

Churchill's Music Request To Be Honored at Funeral

SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL (1874-1965)

LONDON (AP) — The House of Commons, with one seat conspicuously vacant, speedily approved Monday a request of Queen Elizabeth II for a state funeral for Sir Winston Churchill in "the discharge of our debt of public gratitude and national sorrow."

Prime Minister Harold Wilson, a Laborite opponent of Churchillian conservatism, keynoted the ceremony in the Commons, honoring the British leader of World War II. "It will be for those war years that his name will be remembered as long as history is written and history is read," Wilson said.

The vacant seat was the last of several occupied in the House over a 62-year period by Churchill, the beloved elder statesman who died Sunday at 90.

A solemnly magnificent farewell salute is coming Saturday on lines that friends revealed were sketched by Churchill himself in World War II. Among other things, he wanted plenty of music. So at least 10 bands will be in the funeral procession.

Men of the army, navy and air force — 3,500 in all — will line the route from Westminster Hall to St. Paul's. Another 3,500, including units of many crack regiments, will be in the line of march.

The great hall of Westminster hasn't always been a hall of tears. It has echoed to the roistering of coronation banquets and the silvery trumpet fanfares of great state occasions.

Little of William's original palace remains. The present hall dates from the much-betrayed King Richard II, who built the hall and had to face trial in it. He was deposed in 1399 and died the next year in prison.

LBJ May Fly To London For Funeral

Physically Able Now, But Trip May Bring Recurrence of Cold

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aides said Monday President Johnson has recovered almost fully from his head cold, and that whether he attends the Churchill funeral will hinge largely on how his convalescence progresses.

These sources said that, at this point, there is no question that Johnson will be physically able to make the trip. They said the big question now is whether he regains his strength enough so there would be small possibility of a recurrence of the ailment if he flies to London for the Saturday rites.

Press secretary George E. Reedy said that, while Johnson's temperature remains normal and all medical tests have produced normal readings, Johnson's doctors plan to continue giving him reduced doses of antibiotics "for another couple of days, hopefully in the hospital."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk visited the President Monday afternoon and they talked for 30 to 40 minutes about world affairs and Johnson's projected trip to London. It was Johnson's first announced session with any official, outside the White House staff, since he went to the hospital early Saturday.

Johnson's temperature was described as within the normal range Monday, after reaching a high of 99.2 Sunday night. The President had said Sunday that his departure from the Naval Medical Center at Bethesda, Md., might depend on when he got rid of his fever.

Reedy said that, while Johnson was much improved, his doctors would still like to keep him in the hospital for a further period of convalescence.

Reedy said Johnson doubtless had already been offered considerable advice on whether it would be wise to fly to the rites for Sir Winston Saturday. But he emphasized that the President will make his own decision, and that presumably it will hinge in good measure on how he feels by Wednesday or Thursday. Johnson said earlier he wants very much to make the trip.

Johnson was given an electrocardiogram Monday morning — his second since he entered the hospital at 2:50 a.m. Saturday with a heavy cold and sore throat. As before, the results were described as normal.

Registration Line To Be Re-Routed Second Semester

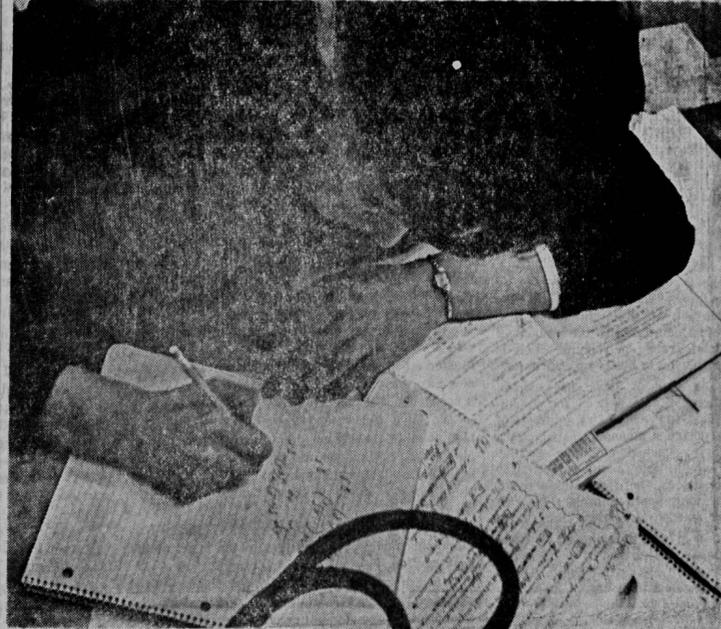

Students registering for second semester classes will find a new twist awaiting them when they enter the Field House next week — a tour of the swimming pool area. But they needn't bring their bathing suits.

Registrar Donald Rhoades announced Monday that registration lines for second semester will be routed through the pool area instead of just going straight into the main area from the southeast door of the Field House.

"We're doing this for two reasons," he said. "The bleachers by the pool will provide sitting space for students who come early — and they always seem to come early. Also, we will provide a bulletin board in front of the pool listing all closed sections. This information will be kept up to date, and students waiting in the bleachers may use their waiting time to rearrange their schedules around closed sections."

40 More Air Force Cadets Resign; Administrators Silent

AIR FORCE ACADEMY (AP) — Forty more cadets, bringing the total to 69, reportedly left the U.S. Air Force Academy Monday in the wake of a cheating scandal triggered by an organized ring that stole and sold examination papers to fellow students.

At the same time, details of the ring's operations were made public unofficially, although not confirmed by academy administrators, who maintained an uneasy and tight-lipped silence.

From cadets and enlisted personnel it was learned that a third-year cadet stole a key and broke into a locker containing test papers just prior to the Christmas midterm examinations.

This cadet, the unofficial report said, then recruited 10 other cadets, some of them football players, to sell the papers to other students. The papers apparently were copied and returned to the file before the theft could be discovered immediately.

Friday, Jan. 15, two freshmen learned of the operation. After sweating it out over the weekend they carried the information to scandal and its investigation-enactuality members. The current sued.

The figure of 40 additional resignations to keep from facing court martial was given by a source in the information office.

Some of these cadets were taken to the airport in academy buses, the informant said. Others took bus, train and private automobile transportation to their homes in a swirling snowstorm that dropped about two inches on the academy's 18,000 acres.

No names were disclosed. Maj. Gen. Robert H. Warren, Academy Superintendent, issued a terse one-paragraph statement Monday which said: "No additional information of the current investigation will be released today since there are no developments beyond those given to the press Jan. 23 by Secretary of the Air Force Eugene Zuckert."

The secretary announced Saturday that at least 100 cadets were involved in the current scandal, 30 of them members of the academy football team. Twenty-nine cadets had resigned previously.

Warren, at his first formal press conference since the announcement of irregularities was made, said Monday: "We hope to have some specifics Tuesday." He added that he intended to clean up the case "abruptly and fast."

Finals Frenzy

Sleep is better than a stimulant for success on final exams, according to Dr. Chester Miller, head of Student Health.

Although some students may be relying on stimulants to catch up on studying skipped during the semester, doctors strongly urge they get their sleep before taking tests.

A cup of coffee or tea and a study break are more effective than stimulants for coping with lecture notes or textbooks, Miller said.

Stimulants can become habit-forming, and they usually cause depression after they have worn off. Dr. Miller said a student in such a depression loses his capacity to concentrate and is not as efficient as he might otherwise be.

