University President Howard R. Bowen officially began his administration Saturday with a warning of the "growing dangers of bureaucracy and conformity in education" and a pledge to promote individuality at Iowa.

In his inauguration speech at the Field House, Bowen said a university is perhaps the most effective instrument for counteracting the conformity and anonymity which society tends to impose on individuals.

"THE ONLY conformity the University requires is the loyalty to the search for truth," he said. "The tradition of the state of Iowa and of the University is a personal one. We Iowans are interested in individual human beings. We look upon education as a personal experience, not a form of mass communication."

Bowen, who said he expects University enrollment to grow to 25,000 or more in the next decade, urged that the academic program give students ample exposure to personal teaching. He said a direct exchange of views between a faculty member and one or more students should always be an important part of the University program.

HE ALSO recommended an extension of the Honors Program to areas other than the College of Liberal Arts.

Bowen said the number of courses students take each semester should be reduced to allow more depth of study. He also urged increased emphasis on independent study and student writing.

THE PRESIDENT stressed the importance of extracurricular activities in the University program.

"Through such activities the individual student can express himself, broaden his horizons, acquire new insights, gain experience in human relations as well as achieve needed recreation," he said.

He proposed extending programs in art, music, theatre and dance to include more students.

"DISTINGUISHED scholars from all parts of the world should be brought to the campus for varying periods from a week to a year and should be in face to face contact with students," Bowen said.

The president also pointed out the value of sports, intramural as well as intercollegiate, in providing "an important counterweight to the tensions of modern living."

He said the present program of intramural sports should be improved by adding facilities.

BEFORE BOWEN made his inauguration speech, greetings were delivered by representatives of the faculty, students, other universities and the state.

Prof. J. Richard Wilmeth, president of the Faculty Council, welcomed Bowen on behalf of the faculty. He called Bowen a distinguished administrator, who in addition has full faculty credentials.

Wilmeth said the Faculty Council had a growing sense of involvement in University policy making since Bowen had begun as president.

WALLY SNYDER, president of the Student Senate, welcomed Bowen for University students. He referred to the president as a man with whom students could easily identify.

John J. Greer, president of the Alumni Association, said Bowen is unalterably opposed to mediocrity. He said Bowen's purpose is to show Iowa is not second rate in the educational realm and this encourages everyone in the state.

Roscoe Miller, president of Northwestern University, spoke on behalf of the universities of the nation. He called Bowen admirably qualified by background, training, experience and performance.

Gromyko Asks Stronger U.N. Peacekeeper Role

Says U.S. Policy Threatens Peace

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko urged Monday that the United Nations be strengthened in its role as peacekeeper. But he denounced U.S. policy in Western Europe, Asia and Africa as endangering world peace.

Gromyko expressed his views in a policy speech to the 115-nation General Assembly which delegates considered as a broad outline of the approach the new Moscow leadership will take in the United Nations.

He placed priority on a need for progress in disarmament, and said that "it would be in line with the present situation" to convene a world summit conference on the subject.

MOST U.S. delegates regard the speech as relatively moderate in tone, but U.S. chief delegate Adlai E. Stevenson said it contained "harsh cold war talk."

In a statement issued through a spokesman, Stevenson said the world objectives of the Soviet Union apparently remain unchanged. He added that "even self-defense and aid to countries to protect their security and independence is wrong and illegal if it interferes with Soviet aggressive ambition to communize the world."

His statement was much sharper than the reaction of Lord Caradon, the British delegate, who said he was encouraged by hearing Gromyko stressed the need for strengthening the United Nations. Roger Seydoux, the French Ambassador said Gromyko alternated between a tough and soft line.

APPARENTLY Stevenson was irked by Gromyko's strong criticism of the U.S.-backed Multilateral Nuclear Force as opening the way for nuclear weapons "to slither all over the world," and criticism of the U.S. policy in South Viet Nam as military intervention which risks peace in Southeast Asia and perhaps the world.

Gromyko also assailed the United States, Belgium and Britain for sending Belgian paratroopers to Stanleyville to rescue whites held by Congo rebels. He did not mention the mercy aspect of the mission, but called the move flagrant interference in the Congo's internal affairs.

Gromyko presented the assembly with a memorandum on disarmament that summarized the Soviet position on various measures advanced at the negotiations in Geneva.

But he also endorsed the call of the nonaligned nations in Cairo for a world summit conference on disarmament, as well as the proposal by Peking for a summit meeting to consider a total ban on nuclear weapons.

GROMYKO dealt at length with disarmament, but Western experts said they saw little new in his speech or the detailed memorandum distributed to U.N. delegates.

The memorandum covered such points as reduction of military budgets, withdrawal or reduction of foreign troops in the territories of other countries, elimination of foreign military bases in alien territories, prevention of further spread of nuclear weapons, establishment of demilitarized zones, and prevention of surprise attack.

Burch, Goldwater Seek To Stem Party Rebellion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dean Burch, apparently seeking to stem a rebellion against leadership of the Republican National Committee, announced Monday he and Sen. Barry Goldwater could endorse a policy statement issued over the weekend by Republican governors.

The statement had been interpreted by many as slapping Burch, chairman of the national committee, and Goldwater. In another move in the Republican tug-of-war over the party's leadership in the aftermath of its shattering Nov. 3 defeat, John Grenier resigned as the executive director of the GOP National Committee.

The party's 18 governors and governors elect, who held a special meeting in Denver Friday and Saturday, urged a drastic reshaping of the party's national organization in a statement many of the governors said was a clear call for the ouster of Burch.

As it turned out, Burch's name was not mentioned in the statement about party leadership but a majority of the governors were described as feeling that its meaning was: "Burch must go." The polite, indirect phrasing, they said, was in the interest of harmony so that the statement would receive the unanimous approval of the state executives.

Burch moved to silence the "Burch must go" chorus in the Republican ranks with his appeal for unity.

Mild Temperature To Continue Today

A stable and relatively mild pattern appeared ready Monday to control Iowa's weather through the middle of the week.

Variable cloudiness should give way to partly cloudy conditions by tonight.

Officials Ask Code Change

By DAVE CRIPPEN
Staff Writer

The problems of meeting future off-campus housing demands and correcting substandard living conditions were discussed Monday by Off-Campus Housing Adviser James J. Rhatigan, Dick Duncan, head of Duncan Realty, and Bud Means, president of the Iowa City Realty Board.

