Death Cell

Four teen-age boys were found dead in the jail cell in Payson, Ariz., Tuesday. This picture, showing authorities inspecting the jail, was taken when the jail was opened ten months ago. It is believed that a butane heating unit may have caused the boys' deaths.

Four Youths Asphyxiated in Arizona Jail

PAYSON, Ariz. (AP) — An autopsy report Wednesday showed that the death of four teen-agers in the Payson jail was due to carbon monoxide poisoning.

The four youths, arrested Monday for investigation of theft, were found dead in a cell Tuesday morning by Deputy Sheriff T. L. Meredith.

"I was never so shocked in all my life," Meredith said Wednesday. He said he had known one of the boys all his life.

Meredith said the parents of the four knew the youths were in custody and county juvenile authorities had given permission to keep them in jail.

Sheriff Elton R. Jones, in office only five days, said an inspection of the butane gas heating system in the jail is continuing. Officials said it may have been faulty.

Jones said the search so far has turned up nothing conclusive. He said a heating expert will be called in.

A coroner's jury will meet at a later date.

The dead, all students at Payson High School, were: Clifford Greenland, 18, son of a widow who lives in the nearby community of Pine. His mother was hospitalized and treated for shock after learning of her son's death.

Blaine Schroeder, 16, son of a greenskeeper at the Payson Country Club.

Kenny Haught, 15, whose father runs a television repair shop and whose grandfather has lived in the area since Payson was a frontier cowtown.

John Watkins, 16, who moved to Payson with his parents only two weeks ago.

Sheriff Jones described the boys as decent young citizens "who just happened to get into a little trouble."

The Watkins boy was held for investigation of shoplifting in Phoenix, Jones said. The other three were taken in custody Monday evening after some beer was taken from a lodge north of Payson.

Another youth, also picked up in the beer theft, escaped the tragedy because he was only 14. The boy was released to his parents Monday night.

Jones said all four victims were being held on orders of juvenile authorities. They were the only inmates in the jail, and their cell was built to accommodate 15.

Meredith said he found the youths dead when he took their breakfast in to them at 10:30 a.m. A doctor was called 30 minutes later.

Parents of the youths complained they were not informed of the deaths until several hours later.

Jones said Wednesday the deputy called him first and waited for the sheriff to travel the 75 miles to Payson from Globe, Ariz., before notifying the next of kin.

The sheriff said Meredith had checked on the boys "sometime in the early hours of the morning," but would not give a specific time. There is no jailer on duty and deputies make the jail checks.

Payson is a mountain community of about 800 residents. Many wealthy residents of Phoenix, 90 miles to the south, have summer homes around Payson.

The complex in which the jail is located was built only 10 months ago.

Robert Watkins said that he went to the complex Tuesday morning to pick up his car license plate tags in another office. He was unaware that his son was dead in a cell only a few feet away.

Vernon Haught and Dave Schroeder said they were aware their sons were being held for questioning, but they expected them to be released Tuesday morning.

Poet Sandburg Celebrates 87th Birthday

FLAT ROCK, N.C. (AP) — Poet Carl Sandburg Wednesday celebrated his 87th birthday and used the occasion to talk of presidents, past and present.

Sandburg, who lives quietly on his goat farm in the western North Carolina mountains, met newsmen in the parlor of his home.

Wearing his green eyeshade, the poet, philosopher, historian, biographer and newspaperman was presented a memento from President Johnson by Dr. William C. Friday, president of the University of North Carolina, and Dr. Paul F. Sharpe, chancellor of the university.

It was an autographed photograph of Sandburg with the President.

Dr. Friday read from President Johnson's salutation. "Happy Birthday to Carl Sandburg, a legend in American literature, from his friend Lyndon B. Johnson."

"Well, that's a very nice thing for him to do after the election," Sandburg said in a congenial Midwestern accent and smiling with a bit of pride.

What did he think of President Johnson?

"We've had worse. So far, he hasn't muffed anything."

Did he think the late President John F. Kennedy would be described as great?

"I don't know. For his age and what he stood for in his brief time — it's hard to say."

The devilish glint came back into his eyes. "I think he surpassed Calvin Coolidge," he said.

Many Suggest Negotiating—

Viet Issue Baffles Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the threshold of renewed congressional debate over South Viet Nam, many senators share a sense of frustration and uncertainty over the course of the U.S.-backed war on communism in Southeast Asia.

Eighty-three senators spoke out in an Associated Press survey as Congress prepared for a long, hard look at the situation in South Viet Nam, beset by Communist guerrillas and internal government woes. Only a scattering advocated expansion of the war into Communist North Viet Nam.

"The problem is tragically difficult," said Sen. Alan Bible (D-Nev.), "but I believe we must continue to do everything possible under the present policy — increasing the emphasis on a stable and responsible Vietnamese government."

Thirty-one of the senators ready to prescribe a course voiced generally similar views, many of them suggesting negotiations later, when the anti-Communist forces are in a better bargaining position.

"It's a mistake to negotiate when losing," said Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.).

"We should do what we are doing," advised Sen. A. S. Mike Mon-roney (D-Dkla.), "but do it even better."

Ten favored moving for negotiations now, some suggesting United Nations guidance toward a settlement based on neutrality.

Only three lawmakers spoke out flatly for expansion of the struggle into North Viet Nam, although five others mentioned commitment of U.S. combat troops or action against North Viet Nam as possible steps toward an end to the struggle.

On the other hand, three senators called for withdrawal of U.S. advisers and military aid from the beleaguered Southeast Asian nation.

Senators Ask U.S. Showing Of JFK Film

144 Countries Now Viewing Memorial Film

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty-four senators joined Wednesday in sponsoring a resolution designed to permit the showing to U.S. audiences of a government memorial film on the administration of President John F. Kennedy.

The film, prepared by the U.S. Information Agency and entitled "John F. Kennedy — Years of Lightning, Day of Drums," has been released by the USIA for distribution in more than 30 languages to 144 foreign countries.

Sen. George S. McGovern (D-S.D.), chief sponsor of the resolution, said the film cannot be shown in this country without special authorization from Congress since USIA appropriations are limited to overseas use.

Three Republicans, Sens. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, Winston L. Prouty of Kentucky, and John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky, joined McGovern in the introduction.

The resolution would make it "the sense of the Congress" that the USIA should make the film available for distribution through both educational and commercial media for viewing within the United States with any proceeds to United States with any proceeds to the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington.

The Kennedy film reviews his administration from the time he took office until "the day of drums" when he was buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

Johnson Comes To Watch—

Rayburn Statue Dedicated

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson turned up Wednesday to watch his wife dedicate a life-size bronze statue of their friend, the late Sam Rayburn.

At ceremonies in the new House office building that bears his name, Congress friends of "Mister Sam" gathered for the event on what would have been Rayburn's 83rd birthday.

The frail-looking sculpture by Felix de Weldon in the massive marble and granite building was dedicated by Mrs. Johnson.

"TO ALL MEMBERS of the 89th Congress and all future congresses in hopes that — like Sam Rayburn — they will labor under the great white dome of the Capitol with the same faith in the people and the same nobility of purpose."

The President was only a spectator, coming late for the ceremonies in which tribute was paid to Rayburn, speaker of the House longer than anyone else in history.

HE HEARD Mrs. Johnson's speech, much of which quoted from his own tribute delivered at a dinner shortly after Rayburn's death of cancer on Nov. 16, 1961. Johnson had said Rayburn "was younger than any of us" and "one thing he disliked more than old fogies

Today's Forecast: Mild and Clearing

The ingredients in Iowa's weather Wednesday were fog, drizzle and clouds — a perfect recipe for gloom.

Partial clearing was expected to begin over western counties by this morning and spread eastward across the state. Highs in the 30s north and 40s south were predicted.

Senate Leaders Agree To Postpone Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's annual row over antifilibuster moves reached the brink of erupting Wednesday but a "gentlemen's agreement" apparently put off the battle until at least next week, possibly even later this month.

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-N.M.), leader of a bipartisan group seeking to change the rules so filibusters can be shut off easier, said the scrap probably will be held in check until the new Congress completes its organizing.

And that's all right with him, he said. "We've got plenty of work to do. I'm not going to worry about it." Senate committees must set up and other organizational steps remain.

THE BATTLE lines for the fight were laid with the introduction of two resolutions:

One by Anderson would amend the rules to permit debate to be cut off by three-fifths of the senators present and voting, instead of the two-thirds majority now required.

Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.), and others offered another resolution to change the rules so debate could be limited by a majority of the entire membership — that is, at least 51 of the 100 senators.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT was asked for immediate consideration of each resolution as it was introduced. But in each case, Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois objected, forcing a delay at least until Thursday.

Anderson indicated to newsmen later that the whole matter probably would not be brought up until next week or later this month.

He said "a gentlemen's agreement" has been reached that all Senate rules except the antifilibuster one will carry over from the last Congress. He added that no one's rights will be prejudiced by delaying a showdown on the debate limitation.