There wasn't a major surprise in the whole spending bundle. ONLY SOME of the figures were new. And these merely hung current price tags on the old, continuing programs and on the new ones Johnson had outlined in campaign speeches and his State of the Union message Jan. 4.

In rounded totals, the 1966 spending estimate of $99.7 billion compares with $97.5 for fiscal 1965. Government income is expected to go up from $91.2 billion to $94.4 — a gain of $3.2.

Thus the 1966 deficit would come to $5.2 billion, whereas the gap between income and outgo is calculated at $6.3 billion for this fiscal year.

This would mean that the national debt would rise from $316.9 billion on June 30, 1965, to $322.5 billion on June 30, 1966.

The object of this budget, Johnson said, is to wipe out waste, meet the nation's needs and move toward the fulfillment of hopes, in "continued progress toward a Great Society."

He said it offers: "Massive defense" with lower outlays, at $49 billion. This is down $300 million.

More and better education for American children and some adults, at a 75 per cent boost in expenditures to $2.6 billion.

A stepped-up assault on poverty with stepped-up spending, from $347 million to $1.3 billion, that Johnson said would help millions of people.

LBJ Asks for $99.7 Billion To Launch 'Great Society'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson handed Congress on Monday a $99,687,000,000 bill for the first year of his "Great Society."

It is a red ink budget offering $2 billion more in Social Security benefits, $1.75 billion less in excise taxes, and a helping hand against ignorance, poverty and disease.

"It is a budget of both opportunity and sacrifice," Johnson said in a message transmitting it to Congress. "It begins to grasp the opportunities of the Great Society."

HIS FEDERAL financial chart for the new 1966 fiscal year that starts July 1 calls for spending about $2.2 billion more than in this fiscal year. But it forecasts that the Government will go only $1 billion deeper in the hole.

Johnson told Congress the budget is reasonable rather than miserly or extravagant.

"Continued economic expansion and improved economic opportunity" through careful planning.

Part of the presidential design is an increase of 7 per cent in Social Security benefits, retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year. But along with this would go a double bite out of pay checks, starting next Jan. 1, to help finance hospital and nursing care for the elderly if Congress finally approves the administration's health care program. The program itself would take effect in mid-1966.

Bookkeeping Manipulation: Hickenlooper

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans offered to back President Johnson in cutting taxes Monday but were sharply critical of what Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) called "bookkeeping manipulation" in the budget.

Chairman George Mahon (D-Tex.) of the House Appropriations Committee said "I personally know that the President and his associates labored mightily" to hold spending below $100 billion, but most GOP members were not impressed.

Sen. Roman L. Hruska (R-Neb.) said the budget is replete with "the same old magic Hickenlooper tricks and sleight-of-hand."

"THE MOST conspicuous example of deception," Hruska said, "is the figure for total expenditures — $99.7 billion. Setting the total at that figure is like pricing an item for sale at $9.98 — we are supposed to forget that there won't be enough left from a $10 bill to buy a newspaper."

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the new GOP leader in the House, said he had some suspicion that to keep the spending total under $100 billion "they are overestimating revenues and underestimating expenses."

FORD AND SEVERAL other Republicans including Rep. Frank T. Bow of Ohio, top GOP member of the House Ways and Means Committee, contended that Johnson's budget for the fiscal year starting July 1 actually exceeds the $100-billion mark by more than $6 billion.

The Republicans said the budget calls for $106.4 billion in new authority to incur spending obligations.

Many Democrats saw the budget in a better light. House Majority Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma said that "by every realistic test the budget is fiscally responsible beyond any doubt."

Hruska, a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said in a statement that Johnson's budget proposes appropriations aggregating $112.4 billion, and added: "He makes a 1966 appropriation request appear as $106.4 billion only through the device of asking that $6 billion of his request be charged to 1965 rather than 1966."

Hruska said that despite an attempt to create an impression of thrift "the fact is that the only important economies in this budget are at the expense of national security where expenditures are to be cut by $400 million with expenditures in nearly all other departments to be increased."

Buddhists Demonstrate In Viet Nam

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — Buddhist demonstrations erupted in the suburbs of Saigon Monday after a day of violence forced the government to impose martial law on the northern city of Hue.

The number of persons arrested since the antigovernment outbreaks began Friday rose to 800.

Some 70 monks and nearly 100 of their followers were arrested by government paratroopers who quickly quelled a demonstration outside the headquarters of the Gia Dinh provincial chief.

In another Saigon suburb, some 200 students tried to set fire to market stalls but were stopped by police and troops. About half the students were arrested.

Martial law was slapped on Hue Monday, an hour after 500 youths sacked the homes of two high officials and burned all their belongings.

Unthinkable war

UNCLE SAM WAS the object of another series of riots in Viet Nam this weekend, but officials do not seem to be taking the hint, and they say the yankees will not go home.

About 5,000 Vietnamese demonstrated against the government, Premier Tran Van Huong declared over the radio. "At this solemn hour, the life of the nation is in the people's hands," and Buddhists demanded the withdrawal of Maxwell Taylor, the U.S. ambassador, within 48 hours.

Yet at the same time, William Bundy, assistant secretary of state, told the Associated Press that U.S. withdrawal from South Viet Nam was "unthinkable."

Bundy even had the nerve to speak of expanding the war.

Nearly a year ago Sen. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee, made a speech which set a number of folks thinking. One of the main points of that speech was that we must begin thinking those thoughts which we have always considered "unthinkable." The world is a place of constant change, attitudes must change along with conditions if man is to act with any semblance of rationality.

Perhaps Bundy missed Sen. Fulbright's speech, or maybe he thought the committee chairman was joking. A number of people have taken the senator quite seriously — as we shall see when the next foreign aid appropriations bill comes before the Senate.

If our State Department had not taken its "unthinkable" position on South Viet Nam, recent riots might have impressed them with a few ideas.

First, there are a number of persons in the country who do not want the United States to interfere in South Viet Nam's domestic difficulties. These people are not Viet Cong guerrillas or imports from North Viet Nam; they are solid citizens of the Buddhist faith.

These people have opposed the reigning government since before the stable Diem regime was overthrown (with the aid of the CIA). These people have continued to oppose the many governments which the United States has set up since the Diem overthrow.

Second, since these people are opposed to their government, the United States is actually engaged in fighting on the losing side of an internal revolution.

This country first stuck its nose into the problems of Viet Nam at the request of the government there. We sent "advisers" to aid the South Vietnamese in their fight against the Communists of the North. But today the government which first invited us has been ousted (with our aid) and the governments which have replaced it (again with our aid) have difficulty in maintaining stability for over two months.

We haven't given up thinking over here, it might appear clear that we are in one helluva mess from which there is no way to emerge victorious. If we were really on our toes, we might even begin negotiating a settlement with the rebels before our position becomes worse.

We won't do this, of course — it would be "unthinkable."

Cheating cadets

IT WAS REVEALED last weekend that over 100 cadets at the Air Force Academy have been caught cheating. This break of the honor code did not merely entail ghost-written themes and essays or some of the more common forms of collegiate dishonesty. But it seems about 10 cadets have actually taken to stealing and selling test papers.

Although the military honor code should have been sufficient to prevent this sort of thing, perhaps some of the blame should be shifted to the faculty.

If even the slightest precautions had been taken, this blatant violation would not have been possible.

At the University of Iowa, no one ever has an opportunity to even see a test — let alone steal one — before the examination hour.

