News in Brief

THE U.S. NAVY WILL evacuate American citizens who want to leave the rebellion-torn Dominican Republic, the U.S. embassy announced in Santo Domingo early today. An embassy spokesman estimated that 400 to 500 Americans would quit the Dominican capital. There are about 2,300 Americans and their dependents in the country.

The Navy late Monday stationed a task force including the carrier Boxer and 1,500 Marines off the Dominican coast. Meanwhile, Dominican military leaders continued to wage a see-saw struggle for power.

INDIA DECLARED MONDAY THAT TANK-LED Pakistani infantrymen attacked south across the west Indian frontier in fresh, large-scale thrusts. India's Armed Forces were alerted. Defense Minister Y. B. Chavan announced in Parliament that a battle launched Monday morning was still going on at noon in the Haren Rann of Kutch. A spokesman said Indian casualties were "considerably less than company strength" — about 125 men — and Pakistan's were higher. It appeared that danger of escalation to a larger conflict rapidly was increasing and that the United States and Britain had failed in their attempts to win a cease-fire.

A 60-FOOT COMMUNIST PATROL BOAT was reported sunk and North Viet Nam's road and rail lines were hit again Monday by U.S. and South Vietnamese warplanes. Half a dozen raids rounded out two weeks of daily attacks. Spokesmen said all the planes returned, though ground fire in some areas was heavy. Radio Hanoi declared two planes were shot down.

THREE KU KLUX KLANSMEN PLEADED INNOCENT Monday to charges of premeditated murder in the killing of a Detroit woman, shot to death after taking part in a civil rights march. Called to trial first was Collie LeRoy Wilkins Jr., 21, Fairfield, Ala., youngest of the trio charged with the slaying of Viola Gregg Liuzzo, a mother of five. Wilkins will go on trial Monday in state court in Haynesville, Ala. He and the other two defendants will be tried separately.

North Viet Nam Sends Regular Units South

MC NAMARA: WASHINGTON (AP) — Heavy Communist casualties in South Viet Nam have forced North Viet Nam to start sending regular army units into battle there, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said Monday.

McNamara reported in a news conference this turn in what he called "progressively more flagrant and unconstrained" aggression by North Viet Nam.

Evidence gathered in the last month, McNamara said, has confirmed the presence in a central highland province of a battalion of the regular North Vietnamese army.

McNamara said "there is no military requirement for the use of nuclear weapons in the current situation."

He added that no useful purpose can be served by "speculation on remote contingencies" in which

MORSE: WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) denounced U.S. policy in Viet Nam Monday, calling it "immoral and godless." And he said Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara "should have been removed months ago."

Expressing fear of a general war in Southeast Asia, Morse told the Senate that if President Johnson "continues to follow the ill-advice of McNamara and Rusk he is going out of office as the most discredited president in American history."

Morse, taking the Senate floor on a point of personal privilege, said McNamara contended at a Pentagon news conference Monday morning that he does not believe Russia or Red China will enter the war.

"My answer, Mr. Secretary," Morse said, "is, suppose they do?"

"I happen to think our plans to escalate the war leaves them no course but to come into this war."

Rising Water Rips Levees, Cities Fight Record Floods

Local Option Seen Dead In Committee

Hughes Opposed Bill Passed by House, 4-1, 'Enforcement Difficult'

DES MOINES (AP) — A bill to allow a form of local option to cities in sale of liquor apparently died in the Senate Judiciary Committee Monday.

Committee Chairman George O'Malley (D-Des Moines), assigned it to a subcommittee which opposes the bill and is unlikely to report it back to the full committee. Subcommittee members are O'Malley and Sens. Eugene Hill (D-Newton), and Stanley M. Heberlein (D-Mount Pleasant).

The bill, which passed the House 87-21, provides that if a city votes wet in a local option election, liquor sale may continue there even though the county as a whole votes dry. Similarly, a city which voted dry would be so even though its county went wet.

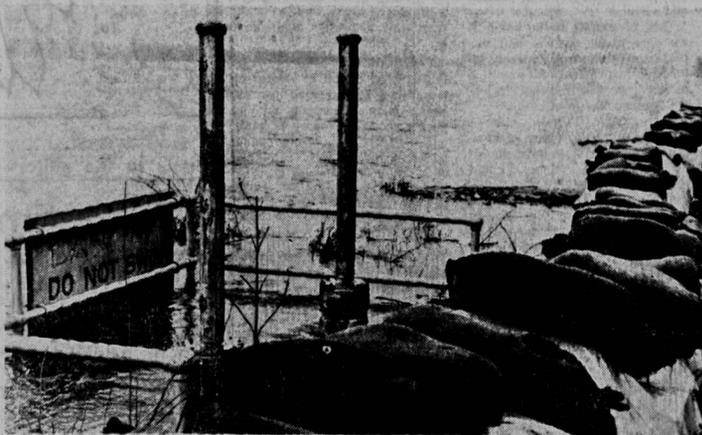

Gov. Harold Hughes has said he opposes local option in principle and this bill particularly because it makes law enforcement more difficult.

The Senate began debate on a bill to allow creation of a system of up to 20 area vocational schools and two-year colleges.

Work on a stack of proposed amendments barely began before the Senate adjourned for the day. An amendment by Sen. Joe Flatt (R-Winterset), to allow state and federal support of vocational training with no local tax support was defeated.

The bill as drawn would allow levy of up to one mill of property tax for operation of the schools, and collection of another mill with approval of 60 per cent of the voters to finance buildings.

Under discussion at the end of the day was an amendment by Sen. Vern Lisle (R-Clarinda) to allow establishment of an area school by a single school district. The original bill would require two or more school districts to join together to start a school.

Ya Can't Drink It . . .

An' ya can't swim in it, either. Disaster has its ironic side. Sign restricts swimming, but we wonder if Bettendorf's main traffic artery also is posted "No Swimming." ## River Spreads To Farms, Factories

Crest Nears Clinton; Thousands Evacuate

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP) — Surging flood waters of the Mississippi River roared over and through levees in Burlington and Rock Island late Monday and churned into industrial areas and rich farm lands.

Water poured through ruptures in a 4 1/2-mile levee onto 3,200 acres of farm land north of Burlington. Some 400 National Guardsmen who had been working on the dike were ordered off.

Some 150 families have farms in the affected area, but most had moved equipment and livestock to higher ground earlier.

Officials said the largest of several breaks in the levee was 150 to 200 feet long.

Highway 99 was closed from Burlington to a point 2 1/2 miles north of the city. The city of Burlington was not endangered.

In Rock Island, a small levee protecting an industrial area buckled. The water gushed to the rear of the J. I. Case Co. on the city's northwest side.

Officials said storm drains began backing up in Rock Island, a city of 51,000.

Gulport, Ill., five miles north of Burlington, was virtually a ghost town. Its 400 residents left their homes Saturday night and officials moved their flood headquarters to higher ground.

Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois released Monday $50,000 for use of the Illinois National Guard on duty in Henderson, Adams, Mercer and Jo Daviess Counties.

Volunteer flood workers in Iowa and Illinois worked gamely against the churning flood waters, but it appeared they were engaged in a losing fight.

The mighty river already was six feet above flood stage in the Quad

Cities area and still rising, threatening breaks in makeshift levees protecting communities in both states.

A predicted crest of 22.5 feet, 7 feet above flood level, is expected Tuesday or Wednesday.

In Rock Island, leaks appeared in a three-mile earthen dike and city officials expressed fears it

CLINTON (AP) — Gov. Harold Hughes and seven state and federal officials made a helicopter and automobile tour of flood areas along the Mississippi River in Davenport and Clinton Monday.

The party flew to Davenport from Des Moines in an Air Force C-47, and then continued on to Clinton in six National Guard and Air Force helicopters.

At a briefing in Davenport, the governor was told by A. L. Burleigh, chief of the Hydrologist Division of the Rock Island District Corps of Engineers, that the present flood is "much greater than anything experienced on the Mississippi River in this century, and probably the biggest flood since 1828."

would burst, pouring water into a housing project with 1,200 residents. Most of the residents already have been evacuated.

Hundreds of high school and college students in Rock Island, Moline and East Moline remained away from classes to help the thousands of volunteers already piling additional sandbags on dikes.

Heavy weekend rains contributed to the already record high waters that have driven more than 60,000 persons from their homes in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa as the flood moved downstream.

In Davenport, across the river from Rock Island, volunteers continued to throw up additional defenses against the approaching flood crest. The government bridge leading to the Rock Island Arsenal was closed.

At Dubuque, the Mississippi held steady Monday at a record 26.8 feet — its high mark — and was expected to start receding slowly Tuesday, dropping below 25 feet by Sunday. Monday's level "was nearly 10 feet over flood stage."

Officials there believe the worst is over, unless one of the dikes gives way. The situation was under control Monday.

At Sabula, an island community between Dubuque and Clinton, Mayor Wendell Allen said, "We feel pretty secure now. We're still bagging, but no new danger spots have developed." He said 6-7 trucks loaded with sandbags were being held in readiness for any emergencies.

At Clinton, Councilman Lowell Phillips said, "We're holding our breath waiting for the crest, which was expected at 25 feet, eight feet over flood stage — Tuesday midnight. Sand bag operations were continuing. 'Fort Johannesen,' the man-made fortress built to prevent flood waters from backing into the city's sewer lines, was holding firm."

