

Dateless Nights Force Spinsters To BOYCOTT

The single girls have decided to take matters into their own hands and picket the boys' dorms asking for dates. Demonstrations are scheduled to march across campus at 4:30 p.m. wearing sandwich boards.

When the marchers arrive at the dorms, they plan to make a peaceful demonstration in Quadrangle court and another at the front door of Hillcrest, carrying signs saying, among other things, "Who wants to be mine for Spree?"

The purpose of all this is to advertise Spinsters' Spree. The demonstration is scheduled to be held at 10 days prior to the date announced in advance. The girls are to wear sandwich boards and hold signs at all times.

Across the Nation

PRESIDENT JOHNSON handed business a $700-million tax favor Wednesday, on the eve of a White House meeting at which he seeks a big favor in return — a voluntary clampdown on overseas investment.

JOHNSON

Johnson told 1,100 industry leaders, at a meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board, that the Treasury Department will soon announce liberalized tax guidelines for plant equipment and machinery depreciation.

The treasury followed up quickly with disclosure that the new rules — urgently sought by nearly every industry — will be issued late Thursday.

The changes will "allow business to receive this year more than $700 million worth of benefits that would have been lost under the original guideline procedure," the President said.

RACIAL TERRORIST CELLS in other American and Canadian cities reportedly were under surveillance Wednesday, for possible links to the thwarted dynamite plot against the Statue of Liberty and two other national shrines.

Published reports mentioned Cleveland, Detroit, Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago, Baltimore, Toronto and Montreal. In Washington, the FBI had no comment.

Three New York Negroes and a blonde Canadian woman extremist were arrested in New York Tuesday, and charged with scheming to blow up the Statue of Liberty, the Washington Monument and Philadelphia's Liberty Bell. Police claimed to have seized 22 sticks of dynamite.

Worldwide Roundup

THE SOVIET UNION claimed Wednesday in Moscow it can hit any point on earth with an explosion equal to 100 million tons of TNT.

The statement was made by Marshal Vasily Sokolovsky, the man whose blockade forced the Berlin airlift 17 years ago, in a news conference for the birthday of the Red Army. He called on the West to prove by deeds that it wants peace.

The army, which will be 47 years old next Tuesday, now has intercontinental rocket troops as its backbone, Sokolovsky said, adding that they control rockets of unlimited range with nuclear warheads of up to 100-megaton power each.

A PLANE BELIEVED piloted by famed round-the-world aviatrix Joan Merriam Smith crashed in the San Gabriel Mountains Wednesday, killing the two women aboard.

The bodies were so badly burned they could not be immediately identified, but sheriff's deputies and federal authorities said Miss Merriam and Trixie Ann Schubert, who is writing the flier's life story, were seen taking off for the area of the crash.

The crash scene was near the Big Pines resort area 30 miles east of Los Angeles. Deputies said the number on the plane was the same as that of the plane in which Miss Merriam and Mrs. Schubert took off from Long Beach Wednesday morning.

GAMBIA BECAME Africa's 36th — and smallest — independent nation Wednesday at a ceremonial lowering of the British Union Jack and the raising of the red, blue, green and white Gambian flag.

The tiny coastal and deep river country, last of Britain's once extensive West African colonies, clung to its ties with Britain as the 21st member of the Commonwealth. Its success, however, may depend greatly on how it gets along with French-speaking Senegal, which surrounds Gambia and traffics through and across it.

City-Coralville Dispute Reviewed

By MIKE TONER
Staff Writer

The Iowa City-Coralville dispute on annexation and sewers is headed for the courts again. The outcome will affect future expansion of both cities and it could have a bearing on the future of the University.

MORE THAN A month ago, the problem appeared destined for Johnson County District Court consideration. At the last moment officials from Coralville and Iowa City conferred outside court and hoped for a settlement of the controversy that began in September, 1964.

Now, according to Iowa City City Manager Carsten D. Leikvold, the city's new annexation suit will be filed "within two or three days."

TUESDAY NIGHT the Iowa City City Council adopted a resolution to take legal action to nullify Coralville's 1964 annexation and to prevent Coralville from billing its residents for use of Iowa City owned sewerage facilities.

The action came following receipt of a letter from Coralville Mayor Clarence Wilson notifying Iowa City that "the City of Coralville will commence billing its own customers for sewage treatment starting March 1, 1965, and will pay the City of Iowa City for such sewage treatment with the City of Coralville acting as a single customer of the City of Iowa City."

Leikvold called the Coralville letter "definite evidence of Coralville's lack of cooperation." LEIKVOLD termed the necessity of the move "unfortunate" but said court action was apparently the only way to solve the difficulty.

The annexation and sewer dispute dates back to Coralville's annexation of a sausage-like string of properties running the length of the west side of Iowa City last September.

The joint consideration given the annexation and sewer treatment has served to confuse the issue. An Iowa City councilman, William Maas, even suggested that the issues are not related.

This time, however, the issues will be dealt with separately in the court. The annexation problem will come up first.

Throughout the dispute the University has identified its interests more closely with those of Iowa City than with Coralville.

There has been a steady growth of good feeling between "town

Ranger 8 Blasts Off On Photo Assignment

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Spacecraft Ranger 8 streaked toward the moon Wednesday to snap more than 4,000 pictures of a dusty, crater-pitted plain which American astronauts may explore within five years.

The craft rocketed away from Cape Kennedy and executed early maneuvers on a planned 65-hour, 234,300 mile lunar voyage which could produce better photos than the historic set transmitted last July by Ranger 7.

RANGER 8 cruised toward a crucial midcourse point, where a ground signal is to fire a small steering rocket aboard the craft to jockey it onto a collision course with the moon.

The vital midcourse maneuver was to be triggered about 5 a.m. Thursday by the main flight control center at Goldstone, Calif.

The motor is capable of correcting for a moon-miss error of up to 6,200 miles on either side of the target. But six hours of tracking calculations showed that expert rocket marksmanship had placed the vehicle on a path that would miss the trailing edge of the moon by only 1,136 miles.

THE TRAILING EDGE is the right edge as seen from earth.

"The spacecraft is well within the correction capability of the midcourse motor," the National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported.

If there are no hitches, Ranger 8 will approach the moon Saturday morning. And in a 13-minute, 40-second period, each of its six television cameras will take hundreds of pictures before the payload crashes onto the moon at 5,800 miles an hour.

SCHEDULED impact time is about 5 a.m. Saturday.

The cameras are designed to take pictures from an altitude of 1,180 miles down to within 1,000 feet of the surface and to transmit them instantly to the Goldstone station.

Scientists hope to maneuver Ranger 8 so it will photograph a region near the moon's terminator, or shadow line. The prime target is the sprawling Mare Tranquillitatis — the Sea of Tranquility — which is in the east-central portion of the moon as viewed from earth.

Earlier Moon Landing Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — There is a chance the United States may yet land an astronaut on the moon "within this decade" space administrator James E. Webb cautiously told Congress on Wednesday.

Budget cutbacks earlier had stretched out the estimated time for preliminary experiments and practically ended hopes for a landing in this decade. But Webb told the House Space Committee results so far have been so good that perhaps not as many preliminary flights of the big Saturn 5 space booster will be needed as originally planned.

Viet Legislature Told to Create National Congress

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — South Viet Nam's Legislative Council was sworn in Wednesday and told by Chief of State Pham Khac Suu "Your main task is to create a National Congress." That may take months.

Plans call for the Congress to be set up through a combination of elections where security permits, and by appointments to cover the rest of the country.