They appeared before the Student Senate University Affairs Committee on Housing.

IN A PREPARED statement, Rhatigan outlined his office's policy and rules concerning University approval of off-campus housing units.

Among the criteria for approval in off-campus housing, Rhatigan mentioned were: (1) supervision furnished by the householder; (2) rental on the basis of non-discrimination regarding race, creed or color; (3) inspection by the Division of Environmental Health and Safety.

Rhatigan said there has been a "steady decline" of the number of approved units since 1960. In 1960 there were about 450 approved dwellings. The current figure of 250 units, provides housing for 1,138 students.

TO MEET the housing shortage, Rhatigan called for more housing to "keep pace" with the University's growth and for a "strict" housing ordinance.

He mentioned two possible types of off-campus housing — private dormitories and apartment units. He said he is not aware of any investors interested in private dorms designed for single students.

Rhatigan said, however, that construction of multiple dwellings is on the increase. Permission has been given by Iowa City for immediate construction of an additional 135 units in four different projects, he said.

THE MAJOR obstacles confronting construction of apartments according to Rhatigan are: the cost of property, off-street parking regulations, and building and zoning restrictions.

Duncan and Means then presented their views on the housing problem. Duncan said there are many landlords who have illegally converted their property into multiple dwellings in zones where such housing is not permitted.

Both Duncan and Means called for a change in the building code, which would permit the construction of "high-rise" buildings. Presently it is illegal to build multi-family housing units more than 2½ stories high.

"We feel it would be very helpful," Duncan said, "if the University would set out its future building plans and specify its boundaries." He said uncertainty over University plans discourages investors from building new housing units.

U.S., Britain Review NATO Nuclear Issue

Johnson and Wilson Discuss World Affairs In 2-Day Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and Prime Minister Harold Wilson began Monday a joint search for guidelines the United States and Britain may follow in tackling the controversial problem of NATO's nuclear future.

In a 90-minute, mid-day session, opening the two-day conference, the two men covered not only issues within the Western Alliance but also held a wide-ranging discussion of problems they face over the rest of the world. These include Britain's pressing financial difficulties, the cost and distribution of defense forces, efforts to raise world living standards and the conflict with Communists in Southeast Asia.

JOHNSON AND WILSON held another private talk at the White House Monday afternoon, then joined their key advisers for further discussions.

Press Secretary George E. Reedy said the advisers discussed "defense problems around the world," problems of the Atlantic Alliance and the possibility of British and American joint efforts in defense research and development projects with a view to reducing costs to both countries.

Johnson and Wilson will continue their discussions Tuesday.

U.S. OFFICIALS predicted that no "blueprint" for a NATO nuclear force will emerge from the conference, which runs through Tuesday evening, but both Johnson and Wilson are reported hopeful that they can agree on some formula for a new approach to the problem which can then be taken into negotiations with West Germany and other interested allied countries.

There is no hope here that France, which is flatly opposed to a U.S. proposal for a mixed-manned seaborn nuclear missile fleet, will agree with any new U.S.-British initiative.

THE FIRST MEETING between Johnson and Wilson began shortly before noon. At the same time their principal advisers met nearby.

After Johnson and Wilson had met alone for an hour and 30 minutes, they joined the meeting of their advisers and received a report on the discussions which had been under way there.

With 14,480 Enrollment—

Iowa Ranks 24th in Nation

The University of Iowa, with a full-time student enrollment of 14,480 is now 24th in size among the nation's colleges and universities, according to the annual survey conducted by Garland C. Parker, University of Cincinnati registrar.

Parker reports that 1,111 accredited universities and four-year colleges have admitted 2,090,638 full-time students this fall, and a grand total of 4,118,735 students including those on part-time status.

Full-time student enrollment across the nation is up 10.1 per cent as compared to the 6.4 per cent increase last year. The overall total, which comprises part-time students and those taking extension courses, is 9.3 per cent larger than last year.

IOWA'S ENROLLMENT represents an increase of 1,557 students over last year, when the University was 25th in the poll. In 1962 the University ranked 26th.

Parker noted that this is the year for the spectacular rise in the number of freshmen entering college. Freshman attendance nationally is 17.3 per cent larger this year than last — "the largest percentage increase that is likely to occur in the foreseeable future," he predicted.

Parker added that there would be another 10 or 12 per cent increase in freshmen next year. He predicted a leveling-off period from 1966 to 1968, with steady increases resumed by 1969.

UNIVERSITY officials expect enrollment here to reach more than 15,000 in 1965.

"As the massive freshman classes of this year and the next move into the upper classes and are replaced by almost equally ponderous groups, our institutions of higher education will find themselves grappling with the educational challenge of the century," said Parker.

THE LIST of the institutions with the largest full-time enrollments was headed by the California State Colleges (92,220). The University of California was second with 66,980, followed by the State University of New York (60,569).

Nine of the Big Ten universities, including Iowa, rank in the top 30: Minnesota 5th with 38,403; Wisconsin, 6th with 33,912; Ohio State, 7th with 32,737; Illinois 8th with 30,992; Michigan State 9th with 28,587; Indiana, 11th with 26,199; Michigan, 12th with 24,642; and Purdue, 16th with 18,839.

Inauguration Pageant Centers Around Bowen

By MIKE ELLIOTT
Staff Writer

The inauguration ceremony, with all its color, tradition, and pageantry, started only one individual, Dr. Howard R. Bowen.

The cast included delegates from 70 universities and colleges, representatives from 36 national societies, organizations and foundations, and delegates from 30 professional organizations in Iowa.

THE SETTING was the Field House where huge gold backdrop curtains replaced temporarily the symbols of athletic clashes with an academic motif.

The script contained speeches by men representing the faculty, student body, alumni, the people of Iowa, and various American colleges and universities.

The music score was highlighted by "The President's Fanfare" which was especially composed for the occasion.

THE INAUGURATION ceremony had just one individual in the spotlight. It was President Bowen who appropriately spoke of individuality. Wearing a black academic robe, blue cap and the new gold presidential emblem, President Bowen was the center of attention and honor.

All the special participants, invited guests and the public gathered to pay tribute to the foremost individual of the University. His journey from U of I student, to faculty members, to President, was noted by some speaker. His qualifications were mentioned by others. His responsibilities were declared by many. His ability was observed by all.