TV Networks To Carry LBJ News Conference

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Broadcasting Co., Columbia Broadcasting System and National Broadcasting Co. will carry President Johnson's news conference live on both television and radio today. The Mutual Broadcasting System will carry it live on radio. The news conference is scheduled for 4 p.m., EDT, 2 p.m. CST.

Debaters Agree: Avoid Withdrawal

The surrender of South Viet Nam to Communism could lead to the fall of most of Southeast Asia, said Reps. Silvio Conte (R-Mass.) and Jeffery Cohelan (D-Calif.) at the Political Affairs Conference Monday.

"THE CONFRONTATION in Viet Nam is really between the United States and Red China," said Conte. "There would be no Viet Cong without the aid and support they are getting from Communist China."

Conte said he was convinced that neither a pullout nor negotiation at this time would solve the problems the United States faces in Southeast Asia. In either case, he said, it would be abandoning Viet Nam to the Reds.

According to Cohelan, "There is no question in my mind that we must negotiate if we are to find a reasonable, sane, and meaningful solution."

But, Cohelan warned, the United States must be sure of what it is negotiating.

"AGGRESSION, UNRESISTED, leads only to more war," Cohelan said. In the past, he said, negotiations conducted from weakness have led to disaster.

Conte said U.S. foreign policy must be grounded on political moderation regardless of which party is in power.

Conte listed three common goals for free world foreign policy. The first was to combat and prevent the spread of Communism; the second, to accomplish this by settling our international problems through peaceful means. The third goal was to help all peoples of the world through intelligent foreign aid programs.

Though Conte supported the Administration's determination to remain in Viet Nam, he said, "I do not support the coverup, deliberate distortions, and half-truths with which the Johnson administration lets us in on what's happening over there."

COHELAN SAID THAT it was the Administration's policy to strengthen the institutions by which the rule of law, rather than the rule of arms, should determine man's future.

"We are not determined to see that particular economic or social systems shall prevail," he said, "but we are determined to see that those nations and people who so desire, shall be independent; to determine their own future in peace, free from external intervention or aggression."

Congressmen Say —

Demonstrators in Need Of Baths, Sound Image

Student demonstrators aren't such a bad lot, but many of them really could use a bath.

This seemed to be the sentiment of two Congressmen visiting the University for the second annual Political Affairs Conference.

Rep. Silvio Conte (R-Mass.) told a press conference Monday he agrees that anyone should have the right to demonstrate his protest, but many persons involved in recent Viet Nam protests in Washington gave their cause a bad image.

"It's no good for visitors to Washington to see the ones (demonstrators) who looked like they hadn't had a bath in a year," he said. "Some looked as though they were wearing the ugliest clothes they could find."

The other congressman, Rep. Jeffery Cohelan (D-Calif.) called the demonstrations a "good, healthy thing" in our society which has a "tradition of protest."

Cohelan said the demonstrations have a real effect on public policy. President Johnson's speech at Johns Hopkins University was brought about partly because of protest and criticism of his Viet Nam policy, Cohelan said. (Johnson offered to negotiate a peace settlement in that speech.)

Conte agreed demonstrations are healthy, but held the caliber of the demonstrators to be important in determining their effectiveness.

"Many demonstrators are sincere in supporting their cause, others are defiant, and others are just against everything and for nothing," Conte said.

Viet Nam dominated the press conference with both congressmen supporting the Administration's policies. Cohelan said news coverage of the Vietnamese war is the best of any overseas story he remembers. Conte expressed agreement with the so-called "domino theory" of foreign relations, saying that Japan and the Philippines would probably be endangered if communists won South Viet Nam.

The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra

'Orchestra on Wheels' Gives First of 3 Concerts Tonight

The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra will open its three-concert visit here tonight when Stanislaw Skrowaczewski steps onto the stage in the Union Main Lounge to direct Bartok's "Concerto for Orchestra" and Beethoven's "Symphony No. 3."

Tickets are available to students on presentation of their identification cards at the Union East Lobby Desk. ID cards are good for only one concert. Tickets have been on sale to the general public since Saturday at $2 each. Students of the University School of Music will be allowed two free tickets each.

The orchestra will present three concerts this year instead of the two given in previous years. The increase stems from response given the group in previous visits.

THE ORCHESTRA, one of the most widely traveled in the United States, is often called the "Orchestra on Wheels." It plays to more people on tour each year than it does to its home audiences at the University of Minnesota.

In an ordinary season the orchestra presents about 70 concerts in more than 50 cities. Stanislaw Skrowaczewski was named director of the group in 1960. He has composed a number of works in addition to his conducting the orchestra. Among these works are four symphonies, four string quartets, an opera, and a ballet.

The two other concerts will be Wednesday afternoon and evening. James A. Dixon, associate professor of music and director of the University Symphony Orchestra, will conduct the Wednesday evening performance. Dixon was assistant conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony in 1961-62. The concerts will be at 2:30 and at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Union Main Lounge.

THE PROGRAM at 2:30 p.m. will include Hindemith's "Concert Music for Strings and Brass Instruments," Berlioz' "Symphonie Fantastique" and Messiaen's "Oiseaux Exotiques."

Eva Knardahl will be piano soloist during the afternoon performance. At the 8 p.m. performance Thomas Stacey will be soloist on the English horn. This performance will feature Dixon conducting Debussy's "La Mer," Sibelius' "The Swan of Tuonela" and Tchaikovsky's "Symphony No. 5."

Tickets for each of Wednesday's concerts have also been on sale to the general public since Monday.

'Bike Accident Renews Tiff

A recurring controversy on campus exploded again last weekend. A car-motorbike accident seriously injured a coed Friday and sparked an argument on the danger of rented motor scooters.

IRONICALLY, the accident was not caused by the scooter and was in no way connected with the fact that the scooter was rented, according to an investigating officer.

Janice Caldwell, A4, Newton, is in University Hospital in serious condition with head and leg injuries. She was a passenger on a scooter driven by Joseph Mooney, A1, Leawood, Kan., when it was struck by a car at the intersection of Bowery and Johnson.

The driver of the car, Richard Hahn of Cedar Rapids was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way. Mooney suffered cuts and bruises and is now on crutches.

Mooney and Miss Caldwell were returning to Rent-A-Bike, Inc. with another couple, Paul Natkiel, A1, Skokie, Ill., and Julie Hanson, A2, Fairfield.

The group was within a block of returning their scooters when the accident occurred.

An investigating officer, Robert A. Vevera, said the accident could have happened to anyone and was not Mooney's fault nor connected with the practice of renting scooters by the hour.

HOWEVER, he added that most accidents involving cyclists were caused by the scooter renters — most were inexperienced drivers and lost control of their machines.

Vevera said there have been four scooter accidents this year. The two worst ones involved rented bikes, he said.

Natkiel said a boy of about high school age at Rent-A-Bike showed him and Mooney where the gears were, but didn't give further instructions. Natkiel said he had rented scooters before, but that Mooney had not.

RENT-A-BIKE is operated by Delbert Knight and David Foraker. Both Knight and Foraker said the scooters were perfectly safe when handled correctly.

"If I even thought these things were as dangerous as cars I would

Avoidable tragedy

WE HAVE NOTHING against motorcycles, and we certainly don't like to be wet blanket about having a good time. But today calls for a few words of gloom.

Friday saw another car-motorcycle accident in Iowa City which resulted in serious injuries to a coed riding on the cycle. The motorcycle was rented.

Last spring we had the unfortunate task of printing several similar stories of accidents on rented motorcycles in the news pages of The Iowan. If something is not done to regulate the rental of motorcycles soon, we shall probably be carrying more such stories this spring.

When a motorcycle and a car meet in an accident, the cycle and its passengers are bound to come out badly — if they come out.

An accident which would mean a few dented fenders and a bruise for two auto drivers can mean death for a motorcycle driver or his passenger.

No matter who legally may be at fault, the cyclist comes out the loser.

For this reason a cyclist must be a safer driver than the average motorist. He must not only avoid causing accidents himself, but he must keep well away from accidents others might cause.

There is no steel frame protecting the cyclist from being crushed by a careless auto driver.

Most experienced cyclists are aware of the dangers of driving in traffic on their two-wheelers, and most own their vehicles themselves.

The persons who rent motorcycles are usually inexperienced. They seek a little fun by forsaking the more familiar but less exciting automobile for a motorcycle.

A drivers license and a few dollars are all you need to rent a motorcycle.

You know the traffic rules — stop on red, go on green but what about that car running the light? Hit the brake! Which one's the brake? Oh, yeah, this one.

And by now you've booked reservations at University Hospital.

Iowa's compromise

THE JOINT BUDGET subcommittee of the Legislature has made its recommendations for Regent appropriations and — to no one's surprise — not many people are very happy.

The committee suggestions for operating appropriations were clearly a compromise. They fell roughly half way between the original Regent request and Gov. Hughes budget recommendations.

A 33 per cent appropriation increase was sought by the Regents, while the governor suggested a 20 per cent hike. The committee's figure was about 26 per cent.

On appropriations for building money, the Regents got the short end of the compromise. They had asked $40 million in capital appropriations — Hughes allowed $15 million in his budget and the committee recommended $21 million.

