Three in Family Take Dad for $400,000

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The brilliant, blonde daughter of a rich South Carolina manufacturer voluntarily surrendered Wednesday on a charge that she helped steal $400,000 from her father.

Mary Jane Hollingsworth Farrell, 19, the youngest student ever graduated from the University of Miami (she was 16 at the time), refused to waive extradition to Greenville, S.C., where her mother also is charged with the theft.

Accompanied by her husband — whose brother pleaded guilty to taking the money from an executive bathroom — Mrs. Farrell was left in the custody of her attorney.

THE LAWYER, Philip Mandina, said the money belonged to Mary Jane's mother. She had filed a partnership suit against the father more than six months before the theft, he said.

The theft took place more than a year ago.

Mary Jane and her husband appeared before a justice of the peace, who postponed further action for 30 days. That will give South Carolina time to obtain a governor's extradition warrant on charges of house breaking and grand larceny.

Walter's brother, Jeffrey Bruce Farrell, 21, testified in General Sessions Court in Greenville Monday that he took the money from John D. Hollingsworth's textile machinery plant April 6, 1964.

WHAT happened to $389,000 of it officially remains a mystery.

He told the court Mrs. Hollingsworth and her daughter, who also is Farrell's sister-in-law, supplied him with keys to the plant and that the daughter went into the factory with him the night the money was stolen.

Authorities disclosed Wednesday that warrants charging Mrs. Hollingsworth and Mary Jane Hollingsworth Farrell, Miami, Fla., with housebreaking and grand larceny had been issued Monday.

Farrell was sentenced to five years in prison, but Judge Frank Eppes reduced this to four years probation. Farrell was described as having been cooperative with investigators.

FARRELL TESTIFIED that Mrs. Hollingsworth had promised him $100,000 but that he had received only $6,000.

Farrell told the court he returned ed to get the remainder of the $100,000 from Mrs. Hollingsworth, was refused and then told Mr. Hollingsworth about the robbery.

Chief J. P. Strom of the state law enforcement division testified that a friend of Mrs. Hollingsworth, Theodosia Kuper of Greenville, told him she kept the six or seven bags of money until the next day. She was quoted as saying she received $5,000 and a kiss on the cheek from Mrs. Hollingsworth.

Mrs. Hollingsworth, free under $15,000 bond, is in a Greenville hospital.

Treger Will Solo In Last Symphony Concert

University of Iowa violinist Charles Treger will be soloist with the Symphony Orchestra in its final concert of the current concert season May 19. The 200-voice University Choir and Oratorio Chorus will join the orchestra for a major part of the program.

James Dixon, associate professor of music, will conduct the orchestra and the combined music groups in the concert.

Daniel Moe, associate professor of music, who directs the vocal groups, has prepared them for the performance.

Treger, head of the String Department in the School of Music, will be featured in Mendelssohn's "Concerto in E Minor for Violin and Orchestra." Professor Treger returned to the campus in February following a leave of absence to appear as violin soloist with the on a three-month tour of 14 countries in Europe and the Near and Middle East. He has appeared as soloist with most of the major orchestras in the United States and has given more than 1,000 concerts on three continents.

THE COMBINED music groups will present the complete ballet music from Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe," in the May 19 concert. The orchestra will open the concert with Gluck's "Overture to 'Iphigenie en Aulide'."

Free tickets for the concert are available at the New Information Desk of the Union. The performance will be given at 8 p.m. in the Union Main Lounge.

Although two orchestral suites from Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe" are part of the standard musical repertory, it is unusual to find a complete performance of the 20th century work.

The Mendelssohn Violin Concerto "is one of the chief ornaments of the best and most refined kind of Romanticism," writes Eugene Helm, associate professor of music, in his program notes for the concert, "and it is well nigh perfect in design, polish and general craftsmanship."

THE GLUCK overture was written for an opera which became the talk of Paris in 1774. Of the work, Marie Antoinette wrote her sister: "I was carried away by it, and people can no longer talk of anything else . . . there are dissensions and quarrels, as though it were a matter of some religious dispute."

The day after the concert, the University Symphony Orchestra will present the same program at Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill., with the Monmouth College Chorus assisting.

The Iowa City concert will be broadcast live by radio stations WSUI-AM (910 kc) and KSUI-FM (91.7 mc).

June Grads Must Meet Requirements

Graduation is not a happy time for those seniors who find that they do not meet all the requirements of their college or major.

Many discover just a few weeks before graduation that they have not taken enough physical education or foreign language. Others may have too many hours in their major, or be lacking a required course.

These students rush to the Liberal Arts Advisory Office or the Registrar to plead their cases.

"I've got to graduate . . . this job requires a degree . . ."

"But it's such a silly requirement. Couldn't I talk to someone who could waive it?"

Most of these whinings fall on deaf ears. The standards for a degree are set, and are rarely waived, except in unusual instances.

According to Hugh Kelso, assistant dean and associate director of the Liberal Arts Advisory Office, all these problems could be avoided if seniors would ask for a graduation analysis from the Registrar's Office in their junior year.

For another aid in meeting graduation requirements, Kelso said, students should talk to their adviser each semester about progress in their major and fulfillment of core requirements.

Percussion Group, Old Gold Singers To Give Concert

The Old Gold Singers and the Percussion Ensemble will present their annual spring concert Monday at 8 p.m. in the Union Main Lounge.

The concert, presented by the Union Board, will feature adaptations of classics, folk music and show tunes. The first third of the program will be presented by the Old Gold Singers and the second part by the Percussion Ensemble, with the two groups joining for the finale.

The Percussion Ensemble is composed of 20 members who used approximately 110 different percussion instruments.

Thomas Davis, percussion instructor and assistant director of University Bands, is director of the Percussion Ensemble, which was organized in 1959.

The director of the Old Gold Singers, a group of 33 non-music majors who have sung for many alumni groups and civic organizations, is John Quinn, an assistant in music. The Singers were organized in 1958.

Tickets will not be required for the concert.

Derby Raiders Apologize

The fun balloons of six fraternities on campus have burst with apologies.

Steve Trecker, Delta Tau Delta fraternity president, said in an interview Tuesday, "On behalf of the members and presidents of the fraternities involved in the Derby Days destruction, I would like to apologize to the city, University officials and especially Sigma Chi fraternity for our action."

The incident occurred Saturday when the Derby Days parade was bombarded with water balloons. Two automobile windshields were broken during the bombardment.

Trecker, A3, Whippany, N. J., said, "In our anticipation of fun we forgot to anticipate danger."

About 100 men from Phi Delta Theta, Beta Theta Pi, Delta Tau Delta, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Sigma Pi and Phi Kappa Sigma fraternities took part in the incident.

Presidents of these fraternities have submitted a formal apology to Sigma Chi president Ted Boston, A3, Bettendorf.

The fraternities also have offered to pay for the estimated $264 damage.

Trecker said that Sigma Chi had accepted the apologies and that there were no hard feelings among the fraternities.

