of Iowa."

The Board postponed discussion of long range building programs and policies concerning relations with the press.

Although the Board discussed several proposed bills which it will submit to the Legislature, the University's recommended bill for reclassifying resident physicians was presented too late for consideration this month.

Another University-sponsored bill makes the Oakdale Sanatorium a part of the University. This was discussed Thursday, but no action was necessary Friday since the Board has already approved the idea.

During their afternoon session, the Board approved a requirement which states that all Regents' contracts must include provisions prohibiting religious or racial discrimination.

The policy calls on contractors to "take affirmative action to ensure" that there is no discrimination in hiring, pay, promotions or job assignments on the basis of race, creed, color or national origin.

The contractor will have to state his non-discrimination policy in all advertisements for employees and notify labor unions with which he deals of the policy.

Failure to comply is ground for cancellation or suspension of all or part of the contract. The provisions also apply to sub-contractors working on Regents projects.

Union Creates New Program For Activities

University officials have teamed up with members of the Union Board in an effort to meet the demands for more student activities on weekends.

An experimental program, "Spectra," was created for the purpose of "giving the students something to do and to help make their University experience more enjoyable," according to Union Board member Dee Jay Hubbard, G, Minneapolis, Kan.

"WE WERE concerned about the lack of adequate weekend programs at the Union," Hubbard said, "especially musical and recreational activities. We are trying to encourage more students to come to the Union. We feel that the Union should be the hub of campus activities."

Hubbard is responsible for coordinating the actions of the 12 committees sponsoring the program. He is mainly concerned with preventing duplication of activities among the committees.

"We've had good cooperation so far from the Union staff on providing space for our activities," Hubbard said, "but attendance has been very disappointing."

"MILDRED LE VOIS, Union hostess, has been very helpful, as have the other staff members," he said. "They have acted as advisers to our committees on the planning of each weekend program."

Hubbard said the poor attendance is due partly to "bad timing and midterms."

"We've had trouble from the start," he said. "Our last program wasn't too successful because it was held on Dad's Day weekend and there were just too many conflicting activities."

The next program which will have a Christmas theme is scheduled for Dec. 12, according to Hubbard.

Hubbard said he hoped to make Spectra a regular activity in order to attract more students to the Union.

"OUR PROGRAM features one main event, usually a dance or lecture, with a series of four or five smaller events centered around it," Hubbard said.

"Each program will be different and will be highlighted by either a lecture, a music concert, a dance, poetry reading, or demonstrations by students who are outstanding in various sports."

Opera Programs Set for Today

The University of Iowa Opera Workshop will present two performances at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. today in Machride Auditorium.

The English-Sung program will include scenes from "Le Roi L'a Die" by Delibes, "Don Giovanni" by Mozart, and a one act comic opera, "Rita" by Donizetti. There will be no admission charge.

JFK Was 'Symbol of Vigor' Says Prof

By MIRIAM TOMASEK
Staff Writer

The late President John F. Kennedy was known to the American people largely through his image of youth, vigor, and intellectual and cultural leadership, according to Robert Boynton, associate professor of political science.

He is remembered as one of America's most popular Presidents. Boynton said in an interview Friday, but his legislative program was largely a failure. He got little of what he wanted, during his three years in office. Paradoxically, most of his far-reaching programs were passed by Congress after his assassination.

Kennedy's election gave him slightly over 50 per cent of the American votes. The 1960 election, called a "reinstating election" by some political scientists, aligned Congress along its usual voting lines. Republican areas went Republican, and Democratic areas went Democratic. The result was a strong conservative element.

Kennedy proposed a far-reaching liberal program, and had little success with his proposals. His personal popularity, however, was soaring, and seemed unrelated to his legislative accomplishments. When the United States entered into the "Bay of Pigs" invasion, Kennedy's popularity suffered only slightly, according to Boynton.

Kennedy's personal "conquest of Europe" on his European tour did much for American diplomacy. These accomplishments were part of the Kennedy image.

The mood of the country changed after Kennedy's death, both among the people and in Congress. The assassination took away the country's symbol of vigor, and threw Congress into a period of non-partisan feeling.

Most of Kennedy's program was passed by Congress during this period.

Boynton attributed the action of Congress to the Kennedy image and to Lyndon Johnson's legislative style.

"Kennedy wasn't a legislative leader, but Johnson is," he said. "Johnson was one of the most effective majority leaders. This, combined with the powers of the Presidency, made it possible for him to effectively push Kennedy's program."