The operating suggestions represent of the subcommittee represent an absolute minimum on which the state's schools may skimp by for another two years without lowering academic standards and yet expand enough to accommodate increasing enrollments.

The committee's suggestions do not provide any money for improvement in academic standards — only enlargements.

Gov. Hughes, on the other hand, has said the figures suggested by the committee are too high and cannot be squeezed out of his budget.

The capital appropriations figures suggested by both the governor and the legislative subcommittee are unrealistic. Every Legislature for the past 30 years has skimmed on billing funds — some have appropriated nothing. Capital appropriations, unlike operating appropriations, represents an investment. An investment in the economic sense — bricks, steel, buildings.

Once construction catches up to where it should be, future Legislatures could get by appropriating under $20 million. But until then, the situation will get even more critical.

'Michael Joe': craft

By ROBERT SCHOLLES
For The Iowan

William Cotter Murray. MICHAEL JOE: A NOVEL OF IRISH LIFE. Appleton Century, 336 pp., $5.95.

There are some people who believe you can find an appropriate saying for any occasion in the writings of W. B. Yeats — and I am one of them. Casting about for some potent set of words to explain to University of Iowa readers why it is important for them to know about Michael Joe McCarthy — an ordinary inhabitant of an obscure village in a backward part of what James Joyce called the most belated nation in Europe — I felt the need for help.

So I reached for my Yeats. He did not fail me. In 1891 he had written, "Most things are changed now — politics are different, life is different. Irish literature is and will be, however, the same in one thing for many a long day — in its nationality, its resolve to celebrate in verse and prose all within the four seas of Ireland. And why should it do otherwise? A man need not go further than his own hills or his own village to find every kind of passion and virtue."

This, of course, is the point. If we care about passion and virtue, or even if we are merely interested in physical and emotional force, we will find that "Michael Joe" speaks to us.

Yeats, Synge, O'Casey, Joyce — to name only the greatest of modern Irish writers — have shown that intensely Irish material could be of international significance. William Cotter Murray, who teaches technical writing (among other things) here at Iowa, has shown that Ireland's curious and stormy love affair with the English language is not yet over.

I FIND Mr. Murray's teaching of technical writing an interesting sidelight on his fiction. One can hardly visualize Yeats, say, doing that sort of stint.

But Mr. Murray is not Yeats or Joyce or a pale imitation of any of the greats of Irish literature. And he is, what few Irish writers have been, a technician of the novel. "Michael Joe" is a craftsman's piece of work.

Its plot moves with a sweet inevitability from event to event, an inevitability secure enough to tolerate surprises. Michael Joe McCarthy grows from boy to man, misses his best chance for love, marries a "pure" woman, always seeing too short a distance ahead, struggling into too late, and ending a defeated man. Mr. Murray's novel is a late-blooming nettle on the literary thorn bush known as "naturalism."

"Michael Joe," in a way, reminds us of Hardy, of Dreiser, of Liam O'Flaherty. If it were just another naturalistic work, it might merit some faint praise as a nice effort for a first novel.

But it is more than mere naturalism — and rates much higher praise than the encouragement due an earnest but unfulfilled talent. Naturalistic works have a way of being incredibly depressing. The better they are, the more depressing they get.

"Michael Joe" is not that sort of book. It was written, obviously, with joy, the craftsman's joy in a thing well made, and the craftsman's joy is always available to a reader who cares.

THEN TOO, Mr. Murray is too Irish to tell a dull or depressing tale. His story is rooted in a wry irony: Michael Joe jilts an "impure" woman to marry a "pure" one — and it is the wrong choice; he wants his son to be something of a rough and sensual boor like himself — and the boy turns out to be a model child who becomes a priest.

The comic pathos of the book, its distinctly Irish brand of sentimental irony, as unique as the taste of Irish Whiskey — these are strong points in the novel.

It is also a completely absorbing story, as hard to stop reading as it is to stop pulling an apparently endless thread out of one's coat-sleeve.

Mr. Murray is an Irishman, then, speaking of Ireland, but communicating with a larger world which includes Iowa. The established Writers' Workshop at this University, and the exciting new Translation Workshop (which I may praise because I have no connection with them) are dedicated to international communication and cultural exchange.

This University's intellectual and artistic commerce with the world is an exciting and important affair. Mr. Murray's novel, clearly a distinguished work in its own right, is also an important addition to a fine tradition of excellence in arts and letters. To read it is to have a small share in this great tradition.

Great unwashed explains itself

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — The real objection to student demonstrations in the United States, as far as I can discover, is not the politics of the students or what they're demonstrating against, but the fact that many of the demonstrators are unwashed and uncombed.

Just the other day Congressman Dowdy of Texas told the Daughters of the American Revolution at their 74th convention that their arrival in Washington was "a breath of fresh air" compared to the "rabble-rousers, beatniks, and bums who so recently have been descending on us."

Many people have been echoing Congressman Dowdy's words. "If they'd only take a bath," a friend told me, "I wouldn't care what they did."

Another man said, "I think if they really believed in America they'd s h a v e."

A lady who witnessed the White House Easter demonstrations said, "I don't think those girls shampooed their hair in a year." And so it goes. There is nothing that disturbs a white collar worker more than somebody else with a dirty white collar. It is therefore my belief that if we could clean up our demonstrators there would be no objection to their demonstrating. For one thing, you know anybody who looks clean isn't going to be a Communist.

For another, since cleanliness is so close to godliness, you know that a clean demonstrator believes in God, and that's all we ask of our students these days. I talked to several of the students picketing the White House on the Easter weekend and they agreed with me that cleanliness was quite a problem when you're demonstrating.

"You ride all night on a bus," one student said, "so you're not going to wear your best clothes. Then you have to think in terms of sit-ins. You never know when you're going to be ordered to sit down. Most sidewalks are pretty dirty, you know."

Another student agreed and also said, "You know, demonstrating is hard work and you work up quite a lot of perspiration carrying those signs over your head. Even if you did take a bath it wouldn't help."

A COLLEGE COED in blue jeans said, "There's no sense putting up your hair because it gets all matted up if you get arrested."

"It isn't as if we're going to a prom," another co-ed added. "But there are some pickets who look very neat," I said. "Oh, those are FBI informers."

They have to look neat or they'll ruin their image.

"Besides," the other co-ed added, "they're the only ones allowed to use the White House washroom."

"Then you're not against baths in principle?"

"OH, NO," a student said. "If they'd let me in the White House I'd take one right now."

"Me, too," another student said. "They must have more than one bath in there."

Only one student in the group said he wouldn't take a bath in the White House. "At least until they stop bombing North Viet Nam."

Letters to the editor —

It's time to talk

To the Editor:

I am 36 and unpolitical. I avoid discussions of politics. Once I failed to vote, in a national election. But now I repent. It's time to talk.

We are in bad waters. We are informed by each morning's headlines that our government is continuing to 'escalate' the Viet Nam war. But we are given no opportunity for effectual public debate on the matter.

The Government's case is presented by fiat, detailed briskly to newsmen, or dubiously promulgated by White Paper. Obviously multiplying threats of counterattack from Communist China are met by what — to the lay newspaper reader — can only seem to be mute pushing-forward.

Interested and traditionally neutral Asian nations, like India, are not listened to. A 17-nation plea for negotiation is met by counter-scheme — the Mekong Valley Plan — but never by 'public' governmental discussion, and above all never by a recourse to the fundamental issues of human destiny.

The inmates of a University should be (and in many cases are being) the first to protest. We need to think this crisis through, and to make our Government talk and think it through with us; then we all need to act wisely as a group. If we don't, a time may very shortly come when tightlipped Texan pragmatism is our only spokesman. Any suggestions?

'Rio' is great fun

By WILLIAM TEUNIS
Iowan Reviewer

The American public is uncritically greedy for anything labeled "James Bond parody." Unlike "The Man From Uncle," television's gift to the greedy, "That Man From Rio" (now at the Iowa) deserves its acclaim.

Directed by Philippe de Broca and starring Jean-Paul Belmondo, it's the best movie in town, almost as superb a job as de Broca's "Cartouche!," a semi-parody of swashbuckler movies, which also starred Belmondo and which appeared here a few months ago.

Many of the scenes and gimmicks in "That Man From Rio" are straight out of the Ian Fleming thrillers. There are intercontinental flights, exploding cars and motorboats, a bulky silenced-pistol that shoots curare-darts, and an indestructible, dark-skinned henchman whose name might as well be Oddjob. Belmondo himself often parodies Bond — as when he tries the fatal karate-chop and only hurts his hand, or when, in dinner-jacket, he dodges three cars which are trying to run him down simultaneously.

HOWEVER, "That Man From Rio" is only a partial parody of the Bond movies. Its plot is actually a throwback to earlier adventure films. Old moviegoers will be nostalgically delighted. Instead of super-villains like Goldfinger or Doctor No planning world-domination in collusion with SPECTRE or Red China, there's that familiar heavy, the ruthless archaeologist, on that oldest of all quests, the hunt for hidden treasure. (Remember "Sinbad the Sailor"? Remember the old Tarzan movies?)

Instead of a Bondish superman, Belmondo comes on like Harold Lloyd — an ordinary guy who gets caught up in something he doesn't understand and finds himself performing heroic deeds.