THE KEY TO the outcome is whether a two-thirds majority is required to shut off debate on a proposed change in the rules at the start of a new Congress. Opponents of changes have filibustered some proposals to death. Anderson's group contends that only a simple majority is required to halt the talk.

President Johnson, when he was the vice president and the Senate's presiding officer, held that this is a question that only the Senate itself could settle. Similar rulings were made by Richard M. Nixon when he was vice president, as well as others before him.

ANDERSON denied, in response to questions, that he and other backers of the antifilibuster move want to hold off debate until Vice President-elect Hubert H. Humphrey takes office Jan. 20.

SAC Will Launch Test Minuteman

OMAHA (AP) — The Strategic Air Command said Wednesday it will launch a test Minuteman missile during March from a typical silo launch facility about 10 miles north of Newell, S.D.

The missile will be unarmed and will contain only enough propellant to carry it about two miles from its launching point.

The launching facilities are those of the 44th Strategic Missile Wing, Ellsworth Air Force Base, S.D.

Aircraft Used in Viet War Displayed to ROTC Cadets

Three Army aviators arrived in Iowa City Tuesday in the type of military aircraft which they recently used in combat in Viet Nam.

The Army pilots flew here from Fort Riley, Kans. to acquaint Army ROTC cadets with the Army Aviation Program and some of the military aircraft now in use.

First Lt. Robert Crissman and Lt. William Fletcher piloted an HU-1B utility helicopter here, along with First Lt. Merle Freitag in an OV-1 Mohawk twin engine plane.

Both types of aircraft have been used extensively in Viet Nam.

The Mohawk is a light transport plane used primarily for observation and small unit transportation.

The HU-1B is used extensively for troop transport and combat missions. It is equipped to carry machine guns and rockets.

The two aircraft are on display at the Iowa City Airport today.

Lt. Crissman graduated from Iowa in 1962. He was commissioned after completing the Army ROTC course.

He was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross last April for "heroic action as an aircraft commander during a combat assault on a heavily defended Viet Cong stronghold in Viet Nam."

According to the citation, Lt. Crissman's "calm and courageous action in the face of heavy enemy fire was directly responsible for the success of the company's mission.

Conservative attacks U.N. disarmament

By RON ZOBEL
President
Iowa Conservatives

On Dec. 17 in the Senate Chamber of the Old Capitol during the questioning period after the debate between Prof. Jerzy Hauptmann and Prof. E. B. Smith of Iowa State, I received a surprising answer to a question I asked Prof. Smith. It is especially surprising since Prof. Smith is advertised as a man learned in the affairs of the day and claims to have friends in the upper echelons of the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

I asked if he thought it was dangerous that the United States has proposed a disarmament program that would turn all armaments in the world over to the United Nations and they would thereby be under the control of an office that is held now and has been held since the inception of the organization by a Communist, Prof. Smith flatly denied any proposal of that sort had been made and implied that I had been reading the wrong type of literature.

This proposal has been made known in such popular magazines as Time and Newsweek and is described in full in State Department Publication 7277 entitled "Freedom from War: United States Program for General and Complete Disarmament in a Peaceful World" released in September, 1961 (which is available in the government documents section of the library; ask for Disarmament Series 5.

PRESIDENT KENNEDY presented this program to the United Nations in a speech before the General Assembly Sept. 25, 1961 (Public Papers of the President, J. F. Kennedy, 1961, pp. 335 to 337; Time, Oct. 6, 1961, p. 23; Newsweek, Oct. 2, 1961, pp. 17-18).

The official policy of the Kennedy-Johnson Administration as stated in State Department Publication 7277, calls for "the disbanding of all national armed forces and the prohibition of their re-establishment in any form whatsoever other than those required to preserve internal order and for contributions to a United Nations Peace Force. The elimination from national arsenals of all armaments, including all weapons of mass destruction and the means for their delivery, other than those required for a United Nations Peace Force and for maintaining internal order.

On April 13, 1962, our Government presented at Geneva its proposals to implement this State Department disarmament policy. This program is undoubtedly as liberal Democratic Sen. Clark described "the fixed, determined, and approved policy of the government of the United States of America." (Congressional Record, March 4, 1962, p. 3317.)

The undersecretary-general of the United Nations for Political and Security Council Affairs has primary responsibility for a United Nations "Peace Force." That post is held by Vladimir P. Suslov appointed in 1963. For ten years prior to 1963, Suslov was first assistant to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in the Kremlin's Foreign Office. Since the founding of the United Nations, this office has always been held by a Soviet Communist except in 1957 when a Yugoslavian Communist held the post.

OBSOLETELY THIS program is not disarmament. It is instead the transfer of all military might from the United States (presumably every other nation) to a Communist in the United Nations. Of course, it was asked by Prof. Smith if we have made this proposal why haven't the Communists accepted it. The answer does not become apparent until one reads the first stage of the proposed program. It becomes obvious that the Soviets need no formal agreement because we are carrying out the disarmament program unilaterally.

I suggest that this is nothing less than a program of national suicide. State Department Publication 7277 is no longer available from the Government Printing Office. A conspiracy of silence seems to have descended upon the existence of this proposal of the United States' government.

By his ignorance of the existence of this program or his unwillingness to tell us about this program Prof. Smith contributes to this conspiracy of silence. I agree with Ken Thompson, editor of the Dallas Morning News that "if more of the American people knew about this scheme, there would be a nationwide uproar that would make the reaction to the Alger Hiss scandal like another era of good feeling by comparison."

Anyway, I would have thought that somewhere between kindergarten and his doctoral thesis, Prof. Smith would have learned that knowing something does not exist and wishing it did not exist are two different things.

It never hurts things to know both sides

ONE OF THE FEW CONCRETE proposals concerning foreign policy in President Johnson's State of the Union address was the hope that the new Soviet leaders would be able to visit the United States.

Johnson reasoned that such a visit would allow Kossygin and Brezhnev to become better acquainted with the country. The Russian newspaper Isvestia carried the news item, seemingly indicating interest on the part of the Russians.

In making the proposal, President Johnson did not indicate that he believed such a meeting would lead to a solution of all conflicts. His reasoning was that in order to live peacefully together, American and Russian leaders must come to know each other better.

The summit meetings of the early Fifties, regarded at first with such hopefulness, did not bring all the desired results. But this does not mean that a better acquaintance is not needed between world leaders.

Khrushchev visited the United States, and without some stormy incidents, but the trip was beneficial. After the trip, he was less of a mysterious ogre and more of a man, with the unique personality that shined through the official veil.

Foreign relations is a series of personal encounters — secretary to secretary, envoy to envoy and ambassador to ambassador. The distance between leaders of the Soviet Union and the United States is not only one of miles and ideology but also bureaucratic procedure.

There is still room for individual contact in this complicated world of nations, however, and a visit to this country by the two top men in the Soviet government could only help communication between the two giants of the world.

President Johnson's message did not propose to "love your enemy." (That suggestion seems to be destined to remain part of a past, not a present, philosophy.) But it cannot hurt to know your "enemy."

Cracking the whip

THE NEW DEMOCRATIC whip in the Senate is off to a good start. Sen. Russell Long (D-La.) has announced his plans to join his Southern cohorts in opposing any rule changes which might make filibustering in the Senate less effective as a stumbling block.

Although this is not strictly a party issue, and it is not part of the Administration program, it is supported by liberal Senate Democrats. Long's opposition to the proposal could foreshadow what's to come for the new whip and the Democratic proposals for Senate action.

Many thought that Long's election as whip might be a move to unify the Democrats by giving a Southerner a chance. They may be right, but an equally sound idea would be the "two party action" theory.

That is, now that the Democrats have almost eliminated all opposition from the Republican party, they think it only fair that they encourage dissension within their own ranks.

They may be right — without Democrats fighting Democrats, the Washington scene would grow exceedingly dull in no time at all.

Extending the war

MEMBERS OF THE American Legion have pledged to support an all-out war against North Viet Nam, at least Donald Johnson of West Branch, national commander endorsed the idea — if American military leaders were to give their okay.

This might be a good way to destroy things in North Viet Nam, but it will do little about the South Viet Nam situation. The trouble there is revolution — shifting all the blame to the north will not solve that problem.

'Pulled' reveals corruption

Phyllis Paul has an uncanny knack for revealing the seeds of evil and corruption in the most ordinary, pleasant people. In her new book "Pulled Down" (Norton, $4.50 - Jan. 8) she takes the reader into the desperate depths of a distinguished but theologian's soul.

From here she makes us witness the sinister outcome of a struggle between good and evil — an outcome which has a horrifying impact on the lives of the members of two families.

"Pulled Down" is a story about moral disintegration caused by madness, death and religious fanaticism.