Partial elections have been scheduled for March 21, but they are expected to be postponed indefinitely because of the recent crisis with Communist Viet Nam.

The 20-member Legislative Council, composed of military, political and religious representatives, has powers roughly similar to those of the all-civilian High National Council which the military purged out of existence Dec. 19.

President Seeks 'No Wider War'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said Wednesday the United States "will persist in the defense of freedom" in Viet Nam and he sought advice from former President Dwight D. Eisenhower on solving the dangerous confrontation with Communist power there.

Eisenhower met with Johnson at a surprise White House conference and stayed for lunch.

Later, the President added to his address before the National Industrial Conference Board the renewed pledge to defend South Viet Nam, and stated: "We seek no wider war. Our continuing actions there will be those that are justified and made necessary by the continuing aggression of others."

He said U.S. response to Communist moves will be "measured and fitting and adequate."

The President's attention to the Viet Nam fighting — recently gravely stepped up by Red attacks on U.S. installations and American retaliatory air raids — came against the background of debate on the issue in Congress and elsewhere.

STRONG SUPPORT for Johnson's strike-back tactics was voiced by Republican leaders, headed by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, in a statement.

But Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) a member of both the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations committees, said "major reappraisal" of U.S. policy and urged more help from U.S. allies in Viet Nam.

And Sens. Frank Church (D-Idaho) and George S. McGovern (D-S.D.) called again for a negotiated settlement.

EISENHOWER, now 74 and in Washington for a medical checkup, was asked by Johnson "to come by the White House and visit with him," said White House press secretary George E. Reedy.

Reedy said "yes, of course," Johnson "asked the general's advice" on Viet Nam and indicated it was not the first time. "He's been in touch with Gen. Eisenhower on more than one occasion," Reedy said.

General world problems also were explored but Reedy gave no details.

If the meeting signified an effort to display strong bipartisan support for the administration policy in Viet Nam the Republican congressional leadership statement indicated considerable such support was there.

It said there can be no negotiation.

Parking issue needs further study

BY GEORGE, WE THINK WE'VE GOT IT!

The whole problem about the parking problem is that everyone is working very hard to come up with a solution, but no one is quite sure about the exact nature of the problem.

To explain the parking "problem" as the presence of too many cars is like explaining the population problem by saying that there are too many people. Elementary, but not very helpful.

When the problem is defined in this manner, the solution to the population problem would be to eliminate a certain number of people. But eliminating people in Wyoming does not help the overpopulation problem in New York.

Similarly, eliminating a certain number of cars from campus will not do much to help congestion unless someone finds out exactly which cars are causing the congestion.

The Student Senate is working diligently to come up with a proposal that would solve the parking problem. But it begins to seem as if they are primarily interested in coming up with a proposal on parking, any proposal.

In order to produce a meaningful solution, someone will have to spend a little more time developing a meaningful statement of the problem.

Research has been done, to some extent, but it has yielded only more problems, not a line of direction.

The total number of student stickers issued by the University during the academic year 1959-60 was 7,503. Figures are not available for the following year, but the next year shows a decrease of 883. The year 1961-62 shows a further decrease of 341. 1962-63 had an increase of 1,303 and last year the increase was 193. Figures are not complete for this year, according to the parking statistic sheet prepared by the Senate committee on parking.

During this six year period, the enrollment increased from about 10,000 students to over 14,000.

Thus far, these are the only meaningful figures that have come out of the Senate investigation, but they don't come anywhere near defining the problem.

One essential question is which cars are causing the congestion? Is it commuters cars, cars from the outlying areas of town, cars from within walking distance? And at what times of the day and which days of the week is the campus area congested?

Who owns the cars? Are they people who live close out or out of town?

Any meaningful study of the "problem" would have to determine the answers to these questions (a survey at registration would be one means, questionnaires another).

If these answers were known, they could be evaluated and an effective system could be devised.

There is absolutely no point in throwing the baby out with the wash.

Honoring honors—a good idea

A RESOLUTION "honoring honors" was introduced at Tuesday's Senate meeting which sounds like a good idea. The proposal urges the Registrar's Office to acknowledge a student's participation in an honors course by placing an asterisk next to the course title when listing it on student transcripts.

This would recognize the special effort required for taking honors work. It would also provide information as to which areas an honors student had taken special work.

The only problem which this proposal might run into is the added work required to mark each honors course. Before the resolution is brought to a vote, it might be wise for student senators to check with the registrar about the difficulty involved in carrying out this idea.

The idea behind honoring honors is well taken. It should be given serious consideration.

East is East and West...

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — From Bonn, West Germany, comes word that the West Germans are terribly upset with the Egyptians over a state visit to the U.A.R. by East Germany's Walter Ulbricht at the end of this month. The West Germans agreed to stop arms shipments to Israel in exchange for a pledge from Nasser that he wouldn't recognize East Germany.

Bu Ulbricht's visit is a blow in the face to Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, and West Germany warned the U.A.R. that it would retaliate, the harshness of the retaliation to be determined by what kind of reception Ulbricht gets.

Through neutral sources we were able to obtain the minutes of a meeting between Nasser and his chief of protocol concerning Ulbricht's visit.

"SIR, ALL the plans for President Ulbricht's visit have been worked out."

"You understand," Nasser said, "that if the state visit is too successful West Germany will break off diplomatic relations with us."

"Yes, sir. For that reason we have worked out a schedule that should please both the East Germans and the West Germans."

"Proceed."

"President Ulbricht will arrive at the airport, where he will be greeted by yourself and the cabinet, a regiment of para troopers and the U.A.R. Navy Band."

"Good, but won't that get the West Germans mad?"

"WAIT. After he reads his greeting, Ulbricht will be taken to customs and stripped and searched for contraband."

"Very good," Nasser said. "What next?"

"He will then be placed in a convertible for the drive into town. Ulbricht will be escorted by the First Motorcycle Brigade. Just before he reaches the town, he will be stopped by members of the Second Motorcycle Brigade and they will give him a ticket for speeding."

"The ticker-tape parade has been arranged, but as Ulbricht gets near Shepherd's Hotel, I have arranged for several hundred students to set fire to his car."

"He will be staying at the Kubbeh Palace, and during the luncheon you will give in his honor I have fixed it so someone will sneak into his room and rob him of everything he has."

"The East Germans will be pleased with the lunch; the West Germans with the robbery," Nasser said.

"IN the evening we shall take the President to a private party where he will be treated to some outstanding belly-dancing. Then we shall have the vice squad raid the place and take photos of the President being shoved into a Black Maria with the belly dancers."

"Be sure the West German News Agency gets copies of the photos," Nasser said.

"Yes, sir. The next day President Ulbricht will be invited to visit the Aswan Dam. While inspecting the dam, someone will accidentally drop a steam shovel of mud on him."

"Don't hurt him," Nasser said. "I need Ulbricht for future blackmail operations against West Germany."

"Be assured a bath will not put him back in tip-top shape. After Aswan, it's back to Cairo, where he will be given a white-tie state dinner consisting of tuna fish which has been in open cans for a week and uncooked pork served with a condemned mushroom sauce."

"Brilliant," Nasser said. "The West Germans will not be able to find any fault with this, and, if the East Germans complain, we'll threaten to invite Ulbricht back for another state visit."

Letter to the editor—Defining aggressor

To the Editor:

Recently, an intellectual mock United Nations assembly at SU1 voted the United States as aggressor in its recent air raids against North Viet Nam.

The motion was carried by a resounding majority of delegates present. At approximately the same time, the other United Nations—the one which makes the world safe for little girls, picking deities — also underook an investigation of aggression.

