

Viet Cong Linked To Bien Hoa Blast

A message from the South Vietnamese National Liberation Front to a Communist youth meeting claimed Tuesday the Viet Cong had set off the explosions that caused heavy damage at the U.S. Air Base at Bien Hoa Sunday.

Poll Tax Amendment Vote Set Today

Agreement was reached Tuesday for a Senate vote Wednesday on a bipartisan leadership poll tax amendment to the Negro voting rights bill.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) offered the amendment Monday in an effort to resolve differences with a group of liberals who want to outlaw poll taxes as a requirement for voting in state and local elections.

Peace Corps May Lose Director

Sen. Jacob K. Javits (D-N.Y.) says he may try to force Sargent Shriver to give up his job as head of the Peace Corps and concentrate on the poverty program.

Javits said Tuesday he is thinking of offering an amendment to require this when the poverty program extension bill comes before the Labor Committee later this year.

Javits said he considered it unwise for Shriver to try to run two complex and highly important programs.

Democrats Assailed on Baker Probe

Amid Republican cries of coverup and character assassination, Sen. John J. Williams demanded in vain Tuesday that the head man in the Bobby Baker investigation repudiate or openly air Democratic criticism of his role in the inquiry.

Chairman B. Everett Jordan (D-N.C.) of the Senate Rules Committee, answered Williams with silence.

"To me," said Williams, "silence speaks louder than words." At issue was a still-secret Rules Committee report on the Baker inquiry. While it hasn't been issued, Williams said a self-styled Democratic spokesman has leaked to the newspapers passages that criticize his one-man Baker probe.

Horse Race Bill Slowed in Stretch

A bill to legalize horse race betting in Iowa was ready for debate in the Senate Tuesday night but the track was slowed by more than three dozen amendments on file.

Some opponents of the bill were saying off the record that they hoped to delay proceedings through numerous amendments until the Senate's night session dragged on into the wee hours and the bill died from lack of support.

Speculation was that proponents of the measure were about four votes short of the number needed for passage.

Street Paving Bids Taken At City Council Meeting

The Iowa City City Council met Tuesday night — and councilman Max Yocum was there. Sporting a grey suit and flashing a broad grin, he greeted the council and citizens with a cheerful "Good evening folks, nice to be with you."

Yocum that morning had completed a 5-day jail sentence for contempt of court.

At the meeting, bids were received for the contract to undertake the city's street paving program. The low bid of $265,000 was submitted by Ray Bertelli and Sons, Cedar Rapids. The awarding of the contract will be made Friday when the council will hold an adjourned meeting at 4:30 p.m.

The council also adopted a resolution to hold special urban renewal meetings every second and fourth Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m. These meetings will give the public an opportunity to discuss urban renewal with city officials and urban renewal planners.

Also adopted was an ordinance amending the Housing Ordinance that changes the required number of bathrooms in rooming houses from one for every six tenants to one for every eight.

An increase of $80,000 was approved by the council for urban renewal planning. It brings the total allocated for renewal studies to $250,000.

Arthur Westerback, the city's urban renewal director, said that the increase was necessary to prepare a detailed program for the rehabilitation of citizens affected by urban renewal. He also said that some of the other planning costs had been underestimated.

Ex-Student Killed In Diving Mishap

Gene A. Schlaegel Jr., 19, an Iowa City youth who was registered as a University freshman first semester, died in Phoenix, Ariz., Monday of injuries received in a swimming accident.

Schlaegel suffered severe neck and back injuries Friday when he dived into a swimming pool. He died after surgery Monday.

He had left the University to find a job in Phoenix.

Schlaegel is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gene A. Schlaegel, a sister, Julie Ann, all of 904 Fairchild St. and his grandmother, Mrs. Julie Kaspar, of 529 E. Washington St.

North Viet Nam Denounces U.S. Bombing Lull as Ruse

Dominican Intervention Worsens Crisis: Snow

Sending U.S. troops to the Dominican Republic increases the chances of a Castro-type government there, according to Peter G. Snow, assistant professor of political science.

Snow, who teaches Latin American politics and government, said recently that the United States has aggravated the situation in the Dominican Republic.

He said he thought the Johnson Administration would like to establish a government of the far right in the Dominican Republic.

The United States has lost millions of friends in Latin America because of its Dominican actions, Snow said, and has lost tens of millions more who were not committed and who are now our enemies.

He expressed concern for what he termed rash actions in the Dominican Republic by the United States. He said it was possible, however, that the Johnson Administration might have been pushed into taking action by a relatively uninformed U.S. ambassador.

It is rumored that Antonio Guzman, a former minister of agriculture under exiled President Juan Bosch, is in line for the presidency.

PROFESSOR SNOW said he doubted that this would come about. He said Guzman would be more readily accepted by the Dominican rebels than by General Wessin y Wessin, who exiled Bosch in 1963 with the charge that Bosch was soft on Communism.

In the opinion of Professor Snow, Bosch is still the most capable leader for the Dominican Republic. He said he doubted that Bosch was a Communist.

BOSCH HIMSELF has called the United States "a great big elephant afraid of a little mouse."

A recent Associated Press photo of a U.S. marine who was "credited" with eight killings of Dominican rebels is, according to Professor Snow, something that will enrage many Latin Americans, because of the label "credited."

This picture can do more harm, Professor Snow said, than the Good Neighbor Police, the Alliance for Progress and the Peace Corps have done good in the last thirty years.

PROFESSOR SNOW said he did not know whether the Johnson Administration had legitimate cause for sending Marines and paratroopers to the Dominican Republic.

"I will be surprised if the actual fighting in the Dominican Republic lasts much longer. But the actual problems will remain there for a long time," he said.

UCCF Drive Asks World School Aid

If you were frightened by a teddy bear in the vicinity of the Congregational Church Tuesday, relax. They're only kidding about the psychiatric help, and the free lemonade is good.

The lemonade stand and the teddy bear seated under a sign advertising psychiatric help (modern methods) for 5 cents are gimmicks to attract attention to the United Campus Christian Fellowship's (UCCF) donation drive for World University Service.

