Art Gallery Project Not Completed

University faculty and staff members already have pledged more than $120,000 to help build the University of Iowa art gallery, it was announced today by Dewey B. Stuit, dean of the college of liberal arts.

The total of University gifts is expected to go substantially higher.

Dean Stuit is chairman of a 20-member campaign committee for the gallery project. With W. W. Summerwill and M. Dean Jones, he is co-chairman of the all-community campaign for the gallery.

"The campus response to this challenge has been wonderful, and it is continuing," Dean Stuit said. "Many gifts and pledges still are arriving daily. There is good prospect that the total support of University personnel for the gallery will be considerably higher than the present figure."

BECAUSE the various colleges and divisions of the University are following different time schedules on the campaign, he explained, the project is not yet complete in many parts of the campus. In some divisions, informational meetings about the campaign are not scheduled to occur until after the Christmas recess, which began Friday.

The University committee has followed a pattern of "local option" in conducting the gallery effort, Dean Stuit said, with each committee member left free to determine the procedure to be used in acquainting faculty and staff members in his area with the gallery project. Campaign divisions vary in size from a few individuals to several hundred, he pointed out — a fact which rules out any specific campaign "deadline."

A LETTER from the University committee was mailed yesterday to faculty and staff members, reporting the current level of gifts in the campaign, and thanking contributors for their generosity.

"The University, the U. of I. Foundation, and certainly the members of this Committee are deeply grateful for this splendid response," the letter stated. "It provides striking evidence of the confidence and pride with which the University's associates view the University's future."

"WE REALIZE that the campus campaign still is in process in many parts of the University," the letter continued. "Gifts and pledges from University personnel will continue to be credited to the University campaign total as they are received, throughout the period of the general fund-raising effort."

The million-dollar campaign for the art gallery is being conducted under the staff direction of the University of Iowa Foundation. In addition to the local all-community campaign, special fund-raising programs for the gallery are planned in various parts of the state and nation. Others are now in process.

With success assured in the University section of the local campaign, attention will increase on the city section, which is slated to begin soon after Christmas.

A breakfast meeting of all city campaign workers on December 23 will launch the city section of the campaign. Under the chairmanship of Summerwill and Jones, teams of business and professional men will conduct the campaign in the Iowa City area. The goal of this phase of the local effort is an additional $200,000.

County Codes Urged By Zoning Official

The zoning administrator for Johnson County has suggested the addition of sanitary and building codes to the county's present zoning ordinance.

R. H. Justen, county engineer and administrator, told a monthly meeting of the Metropolitan Planning Commission Thursday night the zoning ordinance additions are needed to assure orderly area development.

Justen's recommendations were contained in the county's report to the commission.

The county administrator said at present only the State Public Health Commission's rules and regulations govern sanitation matters in rural areas. He said he felt these were inadequate in some cases.

Regarding the need for a building code, Justen said, "At present we have no way of regulating what type of building construction should be used. There is nothing in our present ordinance to stop anyone from putting a $2,000 home alongside a $50,000 home."

Justen also said thought should be given to setting up separate districts for trailer courts and parking space for transient trailers throughout the county.

The Christmas Rush — University of Iowa Style

A Cold Wait . . .

Classes were over, the bags were packed, and the students were ready. Three young coeds were waiting for the train, just like . . .

It's That Time Of Year Again

Christmas comes but once a year, and when it comes, it brings good cheer — and a whole lot full of parking spaces, at least in Iowa City.

Students left Iowa City Friday by the hundreds. Many more will leave today. Soon towns all over the state will be swelled by the numbers of returning students.

Iowa City is by no means a ghost town, however, many students remain. Graduate students preparing dissertations, married students with families here and working students too broke to leave — all these and more stay and watch as their colleagues speeded. And the busiest places in town are the bus stations, the train depot and the airport.

For those left behind, Christmas means a slower pace, a parking space and an empty booth in the popular bars.

'Tis Christmas vacation at the University of Iowa.

18 States Record Subzero Readings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Millions of Americans went about their business in bitter, stinging cold Friday. On Western ranges livestock suffered heavily.

Subzero readings were recorded in 18 states stretching from Michigan and Missouri to northeastern Nevada and eastern sections of Oregon and Washington.

The lowest temperature reported in the nation was 30 degrees below zero at Hibbing, Minn. In Montana, where livestock took a hammering from the arctic cold, the lowest reported during the day was -10 at Missoula.

COLD WAVE warnings were posted in the middle and north Atlantic states. Central and southern Florida were the only sections of the nation not in the cold belt.

For some, the arctic air produced a cold humor; for others a blazing tragedy.

In Fountaintown, Ind., 20 elderly persons died in a nursing home fire. In the 4-above-zero weather, firemen fought a water shortage by breaking ice in a nearby creek to fill pumper trucks.