Boynton said he thought some of the main accomplishments of the Johnson administration were the increased foreign aid appropriations, which were not cut by Congress as Kennedy and Eisenhower's proposals were; the Civil Rights Bill, the most far-reaching Civil Rights legislation passed; and the Trade-Expansion Bill.

"Now, after the Democratic sweep of the 1964 election," Boynton said, "the American people have given Johnson the ultimate mandate.

"Congress has many new faces, including young liberals who unseated their conservative Republican predecessors. I am sure that Johnson will use this to the full advantage."

Blizzard Condition Staggers Midwest

And It Blew

And it blew, and it blew, and but did it blow the house down? No not really. Actually, it wasn't all that windy here yesterday, although it may have seemed like it to many people. Actually, this house is being torn down by the city of Iowa City.

Dorm Senate Election Set

Hillcrest residents Monday will elect a new student senator.

Roger Anderson, A2, Hartley, and Frank Hull, A3, Newton, are competing for the senate seat left vacant last month when Glen Anderon, A2, Dunkerton, resigned to accept an appointment as Hillcrest vice president.

Residents of the dorm may vote from 5-7 p.m. Monday in front of the Hillcrest Grill.

Auto Crash Kills Iowa City Woman

Winds with gusts of up to 75 m.p.h. roared into Iowa City Friday bringing sporadic snowfall and near-blizzard conditions. The day's low was in the low 20's and was expected to drop to a frigid five during the night.

AN IOWA CITY woman, Joan Gordon, 21, was killed near Dubuque when a car driven by her mother crashed head-on into a stock truck driven by Marvin Duden, 39, of Onslow. The accident occurred on Highway 151 about 15 miles from Dubuque.

The mother, Mrs. Norma Gordon, 44, was reported in serious condition and another daughter, Sue, 11, suffered cuts. Duden and the other Gordon children in the car escaped injury.

IN IOWA CITY the snow and ice figured in at least five accidents. One driver hit a light pole, and a limb knocked down a wire, but no power failures were reported to the Iowa-Illinois Gas & Electric Co.

However, reports of wind damage were numerous. University Police were called to try to catch a huge polyethylene sheet which blew away from the new Physics Building construction site and caught in a tree near East Hall.

Damage to other University property included a roof of the Old Physics Building and a corner of the roof of the Faculty Art Studio.

WIND BLEW the roof off a University storage building on Madison Street which contained building supplies. The wind blew windows out in the old section of the Union and at Calvin Hall.

Two large plate-glass windows were blown out at Aldens in downtown Iowa City. No one was injured, though a few shoppers were nearby at the time.

Only one flight made it into the Iowa City airport yesterday before operations were suspended because of high winds and 20-foot visibility.

ELSEWHERE, icy winds shrieked down on Iowa from the north Friday, blotting out visibility on the highways under wildly swirling snow and claiming at least three more lives in storm-connected accidents.

Ryan Dyk, 63, of Platte, S.D., and his wife, Jennie, 66, were killed when their car skidded in the blinding snow on Highway 30 five miles east of Cedar Rapids and crashed into one driven by Wanda Foster, 24, of Tipton. The Foster woman was reported in serious condition at a Cedar Rapids hospital.

Harold Hamilton, 43, Bedford, the office manager for the Iowa Power and Light Co. at Bedford was electrocuted while repairing a broken high voltage line near Clarinda.

At Keokuk, Barbara Hanson, 22, of Hamilton, Ill., received severe scalp lacerations when the wind blew out a plate glass window of the Montgomery Ward store as she was walking by on the sidewalk. She was listed in satisfactory condition.

Near Charles City, which received five inches of snow, an estimated 50 cars and trucks were involved in a traffic jam which took two hours to clear up. The mercury dropped to 9 above at Waterloo. Some schools in northern Iowa were closed by the storm.

THE MERCURY, meanwhile tumbled to near zero at many points. Charles City recorded a low 2 degrees above zero, Waterloo 9, Carroll 10, Mason City and Sibley 11 and LeMars and Dubuque 12.

The State Highway Commission reported at 3:15 p.m. that highways north and east of a line through Columbus Junction, Grinnell, Waterloo, Humboldt and Estherville were snow packed in sheltered areas and normal in open areas Friday afternoon.

The commission said highways in the Manchester, Elkader and Dubuque areas were 100 per cent snow packed, and visibility in sheltered areas was reduced all over the state by blowing snow.

The Weather Bureau issued cold wave warnings for the entire state with readings of 5 below in the north to about 5 above in the south Friday night.

Blowing snow caused poor visibility in Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Wyoming, Montana and Nebraska. A blizzard-like storm hit Chicago in early afternoon and then, after 10 minutes, settled down to snow flurries.