According to Barbara Braun, A.I. Chicago, the project's chairman, World University Service is designed to aid university students and faculties throughout the world with funds collected from other university students and faculties.

The money goes directly to the universities in need, rather than to the governments. World University Service provides the initial aid for construction of a new library, dormitory or student center. The students and faculty of the recipient university raise the rest of the funds.

The UCCF project is titled "Quench the Thirst for Knowledge." It will continue from 9:30 to 3:30 p.m. through Thursday.

Campus Views Hit by Conlon

Most of the college and university professors who are criticizing U.S. policy in Viet Nam have stepped out of their fields, a high-ranking government official said recently.

Thomas F. Conlon, a State Department specialist on Viet Nam, made the comment in May's issue of The Nation.

CONLON, according to the story, thought that the professors who influence students come from such fields as psychology, the "exact sciences" and literature.

These professors, he said, "often have not read far enough to realize the implications of what they are advocating."

Conlon, was a member of a "truth team" sent to Iowa and other Midwestern universities by the State Department.

ACCORDING TO The Nation, David Bane, a veteran foreign service officer assigned to lecture here, received a phone call from Washington on April 26.

The State Department asked Bane to schedule forums in Midwestern schools so a team of Viet Nam experts could explain U.S. foreign policy, the article said.

Willard L. Boyd, vice president for academic affairs and dean of faculties at the University, is reported to have said that this was the first time he could remember the government asking to come to the campus to discuss an issue.

THE NATION said the State Department team appeared at Drake University and the University of Wisconsin branch in Milwaukee before "relatively calm" audiences.

The audiences were not as peaceful at the University of Iowa and at the University of Wisconsin, the magazine said.

"Stormy sessions punctuated the team's trip from the first day at Iowa City, where Iowa Socialist League members and others picketed and faculty members charged that it was 'idiotic' for a government team to travel to the Midwest 'only to listen to themselves.'"

Scholarships Open In Education Field

The Wayne County Association for Retarded Children has announced a new scholarship for students in training to teach the mentally retarded.

Applications are now being accepted in the Office of Student Financial Aid for the 1965 summer session and the 1965-66 school year.

The scholarship ranges up to $400 and is available to juniors and seniors.

Free lemonade and psychiatric treatment from a teddy bear were available Tuesday at a stand near the Congregational Church. The idea was to attract attention to the United Campus Christian Fellowship's donation drive for World University Service. The drive is to collect funds for needy universities abroad.

Lasch Discusses Teach-in Tuesday

The absence of a prominent Johnson Administration spokesman from the national teach-in on U.S. policy in Viet Nam benefited the opponents of that policy, according to a University professor who attended the teach-in.

Christopher Lasch, associate professor of history, attended the meeting in Washington, D.C. Saturday, as a member of the Consensus on International Affairs (CIA), a local group not connected with the University.

THE TEACH-IN was in the form of a debate between Administration spokesmen and University professors from across the country who disagree with the Administration's foreign policy in Viet Nam.

Lasch said the absence of McGeorge Bundy, special assistant to the President for national security affairs, could have been treated as a snub to the academic group. The press did not treat it that way, however, Lasch said.

Bundy had been scheduled as the main Administration spokesman for the teach-in, but Saturday morning it was announced that Bundy had been sent on an undisclosed assignment. A committee coordinating the academic group has challenged Bundy to debate members of the group at some other time convenient to him.

LASCH said the teach-in was a success on its own terms: it attracted a good deal of news coverage. The academic group was able to make its ideas known. Yet he was dissatisfied with the teach-in as a whole.

"I was very discouraged when I left," Lasch said. He said that the press coverage of the teach-in has given a false impression of consensus between the Administration and the academic world.

Such an impression is incorrect, Lasch said. The debate did make the point that there is another view.

"The mere fact that a debate could take place and that professors could feel this way was a tremendous revelation to a great many people," Lasch said.

TUESDAY night Lasch lead a discussion on the teach-in and of the Viet Nam situation at the

U.S. Warplanes Resume Raids On Red Targets

128 Red Guerrillas Die In 2 Days of Fighting Within South Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — North-Viet Nam scornfully denounced as a deception the six-day suspension of bombings of its territory after the United States expressed disappointment Tuesday that the gesture had brought no response from Hanoi.

U.S. warplanes Tuesday resumed bombing raids against North-Viet Nam after the six-day lull marked by Washington diplomatic efforts, apparently unavailing, to nudge Ho Chi Minh's Communist regime toward peace talks.

Twenty Navy fighter-bombers and 10 Crusader jets from the 7th Fleet carrier Coral Sea hit a petroleum storage area at Phu Qui, 125 miles south of Hanoi. Pilots said they left the area severely damaged and burning.

WITHIN SOUTH Viet Nam there was a resurgence of ground action. U.S. Navy and Air Force jets flew 153 sorties against suspected-Viet Cong positions.

Over a 48-hour period, Vietnamese troops and U.S. helicopters killed 128 Viet Cong fighters and captured 31 in three operations.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.) chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who had long urged a trial suspension of bombing raids, told a reporter:

"Certainly no harm has come to us because we did and there may be beneficial effects from the action.

"This has demonstrated that we are not as inflexible as the Communists may have supposed."

AT A STATE Department news conference after resumption of bombings was announced in Saigon, department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said:

"We must assume that the other side was aware that the strikes had not been carried out for a number of days and we have seen no reaction to that fact."

Hanoi Radio broadcast Tuesday its first public reaction, a statement by North Viet Nam's foreign ministry saying "the so-called suspension of U.S. air attacks" was an effort to "deceive world opinion on the so-called U.S. peace will."

The wording implied slamming the door on the U.S. invitation.

IN LONDON, senior Western officials said the United States had made an official approach to North Viet Nam through a third country during the lull. They did not identify the go-between.

The Americans were reported to have suggested that their attacks on North Vietnamese military targets would be cut off indefinitely if Hanoi made some comparable gesture. Presumably Washington would have been satisfied, they said, if this took the form of halting the flow of arms and recruits to the Viet Cong in the South.