Trecker said, "The bombardment was definitely not planned by the houses."

The course of disciplinary action to be taken against the houses is being decided by M. L. Huit, dean of students, and Eldridge Roark, fraternity adviser.

Federal Salary Boost Is Asked

LBJ Seeks Total Of $853 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asked Congress Wednesday to boost the pay of all uniformed members of the armed forces and most federal civilian workers a total of $853 million a year starting next Jan. 1.

He proposed setting up a drastically different salary review system which would permit a president to order future pay changes into effect automatically unless Congress vetoed them.

JOHNSON'S special message to Congress accepted most recommendations of a 10-member, blue-ribbon panel which he appointed last Jan. 28 to seek ways of gearing federal military and civilian pay more in line with nongovernment salaries.

The only workers under the executive branch excluded from the proposed legislation were top policy-making officials and some 600,000 blue-collar workers whose pay is already tied to prevailing wages where they work.

Excluded also are retired military and federal civilian employees whose pensions are tied to the cost of living index.

Johnson asked for these pay raises:

University Backs Drink Crackdown

By BILL NEWBROUGH
Staff Writer

University officials pledged cooperation with local law enforcement officials Wednesday afternoon in stopping illegal drinking in the Coralville Reservoir area.

University officials met in a closed meeting at the Johnson County sheriff's office at 3 p.m. Wednesday with representatives of the sheriff's office the Coralville Reservoir, the County Attorney's office, the State Conservation Commission, the Iowa City Police Department, and the Johnson County Board of Supervisors.

At the closed meeting, it was agreed that recent incidents at the reservoir area had not involved University students exclusively. The University officials said disciplinary action would be taken against students whenever they violated University regulations, as well as state and local laws.

A STATEMENT issued after the meeting said, in part:

"It was noted (at the meeting) that all state laws apply to the Coralville Reservoir area and that the sheriff is responsible for enforcement. It was agreed that no special immunities shall in any case apply to any individual by virtue of his being a University student."

Sheriff Maynard E. Schneider called the meeting after he had broken up several drinking parties at the reservoir in recent weeks. He has charged two students with liquor violations concerning minors.

Among the University officials attending the meeting were M. L. Huit, dean of students, and Richard Holcomb, director of the Bureau of Police Science and Campus Police.

AN OFFICIAL of the sheriff's office said Wednesday night he believed drinking of alcoholic beverages by those of any age was illegal at the reservoir. He said the reservoir is considered a public place and drinking in public places is illegal.

Sheriff Schneider was not available for comment after the meeting. Much of his concern in the past has been about drinking by minors. The statement issued after the meeting did not make clear whether enforcement of state laws would include the prohibition of all drinking in the reservoir area.

Neighbors Complained—

Coralville Closes Hawk Ballroom

The Hawk ballroom in Coralville has been ordered closed by the Coralville City Council.

The council acted at its Tuesday night meeting after seven residents of the area near the Hawk complained of excessive noise and other disturbances.

Donald Diehl, Coralville city attorney, was instructed by the council to "take any necessary steps to close the Hawk ballroom and revoke any pertinent licenses or permits."

Wencil Martinek, owner of a residence and a business establishment adjoining the ballroom, was spokesman for the complaining group. He said the group represented at least six more persons.

Student Group at Ames Plans Trip for Youths

Summer trips are a rare luxury for underprivileged children, but this year a number of Chicago's inner-city Negro children will have them.

The Lutheran Student Center at Ames, in cooperation with the Chicago City Missionary Society, is planning two-week stays in the homes of college students for these underprivileged aged 6 to 11.

The cost of the program is $9 for a roundtrip bus ticket plus two weeks of food and shelter. The children will be brought to Iowa by special bus for the two-week period, July 10 to July 24.

Lunik 5 Fails in 'Soft' Landing

THE SOVIET UNION announced its spacecraft Lunik 5 hit the moon Wednesday night but indicated it had failed to make a "soft landing" on the lunar surface.

Such a landing would have put the Russians at least half a year ahead of the United States in the race to put a man on the moon.

Interfaith Group Pickets Pentagon

HUNDREDS MARCHED THROUGH WASHINGTON, picketed the Pentagon and conferred with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara on Wednesday in an interreligious plea for negotiations, not bombs, to settle the war in Viet Nam.

The estimated 800 to 1,000 joining in the "interfaith vigil on Viet Nam" also sent telegrams to President Johnson, North Viet Nam Premier Ho Chi Minh and South Vietnamese Premier Phan Quang urging talks to halt the violence.

After nine leaders of the Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish faiths left a 75-minute session with McNamara, Bishop Daniel Corrigan, director of the Home Department of the Episcopal Church, New York said: "He leveled with us and we leveled with him."

The Pentagon called it "a friendly exchange of views between the religious leaders and Mr. McNamara."

2,400 New Troops To Viet Nam

TRANSPORTS LANDED ABOUT 2,400 MORE U.S. servicemen Wednesday for the war against the Viet Cong while Communist survivors of the battle of Song Be, the latest big engagement, hid out in the hills.

The U.S. military force in Viet Nam rose to about 46,500 men. A third battalion of 1,400 U.S. Marines moved ashore at Chu Lai, where the 1st and 2nd Battalions of the 4th Marine Regiment established a beachhead last Friday. Navy Seabees are to build an airstrip at Chu Lai, 52 miles southeast of the strategic Da Nang airbase, that should help in campaigning in the central highlands.

New Dominica Government Formed

A BROADLY BASED INTERIM government embracing both government and revolutionary leaders emerged Wednesday night as the probable vehicle to preside over a return to peace and democracy in the Dominican Republic.

The goal would be free elections within about six months.

The United States is giving full support to efforts by the Organization of American States to establish such a government.

Latin-American diplomatic circles reported it may be in sight.

Step into my parlor

THE UNIVERSITY'S PROPOSED undersized auditorium is evidently to be devoted primarily to intimate little gatherings of music lovers especially interested in hearing young voices fill the room.

Although the auditorium's capacity was proposed to be 2,500-3,400 when the students were asked to foot the bill last spring, architects have been instructed to draw plans for a 2,200-2,500 seat building.

We do not think this trimming in size is a good idea. We had hoped the new auditorium could be used for shows like Harry Belafonte, Bob Hope or Peter Paul and Mary. Getting this kind of talent requires a big auditorium for two reasons.

First, everyone wants tickets and a small auditorium means disappointment for many. Secondly, it takes a lot of money to finance these shows on a one night basis; 600 more seats at two bucks apiece means $1,200 more for footing the bill.

Our argument for a large auditorium may sound as though we're just opposed to culture, but this is not true. Hill Auditorium at the University of Michigan seats around 4,000. There they have about 20 top cultural events a year in a special series.

Performances by the Ukrainian Dancers, the American Ballet Theatre, the Warsaw Symphony, the Vienna Symphony and Van Cliburn are just part of a normal music year at Michigan.

