THREE KU KLUX KLANSMEN surrendered to officers Thursday in Birmingham on indictments charging them with murdering a white civil rights worker after the Selma-to-Montgomery march. The first-degree murder indictments were returned earlier in the day by Lowndes County grand jury at Hayneville. The jury was highly critical of statements by President Johnson in connection with the death of Viola Liuzzo, a Detroit, Mich., mother of five.

Bomb Hurling at Church Altar

A MAN HURLED A MOLOTOV cocktail at the main altar of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Cathedral in New York City on Thursday night and it exploded amid a small group of worshippers kneeling at the altar rail. One woman was burned in the fiery blast.

The man, described as a Negro in his late 20s, lit the device and without warning threw it from a fourth-row pew. Then he raced out a side door of the church, leaving behind his blue hat and a second, unexploded cocktail in a shopping bag.

There were about 100 persons quietly at prayer in the church at the time.

House Passes Gas Tax Increase

A ONE CENT A GALLON INCREASE in the Iowa motor fuel tax to bolster the lagging primary highway construction program sailed through the Iowa House 80-33 Thursday.

The bill now goes to the Senate.

City Benefits from Rebidding

A MISTAKE MADE BY IOWA CITY two weeks ago has resulted in a profit of $4,500 for the city.

After the city had awarded the sale of $850,000 worth of sewer revenue bonds to a low bidder, Carleton D. Beh Co. of Des Moines, on April 6, a technical mistake was discovered. The award was rescinded and Thursday was set as the new date for the receiving of bids.

At the City Council meeting Thursday, the bonds were awarded to a new low interest bidder, John Nurveen Co. and Associates, Chicago. The Company's interest bid was 3.357 per cent and will result in a saving of $4,500 over the April 6 low bid.

Iowans Continue to Fight River

THOUSANDS OF MUSCLE-WEARY Iowans strained along 300 miles of flooding Mississippi River shoreline Thursday to contain the river's menacing advance.

The river, on its worst rampage in modern times, already has reached its peak in extreme northeast Iowa. River forecasters again revised upward by six inches the expected crests at some cities downstream.

In Address to Faculty—

Bowen Describes Building Program

By JON VAN Staff Writer

Pres. Howard R. Bowen radiated optimism and confidence Thursday afternoon when he presented a "progress report" to faculty members in the New Chemistry Auditorium.

Bowen's report was his second address to the general faculty since he became president last summer. His first address was last fall.

University building plans dominated the president's address. He said he hopes to launch an over-all building program involving $35 to $40 million. He contrasted the planned program with the soon to be completed business administration building which cost under $2 million.

"Our new program would be equivalent to about 20 business administration buildings," he said.

A fine arts center and a basic science building—each to cost $8 to $10 million—will be the main features of the building program along with dormitories and smaller buildings.

Bowen explained dormitory planning extensively to faculty members. He outlined University plans to experiment with so-called low-cost dormitories, stressing his intentions that no basic standards shall be sacrificed to cut costs. Several services such as sinks in every room, telephones and maid service would, however, be eliminated.

"We owe it to our students and to ourselves," he said, "to see if this will work."

He went on to say there was nothing to lose in building the low-cost dorms since they could easily be converted to full-service, full-price dorms with one student per room, if the low-cost idea proves unworkable.

Taking a broader view Bowen told the faculty he is working on a report about the future of the University which he hopes will be ready by next fall. The report will be submitted to the Regents and to the faculty for suggestions.

Bowen said he is pleased with faculty participation in University affairs. He cited progress made by the University in recruiting new faculty members and urged further work in the future since 80 to 100 new faculty will be needed each year.

The 45-minute report ended with an invitation to faculty members for their questions. There were

In Field House—

Carnival Opens Tonight

By JUDY BRUHN Staff Writer

Gyp joints will go respectable — and who would really care if they weren't? — when Carnival, the Spring Festival's campus carnival, opens at 7 p.m. today in the Field House. The fun will run till midnight.

This afternoon the finals of the college quiz bowl, at 3 in Union conference room 203, and an educational film, at 4 in the Union Pentacrest Room, will be on the festival schedule.

SPRING FESTIVAL, the second at the University, opened Thursday afternoon and will continue through Saturday night.

In the college bowl finals, Phi Kappa Psi will compete against an independent team. These two teams survived the eliminations, which were held on three Sundays in February. Eight teams originally were entered.

Members of the Phi Kappa Psi team are Kenneth Anderson, A1, Spencer; Richard Lozier, A3, Des Moines; Roger Stinard, A4, Glenwood; and Jeff Stoutner, A3, Keota.

The independent team's members are Roger Anderson, A2, Hartley; Norman Brown, A2, Knoxville; John Fink, A2, Cedar Falls; and Glenn Peterson, A2, Alta.

ABOUT 25 student organizations will build 21 booths for Carnival. There will be concessions, games and ballyhoos (kick lines).