NINE BODIES were recovered before the wooden structure's roof collapsed, trapping the others.

Four maintenance employees of a convalescent home in Winfield, Ill., were killed when the cottage burned. The temperature was -6 when firemen arrived.

A Texas youth was killed when his car skidded on ice and overturned on a usually unbanked road in the southwestern part of the state.

Two governors, John Love of Colorado and William Guy of North Dakota, were making statewide checks on local conditions.

GOV. LOVE already as asked disaster status for several counties, some suffering from snow so heavy the winter ranges are covered and cattle are starving.

Some 300 Montana cattlemen planned an airlift to save thousands of snowbound cattle, most of which haven't eaten in days.

The U.S. Air Force planned to supply four C119 Flying Boxcars to drop hay in isolated areas.

MANY OF the ranchers say they won't be able to count the loss in livestock until the spring thaw.

A 50 per cent casualty rate was expected in some herds.

The cold also caused some unusual situations.

The Pacific Northwest felt some moderation in temperatures as it prepared for a heavy snowfall.

U.S. Judges Question Court Order

ATLANTA, Ga. — Several judges of a Federal Appeals Court indicated disagreement Friday with a Mississippi federal judge's contempt order against a U.S. attorney in an unusual outgrowth of civil rights litigation.

No immediate decision was handed down by the appellate court.

The importance of the judicial-executive dispute was underscored, however, by the fact that all seven active members of the U.S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals were called to consider the case.

At issue was U.S. Dist. Judge W. Harold Cox's contempt ruling against U.S. Atty. Robert E. Hauberg of Jackson, Miss. Cox held Hauberg in contempt Oct. 22 after the attorney, on order of the Justice Department, refused to prepare and sign grand jury indictments of two Negroes on prejudice charges.

"What right does the judge have to say to the U.S. attorney, 'Sign this indictment'?" asked Judge Griffin Bell of Atlanta during argument by an attorney representing Cox.

"What right does the judge have to come in and ride herd on U.S. attorneys? I'm inclined to the view that maybe the judge got ahead of himself on this signing."

Justice Department attorneys argued that the Justice Department had the sole right of prosecuting. Attorneys for the Mississippi federal judge argued that procedural rules required the district attorney to participate even though he, or his superiors, opposed prosecution.

U.S. Plans To Replace Panama Canal: Johnson

Five Routes Cited For New Channel

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson made a surprise announcement Friday that the United States will "plan in earnest" to replace the Panama Canal with a sea-level channel linking the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

Johnson indicated also the United States might turn over control of the present Panama Canal Zone to the Panamanian Government once a new canal is in operation.

The President went before television cameras in the White House theater to read his policy-setting statement that came 11 months and nine days after the outbreak of Panama violence in which 20 were killed and 200 injured.

JOHNSON, noting that last January's violence was triggered by disputes over the Canal zone treaty with Panama, announced the United States wants to negotiate "an entirely new treaty on the existing Panama Canal."

Any new agreement, he said, should terminate automatically "when a sea-level canal comes into operation." That presumably would mean termination of American control over the Canal Zone.

Johnson said there seem to be five possible routes for a new canal — two in Panama, one in Colombia and one through Nicaragua and perhaps, a corner of Costa Rica.

JOHNSON gave no cost estimates but experts estimated earlier this year that the price tag for a sea-level channel would range from $620 million for one of the Panama routes to $1.9 billion for the one through Nicaragua, providing nuclear explosives can be used for digging. Conventional explosives would be more costly.

Johnson gave no hint of when such a new canal might be completed but experts estimated the Panama Canal will be hopelessly jammed by 1990.

Johnson said, "Already more than 300 ships built or building are to big to go through with full loads."

INITIAL Panamanian reaction to the President's announcement was favorable. Humberto Calamari, one of Panama's representatives in post-rioting negotiations with the United States, said of the proposal for a new treaty, "This is exactly what we had been hoping for."

Calamari predicted Johnson's proposal would lead to improved relations between the two countries.

American government officials said disposition of the physical assets of the Panama Canal, once a replacement was in operation, would present a real problem. They said American interest in the old canal, dating back to 1903, would then "be reduced to a negligible point."

JOHNSON'S two-part announcement was regarded as a package proposal, with negotiation of a new Panama Canal treaty contingent on plans for pushing ahead of a sea-level waterway.

The statement did not say whether the new channel would be financed and controlled exclusively by the United States and officials said Johnson deliberately did not want to foreclose any possibility, including a possible joint undertaking involving the United States and several other countries.

Arguing for a replacement canal, Johnson said: "So it is time to plan in earnest for a sea-level canal. Such a canal will be more modern will be far easier to defend. It will be free of complex, costly, vulnerable locks and seaways. It will serve the future as the Panama Canal we know has served the past and the present."