These same performers could be available to Iowa if adequate facilities existed here. If we approach the construction of our auditorium with the idea that it need only accommodate local student and faculty performers, however, such facilities will never exist.

We have been told that there are more local performances (University Chorus, Concert Band, etc.) given at Iowa than there are national performances (Dave Brubeck, San Francisco Ballet, etc.).

Therefore, the reasoning goes, we need a nice cozy little place for Our Own People to display their talented wares.

If outsiders want to come in and draw big crowds, let 'em use the Field House. (Ever go to the ballet and sit in the bleachers?)

Somehow we just can't snap at that line.

This is the only auditorium likely to be built in Iowa City for 50 years. If we think small on this one, it's going to mean a real pain for a long time to come.

Big biz baseball

SPRING HAS finally come — for good, we hope, and with it the beginning of a new baseball season. Good old baseball, the national pastime, which isn't the national pastime anymore, but still clings hopefully to its title.

Baseball has gone commercial — from the sandlot on up to the major leagues. It's big business now — and no longer seems to have the personal hold on the country that it did years ago.

All that is left of the real baseball is a certain nostalgia — and many undoubtedly can't even work up nostalgia because the game has been on its way to the big time for quite a while now.

There is certainly nothing of the good old-fashioned game in the new Houston Astrodome, that multi-million dollar circus in Texas with its flashing score board and plush seats.

But, all in all, baseball just isn't what it used to be. Part of the fun used to be watching the game — not the score board or the fireworks or the prancing mules and cheerleaders.

And it used to be expected of the baseball fan that he would sit through a double-header on Sunday afternoon at the ball park — not in front of the television set — and munch several hot dogs, yell "Kill the ump," and heckle the first baseman unmercifully.

We wonder if the fan doing this wouldn't feel out of place in the Houston Astrodome's gilt chairs?

LBJ needs a sponsor for TV performances

By ART BUCHWALD

President Johnson has been going on television so much lately that it isn't too far fetched to predict that in the near future the networks might announce, while the President is speaking, "We interrupt this regular program to bring you an important announcement."

It is no secret that the networks are very upset about the President asking for time on short notice to address the American people. For one thing it's costly and for another you don't know what to believe in the "TV Guide" anymore. Several compromises are being worked out between the White House and the three major networks. One of them has been to offer the President his own show. The White House is interested, providing the President can get prime time, but the networks want to put him on after Johnny Carson.

Also the format of the show has to be worked out. The network has offered to call the program "I've Got a Secret." It would be a panel show and the panel would have to guess where the President was going to send the Marines next.

Another network wants the President to appear in a situation comedy titled "I Love Luci" and dramatize the problems of a typical American family whose father happens to be President of the United States.

The third network wants to call the show "Have Guns — Will Travel," which would be a Western with most of the action taking place at the LBJ Ranch and the Pentagon.

So far, the President hasn't agreed to any of the formats. He also is against a regular time slot because if he went along with it, he could only appear on TV once a week, and this could become too confining.

There is also a question of sponsorship. If the President went on television regularly, the networks insist they would have to sell the time to a sponsor. A dog food company has expressed interest in the show providing the President would appear with his beagle.

Several aspirin companies have put in a bid for the time and so have insurance companies. The only one who definitely said they weren't interested were the electric light bulb companies, who felt the image just wouldn't be right for them.

Another problem is the question of ratings. The White House is aware that the networks will drop a show without hesitation if the ratings are low. So they're demanding some guarantee from the networks that they won't cancel out after the first thirteen weeks, particularly since President Johnson's term has three and a half years to go.

The networks claim they have no choice when it comes to ratings and they would be setting a bad precedent if they allowed a show with low ratings to remain on the air. As the owner of a television station the networks feel the President should understand this.

Finally, there is the question of the Lady Bird satellite. If the European networks clear time for President Johnson on their stations then the American networks will have to clear time for the European leaders.

Between Chancellor Ehrhard.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Gen. deGaulle, the networks are frightened that they may not have an audience left. They've tried to persuade President Johnson to stay off the Early Bird satellite, but so far without success.

The President has already told the network bosses:

"Ah didn't put it up there just to look at it, and any time Ah want to Ah can have the Air Force shoot it down."

He objects to unsigned 'Biopsy' humor

To the Editor: This week there appeared on the local scene a little "publication," the annual edition of "Biopsy," which is, I understand, composed by medical students and is concerned with their lives and hard times. It has some good jokes and a somewhat tongue-in-cheek variety of comments about medical school and the highly inbred cares of medical students.

It also has, in my opinion, a variety of gutless, unsigned, attempts at character assassination, the targets of which are certain professors in the Medical College. These personal attacks go beyond the professional relationship the students have with the selected faculty members, and include gratuitous such as decidedly unfriendly comments on the dress and personal habits of the attacked men. One comment suggests that a certain professor "comes out from under his rocks."

It would be much less irritating to me and to other essentially uninvolved persons if the slanders had the courage to write their little attacks and then sign them. But such is not the case with these writers for "Biopsy."

Although the men attacked by these anonymous writers are undoubtedly sufficiently secure to withstand the onslaught, the pontifical, smart-aleck statements are annoying enough to be answered by a lawsuit.

This little publication attempts to be obscene. But its ultimate obscenity lies in the cowardice of some of its writers. Perhaps a resounding legal judgment in favor of the libeled men would stop these petulant, unsigned attacks, and might even spare the world the dubious services of a future medical person who lacks the integrity to be a man.

Political spectrum — Socialists against HUAC

By DAVE CUNNINGHAM
Iowa Socialist League

In last week's Iowa Socialist League Newsletter, we reprinted a letter which appeared in a recent issue of The New York Times, calling attention to one of the most recent activities of the House Un-American Activities Committee. Because the DI has a far wider circulation than our newsletter, we are reprinting it here as a taking off point for a discussion on the threat of HUAC.

The letter reads: To the Editor: I have just read the news that the House Un-American Affairs Committee has brought to trial and convicted three American citizens for contempt of Congress.

Now, I would like to ask, when will the American conscience bring HUAC to trial for legislative rape of our First Amendment; felonious assault on our civil liberties and grand larceny of our Bill of Rights? Dennis G. Kuby
The Unitarian Society
Cleveland, Ohio
April 9, 1965

Mr. Kuby is being sarcastic in his letter; nevertheless his description of the effect HUAC has had on basic American freedoms is generally accurate. As the newsletter went on to state, "HUAC is nothing more or less than McCarthyism structured into American society." So long as the committee exists, it will continue to play that role.

Consider the trial and conviction of the "three American citizens" mentioned in Mr. Kuby's letter. This case was not widely publicized and it is reasonable to assume most students have not even heard of it.

THE THREE people tried and convicted by HUAC were Mrs. Donna Allen and Mrs. Dagmar Wilson, both of Wornall's Strike for Peace who made the committee look foolish in December, 1962, when HUAC was attempting to "investigate" — read red bait — so-called "Communist influences" in the American peace movement, which at the time was lobbying for an American nuclear test-ban with the Soviet Union) and Russell Nixon, general manager of the "New Left" National Guardian weekly.