A trip around the Field House should provide tests for student skills that have been latent all winter. Students may vent their frustrations by denting an old car with a sledgehammer. In the case of the kissing booth, perhaps the skills needed won't yet be rusty.

Senate Defeats School Bus Bill

U of I Budget Compromise Is Suggested

Joint Legislative Unit Recommends Two-Year Total of $64.4 Million

The University's financial future was treated favorably, but not feverently, by a joint subcommittee of the Iowa Legislature Thursday.

In a compromise recommendation, the subcommittee suggested the University receive $64.4 million for operations during the next two years. The Board of Regents had asked for $66.5 million for University operations, but Gov. Harold Hughes had recommended only $61.4 million in his budget message.

Subcommittee recommendations for all Regents institutions totaled $126 million in operating funds for the next two years. The Regents had requested $133 million and Hughes had suggested $120 million.

The subcommittee compromise is 26 per cent higher than the $100 million appropriated by the Legislature for the Regents two years ago. The Regents had requested a 33 per cent increase, and the governor's recommended increase was 20 per cent.

The subcommittee also compromised on recommendations for capital appropriations to finance construction projects at Regents institutions (including Iowa, Iowa State, and State College of Iowa).

The Regents had requested nearly $40 million, but Hughes recommended $15 million. The subcommittee recommended $21 million Thursday.

The last appropriation for capital improvements was $16 million in 1963.

The subcommittee's recommendations, approved 11-0, go now to the full appropriations committees of the House and Senate. The bill is the first major appropriations measure to be advanced in the Legislature.

Operation appropriations for the six Regents institutions were recommended as follows for the next two years:

- University of Iowa and related facilities, $64.4 million.
 - Iowa State, $43.2 million.
 - State College of Iowa, $12.6 million.
 - Oakdale Sanatorium, $2.5 million.
 - Iowa Braille and Sight-Saving School, $1.1 million.
 - Iowa School for the Deaf, $2 million.
- The Regents asked approximately $18.4 million for capital improvements for University construction during the next two years (including hospital and medical service area.

Action Seen As Setback For Governor

Hughes Had Supported Measure in 2 Previous Legislative Sessions

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa Senate defeated a proposal Thursday to extend public school bus transportation to private school pupils. The House had passed such a measure.

The action was a major defeat for Democratic Gov. Harold Hughes, who in two previous sessions of the legislature had urged passage of similar bills.

The Senate vote was 39-19, with 16 Democrats opposing it. All Republicans except Sen. Tom Riley of Cedar Rapids voted against it.

Debate of the measure, which passed the House 66-56 April 6, took two days in the Senate. More than a dozen senators spoke during the two hours of final arguments Thursday afternoon.

Opponents of the measure said it was unconstitutional, unwieldy and expensive. Backers said it was fair and desired by most Iowans.

The measure called for public school districts to provide bus transportation of a student from one district to another. And it would have put the additional cost borne entirely upon local districts unless the state later substantially increased its transportation aid allotments to local districts.

Amendments to make major changes in the bill were offered and rejected. Some of those who voted against the bill said they would have approved it in a different form.

Miss Johnson then read a list of each candidate's qualifications while a Mortar Board active circulated in the crowd in search of the girl.

EACH ACTIVE evidently had her candidate fairly well spotted by the time she was sent to tap her, for although she meandered among the spectators with no obvious goal, the Mortar Board cap was placed squarely upon the girl's head the second her name was announced from the steps.

When the tapping was completed, both old and new Mortar Board members were lined on the Old Capitol steps.

The women were initiated into active membership in ceremonies in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol immediately after tapping.

Would-Be Journalists Told To Write Letters

Ruth Philpott Collins, a free-lance writer for over 50 years, believes aspiring journalists should begin by writing interesting letters home.

Mrs. Collins spoke at the Matrix Banquet Thursday night at the Union where Susan Mockridge, A4, De Witt, was honored as Outstanding Coed of the Year. The banquet was sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, a professional fraternity for women in communications.

"YOUNG JOURNALISTS often complain about lack of opportunity to write," Mrs. Collins said. "But if the young writer's letters home are so dull that her parents glance over them once and say, 'She's well,' she might as well give up. If, on the other hand, they call all the neighbors in to hear the letters read, she is well on her way to becoming a journalist."

Following Mrs. Collins' speech, outstanding campus and city women were recognized.

Miss Mockridge was named the outstanding coed for her participation in student government, Panhellenic work, University Chorus, and Union Board. She is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and is working towards an honors degree in English.

Mrs. B. F. Patrick, 515 Oakland Ave., was named Outstanding Woman of the Year. Mrs. Patrick has been active in school and church activities, is a member of the University Club, the Athens History Circle, and the Altrusa Club. She is also executive secretary of Community Givers.

—Representatives To Debate Monday—

Resolved: In Viet U. S. Should...

By SUZANNE ANDERSON Staff Writer

The foreign policy problems of the United States, particularly in Viet Nam, will be debated by two U.S. representatives experienced in foreign relations at the Political Affairs Conference Monday.