McDowell's Body Flown to St. Louis For Sunday Rites

The body of Ivory W. McDowell Jr., who drowned in the Coralville reservoir Monday afternoon, was flown to St. Louis Tuesday morning for the funeral.

McDowell, 21, a Hawkeye football star, was hiking with four companions when he decided to swim across the reservoir after them. The drowning occurred at 4:30 p.m. McDowell's body was recovered three hours later within five feet of where he went underwater.

The body will be taken to the Beal Undertaking Co., 4303 Delmar Blvd., St. Louis where the funeral will be held at 8 p.m. Sunday.

McDowell attended Soldan High School in St. Louis. At the University he was a football letterman, playing end in 1963 and defensive halfback in 1964. He also lettered in fencing.

Booths will be set up in all the dormitories Thursday to collect money for McDowell's family.

Sympathy cards and memorials may be sent to Mrs. Celeste Richmond, 5100 Vernon Ave., St. Louis.

Final Concert Will Feature Treger Solo

Violinist Charles Treger will be featured at the final concert of the University Symphony Orchestra, the University Choir and the Oratorio Chorus at 8 p.m. today in the Union.

Treger will solo in Mendelssohn's "Concerto in E Minor for Violin and Orchestra." Treger, head of the string department of the School of Music, returned to the University last February after a three-month leave of absence during which he toured 14 countries in Europe and the Middle East.

Formerly a member of the Iowa String Quartet, Treger has given more than 1,000 concerts on three continents. He has appeared with most of the major orchestras in the United States.

Tonight's concert will be conducted by James Dixon, associate professor of music. Dixon is the regular conductor of the Symphony Orchestra.

The choral portion of the program has been prepared by Daniel Moe, associate professor of music. Moe is the conductor of the University Choir and the Oratorio Chorus.

In addition to the Mendelssohn number, the program will include Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe" and Gluck's "Overture to 'Iphigenie en Aulide'."

Tickets for the concert have all been distributed, but the program will be broadcast live on WSUI and KSUI-FM.

The same concert will be presented Thursday at Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill. The Monmouth College Chorus will participate in the concert.

Strawn Re-Elected Official of Iowa Photo Association

Robert Strawn, A4, Iowa City, was re-elected vice president of the Iowa Press Photographers Association (IPPA) at the group's convention in Dubuque last weekend.

Strawn, assistant in journalism, is on a leave of absence from the Iowa City Press-Citizen, where he is chief photographer.

Robert Nandell, Press-Citizen staff photographer and a 1964 University graduate, won second place in the IPPA's annual photo contest, spot news category.

Donald K. Woolley, instructor in journalism, and Alan Carter, Iowa City, a University alumnus, were elected to the board of directors.

Cyprus Buys Russian Arms

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — The Greek Cypriot government of President Archbishop Makarios confirmed for the first time Tuesday that it has purchased Soviet-made anti-aircraft missiles.

The confirmation came in the form of an official denial of a report in an ultra rightwing Greek Cypriot newspaper that the missiles were obsolete and "practically useless."

Dr. John Eckstein Named President Of Heart Group

Dr. John W. Eckstein, associate professor of internal medicine, was recently elected president of the Iowa Heart Association. Dr. Eckstein received his M.D. at the University of Iowa in 1950 and completed residency here in 1953. He is presently serving on a Career Research Professorship from the National Heart Institute.

Four other staff members were elected officers of the association. Walter M. Kirkendall, professor of internal medicine, was chosen president elect.

Dr. William R. Wilson, associate professor of internal medicine, was elected to a one-year term on the Board of Directors.

Dr. Willard A. Krehl, resident professor of internal medicine, and Dr. Peter Vlad, associate professor of pediatrics, were elected to two-year terms on the Board of Directors.

Findings Suggest Rhetoric Necessary

Two-hundred-fifty freshmen were excused from rhetoric this year as part of a five-college program to test the effectiveness of freshmen composition courses.

Have they been short-changed? According to a study by John W. Bowers, assistant professor of rhetoric, they have.

ALTHOUGH No final results have yet been compiled comparing the achievement of the students in rhetoric with that of the students who were excused from it; Bowers conducted a brief experiment on his own at the end of the first semester. He compared the speaking skills of about 40 students in each of the two groups.

Some financial support for Bowers' project came from the Liberal Arts College.

"We developed a special rating blank for the experiment, and trained four pairs of raters to use it," Bowers said. "Each of the four pairs of raters judged approximately the same number of students who took rhetoric and students who did not take rhetoric."

"The raters had no way of knowing which students had taken rhetoric and which had not."

THE TWO GROUPS were matched on the basis of sex and American College Testing Program (ACT) scores, Bowers said. Each speaker was judged by two raters and given a score ranging from one to seven on a rating blank containing 35 scales, he said.

The maximum number of points that the student could earn was 490, Bowers said. The average for the rhetoric students was 290.66, and the average for the students excused from rhetoric was 266.39, a difference of 24.27 points.

"We should note that, although 10.3 rhetoric students on the average received higher scores than non-rhetoric students," Bowers said, "wide variability existed within both groups."

"That is, we cannot conclude that every student who has taken rhetoric has more speaking skill than every student who has not taken it.

"However, we can conclude from the group data that rhetoric courses contribute significantly to changing speech behavior in what we think are desirable directions."

What a pity

EVER CALL THE operator and get a busy signal or else no answer at all? It's had enough when you want to call your mother and wish her happy birthday. It's worse yet when you'd like to tell her you're engaged. But Mrs. Bernard J. Campion has a story which really takes the cake. Her garage in rural Iowa City was burning, and the long distance operator took about two minutes to answer the phone. By the time the West Branch Fire Department arrived, the garage was lost.

In this age of direct distance dialing, colored telephones and conference conversations, it's unfortunate that local service is sometimes so slow. —Jon Van

Hawkeye swings

THE 1965 HAWKEYE looks different from Hawkeyes of days gone by — and the changes generally are on the plus side. The addition of a faculty recognition section, which cites 14 instructors for their interest in students, was one of the most worthwhile innovations.