Last year, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Wilson and Mr. Nixon petitioned the U.S. State Department to allow a non-communist Japanese peace leader a visa to make an already scheduled national speaking tour in this country. At the urging of these people, the State Department agreed to lift a previous ban on this speaker, and he made his tour. For some reason, the fact that the Department changed its mind infuriated HUAC and the three petitioners were subpoenaed to discuss the subject. All were told they would be asked to testify in closed hearings.

IN THE PAST, when hostile witnesses testified in closed sessions before HUAC, inaccurate and damaging information was leaked by the Committee to friendly members of the press. Because the hearings were theoretically secret, the defendants were therefore unable to rebut or deny such information, even after it appeared in the press.

Knowing this, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Allen stated that while they would not refuse to appear before the Committee, they would only do so in public hearings, where at least they would be able to rebut accusations and present their opinions openly and without censorship. (Nixon refused to testify on principle before HUAC under any circumstances.)

HUAC refused, and accused the witnesses of being in contempt of Congress. The accused are now free on appeals to higher courts. If the appeals are refused, the witnesses face large fines and prison sentences — all for the crime of attempting to protect themselves.

This is a perfect example of what is wrong with HUAC, and an excellent argument for the abolition of this committee. The three defendants brought the wrath of the Committee down on their heads because they legally petitioned the State Department to change a previous ruling of a denial, visa — which, the Department did. This right to petition is one of the privileges guaranteed by the Bill of Rights.

WHAT HUAC has done in this case is effectively to have circumvented that particular Constitutional right. Presumably, the right to petition from now on will mean the right to petition those things with which HUAC is in political agreement. But this is not why that guarantee were written into the Constitution by its founders.

No one has seen the film produced and distributed by the Committee, "Operation Abolition," which has any illusions as to the effects HUAC has on democratic liberties. The Committee is politically motivated, is extreme right-wing and cold-war mongering in its orientation, and makes its function that of suppressing opinions and redailing anyone who has serious disagreements with cold war and right-wing aims.

23 defend greek system

To the Editor: It is with great dissatisfaction and disappointment in the editorial quality and integrity of The Daily Iowan along with the questionable motives and goals of the editorial staff writers that we are encouraged to enter this letter.

We as members of the fraternity system were a bit taken back and in fact irritated by the insinuations and derogatory remarks that were hurled toward the Greek system in the full column editorial appearing in Tuesday's DI.

Certainly the events which marred the parade preceding Derby Days were far from applaudable. They were in fact dangerous, and the fact that a number of fraternities were involved and that their lack of good judgment was in evidence is a disappointment to others of us who must now share the wrath of The Daily Iowan.

The incident was unfortunate and the reporting of it surely merited coverage in the form of factual news. We feel, however, that the staff of the paper has again overstepped the bounds of responsible journalism and has allowed itself to use the pages of the campus newspaper, the newspaper which by the nature of its support is designed to represent all members of the student body, to carry out its own vindictive campaign against fraternities and sororities here at Iowa.

It was especially disconcerting to read the last line of the editorial which posed the question seemingly to all fraternity men — "Why did you ever come to the University?" It appears to us that the DI is not only questioning the rationale for the existence of the fraternity system on the Iowa campus, but you are also slandering the worth and quality of the characters and personalities of the men who have chosen to affiliate themselves with a social group who share common goals, interests and aspirations.

Our position is certainly not one which we feel needs to be defended in the form of letters to the editor. We only write this letter now in answer to your question.

We as members of the fraternity system reaffirm that our purpose and main goal in being here at the University is to prepare ourselves for the future.

Our goals are high and our performance and successes are equally high. The fraternity man will not settle for mediocrity nor will he satisfy himself with being among the average.

We need not remind you that the standard of excellence exhibited by fraternity men over the years is indicative of the role of leadership that we have assumed as a tradition. A look at the lists of outstanding men in the fields of civic leadership, outstanding individuals in all of the professions and areas of business and finance, as well as fine representatives in the realm of the performing arts and entertainment is proof enough of the caliber of men that have been and are affiliated with the Greek system.

It is clearly true that the vast majority of the campus leaders: those who promote Homecoming, badge sales, Pep Club, Spring Festival, all campus and civic drives and charity contributions are members of fraternities and sororities and that most of the work and support comes from the Greek system.

The Student Senate, Union Board and Central Party Committee as well as Project AID, all of these receive their greatest impetus and support from the fraternities and sororities. The scholastic record of the fraternity system speaks for itself as well as does the number of Greek men and women who are invited to join the numerous national and local honor societies.

Do not misunderstand us, we do not balk at criticism nor are we afraid of competition. We welcome both. All that we take exception to is the continued and unrelenting stream of bias which the members of the staff has promoted throughout this entire year toward and against the fraternities of this campus.

We extend to you, the editorial writers, a cordial invitation to be our guests in our home and to discuss with us in an informal open forum our views about the roles of fraternities and sororities here at Iowa.

Book Publication Conference Set

Publication of a book of French poetry translated and edited by students and faculty at the University will be observed at a conference Monday and Tuesday.

The book "Contemporary French Poetry—Fourteen Witnesses of Man's Fate," was edited by Alexandre Aspel, professor of romance languages, and Donald Justice, of the program in creative writing. Translations were done by students and teachers, most of them working at the University's Translation and poetry workshops.

The book was published recently in paperback form by the University of Michigan Press.

THE CONFERENCE, sponsored by the writers workshop, the department of romance languages and the Center for Modern Letters, will focus upon the theme, "Translations as an Art." All sessions will be held in 225 of the Chemistry-Botany Building.

The opening event will begin at 4 p.m. Monday with the showing of films in French on the poetry of Rimbaud and Apollinaire. At 8:15 p.m. Monday a symposium on "The Art of Translating Poetry" will be held. Participants will be Richard Howard, poet, critic, and translator of French poetry; Allen Dougan, poet; Robert Shattuck, professor of French, University of Texas; Edmund Keeley, associate professor of English, Princeton University; Frederic Will, U of I associate professor of English, and Mark Strand, instructor in English.

At 4 p.m. Tuesday participants in the conference and translators of poems will read from the new book. Professor Shattuck will lecture on "Surrealism and Its Bearing Upon Recent French Poetry" at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday.

ASPEL said the 14 poets chosen for translation represent a significant trend that became apparent in the late 1950s and early 1960s in France. "These poets seek to recover a direct relation with reality and with the absolute through new powers reached in the words. They are not poets of despair, nor of fulfillment, but of search, approach and expectation," he said. One of the poets is Yves Bonnefoy, leader of the new poetry movement in France, who spoke on the University campus in December.

"The idea of translation embodied (in the book) is that meaningful versions of poems in one language can exist in another," said Justice. "Most of the translators have tried to preserve the order of the images, the tone and approximate style of the original, and where possible, even the special difficulties."