Reps. Jeffery Cohehan (D-Calif.) and Silvio Conte (R-Mass.) will speak on the Southeastern Asia trouble spot and other foreign policy aspects at 8 p.m. in the Union Main Lounge. The debate is part of the day-long conference sponsored by the Student Senate in cooperation with the President's Office and the Political Affairs Department.

COHELAN is serving his fourth term in Congress. He was a member of the Berkeley, Calif., City Council and the Berkeley Welfare Commission prior to his election.

After graduating from the University of California, Cohehan studied economics at Oxford University, England, as a Fulbright research scholar.

He is a member of the San Francisco Council on Foreign Relations and the House Committee on Appropriations.

Cohehan is married and the father of two sons and two daughters.

REPRESENTING the Republican viewpoint will be Rep. Silvio Conte. Conte is known for upholding his personal convictions regardless of party, politics or pressure groups. Often he has voted against his Republican colleagues to follow his own beliefs.

After serving four terms as a Republican state senator, Conte was elected to the House in 1958. In the 1962 elections he received the highest percentage of Republican votes of any opposed candidate in the nation — 74.4 per cent of the total vote cast.

In 1964, he received both the Democratic and Republican nominations and ran on both tickets. He was the only member of Congress to do so.

Conte, a graduate of the Boston College Law School, serves on the House Committee on Appropriations. He is also a member of the subcommittee on Foreign Operations which examines U.S. foreign aid expenditures.

CONTE co-sponsored the "Civil Rights Act of 1963." He later introduced a bill outlawing segregation and discrimination in public accommodations and fought against crippling amendments to the bill during House debate.

Festival is back, healthier than ever

FAIR WEATHER and a deluge of activities followed spring vacation this year to the delight and some consternation of students.

In addition to cases of spring fever, students are lured away from the books by a bulging calendar of events, not the least ambitious of which is Spring Festival.

From the brief preview we have had, it looks as though the Festival has become much healthier in the first year after its conception, due to the hard work of both this year's and last year's Festival committee. The first crew on the scene has a chance to make the most obvious mistakes, but also to lay a solid foundation for following years.

The creation of an all-campus special committee to handle Spring Festival seems to have been a shot in the arm for the project; Student Senate, the original sponsor, has enough to keep it busy.

The Weather, if it holds, is also an asset for the Festival this year; last year, rain managed to cancel a major portion of the planned activities. But most of all, there is more to do this year — street dance, picnic, Kaleido, Carni, exhibits.

Perhaps more than anything else, the biggest selling point of the Festival is that it is aimed almost exclusively at students, particularly students in a spring mood. There was criticism last year, and most likely this year also, that the Festival is too gay, that frivolity has no place on a campus.

This criticism perhaps originated in the feeling that the Senate had better things to do and that basis has changed now.

We feel that there is a place for frivolity and entertainment in the university environment; it's actually a question of whether the activities are organized and made available to many, or whether everyone creates his own.

The Spring Festival is simply good clean fun (although that sort of advertising might scare away some students) that has something for everyone.

And this year in particular, the students that have worked long and hard to create a series of events which promise to be quite entertaining have done an excellent job. It is very difficult to carry off such a large undertaking and those responsible get a round of applause for their efforts.

The bomb 20 years afterward

(Editor's Note: Twenty years ago next July 16, the United States exploded the world's first atomic bomb. Since this test explosion in the New Mexico desert the nation has invested more than $30 billion — and still is investing about $2 billion yearly — in the military and peacetime applications of nuclear energy. A vast atomic empire has grown up around the country.

AP science writer Frank Carey recently made a coast-to-coast trip to survey latest work at some key installations, and he tells about one of them in this account.)

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer
SANDIA BASE, Albuquerque, N.M. — The United States has developed "lay-down" weapons for its nuclear arsenal — to allow hit-and-run attacks by low-flying aircraft which can then speed off without being annihilated by the blast.

They have armor tough enough to survive impact on the hardest surface, including rock and concrete, without losing their pack- age of nuclear explosive. And they have delayed-action fuses for detonating the explosive when the attacking plane is safely away.

They are designed for missions — presumably of the tactical variety — where planes need to fly at low altitudes to avoid radar detection and counterfire.

THE TOUGH HIDE and ingenious electronics of these novel weapons are among the brain-children and products of a little-advertised but, vastly important facility in the nation's atomic empire — a key atomic support base of the Atomic Energy Commission and the armed forces.

They are developed at guarded laboratories, and test areas here in the foothills of the Sandia Mountains, whose color peacefully changes to watermelon-pink at sunset.

Here, technicians, literally, try to wreck, burn and freeze the hardware that goes into America's nuclear bombs, missiles, land mines, depth charges, artillery shells and other arms.