However, it decided not to brand the U.S.S.R. by that term and freed the Soviets from any future annual embarrassment in its connection with the 1953 Hungarian Revolution by eliminating this world problem from the U.N. agenda forever.

After learning about the aforementioned events, I began to compare these United Nations in terms of their benefit to my little girl — who is fast approaching the daisy picking age.

Soon, I realized my inability to choose between the two, so I whittled away my time with less practical and more fundamental questions like: What is an aggressor? Is he good or evil? Could I recognize an aggressor if I saw one? and is he necessarily a Neocolonial Western Imperialist?

I'm sad to report that research on this matter is woefully scanty and that we're forced to await a War On Aggression Program for a definitive answer. Until that time, however, per U.N. rulings may be used as a preliminary reply to my questions.

In simple English, then, an aggressor is one who disobeys the Afro-Asian and/or Euro-Asian members of the United Nations. He is easily recognized by his Belgian, Portuguese, French or English accent. (This includes the Yankee dialects — once he sounded somewhat North Koreanish, but this isolated exception only proves the rule.)

The aggressor is generally evil, as witnessed by his historical link with the colonial era — a time which is now analogous to the enlightenment of retrospection — but everyone knows that already. Therefore, the answer to my final question is quite clear and self-evident.

Having satisfied myself by this unofficial (though succinct) analysis, I'm certain that any question or criticism directed towards me or the United Nations is simply out of line.

Felix Term, M4
301 Stadium Park

(NOTE: The resolution passed at the mock U.N. — supported by the United States — called for investigation in Viet Nam. If the United States was found to be an "aggressor," it was to be branded as such. The U.S. delegate said, "We support this resolution since we have nothing to hide." He was confident the U.S. position is just.)

Feud could affect University

and gown" in the last few years, and there is increased cooperation between Iowa City and the University on plans that affect their mutual futures, according to Leikvold and University Business Manager Ray Mossman.

MOSSMAN, spokesman for the University, registered a complaint with the Coralville Council shortly after the annexation.

The University objected to Coralville's annexation for these reasons:

—The University did not want future expansion to the west of present facilities blocked by a municipal boundary.

—The University did not want to be located in two municipalities.

—THE UNIVERSITY did not want to be located adjacent to heavy industry zones in the south portion of the annexed area, which it feared might be the case if Coralville zoned the property.

William Bartley, attorney for Coralville, said that Coralville had assured the University that heavy industry would not be allowed in the area.

Iowa City itself would like to have open spaces to the west for expansion. Leikvold willingly admits that whichever city "grows naturally into the area" should have the right to annex it. To Iowa City councilmen, however, Coralville's annexation does not represent natural growth.

CORALVILLE justified its September action on the basis of the will of the people in that area. The owners of the property petitioned Coralville for annexation.

Under voluntary annexation, property becomes a part of the city immediately following favorable action by the council of that city. The city is then required to provide police protection, fire protection and school facilities.

ACCORDING to Coralville Councilman John O'Neil, the property owners of the area were solicited for annexation by groups in Coralville. The annexation is still legally a "voluntary" one.

O'Neil said the property owners would enjoy few immediate benefits of annexation. The area has fire protection and school facilities. Police protection is now extended to them under terms of the new annexation, but voluntary annexation does not require the installation of sewers.

O'NEIL also said that Coralville would enjoy few immediate benefits. The Coralville councilman said that the city might make good use of the area if it grew into surrounding property, but summarized, "For now, nothing."

While the immediate advantages of being a part of Coralville compared with being a part of Johnson county may not be so apparent, some other advantages are. Iowa City could conceivably absorb the now-annexed properties in a few years, but the tax rate in Iowa City is twice that of Coralville's.

Shortly after Coralville's annexation in September, 1964, both cities realized that difficulties would develop if they did not soon work out a solution. The councils of the two cities met twice, but no solution resulted.

A joint committee made up of two members of both councils met, agreed on terms that both councils agreed to abide by. It was then that negotiations broke down. Each council thinks it was the fault of the other.

AS A RESULT of the breakdown in negotiations in October, the Iowa City members of the joint committee, Mayor Richard Burger and Councilman Max Yocum, recommended that the Iowa City City Council take any action necessary to nullify Coralville's annexation.

Burger and Yocum also recommended that the sewage treatment contract between the two cities be rescinded unless the annexation was nullified.

According to Burger and Yocum, the agreements of the joint committee then "were accepted by the Iowa City council and not by the Coralville council although both councils agreed to abide by the decisions of the joint committee."

THE TWO IOWA CITY members issued a statement following the meetings in October, saying, "It is apparent that Coralville's action was taken to strangle and block the natural growth and expansion of Iowa City, the University, and the entire metropolitan area."

Coralville has its version. According to Councilman O'Neil, Iowa City insisted on rescinding the annexed property before further negotiation.

These negotiations were to include drawing a line past which neither city would annex, creation of a "buffer zone" in the vicinity of this line which neither city would annex without the permission of the other and the formulation of a new sewer contract.

RESCINDING the annexed property before negotiation was not agreeable to Coralville. Wilson said it would not be right to exclude property from the city when it had just been added.

Although the joint committee tried to work out the problems the members saw developing, it did not succeed. The members returned to their respective councils with no results.

At the time of the first council resolution, all members were in agreement except Maas.

Maas called the Iowa City council's action a "case of snap judgment." He compared Iowa City's action to "closing the barn door after the horse is out of the barn."

IN JANUARY hopes were high for an out-of-court settlement of the entire annexation and sewer controversy.

Leikvold said there were private discussions with members of both cities, and on Jan. 28, Leikvold, attorneys of both cities and the Coralville city engineer met to iron out a new settlement.

Each party returned to their respective city council.

ills. Iowa City's council passed the new settlement, but Coralville rejected it.

Coralville's announcement Feb. 16 that the city would begin billing its residents for Iowa City-owned sewerage facilities brought that part of the dispute back into the foreground.

Under a 1959 contract, Iowa City agreed to service Coralville sewerage lines for a fee. Coralville was to use Iowa City lines and the Iowa City sanitation plant.

IT WAS ALSO agreed under then City Manager Peter Roan that Coralville would construct its own sewerage lines along Highway 6 to the Iowa City plant by Dec. 31, 1965.

The contract specified a three-stage construction, the first of which would take the sewerage main to the vicinity of the Veterans Administration Hospital.

The second phase of the construction would have extended the main to the east side of the Iowa Avenue bridge by the end of 1961. Coralville still has not reached that point.

BOTH CITIES, decided informally in 1961 that such a tie-in with existing Iowa City sewerage lines would be impractical. Both agreed informally that it would be unnecessary for Coralville to complete specifications of the contract.

At that time Iowa City was considering a "south-west interceptor sewer line" which would serve residents west of the Iowa River. The cities agreed it would be possible for Coralville to join the new line at a point south of Coralville, at less expense than it would require for Coralville to extend a line to the existing sanitation plant.

According to Leikvold, no definite agreement between the cities was reached. The specifications of the 1959 contract remain unchanged.

"Coralville never accepted the proposal for a southwest interceptor sewer," he said.

Coralville's attorney, Bartley, said Iowa City violated the sewer contract earlier this year when it raised the rates on sewer service without consultation with Coralville.

He said the raise was not in accord with the contract formula.

LEIKVOLD, on the other hand, said Iowa City was not obligated to consult with Coralville on rate increases. Coralville, according to the city manager, is treated just as all other customers of the city sanitation department.