IN THE POSTFACE, Paul Engle, director of the Program in Creative Writing, describes the development of the U of I translation workshop and the diverse group of poets, linguists, critics and scholars who joined in the translations.

"As the world shrinks, the need for translation expands," he said. "It seems likely that, for the rest of the 20th century, each country will have not one, but two literatures: the one produced by its own writers, and the other translated from the world's languages. To recognize this trend is the purpose of the Translation Workshop at the University of Iowa, and of this book."

Among the translators now at the U of I are Ralph Freedman, professor of English; Maurice O'Meara, instructor in French; David Pryce-Jones, lecturer in creative writing; Harry Duncan, associate professor of journalism; Mark Strand, instructor in English; James Stephens, Vincent Stewart and William Brown, students.

As a related feature, an exhibit of books of contemporary French poetry will be on display in the lobby of the University library for two weeks beginning Saturday.

Automation Short Course Is Available

A special short course in industrial automation will be offered at the University June 14-30 by the department of industrial and management engineering of the College of Engineering.

The course may be taken for two semester-hours of credit or for no credit. The course will be taught by James Bowman, professor of industrial engineering, Penn State University. Prerequisite courses are a pre undergraduate engineering physics and mathematics.

The class will meet from 4 to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday in 101 of the Mechanical Engineering Laboratory. The course will provide a review of basic theory of compressible and incompressible fluids, pneumatic control circuits, power circuits, transfer devices, electrical controls, logic circuits, Boolean algebra, relay switching and the fundamental application of control and power circuits to automatic transferring and clamping of parts for a variety of machine operations.

June 1 is the registration deadline. The fee is $28. All students registering for the regular summer session will pay fees based on the summer session schedule. Students who plan to take the course for credit and are not registered for the regular summer session will complete registration in the first meeting of the class June 14.

Information about the course may be obtained from Professor Edward M. Mielnik, 022A Engineering Building.

Goes Back to Senate

Iowa House OK's Trade School Bill

DES MOINES (AP) — A system of area vocational-technical schools and community colleges, financed solely by state and federal funds, won approval of the Iowa House Wednesday.

The property tax-conscious House erased from a Senate passed measure all authority for using local property taxes for partial financing of such schools, then passed the amended bill 113-5. It returns to the Senate for action on House amendments.

Rep. Casey Loss (D-Algonia), told the House that it may have ended all chances for vocational-technical schools legislation in this session by making expansive changes in the Senate bill.

THE LEGISLATION has been strongly backed by Gov. Harold Hughes, who has said it is the top educational need in the state. About $17 million in federal funds to help get such a system underway has been promised to Iowa over the next few years.

The bill passed by the Senate would have provided for establishing up to 20 areas to operate either vocational-technical schools or area community colleges over the state.

The program would have been operated under the State Board of Public Instruction and each area could have levied one mill of property tax for operation of the school plus up to one mill for acquiring or constructing buildings and acquiring sites, subject to 60 per cent approval of the voters.

THE HOUSE changed the measure to eliminate the property tax means of financing and to set up the program under an independent State Board of Governors for Community and Junior Colleges and Vocational-Technical Schools.

It also eliminated the Senate authorization for up to 20 schools and provided instead that the board could establish an undefined number of schools "offering to the greatest extent possible educational opportunities and services to all citizens of the state."

Opponents of the House amendments contended they would do away with any local control of the vocational schools, and would not necessarily take care of all areas of the state.

JOHNSON, in proposing a speedier system of adjusting pay scales than the usual legislative process, recommended establishment of a "salary review commission."

Based on its studies the President could propose changes in salary schedules for top positions in the executive, legislative and judicial branches. These would go into effect in 60 days unless the House or Senate voted its disapproval.

The President would continue to make the required annual reports to Congress. When he included recommendations to keep federal military and civilian pay scales in pace with the civilian economy, these changes would go into effect automatically in 60 days unless the House or Senate voted its disapproval.

This system would permit members of Congress — by taking no action — to approve of pay increases for themselves without being put in the position of having to vote directly on the question.

For Tornado, Flood Damage—

Disaster Victims Get SBA Loans

Victims of the recent floods and tornados in Iowa are receiving disaster loans from temporary disaster field offices, established by the Small Business Administration (SBA).

The field offices are located in Dubuque, Clinton, Davenport, Fort Dodge, Cherokee and Waterloo.

Richard E. Lassar, administrator of the Midwestern area of the SBA, said Tuesday that 136 loans had been made to homeowners, business firms and others.

The loans totaled more than $1 million, Lassar said.

The temporary offices, he said, can approve loans up to $20,000. Lassar said that loans of more than $20,000 must be approved by the regional office in Chicago.

Lassar said that most of the disaster victims had not yet had time to apply for loans. He said that SBA expects to receive more than 2,000 loan applications for a total of $20 million.

Iowa Pitcher Lacks Curve Ball But Still Gets Wins for Hawks

By BOB MOYERS
Staff Writer

The University of Iowa's Jim McAndrew is a pitcher in search of a curve ball. If he finds it, Big Ten hitters may as well forget about improving their batting averages and concentrate on convincing McAndrew that he should accept a professional contract even though Jim may have a tough time improving upon his 1.98 earned run average compiled in conference games.

He lost a game to Michigan State, 4-3, May 7 when he yielded two extra base hits by pinch hitters, plus a single by the pitcher, in the ninth inning for three runs.

PREVIOUSLY, McAndrew had not lost a conference game as he posted a 2.0 mark in 1963 as a sophomore and set the defending NCAA and conference champion Minnesota down on four hits and no earned runs in the initial conference start in 1965.

Actually Jim had a good curve ball in 1963 to go with an effective fast ball. But in 1964 he lost it after he sustained a severe pulled muscle in his right elbow that almost ended his pitching career. McAndrew didn't pitch an inning in 1964 and, after trying to work as a relief pitcher in a summer league in South Dakota, doctors advised him not to throw a baseball for seven months. The rest cure worked wonders and he began throwing again in February.

His first real test came in Iowa's second game when he took the mound against Luther. No runs, two hits, eight strikeouts and one walk in six innings showed that Mac was on the road to recovery. BUT THE CURVE had not returned as yet, as Jim soon found out in Arizona when the Wildcats roughed his fast ball up for nine earned runs and a 12-1 defeat. The loss was his first in collegiate competition.

It was after this game that he decided to start looking for his curve ball. First he turned to coach Dick Schultz. The pitcher and coach worked out together that same day and tried to change his delivery slightly. The summit conference paid off as Jim came back to give up only two runs and three hits against Arizona in his next start. However, he lost again, 2-0. Jim still doesn't feel that his curve ball is as effective as it was in the summer of 1963 when he pitched some of the greatest baseball of his young career.

While playing for the Dyersville, Ia., amateur team, he pitched it to the state championship and into the regional tournament. In the tourney, he pitched a no-hitter in the first game and came back two nights later to fire a one-hitter and strike out 17 batters. In the tourney finals, he lost his only game of the entire summer to a team from Michigan.