It is difficult for students in Iowa City to imagine how cadets in Colorado Springs managed to get those tests in advance. Though certainly if it were possible here, there are those who would be doing a thriving business in black market exams.

He didn't want to go

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — The inauguration was over and people were checking out of the hotel. I wandered into the bar and saw a man sitting at the bar staring into his glass. He turned to me and said, "You know, I didn't even want to come to the inauguration. You can ask my wife if you don't believe me."

"I believe you," I said.

"When the invitation came, I said, 'Let's send my wife.' But my wife said, 'Not on your life. You worked hard to get Johnson elected and you should go.'"

"What did you do to get Johnson elected," I asked him.

"I gave the Democratic party $1,000 for his campaign. What do you think I did?"

"YOU MADE a great contribution," I said.

"So I agreed to go. Do you know what that $1,000 contribution cost me?"

"Plenty?"

"It cost me $6,000."

"How come?"

"I contributed $1,500 to Hattie Carnegie, $1,200 to Oleg Cassini, and $1,300 to Christian Dior, and that was only for the ball gowns."

"But surely it must have been worth it."

"When I arrived, I checked into my hotel room. It was the size of a small compact car. My wife said, 'After all you've done for the Democratic party, this is how they repay you.'"

"There are ingrates in every profession," I said.

"ON MONDAY evening we were invited to the gala at the Armory. I hired a car for $50 to go to there. It was 17 degrees above zero and we had to walk two blocks because of the traffic jam. The wind whipped through that $1,500 Hattie Carnegie dress like it was a Venetian blind."

"Your wife was mad?"

"Have you ever tried to climb up to the third balcony of a national armory when both legs are frostbitten?"

"He ordered another drink."

"The next day we went to the governors' reception. It was so crowded I thought I had lost my wife for the week. But no such luck. I found her stretched out on a couch in the lobby and she spotted me before I could sneak out the door. That night at the concert we were seated next to a Secret Serviceman."

"You mean near the President?"

"No, he was a Secret Serviceman assigned to see that nobody sneaked in from the roof."

"You were pretty high up."

"The next day we had seats for the inauguration about two miles south of the Washington-Baltimore Expressway. Fortunately, the guy next to us had a transistor and we heard the whole parade on radio."

"I don't imagine you fared any better at the Inaugural Ball."

"WE HAD the only table set up next to the newsstand in the Statler-Hilton Hotel. By this time my wife and I weren't talking, so it didn't make any difference where we sat, anyway."

"Where is your wife now?"

"She's upstairs packing. But I'll tell you the truth, I'm afraid to go home."

"Why?"

"Before we left, my wife told everyone in town that on the basis of being personally invited to the inauguration I was probably going to be made the new Ambassador to France."

New looks for crooks in England

NEW YORK — An ugly British criminal can now walk out of jail and literally be a new man — thanks to plastic surgery.

According to The Insider's Newsletter, Britain's National Health Service has been offering free face-lifts to convicts while they serve time in prison.

The oddity came to light when it was disclosed that in the past five years more than 200 prisoners have undergone plastic surgery to alter ears or noses and remove scars or tattoos.

The operations, paid for by National Health, are performed if it felt the prisoner is suffering psychological harm as a result of his ugliness or deformities.

At Grendon Psychiatric Jail in Buckinghamshire, 24 prisoners had face-lifts to help their rehabilitation. Small operations are done in the prison hospitals, but prisoners are removed to civilian hospitals for major plastic surgery.

As long as there are exams, there will be prayers in public schools. When each appointed day and hour arrive, and mimeographed sheets are solemnly distributed, muttered words will be heard. These are prayers. Some are prayers for the perpetual persecution of the perpetrator of this punishment; others are supplications for support from the Supreme Being. Certainly there will be an occasional expression of gratitude for trusty test files.

As long as there are exams, there will be No-Doz and coffee, benzadrine and dextrine, or their equivalents. Students have always welcomed help from medical science when crisis loomed, and will continue to welcome it. The first universities in England issued beer rations during exam week.

Our enlightened modern age demands that the students provide their own supports, and though many follow happily in the old tradition, others seek help from poisons less likely to produce drowsiness.

AS LONG AS there are exams, there will be oil consumed by students. Even the vast quantity burned at midnight is nothing when compared to the amount of solid greasy petroleum which is employed to butter up instructors.

As long as there are exams, there will be a need for infirmaries. In recent years, numbers of reported mononucleosis cases have reached epidemic proportions in late January. In many instances, the disease is a result of long hours unbroken by rest or nourishment other than pizza.

In others, it is caused by term paper deadlines or by careful study of the test schedule. Mono, as it is affectionately known, is a type of glandular fever and obligingly lends itself to an almost endless variety of symptoms.

As long as there are exams, there will be people who don't seem to have them. These are the people who fill the Limer and Joe's. One of them lives down the hall and has a stereo which has become inescapable. It consumes Beethoven records endlessly. The noise it makes while eating is deafening.

AS LONG AS there are exams, there will be instructors who profess, quite truthfully, to hate tests as much as the students do. Exams must be composed, dictated, then graded as though they were the keys to the world's only fall-out shelter. Later, exams must be graded, then grades recorded and turned in, so students may reschedule the course for the next semester.

Even the most harried of instructors can think of no substitute for exams, at least none which would be acceptable to the head of their department. All this leads, members of the academic community — students and faculty alike — to conclude:

As long as there are students, there will be exams.

Two trucks met on a country road just wide enough for one. The first driver, a scrawny little man, leaned out of his cab.

"If you don't, I'll do to you what I did to the last guy who wouldn't turn out for me!"

The second driver was muscular and weighed almost 200 pounds, but did not care to have trouble. He pulled out. As the other driver's truck rumbled by, he yelled, "What did you do to the other guy?"

"Turned out for him!"

Thud & blunder— Agent OOG solves University mystery

By JON VAN
Managing Editor

James Bottledin (alias agent OOG) made his way carefully to the office of his superior (alias M & M) with all the dexterity and skill for which this super spy is famous. Although M & M's office was on the fifth floor of the Government Security Building, Bottledin told the elevator operator (a sexy blonde): "Eighth floor, please." He was taking no chances.

"But sir," the girl gushed, "the building only has five floors — you must mean fifth floor. That's as high as you can go."

Immediately the quick witted agent sensed something was up. This girl knew too much. He gave her two well placed jabs in the back with his index finger. An expert in oriental finger jabbing, he knew this would render her defenseless.

"Fresh!" the blonde squealed as she belted Bottledin's stomach with her clinched fist. The spy doubled up and reeled backward out of the elevator.

He considered shooting the wench with his miniature Macorn (complete with silencer), but checked himself. His license to kill had expired two weeks ago, and he still had to take the written exam and the eye test before he could get a renewal.

HE USED the stairs to get to the fifth floor. M & M looked pensively at Bottledin from behind his mahogany topped ivory desk.

"Come in Jim, sit down," the chief was up to something. A new and juicy assignment? "You look haggard." He must be upset about that business with the Venezuelan banana spy.

"No, it's just the climb up those stairs."

"Oh really? Isn't the elevator working? You know you shouldn't be exerting yourself, you just got out of the hospital, remember." The chief was unusually patronizing. What was up? Was Bottledin to be punished for botching that banana case? It hadn't been his fault. How was he to know that Castro was a CIA agent? Damn central office never mentioned a thing about it.