The idea is to assure that every component that goes into the weapon will be able to:

1. Survive any conceivable accident in transit or storage.
2. Withstand every caprice of nature, including temperatures ranging from 90 degrees below zero at the fringes of space to the 5,400 degrees above zero that would be encountered by a warhead re-entering the atmosphere.
3. Possibly survive the most devious countermeasures of an enemy, including sprays of radiation.

AMERICA IS, in effect, waging war against its own weapons with such devices as:

Rocket-powered sleds that slam weapons components against barriers at velocities more than twice the speed of sound; the world's largest centrifuge, a giant high-speed merry-go-round which can subject weapons assemblies weighing up to five tons to forces 45 times the force of gravity in a simulation of a missile launching; drop towers from which devices weighing up to 3,000 pounds are sent crashing onto concrete slabs; nuclear reactors in which hardware is subjected to bursts of radiation; various kinds of shake tables.

Giant refrigerators where temperatures down to 100 degrees below zero can be achieved; all kinds of heat chambers, including one where quartz lamps flash heat of 5,400 degrees; a mammoth air gun, made by placing two battleship guns end to end, and designed to shoot weapon assemblies weighing up to a ton or more against targets.

All this is going on at a site where other scientists already are planning the weapons of the future. They say, in answer to questions, that they have secret drawing board concepts of what nuclear arms might look like 10 years from now.

THE RIGOROUS, shake, rattle and roll testing and other measures are designed further to assure that fully assembled weapons — containing their nuclear charges — are ready for instant firing even though they may be kept sleeping for years on end in secret storage vaults.

The location of these storage places is one of the nation's closest-kept secrets.

THE PRETESTING of non-nuclear hardware — and periodic selective testing of non-nuclear components of stockpiled weapons — is the responsibility of a unique organization known as the Sandia Corp. It's an arm of the Western Electric Co. especially formed to work under a nonprofit contract for the Atomic Energy Commission.

The corporation's job is to conceive, design, test, and supervise the manufacturing of all the non-nuclear components — the outer fabric for the nuclear explosive's parts developed by the AEC's weapons laboratories at Los Alamos, N.M., and Livermore, Calif.

As one official put it: "Los Alamos and Livermore make the 'bang' part; we take care of the hardware around it."

Literacy tests hit

By WILLIAM W. VAN ALSTYNE
(From The Nation, third in a series.)

President Johnson's proposed voting rights bill is a 15th Amendment bill which is directed to but one part of one facet of voting rights — racial discrimination in the use of so-called literacy tests.

The appalling difference between the bold egalitarian principle proclaimed by President Johnson in his famed speech, and the diminutive bill which followed, calls attention to the historic ambivalence of the American political experiment. On the one hand, there is the unfulfilled egalitarian commitment of the Revolution which repudiated all philosophies of elite rule.

It anticipated Lord Acton's dictum that for the long run, power may not safely be divorced from those subject to that power.

IT ANTICIPATED pragmatism, in holding that operative truths at any given time can be only the conclusion reached in the market where a variety of alleged truths compete for acceptance by those who are expected to conduct themselves according to whatever consensual truth becomes law for the time being.

It implied the view that the right to vote can no more be made to depend upon what others may think of the qualifications of the voter, than the right to speak can be made dependent upon what others may think of the qualifications of the speaker.

Indeed, it conceived an experiment in political responsibility in the same sense of Holmes's observation that our commitment to freedom of speech is an experiment and, as he noted further, as "all life is an experiment."

The ambivalence of the experiment, however, proceeds from the fate that the Constitution hedged on the implied purpose of the Declaration of Independence. While it, too, spoke in part of government by the people, it provided in substance only for the elite in control of the state legislatures.

The Constitution neither defined American citizenship nor guaranteed to those who were citizens any right to vote either in state or federal elections. Rather, it left the determination of state and local electorates for Congressional representatives entirely to those who then and thereafter administered the state governments.

SIMULTANEOUSLY, it provided that the federal electorate for Congressional representatives was to consist only of those whose state governments had already made eligible to vote in state elections. The selection of the President and of Senators, moreover, was simply handed over to the state legislatures.

Except for the method of filling these offices and, with other minor qualifications, none of this has been basically changed by any subsequent amendment to the Constitution.

In fact, the original defect has been heavily underscored by succeeding amendments. In providing that none shall be disqualified from voting because of race or sex, the Fifteenth and Nineteenth Amendments carry forward the implication that any other state ground of disqualification continues to be constitutional.

Religious issues confuse matters in Viet Nam

By RICHARD DUDMAN
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch
FOURTH OF A SERIES

(Editor's note: The Daily Iowan, with special permission from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, this week is reprinting a series of articles written about the situation in Viet Nam.)

SAIGON, South Viet Nam, March 24 — It is said here that the American effort to help South Viet Nam defend itself from Communist-led insurrection would be successful, given two conditions:

- (1) A loyal commander-in-chief of the armed forces able to stay in power.
- (2) A generally respected prime minister.

A further condition is that the two must have confidence in each other.