In its terrifying reality and extremely effective evocation of atmosphere, "Pulled Down" is a good example of what Anthony Boucher meant when he said: "I will be surprised if there does not in time emerge in America a body of Phyllis Paul admirers as intense in their enthusiasm as the Compton-Burnett coterie or the William Golding cult."

The drinkers drive

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of six articles on "Iowa's Drinking Driver," based on research done at The University of Iowa.)

Drivers who tend to drink the most alcohol also tend to drive more miles than other drivers and so are more likely to appear on the highway as drunk drivers.

This finding comes from research on 921 Iowa drivers done by the Division of Alcoholism Studies, which is directed by Harold A. Mulford, research associate professor of psychiatry and sociology.

Regardless of a person's drinking habits, the extent to which he is a highway hazard is also a function of his driving habits. Although our study did not include an intensive investigation of driving habits, we did study the annual number of miles driven and the number of accidents in four categories," said Dr. Mulford.

The categories are: abstainers; "low probability" (drivers who said they never drank as much as three or four drinks at one time); "medium probability" (drivers who said they had consumed that much on occasion but had never driven within two or three hours afterward); and "high probability" (drivers who said they had consumed that much and driven that soon on occasion).

The HIGH probability drivers reported the most mileage, averaging at least 10,000 miles annually and probably more. This was about 40 per cent greater than the average of about 7,000 miles driven annually by drivers in the other three groups.

Based on the number of police-reported accidents, the drivers were involved in during a three-year period. The accidents presumably represent a wide range of severity and conditions under which accidents occur, Dr. Mulford said.

It was found that drivers who drove the most miles annually were most likely to report an accident. Only 7.8 per cent of those who drive 100 to 4,999 miles each year reported accidents during the previous three years compared with 22.2 per cent of those who drove more than 15,000 miles.

However, when accident rates per 100,000 miles driven were calculated for the same two mileage groups, it was discovered that, mile for mile, low mileage drivers had more accidents than the higher mileage drivers.

Drivers in the 100 to 4,999-mile group had 3.52 accidents per 100,000 miles driven, while drivers in the 15,000-plus category had only 1.17 accidents per 100,000 miles.

Overall, 102 (11.1 per cent) of the 921 drivers reported 121 accidents. Seventeen drivers (1.8 per cent of all drivers studied) reported multiple accidents and accounted for 29 per cent of all accidents.

"ALTHOUGH the multiple-accident drivers were scattered among the several driver categories, there was some concentration of multiple-accident drivers in the high probability group," Dr. Mulford said.

The average number of accidents for drivers who reported accidents were: abstainers, 1.07; low probability, 1.20; medium probability, 1.16; and high probability, 1.33.

When accident rates per 100,000 miles driven were studied, it was found that, overall, the accident rate of 2.09 for high probability drivers exceeded that for abstainers — 1.39 — by 52 per cent.

However, it was also found that accident rates did not increase directly with increased alcohol use — the accident rate for the low probability group exceeded that for the medium probability drivers.

Neither did a clear, consistent pattern emerge when the various mileage groups were considered, said Dr. Mulford.

IN THE 100 to 4,999-mile group, the medium probability drivers had the highest accident rate and the low probability rate equaled the accident rate of the high probability group. In the 5,000 to 9,999-mile group, the medium probability drivers had a slightly lower accident rate than the abstainers.

A surprising difference was noted in accident rates among men and women who drove less than 5,000 miles per year. The association between drinking patterns and accident rates was completely reversed for the two sexes.

Abstaining women had the lowest accident rate (2.22) and the rate steadily increased to 5.71 for the high probability women. By contrast, for men who drove less than 5,000 miles, the abstainers had the highest accident rate (4.88), while the high probability drivers had the lowest rate (1.90). It must be noted, said Dr. Mulford, that this mileage group contained 80 per cent of the women drivers in the study but only 20 per cent of the men.

Next: About three-fourths of Iowa drinkers who drive have few, if any, more accidents than abstainers.

Civil rights, advocacy the real issues

By GENE MARINE
(From The Nation, Dec. 21)

In any case, a mass of police suddenly burst up the stairwell from the first floor, in a flying wedge aimed at the microphone.

Whether by accident or design, they crowded students against the stairwell walls and formed a double line, with a space between, down to the first floor.

AT THE TOP, moving toward the microphone, they simply took each demonstrator who was in the way and shoved him or her down the stairs.

Policemen on the double line operated as a gantlet. A student whose body stopped halfway down the stairwell was picked up and thrown again.

At the bottom, witnesses saw a deputy sheriff raise one limp girl as she landed, say something to her and when she shook her head, smash his fist into her face.

At the top, the policemen had their clubs out and were pounding furiously on the demonstrators around the microphone. Witnesses outside the building, in the plaza, could see through the huge second-floor windows, and insist that the clubs were used not sporadically and at random but slowly, methodically, repeatedly.

AS QUICKLY as the charge began, it ended. They got the microphone, the students had another.

On Thursday afternoon, I watched the end of The Day of the Cops. There was no civilian authority anywhere on the campus. Pres. Kerr was still in Los Angeles. Chancellor Edward Strong, chief Berkeley administrator (Kerr runs all nine university campuses), had disappeared.

The University of California was completely in the hands of police. In every window of Sproul Hall a police guard was visible.

There were guards at every door. Police patrolled the campus.

Student groups at the University of California have for years used an area at one of the principal campus entrances, Sather Gate, to set up tables in support of candidates or, more often, ideas: to distribute materials, to collect money, to recruit etc.

Technically, there has long been a rule against such "political" activity, but the administration has pretended not to notice.

In June, during the Republican National Convention, "Students for Scranton" set up a table at Sather Gate. The head of the California Goldwater delegation, William Knowland — publisher of the Oakland Tribune, former U.S. senator, and dominant figure in East Bay politics — protested to Chancellor Strong.

When the fall semester began Dean of Students Katherine Towle announced that the old rule would be strictly enforced: no recruiting, fund raising or "mounting political and social action."

THE OUTRAGED cry on "No Fair!" was the beginning of the Free Speech Movement (FSM) — originally, and still in part, an organization of campus organizations.

The groups hardest hit were those supporting civil rights activity, especially SNCC and CORE. Knowland's newspaper is the target of a month's anti-discrimination picket line, and most FSM members believe that the publisher complained, not to protect Goldwater but to protect the Tribune.

Also, U.C. students had participated in sit-in demonstrations in San Francisco earlier in the year, and subsequently stood trial. Serious political pressure was brought to have the University discipline them — even expel them — but Kerr, backed by many of the faculty, took no action.

Some observers saw the new decision as a protection against any future accusation that such activities had an on-campus origin.

At any rate, the students resisted, and on Sept. 30 the University "indefinitely suspended" six of them for "illegal" activity at tables near Sather Gate, and two others for participation in "illegal" meetings. The next day, Jack Weinberg, a graduate student in mathematics who had dropped out of U.C. to give his full time to civil rights, manned a CORE table in the plaza (an open area near Sather Gate) and was arrested for trespassing and taken to a campus police car.

A CROWD OF angry students, eventually reaching 3,000 (one of every nine enrolled) surrounded the car and refused to let it move. It stayed there for 32 hours, while hundreds of police massed on nearby streets and student speakers used the car itself as a platform to address the gathering.

Simultaneously with the police-car protest, a Sproul Hall sit-in took place.

The protest persuaded the administration to negotiate with the students, which it had previously refused to do. The demonstration was called off and Weinberg released when an agreement was reached Oct. 2. Principally it provided that the fate of the eight students would be turned over to the Academic Senate Committee on Student Conduct which would recommend action to the administration (many students missed that point); and that a student-faculty-administration committee would examine the whole question of "political behavior on the campus."

But the Academic Senate (i.e., the tenured faculty) didn't have a Student Conduct Committee.

The chancellor therefore appointed a Faculty Committee on Student Affairs to hear the cases of the suspended students; he also appointed the Campus Committee on Political Activity, with four members each from administration, faculty and student body — two of the student seats being given to the FSM.

STUDENTS COMPLAINED that the administration was not showing good faith. The FSM refused to recognize the administration-dominated CCPA as meeting the terms of the Oct. agreement. But in mid-October, Kerr restored hope by asking the Academic Senate to appoint its Student Conduct Committee to handle the suspensions (which the senate could have done on its own but hadn't and enlarging the CCPA to 13 members, with four seats for FSM).

The worst of the storm seemed to be over, but the public, at least, was seriously confused. So far, it had read of an argument over whether student groups could put up tables and collect money.

Nobody said "civil rights" out loud. When the CCPA meetings started, however, the FSM quickly discovered that its administration and faculty members insisted on regulating the content of the "free speech" involved. This issue was "not negotiable"; in fact, the FSM insists that the administration refused to negotiate at all — that they merely proposed various formulas on a take-it-or-leave-it basis.

The students continued to insist that they could advocate as they saw fit, without arbitrary curbs from the administration.

It must be stressed that setting up tables was never the real issue. The real issue was, and is, the civil rights movements. Therefore, it was over "advocacy" that the talks broke down.