"Never mind the elevator, chief, I'm okay."

M & M TOOK his feet off the desk and looked his master spy squarely in the eye. "Jim, we've got a new case for you. It may not amount to much, but it looks like it's gonna be tricky."

"We have reason to believe there is a SMIRK plot afoot to undermine the United States through an insidious attack on the nation's youth and its system of higher education. This plot is centered in High Away City, home of the University of High Away."

"Do you know the nature of the plot?" asked Bottledin, his instincts taking him to the heart of the matter at once.

"How shrewd of you to ask," the chief admired his spy's craftiness. "Unfortunately we don't. Information came to us through usually reliable sources — an anonymous letter. You'll have to go there and investigate on your own. As I say, this could be something big, or just a routine investigation. You leave for High Away City in two days — as soon as you take your written exam and your eye test for your killing license renewal."

BOTTLEDIN FOUND High Away City was like most other cities he'd seen with under 50,000 population — a dump. He came in on the train without incident; two blondes and a redhead had tried to seduce him, but he pushed them off while crossing the Mississippi.

After checking into the hotel, Bottledin headed for a downtown tavern where students were known to hang out. He sat alone in a booth for a time, until the place became quite crowded. Eventually a couple of students asked to share his booth. This would make a good opportunity for gathering information on SMIRK's plot.

"Pardon me," Bottledin began coyly, "can you tell me about anything sinister going on around town — like an alien plot?"

"Well," the boy across from the spy began, "I can't . . . oops, excuse me a moment . . . I gotta get to my car — time to put some more money in the meter. Had to park at one of those quarter-hour meters."

The student ran out in a dash. Bottledin looked to the other boy sitting across from him.

"How about you — have you heard of anything sinister going on?"

"WELL, WHEN I stop to think . . . omigosh! Say excuse me mister . . . Jack's parking meter just reminded me . . . my car's been parked over two hours in the same place . . . I forgot all about it." The lad ran from the bar.

Bottledin left his booth and took a seat at the bar near several students. He listened to their conversation.

"And I should have enough money to last the rest of the semester," one said, "unless I run over my $45 a month parking allowance."

"That's pretty tight, you'll have to be careful," another said.

"I figure to just park my car outside the city limits and walk for a couple weeks," came the answer.

Meanwhile an older gentleman wearing an American Legion hat sat down next to Bottledin. "Pardon me," asked the spy, "do you know of any sinister plots? These kids don't seem to be talking of anything but parking problems."

"PLOTS? CONSPIRACIES? The town is filled with 'em!" The man was enthusiastic. "Worst one is Communist speakers. They're subverting our young folk."

"Is that right?" here was a lead. "How many do they have around here?"

"Oh, they must have plenty — University won't ban 'em — all pinkos."

"Hmmm . . . well are there any around here now? I'd like to look into this."

"Don't know, I've been too busy fightin' for a ban to keep count. I can tell you though, these kids . . . oops, say friend, I gotta run, my car's parked in a five minute zone."

The man left immediately. He ran into three students who were all dashing to the door at once. Suddenly Bottledin noticed something strange. He was the only one in the place who wasn't dashing in and out every few minutes. There was something strange going on here.

The noted international spy suddenly had one of his famous hunches. He asked the barkeeper, "Say, can you tell me if there have been any new officials hired here recently by the city?"

"JUST ONE, Mac," came the reply.

"What's his position?"

"City parking planner — he's in charge of all the new ordinances aimed at keeping traffic flowing so we can keep the streets cleared."

"What's his name?"

"Bill Goldman."

"The famous SMIRK agent!"

"That's right, sucker but you're not gonna tell anyone."

Bottledin went for his small Italian gun complete with silencer, but it was too late, he couldn't move, he was turning into a bronze statue.

"You think that was beer you been drinkin'?" laughed the barkeep. "It's the deadly poison Golden Flow. We're gonna put feathers on your head and sell you to the cigar store down the street."

Wilson Sees Diplomatic Talks With World Leaders Friday

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson is aiming for a round of diplomatic talks with world leaders expected to gather in London Friday for the funeral of Sir Winston Churchill.

Wilson met Monday with his top cabinet ministers in the Defense and Overseas Policy Committee. Although the meeting was to continue study of a government defense policy document to be presented to Parliament Feb. 16, government sources said subjects to be discussed, even if briefly, with the visiting statesmen were studied.

The informants said Wilson is particularly looking forward to a talk with President Charles de Gaulle of France, Chancellor Ludwig Erhard of Germany and President Johnson, if they are able to come.

The informants said that with a political truce on domestic politics declared until next Monday because of the death of Sir Winston and his funeral on Saturday, Wilson felt free to devote his attention almost exclusively to foreign affairs.

And with a new minister, inexperienced in foreign affairs, at the foreign office, this was believed extremely important at this stage. Michael Stewart was named Friday to succeed Patrick Gordon Walker after the foreign secretary's shattering defeat in a special election intended to provide him a seat in the House of Commons.

Stewart is slated to confer with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, France's Maurice Couve de Murville and other foreign ministers coming for the funeral ceremonies.

The truce in domestic politics was underscored Monday when candidates for three special elections to be held next month in Altricham, East Grinstead and Salisbury agreed to a halt in campaigning until Monday. The elections are to replace Conservative legislators elected in the Oct. 15 national elections and since raised to the peerage. The three Conservative candidates should win by wide margins.

The National Rural Electric Cooperative Association (NRECA), said Monday that Iowa Power and Light Co. overcharged its customers $12,433,000 during a seven-year period ended 1962.

The NRECA said Iowa Power was one of 106 of the nation's largest private power companies surveyed in a nation-wide survey.

THE REPORT SAID THE Commonwealth Edison Co. of Illinois had the heaviest overcharge during the 1956-1962 period, $186.5 million.

The report said Iowa Power's rate of return averaged 6.8 per cent during the seven-year period, with a high of 8.3 per cent and a low of 6.4 per cent.

Several private power companies named in the report called the charges false and misleading and said the charges had been raised and answered several years ago.

THE PRIVATE COMPANIES stressed that their rates had been approved by public regulatory agencies.

In Des Moines, Iowa Power President A. Paul Thompson said in a statement that the rates of all investor-owned electric firms in Iowa were regulated under Iowa law.

"Using accepted utility regulatory practices," the statement said, "Iowa Power, during the 1956-1962 period, earned less than the accepted six per cent rate of return used by the cooperatives' trade association."

THOMPSON'S STATEMENT questioned the validity of the association's figures.

Thompson said Iowa Power assumes the report was compiled by the same staff members who prepared a similar report in 1963, adding:

"Our review of the 1963 report indicated that the trade association's computations contained errors in arithmetic and ignored certain existing tax laws and regulations, both local and federal."

The NRECA called on state regulatory agencies and legislatures to initiate action to force the private power companies to reduce their rates in the amount of their overcharges.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nebraska urged the Supreme Court Monday to take original jurisdiction and consider a controversy involving certain provisions of a 1943 Missouri River boundary compact between Iowa and Nebraska.

The issue stems from the fact that the river sometimes changes its course.

Negro Slugs Selma Sheriff

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Negroes seeking to register as voters lined up Monday without interference from sheriff's deputies, but one woman was jailed for slugging Sheriff James G. Clark.

And an out-of-town civil rights worker was arrested for blocking the sidewalk where scores stood awaiting their turn to take the voter test.