The purpose of the section, according to Editor Susan ARZ, was to feature various departments and to encourage faculty members to "take time for students."

Other changes worth noting are the reduction in number of pages in the queen section and addition of pages to the fine arts section. The photography and engraving were excellent.

In short — a job well done.

Honor to Barnes

WITHIN ANY University community there are many Big Names — names of people whose professional and intellectual achievements have brought much personal recognition and acclaim.

But there are also the unsung heroes — those men and women whose work is carried on quietly and whose contributions to society are seldom met with fanfare.

Such a man is Arthur Barnes who was recently named to the Kappa Tau Alpha Hall of Fame. By virtue of his selection, Prof. Barnes joins ranks with George Gallup, Marquis Childs, Richard Wilson, W. Earl Hall, Frank Starzell and several others noted for their work in mass communications.

Prof. Barnes, head of the School of Journalism's graduate study program since 1950, was chosen for "the influence he has had on American journalism education."

The influence of Dr. Barnes, recognized by few, yet felt by many, has merited the acclaim of Kappa Tau Alpha. —Dallas Murphy

'Autumn' sorta senile

By NICK MEYER
Iowan Reviewer

Those who go to see John Ford's latest offering, "Cheyenne Autumn" (now galloping across the screen at the Englert theatre), and expect to be treated to a bang-up adventure of the kind we've been led to expect from the great John Ford, will be disappointed. That was certainly my initial reaction to the picture. It lacks the usual sardonic and knowing touch of the master. It misses the beat it should have. It is (do I dare say it?) a slightly senile effort.

Mr. Ford has taken his script from the best selling novel of Mari Sandoz, which deals with the effort of 1,000 mistreated Cheyenne to regain their homeland in Dakota, 1,500 miles away from the wretched government reservation that they have been placed on in Utah. It is the story of their journey, filled with hardships, fraught with disease, harassing Army troops trying to stop them, bounty hunters, in short, death — every foot of the way.

The whole thing smacks of a potentially great adventure film, perhaps of the African Queen, or Pride and the Passion ilk. It's the kind of thing Mr. Ford did rather well in a film called The Horse Soldiers.

However all these films have one thing in common: a smooth and lively pace. And Mr. Ford's film does not, though it has some other very nice things.

Pace is not there. It is beautiful to look at (filmed in Ford's favorite shooting spot, Monument Valley, Utah, where he has shot at least four other pictures), and it has an all-star cast, performing with varying degrees of efficiency.

Richard Widmark is cliched and one dimensional as the sympathetic Army officer in charge of rerouting the hapless Cheyenne back to their reservation.

Carroll Baker is clothed (which is a step in a dubious direction) as a kindly Quaker school-marm who chooses to travel with the Cheyenne children she taught on the reservation.

Karl Malden is excellent as the alcoholic commandant of the notorious Fort Robinson, where half of the Indians surrendered themselves in the face of deadly winter, and where they were treated with abominable cruelty in return for their trust.

Speaking of Robinson, Edward G. is here, playing his usual attractive self playing the Secretary of the Interior who makes all come right several hundred dead bodies later.

Dolores Del Rio is still amazingly beautiful in the small role of Spanish Woman, James Stewart gives a superb bravura imitation of himself in a Dodge City saloon sequence (which has nothing to do with the picture, but is the best thing in it), where he plays Wyatt Earp engaging in a Kalkesque poker game with Arthur Kennedy as Doc Holliday and John Carradine as John Carradine.

The whole scene is wildly funny and reflects the great Ford touch, but alas, is totally without relevance to the rest of the film. Best of all, in the acting department, were the Indians, real ones for the most part, but the leads, played by Gilbert Roland, Sal Mineo, Ricardo Montalban and Victor Jory as the old chief were really excellent. They truly captured, it seemed to me the dignity and pride of the Indian, and they did not resort to the usual cliches to do it with, either.

Two things get in the way of the success of the film. First, its great length (three hours plus). It is impossible to sustain this kind of story for that long a period, apparently.

Even Lawrence (a far superior film with similar backgrounds and also about "tribes"), failed for being a bit too long.

Second, and perhaps more important, is the obvious indecision on the part of screenwriter Webb (How The West Was Won) as to which vantage point the story ought to be told from. (Indians or Army?)

The kind of emotional viewpoint switching that ensues is confusing, tiresome, and troublesome to the audience. It impedes the progress of the plot, and by extension, the pace — the two elements which most dominate everything in this kind of film.

Extraneous scenes, like the Dodge City nonsense, must be deleted, as they both extend the length of the film and detract from the main, all-important line of the plot.

I wound up enjoying Cheyenne Autumn, for all its slow moving clumsiness, because I look it as a documentary, which is really what it is, and not bad in the category. Still, one does not expect documentaries from John Ford. Oh, well, we can always go back to Grapes of Wrath, The Quiet Man, Mr. Roberts or The Informer.

Letters to the editor —

GDI's, Greeks battle on

To the Editor:

We of the Sigma Nu Omega Beta chapter have been quietly amused by the outbreak of Greek-Independent hostilities as featured in recent issues of The Daily Iowan. We have been amused, yes, but at the same time we have been appalled by these vicious efforts to disrupt our harmonious campus community. We have therefore resolved to settle this senseless conflict.

The root of the dispute seems to be in the interpretation of whether the Greek system constitutes a mature, democratic way of life. On the one hand, independents maintain that the Greek system is a sanctuary for psychologically crippled who devote their efforts to building each other's self-esteem. Furthermore, say the independents, Greeks maintain a closed, elitist society that isolates itself from contact with the "real world." This elitism, say the GDI's, casts a pall of inferiority across the non-Greek campus, the result being emotional problems for the psychologically sound, democratic independents.

The Greek rebuttal is to deny all of this. In addition, Greeks point out the manner in which they almost single-handedly maintain any worthwhile campus activities. Finally, the real clincher: almost all campus leaders are Greeks. We are to assume that excellent student leadership would disappear with the demise of the Greek system.