Hug 'n' Tug

It is definitely not the proper weather for river banking. Spring, summer — even early fall — are all right for this favorite pastime of University students. But don't try it in November when snow is on the ground, as this couple did.

Winter Weather May 'Suit Up' for the Irish

By JOHN BORNHOLDT
Sports Editor

Notre Dame's Irish are riding along with the momentum of an eight-game winning streak, but they had better watch out. Iowa's dead-eyed Gary Snook will be in town today to try what seems by many as a possibility: to topple the Irish from the ranks of the nation's unbeaten.

Today's weather may have a lot to do with the outcome of the game. After two days of snow, more flurries and cold winds are forecasted for the game, scheduled to begin at 12:30 p.m. (CST).

THE HAWKS have not yet had to play under such inclement conditions, while the Irish had to battle Wisconsin in the rain on Sept. 26. The rain didn't seem to bother the Irish, who won, 31-7.

For 10 Iowa players, this will be their last game in a Hawkeye uniform. Leading the seniors will be Captain Tony Giacobazzi, who caught 40 passes for 473 yards and two touchdowns in his three-year career at right end.

Look Editor Speaks —

Listen Violently Reporters Advised

George Harris, Senior Editor of Look Magazine, said Friday that the reporter's job is not to write, but to listen.

Speaking during the Friday session of Magazine Day, a conference sponsored by the School of Journalism, the Graduate College and the Extension Service, Harris said writers cannot listen passively to the public, but must listen violently.

"Reporters when writing a story are writing in the context of recent experience and it costs a lot from the writer," Harris said.

Harris commented that in order for magazines to make a real contribution to society they must listen to "the little old lady from Dubuque, everyone, the public."

"If we ever get to overlooking the whole person, the individual," Harris said, "then we have failed."

He explained that Look always seeks the simplest human situation representing the point the magazine wants to emphasize.

"In the process of getting too professional we're forgetting what a magazine is for," Harris said.

"We are trying to listen to the people, trying to listen to the egalitarian society of America," Harris concluded.

Also speaking at the session were Donald Weeks, art editor of Friends; David Michaels, advertising manager of the New Yorker; Jim Strongin, vice president of the Magazine Publisher's Association; and Payson Hall, executive vice president of the Meredith Publishing Company.

Leland Leach, of the circulation department of Look and Dr. Harley Parker of the Royal Ontario Museum spoke, also. The conference will wind up today.

31 Aboard Die, 12 Injured In Swedish Plane Disaster

ANGELHOLM, Sweden (AP) — A Swedish airliner hit a railway power line and crashed in flames near here Friday night while groping for a landing in foul weather.

An official report early Saturday said 31 of the 43 persons aboard were killed outright or died later of injuries.

Two of the survivors were able to walk almost unharmed from the scattered and burning wreckage, witnesses reported. Some others were died in or en route to hospitals in the area which at one time Friday night reported 16 were being treated.

The plane, a Convair Metropolitan, was coming in to the Barkkara military-civilian airfield in poor but not impossible visual landing conditions, experts said, when its nose wheel caught the power line on a turn into a landing path.

A flash followed and the plane plowed across a flat field.

The two-engine plane of Linjeflyg Airline, a subsidiary of the Scandinavian Airlines System, was on a routine late evening flight from Stockholm to Angelholm.

Today's News Briefly

POPE PAUL VI has turned down an American-instigated petition by 1,400 bishops for a Vatican Ecumenical Council vote now on religious liberty.

A declaration proclaiming Jews blameless in the Crucifixion was voted acceptance by 95 per cent of the worldwide Roman Catholic assembly.

The two actions Friday dramatized the last working day of the council's 1964 session.

SECRETARY-GENERAL U Thant raised the issue Friday of whether to allow additional countries to send U.N. observers to New York.

The countries that could be affected are Communist China, East Germany, North Korea and North Viet Nam. There are roadblocks in each case, due mainly to U.N. nonrecognition.

CONGOLESE TROOPS, led by white mercenaries, Friday pushed to within 180 miles of rebel Stanleyville where 1,000 Europeans and Americans are held hostage.

The army columns met little resistance but had yet to cross the 300-yard-wide Loba River at Yumbi before reaching the city.

In Brussels, Belgium, the Belgian government said it is ready to intervene if needed to save the lives of the hostages. A Foreign Ministry announcement said a battalion of paratroopers is standing by on Ascension Island off the west coast of Africa.

NEGOTIATIONS aimed at averting a nationwide railroad strike proceeded at a fast pace Friday as the hours narrowed before the 6 a.m. Monday strike deadline.