SHERIFF'S officers stood watch to keep the Negroes lined up in single file and to keep the sidewalk open. Mindful of a federal court injunction, the officers made no effort to break up the throng of prospective voters.

The court order was handed down Saturday by U.S. District Judge Daniel H. Thomas after Clark and his deputies had arrested more than 200 Negroes at the courthouse in an attempt to register.

The attack on the sheriff came shortly after Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. had led a large group of Negroes to the courthouse to join a line of waiting applicants which already had numbered about 65.

WITHOUT WARNING, a heavy-set Negro woman stepped out of the line and struck Clark in the left eye with her fist and then hit him again on the head.

Clawing and kicking, she was wrestled to the courthouse lawn by the sheriff and two of his deputies, handcuffed and pushed into a squad car. She was booked at the county jail as Annie Lee Cooper, 54, of Selma.

Clark said the woman also hit him three or four times during the struggle, and one of the deputies had a long scratch on the back of his neck which he said the woman inflicted.

THE SHERIFF did not file a charge against the woman, he said he would leave that to the circuit prosecutor.

Moments earlier, a Negro civil rights worker identified as Willie Lawrence McRay of Atlanta was dragged from the sidewalk and into the street by city police on charges of blocking the sidewalk and refusing to move.

McRay, of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, slumped to the pavement rather than walk to the police car and was dragged the rest of the way by his collar.

Northern Illinois Braces For Another Ice Storm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Northern Illinois, caught in the vise of one of the worst ice storms in years, braced for another onslaught of freezing rain and snow Monday while a raging storm battered the Southwest.

The storm spread a variety of bad weather across the south central states. Winds whipped the southern Plains, filling the air with dust and snow and reducing visibility to zero.

Snow fell over central and western Kansas, southeastern Colorado, and the Texas and Oklahoma panhandles.

Blizzard conditions prevailed over south central and western Kansas and parts of Texas and Oklahoma.

Weather Bureau forecasters kept a wary eye on the northern Illinois sector which has been sheeted under a destructive mantle of ice since Saturday.

The forecasters warned that freezing rain followed by snow was expected to hit the already ice-encrusted Chicago and northern Illinois area late Monday night or early Tuesday.

Committee Lists 1965 Greek Week Program

Plans for the 1965 Greek Week, scheduled for Feb. 14-19, were announced recently by the Greek Week committee.

Among the activities planned for the week are a Queen's Tea, set for Feb. 14 when fraternity presidents will honor the candidates for IFC Queen and select the five finalists. Each president will have one vote.

CAMPUS GREEK leaders will be honored at the Leadership Banquet in the Union Main Lounge Feb. 15. Each fraternity and sorority will be represented by its presidents and a representative from each of the four classes. The senior class representative will be the house's candidate for Outstanding Greek Man or Woman, and winners will be announced at the banquet.

Housemothers, faculty members, and administrative officials will be guests, and Loren Hickerson, director of the Alumni Association, will speak on "The Greek's Dilemma."

Other activities planned for Greek Week include an exchange program Feb. 16. University faculty members will eat dinner at a fraternity or sorority house, and then speak to members of the host house and another house which has been invited.

MONEY-MAKING projects will be held Feb. 17. Candidates for the "Ugliest Man" and "Prettiest Legs" are to be selected by each of the fraternities and sororities before that time.

The names of the candidates, however, will not be announced until voting Feb. 15-17. Each vote will cost 5 cents, and non-Greeks may vote. Winners will be named Feb. 17 in the Union River Room.

FOLLOWING the announcement, each fraternity and sorority will offer for auction a party, car wash, skit, a valuable object or other services.

Fraternities will bid on the sororities' offerings and the sororities will bid on the fraternities'.

Electronics Firm Will Purchase Amana Company

A Massachusetts electronics manufacturing company, Raytheon, said Monday it plans to acquire the Amana Refrigeration Co. in an exchange of stock.

The Amana name and management will be retained, according to plans, and the firm will operate as a Raytheon subsidiary.

Amana stockholders will receive common stock in exchange for their Amana shares under the merger agreement. Amana president George Foerster said the transaction would make him one of Raytheon's largest stockholders.

The number of shares involved will not be announced until other Amana stockholders have been notified of the exchange and have approved it. Their approval is expected before March.

The Amana firm employs about 1,000 people at its Iowa plant and makes refrigerators, freezers and air conditioners.

Foerster said the exchange would be beneficial because of Raytheon's engineering abilities.

Cuban Guerrilla Leader Caught by Castro's Men

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Havana radio said Monday night that Eloy Gutierrez Menoyo, guerrilla leader reported to have entered Cuba recently from exile with an anti-Castro band, has been captured.

Menoyo and three companions were seized by Castro militiamen in the Baracoa region of eastern Cuba, added the broadcast, monitored in Miami.

BIRTHS INCREASE—

LONDON (AP) — The birth rate in England and Wales increased in 1964 for the ninth straight year. There were 873,990 births, representing 18.4 per thousand population. The 534,560 deaths were the lowest in four years.

Iowa Will Send Four Teams To Arizona for Spring Games

Iowa Athletic Director Forest Evashevski Monday night announced that all four spring varsity teams will fly to the University of Arizona for competition during spring vacation April 11 through the 18th.

THIS WILL BE a first-time reality for the Hawkeye baseball, track, tennis and golf squads.

Evashevski said the project will give the athletes a week at the University of Arizona during the Iowa spring recess.

"It is not new for the Iowa baseball squad to go to Arizona for games there."

The baseball team has made the journey to Tucson 11 times since 1952 for six games in a week with the University of Arizona.

THE HAWKEYES and their coaches will travel via a chartered DC-6 plane.

"We believe this will be the best possible training for Big Ten games and meets later," Evashevski said.

"It will be an attractive trip for the athletes and will stimulate intra-squad competition for places on the teams. Then too, it gives the men on the various teams a chance to get acquainted with each other."

Evashevski said it is believed that this is the first time such a plan has been put into effect by a Big Ten university. He said he hopes the trip can be made each spring vacation.

EVASHEVSKI said the trip would not have been possible without the cooperation of Dick Clausen, Arizona director of athletics. Clausen was a member of Iowa baseball squads from 1934 to 1936.

Additional athletic relations with Arizona were scheduled earlier in football. The two teams will meet in Iowa City in 1966 and 1969.

Maurice Stokes Moved to New Home in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI — One-time college and pro basketball star Maurice Stokes, grinning and talking as best he can in his paralyzed condition, was moved to a new home Monday.

Stokes, who played his collegiate basketball at St. Francis, Pa., and as a pro with the Rochester and Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball Association, was stricken almost seven years ago — in March 1958 — with sleeping sickness.

He has been paralyzed since then and a patient in Cincinnati's Christ Hospital.

Monday he was moved to the city's Good Samaritan Hospital which has installed a new $300,000 physical rehabilitation and therapy program.

At Good Samaritan it is hoped Stokes, now 31, can use braces to feed himself and start a walking program.

His mentor and legal guardian is Jack Twyman, also a Cincinnati Royals star.

Nate Bowman Ruled Out At Wichita

WICHITA, Kan. — Starting center Nate Bowman of the Wichita State University basketball team, ranked fifth in the nation, was ruled academically ineligible Monday to complete the season — his senior year.

A second severe jolt to the Shockers' basketball fortunes will come Saturday when All-America Dave Stallworth completes his playing eligibility.