We of the Sigma Nu Omega Betas maintain that both sides are wrong. The Sigma Nu Omega Betas, not other Greek housing units; not the independents, are the most elitist and democratic society on campus. Furthermore, we produce the highest type of student leadership.

Our membership is so superior that other Greek chapters are, by comparison, proletarian mobs. We are cultured to perfection. In fact, our chapters are centers of urbane sophistication from Athens U. to Cucamonga State.

Our admission requirements are nearly impossible to satisfy. At our peak rush, September, 1929, only five new members were pledged.

We are completely democratic. No one shall be denied membership on the basis of race, color, creed, or sex (not even "dormies" can make that statement). We are indeed one big, happy, democratic family.

They want to know

To the Editor:

"Troublemakers and malcontents of long standing on the engineering faculty" have forced the firing of Dean Arthur Melloh for reasons that have not been revealed. Dean Melloh said, "Someone ought to be concerned about these reasons."

We are concerned.

Dean Melloh is one of the finest men in the University. His ability as dean can best be illustrated by noting some of the many achievements of the College of Engineering since his appointment as its dean:

- 1) Three new department heads and at least twenty new faculty members, all possessing considerable educational ability, have been appointed.
- 2) The new electrical engineering building which has been badly needed has been constructed.
- 3) Renovations in the physical plant of the College including the structural lab have been undertaken.
- 4) A Ford Foundation financed loan program for prospective teachers of engineering subjects has been initiated.
- 5) Engineering College enrollment has increased while other engineering colleges in the Midwest has decreased.
- 6) A graduate program in nuclear science and Technology has been started.
- 7) The engineering technical curricula has been revised to keep student engineers abreast of the latest engineering trends and philosophies and the engineering humanities curricula has been expanded.
- 8) A program has been started which offers a B.S. degree in industrial engineering.
- 9) A National Science Foundation supported Dynamic System Laboratory program in electrical engineering has been initiated.
- 10) A full-time technical librarian has been appointed.
- 11) The two-year agreement with other Iowa liberal arts colleges has been expanded.

Pres. Bowen does not seem to be concerned enough to reveal his reasons for firing Dean Melloh. The dean, the Engineering College department heads and faculty, the University, the alumni, and the people of Iowa should be told these reasons.

Concerned for future

To the Editor:

The recent developments in the Engineering College came as surprise to many. I am a first year student at the University of Iowa and have not been able to personally witness the efforts of Dean Melloh's tenure. After the announcement of his release, I asked other students that had attended during these five years, what had occurred that would cause such action. I expected to hear complaints of a stagnant problem, lack of additional staff, or unimproved facilities as possible reasons.

Instead they gave examples of growth: 1. a new EE building, 2. expanded undergraduate and graduate programs, 3. the ME building improvement, 4. mechanics laboratory improvement, and 5. a growing graduate school. Such examples of growth and expansion signifies a good faculty under good leadership.

What has been done is past history and the action taken likely irreversible. My concern is for the future. I hope and I believe that Dean Melloh and most of the faculty desires that Iowa's Engineering College would build a reputation of producing good E.E., M.E., C.E., and ChE not just a few strong specialty engineers. For the sake of the students' future, I hope the new leadership will be unselfish in their support of all departments efforts to be stronger and better.

L. A. Kendall, G1

Our leadership program is outstanding. We maintain the high standards of our members by imposing rigid sanctions against their participation in campus politics.

But enough of this hard data presentation. The point is, we do offer a solution to the conflict problem: each of you should become a Sigma Nu Omega Beta, i.e., an elitist democrat.

Membership will bring many rewards: You'll treasure the understanding sympathy of our house mother, Miss Mary Worth (affectionately referred to as "Big Mutha"), you'll delight in our stimulating bull sessions, and most importantly, you'll help to halt the ugly conflict which racks our student body.

An intensive rush will be executed throughout the entire campus during the coming week. At its termination, we expect to see each of you wearing the Sigma Nu Omega Beta pin, the symbol of elitist democracy.

Attempt at logic

To the Editor:

I was most interested by the letter of Mr. Thomas, which appeared in last Saturday's edition of The Daily Iowan. He was writing in reply to Miss Taylor's criticism of the Greek system, which had been published the previous day. Unlike Thursday's pathetic appeals on behalf of the fraternity way of life, Mr. Thomas hoped to rebuke the argument of Miss Taylor by means of logical refutation.

Such an action speaks well of scholarship and intellectual sophistication among a group of fraternity members, and Mr. Thomas' work should be applauded, if not for the merit of its execution, at least, then, for the grandeur of its design. It is, unfortunately, the case, however, that the effort of this philosophical misdirect represents one of the greatest examples of fallacious thinking and delusive reason to be recently printed in this publication.

Among the basic propositions of Miss Taylor's argument were the facts that fraternities retarded the maturation of their members; that they fostered racial, religious, and economic discrimination; and finally, that they "organized debauchery."

The rebuttal states that Miss Taylor is a "GDI" and, thus having "little first-hand knowledge" of Greek life, is not qualified to judge its merits.

In support of this sad hypothesis Mr. Thomas ventures some manner of example concerning asparagus, and paraphrases a statement by John Stuart Mill — a most handsome ethical appeal.

"John Stuart Mill upheld the theory that only those who have experienced both of two kinds of life can make a decision or even an intelligent comment, concerning them."

Of course, this is absurd. At the outset, this type of evidence in no way negates the charges of Miss Taylor. Either they are true or they are not true. If they are true, no assault on Miss Taylor's credibility is meaningful.

If they are true, they are true regardless of Miss Taylor's experience, mental condition, or, indeed, they are true apart from her very existence.

Because the rebuttal was directed against Miss Taylor rather than against her criticism, because no real evidence was offered denying her charges, I, for one, cannot consider them to be refuted.

Equally important to this argument is the fact that Mr. Thomas' basis for holding Miss Taylor's unreliable source is nonsensical, even to the most casual observer. As Mr. Laird Addis of the philosophy Department points out, if what Mills holds is true, then most historians are fraudulent, since, not having experienced the existence with which they concern themselves, they can make no "intelligent comment" about it.