A federal mediator was expected to continue discussions well into the night again in separate meetings with six shop craft unions and the nation's railroads.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON pushed anew Friday an all-out war on poverty as a major goal in creating the "great society" he envisions. Speaking at Southwest Texas State College, from which he graduated 34 years ago, Johnson said his concept of a great society is realistic and attainable — "not an idle dream or vague utopia."

'Brief shining moment' remembered as legacy

Don't let it be forgotten that once there was a spot for one brief shining moment that was known as Camelot.

WE HAVE FORGOTTEN the bitter sting of tragedy that burdened our thoughts in the days immediately following Nov. 22, 1963. The sense of helplessness and sorrow felt in the nation had to fade into the business of putting things in order again, although we knew that we could never put them right again.

John F. Kennedy was killed in a senseless burst of bitterness and hatred, as was his accused assassin. So we set about discovering the events and reasons that produced the tragedy and now we know these things as best we can. Our curiosity, although not our wondering "why," has been satisfied.

We have done the things that people always do when confronted with tragedies too great for them to truly understand. We have mourned, we have spoken, written and built memorials and we have extended our sympathies to those closest to the man, in the hopes that we might ease their pain a little. And our thoughts and tears and memorials have been more honest and sincere than we could have imagined.

We do not concede that there was any good that came from this wrong of his death; we are determined that we shall preserve the good that came from his life.

The young and the youthful respond to the vitality of this youngest president and it is his legacy that we bear from the tragedy. We were challenged with "Let us begin" and we now respond with "We shall continue."

The world could not understand how such a thing as the assassination could happen here, as many of us could not. But we have survived as a country, as we knew we would, because the strength of America does not rest in one man, however important that man may be.

Today and tomorrow, there will be memorial services throughout the country and the world for "the one brief shining moment" that made a large impression on all of us.

It is a time for brief mourning in remembrance, but more important it is a time to renew the challenge that is our legacy.

In serious times

President Kennedy is shown addressing the nation on television and radio after he ordered the naval blockade against Cuba.

The White House—

LBJ brings Western verve

WASHINGTON (AP) — The quiet that brought down John F. Kennedy brought about a difference in atmosphere, style and operation at the White House — the difference between Austin and Boston.

Western bubble and bounce have replaced a New England reserve and elegance that sparkled at times with wit and warmth. Kennedy was an intellectual interested in ideas and ideals, a man who drew on the classics, a man who created classic phrases of his own: "Ask not what your country can do for you; ask what you can do for your country."

You never would have heard John Kennedy pounding down the campaign trail spreading the word: "Y'all come down to the speakin', Y'all vote for the sake of Molly and the babies."

It was this corn, Lyndon Johnson style, the Nov. 3 election showed that a lot of people ate it up. Johnson is the pragmatist who wants practical results. He quotes constantly from the Prophet Isaiah, who quotes the Lord: "Let us reason together."

Johnson puts this in the form of an appeal to talk things over and try to work things out, whereas the Biblical plea is to sinners to repent, to "Put away the evil of your doings from Mine eyes; cease to do evil; learn to do well." It goes on:

"Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool."

The contrast in the White House of the Kennedy days and the year-old Johnson Administration flashes forth in momentous events and minor ones.

Kennedy at the time of the Bay of Pigs fiasco pacing, pacing, alone in the Rose Garden, then sitting on the ominous hours in his White House office with brother Bobby beside him.

Johnson at the time of a flare-up with Panama over a flag incident and rioting, getting his advisers around him and the President of Panama on the phone.

Space dog Pushinka and terrier Charlie cavorting in the Kennedy back yard; Peagles Him and Her with the mullable ears, frisking in the Johnson back yard.

The Kennedys planting a screen of holly and shrubs in the South Grounds to protect privacy, Johnson opening the black iron gates and taking astonished tourists on a trek around the driveway.

Kennedy inaugurating a policy of televised news conferences from the State Department Auditorium, Johnson holding them all over the lot, often on instant notice, and so frequently on strolls around the lawn that newsmen borrowed a theme song from a hymn. It goes, "Oh, He walks with me and He talks with me."

The Kennedys dancing until dawn at private, intimate parties (Mrs. Kennedy and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara high on the list).

The Johnsons giving parties for the multitude, with the President twirling more women and doing more dancing than any other man present.

And who but the Johnsons ever staged a party for all of Congress on three hours' notice?

The Kennedys seeking solitude at sea or on a family picnic on a Massachusetts beach. The Johnsons almost never leaving the White House, dipping with him, but nobody else.