Bob Donaldson, university athletic coordinator, said that Bowman and Bob Powers, a reserve center who has appeared in only two games this season, are both ineligible to complete the season because of academic deficiencies.

Coach Gary Thompson announced at the same time that Gerald Davis, a reserve who was dismissed last week with Bowman, will return to the varsity immediately.

Wichita is currently leading the Missouri Valley Conference with a 5-0 record and has a 12-2 season mark with 12 games — two in this semester — remaining.

"Naturally this eliminates some of our power," Thompson told a news conference. "But I have a lot of confidence in these kids. We are not going to fold."

The posting of first semester grades Monday made Bowman's status final.

Iowa Meets No. 1 Friday

Other Games at Stadium Feature Former Champions

CHICAGO — The 1964-65 college basketball season will reach its mid-season climax next weekend at Chicago Stadium in two doubleheaders involving some of the nation's top teams and individual stars.

Top-ranked UCLA, winner of 30 straight games last season and the defending NCAA champions, will make two appearances — on Friday against Iowa's second place Big 10 contenders, and on Saturday against Loyola's 1963 NCAA champs.

THE UCLANS have won 13 straight this year after losing their opener to Illinois and boast a two-season mark of 43-1, one of the greatest in college history.

As if facing the country's No. 1 team were not enough, Loyola will open festivities Friday night at 7:30 against all-American Dave Stallworth and Wichita State, ranked No. 3 and 4 in the two major polls.

Illinois, the only team to beat UCLA (110-83) in the Bruins last 44 starts, will tangle with Notre Dame, third highest scoring team in the nation in the latest compilations, in Saturday's second game.

Johnny Wooden, all-American and three-time all-conference star at Purdue, who has coached UCLA to the heights, will be honored in special ceremonies Friday night.

HIS FELLOW all-conference stars — Doug Mills, Illinois athletic director; Branch McCracken, Indiana's veteran coach; Harold (Bud) Foster of the University of Wisconsin administrative staff and former Badger coach; and Charles (Stretch) Murphy, Wooden's teammate at Purdue and now Boys' club director at Tampa, Fla. — have been invited to participate.

The Chicago chapter of the Basketball Writers Association of America will give him a trophy, to be presented by Mrs. Ward Lambert, widow of the late Purdue coach. Loyola University, host of the double-header program will present a gift.

Rival coaches and other experts rank UCLA even more potent this season than last, despite heavy graduation losses. Gail Goodrich, 6-1 senior with a 22.9 average, also leads in assists and in all-American consideration.

Keith Erickson, 6-5 star of the U.S. Olympic volleyball team, has improved his scoring average to 13 and he's second in rebounds with 134, behind the 154 of 6-6 sophomore Ed Lacey.

Major College Rankings Remain Virtually Unchanged: UCLA on Top

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Examinations and the semester break left the major college basketball rankings virtually unchanged this week with UCLA still way out front in the voting of a panel of sports writers and sportscasters for the Associated Press.

UCLA CAPTURED 29 of the 36 first-place votes while standing pat on its 14-1 record. The defending national champions return to action Friday against Iowa and Loyola of Chicago Saturday.

The other first place ballots were spread among three teams. Unbeaten Providence got four, Michigan had two and St. Joseph's of Philadelphia got the other one. Voting was based on games through Saturday, Jan. 23.

Michigan boosted its season record to 11-2 by knocking off Purdue 103-84 and strengthened its hold on second place in the standings. They play Michigan State Tuesday and Purdue Saturday.

Third-place St. Joseph's ran its mark to 15-1 by thumping Pennsylvania 88-72. It has Centenary and Xavier of Ohio on this week's schedule.

PROVIDENCE made Seton Hall its 12th straight victim and moved up two places to No. 4 in the rankings. Rhode Island and St. Bonaventure are next in line on their schedule.

Idle Wichita dropped a peg to fifth at 12-2 with Loyola of Chicago and Louisville in their immediate future. Davidson, also idle, moved up one rung to sixth. East Carolina and Wake Forest are next on the Davidson schedule.

St. John's of Brooklyn, in seventh place, beat St. Francis for a 12-2 record with Marquette on the schedule Saturday. San Francisco, eighth, was idle but has Arizona and Arizona State coming up.

Indiana fell from fifth to ninth after losing to Iowa 74-68 and is idle until Feb. 4. Duke, 10-2, with its second straight week off coming up, remained 10th.

THE BIG TEN, with records and total points:

1. UCLA	(13-1)	347
2. Michigan	(11-2)	302
3. St. Joseph's, Pa.	(15-1)	240
4. Providence	(12-0)	209
5. Wichita	(12-2)	194
6. Davidson	(14-1)	140
7. St. John's, N.Y.	(12-2)	123
8. San Francisco	(12-1)	114
9. Indiana	(12-2)	80
10. Duke	(10-2)	79

Ambitious 32-Event Indoor Track Program for Big Ten

Chicago, Ill. — A jam-packed 1965 Big Ten indoor track season, highlighted by eight returning individual champions and two Olympians, opens a 32-event program this weekend.

During the next six weekends, Big Ten track teams will make 50 appearances prior to the 55th annual Conference indoor championships at Illinois on March 5-6. The 1965 championship event will have 45 out of the 70 places in last year's meet returning, plus anticipated sophomore surprises.

MICHIGAN STATE has three of the returning individual champions — Bob Moreland, who won both the 1963 and 1964 60-yard dashes with record tying times of 8.1 seconds; Mike Martens in the 1000-yard run, and Jim Garrett in the broad jump.

Michigan has two returning champions — Kent Bernard in the 600-yard run and Des Ryan in the mile. Other returning champions include Norris Peterson of Minnesota in the two-mile, Tom Dakin of Wisconsin in the 70-yard high hurdles and Bob Neutzling of Ohio State in the pole vault.

Last year Neutzling broke the only record in the meet with a vault of 15' 8 1/4", more than a foot over the old mark. In outdoor competition the then sophomore became the first Big Ten vaulter to clear 16', with a mark of 16' 3/4".

Michigan, Minnesota and Northwestern open competition this weekend. Semester examinations end during the final week of January to permit the remainder of the Conference to start competition.

THE TWO BIG TEN Olympians who competed in last fall's Tokyo games are Trenton Jackson of Illinois and Kent Bernard of Michigan. Jackson reached the semi-finals of the 100-meter dash, Bernard, representing Trinidad-Tobago, reached the semi-finals of the 400-meter run and ran the second leg of his team's 1,600-meter relay which finished third.

UCLA's Mr. Offense

UCLA Coach John Wooden evaluates Gail Goodrich, the Bruin's 6-1, senior guard and offensive leader of the team, as a bona-fide All-American candidate. "Although comparatively short in stature for present day basketball stars, Gail has quick hands and is outstanding around the offensive boards. This season, he has shown more and better ability with the ball to free himself for a shot or to pass to a teammate as well as anyone could expect," said Wooden. "He is a very hard worker and pushes himself for improvement in all phases of the game." Goodrich, after 14 games, is UCLA's leading scorer with 321 points for a 23-point average.

America's No. 1 Bobsled Crashes In Switzerland

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland — American hopes in the World Four-Man Bobsled Championships suffered a sharp setback Monday when their No. 1 sled crashed on its first training run and was damaged beyond repair.