On a brief leave in Paris from the French Air Force, Belmondo goes to the home of his fiancée, Agnes, just in time to see her kidnaped by the same men who have stolen an ancient South American statuette from a museum and killed a guard.

In the first of many fantastic chase-sequences, Belmondo steals a motorcycle and follows Agnes to the airport. Later he steals or hitches rides on cars, bicycles, loading dollies, airplanes, water-skis, boats, and even a wheel-chair, to perform incredible rescues and escapes.

His perpetual cry — "Agnes!" — sounds on the beaches of Rio de Janeiro, the pavements of Brazilia, and the waters of the Amazon. The film's tongue-in-cheek spirit is obvious from the very first shot: a close-up of a bull.

BELMONDO'S humiliations keep pace with his heroics. Clinging to the side of a boat going up the Amazon, he has garbage dumped on his head. He lifts a sack of cement to hurl at the villains; the sack breaks and the cement pours all over him. (Such burlesques of Bond's exploits are the sort of parody which television's "The Man From Uncle" also attempts, with less style.)

Of course, Belmondo does finally become a superman, in a bar-room brawl and in the climactic jungle scenes where he reverts beyond Bond to become the earliest of the super-heroes, John Clayton, Lord Greystoke — Tarzan himself.

De Broca and Belmondo have now made two fine, funny movies which are the definitive examples of their genres. It may be a great deal to hope for, but I would like to see this director-actor team go after other genres too.

Pirate pictures got a de Broca-style treatment several years ago with Burt Lancaster as "The Crimson Pirate"; but war movies, as far as I know, are waiting virginally to be parodied; so are Roman-Biblical epics. Above all, there should be a de Broca-Belmondo western.

Viet news clamped

Robert Eunson was a war correspondent for The Associated Press in World War II and in Korea. He is now director of Asia services for The Associated Press.

By ROBERT EUNSON

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — Information given newsmen about the U.S. military role in Viet Nam is under the supervision of the U.S. information Service.

U.S. military briefing officers are subordinate to Barry Zorthian, head of the U.S. Information Service here, a unit for the U.S. Information Agency. The USIA is an independent agency under the policy direction of the White House and the State Department. Its objective is to present the image of the United States in the most favorable light.

In World War II and in Korea, regulations for coverage of armed conflict involving U.S. service men came from the military. Zorthian has criticized reporters in private for stories which did not violate security but which he thought were unfavorable to the United States.

THE PRESS information officer here for the Military Assistance Command is Col. Ben Lagare. However, when a set of 20 ground rules for coverage of air strikes was issued recently the memorandum was signed, not by Lagare, but by Zorthian as "minister-counselor for public affairs."

The Zorthian memorandum states that the rules "must be observed by official briefers and other American and Vietnamese official personnel."

Zorthian's memorandum says that information that will "normally be released as soon as available" includes the target hit, nationality of the striking force, whether the aircraft was land-based or from naval aircraft, general characterization of the success of the mission, tonnage or ordnance used, numbers of strike aircraft, enemy anti-aircraft ground fire and pilot sightings or unfriendly aircraft.

The memorandum prohibits disclosure of information on aircraft taking off on strikes, identification of land bases, or location of bases from which the aircraft were launched, number of aircraft damaged, or enemy air reaction other than that actually seen by strike personnel. The total aircraft lost will be released when recovery operations are completed.

CORRESPONDENTS have not objected to any regulations issued for reasons of security. They have objected strongly to the policy of not allowing free access to military personnel without being accompanied by an "escort officer." This policy, they feel inhibits military personnel during interviews.

The Zorthian memorandum says "entry and movement within air base areas controlled by the Vietnamese air force will be in the company of a guide. Journalists passing through a Vietnamese air force area to reach an American installation will be escorted to and from the American installation by a Vietnamese air force guide."

The memorandum also says: "Beginning on Monday, April 12, foreign journalists who hold Government of Viet Nam and Military Assistance Command Viet Nam accreditation can apply for Vietnamese high command authorization for entry to military airfields in Viet Nam, including Da Nang."

After briefing on security regulations, the newsmen may move without an escort "through unclassified areas of the American installation."

The Da Nang air base, from which many strikes have been launched against North Viet Nam is near the South Viet Nam-North Viet Nam border.

U.S. NEWSMEN have been barred from the Da Nang air base since late March. Despite the Zorthian announcement that accreditation would begin April 12, no accreditation cards have been issued.

American billets, messes and service men's clubs are still closed to newsmen.

The U.S. Air Force announced March 16 that newsmen entering Da Nang must have an official escort. A spokesman said the orders came from the Vietnamese air force, but Brig. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, commander of the Vietnamese army's first corps area, denied this.

Diagnoses Aided by Lab

By BRAD CHURCH
Staff Writer
(Third in a series.)

The microbiology and virology sections of the State Hygienic Laboratory help doctors throughout the state effectively diagnose various diseases.

The microbiology lab, headed by Dr. P. F. Koontz, isolates and identifies bacterial infections, and the virology lab, headed by Y. W. Wong, identifies viruses.

All premarital blood tests required by state law are processed in the serology lab. This lab receives 500 to 1,000 blood specimens daily, of which 200 to 400 are premarital. Others are sent in by doctors who want results of the tests to help them diagnose illnesses.

Glass plates containing various substances are used to grow bacteria in the microbiology lab. Different bacteria will grow on different substances. One part of the lab is totally devoted to making these plates at the rate of nearly 2,000 per week.

Various kinds of samples, ranging from blood to throat swabs are sent to the lab by doctors throughout the state. The lab tries to isolate the bacteria and grow them. This gives an idea of what kind of bacteria are contained in the sample.

Some of the bacteria are then placed on a plate where they will grow. Also on the plate are spots of various kinds of antibiotics.

observing how the bacteria react to different kinds of antibiotics, a recommendation on how to treat the disease can be sent to the doctor.

This saves the doctor from having to learn through the trial and error method.

Diseases most often diagnosed by the lab are throat infections, intestinal diseases often caused by contaminated food or water, ear infections and boils. Fungus diseases, such as athlete's foot or ringworm also are diagnosed. Fluorescent dyes are applied to certain cells for observation under the microscope's ultra-violet light.

In special cases, such as strep throat in a child, which can develop into rheumatic fever, results can be obtained in 24 hours, or in an emergency, in as little time as four hours.

Other samples often received by the lab are tested for brucellosis, trenchmouth, malaria, amoebic dysentery, and roundworm.

Medical Research Highlights Meet

Medical students at the University will present the results of special research investigations at the third annual Student Research Conference today in the Medical Amphitheater of University Hospitals.

Elliott O. Partridge, M.D., Colo., is chairman of the program, which is sponsored by the Medical Student Council and the dean's office of the College of Medicine.

Dr. Robert W. Berliner, director of Intramural Research at the National Heart Institute, Bethesda, Md., will be guest speaker. His topic is "Current Concepts on Saline-Induced Diuresis." A banquet will be held Tuesday evening.

Twenty-three abstracts of student research were selected by a special student-faculty committee composed of medical students, Partridge, and Alan K. Rider, M.D., Garwin, and Drs. William K. Hamilton, head of anesthesia; C. Adriaan M. Hogben, head of physiology; and Charles H. Read, professor of pediatrics.

The student-organized event is designed to recognize and encourage active research by medical students. By practicing active research, the student gains intensive scientific experience and becomes better equipped to deal with the ever-changing content of medical knowledge.

English Department Starts Modern Literature Center

A center has been established here to provide the University's Department of English with one of the most comprehensive programs for the study and writing of modern literature.

Composed of disciplines within the Department of English — contemporary literature, literary criticism, comparative literature, creative writing and translation — the Iowa Center for Modern Letters is designed to encourage intensive study of modern literature and the creation of literary art.

Its main activities will be to sponsor conferences and lectures which demonstrate the relationship between scholarship, criticism and writing, and to coordinate a fellowship program to enable students to study in their chosen specialties and related fields.

The first event to be sponsored by the new center will be a talk by Donald Davie, British poet and guest lecturer at Grinnell College. He will speak on "Sincerity and Contemporary Poetry," May 3.

May 17-18 the center, in cooperation with the Writers Workshop and the Department of Romance Languages, will sponsor a program on "Translation as an Art." The conference will celebrate the publication of a volume of translations edited by Professors Donald Justice and Alexandre Aspel. Speakers will include scholars and critics having an interest in modern French poetry.

Each year the center will conduct one major conference. The first in this series will be held Oct. 28-30 on "The Poet as Critic." Speakers will include Profs. Richard Ellman, Northwestern University; Rene Wellek, Yale University; Elizabeth Sewall, British teacher, author and critic, and Murray Krieger and Ralph Freedman, both of the University.

Members of the center's founding committee include Paul Engle and Eugene Garber from the Program of Creative Writing; Prof. John Gerber, Geoffrey Hartman, Robert Scholes and Frederick P. W. McDowell, Contemporary English and American Literature; Frederic Will, Translation Workshop; Freedman, Comparative Literature, and Krieger, Literary Criticism. Professor McDowell is chairman.

Grant To Give Ag Medicine New Building

A new laboratory and classroom building and an expanded research program for the Accident Prevention Section of the Institute of Agricultural Medicine, will be provided by a four-year grant of $223,491 from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation, Battle Creek, Mich.