THE PRESIDENT said his decisions reflected "the unanimous judgment" of Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Mississippi Town To Get MSP Goods

Four University students started the first truck load of Mississippi Support Program (MSP) food and clothing on its way to Holly Springs, Miss. Friday afternoon.

The goods will be distributed to needy families in the town before Christmas.

The students, Larry Wright, A3, Chicago; Harry Malm, A4, New York; Julie Norman, A4, Burlington; and Sara Jacobson, A2, Marshalltown, expect to arrive with the goods in Holly Springs early Saturday.

Wright will remain in Mississippi. The other three students will return to Iowa City next week.

Next week, Phillip D. Cummins, assistant professor of philosophy, will drive a trailer-full of goods to Mississippi. Cummins is the local director of the MSP.

Original plans of MSP called for only one truck load of goods, but citizens response in Iowa City was so great that additional transportation was required.

Food, clothing and cash contributions were collected a week ago by more than 300 local volunteers.

'Safe' Convalescent Home—

Indiana Fire Kills Twenty

FOUNTAIN TOWN, Ind. (AP) — Flames raced through a nursing home Friday, turning it into a crematory and killing 20 elderly patients, many of them feeble and bedridden.

The convalescent home had been pronounced perfectly safe by state inspectors only six months ago.

Fourteen patients and three nurses survived, but a physician expressed fears that pneumonia could add to the toll, officially fixed at 20 by state police.

THE SURVIVORS, some of them barefoot, stood dazed in night-clothes in near-zero cold as the fire engulfed the 60-year-old former country mansion. Rescuers had to struggle to keep some bewildered patients from re-entering the flaming building.

John W. Butenko, 39, an electronics engineer from Orange, was given 30 years imprisonment on the charge, and two concurrent five-year terms on lesser charges. "I know I am innocent," Butenko told the court before sentence was pronounced. "I have done nothing to harm the security of the country. I just want to ask the court for mercy and ask the court for mercy and clemency. I hope that someday time will vindicate me."

The Russian, Igor A. Ivanov, 34, drew a 20-year prison term on the espionage conspiracy charge and a five-year concurrent sentence on another count.

Two Sentenced for Plot To Spy

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — An American engineer and a Russian chauffeur, stoutly maintaining their innocence, escaped the death penalty Friday but received long prison sentences on charges of plotting to spy for the Soviet Union.

The addle heads of California

STATE SEN. Hugh Burns, chairman of the State Senate subcommittee on Un-American activities in California, commented Thursday on the recent turmoil at the Berkeley campus.

Referring to the faculty proposal to allow students freedom on campus to collect funds for civil rights work and to allow the faculty rather than the administration to control student discipline, Burns said, "The Board of Regents must decide whether to run the University or turn it over to a group of malcontents, silly kids and addle-headed teachers egged on by Communist stooges."

This statesmanlike remark may not be typical of California legislators, but there must be some of this anti-intellectual feeling in the Legislature there, or this man would have been laughed out of the state.

Consider a moment the contrast between California's State Sen. Burns and Johnson County's state senator elect, Robert Burns. The local Sen. Burns has expressed interest in the University and education in general.

Although there are undoubtedly some legislators who believe university professors to be basically impractical and perhaps even a bit frivolous, there is little or no feeling among legislators that professors are "addle-headed" and are egged on by Communists.

Iowa's image is one of a backward state and there may be some reasons for this, but California, now the nation's largest state is usually thought of as "progressive."

Sen. Burns' statement about the Berkeley situation demonstrates the different aspects and the fallacies of both these generalizations.

The recently adopted Regent policy on speakers for Iowa schools is a very liberal one, and is another example of the "progressivism" of Iowans relative to other states.

The shake up at Berkeley is unfortunate, but it has provided a number of people with food for thought.

A mouse in the house

By JOHN BARRETT
Guest Writer

At regular intervals throughout the school year, the less lethargic boobus studia work up a positive civic sweat over a wide variety of issues ranging from the abolition of capital punishment to the abolition of the pep club (two deadly institutions). During any given week, the casual observer of what BARRETT is jokingly referred to as "student" life will be introduced to the monumental problems of off-campus residents, women's hours, the Business College, and many other areas in sore need of attention. But rarely, if ever, are the problems eradicated. The least cognizant among us knows that in an academic setting where it is impossible even to drop one letter from the initials of a school (SUI, circa 1964) without evoking a verbal storm of diuresis all the way from the custodian of University Hall down to the state attorney general, changes in significant problems are visionary.

Every one in a while, however, there comes a cropping an issue which is so obscure that it is surprising anyone cares at all. This week's issue is such an animal.