HIS RECORD This season is won two and lost three games. In 42 1/2 innings, Jim has allowed 33 hits, 13 earned runs and has 50 strikeouts. His earned run average is 2.70.

This is rather an amazing success story for an athlete who stood only 5-10 and weighed only 135 pounds when he entered the university in 1962. Even then Iowa was lucky, for Jim had been appearing on professional scouting reports since he was 10 when he was pitching for various teams near his home town of Lost Nation (pop. 567).

Despite one scout's urgings that he consider playing pro ball even before he entered high school, Jim decided to stay on the educational path. He came to Iowa and went out for both basketball and baseball during his first two years. But some torn ligaments cut short his basketball career and baseball has been his life ever since.

And thanks to a late growth spurt, Jim now is 6-2 and sports 175 pounds to increase his effectiveness on the mound. He is a psychology major and his future plans are very indefinite.

Top Hurler

Iowa's best pitcher this season is Jim McAndrew, a senior from Lost Nation, who has a 1.98 earned run average in conference games this season. Chances are he will see a lot of action this weekend on the Iowa diamond as the Hawks take on Ohio State this Friday and meet Indiana in a Saturday doubleheader. —Photo by Paul Beaver Burns Pleased with Drills; Will Show off Air Attack Sat.

With only a few days of practice and the spring intrasquad game remaining, football coach Jerry Burns indicated that he is very pleased with the results of spring training thus far for the University of Iowa-gridders. "I am very impressed with the spirit and morale that the players have displayed so far and we're hoping we can wind things up on a high note with a good closing scrimmage Saturday," said Burns.

"OUR PROGRESS has been good. The development of both the offensive and defensive teams has been steady and sound. We are also pleased in the way that many of our freshmen have developed to the point where they can be considered help to us next fall.

"The defense is probably still ahead of the offense at this time but this is due to the fact that pure reaction is sometimes easier to teach than specific offensive patterns and assignments.

"We have been concentrating on basic techniques this spring and all of the squad members have responded as we hoped they would," Burns said.

Burns also mentioned that the knee cartilage operation on all-American guard hopeful John Niland had been a success and that John had already started the reconditioning process.

"THE COACHES still are looking for their best running backs, although Burns indicated that Dalton Kimble is running No. 1 at halfback and Gary Simpson is the top fullback. Larry McDowell, who is dividing his time between football and baseball this spring, still is very much in the battle for the fullback spot.

As a highlight of the annual coaches' clinic this weekend, the Iowa players will be divided into two squads for the Stadium battle under full game conditions. Kick-off time is scheduled for 1:30 p.m.

Football coaching clinics usually are designed to cover all phases of the game. But at Iowa's annual meeting this weekend, the forward pass could easily steal the attention of the 400 coaches expected for the two-day session.

Not only are Iowa Coach Jerry Burns and his staff scheduled to reveal some of the secrets that made the Hawkeyes one of the best passing teams in the nation last fall, but possibly the most air-minded coach in the Southeast will also be on hand as the featured speaker.

Bill Peterson, head coach at Florida State, is scheduled to speak at both the Friday and Saturday sessions. His 1964 team featuring the "Seven Magnificents" on defense and end Fred Biletnikoff on offense rolled to a 8-1-1 record and a Gator Bowl win over Oklahoma largely on their passing attack.

THE COACHES will also witness the Iowa passing attack in action on Saturday when Gary Snook and Company wind up their spring drills with the intrasquad game.

Registration for the two-day affair is Friday morning and talks on "passing" by Rich Koolbeck, coach at Belmont high school, and "offense" by Herb Cormack of Keokuk will headline the opening session.

Peterson's talk on offense and demonstrations by the Iowa team are on tap for Friday afternoon, with an evening program of football films and relaxation.

Saturday morning, Merle Harris and Howard Justice, two coaches who had unbeaten teams at Boone and Atlantic in 1964, will speak. Justice recently accepted a position on the Iowa State staff.

Peterson's talk on defense and the intrasquad game will conclude the clinic.

Nicklaus Overtaken As Top Money-maker
PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. — The prize distribution at the Colonial National Tournament at Fort Worth shook up the standings of the PGA's official money winners.

A $2,850 purse for his eighth place tie shaved Doug Sanders to the top of the heap with $36,108 and dropped Jack Nicklaus into second with $34,400.

The biggest switch, however, was the advance of Australian Bruce Crampton and Canadian George Knudson into third and fourth places. Neither was in the top ten last week, before they finished one-two in the Colonial. Crampton won $20,000 and Knudson $11,500 in the Texas event.

run: Minnesota, 1-0; and Michigan State and Michigan, 4-3. Iowa to date is the only conference team to beat leading Michigan after the Wolverines had won eight straight.

Field Coach Dick Schultz says that Iowa has been playing excellent baseball and the team actually deserves better than it has received. The hitting has improved, the fielding always has been good and the pitching staff is performing far above average.

Choice of hurlers for the Saturday games cannot be made yet. Bob Schaubert has been somewhat bothered by a sore shoulder. He normally hurls the first game of nine innings and if his shoulder feels OK will work the first Indiana game.

IF SCHAUBERT does not feel like going nine innings, the first game hurler will be Bob Gebhard, who plays in the outfield when he is not on the mound. Then Schaubert will go in the second game of seven innings, Schultz declared.

Schaubert has an ERA of 1.98 of 40 1/2 innings, permitting nine earned runs and 26 hits, with 37 strikeouts. His record is 3-2. Gebhard, 2-4, has 45 innings on the mound, ERA of 3.15, 37 hits, 16 earned runs and 48 strikeouts.

Indiana, up to Friday, had a season's mark of 18-12. In the Big Ten, the Hoosiers have taken two from Northwestern, one from Illinois, broken even with Purdue, lost two of three to Ohio State and dropped one to Wisconsin.

Richie Scott, 4-2 and 3.14 ERA, will pitch the first game and Jerry Dill, 2-2 and 4.93 ERA or Erv Inniger, 2-1 and 1.75 ERA will work the second contest.

Hawkeye Baseball Team Battles OSU, Indiana This Weekend

Twin objectives of the University of Iowa's baseball team this weekend: to rise in the Big Ten race from the present seventh place with 3-4 and to close the home season on a cheerful note with victories over Ohio State and Indiana.

OHIO STATE, now second with a 7-2 record, is the opponent Friday at 3:30 p.m. in a single game and fourth place Indiana (5-4) comes Saturday for a doubleheader starting at 1 p.m. The Hoosiers will have played Minnesota at Minneapolis Friday.

Although not a heavy hitting team, for, like Iowa, only two regulars are over 300. Ohio State has been winning on fine pitching and steady fielding. The Buckeyes won two of three from Indiana, topped Wisconsin twice, broke even with Illinois and won single games from Northwestern and Purdue.

The best Buckeye hurler, Steve Arlin, will pitch. He has won eight straight since losing to Arizona March 25. He will be opposed by Iowa's Jim McAndrew, who has 1-1 in the Big Ten and 2-3 overall.