If everything else were going smoothly, the two conditions are far from satisfied.

The commander-in-chief, Maj. Gen. Tran Van Minh, known to Americans as "Little Minh," is regarded as a temporary choice pending emergence of a new strong man from among the young generals who forced out Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh.

MOST POWERFUL among the prospects to take over as strong man of the country appear to be Brig. Gen. Nguyen Khanh Thi, commander of the First Corps, and Air Vice Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky, commander of the Air Force. Both are decisive, flamboyant and ambitious.

Premier Phan Huy Quat, satisfactory to Buddhist leaders for a change, seems highly suspect to the militant right-wing Catholic minority. Some influential Buddhists think that the American embassy is cool toward Quat because he is too close to the Buddhists.

Political instability thus promises to characterize the future as it did the past.

American officials are still unhappy over Gen. Khanh's ouster of Premier Tran Van Huong last Jan. 27. Most other observers considered Huong's overthrow inevitable and overdue. Partly through his own fault, partly through that of the Buddhists, he became involved in a bitter fight with them. It ended with his calling them "animals," a particularly unpleasant epithet in Vietnamese.

BUDDHISTS LEADERS believe that they are seriously misunderstood in the United States. There have, indeed, been times when their statements were distorted. For example, when Thich Tam Chau recently called for the withdrawal of both American forces and North Vietnamese forces from South Viet Nam, an American press service report gave prominence to the first point and minimized the second.

The Buddhists see themselves as the catalysts of a revolution that is needed in Viet Nam, a revolution to rid the country of remaining elements of feudalism, French colonialism and the dictatorship of the late President Ngo Dinh Diem.

Although they are generally considered neutralist by American officials, the Buddhist leaders appear at the same time quite wary of coming under Communist domination. Their primary goal appears to be peace rather than neutrality.

Buddhist leaders in the university community at Hue, in the far north of South Viet Nam, are strongly in favor of the American and South Vietnamese air raids against North Viet Nam, as long as they are intended to bring about peace negotiations.

IF THE RAIDS are aimed simply at winning total victory over North Viet Nam, however, they are against them. The Buddhists say they are not sure which is the aim of President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The great majority of South Vietnamese is nominally Buddhist and under the right circumstances, such as in the repressive final months of the Diem regime, can be rallied in a powerful political movement by the Buddhist leaders.

There is a strong feeling among these South Vietnamese Buddhists that they are bearing the brunt of the war. It seems to many of them that the casualties on both sides are mainly South Vietnamese, while the North Vietnamese main force in the Viet Cong stays somewhat in the background and the North Vietnamese Catholics who fled here in 1954 live mainly in the cities and escape the worst of the war.

Part of the popular attitude is plain war weariness. Buddhist leaders generally have a stake in the status quo, but they must show some deference to the peace settlement or lose most of their influence over their followers.

Aside from rivalries among the generals, political tension here is largely a matter of mutual suspicion between the Buddhists and Catholics.

Diem's flagrant favoritism toward the Catholics mobilized the Buddhists against him and led to his downfall. Since then, the Buddhists have been watchful lest Diem's followers gain a foothold in the new government.

THE LAST coup was primarily by members of a secret political society headed by Diem's brother, the late Ngo Dinh Nhu. It was essentially the same group that tried unsuccessfully to overthrow the government last Sept. 13.

A mark of that group's continuing strength seems to be that Lt. Gen. Tran Thien Khiem remains South Viet Nam's ambassador to Washington although he let his name be used by the coup leader as the man who would come flying in and take charge.

The chronic political instability is bound to affect the course of the military and "pacification" efforts.

Whenever there is a new surge of unrest, the generals converge on Saigon and key troop units are rushed here to provide leverage. Gen. Ky takes his Air Force off other duties and sends bomb-laden planes over the capital and the airport as a threat to whomever he opposes.

The unrest is blamed mainly for the fact that Hoang Tac, a special pacification effort centered on the capital and intended to spread to surrounding provinces, is lagging behind its timetable.

When troops were withdrawn from areas being cleared and secured against the Viet Cong, guerrilla agents moved back in with their threats and propaganda. The message was believed to be that they would return anytime the troops left.

Officials have been unable to get precise details. The villagers are afraid to tell.

Revolting students—

Why all the demonstrations

By ART BUCHWALD

There has been a great deal of discussion about campus revolts spreading across the nation. It is obvious the students are restless and its making our educators very nervous.

The question is why, and I think I've got the answer. The reason the college students are doing so much demonstration is that there is no one in class to teach them anymore and the students have nothing else to do. All the most every full-time professor is either writing a book, guest lecturing at another university, or taking a year off to write a report for President Johnson.

Therefore, he has turned over his course to a graduate instructor who is either working on his Ph.D., traveling on a Fulbright scholarship, or picketing in Montgomery, Ala. So he in turn has turned the class over to one of the brighter students who is never there because he works on the college newspaper, is a member of the student senate, or is a delegate to his national fraternity.