At the end of the day, when Kennedy moved from the office wing of the White House to the living quarters, he pulled down a figurative curtain and left the staff behind it. He stepped into the world of tested personal friends — Bill Walton, Ben Bradlee, Charlie Barrett and chocolate-chewing Lemoyne Billings, a classmate years earlier.

Occasionally Kennedy took Powers into this other world, and sometimes, for intellectual workouts, author-professor-White House Aide Arthur Schlesinger.

Johnson wants and keeps some of his staff around him everywhere — at the office, at the domesticated part of the White House, even at the ranch.

He invites whomever is around — officials, friends, staff — to dine with him when he takes a swim. Scarcely a male member of the staff hasn't been in any number of times.

He may be on the telephone at dawn's early light with anyone anywhere in his official family. He sometimes starts dictating to a secretary before he piles out of bed.

Late at night, he still may be on the phone. Kennedy had nothing like the telephone consoles with their baffling array of push buttons which Johnson has near at hand wherever he is.

Johnson can relax with almost any of his staff. But perhaps the closest thing to a Dave Powers for him is A. W. Moursund, Johnson City, Tex., lawyer, confidante, partner, hunting companion. If Kennedy didn't like someone in his official family, he made no effort to hide it and the object of his displeasure usually found it convenient to quit. If he liked someone, that was equally evident.

Johnson sort of flips this characteristic around 180 degrees. To a person who doesn't impress him, he may give a pat on the back, a cigarette lighter, an LBJ pin — not always but now and then.

But he may — and does — raise the roof with persons to whom he feels close.

One White House holdover from Kennedy days wondered about his future and whether he ought to turn in a resignation. One of Johnson's stand-bys told him: "He'd think you were a fool if you did. You'll know when he takes you into the official family when he gives you hell."

A few days later the holdover got a scathing chewing-out from the President for something for which he had no responsibility, followed by word from a Johnson aide: "You're in."

Staff members have learned to accord Johnson this sort of escape valve without barking back except when they feel he is utterly wrong and off base.

When he is wrong, Johnson seldom apologizes but shows he wants to, in other ways, perhaps by an especially thoughtful gift. Some of his associates attribute this to an attempt to cover up a softness and sentimentality that run deep.

Kennedy was more the listener. Johnson is more the doer and director — the man who calls the turn on topics for Cabinet meetings, for example.

Johnson leans more on the Cabinet than Kennedy did, particularly on Secretary of State Dean Rusk. He considers McNamara a great man — a view not incompatible with Kennedy's appraisal.

Kennedy didn't like big meetings and Johnson doesn't like them either.

Johnson feels that too many people get too long winded and too many get too long in a word at large sessions — even at meetings of the full Cabinet. He's irritated as much at a waste of time as he is at a waste of money.

Johnson accepted the task of guiding the outpouring of tribute to her husband. With the fervor of a devoted courier, she has been assembling her husband's historical legacy.

Eternal Flame symbolizes John F. Kennedy's life

The "eternal flame" still burns over the grave of John F. Kennedy, 35th President of the United States, and recalls the tragedy that cast the nation and the world into mourning one year ago.

Along with many other tributes, the little gas flame in Arlington Cemetery flickers as a symbol to Americans of the man who, during his short life, distinguished himself as a citizen, a war hero, a politician and a President, the youngest man and first Catholic ever elected to the office.

Born the second of nine children, John F. Kennedy was raised in wealth and received the best education. Both his parents were of Irish descent.

After graduating cum laude from Harvard in 1940, Kennedy enlisted in the U.S. Navy. He was a junior grade lieutenant in command of a PT boat. The heroism he displayed when his PT boat was run down by a Japanese destroyer awarded him Navy and Marine Corps medals and a Purple Heart.

At the age of 29, Kennedy was elected to Congress where he served for four years in the House of Representatives. In 1962 he defeated incumbent Sen. John Cabot Lodge and won a seat in the Senate.

His career picked up momentum, and the young Senator developed an efficient political organization. He soon set his sights on the nation's top office. In 1960 he won the Democratic nomination for President and defeated his Republican opponent to win the office by a substantial electoral vote, but slim popular vote, margin.

In less than three years as President, Kennedy introduced unprecedented legislation, such as Medicare, the Civil Rights bill, a tax cut proposal and the test-ban treaty.

The Bay of Pigs fiasco brought a storm of criticism to the young President. The Cuban blockade emphatically told the Russians to get their missiles out of Cuba.

Kennedy was decisive, intelligent and politically perceptive. He was a complex personality.

