

Engineers Must Select Melloh's Successor

By GAYLE HALLENBECK
Staff Writer

The position of college dean is awesome to students and commands respect from faculty members. But it's a headache to select someone to fill the position.

The College of Engineering must now face this task. A successor must be found for Dean Arthur W. Melloh who will be leaving June 1.

This is the way the Engineering

College is approaching the problem.

A letter was sent today to all voting members of the engineering faculty from the faculty's dean selection committee asking for the faculty's aid in the task.

Nine members were elected to form the engineering faculty council by a faculty vote last week.

THE LETTER asked each voting member to write on a slip of paper "several of the more prominent faculty members of his choosing . . . and indicate each as acceptable, unacceptable, or recommended for the deanship. A statement of reasons in each case will be helpful.

"Suggestions should include the directions to be taken by, and objectives of, the college, the essential attributes of a prospective dean, and the names of appropriate candidates."

A form was attached to the letter so that the faculty could suggest people outside the engineering college as candidates for dean.

THE QUALIFICATIONS outlined in the attached form were desirable but not absolutely necessary, according to the letter.

The attached form recommended a doctorate in one branch of engineering and a minimum age of 40 and a maximum age of 60.

Academic recommendations included "undergraduate and graduate teaching, minimum of five years, these supervision, minimum of five doctorates, personal research and publications of five or more significant articles in professional journals or books, responsibility for the coordination of academic programs, and marked success in securing and conducting substantial research contracts, both governmental and industrial sponsored."

OTHER recommended qualifications were "participation in national organizations and participation in civic affairs."

To meet personal qualifications the candidate "should be a man of eminent stature in the profession and should possess to a high degree the qualities of integrity, courage, maturity and decisiveness tempered with sound judgment."

The letter said, "The utmost discretion will be exercised by the Engineering Faculty Council with regard to the confidential aspects of this entire matter."

Dominican Junta President Claims Rebel Force Crushed

Imbert Rules Out Compromise Talks

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Junta president, Brig. Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, told a cheering rally of about 1,000 followers Wednesday, "We have absolute control of the Dominican Republic."

The crowd shouted back: "We don't want a truce. Out with communism."

Imbert spoke from a second-floor balcony at his headquarters in the National Palace of Congress, inside the U.S.-occupied international zone.

THE RALLY came after junta troops had overrun the rebel radio station and most of northern Santo Domingo where rebel resistance collapsed.

Most of those at the rally came from middle and upper class homes in the neighborhood.

Imbert told an interviewer later that a compromise with the rebel forces of Col. Francisco Caamaño was out of the question. He said his five-man junta was pushing for an unconditional surrender by the rebels holed up in their downtown enclave, and would talk with Caamaño only to discuss surrender terms.

A U.S. official said efforts to form "a coalition government of national reconciliation" had failed, at least for the moment.

In New York, U.N. Secretary-General U Thant called on the United States "to use its good offices" to get the rival Dominican factions to heed last Friday's U.N. cease-fire appeal.

Thant told the Security Council that his special representative, Jose Antonio Mayobre, had reported the situation in Santo Domingo was "extremely grave" following his unsuccessful efforts to end the fighting.

AT ABOUT the same time, a special peace-seeking committee, recently returned to Washington, urged the Organization of American States to ask the United Nations to suspend action in the Dominican crisis while the OAS tried to achieve a political settlement.

The committee also asked that the OAS send a special mediator to the rebellion-torn country. The peace group said its work is finished.

With optimism surging through his headquarters, Imbert told a newsman that the battle for northern Santo Domingo would be completed by the weekend. Asked if his forces would attempt to storm the rebel stronghold downtown, hemmed in by U.S. Marines and paratroopers, Imbert replied: "That's next week's problem."

CAAMANO HAS refused to meet with Imbert, charging that any compromise with the junta would violate the rebel demand for a return to the 1963 constitution.

The junta's optimism developed when its forces advanced 10 blocks against the rebels in the battle for the city's northern suburbs.

The death toll was not known, although hospitals reported 30 dead. Some estimates said there were more than 100 dead, including civilians.

A junta spokesman said 800 rebel prisoners had been taken. The rebels issued no figures.

Newsman driving through the battle area said many homes were damaged by machinegun and tank cannon fire. Tanks demolished some homes where rebels were believed to have been barricaded.