When the students arrive at class there is no one in front of the room, so usually a Socialist student takes over the class and tells the students it's about time they revolted against the system.

THE STUDENTS pour out on campus heading for the administration building to protest to the chancellor of the university who, unfortunately, is away trying to raise money for a new business administration building.

The vice chancellor is at the state capital testifying on a new education bill and the dean of men is at a convention in Phoenix, Arizona.

The dean of women is addressing a garden club in the next state, and the only one left in the administration building is the chief of campus police who isn't quite sure what the students are yelling about.

So he arrests the ringleaders of the group (those standing in front) and this pays right into the students' hands, because now with the arrests they have something to demonstrate about.

In the meantime the chancellor flies home to see if he can settle

All the most every full-time professor is either writing a book, guest lecturing at another university, or taking a year off to write a report for President Johnson.

Therefore, he has turned over his course to a graduate instructor who is either working on his Ph.D., traveling on a Fulbright scholarship, or picketing in Montgomery, Ala. So he in turn has turned the class over to one of the brighter students who is never there because he works on the college newspaper, is a member of the student senate, or is a delegate to his national fraternity.

When the students arrive at class there is no one in front of the room, so usually a Socialist student takes over the class and tells the students it's about time they revolted against the system.

THE STUDENTS pour out on campus heading for the administration building to protest to the chancellor of the university who, unfortunately, is away trying to raise money for a new business administration building.

The vice chancellor is at the state capital testifying on a new education bill and the dean of men is at a convention in Phoenix, Arizona.

The dean of women is addressing a garden club in the next state, and the only one left in the administration building is the chief of campus police who isn't quite sure what the students are yelling about.

So he arrests the ringleaders of the group (those standing in front) and this pays right into the students' hands, because now with the arrests they have something to demonstrate about.

In the meantime the chancellor flies home to see if he can settle

Farmers get less though prices zoom

WASHINGTON — Congressional study shows that in the past 17 years prices received by the farmer for food he produces have dropped 15 per cent while retail prices to consumers jumped 31 per cent.

The study covers the years since 1947, after wartime rationing and price controls ended. It was published by the House Agriculture Committee.

The study gave these figures on what the farmer receives now:

- 37 cents of each $1 spent for food.
- 2.5 cents for the corn in a 29-cent box of cornflakes.

So everyone decides to go to Washington and picket the White House over its policy on Viet Nam.

booked on a lecture tour to talk about free speech at other universities.

He is about to do this when the board of regents holds an emergency meeting and votes to back the chancellor in meting out punishment to the "ringleaders."

The faculty, made up of visiting professors from other schools, votes to support the students and the chancellor finds himself in an impossible position.

He therefore resigns and accepts a grant from the Ford Foundation to make a study of higher education.

THE STATE politicians call for an investigation of the student demonstrations to discover if they were Communist-inspired.

Finally, the Governor makes a statement pledging full support for law and order, whatever that means.

By this time the demonstrations start petering out.

The students begin wandering back to class hoping there will be someone to teach them something. But even the Socialist student who started the demonstrations is not there. He's been

The University's Changing Face

Striving To Stay In Step With The Students, The Schools, And The Staff

As warm weather forces students to shake the mothballs out of their spring wardrobes and dot the campus with pastel dresses and madras shirts, so, too, the campus has a new look, as finishing touches are put on the Union and other buildings start to rise.

The new Currier addition (left) is rapidly being completed to alleviate the problem of keeping pace with the rapidly growing student body.

The English Department will soon have its first classroom building (right), while the Physics and Astronomy Department will be able to move into their new building this year. Shown (center picture) is the Van de Graff accelerator.

Curiosity about the Union addition will finally be satisfied this June when it opens. The addition includes a conference center, guestrooms, a ballroom, dining rooms, and additional recreational facilities and storage area.

The Business Administration Department is readying itself for the major move into their new building (upper right) this year. Classrooms, offices and an auditorium are in building. The department is now in University Hall.

The Astronomy Department's new telescope (left) is located south of Iowa City and will soon be ready for operation.

More space for studious students will be available when the Union addition (right) opens this year.

'Margotte' Opens Wednesday— Play Probes Religion

By EILEEN GREUFE
Staff Writer

"The Legend of Margotte," the final Studio Theatre production of the season, will open April 28 and run through May 1. The three-act drama, written by Blake Leach, G. Bloomington, Ill., deals with a girl who questions the structure of the medieval Catholic Church.

"The play is not against religion and it is not against God," Leach said in a recent interview. "It is against the blind acceptance of such a religion."

MARGOTTE REFUSES to blindly accept the teachings of her church. She questions her religion, not for purposes of rebellion but to learn the truth, and she is martyred for doing so, Leach said.

The intent of the production is theatrical, according to Jean Scharfenberg, assistant professor of dramatic art and director of the play. No elaborate scenery or props are used.