His youth and charm endeared him to the people and he eagerly returned the affection.

During his years in the White House, Kennedy was often in pain due to a spinal injury received from high school football and the war. He underwent three operations, one of which almost cost him his life. It was while recovering from the last operation in 1963 that Kennedy wrote his Pulitzer Prize winning "Profiles in Courage."

Kennedy also wrote "Why England Slept," analysis of England's attitude before the war.

He was an active family man. Touch football games between members of the Kennedy "clan" were a common activity when the President was able to get away from his White House duties for a short trip to his Hyannis Port home.

President and Mrs. Kennedy had four children during their marriage. Caroline and John Jr. now live with their mother. The other two children died at infancy.

They now rest beside their father on the slopes of Arlington Cemetery.

Agonizing 42 minutes recalled by Salinger

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Pierre Salinger recalls an agonizing 42 minutes in an airplane over the Pacific in which he learned of President John F. Kennedy's assassination.

He also recalled, in an interview during a brief visit to Washington this week, that Kennedy had told him only three days before the fatal trip to Dallas, last Nov. 22, that "I wish I wasn't going to Texas."

Salinger, now a Democratic senator from California, was a member of the inner circle and a spokesman for the president as White House press secretary.

He is serving out the remainder of a short-term appointment to the Senate. He lost a bid in the Nov. 3 election to keep the seat.

It was on Nov. 19, 1963, Salinger said, that Kennedy told him of the reluctance with which he contemplated the forthcoming trip to Dallas.

"It was not said in any sense of premonition," Salinger said, "but more in the sense of weariness. He had just finished a speaking tour of Western states and was tired. He wanted more time at home. I said 'Don't worry, it's going to be a great trip' — and when I walked out of his White House office at 8 p.m. it was the last time I saw him."

Salinger, six Cabinet members and various aides were aloft over the Pacific, he recalled, when he received a summons to the cabin of Secretary of State Dean Rusk. They were en route to economic meetings in Japan.

"Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz and Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall were with Rusk in the cabin.

"Rusk held in his hand a sheet of yellow paper I recognized as coming from the radio-teletype with which we had contact with Washington.

"I glanced over Rusk's shoulder and read the message on the yellow paper: 'President John F. Kennedy was shot by an assassin in Dallas, Texas, today. He is believed dead.'

Rusk read the message aloud to the group, who listened in a stunned silence.

Salinger said he suggested immediately they should order the plane back to Honolulu and Washington, and continued: "Rusk said, 'That's right, but we have to verify this some way.' 'I went forward to the communicator and in less than a minute had a radio connection to the situation room in the White House which is the nerve center for its round the clock operation.

"I said 'Situation room, this is Wayside, my code name. What is the word on the president?' 'They answered, 'We are still verifying. The president has been shot. We believe in the head. Our information is he is still alive.' Salinger recalled the tense minutes that followed during which Freeman, a wounded veteran of Guadalcanal in World War II, mused aloud at one point: 'I was shot in the head and survived. He'll make it.'

Then, after another inconclusive radio report, came the official message from the White House, 42 minutes after the first flash: 'The President is dead.'

Kennedy name used often

NEW YORK (AP) — Fifteen Mexicans labored two months cutting a road through rock to a village in Yucatan. They named it "Avenida John F. Kennedy."

In Fairfield, Conn., the junior class of Andrew Warde High School planted a pink dogwood tree to the memory of President Kennedy.

Buildings, highways, bridges, airports, schools around the world are named for him. There are scholarship funds, libraries, plaques, monuments and statues.

In some countries, and in parts of the American South, no public memorials have been erected. In Denver, the City Council battled over changing the name of Cherry Creek Golf Course to the John F. Kennedy Golf Course. The deciding vote for the change was cast by a Negro councilman, Elvin Caldwell.

The Indiana University Chorus is performing a piece by Bernhard Heiden, teacher of musical composition, with words from a New York Times editorial of last Nov. 24. It began, "The leaden skies of yesterday were like a pall."

Postler Louis Harris reported this week that he found one in three Americans says he misses Kennedy more as time goes on.

University Bulletin Board

University Bulletin Board notices must be received at The Daily Iowan office, Room 201 Communications Center, by noon of the day before publication. They must be typed and signed by an advisor or officer of the organization being publicized. Purely social functions are not eligible for this section.

TO CANDIDATES FOR DEGREES IN JANUARY: Orders for official graduation announcements of the January, 1965 Commencement are now being taken. Place your order before 5 p.m. Friday, Dec. 18, at the Alumni House, 130 N. Madison St., across from the Union. Price per announcement is 15 cents, payable when ordered.