Besides offices, drafting rooms, classrooms, and a library-conference room, the proposed building will contain a shop-laboratory area in which farm safety equipment may be designed and tested. The office-classroom area of the one-story, T-shaped building will measure 32 by 90 feet and the shop-laboratory will be 40 by 90 feet. No decision has been made on location of the building.

Headed by L. W. Knapp, assistant professor of agricultural medicine, the Accident Prevention Section of the Institute now uses laboratory facilities loaned by the College of Engineering and has offices in the University's water plant.

The Kellogg grant also will provide funds for the section to begin two new research programs when the new facilities are completed. One project will be aimed at developing and field testing mechanisms for altering farm equipment controls for use by handicapped farmers. The Department of Orthopedics will collaborate on the project.

The other new program will be a study of the environmental stresses associated with the use of farm equipment and the possible development of an improved type of cab for agricultural tractors and combines.

Knapp said the new facilities will enable the section "to develop a more complete research, engineering and educational approach to the injury problems of farmers and will provide more direct contact with farmers and representatives of industrial firms who are seeking to improve safety of equipment they manufacture."

The Institute's Accident Prevention Section was established in 1959 with a three-year, $57,000 grant from the Kellogg Foundation. Research has included investigation of circumstances surrounding farm tractor-motor vehicle accidents, safety shielding for corn pickers, tractor anti-roll frames and hydraulic lifts, design of gear guards, shielding for rotary lawn mowers, a six-county rural family injury survey, and a study of power take-off injuries.

The institute, the only facility of its kind in the western hemisphere, also includes a Comparative Medicine section, which studies animal diseases transmissible to man, and an Environmental Toxicology section, which studies poisonous substances such as pesticides used on the farm.

Acceptance of the latest grant to the institute from the Kellogg Foundation is subject to the approval of the finance committee of the State Board of Regents.

Science Teaching Award Given to U of I Graduate

John R. Penney, chemistry teacher at Mason City High School, has been named Iowa Science Teacher of the Year by the Iowa Section of the American Chemical Society. Penney has been teaching science in high school for 31 years.

Announcement of the award was made today at the annual meeting of the Iowa Academy of Science at the University of Dubuque. A $300 cash prize goes with it.

Penney, 51, joined the Mason City high school faculty in 1947 as science teacher and coach. He had taught previously at Hillsboro, Blairsburg, Van Meter, and Newton. From 1950 to 1957 he was assistant high school principal at Mason City and was principal until 1961 when he resigned from the higher paying post in order to return to classroom teaching. He is in the classroom five hours a day and is active in sponsoring the local science club and its activities.

Included in the recommendations for Penney were these comments:

"He is the kind of career teacher who has much to do with the success of America in the future... I have been a teacher for over twenty years and he is still the model of the kind of teacher I want to be."

"It has become accepted by those of us in the system to anticipate many of John's weekends being spent working in a laboratory to prepare coming lessons, or in spending time working with both promising and problem students." More than 80 per cent of Penney's students have attended college.

Penney earned a bachelor's degree at Drake University in 1934 and a master's degree at The University of Iowa, Iowa City, in 1946. The past three summers he has attended institutes in chemistry sponsored by the National Science Foundation. He is a member of the state and national education associations, the Iowa association of Classroom Teachers, Iowa Science Teachers Association, and Phi Beta Kappa.

Penney is married and has two children; his daughter, Sue, is studying for a Ph.D. Degree in education at The University of Iowa, and his son, Robert, is a graduate of Idaho University and is now in armed forces pilot training.

Professor Richard Campbell of the U of I chemistry department was chairman of the award committee. Firms that sponsor the award are Collins Radio Company, Cedar Rapids; Grain Processing Corporation, Muscatine; Maytag Company, Newton; Rath Meat Packing Company, Waterloo; The Des Moines Register and Tribune Co.; Dr. Salisbury's Laboratories, Charles City.

Use of Seat Belts May Aid Survival

Forty-three per cent of the persons who will die in auto accidents could survive if seat belts were worn and design changes were made in cars, a medical specialist said here Friday.

Dr. Paul W. Gikas, pathologist from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, said most fatal injuries occur when persons are thrown from a car or when they "become human missiles which collide with interior parts of the car in a crash."

He spoke to 48 physicians from Iowa, Illinois, and Nebraska who attended a two-day conference on injuries to the head and neck, sponsored by the University's Department of Otolaryngology and Maxillofacial Surgery.

Dr. Gikas heads a team of investigators in Michigan who investigate the circumstances surrounding fatal auto accidents. The research, sponsored by the U.S. Public Health Service, is aimed at discovering how death occurs in auto crashes.

Pointing out that 47,000 Americans died in auto accidents last year, he said, "Less than one million Americans have died in all the wars since the American Revolution, but that number of auto fatalities was reached five years ago."

Although seat belts are not the complete answer to the problem, Dr. Gikas said, many lives could be saved if people would use them. They are not used simply because people do not realize how much safety they provide.

$293,805 Distributed To Countyites in '64

Johnson County residents received $293,805 in Social Security benefits in 1964, according to John R. Schmidhauser (D-Iowa). That amount includes all beneficiaries and their dependents who were eligible for benefits under the Old Age and Survivors Insurance trust fund and the Disability trust fund. Schmidhauser said that these benefits constituted a significant proportion of the income of 4,180 Johnson County residents for 1964.

Cars are getting to be bigger, so houses are getting to look smaller. But one little Volkswagen can put everything back in its proper perspective. A VW parked in front does big things for your house. And your garage. To say nothing of small parking spots and narrow roads. On the other hand, a VW does make some things smaller. Gas bills, for instance. (At 32 mpg, they'll probably be half what you pay now.) You'll probably never add oil between changes. You'll certainly never need anti-freeze. Tires go 40,000 miles. And even insurance costs less. One thing you'd think might be smaller in a Volkswagen is the inside. But there's as much legroom in front of a VW as in the biggest cars. When you think about it, you really have only two choices. ## Baseball Team Plays Today At N. Illinois

The Iowa baseball team will play a non-conference game today at DeKalb, Illinois, against Northern Illinois.

Coach Jerry Burns Monday afternoon expressed satisfaction with the first week of Iowa spring football drills. The Hawkeyes will hold their first contact scrimmage on one of the practice fields this afternoon.

"I think we've made good progress for the first week," said Burns, "but until we have a scrimmage and can study the movies, it's difficult to evaluate the progress of the whole group as well as each individual."

"We will not scrimmage in the stadium at all this spring, except for the final spring game on May 15th," he said.

Burns said he has made some minor changes in his personnel and will probably make more after viewing scrimmage films.

"We've shifted Gary Simpson from a running halfback to fullback and Bill McCutchen from fullback to a running back," he said.

"Right now, I'd rate the candidates in this order at the running back spot: Dalton Kimble, Farley Lewis, Dave Moreland and McCutchen."

At fullback, Burns named Simpson first, then freshmen Cornelius Patterson and Silas McKinnie.

"Larry McDowell may be the best blocker of any at fullback, but we did not get much of a look at him last week because of his baseball activity," said Burns. "We hope we can make a better evaluation of his ability this week," he said.

In another position change, sophomore Roger Lamont and junior Bill Restelli have changed places at right tackle, Lamont going to offense and Restelli to defense.

"At quarterback, Snook has looked good throwing the ball, but there's no doubt that Chuck Roland is the best running quarterback that we have," said Burns. "The three top quarterbacks—Snook, Roland and Schooley—all need work in the area of ball-handling," he said.

At linebacker, Burns mentioned freshman Terry Huff, sophomore Dan Hillsabeck and Tom Knutson as the top three candidates to date.

He indicated that the coaches are also counting on veteran Rick Hendryx who is currently playing with the Iowa baseball team.

"I'd say Cedar Rapids freshman John Diehl did a good job as an offensive guard for us last week. John Hendricks is going a good job as an offensive right tackle and another freshman who has impressed us is Paul Usinowicz, playing behind Cliff Wilder."

"Tony Williams is doing well as a defensive back. Tom Brown is showing improvement at offensive center behind veteran Jim Cmejrek. This spot is perhaps of more concern to us than any other one on the offensive team," said Burns.

Burns said he thought that top freshman flanker candidate Gary Larsen will be withheld from contact drill for at least another week and possibly for the entire spring.

"There's no use taking a chance of his being injured before his knee heals completely," said Burns. "He looks like an athlete and I'm sure he's going to help us."

Burns said he's concerned somewhat with a lack of depth in certain positions for this fall. "I hate to think what would happen if something happened to John Noland. Who would step in and play his position? We'll just have to hope for the best," he said.

Baseball Team Plays Today At N. Illinois

The Iowa baseball team will play a non-conference game today at DeKalb, Illinois, against Northern Illinois.

The Hawks will be trying to break out of a slump which has cost them their last two games, with Bradley and Illinois, before this weekend's three-game series with Minnesota.

Two or three Iowa pitchers may see action in the game according to administrative coach Otto Vogel.

Since last Saturday's double-header with Purdue was rained out neither Bob Schauenberg nor Jim McAndrew has pitched for more than a week. Both will probably see action today and Joe Madden may be called on for a couple innings.

"They were two games we had to win," said Manager Johnny Keane. "We needed them badly."

The Yankees had lost four straight, the last three at home.