At Tuesday's Student Senate housing hearings, a married student (obviously unaware of the rules of academia which prohibit the questioning of administrative procedures and other rabble-rousing tactics) brought to the attention of the committee the fact that contract stipulations for married students include a ban on domestic pets.

THIS PARTICULAR student had been given 30 days' notice to dispose of his pet cat, an animal of extreme sensitivity with the ability to dispose of seven mice in one swell foop.

The committee, upon learning of the situation, agreed with the student that it was a rather strange rule, particularly considering that babies did not come under the definition of "pets and other domestic luxuries." To discover the reasoning behind the contract clause, the committee then quizzed Ted Rehder, an entrenched member of the ancient regime of Dr. Hancher. In what must be the least perceptive comment of the year, Rehder declared that mice were not as much of a health hazard as domestic cats.

The University's policies toward pets seem to be fraught with inconsistencies. Cats are health hazards, but mice and babies are evidently desirable. Admittedly, some cats do carry an assortment of vermin, but a vast majority seem clean.

ON THE OTHER hand, mice don't carry vermin - primarily because they're vermin themselves. Furthermore, married students who insist on harboring dangerous domestic animals in the face of the University's prohibition, face immediate eviction; the mice can stay, the students must go.

While a campus-wide movement in reaction to the University's pet policy is not expected by any other than the most radical animal enthusiasts, the issue should be attractive to those campus leaders who have been constantly frustrated in their attempts to influence administrative policies. Here is an issue of consequence to a large number of students and one in which the "individuality" which Dr. Bowen recently extolled can be put to a test. A United Student Association for a Sane Animal Policy (pronounced "Youse-a-SAP") could well be the first step in defense against the "multi-University" which threatens the individuality of students and cats alike.

There have already been several admirable suggestions as to how to change the present discriminatory practices against the feline world; all that remains is to organize the opposition. Once USA-SAP is assured of the support of the veterinarians, the newspapers, and the California Society for the Prevention of Incent Animals (a group shrouded in secrecy, to be sure) they could begin a Lysistrata-oriented holding action against the University, withholding the fruits of Dr. Hancher's "marriage of town and gown" until the policy is changed.

Otherwise, we may all be over-run with pro-administration mice.

Indiana colleges to change names

By TAM DUGGLEBY
Exchange Editor

Both Ball State and Indiana State colleges received assurance last week from the Indiana Legislature that they will have university status in 1965. Backed by their respective presidents, these schools were recognized for the new name change as their representatives outlined their wants before the pre-legislative council of the 94th General Assembly.

Ball State, located in Muncie, has an enrollment of more than 16,000 students, while Indiana State College, in Terre Haute, has nearly 8,000. The schools involved are both multi-purpose institutions, although combined they account for more than half of the teachers in Indiana classrooms this year.

Privacy is out of the question this year for subjects under observation in Ohio State's new "Big Brother" laboratory. Recently built at a cost of $233,000, the behavioral sciences lab can keep track of experiments with eyes and ears for special attention on reactions to stress, all types of group action, and individual behavior.

The new lab, designed with every type of current social science research in mind, is considered the most modern and complete in the country. The equipment can record a number of experiments at one time, with facilities enabling the experimenter to obtain complete records of all subjects' reactions in a given situation.

INCLUDED in the lay-out are a 24-track tape recorder which can pick up separately the remarks of every person in the group conversation, as well as a room equipped with television outlets to allow any experimenter to observe the subjects, un-noticed by them.

Supervised by the inter-college Personnel Research Board, the lab is now conducting a lab-stimulation phase of the school's Disaster Research Center, studying how organizations react under the same stresses present in a disaster, such as a flood or an earthquake.

A group of Ohio State students is now engaged in helping others to a better education by devoting a night a week to OS's new junior high school aid program for 50 children in Columbus' economically and socially depressed areas.

Meeting individually with students in a local church, the student aides are giving their time to help these children organize their homework and recreational activities, in cooperation with a local junior high. The program has been set up to reach students with such problems as broken homes, large families, and other situations providing poor study conditions and encouragement, particularly those transient students who are likely to drop out of school or show poor attendance records.

WASHINGTON - The decision of Lyndon B. Johnson to show up at his inaugural in a plain black suit and four-in-hand tie and to wear black tie instead of white tie and tails at the Inaugural Ball has shaken Washington to its very study pins. As President of the people and the leader of the "Great Society," Mr. Johnson is determined to show Americans he has the common touch. But BUCHWALD the effect on the nation's capital has been tremendous and may influence the American clothing industry for years to come.

A survey by this column revealed that people were taking the President seriously. If Mr. Johnson wasn't going to dress up, no one wanted to embarrass him by looking better than he did at his own inauguration.