ALL SENIORS who wish to receive a free 1965 Hawkeye must fill out an application form before Nov. 25, if they have not yet done so. Open Interleague Trading Period

NEW YORK (AP)—Major league baseball officials will likely be asking themselves and others this question during the next 25 days: Is there another Jim Bunning on the market?

The interleague trading period opened at midnight Friday and closes Dec. 15. In between, some wheeling and dealing is expected to take place during the major league meeting in Houston, starting Nov. 30.

Bunning and Philadelphia benefited most from last year's swapping between National and American League clubs. A 12-game winner for Detroit in 1963, he was dealt to the Phillies with catcher Gus Triandos for outfielder Don Demeter and pitcher Jack Hamilton.

Bunning won 19 games and pitched a perfect game for the Phillies, who topped the National League standings most of the year.

This time, it looks as though Dick Stuart of Boston, Jim Allison of Minnesota, Ed Mathews of Milwaukee and Vada Pinson of Cincinnati may be headed for new teams and new leagues.

HARNESS HORSE—

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Undeclared Bret Hanover, was named the Harness Horse of the Year for 1964 Friday, becoming the first 2-year-old ever to win the honor.

Cassius Clay To Leave Hospital in Week

BOSTON (AP)—Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay's doctor said Friday the fighter can leave Boston City Hospital next Friday "if he feels up to it."

Dr. James V. McDermott Jr. who operated on Clay last Friday night to correct an incarcerated hernia said, "If he lived around here, if his home was here, he could leave tomorrow. But he wants to go to Chicago."

The operation, which McDermott called "an acute emergency," forced postponement of the championship fight between Clay and former champion Sonny Liston, scheduled for last Monday night at Boston Garden.

Meanwhile, the World Boxing Association, which has stripped Cassius Clay of the heavyweight boxing title, named Ernie Terrell of Philadelphia and Cleveland Williams of Houston to fight for the vacated title.

BROWNS-PACKERS—

The Cleveland Browns and Green Bay Packers both will be at near full strength Sunday for the game that will go a long way toward deciding the Eastern Division race in the National Football League.

The Browns, needing two victories to clinch the Eastern title, suffered no new aches and pains in beating the Detroit Lions last week and will be in their best shape since early in the season for the interconference battle at Milwaukee.

Bowl Berths at Stake

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

This is the weekend when college football coaches can drop the "Win for the Gipper" type of pep talk and adopt a more practical approach to their athletes. It might be "Win this one for the old boys" or even "This game means $200,000 to Alma Mamma."

Oregon State, Southern California and UCLA will have 2-1 conference records and Washington is 4-2. The PAC pairings are Oregon State vs. Oregon; USC vs. UCLA, Washington vs. Washington State and Stanford vs. California.

If over-all records should be used, the winner between Oregon State, 7-2, and Oregon, 7-1-1, likely would get the Rose Bowl trip. But Southern Cal, 6-3, has a final game next week against Notre Dame, now the nation's No. 1 team, and a victory over the Irish could count heavily.

Arkansas, the Southwest Conference champion, and Nebraska of the Big Eight already have been picked for the Cotton Bowl.

Texas, invited to the Orange Bowl, doesn't play until Thanksgiving Day and neither does Alabama, considered as the likely opponent for the Longhorns.

According to one source, Louisiana State and Syracuse will receive Sugar Bowl bids if they finish the season in good style.

Big Ten Games

CHICAGO (AP)—In a typical Big Ten football season windup, the conference title and a Rose trip are at stake Saturday in just one big game—Michigan at Ohio State.

Ohio State takes a 5-0 league record into its sixth conference game and must beat or tie the Michigan 5-1, or yield all the spoils to the Wolverines.

In other games, Michigan State 3-2 is at Illinois 3-3; Indiana 1-4 visits Purdue 4-2 for the Old Oaken Bucket; and Minnesota 4-2 invades Wisconsin 1-5.

Dethroned champion Illinois is a touchdown favorite over Michigan State.

Minnesota, finishing fast, could wind up in a second place tie by whipping Wisconsin, a seven-point underdog.

Also a seven-point pick is Purdue although the form sheet means little in the Old Oaken Bucket feud in Hoosierland.

"HORSE OF YEAR"—

NEW YORK (AP)—Kelso, 7-year-old gelding from Mrs. Richard C. duPont's Bohemia Stable, was named the 1964 Horse of the Year Friday in the 29th poll conducted by the horse racing publications, the Morning Telegraph and the Daily Racing Form.