Coralville's O'Neil described the rate increase controversy as a "matter of ethics." He said such a rate increase, which nearly doubled costs for the 3,000 Coralville residents, is a matter on which the two cities should confer.

Coralville, according to O'Neil, is now investigating possibilities of constructing its own sewage disposal plant. Such a project, if realized, would make Coralville independent of Iowa City for sewage treatment.

Friction also developed between the two cities in November when the Coralville council received a letter from the Iowa City council saying literally that sewage treatment would be ended in 60 days.

Bartley quickly went to the Iowa City council for clarification. He was assured that the intent of the letter was not to place a definite date on nullification of the sewerage contract.

THE SEWAGE TREATMENT issue affected Coralville residents more directly than the annexation dispute. A number have objected to the rate hike.

Coralville's latest action, billing its own residents for sewer service, will be met with an attempted injunction, according to Leikvold.

Another development which the annexation nullification could ultimately affect might trouble present businesses in Coralville.

Iowa City has plans included in the State Highway Commission's new Five Year Plan for a bypass of the city to the southwest.

According to Leikvold, the bypass would benefit the city by taking traffic loads off the now congested Riverside Drive and Highway 6.

HE SAID the University is also interested in seeing reduction of traffic on Highway 6. The highway cuts through the middle of the campus and is heavily used by students who live on one side of the river and have classes on the other side. A southwest bypass would reduce much of the traffic through the University.

Coralville would also notice reduced traffic on Highway 6, but the effect would be less than welcome.

Owners of businesses along the Coralville "strip" could suffer from a reduction of Highway 6 traffic. The strip is where most of Coralville's firms are located. Nearly all of them slant their appeal to travelers. Hotels, restaurants, service stations and garages all depend upon people on the move for their bread and butter.

PROPRIETORS, according to O'Neil, are already noticing a slight reduction of business due to the recent opening of the Iowa City-Crimmel stretch of Interstate 80.

O'Neil said, "Most businessmen feel the bypass would hurt them, but I don't think they would suffer as much as they expect." He cited the strip's proximity to the University and Iowa City as its major advantage in a steady customer draw.

All the friction caused by these issues has led both cities to a feeling that the other is not cooperative. Leikvold noted Coralville's failure to join the area Metropolitan Planning Commission as significant of its past actions and future intents.

City officials now see the only way to a sure solution as a court decision. That action, according to Leikvold and an attorney for the city, William Meardon, will be soon.

Coralville feels taking the problem to the court will benefit them. Regardless of the outcome both sides will be affected, and the same court decision may have a major bearing on the development of the University in the future.

No thaw in Sino-Soviet relations apparent after visit

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

Soviet-Chinese relations seem as cold as before the U.S. retaliatory blows against North Viet Nam. Perhaps the atmosphere is even colder. The indications are that the Red Chinese consider they have won an important round in their duel with the Soviet Communists.

A deep crisis threatening general war conceivably still could push the Soviet party closer to Peking, at least temporarily. But available evidence indicates the Russians fell into a Chinese trap. Peking was trying to intercept a trend toward better Soviet-American relations.

The Russians had responded positively toward President Johnson's suggestion of an exchange of top-level visits. This project now seems to be on ice as a result of what happened while Premier Alexei N. Kosygin was in North Viet Nam.

The Soviet premier probably has returned to Moscow empty-handed and worried after his 11 days in the Far East. His mission — with stops in China and North Korea — appeared to be related to a prospective Moscow meeting March 1 of international Communist leaders, called by the Russians in an attempt to muffle the Soviet-Chinese dispute.

St. Louis Symphony Offers Summer Music Scholarship

Iowa young people between 18 and 25 can compete for nine weeks of study and orchestral training at the Summer Musical School in Aspen, Colo. The contest will be held April 11, in St. Louis.

The St. Louis Symphony orchestra offers an $815 scholarship covering tuition, room and board. The only expense for the student is a registration fee of $20.

Those eligible for the competition must be members of a major symphony orchestra. They must attend school or live in Arkansas, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri or Oklahoma.

No orchestral experience is required, but contestants are expected to be able to read notes, interpret and have a sound knowledge of their instruments. They must be prepared to sight-read an orchestral piece and play excerpts from a standard concert concerto. The pieces should be chosen from the first movement of the Mendelssohn in E Minor for the violin, the Handel in B minor for the viola or the Saint Saens in A minor for the cello.

The jury consists of Edward Murphy, assistant conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, Ernest Walker, principal second violist and Herbert van Den Burg, principal violist.

Auditions will be held at 10 a.m. April 11 at 325 N. Mosley Road, St. Louis. The Women's Association will house those who have to stay overnight in St. Louis.

Applications must be postmarked not later than March 31 and sent to Mrs. Benjamin W. Clark, 20 Warsaw Terrace, St. Louis, 63124, Mo.

IN WARSAW, POLAND, demonstrators emulated those in Moscow who on Feb. 9 broke windows in the U.S. Embassy and smeared ink on the walls.

About 200 African and Asian students battled Warsaw police in front of the U.S. Embassy, smashing two windows with rocks and broke a bottle of red ink on the white marble facade. The crowds shouted "Out of Viet Nam!" and "Hands off Africa!"

THE SYRIAN government accused the U.S. second secretary Walter S. Snowdon of heading a spy ring and ordered him out of the country. U.S. Ambassador Ridgway B. Knight, referring to Syrian news media charges of spying, said: "I have not thought it dignified or useful to get into the denial business in view of the irresponsible nature of these charges and I see no reason to do otherwise now."

In Jakarta, Indonesia, the official Antara news agency said the American cultural center and library was being placed under the Indonesian government's supervision. The center was seized Monday by the semiofficial National Front after Communist led demonstrators protested U.S. aerial strikes in North Viet Nam.

Since Sunday, there have been about a dozen incidents abroad, all designed to weaken U.S. prestige. Here are some highlights:

SUNDAY:
Dar es Salaam — Tanzania recalled its ambassador to Washington in retaliation for the expulsion of a Tanzanian diplomat by the United States. The Tanzanian had been expelled because two U.S. diplomats had been kicked out of Tanzania on charges of subversive activities. Washington denied the charges.

MONDAY:
Jakarta — The Communist-led Youth Front, 10,000 strong, burned Uncle Sam in effigy in front of the U.S. Embassy, shouted against "American aggression in North Viet Nam" and demonstrated at the cultural center.

TUESDAY:
Kampala — Riot police broke up crowd of 5,000 Ugandans who threw stones toward the fourth floor of a building housing the U.S. Embassy. Two men tore down the American flag. The crowd was protesting the bombing of the two border villages.

Book Explores U.S. Equality, Achievement

By CHUCK WANNINGER
Staff Writer

The values of achievement and equality have governed the rise of the United States and many new emerging nations, said Richard P. Boyle, associate professor of sociology, in a review of Seymore M. Lipset's book, "The First New Nation."

The review, held at the Union Sun Porch Wednesday afternoon, explored the values of equality and achievement throughout history.

BOYLE SAID that in trying to account for things going on in the world today, it is often helpful to go back in history. This is what Lipset has done in his book.

At the time of the American Revolution, the United States acquired a new identity, almost a negative identity, according to Lipset. The new nation almost immediately placed emphasis on equality and achievement.

Boyle said there had been a relatively constant American feeling based on these values. Lipset explores the values in three American institutions — the trade unions, the religious organizations and the school systems.

Lipset answers an assumption that people are going to church more now, but with shallower feelings, by saying that American religion has always been this way.

HE SAYS AMERICANS have always been more eager to join and associate with churches than Europeans, but in reality take religion much less seriously.