The sled, specially designed for the American team by General Motors, had never been on a bobsled run before. It was ridden by John Hickey, Lake Placid, N.Y.; Al Hanson, Plattsburgh Air Base, N.Y.; Ralph Wiles, Saranac Lake, N.Y., and Mike Hollrock, Plattsburgh Air Base.

Team Manager Karl Hardy said the sled appeared to brake too late coming out of sunny corner, failed to slow down sufficiently and overturned on the horseshoe bend. None of the crew was injured.

The Americans will now rely on the traditional sled built by veteran Italian blacksmith Alberto Podar for the championships to be staged next weekend.

Iowa State Wrestler Out of Action for Month

AMES — Iowa State officials said Monday that heavyweight wrestler Steve Shippis will be out for a month with an elbow injury.

Shippis, a junior from Ithaca, N.Y., injured his arm in a match Saturday night against Colorado State University, and was forced to forfeit, ending his unbeaten record.

His place on the Cyclones' nationally-ranked team will be taken by sophomore Ted Tuinstra of Des Moines.

Fifteen years ago, our Company pioneered the idea of an internship program for college students interested in life insurance careers. Time has proved its worth.

Our campus agents are trained while they're still at school, given a chance to make a proper career decision before graduation. 37% of those participating in this program in the last 10 years are currently enjoying successful careers with the Company in sales, supervisory, and management spots. 22% of the Company's 50 top agents began their insurance careers while college students.

We think our campus internship program is pretty special—so do others. We'd be glad to tell you more about it.

DES MOINES — sick leave for teacher accumulation days a year for school was proposed by the Iowa Education Association.

School boards would be granted more time than the minimum.

Iowa Educators Seek Additional Sick Leave

DES MOINES (AP) — Improved sick leave for teachers, with minimum accumulation of up to 90 days a year for school employees, was proposed to the Iowa Legislature Monday by the Iowa State Education Association (ISEA).

The ISEA asked that school employees be granted a minimum of 10 days sick leave in the first year of their employment, 11 days in the second year, 12 days in the third year, 13 days in the fourth year, 14 days in the fifth year, and 15 days in the sixth and subsequent years, and that unused sick leave be allowed to accumulate to a minimum of 90 days.

School boards would be empowered to grant more sick leave time than the minimum if they see fit.

The ISEA submitted a research study covering 5 per cent of the school districts in Iowa showing wide variations in practice at the present time.

The law now sets minimum sick leave at five days the first year, with step-ups of one day each year to nine days in the fifth year of employment. The law says sick leave may accumulate to 35 days, but school boards may grant more sick leave if they wish.

The study showed Iowa school boards' sick leave policy ranges from the 35-day minimum to 100 days in various school districts.

The ISEA said a review of laws of other states show that 10 days fully paid sick leave per year is the most common requirement imposed on local school districts.

It said the State of Washington allows unused sick leave to accumulate up to 180 days — the equivalent of a full school year — while California, Hawaii and New Jersey permit indefinite accumulation. At the other end of the scale, unused sick leave is not accumulative in Georgia.

The report said that "unlike other enterprises where the work of absent employees usually can be held in abeyance or temporarily shifted to other permanent staff members, substitutes must be engaged to take over for regular teachers who are out of school."

"But as many local school districts have come to recognize the salutary effect that an established policy of paid sick leave has on the teacher, the pupil and the school system far outweighs the added cost."

Farm Mishaps Involve 663 Iowans in 1964

AMES — Farm accidents involved 663 Iowans in 1964, compared with 534 in 1963, according to Norval Wardle, extension safety specialist at Iowa State University. The facts were gathered from a newspaper clipping service.

Fatal farm accidents numbered 110 in 1964, compared with 107 the previous year.

Tractor accidents headed the list both years. There were 266 tractor accidents in 1964, and 61 were fatal. Overturning was responsible for 118 of the total accidents and 35 of the deaths.

In 1963, tractors were involved in 229 accidents with 58 fatalities. Overturning was involved in 114 accidents and caused 37 deaths.

Fox Hunts and Corn Palace Described in New Iowa Book

AMES — This is the place — Iowa: home of the world's smallest cathedral and the world's largest wheat tractor plant; the place where wealthy Englishmen once rode to fox hunts across the countryside and where a palace was once constructed — of corn! It is the site of the West's first train robbery and the boyhood home of a legendary lawman. It is the place where grapevines caused the downfall of a "perfect" community.

Stories of these and other events in the state's history are contained in "This Is The Place — Iowa," published by the Iowa State University Press. This illustrated history-geography storybook takes a long

Dillon Expected To Leave Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon is expected to leave office soon and his successor reportedly will be either Donald C. Cook or David Rockefeller.

It was disclosed Monday that Dillon confirmed during a news briefing on the new federal budget that he will leave the Cabinet within the next few months.

Cook, president of American Electric Power Co. and former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, has received the most prominent mention as Dillon's successor. He is a Democrat and an old friend of the President.

However, Rockefeller is being given equal consideration, it is understood.

Youngest of the five Rockefeller brothers, he is president of the Chase Manhattan Bank, one of the nation's largest financial institutions.

Author of the 334-page book is Margaret L. Posten, a teacher, farm wife, and amateur historian from Villisca. Mrs. Posten, who has long been interested in the story of Iowa, originally compiled the material as part of a teaching unit for her classes in the Villisca Community School.

"This Is The Place — Iowa" was written for Iowans ages twelve and above who wish to learn more about their state. A "Test Your Knowledge" section and detailed index make it adaptable for classroom use. Priced at $4.50, the book is available from bookstores or from the Iowa State University Press, Ames.

Solons Seek Legal Bingo

DES MOINES (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee voted 9-4 Monday to recommend passage of a constitutional amendment to legalize bingo in Iowa.

Bingo, repeatedly held by Iowa courts to fall under the anti-lottery provisions of the State Constitution, was described by Sen. Peter F. Hansen as a form of recreation for older persons.

The Manning Democrat urged the committee to give the voters a chance to decide on whether they want to legalize bingo.

As a constitutional amendment, the proposal, to become effective, must be passed in identical form by two successive sessions of the legislature and then be approved by voters.

The amendment would allow the legislature to pass laws to license and regulate "bingo games conducted by charitable organizations, religious or veterans organizations chartered by the Congress of the United States."

The proposed amendment now goes to the full Senate for action.

Questioned about broad provisions of the measure, its backers said regulations on such points as stakes limits should be left to the legislature to regulate by law.

Prof Studies Ocean Depths

A U of I Zoology Professor who returned recently from a scientific mission on the Indian Ocean believes more clues have been found to help answer the question of how life is sustained in creatures that never leave the total darkness and extreme pressure of the ocean depths.

Richard V. Bovbjerg, director of the Iowa Lakeside Laboratory, a biological field station on West Lake Okoboji, was one of three senior scientists on a three-month cruise of the Indian Ocean aboard the Stanford University scientific schooner, Te Vega.

The unprecedented "seining" of some 5,000 miles of Indian Ocean confirmed the idea that some underwater creatures get the energy they need to survive at the expense of members of their community which continually move up and down to feed on plant life near the surface at night, then return to the depths to be eaten by the stationary predators.

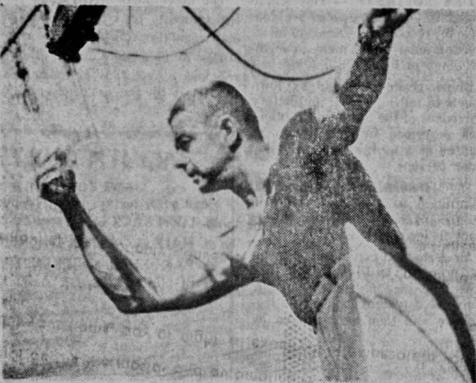

This endless process apparently provides the means by which some species can pass their lifetimes without seeing the light of day, said Bovbjerg.