(Tomorrow: More on advocacy and the demands of the FSM)

Prof Studies Tribe in Uganda

Rural Society's Culture Provided Data for Work

Africa is often stereotyped as a land of steaming jungles and blood-thirsty headhunters.

However, a U of I professor who did research work in Uganda, has a much different impression of Africa.

DR. MARSHALL SEGALL, associate professor of psychology, spent 1959 and 1960 doing independent psychological research work among members of a Uganda tribe.

He said that Africa is one of the most pleasant places he has ever lived.

"I have never met a group of people more gentle or friendly than rural Africans," he said.

His research work was made possible by a Ford Foundation grant.

DURING HIS stay in Uganda, Dr. Segall lived among the people of the Banyankole tribe to study changes in their behavior patterns as one phase of his research.

The Banyankoles were chosen because of exposure to varied cultural influences during their history.

At one time Uganda was visited by Arab merchants and traders and was a British protectorate until it received its independence in 1962.

The research data Dr. Segall gathered includes material taken from day-long interviews with each of 121 male members of the tribe.

A PORTION of Dr. Segall's four years in Africa has been devoted to the analysis of the facts he gathered in these interviews.

Another area of research he undertook while in Africa dealt with cultural differences in visual perception.

AMERICANS grow up in an environment of square corners, straight lines and geometric design, he said, compared to the natural influence on rural Africans. Americans interpret geometric drawings according to the designs they are used to seeing, according to Dr. Segall.

Africans are not "fooled" by the same geometric tricks, since they live in a society which lacks "carpentered" designs, said Dr. Segall.

Africa's greatest needs are in the field of education, Dr. Segall said. He feels "we ought to send Africans what they have been asking for — education."

Dr. Segall is working with other members of the psychology department to explore the possibility of establishing a long-term affiliation between the psychology department and an African university.

THE AFFILIATION would include developing a psychological research center at the African university and sending a psychology staff to the institution.

Africans would eventually man the psychological research center after training to the Ph.D. level at the psychology department here.

Dr. Segall is eager to return to Uganda to do a follow-up study on the Banyankole tribe. He hopes to measure the effects of Uganda's independence on its individual citizens.

According to Dr. Segall, the study will focus on the "process by which a person comes to identify himself as a citizen of an independent country rather than as a member of a tribe — the degree of national 'ego identity'."

Marshall Segall, associate professor of psychology, would like to establish a psychological research center in Africa with U of I help. Dr. Segall previously conducted visual perception and cultural differences studies on a rural tribe in Uganda, leading to his interest in Africa.

Reliability of Health Checkup Questioned in Medical Report

PHILADELPHIA — The physical checkup, a health fixture for millions of Americans, is about 50 per cent accurate in detecting diseases that can kill, a medical research team reports.

This verdict was reached by a University of Pennsylvania medical research team that studied causes of death of 350 white male executives.

The researchers said that while the checkup did uncover disease, and should be continued, "its shortcomings at present are great."

"THIS DOES NOT negate the method. It points up the necessity for greater efforts toward improvement and changes in our diagnostic procedures in order to increase further the benefit to be derived from such examinations," they said.

The report was published in the Annals of Internal Medicine, a journal of the American College of Physicians.

Ten diagnostic clinics, some industrial and some associated with universities, cooperated with the researchers in providing data on the patient before and after death.

Stanley S. Schor, a statistician who is not a physician, headed the project in association with four medical men.

THE REPORT emphasized some men died in accidents that had no connection with their state of health, while others failed to have a medical checkup for over two years.

The study showed, however, that better methods must be found, particularly in detecting heart disease and cancer.

Of 181 men who died of a coronary, the report showed, only 58 per cent showed some kind of heart ailment at their last regular checkup.

OF 68 FATAL cancers, only 43 per cent had been discovered in routine examination.

"There is a need for greater efforts toward improvement and changes in our diagnostic procedures," the study said.

Another unusual facet was produced by the researchers: It was more difficult to find potentially fatal diseases among heavy cigarette smokers than among those who smoked little or not at all.

The proposed increase in health services for needy children was described as an outgrowth of concern in official circles that not enough attention is being paid to prevention of disease and disabilities among children.

The children's health proposal could cost about $150 million in the initial year, the sources said.

This would be a turn toward emphasis on health services for children, particularly those in need, patterned somewhat after expanding federal programs of recent years to provide health services for the aged.

But the message also will propose creation of a system of regional medical centers and local treatment stations for heart disease, cancer, and stroke, which are primarily diseases of adults.

Estimated cost of this program over five years is about $1.2 billion, informed sources said.

Amish School In Michigan Faces Closure

CAMDEN, Mich. — The state of Michigan moved anew Wednesday to close the school of a tiny and of Amish, whose one teacher ended her education at the eighth grade, as do most Amish.

In a step designed to force employment of a state-certified teacher or a return of Amish children to public schools, Asst. Atty. Gen. Eugene Krasicky conducted a hearing here.

Supt. Walter Holliday of the Hillsdale Intermediate School District filed a complaint against the Amish, whose school is in his district.

No one claimed that 20-year-old Amish teacher Ruth Graber met state qualifications, but Levi Graber, an Amishman unrelated to the teacher, told Krasicky in a statement:

"We do not feel guilty of the complaint as filed. It is a church school privately operated. Each faith is taught in its own faith and Amish wish to be too."

The situation is similar to one prevailing in Iowa where state school authorities threatened to close two Amish schools in Buchanan County because their teachers were not state-certified.

Labor: Increase in Jobs Depends on Cuts in Profit

WASHINGTON — The AFL-CIO said Wednesday that President Johnson's aim of creating enough jobs for all Americans is doomed unless "a dangerous imbalance" in the economy is corrected.

In fact, the labor organization said, "excessively high" unemployment will rise even higher this year under present conditions.

The AFL-CIO said that U.S. industry is piling up too much cash in corporate treasuries and boosting dividends to high-income stockholders who don't spend it on consumer goods.

MANY CORPORATIONS are "awash in a sea of undistributed profits," the AFL-CIO report said. It predicted industry could eventually struggle on too much cash.

The views were set forth in the "economic trends and outlook" section of its monthly magazine, the American Federationist.

"There is growing fear that excessively rapid increases in profits will have a depressing effect upon the economy, resulting, in time, in further unemployment and in declining profits as well," it said.

THE AFL-CIO's solution is "a great new increase in spending" by both industry and government to put more money in the hands of low-income consumers.

The report said a rise of 113 per cent in dividends paid to stockholders since 1953 "almost dwarfs" the corresponding rise of 63.5 per cent in wages.

It said a similar "dangerous imbalance" led to the 1929 stock market crash.

Social Security Exemption Asked For Amish Order

WASHINGTON — Congress was asked Wednesday to exempt the old order Amish from the social security program.

Reps. Paul B. Dague and Richard S. Schweiker, Pennsylvania Republicans, introduced bills to grant the exemption to the 19,000 members of the religious sect who live in 270 communities in 19 states, including Iowa.

The legislation is substantially the same as that approved last year by a Senate-House conference committee but which died in the controversy over a medical care plan for the aged.

Old order Amish contend social security is a form of insurance which shows a lack of faith in God.

Stratton's Tax Trial Begins

CHICAGO — A federal prosecutor said Wednesday the government will trace former Gov. William G. Stratton's income and expenditures during an 11-year period in its effort to prove him guilty of income tax evasion.

Vincent P. Russo, chief government prosecutor, told the jury of six men and six women in his opening statement that the government would base its case on a theory of Stratton's net worth and undeductible expenditures from 1949 through 1960. The former Republican leader, who served two consecutive terms as Governor, from 1952 to 1960, is accused of filing false returns to evade $47,000 in taxes on unreported income of $93,595 for 1957 through 1960, his final term in office.

Russo told the jury in U.S. District Court that some of Stratton's income was political contributions diverted to his personal use.

This brought an immediate demand from defense attorneys for a directed verdict of acquittal, which was denied.

Russo told the jury the government had to use the net worth theory because Stratton's books and records are "not adequate for correctly reconstructing his taxable income."

$30 Million Fire To Be Investigated

EGLIN AIR FORCE BASE, Fla. — The Air Force appointed a nine-man board of inquiry Wednesday to investigate all aspects of a fire that burned out a $30-million space detection and tracking building here.

The probe will seek to determine among other things, whether the Air Force or the prime contractor, Bendix Corp., will take the loss; possible cause, and how it will affect this nation's satellite and missile detection system.

$1.5 Billion Seen Likely For Health

WASHINGTON — President Johnson's health message to Congress Thursday reportedly will propose an unprecedented $1-billion to $1.5-billion program to improve health services to children. It would be spread over 5 years.

Informed sources said the message would also renew Johnson's call for a hospital insurance program for the aged linked to Social Security.

The children's health proposal could cost about $150 million in the initial year, the sources said.