Lipset insists that the United States system of compulsory education and stress on higher education exactly fits his thesis idea about the values of equality and achievement.

Lipset says it will become harder and harder for rising countries today to escape the values of equality and achievement. Emerging countries will not be able to maintain "elitist" views because the lower strata will demand equality.

Thetas Elect Montgomery
Ann Montgomery, A3, Vermillion, S.D., has been elected president of Kappa Alpha Theta. First vice president is Kathy Weaver, A2, Des Moines, and second vice president is Ruth Coffin, A2, Rock Island, Ill.

Other elected officers are: Lynn Bowman, A2, Iowa City, corresponding secretary; Anne Blocksma, MONTGOMERY A3, Grand Rapids, Mich., recording secretary; Georgia Lawler, A2, Iowa Falls, treasurer; Kathy Thompson, N3, Eagle Grove, house bills treasurer; Jane Christianson, A3, Bronxville, N.Y., senior Panhellenic representative; Eloise Good, N2, Hinsdale, Ill., junior Panhellenic representative; and Carla Homan, A2, Alton, scholarship chairman.

Also elected were Carol Barnes, N3, Winfield, Kansas, activities chairman; Jo Ann Chmura, A2, Des Moines, social chairman; Linda Seely, A3, Lafayette, Calif., judiciary chairman; Sandi Morris, A3, Chicago, Ill., house manager; Rose Ann Lindsay, A3, Muscatine, rush chairman; Karman Hobbs, A3, Glidden, co-rush chairman and Judy Dimmitt, A3, Des Moines, editor.

Rites for Miss Hanrahan Set Today at 10
Miss Calista Hanrahan, 511 Third Ave., a lab technician at University Medical Laboratory since 1943, died early Tuesday morning in University hospital at the age of 48.

A requiem high mass will be sung at 10 a.m. today at St. Patrick's Church, and burial will be in the new section of St. Joseph's Cemetery.

Miss Hanrahan is survived by her mother, Veronica Hanrahan; her brothers, Joseph, Donald and Wilfred, all of Iowa City, and her sisters, Mrs. Glen Koppenhaver of Anamosa and Mrs. Mike Poggenpohl of Iowa City.

MADRID MAN KILLED — Daniel Patrick Denny, 30, of Madrid, was killed in an accident Wednesday one mile east of this central Iowa community on Highway 89.

Denny's wife, Barbara, 31, was hospitalized in Des Moines. The truck driver, Merle Miller, of rural Woodward, was uninsured, the Highway Patrol said.

Macular Dystrophy Big Cause of Blindness

Macular dystrophy is second to cataract as a cause of blindness, according to Dr. Alton E. Braley, head of ophthalmology at the College of Medicine.

Dr. Braley has recommended to the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness that a research project be started to study macular degeneration. He estimates that 7.5 million Americans have the disease and says that the number of cases is increasing yearly.

MACULAR DYSTROPHY is not associated with external causes, Dr. Braley said. Most causes are hereditary and are common in brothers and sisters. The disease produces a pigmented scar on the fovea — the tiny depressed area in the retina which is the clearest point of vision. Although there are different types of macular degeneration, all varieties progress slowly and eventually occur in both eyes.

Dr. Braley said that in macular dystrophy a lesion appears on the retina and passes through a series of stages. These stages differ with the age of the person and his hereditary make-up.

Hemorrhages from the lesion are important to the physician in predicting the course of the disease, Dr. Braley said. While they disturb the person's vision, vision may be restored, if the hemorrhages do not extend into the fovea.

Dr. Braley said that disturbances in the "pigment of the retina are frequent in macular degeneration. The pigment begins to accumulate in masses leaving areas void of pigment. As these masses spread, vision is lost."

DEVELOPMENT of crystals in and around the masses helps produce the scar on the fovea, Dr. Braley explained. The crystal material seems to start within the deep layers of the retina and then spread upward. A low fat, low cholesterol diet will often reduce the crystal deposits and improve vision.

Macular dystrophy is common in older persons and is characterized by the failure of central vision, Dr. Braley noted. "While the disorder is not usually apparent until the patient attains an age of 70, visual disturbances without ophthalmoscopic findings may be present at about 50 years of age." He recommended that every member of a family in which there has been macular dystrophy be examined before they are 60 years old.

Legislation passed by the House and sent to the Senate a measure to tax premiums of county mutual insurance associations, require examination and licensing of their agents, and requiring annual audits of their records.

Received five bills, including measures to:

- Require the State Highway Commission to provide parking areas off primary highways at mailbox sites where rural mail carriers can park while delivering mail.
- Create a Board of Physical Therapy Examiners and require licensing of physical therapists.

Passed 55-0 and sent to the House a proposed constitutional amendment to grant home rule to municipalities.

Union Board Reorganization Completed

By DALLAS MURPHY
Staff Writer

Structural reorganization of Union Board, begun last spring, is now complete, according to president Bob Pfeffer, B4, Chicago.

The final step in the reorganization process, recently approved by the board, will establish a new system of electing Union Board directors.

UNDER THE NEW SYSTEM, the board will have 14 directors. Ten will be elected from the undergraduate colleges and four from the graduate schools.

In the past, the board had 16 members — seven undergraduates and nine graduates.

Union Board is a partly-elected, partly-appointed student organization. It sponsors approximately 77 per cent of all University programming each year. During this school year, it will sponsor about 530 programs, according to Pfeffer, nearly all of which are free to students.

Undergraduates will be elected from a slate of 20 candidates during the all-campus election, March 17. Graduates are to be selected by the current board members through an application-interview system.

New directors will assume their duties May 1, and their terms will run until April 30, 1966. Until this year, the director's term ran from the day after all-campus elections to election day the following year.

This is a significant change, according to Pfeffer, because it will allow the board to plan programming until at least May 1 every year.

"WE HAVEN'T BEEN able to continue programming until the end of the year," he said, because it was difficult enough for the new board to organize itself without having to plan activities."

Pfeffer said the new composition of the board would reflect the ratio of undergraduates to graduate students at the University.

He said the approximately 10,000 undergraduates in the colleges of liberal arts, business, engineering, pharmacy and nursing should be represented on the board in the same ratio as are the 4,000 students in the graduate college and the colleges of law, medicine and dentistry.

Initial attempts at reorganization of the board were made last spring when the total number of Union Board committees, members, chairmen, directors and executives was increased from 64 to 256.

The number of committees increased was at that time from 6 to 41.

THE BASIC STRUCTURE of Union Board as it stands in its revised form is: 197 committee members chosen each fall; 41 committee chairmen chosen each spring; 12 directors who supervise an "area" composed of several committees; and the executive members, the president and secretary.

The vice president is considered an executive member, but he also heads one of the general areas.

A "chain of succession" has been established which requires committee chairmen to have served as committee members and directors to have served as committee chairmen.

Union Board's 12 "areas" are: art, music, literary, forum and lecture, research, hospitality, movies, dances, promotion, personnel, games, and crafts and outings.

GRADUATES INTERESTED in a directorship will, under the new system, file a general application for membership on the board. Applicants then will be interviewed by the current board members who will select the four new directors.

This will be the first year graduate members of Union Board have been selected in this way. Previously, nominations for membership were made by the directors then in office. If the nomination was accepted by Union Board, it was sent to the dean of the graduate school in which the nominee was enrolled. If approved by the dean, the nominee became one of the new directors.

This year, 10 undergraduates will be elected to director positions in the all-campus election. Twenty candidates will appear on the ballot, and any student in the five undergraduate colleges may vote for 10 of the candidates.