I called a friend at the State Department and asked him what he was going to wear. "Protocol has advised me ski pants and a sheepskin jacket are appropriate for the occasion."

"What will your wife wear to the Inauguration Ball?"

"SHE WAS going to buy a new dress, but now she plans to go in her apron and slacks."

A high-ranking army officer at the Pentagon said, "Now that dress for the two affairs has been made optional, I've given my men the choice of field kakis or dungarees, and jungle boots if they have them."

A foreign ambassador said, "My government has advised me to follow the lead of the President. I will be wearing a sports shirt an tan riding jodhpurs."

"What does your wife plan to wear to the ball?"

"She's not going. She only has long evening gowns and she says she doesn't want to be embarrassed."

AN OFFICIAL at the War on Poverty office said that they hadn't decided yet what they would wear to the inauguration "It all depends on what the Salvation Army will give us," he said.

Another official form the same office was downcast.

"Someone donated a set of tails to the office, but now I can't wear them."

The Supreme Court Justices still haven't made up their minds as to what to wear. In a 5 to 4 decision they ruled that golfing attire was acceptable. But the minority decision said each Justice should decide for himself, providing he didn't seek divine guidance.

WHEN ASKED what he was going to wear to the inauguration, Bobby Baker replied, "I refuse to answer on the grounds that it will incriminate me."

I asked two Mississippi Congressmen what they planned to wear to the Inaugural Ball, and they said, "White sheets. What else is there?"

Despite the variance in dress, it's going to be a great inauguration and nobody is going to miss it. My wife has already gone out and bought herself a new housecoat and slippers for the affair.

Concert complaint

To the Editor:
For two years now the Christmas Concert has been less than perfect.

Last year the audience was denied a famous aria in the second section of the "Messiah," and a trumpet soloist missed his chance to shine.

This year the performance was delayed a full 30 minutes.

Perhaps these were just part of the performing world's unavoidable mishaps; however, the responsibility of the artist to his audience is not a joke, and only the most frivolous artist would constantly shirk that responsibility.

Goldfarb ruled illegal in New York

By ARTHUR EVERETT

NEW YORK (AP) - Notre Dame, one of the nation's ranking football powers, Thursday caught a Hollywood film-producing team illegally using its hands.

As a result, State Supreme Court Justice Henry Clay Greenberg blew the whistle on 20th Century-Fox and stepped off a penalty - a temporary injunction against the showing of its movie, "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home." He also ordered a halt to further publication of the book upon which the film is based.

The justice said, in effect, that 20th Century-Fox should have been better coached before embarking on the $4-million motion picture project. "John Goldfarb" was to have opened nationally on Christmas Day.

GREENBERG HELD that use of the Roman Catholic university's name was intended to capitalize on Notre Dame's name and prestige and constituted "a clear case of commercial piracy."

The justice also offered his own critique of the film, which depicts the "Fighting Irish" football team amid the voluptuous splendors of an Arab harem: "The script is ugly, vulgar and tawdry. Its justification is difficult to find even with a most liberal concept and with a most indulgent and elastic imagination."

The movie stars Peter Ustinov and Shirley MaLaine. Legal sources said Greenberg's ban applies throughout the country. In contesting the suit on its merits, it was explained, the defendants subjected themselves to the findings of the New York State court.

The Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame, said in South Bend, seat of the university: "I am very pleased with the decision, but will have no further comment while the case is still in the courts."

LATER, 20th-Century-Fox informed the justice his decision would be appealed. Greenberg directed Notre Dame to post a $10,000 bond against losses incurred by the film company in the event the ban is upset by the appellate court. The defendant had asked for a $5 million bond.

Father Hesburgh had complained that the movie depicted Notre Dame football players as under the influence of harem girls and as "undisciplined gluttons and drunks."

In arguing the case for Notre Dame a week ago, attorney David W. Peck, a former state appellate judge, said 20th Century-Fox took its chances deliberately in producing the movie.

"They were told that if they went ahead they would be subject to litigation," he declared. Defendants besides 20th Century-Fox were Doubleday & Co. and Fawcett Publications, Inc., publishers of the hard-cover and paperback editions of the original

Halleck Faces Possible Fight For House Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republicans' post-election power struggle grew more intense Friday with the prospect of a fight for the House leadership and a forecast of an "acrimonious and brutal" showdown on the party chairmanship.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan announced a news conference for Saturday and there are signs he will announce he will oppose Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana for the House minority leadership.

Dean Burch, the party's embattled national chairman, said he offered earlier this week to resign — as many moderate Republicans want him to — but that Sen. Barry Goldwater had said Burch should continue in his $30,000-a-year post.

AS A RESULT, Burch was overheard telling party colleagues, he plans to fight and "may go down with flags flying." Then he added: "This assures the national committee meeting will be an acrimonious and brutal affair."