The audience, estimated at 3,000 included more than 800 special guests. The 90-minute ceremony began with an academic procession led by about 120 faculty members and 20 students representing the 10 University colleges. They were followed by representatives of universities and colleges.

BRILLIANT yellows, reds, greens, purples and blues decorated the somber black academic robes. Some of the dignitaries in the procession appeared perfectly at ease in their gowns; others were noticeably stiff, either with pride or self-consciousness.

Today's Spanish

By WILLIAM ARCHER
Reading time 3 Min.
Study time 5 Min.

You have been given 'quiere' (I want, I desire), 'voy a' (I go, I am going, I will go) and 'fui a' (I went).

Now we will give you, in its entirety, the verb 'to be able'. It is 'poder'.

- A) I can eat.
- B) Puedo comer.
- C) poo-AID-doe/co-MARE
- A) We can eat.
- B) Podemos comer.
- C) poe-DAY-mos/co-MARE
- A) He can eat.
- B) El puede comer.
- C) I/oo-AID-day/co-MARE
- A) They can eat.
- B) Ellos pueden comer.
- C) A-yos/poo-AID-den/co-MARE

This verb is important because it enables you to say such things as: 'We can, but we don't want to', 'Podemos, pero no queremos'; 'I can go if you can go', 'Puedo ir si usted puede', etc. Also, with the infinitives of verbs you can say: 'I can swim'; 'They can dance'; 'We can go'; 'He can ride', etc. Isn't this a valuable "key"?

To this point you have been given 16 verb sounds and endings. Tomorrow we will give you the four sounds and endings for 'to have to', and then you will have sufficient verb control to say almost anything you want in Spanish.

The "key" to the command tense (clean it, wash it, etc.) will follow. Then, together with your "keys", your knowledge of Spanish will be as a strong sailing. Every noun you add to your vocabulary will be the same as a new limb, and every adjective will be as a new leaf. The growth of your language "tree" has been sound because, as a child does, you have gone from vowel to verb to noun to adjective.

I know that you are anxious to 'paint' in your new language, so I will give you a few "colors":

- A) short
- B) corto
- C) CORE-roe
- A) black
- B) negro
- C) NAY-grow
- A) small
- B) pequeño
- C) pay-CAIN-yo

Wayne State begins job corps project

By TAM DUGGLEBY
Exchange Editor

After three months of planning, a personnel committee at Wayne State University, Detroit, has proposed the establishment of a large Job Corps Regional Training Center designed to help solve one of the nation's biggest education problems, the vocational limitations on young men who are out of school and still unemployed. Bound next for the approval of the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity, the project will provide an opportunity for boys between 16 and 21, and looking for work, to improve their skills and put their talents to work.

Wayne State hopes that the facilities for the project, to be located in Fort Wayne when the program is completely deactivated, can be working toward this end by 1966, to be financed by the Federal Government as part of the "Economic Opportunity Act of 1964."

When completed this residential center will provide enrollment for 1000 urban and rural boys with an educational program on the theme "Total Community."

WITHIN THIS "community" will be a curriculum with the main job of providing basic, remedial, citizenship, and vocational education, as well as counseling on medical and psychological problems which might interfere with the student's work progress. This will include on-the-job training as well as formal classroom sessions in areas such as law enforcement, fire protection, government work, building trades, communications, and others.

Boys enrolled in the center will have a city to themselves, operating their own recreational, educational, police, and fire departments under experienced leadership. The program in all is expected to produce students who can rise in their fields, return to school, or move to other vocational training.

Confirmed window watchers will have their gazing habits severely limited when Indiana University's Business building opens to students in 1966. Planned on a massive two-wing layout, the $5 million project will claim its most unique feature in the south wing's four ten-row by ten-row classrooms with no windows, but four walls of blackboards.

ACCOMODATING A hundred students at a time, the rooms will be equipped with swivel chairs so that student attention can be turned on blackboards aids at any side of the room. With this set-up, a complicated math problem, for instance, can be started at one end of the room and continued around it until it is solved.

In the building's north wing will be seven floors of administration offices, bureaus, and research rooms, connected to the south wing by a three-story entrance building. The project will also house several large auditoriums and both graduate and undergraduate libraries.

Dorm students at the University of Minnesota can have fewer long-distance phone bills to worry about now since the Dorm Radio club is prepared to send student messages anywhere in the U.S. free of charge, to families and friends on other campuses. Operating from a sub-terrestrial transmitter under one of the university buildings, the club can send "reasonable" personal messages to any good-sized town or city with amateur radio operators available to relay the message.

Posting a sender on duty each evening, the 25-member group cannot guarantee the successful arrival of every message, due to problems such as the inavailability of someone to pass a message on at the destination in some cases. However, members report that in the past most student messages have reached their destinations successfully, estimating that more than 400 have been sent through this service since its beginning.

STUDENTS at the University of Oregon will be in store for another new service this spring when the student discount program goes into effect in Eugene, Oregon, shopping areas. Originated by the National Student Association, the discount idea has been adopted successfully at the University of Minnesota and other Midwest schools, and the Oregon plan is modeled on these experiments.

Designed to benefit both the student and the city merchant, the items and services, but also encourage him to buy these things in his college town, rather than at home, drawing business for the NSA-ASUC service will not only allow the student a savings on shopkeeper. Under the program, students will pay for inexpensive discount cards at term registration and take them to merchants when they go to purchase clothing, meals, cleaning services, and other essentials, the largest expected discount reaching 10 percent of the price.

Extended war effort predicted in Asia

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — It looks here as if it will be only a matter of time before air raids are carried out against Viet Cong infiltration routes outside South Viet Nam.

The anticipation here is that the raids would be made by Vietnamese air force planes, possibly with U.S. pilots aboard to accompany Vietnamese crews, rather than U.S. Air Force planes.

Indications are that the basic decision to go ahead with limited raids already has been made. Such raids are not likely to in-

Do-it-yourself queens—
Miss Wayzgoose contest

By JON VAN
Managing Editor

Beauty, splendor, dignity and pageantry will abound Sunday when Miss Daily Iowan Wayzgoose for 1965 is crowned at the Wayzgoose Banquet.

Wilson Trueblood, chairman of the affair, predicts a true spectacle of pulchritude and charm as the queen is chosen from the field of over 50 contestants.