The play is non-realistic, Leach said. Each character represents not an individual but a type of thinking common during the period. Each character portrays the essence of his type of thought.

The cast is headed by Mary Beth Springer, Al. Marshalltown, as Margotte; Joan Helg, G. West Burlington, as Meeken; Holly Michaels, G. Oskaloosa, as the mother superior; and Frederick Blais, G. West Stewartstown, N.H., as the priest.

OTHER CAST members are Katherine Vachon, A4, Manchester, N.H.; Barbara Nelson, A1, Streetsboro; Rochelle Richelieu, A2, Wheaton, Ill.; Susan Atwell, A3, Belmont, Mass.; Jane Anton, A1, Waterloo; Mary Louise Smith, A3, Quincy; Hazel Hall, G. Dothan, Ala.; Marsha Hale, A3, Iowa City; Lynne Sauser, A1, Peoria, Ill.

James Babbitt, A3, Omaha; Sam Bittman, G. New York City; Barry Kaplan, G. New York City; Jim Castled, A1, LeMars; John Fink, A2, Cedar Falls; John Uthoff, A1, Iowa City; Michael Shannon, A1, Des Moines; Eric Carlson, A1, Cleveland; and Harmon Dresner, A1, Wilmette, Ill.

Professor Scharfenberg said that the greatest problem in directing the play is its episodic style. There are many scenes in different locales. Many transitions must be made on stage.

SOME OF the characters were written in too much detail, Leach said. Therefore, cutting of the script was necessary.

"We're learning more about the play as we go," Professor Scharfenberg said. She added that the spectacle of the play has increased and some of the rituals within the play have been progressed.

"We hope they (the audience) will be shocked," she said. "The question that should arise in the minds of the audience is, 'Is there a difference between the Middle Ages and now?'"

Leach wrote "The Legend of Margotte" in partial fulfillment of the requirements for his M.A. thesis.

Tickets for the play may be obtained at the Union East Lobby Ticket Desk for $1 or upon presentation of a student ID card. The ticket desk is open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily except Sunday.

Saturday afternoon Prof. Albert T. Luper of the School of Music will moderate a panel discussion at 2:30 p.m. on church music. Members of the panel will include Rosella Duerksen of the First Presbyterian Church in Iowa City; George Forell, professor of religion; Gerhard Kraft, head of the Organ Department at Iowa; Daniel Moe, director of University Choir; and Dr. Bichsel.

Saturday evening's recital by Prof. Ferris will feature J. S. Bach's "Tocatta, Adagio and Fugue in C," Buxtehude's "Tocatta and Fugue in F," Hindemith's "Sonata III, Op. 65."

For his final number, Prof. Ferris will play "Fantasy for Organ, Trumpet, Trombone and Percussion," a recent work by William Hibbard, G. Newton, Mass. He will be assisted in this number by University students and faculty members.

Prof. Ferris will also present an organ literature and materials discussion at 10:45 a.m.

Dr. Bichsel has written many articles on church music and is assistant pastor of St. Matthew Lutheran Church in Rochester, N.Y. He has also served on the faculty of Valparaiso University in Indiana and was a lecturer in medieval music at the Chicago Musical College. Dr. Bichsel is an associate professor of music at the Colgate Rochester Divinity School in Rochester, N.Y.

Prof. Ferris is a 1950 graduate of Michigan State University and is now a lecturer on liturgical music at Harvard Divinity School.

The Church Music Conference is sponsored by the University School of Music in cooperation with the Division of Extension and University Services.

Who in the world seals the bottom? Volkswagen.

Here's a side of the VW that few people know about: the underside. It is completely enclosed, and sealed with rubber to make it practically airtight. So tight, there are reports it will float! But here's a more useful advantage: a VW slashes through water that brings other traffic to a standstill.

On most cars, control wires and cables are left exposed. But notice how flat and smooth the VW bottom is. No hollow pockets and hanging parts to trap air and slow you down. Less drag. Better gas mileage. A VW depreciates less than any other car because less can happen to it.

Drake Relays Open Today

DES MOINES (AP) — Muscular Randy Matson, easily the biggest man and attraction at the Drake Relays, takes aim today at the first of two records he is expected to harvest.

The Texas A&M sophomore is the most heralded individual in the meet, and at 260 pounds has more to work with than his rivals.

Matson's efforts in the discus will be closely watched as the 56th annual Drake track and field meet gets under way.

He has tossed the discus 201-5/8, more than 15 feet better than the seven-year-old Drake mark.

ON SATURDAY Matson will shoot again for the world's first 66-foot toss in the shot put. He has a best of 67-11/4, eight feet past the Drake mark set a year ago by Baylor's Frank Mazza.

Hawks Open Big 10 Season

Gebhard Slated to Start Against Tough Illinois

The Iowa Hawkeyes will have a definite goal in their Big Ten season opener with Illinois on the Iowa Field at 3 o'clock this afternoon — to get some runs.