Selection of the candidates will be done by application and interview. Directors may ask any chairman or student with one year experience on Union Board to apply for a directorship. The student must make his own application, however.

Before this revision was made, six undergraduates were elected from a field of 12 candidates. Directors made nominations from members within their own area. Candidates were then chosen from the nominees by the Union Board.

The president, vice president and secretary are chosen by the newly elected board members from among their own ranks.

Directors no longer will nominate candidates because the temptation between Greeks and independents if more independents had become an obstacle to attempts to make the board representative of the students.

Guidance Institute Set Here

The University will be the site of one of 58 counseling and guidance training institutes to be held nationally this summer, according to the Iowa State Board of Public Instruction.

Dr. Robert M. Wasson, assistant professor of education, who is receiving applications for the program, said 30 counselors will receive tuition-free training. Those accepted will also receive stipends of $75 a week plus $15 a week for each dependent.

The program is financed by the Office of Education of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW). Wasson said HEW will pay instructors' salaries and all costs involved, so there will be no tuition.

He also said about 150 applications have been received so far from as far away as Guam. Some of these were ineligible, because they were from high school counselors.

Only those who are working in counseling in junior colleges, technical institutes, or vocational schools serving post-high school students are eligible for the training. Applicants must also have a master's degree in guidance or its equivalent, according to Wasson.

Of the 30 who are expected to enroll here, Wasson said, 20 applications will be accepted from counselors in junior colleges and technical institutions and 10 from those in post-high school training schools.

Wasson said that the program has three purposes. The first is to help counselors understand the educational motivations of the vocationally-oriented student. Wasson defined the vocationally-oriented student as one who goes to school to learn a skill and enter the labor force.

The second aim, he said, was to experiment with new methods of occupational information and appraisal techniques with the vocationally-oriented student.

Improvement of the counseling abilities of people who work with vocationally or specialty-oriented students is the third purpose, according to Wasson.

The State Board of Public Instruction said that in the past, the University has conducted five summer institutes with a total of 170 enrollees.

The deadline for preliminary applications is March 15, and the final deadline is April 15. Those accepted will be notified by mail May 1.

Annual U.N. House Tour Scheduled for May 16

The sixth annual House Tour, sponsored by the Iowa City chapter of the U.N. Association, will be May 16. Homes in the Iowa City area will be open to participants from 1 to 5 p.m.

The proceeds from past House Tours have been used to enable a foreign student to come to the University for further studies. The board of the chapter also is considering a program, which would enable young people from Iowa City to see the United Nations at work, either in New York or abroad.

Exec. Advises Job Seekers

Speaker Lists Ten Points Important for Advancement

Students were advised Wednesday to place the character and quality of management above all other considerations when choosing a firm in which to achieve a career.

"If top management has integrity and gives evidence of its pursuit of excellence you will be in good hands," said Murray Joslin, executive vice president of Commonwealth Edison Company, Chicago. Joslin, a native of Independence, spoke during the University's 20th annual Business Careers Conference.

Listing academic record, leadership potential and personality as the three main qualities business looks for in a college graduate, Joslin added:

"You either have it or you don't. This does not mean that leadership and personality are incapable of development and modification any more than scholastic standing is incapable of improvement. But by the time you step out into the business world, the die is pretty well cast."

Joslin also listed five attitudes which he claimed were capable of being developed on the job. These included: change-mindedness, cost-mindedness, tool-mindedness, profession-mindedness and urgency-mindedness.

"We live in a world that is changing faster than ever before," he said. "It follows that to develop yourselves you have to be change-minded — not only receptive to change, but eager to find and adopt changes for the better."

Observing that the computer has probably been the most vexing tool for management, Joslin said: "Each tool brings its own vexations, but in spite of these attendant problems, the utilization of tools and devices is essential to obtaining reduced costs and improved operations."

Professionalization is of great importance in developing a career, he said. "How a man chooses to grow in management is up to him and it may vary at different points in his career. The important thing, however, is that throughout your lifetime you must continue to develop yourself."

Concluding his talk with a discussion of how to climb the management ladder, Joslin listed the ten following points:

- Do what you're told and get it done. Then look around for more.
- Start under your own steam. Develop a sense of anticipating.
- Learn to write. Say it briefly and persuasively. If you can talk as well as you can write, you will be even more effective.

- Learn how to keep score. Become familiar with reports, financial statements, performance records, special studies. Make them talk. Use them.
- Keep looking for a better way to do things.
- Do what you would if it were your own business. Do not think of management as a third party. You are the management.
- Know your company and what it is trying to do.
- Take your opportunities where you find them even if it means present personal inconvenience.
- Remember the Golden Rule. While your boss appointed you as manager, his appointment must always be confirmed by your subordinates and associates.
- Be for your company. If you speak against it, you will only hurt yourself. If you are against it you will only destroy your own character.

Harold Schedl Gets Overseas Fellowship

Dr. Harold P. Schedl, research associate professor of internal medicine, has been awarded an Overseas Fellowship for the 1965-66 academic year from Churchill College at the University of Cambridge, England. Churchill College, a national memorial to Sir Winston Churchill, has an enrollment of about 600, with one-third of the students taking graduate work and doing research toward Ph.D. degrees. Approximately eight Overseas Fellows are selected each year from outstanding universities and colleges throughout the world to strengthen and enrich the programs of the college and to promote the advancement of education.

The Overseas Fellows live in apartments on the college grounds to give them the opportunity to meet informally in the Common Rooms of the College with colleagues and students in their own and other disciplines.

Dr. Schedl will work with Dr. Ivor Mills, chief of the Department of Investigative Medicine at Cambridge and a Fellow of Churchill College, on problems concerned with calcium metabolism and will participate in the teaching program of the College.

Dr. Schedl was graduated with honors and received the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from Yale University and an M.D. from the University of Iowa. He is the author of numerous scientific articles, a contributor to several textbooks, and a member of several professional groups including the American Physiological Society, The Endocrine Society, The American Gastroenterological Association and the Central Society for Clinical Research.

Mrs. Schedl and the couple's three children will accompany him to England. Dr. Schedl's leave of absence is subject to approval of the State Board of Regents.

Halftime Interview

Daily Iowan reporters Curt Sylvester and John Bornholdt talk to ex-Hawkeye cager Connie Hawkins during halftime of the Harlem Globetrotters performance in Des Moines last Tuesday night. The 6-9 Hawkins played freshman ball at Iowa before dropping out of school and joining the Pittsburgh Rens, a member of the American Basketball League. When the league folded, Hawkins was asked to join the Globetrotters three years ago. While playing for the Rens, he led the league in scoring for two straight years.

Ex-Hawkeye Frosh Hawkins Finds Home With 'Trotters'

By CURT SYLVESTER
Staff Writer

The Harlem Globetrotters have been called the "clowns of the court." The title is assuredly an appropriate one. For the Trotters, basketball is a serious business of making people laugh. Whether they are dead-tired, ill-fed and, perhaps, bored with the unending routine of bus riding, these basketball comics give their program of slapstick basketball to millions of spectators.

One of the stars of the team is former prize Iowa prospect Connie Hawkins, a man who has seen more ups and downs in his short career than many 20-year men do. "You've got to love the game or just be crazy," said Hawkins in an interview, between halves of the Trotter-Washington Generals game in Des Moines. "I REALLY ENJOY traveling with the Globetrotters, though," the 6-9 hoop magician said. "Right now

I'd say that I prefer playing with them than playing in organized pro basketball. It gives me a chance to travel and I get to see a lot of the country — something I've always wanted to do." But nevertheless, facing a nine-month tour averaging eight games per week, presents many problems. "The biggest problem with all the traveling is keeping your health," according to Connie. "A lot of nights I just have time for a light snack before the game. Since we travel everywhere by bus, we just have to sleep whenever we can."