His reference was to the Jan. 22-23 meeting in Chicago when Burch plans to ask a vote of confidence from the 132-member GOP National Committee.

Burch's remarks were made to some 20 members of the GOP Executive Finance Committee which a short time before had stepped into the burgeoning conflict over Halleck's post by endorsing the party's leadership in both House and Senate.

THIS RESOLUTION of praise was adopted by the committee at a closed meeting on the Republicans' 1965 budget. Burch is not a member of the group but sat in on the session.

The surprise resolution coupled the confidence vote with a declaration that Republicans "should give these leaders their steadfast support in the trying circumstances certain to be encountered in the 89th Congress."

Ford has been under pressure from younger House members to declare himself a candidate for Halleck's post. And on Capitol Hill, signs pointed to such a declaration.

HALLECK, WHO has been GOP floor leader since 1959 when he ousted Rep. Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts from the post, was in Florida and not available for comment.

Burch, who gave the executive committee a million-dollar-plus budget proposal for 1965, is battling to withstand the drive of some liberal and moderate Republicans to oust him as chairman.

Buddhists May Sack Viet Premier

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A flurry of activity at Buddhist headquarters today gave the impression that Buddhists are gearing for an all-out effort to depose Premier Tran Van Huong this weekend.

Coupled with the possibility of fresh trouble from clerical critics of the premier was the fact that the fourth anniversary of the Viet Cong's political agency, the National Liberation Front, falls on Sunday. Saigon police went on full alert.

The Viet Cong have stepped up their propaganda lately and could time a terrorist drive for the anniversary. The Red guerrillas claimed in a statistic-packed statement Thursday that they have wrested the military initiative from U.S. and South Vietnamese forces.

Monks and organizers bearing brief cases rushed in and out of the Buddhist headquarters. Office telephones jangled an accompaniment to temple gongs. Leaflets urged the faithful to meet Saturday for an all-night rally against the government. The third and biggest in a series of hunger strikes was proposed for Sunday.

Buddhist sources said more than a dozen Buddhists have volunteered for self-immolation and that a monk might commit suicide by fire to spur the campaign against the man who has called for removal of politics from the pagodas.

There were rumors these tactics, which helped build up pressure against the late President Ngo Dinh Diem, might be carried out in front of the U.S. Embassy or the presidential palace.

Accident Injures U of I Student; Woman Charged

Steven C. Stryker, A2, Davenport, was treated for a head injury Friday at University Hospital after a morning auto accident. He left after being treated.

Stryker's auto collided about 7:30 a.m. with a car driven by Jane M. Taylor, A3, Iowa City, at the corner of College and Capitol streets. Miss Taylor, who was not injured, was charged with failure to yield the right of way.

Television Programs Aimed At Satisfying Sponsor: Stein

By JESSE KRAWITZ Staff Writer

Ogling movie stars and basking in the sun are usually the two major activities of visitors to Hollywood, California. Howard Stein, instructor of dramatic art, recently returned from the fabled West Coast city, and though he saw many movie stars, he did no ogling, and though exposed to the sun, he did not bask.

Stein was recently granted a stipend to observe the filming and production of television plays and movie features at the Universal Studios in North Hollywood.

During most of his month-long visit, he toured sets, watched films being scored and dubbed, talked with industry officials, and tried to get an idea of the mechanics involved in film-making.

COMMENTING on the filming of Hollywood television dramas, Stein said: "One important thing I noticed was that the use of film for producing television plays leads to a great deal of mechanical acting."

"The films are shot in short segments — often no longer than a minute or two — and the actors are forced to skip frequently to different parts of the script. This lack of continuity causes the actor to use the same superficial techniques."

STEIN ALSO said that the role of the director in filming a television drama is minimized.

"The producer is the controlling agent," he said. "He is responsible for the creativity of the film as well as for things like the budget."

Citing a "lack of innovation" in television drama, Stein said he felt that many of the films now being produced could very well have been done years ago.

HE ATTRIBUTES this to the "total preoccupation with money in Hollywood, to an extent I've never seen in any other place."

In his talks with directors, producers and writers, Stein said he discovered a lack of security among many television people.

"They worry about sponsors and networks, and they are extremely sensitive to public criticism. A few letters from a very few people can make a big difference in the final production."

NORMAN FELTON, a former U of I student, who is now executive producer of MGM-TV seems to be one of the few people who because it's been shown that people don't get up to eat cheese during hospital stories. The show has a cheese sponsor.

"In another instance I submitted a story about a fisherman. I was told that heroes are expected to be middle-class.

"In both cases, the stories were spoken of in terms of sponsor approval, and were not judged as stories."

STEIN recommended a recent book, "Only you, Dick Darling," by Merle Miller, also a former U of I student as giving an authentic and striking picture of the television scene in Hollywood.