"This is going to be the 'queen of queens' contest," said Trueblood, "we have spared no expense to make this an event not soon to be forgotten."

Trueblood explained this is the first Miss Wayzgoose ever to be selected.

"We are creating this queenship in order to provide more opportunities for coeds to enter these contests," he said, "do you realize that at present nearly one third of the coeds managed to get through the University program without ever being nominated for some sort of queenship?"

"This is largely because so many girls hog the show and keep getting nominated over and over again."

ONE OF THE main purposes of the Miss Wayzgoose contest, according to Trueblood, is to get around this "hogging" of queen competition.

"We are opening this one up for unlimited numbers of girls," he said, "so although most of our candidates will have already been queens, at least some of them will enter competition for the first time."

The contest is being held in conjunction with the Wayzgoose Banquet, which is an annual affair sponsored by the Associated Students of Journalism.

"Every coed enrolled in the School of Journalism is automatically nominated," Trueblood announced, "and any coed at Iowa who would like to be a queen is also eligible to enter. We are absolutely opposed to use of screening boards of any nature in selection processes."

Trueblood went on to say the sponsors of the contest are so opposed to discrimination in choosing candidates that even fellows can enter, "if they want to."

"WE ENCOURAGE everyone to campaign actively between now and Friday when the voting will take place," he said.

Men enrolled in journalism will be eligible to vote according to the rules of the contest, but Trueblood said again that outsiders can vote if they really want to and express a true interest in selection of Miss Wayzgoose.

"Girls can also vote," he said, "as often as they wish. We want to be sure everyone gets at least a couple votes. The polling places will be The Daily Iowan office, 201 Communication Center, and the State Office Building in Des Moines — we want to try to get some people across the river out to vote. Polls will be open all day."

The five girls getting the most votes will be finalists announced at the Banquet Sunday night. They will each be asked questions by the master of ceremonies, Pert Barkes. These questions will determine qualities of beauty, truth, loyalty, talent, cleanliness, queenliness, sweetness, light, joy, liveliness and radiance among the finalists.

"These characteristics have nothing to do with our queen," said Trueblood, "but we're just curious."

AFTER THE ceremonies the queen will be picked at random from the crowd according to him.

"This is because we wish to be correct in choosing a truly queenly type. You see queens, and kings too, have historically ruled by 'divine right.' They base their power on a mandate from heaven to rule men," he said.

"So we'll draw the name of Miss Wayzgoose from a hat in the end, this will give our queen a real right to her throne."

Trueblood said this will also provide the element of surprise which will make the event a thrill.

"NO ONE knows who may be crowned when the final word comes. It might be one of the beauties on the stage, or it might well be someone in the audience. But more likely, it will be someone who isn't even there. This really keeps you guessing."

The Wayzgoose Banquet will be Sunday at 6:30 p.m. at the Mayflower. Tickets, $1.50 each, may be purchased from the office of the School of Journalism, the City Desk of The Daily Iowan or officers of ASI.

Coeds wishing information for entering the Miss Wayzgoose contest may contact Jon Van at the Iowan.

Anyone for subtitles?

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — The Robert F. Kennedys are a close-knit family and Ethel Kennedy is a strong-willed person, and thereby hangs a tale.

A few weeks ago the Kennedys decided to take their children she didn't know the picture was a foreign one and asked for her $14.50 back.

THE CASHIER said it was against the policy of the theater to refund any tickets and anyone should have known it was a foreign picture just by the cast.

Mrs. Kennedy retorted that it was up to the theater to advertise they were showing a film with subtitles and she demanded to see the manager.

The manager finally arrived and Mrs. Kennedy explained the situation again.

The manager was no more sympathetic than the cashier. He said the policy of the theater chain was no refunds. Mrs. Kennedy said she had several children with her who couldn't read subtitles and she had been bilked.

THE MANAGER offered to let her take the ones who couldn't read across the street to see "Rio Concha," an American film. Mrs. Kennedy said she refused to split up her family.

As an afterthought she said, "I know Pierre Salinger and he may become the head of the Motion Picture Producers Association and I'm going to see the first thing he does is make a ruling that your theater must indicate on the outside when it is showing a foreign film."

Mrs. Kennedy was so adamant that the manager finally said, "All right, lady, I'll mail you the $14.50. What's your name?"

"Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy," the manager gulped. "Any relation to the senator?"

"His wife."

"YOU CAN get your money back now."

Mrs. Kennedy went back to the box office, but the cashier told her she would have to wait in line. She said she wasn't moving until she got her $14.50.

They chose what they thought to be a cowboy picture titled "The Man From Rio," but when they got into the theater they discovered it was a French comedy with English subtitles.

Mrs. Kennedy was very upset, particularly since several of the children couldn't read.

She told Mr. Kennedy she would get their money back and they would go to another movie. She went outside to the box office and explained to the cashier

The cashier realized she meant business and said, "Give me your stubs."

Mrs. Kennedy could find only 12 stubs. She needed 14.

The cashier called the manager and he said, "Give her anything."

It took 40 minutes, but Mrs.

ROBERT KENNEDY

Kennedy swept into the theater triumphantly with the money in her hand. She told Mr. Kennedy they could leave now. Mr. Kennedy said, "I don't want to leave. This is one of the funniest pictures I've ever seen."

ALL THE children shouted, "We don't want to leave. We're going to stay until it's over!"

With tears in her eyes the pregnant Mrs. Kennedy returned the $14.50 to the box office.

The happy side to the story is that Mrs. Kennedy is still talking to Mr. Kennedy — but just barely.

And more speeches

BUT THE MOST IMPORTANT SPEECH of the occasion, because of its author and also its content, was President Bowen's inaugural address.

Bowen pointed out the essential factor that was necessary to all the other facets of education, both present and future — the retention of individuality in the university system.

Whether there be large numbers of students or small, whether housing be individual units or dormitory complexes whether the teacher is a full-fledged professor or a graduate assistant, if individuality is not maintained as a necessary goal of a university, the overall purpose of that institution is being slighted.

With the ever-increasing size of this University, keeping individuality present on campus is an enormous task. It is gratifying that President Bowen has the ability and the desire to take on the task.

Grass Grows in Lab—

Two Study Power Mower Mishaps

By STEVE DE WOLF
Staff Writer

Although snow has covered most of summer's lawns, there is still one spot on campus where green grass is growing.