This is hardly a believable thesis. Does Mill imply that it is necessary that we slay innocent personages on the public ways before we can "make a decision" concerning a murder or a murderer? I doubt that any serious person would want to uphold this type of philosophy.

A certain point of Mr. Thomas' argument is, of course, true. Only Greeks understand the intrinsic worth of the Greek system. Only those who have experienced the Greek way of life know the feelings of brotherhood that swell in the bosoms of fraternity members. This does not mean that the extrinsic values of fraternity life are not observable to the outsider, and further it in no way implies that the actions of fraternity members do not affect the non-Greeks on campus. In no real sense does a lack of experience remove the possibility for legitimate and fair observation.

The observation of an atomic explosion is in no way hindered by the fact that the witness himself does not blow up.

If Mr. Thomas wishes to refute Miss Taylor, he would be well advised to concern himself with the issues at hand. He clearly has experienced the Greek system, perhaps Greek thought would be a worthy investment.

POJ begins antics today in Iowan

POJ, a pudgy chap with a nameless canine cohort, is making his debut in today's Daily Iowan.

Created by John McKee, G. Calgary, Alberta, Canada, POJ is the story of the adventures and misadventures of a frustrated, optimistic character who occasionally dabbles (some times successfully) in modern art, bird-feeding, flower sniffing, and weight reducing.

His name — POJ — comes from his pudgy shape and the way his name is drawn "just looks like him."

McKee is working on his M.A. degree; his specialty is sculpture; and he says he hopes to "make it big" with POJ. McKee, who has been drawing cartoons for about seven years, hopes to expand the cartoon from The Iowan.

POJ is a copyrighted strip cartoon which will appear three times a week in The Iowan.

Plans For Orientation Begin

Equipped with information booklets and pamphlets, next fall's orientation committees have begun planning for freshman orientation, Sept. 19 to 24.

Freshmen will be divided into 150 groups designated by numbers. Each group will have two student orientation leaders who were selected from applications submitted to the Orientation Council. For the first time, freshmen will also be divided into groups according to their majors.

During the summer, orientation leaders will write to the freshmen in their groups to welcome them to the University.

Sept. 19 freshmen will meet their orientation leaders in a mass meeting in the Field House. Student leaders and administration representatives will speak at this first session.

Later in the evening, each orientation group will visit a faculty member's home for informal discussions and refreshments.

Church night for visiting campus religious organizations, activities open house at the Union, recreation night at the Field House and Union open house are also planned.

Instead of the traditional tea at the home of the University president, there will be an academic reception at the Union. President Bowen will address the freshmen. They will be able to meet informally faculty and staff members representing academic areas.

Faculty advisers for orientation are Helen E. Focht, counselor to women, and Robert N. Hubbell, counselor to men.

Other faculty and staff members are: M. L. Huit, dean of students; Loren Kottner, director of the Union; Ken Donelson, coordinator for special services; Mary Rouse, associate editor of News and Information Service; and Phillip Reuschlein, instructor in physical education.

Members of the faculty homes committee are: Mrs. J. Richard Wilmet, Mrs. Dale M. Bentz, Mrs. Ralph G. Jones, Mrs. Robert J. Joynt, Mrs. E. John Kottman, Mrs. James Lindberg, and Mrs. Robert T. Pflaum.

Student members of the orientation committee are: Sue Sondrol and Ron Wendt, general chairmen; Susan Harvey, secretary; Linda Lamson and Dave Bennett, leadership training; Sandra Batman and Mike Thomas, publicity; Karmen Hobbs and Dean Buresh, academic reception; Pat Smith and Kenneth Versman, recreation night; Fran Shrauger and Dan Nicol, activities open house; Mary Schantz and Steve Combs, new student meeting and faculty homes.

Orientation leaders are: Nancy Noler, Stephen Milne, Judy Patsch, Steve Hamilton, Karen Steinbeck, Richard Wood, Linda Chorpene, Larry Lazarus, Patty Faulds, Earl Kemp, Donna Dyrkopp, Kirk Graves, Shari Geach, Jim Lyon, Della Blair, Denny Farago, Cheryl Frimmi, John Kundel, Fran

NEGRO POLICE IN BRITAIN—

LONDON — The British government believes the time is near when this country will have colored policemen. There are none on the police forces of the country now.

The view of Home Secretary Sir Frank Soskice is that boys from Negro or colored families, born and reared in Britain, could be recruited as cadets at 17.

tiny particles in gasoline
(before they get into your fuel line!)

Most gasolines are clean when they leave the refinery. But on the way to your car—in transit and in storage—they pick up impurities that could choke off power, reduce engine efficiency...could even stop you cold. Automotive engineers asked for an answer to this problem—American Oil Research developed the American FINAL/FILTER. It traps these tiny particles right at the pump nozzle. If you depend on your car for your livelihood (and even if you don't) it pays to "fill 'er up filtered" with American, Regular or American, Super-Premium.

You expect more from Standard and you get it!

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs twice came from behind against the slugging San Francisco Giants and held on for a 7-6 victory Tuesday in a game called after 7½ innings because of rain and darkness.

San Francisco... 402 000 00—3 7 1
Chicago... 152 000 08—7 10 0

Home runs — San Francisco: Mays (1), Alou (4), Hart; Chicago: Gabelson.

Braves 4, Mets 3

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Rico Carty and Frank Bolling each drove in two runs, leading Milwaukee to a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets Tuesday night.

The Mets trailed 4-2 going into the ninth but threatened to drive Tony Cloninger from the mound. Singles by Charlie Smith and Joe Christopher plus Ron Swoboda's double scored one run with none out.

Cloninger retired Chuck Hiller on a fly out, then intentionally walked Jesse Gonder before getting pinch hitter Jim Hickman to hit into a game-ending double play.