ALTHOUGH THEY are known throughout the world for their jaunty, carefree, comical style of basketball play, the Trotters don't always have an easy time getting the laughs. "A lot of nights we have trouble with our gags but we just have to keep playing. If they go real bad the coach will call a practice the next day and we'll have to work on them," Hawkins state with resignation. "This gets tiresome. The gags go wrong one night so you have to go out early and practice something you've been doing for six months," he added. The Trotters have "a whole 'slew' of gags they use," Connie said. "Sometimes I get so confused out there I don't know what's going on."

"WE MAINLY USE the basic routines but a lot of times a guy will just see something and say to himself 'I gotta do that' — it's like an artist. If he's painting and he gets a brainstorm and puts it into the painting. When we get a new idea we use it."

Included in the Globetrotters' tour is an annual trip to Europe lasting about four months. The Europeans' main interest is soccer but they appreciate the Trotter style of basketball.

"We played three nights in Italy last year," Hawkins recalled. "The first night the crowd was just so-so, but by the third night they really enjoyed it."

Riding the Pines

With JOHN BORNHOLDT
Sports Editor

Over 9,500 basketball fans packed Des Moines' Veteran Memorial Auditorium Tuesday night for the greatest show on earth. And it wasn't Barnum and Bailey, either. The show started with 60 minutes of Czechoslovakian singing and dancing, but after that things got pretty wild.

The reason: Harlem's Globetrotters, the world's greatest court jesters, had taken over the court and hypnotized the audience with their antics.

THE REAL SHOW started with the words: "Hey Man, who's that coming?" And it wasn't Georgia Brown. Eight of the greatest players to play the game came onto the court to cut up and demonstrate a near perfect ability to control the ball. They moved the ball with the greatest of ease and nonchalantly put it through the hoop from any distance or direction.

Showboat of the group was Meadowlark Lemon, a man who can do everything with the basketball except eat it. Meadowlark gave the Auditorium audience quite a dribbling and shooting exhibition. Off court, you wouldn't think Meadowlark was the top comedian of the troupe. Before the game, he strolled around for awhile, then stationed himself in semi-seclusion behind an open door to watch the customers through into the Auditorium.

"I HAVE FUN out there," he said, pointing at the court. "But it has to be a business, too. If I did it just for fun I wouldn't feel up to playing every night." He is in his 10th season with the famous quintet.

The Trotters play nearly nine months of the year and Meadowlark is such an attraction that he must always be present. "Christmas Eve was my last night off," he said. "I haven't missed a performance in nine years and I've been late for just one."

Loudmouth of the court jesters is Charles (Tex) Harrison. Typical comments from Harrison during the game Tuesday night were: "We're looking good," after he scored a bucket. Or "two-bad" after the opposition had missed a shot. He is always in constant verbal battle with the referee, and talked about as fast as the Trotters could move the ball.

Freddie Neal, a 6-1, bald-headed dribbling marvel, had the opposition (a team called the Washington Generals) running around in circles.

HIGHLIGHT of Tuesday's show was the return to Iowa of Connie Hawkins, a 6-9 sensation who was a freshman player at the U of I before a nation-wide scandal and academic pressures erased him from the college basketball scene. I first saw Connie play as a junior for Boys High School in New York's Madison Square Garden in 1959. The Brooklyn prep star led Boys to the city public schools championship and was rated as one of the best players in the metropolitan area. He was the Lew Alcindor of his day.

As a freshman at Iowa, Connie brought crowds to the Field House hours before the varsity game. Watching him move and handle the ball, you could tell he was good enough to be a pro.

After leaving Iowa in the spring of 1961, Connie joined the American Basketball League and played for the Pittsburgh Rens for two years. Each year he led the league in scoring.

After the ABL folded, Abe Saperstein, owner and coach of the Trotters, asked Connie to join the world famous five.

IN A HALFTIME INTERVIEW, Connie said he was pleased to be with the basketball magicians. Although he admits to a raise in pay from his ABL playing days, he said the tour can be very tiring at times. "We play 8 to 10 games a week for nine months and are constantly on the move," he said. "We travel in a bus where ever we go in the states and the pace is so fast that sometimes I lose a lot of sleep and don't eat proper meals. There has been many nights when all I get a chance to eat is a coke and a couple of hot dogs," he said.

Meadowlark Takes A Shot

Meadowlark Lemon is seen taking a shot for the Globetrotters against the Washington Generals in Des Moines' Veterans Auditorium last Tuesday night. The world famous court magicians

Coaches Feud Following Michigan-Indiana Game

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Branch Dave Strack, of nationally top-ranked Michigan basketball showed poor judgment, said Wednesday that Coach ment in an altercation after their

of the 10 best basketball players in the country. "Connie doesn't know how good he really is," Meadowlark remarked.

Owner-coach Abe Saperstein rates Hawkins even higher. "If he isn't one of the four or five best players in America today, I'd like to know who is better," Saperstein said.

"He is a super star in my book. He has great reflexes and the biggest pair of hands I've ever seen. I'd like to see him play for one of the N.B.A. (National Basketball Association) teams sometime in the future," he added.

CONNIE SCORED EIGHT baskets Tuesday night as the Trotters beat the Washington Generals 88-79. The Generals follow the Globe Trotters around the country and provide adequate professional opposition for the basketball wizards.

Besides bringing their own opposition, the Globetrotters bring their own referee. Maybe this is why they won 420 games last year without a setback.

The "winningest team" in basketball has circled the globe for the last 39 years and up to this season owned an overall record of 8,160 wins against 322 defeats. They have played in 87 countries on six continents, traveled more than four million miles and have a total attendance record of more than 50 million.

Every time they step on a basketball court, they virtually shatter every mark in basketball — total points scored, most minutes played and most miles traveled.

game Monday night and should have been thankful for victory.

McCracken said he shook hands with Strack in the hall after the game and said, "Dave, we sure gave you one."

McCracken said Strack, instead of accepting congratulations and going on, "wanted to pop off about it." He quoted Strack as saying, "We deserved to win it. What are you talking about?"

Michigan pulled out of apparent defeat twice and finally beat Indiana 98-95 in two overtimes.

McCracken said that after Strack made his remark assistant coach Lou Watson of Indiana reached past McCracken and grabbed Strack by the collar.

McCracken told them, "Take it easy and cool off."

Watson and Strack were separated and no blows were struck.

"If Strack had played it smart he'd have gotten out of there," McCracken said.

MADISON, Wis. — Wisconsin's Badgers took 9 of 11 events to beat Iowa's Hawkeyes, 70-35, in a Big Ten dual swimming meet here Wednesday night. The Hawks are now 4 and 3 in dual meet action, but are 2 and 3 in the Big Ten. They will next meet Purdue in Iowa City a week from Saturday on the 27th of February.

Rozelle Calls Inter-League Pro-Play Possible

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League said Wednesday night that a team from his loop could play one from the rival American Football League — providing all 14 NFL clubs agreed. Rozelle, in a news conference following one of a series of daily meetings of the owners of the NFL clubs, was asked about any prospect of an exhibition game between the two leagues.

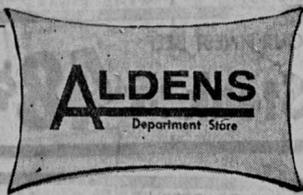

He said there is nothing in the constitution which applies to such a contingency, but the rules do say that all 14 clubs must agree on the pre-season schedule.