In the office-laboratory on the third floor of the Engineering Building, four 12 foot by 20 inch strips of sod have been set up in tray-like tables as part of a research project to investigate power lawn mower accidents.

THE PROJECT is sponsored by the University's Institute of Agricultural Medicine and the Industrial Engineering Department. Supported by a grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the work is under the direction of L. W. Knapp, Jr., assistant professor of agricultural medicine.

Actual work on the power mower research project is being done by Paul Jordan, G. New York City, and Ronald Sunderman, A4, Carroll.

"IN BROAD TERMS, the purposes of our research is to define the existing hazards involved in operating power mowers," Jordan said. "We hope this research will lead ultimately to a safe, functional mower."

"At present, the project is in a preliminary stage. 'We're still waiting for much of our equipment to arrive,'" he explained.

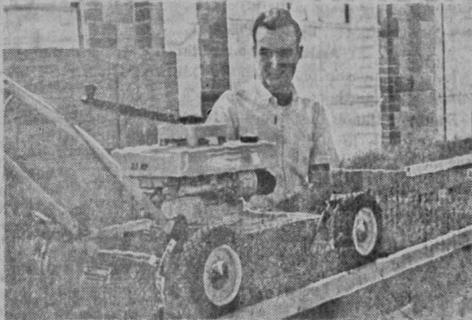

THE EXPERIMENTS will probably start in early January. They will be designed to determine how power mower blades pick up and throw objects, which objects are most likely to be thrown, and in what direction the objects will be thrown, he said.

THE EXPERIMENTS will be conducted by drawing an instrumented electrical mower over the strips of sod by means of a motor at the opposite end of the table. Stones, wires and other objects will be placed in the mower's path to simulate actual lawn conditions.

Data from the experiments will be gathered by high-speed motion picture photography and by direct observation. When the research is completed in June, the findings will be turned over to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which will, in turn, present them to power lawn mower manufacturers, Jordan said.

He said the research project was necessary and important because of the increasing number of mishaps involving power lawn mowers each year.

Jordan and Sunderman's research project is actually a follow-up to earlier investigations of lawn mower accidents. In 1962, the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare gave the Institute of Agricultural Medicine a grant to study farm accidents in Iowa.

Lawn Mower Project

"FROM McCONNELL'S REPORTS at that time," Jordan said, "it became obvious that lawn mower accidents were on the increase and many of them were extremely serious."

So, in the summer of 1963 a program was begun by the Institute to investigate these accidents.

Jordan and Sunderman began the project last summer. Their tests were conducted on a plot of University-owned land west of Pinkbine Golf Course.

"BUT THIS FALL we saw we would have to move our project inside," Jordan said. "One obvious reason was the approach of winter, but another was that we weren't able to control certain variables such as the weather and the speed of the mower."

With the project now inside these controls are possible. The growth of the four strips of lawn can be regulated by the careful use of water, fertilizer and ultraviolet lights.

Space Dust Damages Mariner 4

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Space Agency said Monday that the Mariner 4 Mars spacecraft lost contact with the star that was guiding it, possibly because of a speck of space dust.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said a dust particle no larger than one-fifth of an inch in diameter, passing within two feet of Mariner's sensor, could have triggered the loss of "lock" on the tracking star Canopus.

"Current analysis supports the theory that a dust particle deflecting the light of the sun passed through the field of view of the Canopus tracker," NASA said. The agency added that it plans to command the spacecraft to re-focus on Canopus soon.

NASA also reported that radio signals from Mariner 4 indicate that one of the eight scientific experiments aboard the spacecraft has ceased to function.

The Jet Propulsion Laboratory of Pasadena, Calif., which manages the Mariner program for NASA, said a solar plasma probe experiment has stopped transmitting useful information. Its signals are unintelligible.

The solar plasma probe experts were unable to determine the cause of the trouble, but said they thought it might be due to the failure of an electronic part.

The solar plasma probe functioned perfectly for eight days, measuring and transmitting to earth the densities, velocities, temperatures, and directions of low energy protons that stream outward from the sun at supersonic speeds to form a solar wave.

Five other scientific instruments and all the spacecraft's subsystems are functioning normally. Two more experiments are to be conducted near Mars next July.

"Endotoxin Shock: The Obstetrical Model of a Disease Mechanism" will be the title of the College of Medicine Lecture.

The lecture is presented in memory of the late Prof. Everett Plass, who was head of obstetrics and gynecology at Iowa from 1926 to 1952.

Prof. Douglas received his medical degree from Johns Hopkins University in 1945 and has been at New York University since 1949. "We've had tremendous participation from art students and the art faculty," Miss McElveen said. "This is only our third sale but we expect it to be a great success."

"A tremendous amount of labor went into each item," said Miss McElveen, "but they are all very inexpensive. They would make excellent Christmas presents."

Each item will be marked with its price and the name of its artist. Members of the Thieves Market committee will be on hand at the display to sell the items.

To draw attention to the sale, an artist will be working on one of his paintings, Miss McElveen said.

Miller Says Hawk Basketball Mistakes To Be Easily Corrected

"We have a lot of mistakes to be worked out this week, but I feel the mistakes are the type that can easily be corrected," contended Iowa Basketball Coach Ralph Miller Monday.

Miller said he was pleased with the one-two scoring combination of forward Chris Pervall and guard Jimmy Rodgers.

Their 55-point total in the Evansville game was one of the highest totals ever by two Iowa players in one game.

Pervall has been the most consistent starter and Rodgers has done an excellent job with his added responsibility of running the ball club, said Miller.

PERVALL

Pervall, hindered by a leg injury prior to the Evansville game, had his best night against the Purple Aces, scoring 24 points.

HE HAS TURNED OUT to be quite a clutch player and scores a lot of points on individual effort. Pervall scored 18 against Kentucky to lead the team with 65 points for three games. Rodgers is next with 57.

Although he had a bad night against Evansville, where he couldn't buy a basket, sophomore Gerry Jones has the complete confidence of his coach.

Miller said after the Kentucky game, "For a sophomore, he didn't make as many mistakes as I expected him to. He shows all the signs of being a fine player."