This would be a turn toward emphasis on health services for children, particularly those in need, patterned somewhat after expanding federal programs of recent years to provide health services for the aged.

Chicago Surgeon Slated To Deliver Memorial Lecture

Dr. C. W. Vermeulen, professor of surgery at the University of Chicago, will present the College of Medicine Alcock Memorial Lecture Monday.

Vermeulen will speak on "Experimental Observations on the Pathogenesis of Urolithiasis" at 4:10 p.m. in the Medical Amphitheater at General Hospital. He is a medical graduate of the University of Chicago and also took his specialty training there before joining the faculty.

The lecture is given in memory of the late Dr. Nathaniel G. Alcock, who was professor and head of urology at the U of I from 1915 to 1949. He died in 1953.

Dr. Alcock was one of the first to clearly understand the possibilities of transurethral surgery and he became internationally famous for his developments in this area of urology. His pioneering work is considered the most outstanding development in urological surgery between 1930 and 1940.

Extradition Proceedings Begun Against Escaper

MARSHALLTOWN — Marshall County Attorney Carl Peterson said Wednesday he has started proceedings to extradite John Henry Pelham from Dallas, Tex.

Pelham, one of three persons who escaped jail here Dec. 22, was picked up in Dallas Dec. 23.

He was held here on charges of burglary with aggravation and receiving stolen property before his escape.

Peterson said Pelham had indicated he would sign papers waiving extradition from Texas, but had not yet done so.

Official Charged With Bias In Railroad Merger Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department, charging an Interstate Commerce Commission examiner with "shocking, extreme and undisciplined bias," is contesting his recommendation favoring the merger of five northwestern railroads into the nation's largest system.

The merger was recommended last August by ICC Examiner Robert H. Murphy. It would unify the Great Northern, Northern Pa-

Viet Fighting May Be Test Of Tactics

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The fighting around Binh Gia may be a Viet Cong experiment in stepping up the war in South Viet Nam, a U.S. military spokesman said Wednesday. If so, he added, the experiment so far has been a success.

The Red combat force that attacked 10 days ago appears to have disengaged effectively after inflicting on U.S.-supported government units their worst mauling of the war.

Revenge-seeking Vietnamese troops have been unable since Monday to develop any important contact with the Communist fighters in the vicinity of Binh Gia, 40 miles east of Saigon.

EIGHTY U.S. helicopters ferried 800 Vietnamese troops from Binh Gia to a new operation zone nearby. Fifteen armored personnel carriers moved to the landing zone.

A lone bushwacker wounded one paratrooper with a shotgun blast. He was captured.

The anti-Communist, Roman Catholic villagers of Binh Gia watched the dispersal of the troops with some apprehension. Only about 400 Vietnamese soldiers and U.S. advisers remained in the village. Rumors circulated that the Viet Cong, though in hiding, had up to two regiments—perhaps up to 2,500 troops—in the vicinity.

AMONG OTHER developments of the day:

Official sources announced U.S. battle casualties for 1964 totaled 1,173, including 136 killed, against a total of 615 casualties, including 107 killed, in the previous three years of American involvement.

Communist North Viet Nam charged that three warships of "the United States and its puppets" made their second attack in its coastal waters in three days, this time shelling the village of Mui Duc. A Hanoi broadcast said the ships fled when North Vietnamese troops returned the fire. There was no confirmation in Saigon.

Pulitzer Winner William Snodgrass To Speak Here

William D. Snodgrass, a graduate of the U of I Poetry Workshop, will speak on "Poetry 1870-1970" at 2:30 p.m. Friday in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol.

Snodgrass, who received his MFA from Iowa, won the Pulitzer Prize for poetry with his poem "Heart's Needle." Most of the poem was written while he was working on his advanced degree.

He also won the Guinness Poetry Award in 1961 and a special citation from the Poetry Society of America in 1960.

Snodgrass is now associate professor of English at Wayne State University, Detroit, Mich.

Health Research Center Will Be Built in South

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina will get the big National Center for Environmental Sciences, but Ohio and West Virginia also are expected to share in an expanded program of environmental health research.

Secretary of Welfare Anthony J. Celebrezze announced Wednesday:

- Selection of the North Carolina research triangle, in the Raleigh, Durham, Chapel Hill area, as the site for the national center. He said estimated cost is about $25 million. The center will house 1,000 or more persons.
- Preliminary plans for construction of new facilities in Cincinnati; at the Robert A. Taft Sanitary Engineering Center, to consolidate the environmental health activities now scattered in nine locations in Cincinnati.
- Establishment of a specialized Appalachian regional environmental health facility in West Virginia, at a site still to be chosen. This is expected to employ about 200 persons. Sen. Robert C. Byrd (D-W.Va.) said it will be in Morgantown.

Celebrezze gave no cost estimates for the Cincinnati or West Virginia facilities. A spokesman said figures are not yet available.

The decision to place the major center in North Carolina ended a scramble that has been under way since plans for the project were first advanced in 1961.

The new facility in North Carolina will serve as a center for research relating to programs of the U.S. Public Health Service, Celebrezze said. These include studies of the effect on man of environmental contamination of air, water, milk and food.

CANCER CENTER—

PARIS (AP) — An accord for the creation of an international cancer research center by the United States, Italy, West Germany, France and Britain was announced in Paris Wednesday.

Remap, Tax Face Illinois Legislature

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois Legislature set up for business Wednesday and fixed its sights on early handling of reapportionment and revenue changes — The two big problems facing the six-month session.

Senate Republicans moved quickly to consider their newly offered proposal for revising the state Constitution's tax article and permitting voters to choose between allowing or banning an income tax.

The revenue proposal was set for a hearing Thursday before the entire Senate.

Gov. Otto Kerner disclosed his plan for reapportioning the House and Senate on a population basis.

Bills carrying out his recommendations, which would give more seats to Chicago, Cook County suburbs and the populous downstate counties, were filed in the Senate and House.

In opening day ceremonies 177 representatives and half of the 58 senators were sworn in.

California Floods Subside After Death Toll Reaches 23

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The danger of new damage to northwest California's flood-ravaged Eel River Valley appeared past Wednesday with a break in the West Coast's winter parade of storms.

The Eel, swollen by a driving rainstorm drenching most of Northern California on Tuesday, crested four feet below a predicted damaging height.

ABOUT 500 persons evacuated Tuesday night — 200 by helicopter

— hoped to return to their homes by nightfall in low-lying Fernbridge and Starvation Flat.

Both are communities in Humboldt County, center of the worst havoc in the Christmas week flooding which killed more than 40 and caused $1 billion damage in five Western states.

CALIFORNIA'S flood and storm death toll reached 23 when two men were killed by a tree crashing down on their Jeep. The bodies of Donald Bridge and Ele Duncan, killed at Ruth on the Mad River east of Eureka, were flown out by helicopter.

Both the Southern Pacific and Western Pacific rail lines across the Sierra Nevada were blocked Wednesday by earth slides and washouts.

The Southern Pacific's westbound City of San Francisco was held at Sparks, Nev. and its passengers transferred to buses. The SP track was blocked east of Colfax in Placer County, Calif.

THE WESTERN Pacific, blocked near Belden in Plumas County, canceled its eastbound Zephyr to Chicago on Tuesday. Westbound passengers were shifted to buses.

Colder temperatures and slackened rain checked the threat of rising rivers all along California's north coast, from San Francisco to the Oregon border.

Burch's Offer Spurned

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Idaho Gov. Robert E. Smylie said Wednesday the time is past when Dean Burch can do anything to save his job as national chairman of the Republican party.

"Advice from sources within the Republican National Committee indicates that more than a majority of the members desire a change on the chairmanship," he said.

Burch said Tuesday he would accept a new executive director of the party and a revision of the Executive Committee. But he said he would not step down as chairman voluntarily.

Symington Asks Ban on U.S. Aid To Hostile Lands

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), proposed Wednesday a legal ban on foreign aid to countries which permit the destruction of U.S. properties by rioters.

Offering an amendment to the foreign aid bill, Symington told the Senate the American people "are outraged by the apparently approved, wanton destruction of American embassies at the hands of mobs and rioters in foreign nations so generously assisted by the United States."

Symington's office said the proposal was directed primarily at Indonesia and the United Arab Republic.

He said the amendment would cut off aid to such countries for a year following the occurrence of damage in cases where police and local authorities have failed to try to prevent destruction by mobs.

Demonstrates Unique Wings—

History Made in TFX Test

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The congressionally-debated warplane known as the TFX raced through a one-hour test flight Wednesday, successfully demonstrating its unique variable sweep wings.

The flight was the second for the F111 and was historic in that never before had a plane with such wings performed so well.

The big aircraft's maiden flight, though hailed as a success by the builders, was marred by a malfunction of the wing flaps. This blot on the plane's performance was erased the next day by General Dynamics engineers.

Pilot R. L. Johnson joined General Dynamics officials in proclaiming the resounding success of the test mission, which significantly came 24 days ahead of schedule.