McAndrew in 43 1/2 innings has allowed 34 hits and 19 earned runs and has 52 strikeouts and a 2.70 ERA. In the Big Ten he beat Minnesota, 5-3, and lost to Michigan State, 4-3, in the ninth inning.

IOWA, NOW 9-11 FOR the season, is led in batting by outfielder Mickey Moses, with .382, followed by Bob Gebhard, pitcher and outfielder, with .333. Ohio State has a record of 19-11 and is led at the plate by first baseman Arnold Chonko, the football defensive back, with .344; and catcher Chuck Brinkman, .300.

Hawkeyes figure they almost have set a new record for being a strong seventh place team. Three of the four defeats were by one

Goldston, Randy Boost Iowa's Hopes for Big Ten Track Title

By JOHN BORNHOLDT
Sports Editor

Iowa's 1965 twin track champions of last weekend, Steve Goldston and Al Randolph, warmed up for the Big Ten outdoor track meet to be held here on May 21-22 by winning two events apiece at the Big Ten quadrangular meet held at Northwestern last Saturday. Their efforts helped Iowa to place first in the meet with 70 points.

GOLDSTON'S FANCY is the 100 and the 220-yard dashes, while Randolph has mastered the 120-yard high hurdle and the 330-yard intermediate hurdle events.

The track record book may never carry the name of Steve Goldston, but few sprinters can equal his feat of breaking 10 seconds for the 100-yard dash in his first competitive race.

If it had not been for a track gym class at Wright Junior College in Chicago, the senior would not be running for Iowa in the Big Ten meet. Goldston said he came to college primarily to be a scholar, and not an athlete.

He did not even report for any sport at Farragut High School in Chicago because he considered himself too small for football and the school did not offer basketball or track in its athletic program.

FORTUNATELY for Iowa, Goldston has blossomed into quite an athlete. He ran a second place :09.6 in the 100-yard dash during a preliminary heat in the 1964 Drake Relays. But he didn't get credit for an Iowa record because he was clocked by only one judge and it was a non-winning time. Goldston also finds time to run lead-off on Iowa's 880-yard and 440-yard relay teams.

When he enrolled at Wright Junior College in 1961, Goldston said he was going to the tuition free school to receive an education and not to compete in sports. But, since he was required to take physical education, the track coach found out that Steve had plenty of speed to burn.

The coach asked Steve to come out for track and the youthful sprinter responded by making the team and winning consistently for Wright in junior college competition.

With Wright's basketball coach Ed Badger being a former Iowa athlete, it wasn't long before Goldston was convinced that he should continue his education at Iowa as a trackman and as a student majoring in psychology.

GOLDSTON'S running mate, junior Al Randolph from East St. Louis, Ill., has established himself as one of the Big Ten's best hurdlers. On the gridiron, Al was also a starting defensive halfback for the Hawkeyes last fall. He remains a top defensive candidate for Wayne Robinson's starting defensive backfield again this fall.

But competing in two sports and gaining an education is not just a game to Randolph. It's serious business to him and he shows it by the personal goals he intends to reach before leaving Iowa.

Besides graduating a year from this June, Al is striving to clear the following hurdles:

- Break Don Gardner's Big Ten and Iowa record of :37.1 for the 330-yard intermediate hurdles.
- Develop his defensive football skills to near perfection to help create the possibility of a pro contract.
- Learn the entire interior designing field so that he will be able to work in any area.

When asked about what sport he would give up if he could not compete in both, he said he enjoyed both track and football, but that he would probably give up track because of the possibility of a future career and bonus contract that football gives and track does not.

IN HIS SPARE time, Al enjoys reading and writing poetry. He has written several poems but he is not interested in having them published. "When an editor gets finished with them, they are no longer your poems," he said.

Al almost lettered as a sophomore end for the 1963 football squad. Last season he broke into the starting defensive lineup as a safety — and he can be remembered for saving many probable touchdowns that could have been scored against the Hawkeyes last fall with his speed and aggressive tackling.

He said he likes playing defense. "You're your own boss and can excel or fall on your own merits. You don't have to depend on someone else to make the play work. This is why I enjoy track so much," he said. "You win or lose on your own ability."

Big 10 Teams Have Only Won Track Title 61 out of 64 Times

CHICAGO, Ill. — Since the turn of the century, the Big Ten has conducted 64 outdoor track championships. But, unfortunately, only 61 of the championship trophies can be found in the possession of a Big Ten member (including Chicago University).

Not only did the original members of the Conference compete, but during the period of 1901 through 1925, a total of 41 other schools entered and scored in the annual classic.

IT PROBABLY was quite a blow to the collective pride of the Big Ten when during the three year period the thorny wreath of the Big Ten championship rested on the heads of a trio of interlopers — Notre Dame, Missouri and California.

In 1910 Notre Dame reigned with a point total of 17, followed by Stanford with 16 and Illinois with 15.

MISSOURI made it a big victory in 1911 with 35 points, beating out Chicago with 25%, and California with 20.

The Golden Bears apparently used the 1911 third place finish as a stepping stone to the 1912 championship with 41 1/2 points. Missouri was second with 29% and Illinois third with 26.

During those early years a Graduate Directors organization ran all Conference meets and tournaments. The group was incorporated as the Intercollegiate Conference Athletic Association (ICAA). Representing Illinois in this organization was Avery Brundage, current president of the International Olympic Committee.

THE ICAA underwent a reorganization in 1926 when the Conference directors of athletics were elected directors of the ICAA and assumed control over its activities as the agent running Big Ten and tournaments.

On March 13, 1926, the ICAA elected Amos Alonzo Stagg of Chicago as its first president under the reorganization.

from 1901 through 1933 . . . the javelin was held from 1916 through 1941. During World War I, a pair of unusual events took place:

- Hand Grenade throw — competed through teams and part of the program only in 1918 — first place tie between Illinois and Michigan — officers from the French, British and American Armies stationed at Camp Grant served as special judges.
- Naval Relay Race — a competition for teams from Great Lakes . . . won by the 7th Regiment in 3:14.4.

The 600-yard run was added to the Big Ten program in 1961 and the 330-yard intermediate hurdles replaced the 220-yard low hurdles in 1963.

The 65th annual Big Ten track championships return to Iowa on May 21-22 . . . to be run in the Iowa Track Stadium. The Hawkeyes also hosted in the meet in 1922, 1926 and 1961.

RECORDS AT STAKE — LINCOLN, Neb. — At least 11 of the 17 meet records will be in danger from a talented field at the 37th Big Eight track and field championships Friday and Saturday.

Only three marks could be considered safe — the broad jump, shot put and discus. Seven meet records have been surpassed and two equalled this season and two others approached.

Compared to last year's meet, athletes this season have surpassed 14 winning efforts and equalled one winning time of 1964.

Basically the Big Ten outdoor track program has remained much the same for 64 years. But six different events were part of the program.