PRICE DE ANTONA LE ZOTTE GEHRKE WILLIAMS BUDZIK

GIACOBBAZI RECHER

Seniors—

Other seniors include tackles Bob Mitchell and Phil Deutsch, guard Bernie Budzik, linebacker Del Gehrke, end Lou Williams and reserves Joe DeAntona, a guard; Jack Price, a tackle and Bob LeZotte, a flanker.

NOTRE DAME Coach Ara Parseghian has said, "Iowa's Gary Snook is one of the country's top passers and Karl Noonan ranks second as a pass receiver. Snook is accurate and has a quick delivery. No team has kept Iowa out of the end zone and they present a tremendous challenge to us. "Iowa certainly has had its share of bad luck. They have averaged three touchdowns a game and are only five touchdowns away from an unbeaten season," he added.

Notre Dame guard Jim Carroll, chosen as the Associated Press Lineman of the Week for his efforts against Michigan State, agreed with his coach that Iowa is going to be hard to stop.

THE NOTRE DAME rushing defense is tops in the country, yielding a mere 66 yards per game on the ground to its opponents.

However Carroll said, "Iowa will be hard to defend against, since they are primarily a passing team that can score a touchdown against you from practically any area on the field.

Iowa's optimistic coach, Jerry Burns, predicted his team will upset Notre Dame. His Hawks have lost five straight and are desperate for a victory. With nothing to lose, Iowa will provide a wide open game.

IOWA SOPHOMORE end Rich O'Hara has a chance to join Karl Noonan in surpassing the season's reception record set by Jim Gibbons in 1957. O'Hara has 29 catches for 438 yards and four touchdowns. Gibbons' old mark, already broken by Noonan, was 36 catches for 587 yards.

BILL WOLSKI, junior left half and the team's leading ground-gainer, may be able to see some service against the Iowans. Wolski has been on the shelf with a badly-pulled leg muscle.

Against Michigan State, Quarterback John Huarte and Split End Jack Snow continued to add to their one season record totals. Huarte has hit on 92 of 166 passing attempts for 1,673 yards (with the yardage total being a record).

Huarte has thrown 14 touchdown passes with seven of these being caught by Snow.

THE IOWANS have a three-five record, but only five touchdowns separate them from an undefeated season.

The Hawkeyes have definitely been a passing team all season and they have one of the nation's great throwers in Quarterback Gary Snook. A junior, Snook, has broken seven Big Ten passing records and tied another. He has thrown 290 passes, completed 143 for 1,985 yards for a completion percentage of 49.3. He has 11 touchdown tosses to his credit and has had 14 pitches intercepted.

Snook's leading receiver has been flanker Karl Noonan, has caught 57 passes for 910 yards. Four of his grabs were for touchdowns.

Schools May Face Religion Problem, Prof.

A double set of Constitutional limitations may present Iowa school boards with complex problems concerning separation of church and state, according to Russell Weintraub, U of I professor of law.

In a speech prepared for delivery Friday at the annual convention of the Iowa Association of School Boards in Des Moines Friday, Weintraub said that while no state agency can take any action prohibited by the Federal Constitution, some types of action permissible under the Federal Constitution may be prohibited or completely ignored by the state constitution.

The Federal Constitution says "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." This provision is applied to the states through the Fourteenth Amendment.

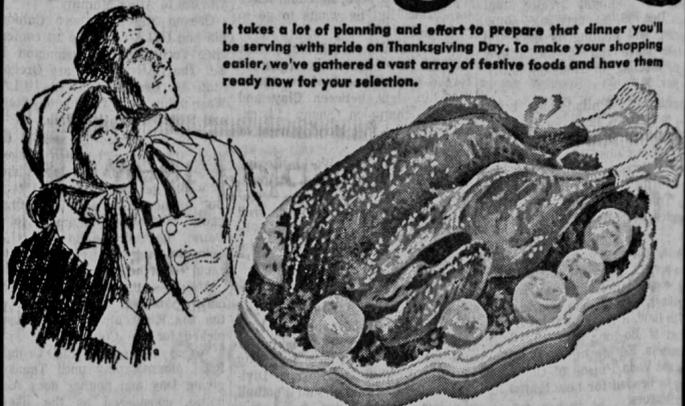

To this, the Iowa Constitution adds that no person shall be compelled to attend any place of worship, pay taxes for building or repairing places of worship or to maintain any minister or ministry.

Religious worship as part of a public school program is prohibited by Supreme Court rulings. Weintraub said, but the Bible itself is not.

Weintraub said the study of religion as a key to understanding the classics of literature and culture is also permitted by Federal law.