NEXT SATURDAY evening, the Hawkeyes will have another examination session when they meet Creighton University of Omaha on the Field House court at 7:30 p.m. This is the first of three straight home games, the others

Sports Editor

BORNHOLDT

Stung by two defeats in 24 hours, Iowa's cagers learned the hard way that they can't give the ball away 58 times on turnovers and still expect the decision to go their way.

COACH Miller admits that lucky victories over Kentucky and Evansville would have put the Hawks in worst shape than they are now. At least they know what they are doing wrong and will be a much stronger ball club against Creighton this week as a result of the lumps received last weekend.

In both games, the Hawks were over anxious, diving for the ball and over committing themselves on defense. Consequently, Kentucky and Evansville were able to break their best shooters open for clean shots.

Miller has emphasized his style of defense is not to constantly go for the ball, but to keep the pressure on and let the other team make the mistakes.

Evansville's All-American Jerry Sloan was bothered by the pressure and could only manage 10 points against the Hawks.

EVANSVILLE'S LARRY HUMES, who was thrown out of last year's game following an intention foul against Denny Pauling, concentrated more on shooting instead of playing "hatchet-man." The pressure didn't seem to bother him as he penetrated the Iowa defense for 39 points.

Iowa fans have no reason to sharply criticize the young Iowa club for two early season losses, because with a little more playing sense, a cutdown on unnecessary fouls and sharper ball handling will turn them into a winner.

They are just learning each other's reactions, and with four of five starters scoring double figures in every game, we are bound to win more than our share.

Coach Miller, a man who hates to lose any game, said, "Getting our lumps early in the season will get us ready for conference play. By the time Wisconsin comes to Iowa City on Jan. 4, we will be ready."

HE PRAISED his team for their play-making after the Kentucky and Evansville losses. "The shots we are getting are the best of any ball club I have coached."

"When we start eliminating all of our nonsense fouls, bad passes, and start anticipating each other's moves, we will then become a winner. You can't expect to make mistakes and beat teams like Kentucky and Evansville."

"Throwing the ball away on the fast break should happen perhaps once a ball game, and no more," he added.

Lexington and Evansville are perhaps two of the most basketball-minded towns in America. Each has its own arena, built strictly for basketball.

ABOUT 11,700 FANS tested the capacity of Kentucky's Memorial Coliseum Friday night, while 12,464 packed Roberts Gymnasium in Evansville on Saturday.

The fans are so bent on seeing a victory in Lexington, that if Kentucky loses, court it held the next day to find out what went wrong.

The Evansville fans are just as loyal. Coach McCutchan accidentally wore a pair of bright red socks to one of the ball games last year. The team kept on winning until it took the NCAA college championship, and McCutchan still kept wearing those socks.

Now the fans have taken the cue from McCutchan. Last Saturday night at least 12,000 fans wore bright red articles of clothing. Sox, ties, sweaters, skirts, shirts — solid red — made the place look about as obnoxious as a candy shop on St. Valentine's Day.

VISITING WITH the "Man in the Brown Suit" in Lexington was a fruitful experience.

Adolph Rupp, who has been at Kentucky for 35 years, has a lifetime coaching record of 760 victories and 303 losses. While at Kentucky, he has amassed 706 victories in 847 starts.

All four walls of his office are lined with plaques instead of wallpaper.

His teams have won an unprecedented four NCAA tournament championships and can claim more victories (23) than any other team in NCAA play.

KENTUCKY FANS feel that the 63-year-old Kansan, now the nation's oldest major college basketball coach, would like another championship before retiring.

I am afraid he will have to wait awhile, because it's not going to be this year. His team lacks the depth and height to go all the way.

Rupp has tried to bring a Negro boy to Kentucky, but so far the freshmen Negro players he has had were unable to keep up with the academic standards.

"It will take a long time for a Negro to break the barrier and play in our conference. He will have to be damn good to play in such places as Georgia, Mississippi and Louisiana," said Rupp.

IOWA'S GAME with Kentucky was possibly one of the worst exhibitions of officiating that could ever be witnessed.

There was one official from each conference, but the Big Ten referee was trying his best to call a good game for Kentucky.

He succeeded in calling a technical foul against the Iowa bench, putting the Hawks down by eight points instead of four, early in the first half.

Iowa Wins Midwest Open Gymnastics Meet in First Outing of the Season

By BILL PIERROT
Assistant Sports Editor

Iowa's gymnastic team won the Midwest Open meet in Rockford, Ill. Saturday with 91 points.

Southern Illinois, last year's national champion, took second place, while Iowa State and Michigan State tied for third among the 14 schools entered.

COACH Dick Holzaepfel credited the victory to strong team depth.

Players Blast Canadian Trophy Rules

KAANAPALI, Maui, Hawaii (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, headed home with the Canada Cup trophy, would like to see a change in the format of the international tournament.

"There's too much emphasis on the individual and not enough on the team," said Nicklaus, who rallied to beat out Palmer for the individual crown by two strokes Sunday. "It should be strictly a team event—we are playing for our country, not ourselves."

"I agree," said Palmer. "I've played in four of the tournaments, enjoyed them all, but I have always considered it strictly a team match and have subordinated the individual part of it."

Nicklaus won the individual title for the second straight year with a 72-hole score of 276. Palmer, leader the first three days with rounds of 66, 67, 67, finished second with 278 after skying to a 78 on his final tour of the par 72 Kaanapali Club course.

Nicklaus and Palmer won the team trophy—the fifth straight for the United States—with a combined total of 554. They were 11 shots better than Argentina at 565, with South Africa third at 568.

With the team title virtually clinched before the last round started, all the interest centered on the individual scramble among Nicklaus, Palmer and South Africa's Gary Player, who were tied with seven holes to play.

Player fell into a bogey patch and then it became a head-to-head duel between the two Americans, rated the world's best golfers and keen rivals for world golfing honors.

Roy Emerson Rejects $85,000 Pro Contract

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Roy Emerson, Australia's Wimbledon tennis champion who is considered the world's top amateur player, said Monday night he had rejected an $85,000 offer to turn professional immediately.