"It was a game I just had to win," said veteran southpaw Whitey Ford. "Even my wife was beginning to wonder. She reads the papers, you know. And all those stories to the effect that I was all washed up really scared her."

Whitey did not go all the way in the opener. His hands cold as ice and his fingers numb, he managed to go into the seventh inning before he was relieved by Pedro Ramos. But he emerged with his first victory of the season.

"See this blister on my finger," said Mel Stottlemyre, holding up his right hand. "That's a good sign. It showed me I was in the groove."

The young-right-hander, blasted out early in his previous start, hurled a masterful three-hit shut-out in the nightcap.

"I think this will pick us up," said Elston Howard, who drove in the winning run in the opener with a double. "The whole team has been going to start hitting now."

"I'm glad I hit that home run," said Mickey Mantle of his hit that won the second game. "That kid Rudy May looks like a pretty good pitcher. We might still be playing if I hadn't gotten lucky."

INJURY NOT SERIOUS—

BOSTON (AP)—A Boston specialist said Monday the eye injury suffered by Boston Celtics ace Bill Russell presented "no danger" to his basketball future but ordered the big pivot man to remain home for the next four or five days.

CATER, the young outfielder the Chicago White Sox obtained from Philadelphia last December, is No. 1 in the American League with a .464 mark on 13 safeties in 28 tries.

Boston's Tony Conigliaro is second with .438. Then come Dick McAuliffe of Detroit, .400 and Felix Mantilla of Boston, .375.

Bateman, Houston's catcher, and Swoboda, the Mets' rookie outfielder, are tied with veterans Willie Mays of the Giants and Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs for the National League home run lead. Each has four.

Jim Gentile of Kansas and Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees share the American League home run lead with four.

ERNIE BANKS of the Cubs and the Red Sox' Mantilla have driven in the most runs, Banks with 14 in the National and Mantilla with 12 in the AL.

Ellis, Cincinnati right-hander, has the majors' best pitching record, 3-0. Giusti of Houston, Kroll of the Mets, plus Bob Buhl and Dick Ellsworth of the Cubs, Sandy Koufax of the Dodgers, Warren Spahn of the Mets, Bob Friend of Pittsburgh and Bob Gibson of St. Louis, are close in the NL with 2-0.

Three pitchers are tied for first place in the American with 2-0 marks. They are Gary Peters of Chicago, Hank Aguirre of Detroit and Jim Kaat of Minnesota.

Composers Use Electronics For Music of the Space Age

"Gurgle!" went the loudspeaker — "Whizzzz! Tweet! Rasp!"

The sounds were no random noises or nightmarish echoes, but the elements of "music for the space age" being composed in a relatively new and controversial field, electronic music.

While composers in the past have worked with traditional musical instruments — pianos, violins, horns — many of today's composers, including a number at Iowa, are writing music for strange instruments indeed — sound generators, high-pass filters, balanced modulators, to name a few.

The result has been described by one New York writer as "the strangest music this side of paranoia." Hisses and clunks and whistles abound, but always planned with great precision and with serious musical intent.

"Actually, any sound is a musical sound if it can be used in a composition," explains Robert Shallenberg, assistant professor of music and supervisor of the University's new electronic music studio. "And our studio is a kind of musical instrument in itself. Our instruments can produce sounds that neither the composer nor the listener has ever heard before," adds Shallenberg. "In fact, a number of the sounds are by-products of electronic instruments whose primary purpose is not to produce music at all."

EQUIPMENT in the studio lines a wall from floor to ceiling, with both home-built and commercial units in evidence. A physics student, James Cessna, G. Indianola, has based his master's degree thesis on a wave-form synthesizer which he is designing and building for the studio, where he also works as an electronics technician.

The studio, a joint project of the Department of Physics and the School of Music, has three basic sections: a number of sound sources, a set of devices for modifying these sounds, and a bank of tape recorders for preserving the results.

Among the studio's sound sources is a sine-wave generator, which produces a "pure" sound, as distinguished from that of a flute in its characteristic smoothness. A square-wave generator yields similar sounds, but with a good deal of "buzz" or bite, like the tone of a clarinet in its lower register.

A white-noise generator creates a "shhh" sound, containing all the tones that can be heard by the human ear (just as the color white contains all the colors that can be seen).

Still another sound source, a sawtooth generator, produces electronic sounds which can range from the tones of a violin to those of uncontrolled giggling.

Once these sounds, or combination of sounds, are created, they can be modified by a number of other electronic instruments. A variable filter can pass or cut out any portion of the sound a composer desires, just as, for instance, a telephone cuts out the deeper sounds in a speaker's voice.

AN INSTRUMENT that engineers call a balanced modulator can give the sums and differences of any two sound inputs, while suppressing the inputs themselves. And a third type of instrument, an attack-decay device, can "fade in" or "fade out" sounds, just as a television set, after being turned off, shrinks the picture to a tiny white dot which finally vanishes.

Using all these instruments, a student can make a number of tape recordings, then blend them together into a finished composition. Among the kinds of tapes he can create are those intended for playing before an audience without accompaniment, or those intended for playing as part of a performance with traditional instruments. The tapes can also be transferred onto conventional phonograph records.

Composers can write down the "recipe" or score for their works, Shallenberg explained, but since electronic music instruments are frequently home-built or modified, it might be difficult for anyone else to reproduce the sounds. As a result, the composer's master tape often becomes a unique combination of music, musical instrument, and performer, all in one.

This new approach to composition has been carried on at Iowa only since last fall, when the electronic music studio went into operation. The studio grew out of a conversation between Philip Bezanon, former professor of music, and James Van Allen, head of the Department of Physics and Astronomy. Further planning and building took place under the supervision of Richard Hervig, professor of music.

ALL FELT that electronic music, as a prominent part of contemporary musical thought, was an area in which Iowa music students should be able to work. As a result, the Department of Physics loaned a large amount of equipment to the studio, making possible its construction with a minimum of expense. Shallenberg, who has an extensive background in the field, was then asked to join the U of I faculty.

Shallenberg, who taught composition at Illinois Wesleyan University for two years before coming to Iowa last fall, was previously an instructor at Lincoln University, Jefferson City, Mo. He earlier worked in developing the University of Illinois' first electronic music studio.

Discovery in Sound

No, they aren't tracking satellites — they're making music. Robert Shallenberg, supervisor of Iowa's new electronic music studio, adjusts two tone generators while James Cessna, G. Indianola, keeps a hand on the studio's control panel. They are recording sounds which may be used later to compose electronic music. Neither composers nor listeners have heard the sounds before.

Police Check On Breakins

Iowa City detectives were still investigating four break-ins Monday evening. The break-ins were reported to police over the weekend.

Ken's Auto & Farm Store, Highway 1 West, was entered Sunday night or early Monday morning, according to police. An employee of the firm said that as far as could be determined, nothing was taken.

Entry was gained by cutting a hole in a fiberglass rear door. There was no other damage. The break-in was discovered about 8 a.m. Monday.

A back door was forced open at Benner's Stop & Shop, 1029 S. Riverside Dr., Sunday night or Monday morning from Stalkfleet's Hide 'n' Hide, 1012 S. Gilbert St.

Entry was gained by breaking a window next to the front door and then unlocking the door. A store official said inventory was being taken Monday afternoon to determine definitely if anything besides the dollar bill was taken.

A roll of pennies, which was in the cash drawer with the dollar bill, was not taken. The break-in was discovered at about 6 a.m. Monday.

A break-in Friday night at the Mini-Automatic Car Wash, 1025 S. Riverside Dr., brought thieves $35 to $40 in change. It was reported to police Friday night.

Entry was gained by breaking a northwest window of the building and then unlocking the window, police said. Officials of the firm said the break-in occurred between 7:30 and 9 p.m.

THE WAR ON POVERTY:

a message to the Nation's college students...

Inspiring causes have always fired the imagination of students.

Today the United States is committed to the greatest humanitarian cause in its history—a massive counterattack on the causes of poverty, which are robbing 35,000,000 Americans of the opportunities most of us are free to pursue because we had the advantage of a decent start in life. That start has been denied to one-fifth of the nation's people. Thirty million of them are children.

This is a moment in history for the fortunate to help the least privileged of their fellow citizens. You can help this summer, or for a full year if you choose as a volunteer in the War on Poverty.

In July and August, 30,000 volunteers will be needed in their own communities to assist four- and five-year-old children of the poor through Project Head Start Child Development Centers. Thousands more are needed to live and work among poor families by enlisting in VISTA, the domestic Peace Corps.

In Head Start, volunteers work side-by-side with teachers, social workers, doctors, and other professionals to give pre-school children advantages which can change the patterns of their lives. Many of these children have never held a doll, never scribbled with crayons. Meager environments have blunted their curiosity. Some are spoken to so rarely that they are unable to form sentences.

Head Start volunteers will read to children, take them on outings to zoos and parcs, organize creative play for them, and help build the security and self-confidence they need to succeed in school. The rewards come when a withdrawn child begins to ask questions or responds to the affection for which he has been starved. Without such help, many of these children would be headed for school failure and the poverty cycle which trapped their parents.

Many young people who are 18 or older and can serve for a year enroll for training in VISTA—both to help others and to enlarge their own capacities for teaching, social work, or careers in sociology, economics, law, and other fields.