On other matters, Arthur B. Modell, outspoken young owner of the champion Cleveland Browns, termed the reported $400,000 paid to quarterback Joe Namath as ludicrous.

DUKE WINS— COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Duke's sixth-ranked Blue Devils routed Atlantic Coast rival South Carolina 87-59 Wednesday night for their 17th basketball victory in 19 starts. Bog Varga and Steve Vacendak kept Duke on top when scoring ace Jack Marin and pivoimant Hack Tison got into early foul trouble and spent considerable time on the bench.

Week in Des Moines' Set

"Week in Des Moines," a program designed to increase student understanding of legislative development on the state level, is scheduled for April 12 to 15, during the University spring vacation.

Four Republican and four Democratic University students will be selected to attend on the basis of academic achievement, interest and activity in politics and leadership potential.

Application forms for the program are available at the Union Information Desk. Completed forms must be returned by Feb. 28.

The students will be chosen by a board and faculty members and students.

Each student intern will spend one day in each house of the Legislature. The remaining time will be spent in committee hearings, party caucuses, and government department.

At the end of the daily sessions, the interns will meet in the Capitol to review their experiences of the day.

Expenses of meals, lodging and transportation to and from Des Moines and the intern's home town will be paid by the program.

Iowa Letter Carriers Group Opens Campus Meet Friday

James H. Rademacher, vice president of the National Association of Letter Carriers, will talk on labor-management relations Saturday at the University of Iowa.

He will address more than 45 Iowa letter carriers attending a three-day institute on the Iowa City campus. The institute which opens Friday, is the first letter-carriers conference on union administration to be held in the United States this year and may serve as a model for future conferences. It is being presented in co-operation with the University's Bureau of Labor and Management.

Rademacher, editor of the Postal Record, will speak on "Labor-Management — by Executive Order or Law," at the evening banquet in the Carousal Restaurant. A member of the letter carriers union for nearly 23 years, Rademacher rose from a station delegate in Detroit, Mich. to national vice president.

Also attending the institute will be James Stocker, executive board member and regional director of the association. He will speak on future plans concerning employee-management relations, address on union cases and aspects of union administration.

The major portion of the seminar will be devoted to helping postal workers improve the administration of their local organizations. Sessions will be held on collective bargaining, grievance handling, and adverse action. Samuel Fahr, professor of law will speak on "Planning for Your Retirement," Friday night in the Iowa Memorial Union.

Other speakers in the program will include William Smith, Waterloo, president of the Iowa Association of Letter Carriers; Max Wortman, associate professor of labor and management; and members of the Bureau of Labor and Management. Conference co-ordinator is Anthony V. Sinicroppo, head of labor services for the Bureau.

RED TRADE AGREEMENT —
MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Havana Radio reported Wednesday that Cuba and the Soviet Union have signed a $640-million trade agreement for 1965. This compares with $315 million last year.

The broadcast said Russia will send Cuba crude petroleum and its products, raw materials for manufacturing fertilizers, some foods, lumber, sheet steel and other products.

Cuba, it added, will send Mesocow sugar, nickel, tobacco and other items.

TV's College Bowl Invites Coe Team

Coe College is scheduled to appear on the nationally-televized College Bowl program on Feb. 28, according to Lynn H. Engdahl, speech instructor at Coe.

Engdahl, coach of the Coe college bowl team, said Wednesday Coe heard about the selection the week before Christmas vacation and immediately began work to select the eight most qualified students.

The first team is as follows: Captain Allison Shepherd, senior psychology major from Ames; Rudy Drost, senior German and history major from New London, Conn.; Anthony Pordies, freshman from Cedar Rapids; and Paul Roberts, junior history major from Skokie, Ill.

Four alternates were also chosen. If they win, Engdahl said, they will get a $1,500 scholarship.

Engdahl said 150 students were first chosen from the Coe student body on the basis of their performance on the junior orals at Coe, by their ratings on college board tests and by faculty recommendations.

These 150 students were then subjected to a "Blitzkrieg-like" oral test, Engdahl said. They were given 197 questions with about one and a half seconds for each question.

Eight students were then selected from this group.

The top four, Engdahl said, were chosen by careful analysis during the weeks following Christmas vacation.

The students practice every Sunday, Engdahl said. They warm up for about an hour and then match wits with the teams on the College Bowl program.

"Actually," Engdahl said, "They have done fairly well. It has been a tossup between them and the winning team, Portland State College."

"Each week the team member and his alternate are assigned an area in which they think they are deficient. Such assignments may include memorizing every bone in the body, every country and its leader or the members of the various English royal families."

The students have practiced on boards similar to those on the show. The boards are equipped with buzzers and lights. In practice the eight students are given a question and timed on the speed of their response.

Also, Engdahl said, the team has challenged four faculty members and has appeared on a special television program in Cedar Rapids.

The team will fly to New York on an all-expense-paid trip Feb. 26.

Engdahl said the students would have Saturday free in New York and would be able to attend a Broadway play that night.

League of Women Voters Pushes Legislative Action

The League of Women Voters of Iowa is circulating an information sheet, "Green Light for Iowa Government," which contains seven points the group wants the state legislature to act upon.

The flier is available at the Information Desk of the Civic Center and at the Main Library.

Mrs. Donald Bryant, 903 Highland St., the second vice president of the state league, is in charge of the league's constitution study. She said the state's 23 leagues have endorsed the proposals and are pushing for legislative action.

MRS. BRYANT SAID most of the seven proposals would require amendments to the state constitution.

The seven points are:

- A four-year term for the governor and lieutenant governor, who would be on the same ticket.
- A shorter ballot by making many state officials appointed by the governor.
- Reorganization of about 80 state agencies and commissions to promote better coordination and to eliminate duplication of services.
- An item veto allowing the governor to kill only part of an appropriations bill.
- Providing for annual sessions of the Legislature.
- Extending the number of government employees under Civil Service.
- Appointment of the auditor by the Legislature.

MRS. DONALD NOLL, 395 Koser Ave., and Mrs. Robert S. Wachal, 1436 Prairie du Chien Rd., are in charge of distribution of the fliers in Iowa City. Mrs. Wachal said they hoped to distribute a thousand copies to service and church groups and to interested individuals.

Mrs. Bryant said copies of the "Green Light" flier had been sent to all state senators and representatives. She said the league had registered lobbyists attending the sessions in Des Moines.

She also pointed out that the Democratic platform contained all seven points of the program, the Republican platform contained several, and that all of the points were being considered in the Legislature.

Troubles Aired By Pope Paul

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI said at his weekly general audience Wednesday that even a Pope has troubles.

He said it was a comfort to him to meet at his audiences with those wanting to see the Pope.

"Even the Pope has need of comfort," he added. "We won't make a list of our troubles. It would be rather long."

"Those who look at the surface scene in which the person and the action of the Pope appear might think that he lives in an atmosphere of superior serenity, where everything is beautiful."

"But it is also true that along with the spiritual comforts from on high the Pope has his cares, coming from his human littleness placed every moment in the face of and sometimes in conflict with the enormous and immeasurable complex of his duties, of his problems, of his responsibilities."

Canaries Go To Pot

LA PLATA, Argentina (AP) — The marijuana was for the birds, so Bronislau Goralyk and three suspects arrested with him in a search for narcotics went free. Police were convinced after Goralyk demonstrated that his 40 canaries burst into song when fed the weeds he grew in his backyard.