Of his trip Stein said: "I felt I came back so much richer in information and knowledge of a world I only knew by rumor. Even if the rumors are sound, you can't know the dimensions of them until you actually see them operate."

Faculty Members Teaching Dentistry Will Meet Today

The University of Iowa College of Dentistry will sponsor a conference on teaching Monday for faculty members involved in the education of dentistry students.

The conference, to be held at the Holiday Inn, will begin with registration and lunch at 12:30 p.m.

Those on the program will include Professors L.A. Van Dyke, J.B. Stroud, Leonard Feldt and Lowell Schoer, all of the College of Education, and John Haefner, professor of social studies education and head of social studies at University High School.

Approximately 50 members of the dentistry faculty and 10 faculty members from other areas of the University who teach dentistry students are scheduled to attend.

Dr. Duane W. Lovett, assistant dean of the College of Dentistry, is coordinator of the conference. Dean George S. Easton of the college will give the opening talk.

Students Demonstrate

Members of an undergraduate group at UCLA, calling themselves the Responsible Free Speech Movement, demonstrated Friday as University of California regents met to decide on the free speech issue that has wracked the Berkeley campus for three months. These students, who oppose the so-called Free Speech Movement, support the University administration's present program governing political activity on the campus. —AP Wirephoto

Cosa Nostra Boss Reported Alive

NEW ORYK (AP) — Cosa Nostra boss Joseph (Joe Banagas) Bonanno was reported by his lawyer Friday to be alive and well on his way back from an underworld limbo into which he vanished two months ago.

The 59-year-old mobster reportedly was kidnaped off a Park Avenue sidewalk Oct. 23 by two men in dark clothing. There had been speculation that he had been marked for gangland execution. There also was skepticism as to the authenticity of the kidnaping, which occurred a few hours before Bonanno was to have appeared before a crime-probing federal grand jury.

However, earlier this week Hearst columnist Walter Winchell reported that underworld informants had told him Bonanno was alive. This was confirmed today by Bonanno's lawyer, William P. Maloney, who was present at the time of the kidnaping.

Maloney told a news conference that he received a telephone call shortly before noon from Bonanno's son, Salvatore (Bill) Bonanno.

"I was told," the lawyer continued, "that Bonanno is in good health and that delighted me."

The grand jury had planned to question Bonanno on the basis of his officially described position as head of one of New York's five Cosa Nostra or crime syndicate families.

Maloney said he had made several appearances since Bonanno's disappearance before the federal grand jury being conducted by Asst. U.S. Atty. General Walpin.

Providence Invades Iowa

Friars Are 5-0 With Defeat of Creighton

Basketball-conscious Providence College, the Rhode Island institution of 2,400 students and a fine court reputation, moves into its first competition with a Big Ten team here today.

The Friars, representing an all-male college conducted by the Dominican Fathers, have a 5-0 record. They defeated Creighton at Omaha Thursday evening 95-90 in two overtimes.

Hawkeye fans are warned by Iowa officials to note the tipoff time of 2:30 p.m., the first non-televized afternoon game in the Field House. This scheduling is regarded as an attempt to learn if spectators want Saturday afternoon basketball here, according to Director Forest Evashevski and Coach Ralph Miller.

Hawkeyes have pleased Coach Miller with the reduction of errors, especially in the turnover department. The "pressure" style has paid off recently, particularly in the second half.

Miller hopes for more of the balanced scoring. In the four games, Chris Pervall has averaged 21.2; Jimmy Rodgers, 19.2; George Peeples, 15.5; and Gerry Jones, 14.2. The team average is 87.7 points to opponents' 81.5 and both Iowa and foes have a .481 field goal percentage.

The current Friar team is mostly a run and shoot outfit, abandoning the deliberate style of past years. It is noted as a balanced scoring team because in most games four men have scored in double figures.

Three sophomores are in the probable starting lineup, reflecting the strong contribution of the 1964 freshman team which compiled a 21-0 record. Rookies are Mike Riordan, forward; Dexter Westbrook, center; and Jim Walker, guard.

So strong are the new men that Co-Captains Jim Ahern and Noel Kinski are not usual starters. The other two starters are juniors Jim Benedict and Bill Blair.

Providence teams have won 20 or more games for each of the past six seasons, took the N.I.T. title in 1961 and 1963 and up to this season had a six-year mark of 132 wins and 33 losses.

Iowa's final home December game is vs. North Dakota Monday at 7:30 p.m. The first Big Ten affair is here Jan. 4 with Wisconsin. Hawkeyes will leave Dec. 27 for the Los Angeles Classic where they play the tournament's first game Dec. 28 at 3:30 p.m. against Southern California.