New York... 020 000 001—3 10 0
Milwaukee... 020 100 010—4 11 0

Willie Horton Leads League, Hopes Pitchers Are Worried

DETROIT (AP) — Willie Horton has turned the tables on opposing American League pitchers and hopes at least a few of them are worrying about him.

Horton, who zoomed to the top of the American League batting with a .403 average and nine home runs after a torrid hitting spree last week, used to be a constant worrier.

"I used to worry when I wasn't hitting. Then, when I was hitting, I had started worrying about the pitchers getting on to me and stopping me," Horton explained Tuesday.

"But I don't worry about anything now," the 22-year-old muscle man added.

Horton explained his hitting spree simply: "I'm not doing anything different, I'm just swinging away."

"Maybe I know the pitchers a little better, but they know me a little bit better, too."

"I just decided that worrying wasn't going to help, but faith in the Lord would. I put myself in His hands and plan to continue to do my best."

Horton was the most promising prospect in spring training a year ago. But the pressure of playing before the home crowd — he was a sandlot standout in the Detroit area — proved too much. Rival pitchers had little trouble getting him to swing at bad pitches.

When the Tigers sent him to Syracuse, his only comment to Manager Charlie Dressen was "I'll be back."

At Syracuse, Horton hit International League pitching for a .288 batting average, getting 28 home runs and 99 runs batted in.

He batted .308 in spring training this year but had to share the left field spot with rookie Jim Northrup, Gates Brown and George Thomas.

Horton's hitting turned the tide and interim Manager Bob Swift decided to stick with the youngster.

Delts Advance to Finals In Fraternity Softball

Delta Tau Delta defeated Beta Theta Pi, 6-2, Tuesday night to advance to the final round of the fraternity league softball championships. The Delts will face the winner of the Pi Kappa Alpha-Delta Chi game which is to be played today.

Delta Chi advanced to the semifinals by downing Sigma Phi Epsilon last week. The Pikes advanced by beating Sigma Nu, 5-4, Tuesday.

Big Ten Track — Wide Open Race Is Predicted for Meet

A wide open race for team and individual honors appears in prospect for the 65th Big Ten outdoor track and field meet here Friday and Saturday.

Defending champion Wisconsin has seven place-winners back from its winning team, but Michigan's middle distance runner Kent Bernard is the only individual titlist back.

Bernard, the 440 champion, will run either the quarter or 600-yard race to bolster Michigan's title bid. The Wolverines have the largest squad entered, 31 men, while Wisconsin is next with 26 men.

Although Wisconsin captured the Big Ten indoor title by 12 points over Michigan, 64-52, the Badgers face a severe challenge this weekend. On the basis of best times this spring, Michigan rates the toughest contender, with Minnesota, Northwestern, Michigan, and Iowa close behind.

Two other former champions are entered this year after injury-caused lapses last year. Iowa's Bill Frazier, who equaled the league 800 mark with a 1:50.1 time in 1962, and Wisconsin's Bill Holden, 1963 outdoor high jump champ, will be trying to regain their crowns.

IOWA WILL host the spring business session of Big Ten athletic leaders along with the outdoor track meet.

Thursday through Saturday policy-making faculty representatives, athletic directors and coaches will be in session.

The directors will study conference football slates for 1973 and 1974 drafted by Bill Reed, Big Ten commissioner. Reed has developed a format of seven league games annually for each school within a 10-game schedule.

Conference grid schedules have already been set through 1972.

The faculty group will study a committee proposal for a pool fund to reimburse schools who may have football games cancelled because of unusual reasons, such as the dropping of the Iowa-Notre Dame game because of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963.

There are three events in the contest. The varsity and freshmen have separate contests and there is a special contest for coaches.

Last year's winners consumed seven pints of ice cream. One boy downed nine pints, but couldn't keep it down until after the 5 p.m. whistle and was disqualified.

In 1957 Ron Johnson of St. Louis and Kim Austin of Honolulu set the all time record for the contest by eating one and a quarter gallons of ice cream.

The Dolphins claim the mark as a world record.

CARD COACH OUT—ST. LOUIS (AP) — The National League has suspended St. Louis Cardinal Coach Joe Schultz for two days and fined him $100 for his argument Monday night with umpire Shag Crawford.

Warkentin, Reginald R. Cooper, Hiro Nishioka, and Mark A. Immergut, College of Medicine; Mildred I. Freel and Ida N. Johnson, College of Nursing; Harold J. Black, College of Pharmacy; and Bill Carl Snider, College of Education.

Ting-Pong Chin was promoted to research assistant professor in the College of Pharmacy.

Grant Offers Berlin Study For Engineer

A scholarship to enable an American engineering student to study in West Berlin for the 1965-66 academic year has been established by the United States National Student Association.

The scholarship is in memory of the late President John F. Kennedy.

The student association will select the candidate for the program. He will study civil, mechanical, electrical or industrial engineering in one of the three engineering colleges in West Berlin.

The scholarship provides round-trip transportation from New York, tuition and fees, insurance, and money for living and incidental expenses.

The following qualifications are required by a candidate for the scholarship: He must have completed his third or fourth year in an American engineering curriculum; he must be under 26 years of age; he must have had some practical work in his field; he must have a working knowledge of the German language.

The scholarship will begin Oct. 1, 1965, and will continue for 12 months. Applications are available at the Office of Student Financial Aid.

U. Artist's Work To Be Exhibited

Byron L. Burford, associate professor of art, was one of two Iowans whose works were selected to be exhibited at the 15th Mid-America Annual Exhibition in Kansas City, Mo., from May 14 to June 13.

Burford and Wendell D. Mohr, Des Moines, were among 89 artists selected from a field of over 1,000 artists. They have a chance to be winners of more than $2,000 in prizes.

Burford's "Sideshow" was one of the 42 paintings selected. Mohr's work was a serigraph entitled "Rush Hour Rain."

The jurors chose 25 sculptures and 22 prints and drawings to complete the field.

The exhibit is a survey of contemporary artistic currents in Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Colorado and New Mexico.

Boyd said present trends show an increasing number of college graduates are staying in Iowa. He made the remarks at the Iowa City Kiwanis Club meeting Tuesday noon.