THE VOYAGE combined exciting study with physical danger, he recalled, recounting a storm at sea which nearly capsized the 135-foot vessel. Bovbjerg, who weathered World War II naval duty, saw the Te Vega about to go over in a gale before the sails ripped and the ship righted itself. The incident took place off the Maldivic Islands, several hundred miles southwest of India, with 30 people aboard. The vessel has motor power as well as sails.

The marine exploration, sponsored by the National Science Foundation, took place along a 5,000-mile equatorial stretch of the rarely explored Indian Ocean, from Mombasa, Kenya, in Africa, to Singapore, Malaysia, ending in the middle of December.

Bovbjerg said the study shows that definite "communities" of life in layers of varying depths extend across the expanse of ocean covered by the cruise.

"There are hundreds of species of organisms just suspended down there, eating each other," he said.

Scientific Voyage

Richard Bovbjerg, professor of zoology, checks a gauge aboard the schooner Te Vega which measures the depth of a trawl used to catch marine organisms in the Indian Ocean.

"Incredibly enough, we found the same kinds of organisms at one end of the sea as we found at the other."

PROFESSOR BOVBJERG said this kind of marine study over vast areas has never before been attempted.

"The findings and the study were very crude," he said, "because the science of marine biology is in the primitive state. It is just fantastically difficult to sample thousands of miles of ocean. It's hard enough just to live under shipboard conditions, let alone do creative science."

The Iowa scientist said the basic ideas of the relationships between organisms and their environments have come from more limited, precise environments like that of lakes such as Lake Okoboji. "The only way we'll find out if these ideas apply to the ocean is to go and look," he said.

Professor Bovbjerg said the information obtained by the exploration is a part of the massive findings of the International Indian Ocean Expedition, a cooperative effort by scientists of 28 nations to explore the 28 million square miles of the legendary body of water.

SONAR DEVICES aboard the floating laboratory helped locate hidden layers of organisms and pinpoint their depth and movement. A cone-shaped trawl with an opening 100 feet square was streamed off the stern of the ship for half-hour runs to net the floating organisms at varying levels, and funnel them into a bucket at the end of the trawl. The depths sampled were largely in the upper one-half mile beneath the ocean's surface.

"It was a far cry from the precise methods of seining with small nets at the Lakeside Laboratory," said the Iowa zoologist. "It took three hours to prepare the trawl, submerge it to a specific depth, and later haul in the catch. Of course we never knew what we might have missed, but we all spent breathless moments of anticipation waiting to see what was in that bucket."

"Then came a day or more of sorting, identifying, counting, examining and recording the more than 200 species netted during a run."

The catches included organisms of microscopic size as well as fish as large as a man's finger. The Iowa scientist noted that the so-called "deep sea fish" sought by sportsmen for their large size and ferocious activity inhabit largely the upper areas of the waters.

THE FAUNA taken by the Te Vega scientists was from depths where little or no light is present. This included about 60 species of fish, nearly all black in color, hundreds of crustaceans or shrimp-like animals which were either bright red or transparent, and many jelly fish types of varying sizes.

The Iowa zoologist explained that the more nearly the animal is water-like, like a virtually stationary jelly fish, the less energy it needs to stay afloat. "These creatures live where it is devoid of light. Therefore, they don't have color patterns. The fish are suspended at various depths with the aid of air- or oil-filled 'swim bladders.' We found many phosphorescent species. When these were brought in at night, the catch was an eerie, glowing mass of luminescence."

The Te Vega is a two-masted schooner with auxiliary motors and a captain and crew of 15. The ship is part of Stanford University's program of science teaching and research.

Hong Kong Transports Less Food to China

HONG KONG — Residents of this British colony sent fewer food parcels to friends and relatives in Communist China last year, the postmaster said. The drop was attributed to improved food conditions in China and to reports that Peking has asked for money instead of food.

Time Change Marks Phone Anniversary 3 of 27 New Cardinals From Communist Lands

Beginning Feb. 1, the telephone rate for transcontinental calls placed between 8 p.m. and 4:30 a.m. and all day Sundays, will be $1.

In 1915 each coast-to-coast call cost $20.70. Today such calls cost $2.25 and only $1 if placed after 9 p.m.

Fifty years ago yesterday the first transcontinental telephone call was placed. It traveled over a system of four copper wires strung across the country on poles extending from New York to San Francisco. The open wire system ran 3,400 miles through 13 states, including Iowa.

From this simple beginning, the nation's transcontinental telephone system has grown over the past half century to a complex and efficient network of radio relay towers and thousands of miles of buried coaxial cables.

A transcontinental call can now be connected in about 43 seconds, compared with 23 minutes required for early calls. In the early days there were about three coast-to-coast calls per day. Today three west coast states send and receive more than 30,000 calls a day to and from New York alone.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI Monday appointed 27 new cardinals including Archbishop Lawrence Joseph Shehan of Baltimore and Archbishop Josef Beran, who was imprisoned 14 years in Czechoslovakia.

Two of the other new princes also are from Communist lands.

The nominations raised membership in the college to 103, from 41 countries. Never before has it been so large or so representative. Selection of the new cardinals, the first named by Pope Paul in his 19-month reign, was filled with implications of policy.

Not since 1953 has a prelate from a Communist country been made a cardinal. The nominations could have deep meaning for Roman Catholic Church relations in Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia.

Three of the new cardinals are prelates from the Middle East, where Catholics have sought more honor for their patriarchs and recently complained about a Vatican Ecumenical Council declaration on the Jews.

Only four of the new cardinals are from the Vatican Curia. Only six are Italians. Altogether 21 countries are represented on the list. In this way it is the broadest list of new cardinals in history, and reflects moves within the Church to decentralize an administration that has been concentrated at the Vatican for centuries.

The new cardinals will be formally elevated to the purple at a consistory Feb. 22.

Appointment of Archbishop Shehan brings the number of American cardinals to six.

In Baltimore, Archbishop Shehan, 66, said his elevation was in "recognition of the historic position of the Archdiocese of Baltimore," the oldest diocese in the United States.

Other American cardinals are Archbishops Francis Spellman of New York, Richard Cushing of Boston, Albert Gregory Meyer of Chicago, Joseph Elmer Ritter of St. Louis and James Francis McIntyre of Los Angeles.

Conservation Board To Meet Thursday

The Johnson County Conservation Board will hold its first meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the court house.

The agency, authorized by the voters in the November general election, will elect a chairman and a secretary. It is also scheduled to discuss organizational procedures.

The board will meet monthly and is expected to discuss plans for acquiring and developing county parks and adopting other recreational programs.

2 Can Take Tests To Navy Academy

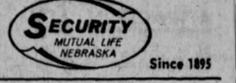

Two Iowa Citizens have been nominated to take the final competitive examinations for admission to the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, according to Senator Jack Miller (R-Iowa).

The nominees, who scored high ratings on the examinations given by the Civil Service Commission, are John D. Snakenberg, son of Mrs. Deloris Snakenberg, 1128 Franklin St., and James C. Dickerson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Dickerson, 209 Koser Ave.