He and co-pilot Val Prahn swept and retracted the wings at an altitude of 10,000 feet, moving them from the forward position of 16 degrees back to a fully swept angle of 72.5 degrees.

The adjustable wings permit the revolutionary aircraft to fly at extremely high and low speeds and take off and land in short distances.

Johnson said at a news briefing the F111 flew at a top speed of about 450 miles per hour and reached an altitude of about 27,000 feet.

The veteran test pilot revealed that the multi-purpose jet completed its prime accomplishments with "one minor exception."

He said the craft at one point developed in one engine, a slightly high temperature and erratic fuel flow, preventing several minor stability tests.

"It was a very minor thing," he said, comparing it to the "loping of a car engine while driving at 30 miles an hour."

Church Built — In 567 Years

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Milan's majestic cathedral, one of the largest in Christendom, was completed Wednesday after 567 years of devoted labor.

The Most Rev. Giovanni Colombo, successor to Pope Paul VI as archbishop of Milan, unveiled the last of the five massive bronze doors, blessed it and prayed: "May this door be one to hope and salvation."

The eight-ton portal, 16 feet high, was decorated by modern artist Luciano Minguzzi with more than 130 human figures in the Impressionist style — a 20th century addition to the soaring Gothic structure.

Wednesday was the Feast of the Epiphany.

Although the cathedral was dedicated to the Virgin Mary when construction started in 1387, it is known in Italy and around the world only as "Il Duomo" — The Cathedral.

Visit Congo, Enemies Told By Tshombe

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Premier Moise Tshombe challenged his non-Congolese enemies to meet him in Stanleyville to learn for themselves of the horrors perpetrated by the Communist-backed rebels.

Tshombe, who paid a lightning visit to the former rebel capital Tuesday, said "I invite Ben Bella, Nkrumah, Modibo Keita, Nasser and others to go to Stanleyville to meet me there and to see with their own eyes what I saw myself."

Those named are anti-Tshombe leaders of Algeria, Ghana, Mali and Egypt.

Ahmed Ben Bella and Gamal Abdel Nasser have proclaimed their support for the Congo rebels. Kwame Nkrumah and Keita also have aided the rebels, well-informed sources say.

The Congolese Premier repeated his government's avowed intent to continue its "pacification campaign" against the rebels in the northeastern part of the country.

LBJ Victory Made Official By Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress made it official Wednesday that Lyndon B. Johnson and Hubert H. Humphrey have been duly elected President and Vice President of the United States.

The election anticlimax was carried out in a relaxed joint session of the Senate and House to conduct the ritual of counting the Electoral College votes and proclaiming the winners.

With political passions spent, Republicans chatted with Democrats, representatives sat beside senators as the electoral certificates were taken from a gold-bordered, rosewood box and inspected by the official tellers.

The two Democratic and two Republican tellers were Sen. Carl T. Curtis (R-Neb.), Sen. Everett B. Jordan (D-N.C.), Rep. Oram Burrell (D-Tex.) and Rep. Robert J. Corbett, (R-Pa.).

The certificates of the votes, cast in the capitals of the 50 states, were passed to them and they took turns announcing their approval in the set language of the proceedings.

When the roll of states was completed, the Senate President pro tem, Carl Hayden (D-Ariz.), rose to read the results:

"Lyndon B. Johnson of the State of Texas has received for President of the United States 486 electoral votes; Barry Goldwater of the State of Arizona has received 52 votes."

The announcement, Hayden went on, "shall be deemed a sufficient declaration of the persons elected President and Vice President of the United States, each for the term beginning on the 20th day of January, 1965."

Apartment Fire Burns Student

A university coed suffered minor burns late Wednesday afternoon when stove burners ignited a cloth in her apartment at 1101 Woodlawn Dr.

Victoria Blommers, A3, Iowa City, was reported in good condition Wednesday night in University Hospitals after treatment for minor burns on her neck and arm. Hospital officials said she was also treated for smoke inhalation.

Miss Blommers was in the apartment of the building's owner, Ronald Wilson, when the blaze broke out: She was injured when she rushed back to her own apartment to investigate.

Evansville Heads Small College Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
High-scoring High Point of North Carolina reached its highest point of the season in The Associated Press' weekly small-college basketball poll Wednesday, soaring to fourth place on the strength of a 10-0 record.

Seventh a week ago, High Point dethroned Belmont Abbey 139-71 in its only start last week.
Evansville, with a 9-0 mark, remained in first place. The Aces, with six victories over major opponents, defeated three small-college teams, South Dakota State, South Dakota and Ball State, last week.

In the latest balloting by a special regional panel of 13 writers and broadcasters, Evansville collected 111 first-place votes and 126 points, the latter on a basis of 10 points for a first-place vote, 9 for second, etc.

The voting was based on games through last Saturday.
Grambling held second place despite an 88-36 loss to Dillard, its first of the season. Grambling, now 9-1, picked up one first-place vote and 97 points.

Winston Salem, winner over Clark, Ga., and North Carolina College for a 10-1 mark, remained in the No. 3 spot with 78 points, two more than High Point.
Pan American dropped one notch to fifth despite three victories while Wittenberg, not scheduled last week, held sixth place.

Youngstown advanced three positions to seventh after defeating Maine and Assumption, Ont., for a 9-1 record. Philadelphia Textile, idle last week, moved up one place to eighth.
Carson Newman, unranked a week ago, climbed to ninth. The Jefferson City, Tenn., team won four times last week, lifting its record to 14-1.

Fresno State lost to Weber and Colorado State and fell from fifth

Lindsay of Red Wings Reinstated

MONTREAL (AP) — Veteran Ted Lindsay of the Detroit Red Wings was reinstated Wednesday night less than two hours after he had been suspended indefinitely by President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League.

The reinstatement came, the league office said, after Lindsay sent a letter to Campbell retracting statements the Detroit retractor made after a game with Toronto last Saturday night.

The reinstatement enabled Lindsay to dress for the Red Wings game at Montreal.

In originally announcing the suspension, Campbell said Lindsay would not be permitted to play until he paid fines totaling $75 for an outburst in the Toronto contest. Referee Vern Buffy called Lindsay for two misconduct penalties in the last 90 seconds of the game.

Campbell had conferred with Lindsay and Detroit general manager-coach Sid Abel during the day before announcing the suspension. Campbell demanded a retraction of Lindsay's statements

At Sioux City Meet—

Out of State Skaters Expected to Dominate

SIoux CITY (AP) — Colorado and Illinois figure skaters are expected to dominate the 34th annual Midwestern sectional championships here this weekend.

The three-day meet, which has drawn a field of 108 competitors from a 22-state qualifying area, begins Thursday and continues through Saturday night at the Sioux City Municipal Auditorium.

The Broadmoor Skating Club of Colorado Springs, shooting for its seventh team title in the last nine years, is a slight favorite to edge the Wagon Wheel Figure Skating Club of Rockton, Ill. The defending champion figure skating club of Minneapolis is not expected to be a serious title contender this season.

Among the competitors will be 14-year-old Gail Newberry of Colorado Springs, who last year won the national novice ladies singles crown.

Three former champions also will be seeking their third Midwest titles. Patty Grazer of Denver and Cindy Watson of Rockton, who have won titles as novices and juveniles, square off against each other in junior ladies singles. Perry Hutchings of Skokie Valley, Ill., a two-time champion as a novice and juvenile, is entered in junior men's singles.

The top three competitors in senior and junior singles, senior pairs and silver dance qualify for the 1965 United States championships at Lake Placid, N.Y., Feb. 10-13.

Torrey and Wen-an Sun, the son and daughter of an Ames eye surgeon, are seeking an unprecedented quadruple sweep and favored to get at least three-fourths of it.

The Suns, who won four firsts in the 1963 Southwestern regional and took three firsts and a second in the 1964 Southwestern meet, are the pre-meet title choice in junior pairs and bronze dance.

Torrey, 13, also is favored in novice men's singles, while Wen-an, 11, is expected to be a leading contender in novice ladies singles.

Loren Carson of Denver, a sophomore at Drake University, is one of the favorites in senior men's singles.

Coach Denies Hornung Trade Rumor

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Green Bay Coach Vince Lombardi emphatically denied Wednesday that he plans to trade Paul Hornung, the Packers' high-scoring halfback.

"I don't know a player in the National Football League who has the potential of Hornung," Lombardi said. "You don't give up something for nothing."

Lombardi commented on a report by the New York Journal-American which said that Hornung is finished with the Packers and may be traded to the New York Giants.

Lombardi emphasized that he was not "saying we're going to sit pat up here."

"If we have an opportunity to better ourselves, we will trade," the coach said. "But I have no plans to trade Hornung, period."

The New York newspaper story said that Hornung and Lombardi clashed when the halfback was late for a meeting prior to the Packers' Playoff Bowl game with St. Louis in Miami.