A City High senior was awarded the John E. Briggs Scholarship, which will cover a year's tuition at the University.

The student, Russell R. Kennel, 18, is the son of Mrs. Barbara Kennel, 817 Melrose Ave. He has a 3.38 grade point average and is active in athletics.

Kennel plans to major in mathematics.

The Briggs Scholarship is named after a former professor of political science at the University and a past president of the Kiwanis Club.

Scientific papers will be presented at the meeting by the anesthesia residents. Opening remarks will be made by Dr. William K. Hamilton, professor and head of the Department of Anesthesia. John R. Winnie, associate professor of radio and television, will speak at a dinner Saturday evening at 6 p.m. in the University Athletic Club. His topic will be "Educational TV Network for Columbia — a Peace Corps Mission." Chairman of the various sessions of the meeting will be Drs. Duncan Holaday, University of Chicago; Paul Hackett, Washington University; Jerry Miller, Indiana University; and Vincent Collins, Cook County Hospital.

Residents of the U of I College of Medicine who will participate in the meeting are Drs. Mary Weisel, Jackson Versteeg, Kenneth Lobbes, William Cain, James Waun, and Michael Cristoford.

Students in the College of Business Administration must have taken at least 12 hours of accounting and have maintained a "B" average in their course work.

Two purses of two University graduate students were stolen Monday afternoon between 4:30 and 4:40 p.m. in Bird Hall of Macbride Hall, police were told Monday. About $35 was taken from the purses.

The two students, Diane S. Hubbard, Greentown, Ind., and Carolyn M. Otte, Leonia, N.J., told police they were away from their purses, but still in Bird Hall, for about 10 minutes.

The purses were found Tuesday morning on steps leading to Bird Hall. A billfold containing $19 was missing from Mrs. Hubbard's purse, police said.

Closed circuit medical television programs will be beamed from the University's Medical Center to Cedar Rapids and Des Moines over new facilities being built by Northwestern Bell Telephone Company.

The programs will include lectures, surgery, laboratory work and demonstrations. They were planned to acquaint an audience of 60 physicians with new developments in the medical field.

Two microwave towers will link Iowa City and Cedar Rapids by radio relay.

One tower is being built in Iowa City just north of Old Dubuque Road. The other tower is located near Solon. The project will cost $257,000 and will be placed in service about July 1.

Forty Midwest Anesthetists To Meet Here This Weekend

Forty physician anesthetists from 14 medical training centers are expected to attend a Midwest Anesthesia Residents' meeting Saturday and Sunday at the College of Medicine.

The meeting, which was established in 1961 by members of the Department of Anesthesia at Iowa, is the first of its kind to be held in this country entirely by and for anesthesia residents. While the group has always met at the U of I, a different school serves as host each year. This year's host will be the Mayo Clinic Graduate School of Medicine.

Anesthesia residents who will attend are from the universities of Iowa, Missouri, Chicago, Kansas, Oklahoma, Minnesota, and Nebraska, and from Washington, Ohio State, Indiana and Marquette Universities, the Cook County Hospital in Chicago, the Hines (Illinois) Veterans Administration Hospital, and the host school.

Scientific papers will be presented at the meeting by the anesthesia residents. Opening remarks will be made by Dr. William K. Hamilton, professor and head of the Department of Anesthesia. John R. Winnie, associate professor of radio and television, will speak at a dinner Saturday evening at 6 p.m. in the University Athletic Club. Commission Urges Boating Safety

With Iowa experiencing an upswing in the number of drownings this spring, the Iowa Conservation Commission issued a plea Monday to boaters and other recreationists to use caution while on or near the water.

Seven drownings, three involving boating accidents, were reported in the last 30 days.

The Commission urged that boaters be courteous and responsible and observe these safety tips:

1. Follow the passenger capacity rating for your boat. 2. In rough water, keep low in the boat and head into the waves. 3. Over-powered boats lead to disaster; Match the motor to the boat.

4. Capsized boats rarely sink. Stay with the boat until help arrives. 5. Watch out for swimmers, boats, and other objects or obstructions. Reduce speed when approaching the shore, dock, or crowded area. 6. Boating and alcohol do not mix.

Students in the College of Business Administration must have taken at least 12 hours of accounting and have maintained a "B" average in their course work.

Head Scot Won't Just Twirl

She was twirling the mace when the reporter approached to interview her, she was still twirling it when her picture was taken and she will continue to twirl it, next year as drum major of the Scottish Highlanders.

Leading a 78-member band could be a challenging experience, but Linda Nolan, A2, Guthrie Center, eagerly accepted the responsibility this February. She has been assistant drum major since November.

Clad in her 16-piece drum major uniform, Miss Nolan commented during a recent interview on her new role.

"MY OVERT function as drum major is simply to give the commands and signals during the marching activity," she said. "But my real purpose is to develop spirit within the group."

In any public performance by the group, she said, it is the job of the drum major to act as spokesman to the press.

The drum major also becomes head of the Highlander Governing Board, a group of elected band members who handle disciplinary action and travel and performance arrangements.

"I have one special duty," Miss Nolan said. "I must pick up my feet higher in drills, smile more, and let the girls know when they are doing well."

LIVING UP to the tradition set

Club Honors Profs At Tuesday Picnic

Two marketing professors who are leaving the University were honored at a picnic in City Park Tuesday night by the student Iowa Marketing Club.

Robert E. J. Snyder, instructor of business administration, and Leonard J. Konopa, associate professor of business administration, were surprised with plaques presented in recognition of their services to the club.

Konopa was the club's adviser until 1961 and Snyder from 1961 until now.

Konopa is going to Kent State University, Kent, Ohio, as a visiting professor. Snyder will be an associate professor of marketing at Roosevelt University, Chicago.

Snyder has also been the voice of the Hawkeye Marching Band since 1958. Arrangements have been made so that he can continue in this capacity.

Students in the College of Business Administration must have taken at least 12 hours of accounting and have maintained a "B" average in their course work.