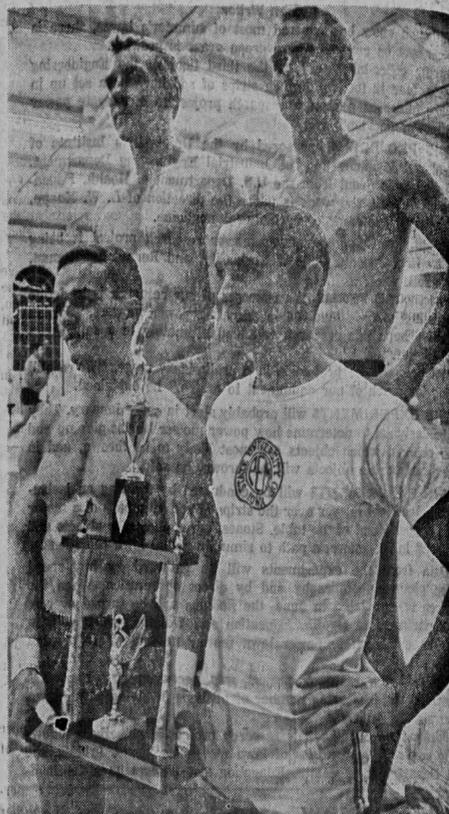

"It was a wonderful offer, but I want to have another crack at Wimbledon," Emerson explained. "I want to have a little time at home and my main interest in life is in amateur tennis."

"Before the game began, I knew I was in real trouble," he concluded.

Displaying the trophy won by their team at the Midwest Open Gymnastics Meet in Rockford, Ill. last Saturday, are Coach Dick Holzaepfel (right), senior star Glenn Gailis, and veterans Bill Sayre (top right) and Barry Keeley. Last Saturday's meet was an indication that Iowa will be a top contender for the Big Ten gymnastics title this winter.

NCS COACH RESIGNS—
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State chancellor John T. Caldwell announced Monday night that veteran basketball coach Everett Case has resigned for health reasons.

"After two games this season, Coach Case has found that the strain of functioning as head coach is an excessive drain on his strength," Caldwell said.

TWO OF THE nation's best gymnasts will be on hand to compete for the all-around title.

Iowa's Glenn Gailis is scheduled to duel with Rusty Mitchell, Olympic team member and USGF all-around champion, who is now working on his M.A. degree at Southern Illinois.

History of S.U.I. Football

THE FIGHTING HAWKEYES

DICK LAMB and BERT McGRANE

At Last—An Authoritative History of Iowa Football!

After six years of preparation the complete history of Iowa football has been published. Detailed accounts of the thrills and excitement as well as the internal struggles of the Hawkeyes are told in detail. Game scores, team records, individual player accomplishments, and coaches' terms and their records are included.

Nothing is shaded. The reported Iowa suspension from the Big Ten, the problems of the eras of Alden Knipe, Howard Jones, and Forest Evashevski, and the Knute Rockne affair reach the printed page for the first time.

The book was written by two well-known Iowans—Dick Lamb, the official Historian of the Football Hall of Fame, and Bert McGrane, long-time Iowa sportswriter.

Learn about football's first "effigy hanging" and why it was at Iowa. Read the circumstances which forced the Hawkeyes to play a game at which no spectators were allowed. How were "Floyd of Rosedale" and the Iowa Fight Song born?

You'll find discussions of these events and many more in 75 YEARS WITH THE FIGHTING HAWKEYES.

When football is the topic of conversation, don't be left in the end zone. The deluxe library binding makes this book a welcomed addition to any home library and a handy gift idea for every sports fan.

Over 300 pages, more than 80 illustrations, handsomely bound, $7.95.

Music Department Faculty Will Present String Concert

The Iowa String Quartet will present works by Haydn, Walter Piston and Brahms in its first campus concert of the season at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Macbride Auditorium.

The concert will open with "Quartet in B-Flat Major, Opus 76, No. 4" by Haydn. Other numbers will be "String Quartet No. 1" by American composer Walter Piston and "Quartet in C Minor, No. 1" by Brahms.

Quartet members Monday discussed the works to be presented and played excerpts from them in a music hour sponsored by the Music Committee of Union Board in the Union Music Room.

Paul Hume, Washington (D.C.) Post Critic, described the group as "a resident quartet whose art is extraordinary." The group includes violinists Allen Ohmes and John Ferrell, violist William Preucil, and cellist Joel Krosnick—all members of the music faculty.

Ohmes, who teaches violin at the University, was concertmaster and soloist with the U.S. Air Force Symphony Orchestra from 1953 to 1957. He has also been a member of the Rochester Philharmonic and Civic Orchestras and has been a lecturer at Brooklyn College in New York City.

Ferrell, a member of the faculty since 1954, made his New York debut in 1953. He has been a soloist with the Eastman-Rochester Symphony and the Oklahoma City Symphony and has given solo concerts in Los Angeles and Washington.

Preucil was principal violist in the Detroit Symphony Orchestra for two years before joining the U of I faculty in 1958, and he also participated in the Casals Festival in San Juan, Puerto Rico. During the past eight seasons he has been principal violist and soloist at the Peninsula Music Festival, Door County, Wis.

Ohmes, Preucil and Ferrell have all appeared as soloists at the Phillips Collection in Washington, D.C., and Ohmes organized and played in the Washington (D.C.) Chamber Society.

Krosnick has given recitals in New York annually since 1960. The co-founder and director of the Group for Contemporary Music at

Record Set In Residential Construction

Residential construction in Iowa City went over the $1 million mark in November. This established a new high for residential construction in a one-month period.

The mark was boosted by more than $600,000 in construction of new apartment buildings.

A total of 46 construction permits were issued in November with a value of $1,290,265. This figure pushes total construction this year to $6,568,425. This is about $180,000 above the figure at this time last year.

At the end of November, 249 home permits had been issued, with the value of construction put at $5,668,321. This exceeds the figures of the same period last year when 199 new home permits were issued, with value of construction at $4,544,417.

The largest of the apartment permits was issued to Ken Albrecht Construction Co. for construction of a 24-unit complex in the 2700 block of Wayne Avenue.

Two permits for construction of a total of 47 apartments were issued to Kent Braverman. The first of the two permits calls for a 23-unit L-shaped building of two-room apartments to be built at 1001 Crest Street. The other, a 24-unit building with two-room apartments, is to be constructed at 750 Crest Street.

Columbia University, Krosnick appeared with this ensemble in numerous concerts of contemporary chamber music before joining the Iowa String Quartet in 1963.