Home base for VISTA volunteer groups can be a city tenement row, a struggling farm community, an Indian reservation, a migrant labor camp, or a mental hospital. Volunteers may counsel school dropouts, organize recreation programs, tutor children who are behind in school, explore job opportunities for the poor—in short, do whatever is needed to help people find their way up from poverty. Volunteers become respected members of the communities where they work.

The pay is nominal—living expenses plus $50 a month paid at the end of service. But the opportunities are great: you can help pave the way for an America in which the democratic ideal is big enough to encompass everyone.

Will you lend your abilities to people who live in need? Join the War on Poverty today!

Union Addition "Functional" Annual Journalism Banquet

Chair Manufacturers Submit Wares to 'Acid Test' Rigors

By DAVE CRIPPEN
(Sixth in a series on construction underway at the Union.)

Some people take delight in strolling through a new building and pointing out all the "blunders" the designers have made.

But the "armchair architects" may find their task more difficult than usual when doors of the new addition to the Union are opened in June.

As long as it's comfortable and at least somewhat attractive, most persons regard a chair as merely something on which to sit. But Loren Kottner, director of the Union, regards chairs for the addition as something much more functional.

A full-time instructor will be hired to direct students, Kottner said. He estimated that no costs would be added to the student fee to pay the instructor. However, there will be a charge for use of the room and craft materials.

Kottner described this cost as "minimum," saying the student would be charged only for the basic cost of the material.

Students may even build a stereo, Kottner said, and do so at far less expense than if they purchased the components from commercial dealers.

"We think the craft shop should be an area for students to use on their own motivation," said Kottner.

Registration for delegates and representatives to conferences is always somewhat confusing. To alleviate some of this confusion, the Union administration has adopted portable registration units which may be placed in strategic areas around the building.

UNLIKE THEIR bulky predecessors, these registration desks are lightweight and may be moved easily. The 12 x 40 inch package neatly opens to a 4 x 5 foot desk, complete with typewriter space.

Kottner considers the units especially handy when more than one conference is taking place at the same time. There will be three units costing $300 each.

Also related to special features for conferences are the new office complexes designed for the convenience of conference planners. Currently conferences have to be arranged through the Director of Conferences Office located in East Hall. Other arrangements such as food for banquets and conference room reservations have to be made in the Union.

The new addition will include an office suite for the director of conferences and his assistant, allowing conference planners to make all the necessary preparations in the Union.

ANOTHER office complex will include four different departments — catering service, food service, conference room scheduling office and the Union business office. A walk-in safe and a file room completes the complex.

Kottner emphasized that the new office complexes will offer "one-stop" services for planning of conferences and student events.

Elevators have become standard equipment in several new campus buildings, and the Union is no exception. Two of the new elevators will run from the south lobby of the Gold Feather Room to the top floor. Two more are being built in the guest house section of the addition. These elevators are self-service.

Two others also are under construction but will be used as service elevators only.

Student Reports Jewelry Thefts

About $300 worth of jewelry has been stolen from a University student within the past month, Iowa City police were told Saturday morning.

Astrid H. Owens, G. Hamburg, Germany, told police the latest in a series of thefts occurred Friday morning. She said she accidentally left a gold watch, valued at $400 in a bathroom of Currier Hall Friday at about 8:30 a.m. When she returned to get it about five minutes later, it was gone.

Miss Owens said also that two pins, valued at $40 and $60, and a gold ring, valued at $100, had been taken from a small leather container in her room in Currier some time within the past month.

She said the items were taken when the door of the room was unlocked. More valuable items were overlooked, so the thefts must have occurred in a hurry, Miss Owens said.

She said she values the missing items more for personal than for monetary reasons.

Police Recover 2 Stolen Vehicles

Iowa City police reported Monday night that two of three vehicles stolen during the weekend were recovered.

Still missing was a motor bike belonging to Mrs. Fay Elder, 2909 American Legion Rd. She reported that her bike was stolen Saturday night or Sunday morning.

A 1957 model car, owned by Robert Hanna, of the Reardon Hotel, 215 Iowa Ave., was found in front of East Hall Monday. It was taken Sunday night or Monday morning from the Post Office parking lot, the owner told police.

A car belonging to Morris Toomer, Lone Tree, was taken Saturday night or Sunday morning. Toomer told police it was recovered Sunday at 3:30 p.m. in the 300 block of S. Johnson Street.

Head-On Crash Injures Three

Three people, including a University student, received minor injuries Monday morning in a head-on auto crash on Jefferson Street near Macbride Hall.

The student, Walter W. Barbee, L2, Iowa City, was treated and released from University Hospital for a head cut. Driver of the other car, Ervin F. Liningar, Route 71, Iowa City, and his wife were treated at Mercy Hospital and released.

Barbee said he was going east on Jefferson and that Liningar was going west. Both cars received extensive front end damage, according to police.

Barbee was charged with driving on the left side of the road by Iowa City police. The accident occurred at about 10 a.m.

On Campus with Max Shulman (By the author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!" "Dobie Gillis," etc.)

VOYAGE TO THE BOTTOM OF THE BARREL As everyone knows, thirteen-twelfths of the earth's surface is water. Thus we can see how important it is to know and understand our oceans. Toward this end American colleges last year embarked on a program to increase enrollment in oceanography. I am pleased to report that results were nothing short of spectacular: In one single semester the number of students majoring in oceanography rose by 100%—from one student to two!

... the Pacific was discovered by Balboa, a Spanish explorer of great vision.

Mindanao Trench, off the Philippine Islands, measures more than 5,000 fathoms in depth. (It should be pointed out here that ocean depths are measured in fathoms—lengths of six feet—after Sir Walter Fathom, a British nobleman of Elizabethan times who, upon his eighteenth birthday, was given a string six feet long. Many young men would have sunk in a funk if all they got for their birthday was a string six feet long, but not Sir Walter! String in hand, he scampered around the entire coast of England measuring seawater until he was arrested for loitering. Incidentally, a passion for measuring seems to have run in the family: Fathom's grandnephew, Sir John Furlong, spent all his waking hours measuring racetracks until Charles II had him beheaded in honor of the opening of the London School of Economics.) But I digress. Let us, as the poet Masefield says, go down to the sea again. (The sea, incidentally, has ever been a favorite subject for poets and composers. Who does not know and love the many robust sea chantees that have enriched our folk music—songs like "Sailing Through Kansas" and "I'll Swab Your Deck If You'll Swab Mine" and "The Artificial Respiration Polka.") My own favorite sea chanty goes like this: (I'm sure you all know it. Why don't you sing along as you read?) O, carry me to the deep blue sea, Where I can live with honor, And every place I'll share my face With Stainless Steel Personna. Sing hi, sing ho, sing mal-de-mer, Sing hey and nonny-nonny, Sing Jimmy crack corn and I don't care, Sing Stainless Steel Personna. State Department Delegates Visit —

Officials To Speak On Social Studies

Three officials from the United States State Department are on campus today to meet with students and faculty of the University and Iowa City high schools.

The officials are Wesley C. Harrison, senior foreign affairs advisor in the Office of Management; Hugh Appling, deputy director of the Office of Western European Affairs; and Betty Jane Jones, officer in charge of the United Nations General Assembly and Organization Affairs.

They are visiting the area under the sponsorship of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools Foreign Relations Project — a program supported by a Ford Foundation grant to improve social studies education on both the high school and college levels.

During their visit to Iowa City, the State Department officials will speak before classes and assemblies at University, Iowa City and Regina High Schools. Topics will relate to current subjects being studied by the students and the specialty areas of the speakers.

Applying will speak to University students in a political science class in Modern Democracies today and meet with five to six graduate students in comparative education later in the day.

From 3:30 to 5 p.m. all three visitors to the campus will participate in a panel discussion on the broad trends, policies and issues in American foreign policy and the implications these issues have for

Historian To Talk 'Art'

Elisabeth Schirmer von Witzleben, Berlin art historian, will speak at 3 p.m. Wed. on "The Tree of Jesse in Stained-Glass Painting." She will give the illustrated lecture in the Art Building Auditorium.

A specialist in the field of medieval stained glass, Dr. von Witzleben studied at the Universities of Munich, Bonn and Vienna. Since 1932, she has been an expert for the "Lexikon der Marienkunde," a dictionary of information concerning the Mother of God. She has been associated with the Corpus Vitrearum Medii Aevi, an organization of scholars in the field of glass, since 1956.

Books which she has written include "The Glass Windows of the Cologne Cathedral" and "Gothic Cathedral Windows with Architectural Motives," both in 1949, and "Glass Painting," 1952. She has written many articles for scholarly publications and has given lectures at the Universities of Freiburg and Saarbrücken, the Sorbonne and other European learning centers.

Institutions at which Dr. von Witzleben has given lectures during her current tour of the United States include Stanford and Princeton Universities and the University of Minnesota.

Supreme Court Loosens State Grip on Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court declared unconstitutional Monday key sections of a Louisiana law requiring the registration of subversive and Communist-front organizations.

The effect of the court's 5-2 decision is to clear the way for a civil rights group to resume its campaign of registering Negro voters in the state. The group claimed the laws were used to harass people advocating civil rights for Negroes.