Michigan Is Only Idle Big 10 Team

CHICAGO (AP) — Michigan, the nation's No. 2 basketball team, will be the only Big Ten member idle Saturday.

In fact, the Wolverines will remain idle until the Holiday Festival begins in New York Dec. 28.

Illinois and Wisconsin opened holiday activity this weekend with Illinois taking part in the Kentucky Invitational and Wisconsin playing in the Milwaukee Classic.

Most Big Ten teams will be involved in holiday tournaments before conference action resumes Jan. 4.

Nevertheless, there will be a flurry of action Saturday with Providence at Iowa, Creighton at Northwestern, Wake Forest at Purdue, Indiana at Detroit, Michigan State at Butler, Ohio State at Davidson and Utah State at Minnesota.

Rebels Kick

University of Mississippi back William Sumrall takes the snap from center as he holds for Billy Irwin, Ole Miss end, who gets set to kick. The Rebels went through final workout Friday for their game today with the University of Tulsa in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Rebels Meet Tulsa Today

HOUSTON (AP) — Mississippi's Rebels have promised Jerry Rhome he will face a wide variety of rush patterns today as the favored Rebels meet Tulsa and the NCAA pass champion in the sixth Bluebonnet Bowl.

"It will be rush, rush, rush," Johnny Vaught, the Rebel coach said Friday. "There will be a number of different patterns."

Despite a disappointing 5-4-1 season, Vaught's Rebels are 11-point favorites over Tulsa's 8-2 Hurricanes that led the nation in total offense and scoring as Rhome set 17 records.

A crowd of 50,000 is expected at the 70,000-seat Rice University Stadium for the nationally televised game from which each school is to pick up from $135,000 to $150,000.

The game will be televised by ABC starting at 3:30 p.m., EST.

Glenn Dobbs, the Tulsa coach, said Friday he has great confidence in Rhome but respects Mississippi's fullback slant and quarterback outside plays.

Lions Won't Trade Ex-Iowan Karras

DETROIT (AP) — The Alex Karras trade talk was scotched Friday by the Detroit Lions.

Owner William Clay Ford and Coach George Wilson of the National Football League club announced formally they had agreed not to trade the veteran tackle.

Earlier this week Karras had asked Wilson to trade him, then reportedly changed his mind.

Karras had an unhappy 1964 season. He had been hopeful of a good one upon his return from a year's suspension for gambling on games but a groin injury handicapped him.

Mays Wins Slugging Title

CINCINNATI (AP) — Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants solidified his hold on two National League records in winning the circuit's slugging crown for the fourth time last season, the official averages revealed Saturday.

The hard-hitting outfielder compiled a slugging mark of .607, finishing far ahead of Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs, the runner-up at .564. Rookie Richie Allen of Philadelphia was third with .557.

Mays collected 351 total bases in 588 times at bat. Among his extra base hits were 21 doubles, 9 triples and a league-leading 47 home runs. He also won the slugging title in 1954, 1955 and 1957.

Mays' 1964 average increased his career mark to .589, a National League high. He also set a record by compiling more than 300 total bases for the 11th consecutive time. Mays previously had shared the record with Stan Musial of St. Louis, who retired in 1963.

Slugging averages are computed by dividing the total bases accumulated on all hits by the number of official times at bats.

The Phils' Allen was the overall leader in total bases with 352, one more than Mays. However, the young third baseman had 632 official times at bat to Mays' 578.

2-Point Rule May Play Role in Key AFL Game

BOSTON (AP) — Coach Mike Holovak of the Boston Patriots said Friday the American Football League's two-point conversion rule would change a lot of his thinking for Sunday's all-or-nothing game with Buffalo for the Eastern Division title.

The rule has been in effect since the league was founded but the fact that Buffalo, leading by a half game, can win the title by a tie makes it an important factor. The division champ will be host to San Diego in the AFL title game Saturday, Dec. 26.

Conditions 'Ideal' For Liberty Bowl

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — "Ideal playing conditions, just ideal," smiled Utah football Coach Ray Nagel as he gleefully listened to the forecast of 25-degree temperatures and 30-mile-an-hour winds for today's Liberty Bowl football game.

Nagel wasn't talking with tongue in cheek. Rather, he was looking forward to the game with West Virginia in this ocean resort's mammoth Convention Hall — college football's first indoor bowl game.

While the wind whistled in off the Atlantic and made walking virtually impossible on the famed boardwalk, the Utah and West Virginia teams went through their final workouts Friday as snug and comfortable as though they were lounging on a beach in the sunny southland instead of the giant oceanfront auditorium here.

The Liberty Bowl is being played here for the first time after five cold and often lean years attendance-wise in Philadelphia.

Kickoff for the nationally televised ABC-TV contest is 12:45 p.m.