Hornung did not start in the game, and his last play was a halfback option pass that was intercepted by the Cardinals. The interception doomed Green Bay's hopes. The Cardinals won 24-17.

The Journal-American, in a story by Charley Feeney, said that the Packers earlier had promised the Giants first refusal if Hornung ever came on the player trade market.

Lombardi has denied reports that he is thinking of trading the versatile halfback.

According to the newspaper, Hornung's latest clash with Lombardi came when the player was late for a team meeting. He reportedly telephoned Lombardi to apologize and was told: "Get in your car and keep going."

Johnson Hints at Measures To Control Population Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has signaled in one succinct sentence what may be the beginning of a vastly expanded attempt to control the world population explosion.

This problem, as ominous in some ways as the possibility of nuclear war, already has been the subject of presidential consultations with people in and out of the government. More of these can be expected.

IN PRECISE, carefully groomed language, Johnson calked into his State of the Union message to Congress Monday an isolated sentence: "I will seek new ways to use our knowledge to help deal with the explosion in world population and the growing scarcity in world resources."

Johnson made no specific recommendations. He did not use the words "birth control." But birth control inevitably is tied in with any significant effort to retard the enormous boom in population.

AND JOHNSON injected his remark into a section dealing with world rather than domestic affairs. There have been suggestions that countries receiving U.S. foreign aid be given assistance in population control, since some of the economic impact of aid is blunted by soaring birth rates.

But the growing population at home also is a problem. There have been some signs that what Johnson calls his antipovertry program might become involved in assisting local communities with birth control efforts.

MILWAUKEE, for example, already has submitted for Washington approval an antipovertry plan that includes birth control.

Officials said Johnson has asked a number of people inside and outside the government to come in, not necessarily as groups, but just as individuals to talk over the matter.

Within the government, the National Academy of Sciences and the National Institutes of Health are interested. On the outside such organizations as Planned Parenthood, Inc., the Ford Foundation, and the Population Reference Bureau are concerned.

Story Says Star of India May Be Returned Today

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — One of the suspects in the $410,000 jewel theft at the American Museum of Natural History turned up in Miami on Wednesday night amid reports he has agreed to return the gems.

"If all goes well, the Star of India, largest cut sapphire in the world, and 21 other rare gems will be safely back," in New York by Thursday, the New York Daily News said in a copyright story.

Allen Dale Kuhn, 26, was spotted at his fancy oceanfront apartment. But he dodged reporters and wouldn't talk about the story. It said he was flown to Miami secretly to make contact with the actual holder of the gems.

The story said he decided to cooperate with authorities "in the hope of getting a lesser sentence."

Kuhn was said to have been accompanied to Florida by four detectives and Asst. Dist. Atty. Maurice Nadjari of Manhattan.

The newspaper added: "The jewels were to be surrendered in time for Nadjari, the cops and Kuhn to catch a plane for New York within a matter of hours."

Kuhn has been accused of the spectacular Oct. 29 museum robbery along with Jack (Murph the Surf) Murphy, 27, and Roger F. Clark, 29. However, the jewels earlier were recovered.

The news story said: "Kuhn decided that cooperation would be his best gamble to buy time — less time, that is."

"While the flashier 'Murph the Surf' has gotten most of the headlines, police and the DA's office had long tabbed Kuhn, a self-described 'honest man trying to make a living,' as the brains of the team."

Duke of Windsor Returns to NYC

NEW YORK (AP) — The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, who almost never travel by air, flew back Wednesday from Texas, where he underwent major surgery three weeks ago.

"I feel fine, thank you, very well," the former British monarch told newsmen at Kennedy Airport after a 1,100-mile jet flight from Houston.

Asked if he expected to resume his customary social life, the duke, 70, replied: "Social activity? Oh, not for a while."

Sonny Grandelius To Be Lion Head Coach — Maybe

LEYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Sonny Grandelius said Wednesday no one had talked to him about becoming head coach of the Detroit Lions.

"This is the first I've heard about it," Grandelius said when told the Detroit News said he would become head coach Sunday.

However, the former assistant coach for the Lions said he would take the job if it were offered.

The Lions' head coach George Wilson, resigned last month.

Grandelius, one of the five assistants fired by the National Football League team in December, was in Florida on a vacation.

Packer Tackle Questions Futures of Bonus Stars

WEST MEMPHIS, Ark. (AP) — Dave (Hawg) Hanner, veteran Green Bay Packer tackle, says he doesn't believe today's bonus stars will be willing to pay the price to become outstanding professional football players.

"A man who gets that much money usually doesn't want to pay the price," Hanner said. "If he doesn't like it, what with a not-out contract, he can quit as soon as his contract runs out."

Hanner, who has spent 13 years with Green Bay, was referring to the fat bonuses being handed out this year to college stars for signing pro contracts in the dollar war between the National and American Football leagues.

The contract most talked about is the $400,000 put out by the New York Jets of the AFL to lure Alabama quarterback Joe Namath into the fold.

"I saw Namath play in the Orange Bowl against Texas," Hanner said. "He looked great, but he will have to make a big improvement to look that good in the pros."

"You can't blame the boys for taking the money but when you pay that much for a player, you have to play him, and if he doesn't do well, then you're going to have dissension on the ball club and friction is the worst thing you can have on a club."

Hanner, who earns in the $20,000 a year bracket as one of the NFL's top linemen, lives here in the off season. He played his college football at Arkansas.

POWER PLANT FOR EGYPT

CAIRO — The United Arab Republic and Czechoslovakia have signed a contract under which the latter will build a power station in the Egyptian city of Ismailia. Total costs are estimated at $20 million, payable in 12 yearly installments.

Computer Speeds Work

The recent installation of an IBM 7044 computer in the University Computer Center will enable operators with lengthy problems to obtain results four to five times faster than with the previous 7040 computer, according to G. P. Weeg, director of the center.

The addition of the 7044 computer will cost an additional $3,000 a month to operate. However, the time saved due to its increased speed will make the 7044 more economical to operate though the cost per hour is higher than that of the 7040 it replaced, Weeg said.

Operations Manager Paul J. Wolfe said the increase in speed is the result of an increase in memory access and tape passing time.

The computer was put in operation here three days after it arrived from the IBM plant in Kingston, N.Y. Dec. 21.

The machine is being rented from IBM at a 60 per cent discount given to educational institutions.

With the new computer, the center can now store 32,000 words in its memory file and recall them in two microseconds, Wolfe said.

Iowa To Relate His Experiences As Doctor in Viet

Dr. Robert E. G. Norton, a native of Grinnell, will describe his experiences as a surgeon in South Viet Nam to students and faculty members of the College of Medicine Friday.

Norton, who will speak at 11 a.m. in the Medical Amphitheatre at General Hospital, was a member of the first surgical team sent to South Viet Nam by the U.S. Public Health Service (USPHS) in September, 1962. He was named medical officer in command of the unit in May, 1963.

Presently on leave from active duty for a USPHS sponsored speaking tour, Norton heads one of five surgical teams sent to South Viet Nam to care for the surgical needs of Vietnamese troops and civilians in civilian hospitals.

Also serving in the country are two teams from the Philippines and single teams from Australia, Holland, Italy, New Zealand, and the Republic of China. Norton's team is located at Can-tho, 80 miles south of Saigon.

Norton is a 1952 graduate of Grinnell College. He received his medical degree from Harvard in 1956 and took his internship and surgical training at Iowa Methodist Hospital, Des Moines.

Model U.N. Seeks Delegates For First Annual Session

"Be it resolved that the Republic of China be replaced by the People's Republic of China as permanent representative to the Security Council."

Similar resolutions will ring through the Union Main Lounge Feb. 12-13 during the first annual session of the U of I Model United Nations.

Delegates are needed for the Model U.N., which is patterned after the actual United Nations. Phone 338-9098 or Ext. 5224 to join. Present members should call to be assigned to delegations. Foreign students are urged to join and represent their own country.

Issues argued at the Model U.N. are based on problems currently before the Security Council and the General Assembly.

Each delegation will be composed of three members, all University students. Foreign students will be on the delegations that represent their countries.

At 7 p.m., Feb. 12, the Secretariat, the Securities Committee, and the Social and Economic Council will meet. These committees, composed of a member from each delegation, will decide which issues will be presented to the General Assembly.

The General Assembly will meet Feb. 13 to discuss these problems. Each delegation will vote on these problems as they think "their" country would vote in the actual U.N.

"The Model U.N. is one place to find an education that cannot be found in a textbook," said Marcia Benischek, A3, Monticello, publicity chairman for the Model U.N.

"It gives students a chance to learn foreign students' true opinion of the United States," she said.

Traveling Collection Shows Product of Combined Media

The use made of photography by nearly 50 twentieth century painters is illustrated in a traveling exhibition of paintings and photographs to be shown in the Art Building from Sunday to Feb. 7.