In its first sitting after an Easter recess, the court waded deeply into the civil rights field, deciding also to:

- Review, but probably not until fall, a federal judge's dismissal of felony indictments in the killing of three civil rights workers near Philadelphia, Miss., last June 21.

- Reverse convictions of 29 "freedom riders" arrested in 1961 in Jackson, Miss., during a protest against racial segregation in interstate bus and train facilities. One of the 29 is James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality.

- Uproot the convictions on unlawful assembly charged of three people who tried to use a bus depot in Ocala, Fla., in June 1961.

Speaking for the majority in the Louisiana case, Justice William J. Brennan found the state's subversive activities and Communist-control law so sweeping, and review of convictions under it in state courts so cumbersome that the constitutional right to free expression is impaired.

In a strong dissent, Justice John M. Harlan asserted the court is "tinkering with the federal-state court relationship and said:

"For me such a paralyzing of state criminal processes cannot be justified by any of the considerations which the court's opinion advances in its support."

A photographic exhibit on the Sebei people of Uganda, East Africa, opened Monday at Macbride Hall.

The exhibit, located on the first floor of the building, portrays cultural aspects of the Sebei people, who maintain traditional practices commonly shared by other East African people. Several photographs also give vivid contrast between traditional practices and modern political developments in East Africa.

The photographs for the display were taken by Walter Goldschmidt, professor of anthropology at the University of California, Los Angeles, and his wife, Gale. Supported by research grants, the couple has been in Africa several times to compile information on culture and ecology. The exhibit, consisting of approximately 40 pictures up to 1 x 6 feet in size, is on loan from the University of California.

It was brought to the U of I under the auspices of the Graduate College, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, and the Museum of Natural History. Allen Liss, instructor in the museum, mounted the photographs for display.

Congressmen Give Views

Conte:

Representative Silvio Conte (R-Mass.) said at the University Monday that the Republican Party has to regain some Congressional seats which it lost in 1964.

The gains will have to come in next year's elections, before the GOP can begin to worry about the 1968 presidential election, he said.

The Republicans in the House are under the excellent leadership of House Minority Leader Gerald Ford (R-Mich.), who not only creates a good image for the party, but also offers constructive programs as alternatives to Democratic programs, Conte declared.

CONTE, WHO was on campus for the Political Affairs Conference, said he worked for a more moderate Republican platform at the 1964 Republican Convention. Measures which he tried to insert in the platform were an amendment refusing to seat any segregated delegation and an amendment disassociating the Republican Party from the John Birch Society.

As a result of the second amendment, a $1 million suit was filed against Conte by the John Birch Society. The case was dismissed from court last week.

After going to Selma, Ala., and witnessing the obstructions placed on voter registration, Conte said only the appointment of federal registrars would change the situation.

"The big problem in the Black Belt," Conte said, "is the right to vote. Everything has been done to prevent the Negro from registering."

EVEN THOUGH Conte ran on both the Democratic and Republican tickets in 1964, he is a Republican and a firm advocate of the two party system, he said.

"It is very important that we have a two party system," he said. "I would hate to see the day when it doesn't exist. Both the Democrats and Republicans should do all in their power to keep this system."

Conte said he was one of the 75 Congressmen who petitioned the Speaker of the House not to compound the same wasteful expenditures on the Cannon Building that were made on the Rayburn Building. Conte said he was very critical of the Rayburn Building and opposed the present plan to remodel the Cannon Building where his offices are located.

Cohelan:

Rep. Jeffery Cohelan (D-Calif.) called the current session of Congress the most exciting one he has participated in since his election in 1959.

Cohelan was at the University participating in the second Political Affairs Conference. He is a member of the House Committee on Appropriations.

"The President is winning more admiration and respect every day for his skill as a leader," said Cohelan.

ONE OF the next measures to come in Congress will be on the voting rights bill, he said. Cohelan predicted an acceptable and strong bill would pass.

As a member of the Foreign Operations Subcommittee, Cohelan said he doubted if there would be any successful floor action to cut the foreign aid bill when it is discussed by the House.

He said that the President has presented a very tight, minimum budget for foreign aid.

"We're trying," said Cohelan, "to gradually move into multi-lateral operations and, wherever possible, banking operations."

THE MONEY spent for foreign aid, Cohelan said, is a small percentage of the total, and yields substantial results. He said that foreign aid produces soldiers abroad for less than it would cost to train American soldiers.

Cohelan said that the large Democratic majority in Congress was needed to get many of the new measures through.

"The Democratic party has always had some serious problems with its majority," he said. "As an American, I think it's a good thing that the Republican party emerges in all sectors."

Turning to the political scene in his state, he referred to the student riots at the Berkeley campus of the University of California. Cohelan said that there had been mistakes and bad judgment by both the administration and the students.

HE SAID he thought the situation was now fairly stable. The faculty is supporting the new chancellor, he said. Cohelan said he did not expect interference from the state Legislature.

California's university system, Cohelan said, was one of the reasons the state has been able to handle the problems brought by its rapid rate of growth.

'No Turning Back in Viet'

such weapons might be brought into play.

This did not alter a disclosure over the weekend that the U.S. government is retaining the option to use nuclear weapons in North Viet Nam in the proper circumstances — perhaps, for example, if Communist China should enter the war on a mass scale.

McNamara discussed the situation against a background of nearly three months of almost daily U.S. and South Vietnamese air bombing of highways, railroads, bridges and other targets on the North Vietnamese routes used to infiltrate men and arms into South Viet Nam.

"The carefully controlled air strikes will continue as necessary to impede the infiltration and to persuade the North Vietnamese leadership that their aggression against the South must stop," McNamara said.

He said the air attacks have wrecked 24 bridges, have slowed the infiltration and "significantly and adversely affected the morale of the Viet Cong troops in the South."

McNamara said recent captures indicate that about 75 per cent of the alleged infiltrated into South Viet Nam during 1964 and were born in North Viet Nam.

"Many of the recent captives are young draftees called into infiltration units that marched South through Laos in units 500 to 600 strong," McNamara said.

In the past 4½ years, McNamara said, the Cong have lost 89,000 killed in South Viet Nam.

"With that plus the expansion of the Viet Cong forces in the South you can see the heavy drain upon the filler resources in the North and the reason why they have to go to their regular military units to continue the supply of men," McNamara said.

The South Vietnamese government forces "are suffering casualties at rates higher than we have ever experienced in our history," he said. He did not give the figures on this but cited it as evidence of South Vietnamese courage and determination.

On weapons and equipment, McNamara said the great bulk of the guns and ammunition used by the Viet Cong now come from Communist China via North Viet Nam.

Irked Citizens Leave Flood Ravaged Homes

FULTON, Ill. (AP) — Neal Vogel, carrying an extra pair of shoes climbed into an evacuation boat for the second time in a week Monday and said, "This is getting ridiculous."

The 58-year-old Fulton man said he has lived here 40 years.

Vogel joined the army of homeless that moved out of their houses in this river city of 3,800 because of high water from the worst Mississippi River flood in history. Fulton is across the stream from Clinton, Iowa.

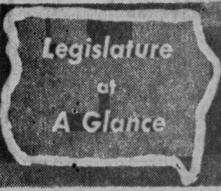

"MY WIFE and I moved out of our house last week and joined our friends here," Vogel said. "I guess we should have picked some friends who lived on higher ground."

Mayor Warren Wiersma said more than 1,500 persons have been made homeless by the flood waters sweeping into basements and first floors. The city has been isolated — except by boat — from the surrounding area since last Friday.

Coast Guard and volunteer boats continued to evacuate dozens of residents Monday, as the river inched toward its expected crest Monday night or Tuesday, nearly four feet higher than previous records.

AMONG those who gave up the fight against the river after attempting to ride out the flood was Floyd McBroom. He was brought out in a boat with his wife.

"The only thing we brought was this .22 pistol I've got strapped to my leg," he said. "Nobody better

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa House turned over to an 18-member Sifting Committee Monday the job of deciding what bills shall be considered before the current legislative session adjourns.

House Speaker Vince Steffen, (D-New Hampton) said after appointing the committee he still hopes the General Assembly will conclude its work by May 15.

The only bills which will not come under the control of the Sifting Committee are appropriations measures, unfinished business, motions to reconsider and legalizing acts.

Rep. Casey Loss (D-Algona) a veteran of 11 regular and special sessions, was named committee chairman.

His group met in open session Monday afternoon and placed two bills on a new calendar.

One measure is a bill to consolidate the offices of state car dispatchers and the state printing board under the Iowa Executive Council.

The other would authorize county boards of education in two or more counties to merge into a joint county school system under one board of education.

Besides Loss, the committee is composed of 13 Democrats and four Republicans, including a large number of representatives from larger population counties.

The Far Left Makes the College Scene

From Berkeley to Brooklyn, swarms of students are joining in the noise and fire of new radical groups. The current issue of The Saturday Evening Post has the inside story of the greatest rise of the Far Left since the 1930's.

Read how some groups are almost peaceful; others are so militant that even the American Communist Party disowns them. How young leaders of the "existential radicalism" see the Cuban Revolution as a blueprint for America. Find out about new plans for protest and unrest on college campuses. How one far-out group, training its members in karate, is secretly preparing to launch a reign of terror.

Get the facts in the penetrating report of "The Explosive Revival of the Far Left," in the May 8 issue of The Saturday Evening Post.