The concert is one of four that will be presented on campus this year. The group will also present four concerts each at the Phillips Collection in Washington, D.C., the Des Moines Art Center and the Muscatine Community College Auditorium; two at Luther College in Decorah; and one each at Central College, Pella, and Northern Michigan University, Marquette.

They will also present a concert in Dubuque in January.

The program listing the numbers for the concerts in Iowa City, Des Moines, Muscatine and Washington, D.C., contains discussions of the works by Professor E. Eugene Helm, associate professor of music. The cover of the program carries a reproduction of a print by Professor Mauricio Lasansky, professor of art.

The Quartet has been participating this year in a series of programs for elementary school children presented under the auspices of Young Audiences, Inc., a non-profit organization which gives approximately 5,000 concerts annually in 25 states.

Want To Travel Abroad?

People-to-People Programs To Be Explained Wednesday

Students wishing to travel abroad next summer may have their wish fulfilled through the People-to-People travel programs.

People-to-People is a national organization sponsored by Ford Foundation and Federal Government grants. The objective of the travel abroad program is to improve international relations through personal contacts between students and their counterparts abroad.

ONLY MEMBERS of People-to-People may participate in the program, but students may join and be eligible to go abroad if they pay $2.50 dues before Dec. 15.

Information may be obtained from Maggi Nichols, A3, St. Charles, Ill., by calling 338-3615, or attending a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Union conference room 1.

The travel abroad programs offer three plans for the member who applies and appears for an interview.

UNDER THE Student Ambassador Program, the student stays in the homes of three Western European families for visits of approximately five days each. During the visit with the first family, group activities, including a group orientation and parties are planned. After visiting the last family, the student is free to travel for the remainder of his 10-week visit. Countries included in this plan are France, Belgium, Germany, Greece, Scandinavia, and the British Isles. The cost of the program is $395.

Under the University Excursion Program students travel in groups. This program offers three further choices.

GROUPS WILL travel in the Middle East for 65 days in such places as Egypt, Jordan, the Lebanon, Israel, Yugoslavia, and Greece for $1,178.

Students wishing to travel in Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, and Yugoslavia may do so in the 47-day group plan at a cost of $1,295.

Students interested in traveling only in Yugoslavia can do so for 28 days for $569. This trip will feature visits to many Yugoslavian cities.

UNDER THE Independent Travel Program, the student may attend classes at a foreign university, take a job, or pursue any other time-consuming activity. The cost of this program is $355.

Students will fly abroad in June and return in August. The program costs include a Washington, D.C., orientation, a round-trip charter flight, and some personal expenses.

Freshman Women Seek To Expand Campus Activities

The Associated Women Students Freshman Council has proposed a plan to include freshman women living in Iowa City in campus activities.

Freshmen women in dormitories who are interested in meeting the Iowa City women are being asked to sign a list from which the town girls and dormitory girls will be paired.

The Council feels this plan will help the town women to meet women living in the dormitories and bring them into closer contact with campus activities.

Iowa Alumna Will Present Home Ec Talk

Professor Louise A. Stedman, a University of Iowa alumna who is director of the School of Home Economics at the University of Minnesota, will be the speaker at the Ellen H. Richards Banquet at 6 p.m. tonight in the Union.

Panel members will be Genevieve Stearns, research professor emerita in the Department of Orthopedic Surgery; Lula Smith, associate professor emerita of home economics, and two students — Kathleen Schoening, N3, Council Bluffs, who has worked with the Peace Corps in Chile, and Renee Van Eeden, G, Cape Providence, South Africa.

Dr. Stearns will describe home economics programs in Egypt which she observed on a visit to Pakistan.

JEANINE HOPSON, A4, Corpus Christi, Tex., president of the University chapter of the American Home Economics Association (AHEA), will serve as mistress of ceremonies for the program, which has been planned by the Iowa chapter of the AHEA and the home economics honorary societies.

Symposium Speakers See Expanding University Role

From Main Street to the United Nations, the role of the university is ever expanding.

This was the consensus of speakers at Saturday's Inaugural Symposium, "The University and the Future."

Kenneth MacDonald, editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, said Iowa has many problems including the number of young people leaving the state every year.

"People say this problem is the result of so little industry coming to Iowa," MacDonald said, "but this doesn't answer anything. Why isn't industry moving to Iowa?"

MACDONALD said he thinks too little is known of the problem of bringing industry to the state. "We cannot seek the right solution because we do not even ask the right questions," he said.

The universities, according to MacDonald, should lead the way in studying the problems in the state.

Elmer Ellis, president of the University of Missouri, said he views education as the answer to the major problems of our society. He pointed to an expected enrollment increase of 75 per cent in the next decade.

THIS TREMENDOUS increase will bring greater needs for financial support, according to Ellis, which has not been forthcoming in the past and is not present now.

"Privately financed institutions or private contribution to public institutions cannot begin to grow fast enough to meet the needs," he said. "They must be met by public funds."

"In the past, universities have always been dependent upon state and local funds but these sources will not be able to meet future needs."

ELLIS SUGGESTED financing at the federal level as the best way to handle the problem.

"In our mobile society, higher education in any state is a national asset," he said.

William W. Marvel, president of Education and World Affairs, said universities are being called upon to help find solutions to difficult world problems such as those of the Congo and southeastern Asia.

"Universities are moving into ever new areas of concern," he said, "but this movement is pigmy sized compared with what must be done."

The symposium at Macbride Auditorium was part of inauguration activities for Howard Bowen on Saturday.

Large Dope Shipment Seized by Authorities

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal prosecutor disclosed Monday that U.S. authorities had arrested a woman with what he called the largest shipment of cocaine ever seized in this country.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Raymond B. Grunewald said the 22-pound narcotic shipment was found in the luggage of Juanita Lucy Bradbie, 49, of New York, when she arrived at Kennedy Airport Saturday.

ance to discharge his duties as president.

GOV. HAROLD Hughes said, "I find Dr. Bowen a man of depth and maturity of experience in many lines of human endeavor. But there is a youthfulness of spirit about him that I like to think is characteristic of this state of ours."

"I have long believed the ideal type of man to preside over the destinies of a university is a scholar who is also a practical man with a keen interest in life and problems of the state outside the confines of his own campus. Above all, he should be a creative man who sees the greater role of an institution. Certainly, Howard Bowen is such a man."

After the greetings were delivered, A. W. Noehren, president of the Board of Regents, inducted Bowen as the 14th president of the University.