Except for the first two games of the year the Hawks have been unable to supply much hitting power. In six games with Arizona and one each with Central and Bradley the Hawks have averaged two runs per game.

Illinois will provide a tough opening test for the Hawks' hitting. Sophomore left-hander Ken Holzman has been picked by Illini Coach Lee Ellbracht as his starting pitcher.

Holzman has pitched 16 innings this year and has racked up a total of 20 strike-outs while only allowing nine hits and two earned runs for an impressive 1.10 ERA.

Although Iowa's hitting has been light thus far in the season Coach Dick Schultz maintains confidence in both the pitching and the defense, which has been playing almost air-tight baseball in recent games.

Schultz has picked Bob Gebhard to start today's game with the Illini, hoping for a repeat of last year's results. Gebhard then threw a five-hitter against Illinois and the Hawks came in with an 8-2 win. So far this season the big right-hander has pitched 20 innings, given up 8 earned runs and has whiffed 23.

Trenton Jackson, an Olympic sprinter who gave up track to concentrate on baseball, has been the leading hitter in Illinois' 4-2 pre-Big Ten season. Jackson is hitting .444 with 3 runs-batted-in in six games.

Iowa's leading hitter has been first baseman Mickey Moses. With 12 hits, including two doubles and a triple, in 35 times at bat, Moses is currently batting at a .313 clip. Gebhard who has played in the outfield while not pitching is the second leading hitter with a .290 average.

Iowa will try to improve on the seventh place finish of last season. Illinois finished in the Big Ten basement.

Schauenberg To Be Honored

Bob Schauenberg, Iowa's brilliant young baseball pitcher who authored a perfect no-hit, no-run game Tuesday against Central, will be honored during a pre-game ceremony prior to the Hawkeyes' Big Ten opener against Illinois Friday at 3:25 p.m.

During the ceremonies presided over by Bud Suter, co-ordinator of athletic relations, Iowa coaches Otto Vogel and Dick Schultz will present the junior right-hander with the baseball used to record the final out.

Schauenberg's perfect game is thought to be the first ever pitched on the Iowa diamond. On his way into the Iowa record book, the Milan, Ill., product struck out 14, picked up 3 assists and a put-out, and contributed 2 hits and a run to Iowa's 4-0 victory.

Police Say Caster Hurt In Altercation

The beating of a University student Monday morning was apparently the result of an argument, Capt. Verne H. McClurg of the Campus Police said Thursday afternoon.

McClurg said an investigation of the incident had revealed that John G. Caster, Al. Hedrick, was involved in an argument with another man in the Union Monday morning. He said the two fought near the Union as a result of the argument.

Caster was still in the Student Health Center Thursday night. His doctor said he was "doing very nicely" but refused to say what his condition he was in or what his injuries were.

Police were told that he suffered a broken jaw.

Caster told police he remembered nothing after having coffee at the Union Sunday night. He said he did not even remember who took him to the hospital Monday afternoon.

Police declined to release the name of the man involved in the argument with Caster. McClurg said investigation of the incident was continuing.

SHARP PITCHING aims to win revenge from professors and students at the "Drop the Bomb" water-dunking booth. The same windup may win cigars at the coin toss and hit the mark in the garter toss and pastry pitch.

The Field House will also contain an "Illi-Sit-In," Hawaiian Hili-lites," a key club, a fortunetelling booth, a haunted house, the "Whiskey Go, Go Club," "The Short Snort," and "Baby Bill's Saloon."

THE CARNIVAL will be held in the armory end of the Field House. A sock hop sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, will be in the north gym.

General admission tickets for Carni are 25 cents.

The organization participating in the carnival are working for points toward the All-Participation trophy. The trophy will be awarded at the sock hop around midnight. Trophies will also be given to organizations with the best game, best concession or best ballyhoo.

FACULTY JUDGES will award points to each booth on the basis of quality, originality, design and appearance. The groups also earned points by selling admission tickets and by publicity stunts.

About 200 people attended the festival's opening ceremonies Thursday afternoon. The Scottish Highlanders, the Air Force and Army ROTC drill teams, and the ROTC band saluted the Big Ten schools.

Loren V. Kottner, director of the Union, spoke for the administration.

"More than 2,000 students," he said, "will be involved in activities this weekend to provide other students with something that is fun and educational."

AFTER THE opening ceremonies, 21 junior women were tapped for Mortar Board, senior women's honor society, on the steps of Old Capitol. A street dance and a picnic supper at the Union completed the afternoon's activities. Kaleido, the student variety show, was held Thursday night.

A water festival on the banks of the Iowa River in the afternoon and the International Student Festival in the Union Main Lounge at night are on the festival's Saturday schedule.

Career Seminar Scheduled Sunday

"Computer Concepts and Educational Administration" will be the theme of the four day career development seminar of the University Council for Educational Administration to be held here Sunday.

Approximately 100 representatives of the 48 member universities are expected to attend the seminar which is being sponsored by the College of Education.