The hammer throw was held

Fulbright Applications Available

Applications for Fulbright grants for the 1966-67 school year are available now from W. Wallace Maner, campus Fulbright adviser, in 111 University Hall.

The government grants for graduate study abroad provide round-trip transportation, language or orientation courses, tuition, books, maintenance for one academic year in one country and health and accident insurance.

The maintenance allowance is based on the host country's living costs and will meet the normal expenses of a single person.

To be eligible for a grant, the applicant must be a U.S. citizen at the time of application and have obtained a Bachelor's degree before the beginning date of the grant. Language proficiency and good health are also required.

Grants are awarded on the basis of the applicant's academic or professional record, language preparation, feasibility of the proposed study project and personal qualifications.

Tents, Stoves, Lanterns—Camp Show Planned

Camping, as a family recreation, has come a long way since rubbing two sticks together was the way to start a fire. Iowans will have a chance to see how far it has come at the Family Camp Show Saturday and Sunday at the University.

To be held on Old Finkbine Golf Course, the show will bring together more than 300 kinds of tents, trailers, campers, stoves, lanterns, sleeping bags and other paraphernalia which make outdoor living more enjoyable.

The displays will be on exhibit from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. The camp show director, E. A. Scholer, professor of Physical Education for Men, said the show has attracted up to 20,000 visitors from Iowa and neighboring states in past years.

None of the equipment will be for sale at the show, Scholer said. The purpose of the event is to provide many actual demonstrations of equipment in use. Family camping units from the Iowa City-Cedar Rapids area will assist in the demonstrations by actually camping at the site. The Iowa State Conservation Commission's Camper Exhibit will be there too, as will Smokey the Bear.

Assisting Scholer in planning the show are Robert Nakashima, A3, Dubuque; Harry Ostrander, A4, Iowa City; Kenneth Shaner, A2, Alden; and Phil Winther, A2, Thornton.

2 Profs To Consult on Safety, Health

The ILO is a special agency associated with the United Nations. The panel will include a small number of specialists representing major agricultural regions of the world. Its task will be to advise the ILO on matters concerning safety

Expanding Union Needs Big Staff

By DAVE CRIPPEN
Staff Writer

(This is the seventh article in a series on the construction under way at the Union.)

The faces of busy people are often seen scurrying into the director's office or talking with Union staff members these days.

But these faces will soon become familiar, for they belong to staff members hired to fill the new administrative positions of the University's growing Union.

At present, these staff members are scattered in the most unlikely places throughout the Union, but only until construction is completed on the new addition and they can move into their new offices.

KEN MURRAY was chosen from a half dozen applicants to be manager of the addition's 125 guest rooms, to be known formally as the Iowa House.

Murray, now sharing an office with the Scottish Highlanders, is making preparations for the opening of the Iowa House. Most of his time is now spent interviewing persons to work in the Iowa House. He has already filled the positions of night auditor, desk clerk, relief desk clerk and afternoon desk clerk.

Other positions to be filled include the housekeeper, who will supervise the Iowa House's six maids, a secretary and a cashier. Murray said last week, "The Iowa House will be run as a hotel with a select clientele." By a "select clientele," Murray explained, he meant rooms will be available only to those who are guests of the University or students.

"My primary duty is to coordinate, supervise and train all Iowa House employes, always keeping in mind the comfort of the guests and the need to make a profit," he said.

He explained that the Iowa House will have to make a profit in order to keep operating.

When asked whether the Iowa House would be any competition for the local hotels and motels, Murray said, "I don't think so. I think we will be an asset because when large conventions are held on campus, the needed accommodations can't be provided by the town alone."

"I hope to work with the local owners," he said. "I'm sure we can solve mutual problems."

Murray, who is originally from Yakima, Wash., is experienced in both hotel management and student union work. As an undergraduate at Washington State University, Murray worked in the union. He graduated from Washington State in June, 1964, with a B.A. in hotel and restaurant management and continued to work in the union as fountain manager. He came here March 7.

The addition's new meeting facilities made it necessary for Union administrators to create another staff position. Jean Kendall, a soft-spoken mother of three, was selected to be scheduling supervisor.

MRS. KENDALL'S position used to be a part-time job handled by Union secretaries and a number of other persons.

Loren Kottner, director of the Union, emphasized the need for a full-time scheduling supervisor. "The use of all meeting facilities will increase approximately ten times when the addition is completed," he said. Fifty-one meeting areas will be available and many of these will be used two or three times a day, according to Kottner.

Mrs. Kendall is a native of Iowa City and a former student at the University. After attending Iowa for one year, she completed her education at Louisiana State University, receiving a B.A. in commerce and education. She then returned to Iowa City where she worked for the University and later the VA hospital.

Mrs. Kendall has had no previous experience with student unions, and finds her new job challenging and exciting.

Mrs. Kendall estimated that she handles 15 to 20 requests for meeting rooms each day. And when the new addition is completed, chances are she'll be even busier.

"We even have inquiries for meeting rooms to be used as much as two, three and four years from now," she said.

When asked how far in advance groups should schedule a meeting room, Mrs. Kendall said, "The minute they know they are going to have a function and the date of that function, they should make a reservation."

WHEN JIM BURKE accepted the position of the Union's first full-time accountant two weeks ago, he found he didn't even have to change employers. Since graduating from the U of I last June, Burke has worked in University Business Office doing financial analysis and other tasks.

Now he is tackling the complicated paperwork involved in balancing the detailed books of the various Union departments.

With the expansion of Union facilities and the diversification of Union services, planners realized the need for someone to coordinate and analyze the growing financial activities.

Burke commented, "They have needed someone down here for a long time."

"In an operation like this you have to earn money," Burke said, referring to the profit demands of the food service and the Iowa House.

Burke said that eventually his primary function will be to provide information to Union administrators and Union department heads in order that they may make decisions on where to cut costs and maintain financial stability.

"The information they need is available but there is no one to tie it together. My job will be to tie it together," said Burke.

MELVIN ALLISON assumed the new job of Union night manager April 1. Before coming to the University Allison spent ten years overseas as a personnel representative and administrator for American oil companies in Saudi Arabia, India and Lybia.

But the University campus is not unfamiliar to Allison. He graduated from the University in 1949 with a B.A. in business administration.

Although a native of Iowa, Allison said his night manager's position in the first full-time job he has had in the state.

As night manager, Allison directs Union operations from 3 p.m. until the building closes at 11 p.m.

"Actually I'm responsible for the Union when the director and his assistant are not here," he said.

Commenting on the difference between his previous and present jobs, Allison remarked, "I've always been a desk man. But this job keeps me on my feet quite a bit because I have to move around the building and make sure everything is running smoothly."

Added facilities made it necessary to hire a full-time building superintendent. Milo Palmer took this job after being highly recommended by University officials for his work as head of the maintenance crews at married student housing.

Without these new staff additions the present Union staff would be hard-pressed.

Perhaps this was best expressed by Kottner, who said, "These are the people who will help to make the Iowa Memorial Union a success."