Occupying both floors of the Main Gallery, the exhibition will include paintings by such noted artists as Salvador Dali, Marsden Hartley, Pablo Picasso, Georges Rouault, Charles Sheeler and Ashile Gorky.

The exhibition was organized by the staff of the Art Gallery of the University of New Mexico and is being shown during 1965 at five institutions besides The University of Iowa. It has been shown at Brandeis University, Waltham, Mass., and has come to the U of I from Indiana University.

IT ALSO WILL be shown at the Isaac Delgado Museum of Art in New Orleans, the Santa Barbara (Calif.) Museum of Art, and the University of New Mexico Art Gallery. The works were loaned for the exhibition by museums and private collectors across the country.

Gallery hours at the Art Building will be from 2 to 5 p.m. Sundays, and from 10 a.m. to noon and 2 to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays. The gallery will be closed Mondays. There will be no formal opening for the show.

Four University of Iowa graduates represented in "The Painter and the Photograph" are Allan Blizard, who was born in Boston in 1929 and now lives in Claremont, Calif.; John Kacere, born in Walker, Iowa, in 1920, and now living in New York; Ellen Lanyon, born in 1926 in Chicago, where she lives now; and Walter Meigs, born in 1918 in New York City, where he now resides.

ALL FOUR EARNED master of fine arts degrees from Iowa. Kacere also was awarded a bachelor of fine arts degree, and Blizard, a doctor of philosophy degree in art history.

The catalog for the exhibition, written by Van Deren Coke of the University of New Mexico, points out that the photograph functions not as a crutch but as a means of expanding the painter's vision, permitting him to see aspects of a situation previously overlooked, or beyond the range of the human eye.

THE CATALOG CONTAINS many illustrations of works by such artists as Gauguin, Cezanne, Manet, Delacroix, Picasso and Man Ray, with accompanying photographs showing sources of the artists' ideas.

Photographs used by the artists represented in the current exhibition came from a variety of sources, including magazines, newspapers, advertisements and family albums.

Noting that in his early years as a student it was generally considered "sinful and stupid" to think of the photo in connection with the painting, one artist quoted in the catalog said: "Only in the last half dozen years have I been aware of, and used, the photo as a positive stimulus for painting."

"THE PHOTOGRAPH makes diversity of experience more accessible to the painter. Of course, not all photos are interesting any more than all natural phenomena are interesting to a given person. Infinite suggestions are resident in the photographic print for the artist to build on. It puts the world at the artist's fingertips.

"Our age is the age of the photograph. And since the photograph abounds and confronts us daily in books, magazines, and newspapers and in the form of movies and television, thus constituting so much of our reality, it has a naturally propitious carry-over to painting."

Some of the artists represented in the show incorporated photographs into their paintings, with the photos acting as proxies for three-dimensional real objects.

One huge silk-screen made from a photograph presents a cinema-like repetition of an automobile accident, achieving a snocking impact through its multiple use of the harsh scene.

Self-portrait

A faded photograph made when the artist was 8 years old and still living in his native Armenia provided the basic composition for Arshile Gorky's "The Artist and His Mother." This work, along with about 50 others, will be on display beginning Sunday as part of "The Painter and the Photograph" exhibit in the Main Gallery of the Art Building.

Senate Views Constitutional Amendments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Enough senators to pass the measure, Wednesday introduced a proposed constitutional amendment to deal with the problems of presidential disability and of filling vacancies in the office of vice president.

Sen. Birch Bayh (D-Ind.), introduced it for himself and 66 co-sponsors — the exact two-thirds majority needed for Senate approval of the legislation if all of 100 senators are present and voting.

A separate resolution, sponsored by Sen. Jack Miller (R-Iowa), would provide only for filling a vacancy in the office of vice president.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-S.D.), introduced a third measure which would amend the Constitution to change the state-by-state, winner-take-all Electoral College system of electing presidents and vice presidents. Another approach to that problem was taken in a measure introduced in the House by Rep. Jim Wright (D-Tex.).

The Bayh resolution is similar to one passed by the Senate last September, on which the House failed to act. It would permit the president to nominate a new vice president when the office becomes vacant, subject to majority vote confirmation of the nominee by the Senate and House in joint session.

Miller's proposal is similar except that it would spell out that the new vice presidential nominee must be of the same political faith as the president.

Other points in Bayh's measure would provide methods for determining the inability of a president to perform his duties, and declare that the vice president in such an event would take over as acting president until the disability ended. It would affirm also that a vice president filling a vacancy becomes the president — not acting president.

Mundt's proposed constitutional amendment would change the system under which each state's entire Electoral College vote goes to winner. He would substitute a system under which two electors from each state would be elected by statewide vote, while its other electors would be elected from districts roughly corresponding to its congressional districts.

The bill by Wright in the House would require that the electoral votes cast for each state be in the same proportion as the popular votes received.

State Legislator To Stand Trial In Voting Fraud

DETROIT (AP) — A state legislator who allegedly hid his criminal background by assuming the identity of a Yale Law School honor graduate has been ordered to stand trial on two voter registration fraud charges.

Recorder's Court Judge Joseph Gillis ruled Tuesday that Rep. Daniel West, 55, must stand trial on felony charges of conspiring to aid and abet in false voter registration and for subornation of perjury. Conviction could bring prison sentences of five years for each offense.

West also is awaiting trial on 117 counts of federal income tax swindles involving false returns and refunds, which could result in another 75 years in prison.

West has served prison terms in Iowa and Minnesota for forgery, burglary and larceny.

Chinese Back Indonesia's United Nations Withdrawal

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Red China and the Soviet Union made Indonesia a diplomatic battleground Wednesday. The Chinese backed Indonesia's decision to withdraw from the United Nations and the Soviets opposed it.

Communist Chinese Ambassador Yao Chung-ming called twice on Foreign Minister Subandrio to communicate Peking's backing.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said Yao obviously informed Subandrio about Communist China's solid support to Indonesia's stand, made earlier in Peking.

But the spokesman did not explain why Yao met twice with Subandrio — once in the morning and again in the evening.

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai A. Mikhalov got to Subandrio first. He called Tuesday night and urged Indonesia to remain in the United Nations, reliable diplomatic sources said.

Diplomatic quarters have expressed fear that Indonesia's withdrawal would further cement relations between Peking and Jakarta. They said the Soviet Union seems to share this view.

It was a day of intense diplomatic activity for Subandrio, U.S.

appealed to Sukarno to reconsider his decision for the sake of African-Asian solidarity and the cause of peace.

Communist China, which is also a member of the African-Asian group of nations, encouraged Sukarno to go ahead with the course he has set and quit the world organization. Radio Peking called the United Nations "a vile place for a few powers to share the spoils."

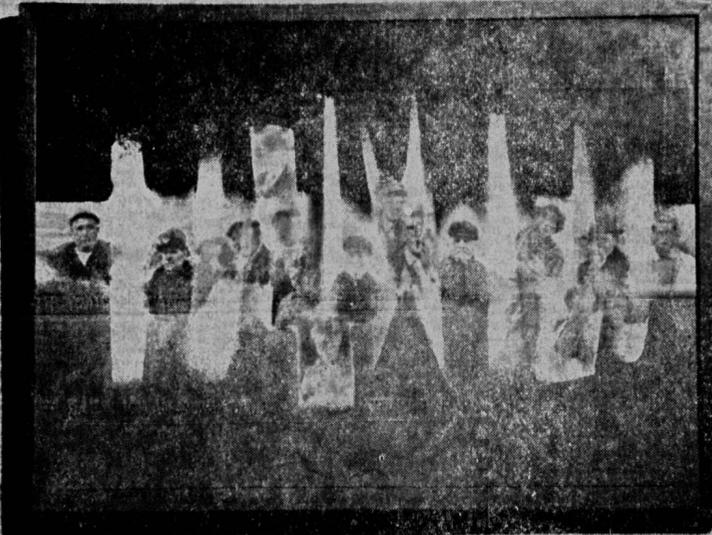

The Indonesia delegation has informed United Nations officials orally of Indonesia's decision to withdraw because Malaysia — with whom this country is in conflict — was admitted to the Security Council.

Two Injured When Car Strikes Bus

Two Kalona youths were reported in satisfactory condition in Mercy Hospital Wednesday afternoon following a collision Wednesday morning of their car and a Washington township school bus carrying 56 children.

The driver of the car, Lloyd Slabach, 17, suffered a fracture and cuts, hospital officials reported. Lloyd's brother, David, was riding in the car and also suffered cuts. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Slabach of Kalona.

The car hit the right rear of the bus as it was slowing to turn into a driveway to turn around, the Highway Patrol reported.

Heavy fog apparently blocked Slabach's vision and he was unable to see the bus, patrolmen said.

None of the children was seriously injured in the accident, which occurred about a mile south of the school, according to Principal Harold Ross.

The car, a 1965 model with only 200 miles on it, was demolished.

Slabach was charged with failure to stop in the assured clear distance ahead, the Highway Patrol reported.