Labor Lukewarm on LBJ Message

PRESIDENT JOHNSON'S LABOR MESSAGE, which didn't include everything organized labor wants, won polite but somewhat subdued applause from AFL-CIO President George Meany.

"I didn't write the President's labor message," Meany told a news conference when asked whether he was disappointed about some of the things Johnson left out of his recommendations to Congress Tuesday.

"I didn't tell him what to put in it and what not to put in it," Meany said.

Meany had strongest praise for Johnson's call to Congress to repeal section 14b of the Taft-Hartley act, which permits right-to-work laws now on the books in 19 states.

Meany rebuffed some suggestions that the AFL-CIO change its No. 1 priority from the repeal measure to Johnson's recommendation to broaden minimum wage coverage.

De Gaulle Wants 'New Balance'

PRESIDENT CHARLES DE GAULLE CALLED Wednesday for a "new balance" in world affairs to replace the division of the globe into East and West blocs which he blamed on the wartime conference of Yalta.

He said the Yalta agreements encouraged "two hegemonies" and thus would endanger world peace as long as this division endures.

De Gaulle did not specify what he meant by a "new balance," but he asserted France should have a prominent role. He said the new balance should be based on "the independence and the responsibility of each of the nations of the earth."

De Gaulle, who has never forgotten nor forgiven his own exclusion from the Yalta conference, was speaking at a seaside rally as he began a three-day tour along the Atlantic coast.

Car-Cycle Collision Injures Student

A UNIVERSITY STUDENT WAS SLIGHTLY INJURED Wednesday afternoon when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a car.

The student, Hugh J. Kotowski, A1, Cedar Rapids, received minor cuts and bruises, according to police. He was not admitted to a hospital.

The car was driven by Donald E. Buehrer, 29, of Des Moines. According to police, Buehrer was driving east on Burlington St. and went through a red light at Dodge St. Kotowski was going north on Dodge.

Buehrer was charged with failing to stop for a red light. The accident occurred about 3:15 p.m.

Chicago Mother Lauded For Work as G-Woman

CHICAGO (AP) — For 10 days after her arrest and detention, Claire Stelmazek, 34, remained silent in the face of shocked disapproval from her friends and neighbors and taunting and harassment of her children.

But Wednesday there was generous praise from high officials for the courageous mother's action in helping to break up a mobster-run gambling operation and thwart crime syndicate expansion plans.

"She should be saluted, congratulated and complimented for her outstanding service," said Mayor Richard Daley in announcing that the city will award Mrs. Stelmazek a medal of merit.

"A very courageous lady; one in a million," said Lt. Edward Berry, acting head of the Chicago police intelligence unit.

"I know of no undercover witness who's done as well as this young lady did," said Lester McCurrie of the state's attorney's office.

Police revealed that Mrs. Stelmazek, mother of four and operator of a tavern on the South Side, pretended to cooperate with gangsters to help police.

Three crime syndicate hoodlums tried for two months to install crooked dice tables in a room behind her tavern before Mrs. Stelmazek went to police, Barry said.

Seeing a chance to learn more about crime syndicate techniques for invading legitimate business and milking illegitimate profits from it, police asked Mrs. Stelmazek to play along with the hoodlums.

"She was a little apprehensive at first but she agreed," said Berry. Her husband, Raymond, gave his approval after being assured his wife would be well protected.

Police planted recording devices in the tavern and taped threats made by the mobsters and details concerning the rigged gambling operation, which the gang began running the night of May 10.

When police moved in, they arrested Mrs. Stelmazek along with 18 other persons. This was done in order to keep her role a secret. She remained in jail for several hours, then was released on bond.

The truth about Mrs. Stelmazek was told after she spent five hours testifying before the grand jury, which is investigating results of her undercover work.

ELECTED CHAIRMAN—

Dr. Robert M. Kretschmar, assistant professor of obstetrics and gynecology, was elected chairman of the Johnson County Chapter of the American Cancer Society Friday.

Dr. Kretschmar was the Johnson County Crusade chairman in 1964, and is serving now on the State Education Committee of the American Cancer Society.

Tim Campbell, A4, Newton, practices a few minutes before the spring University Symphony Orchestra concert Wednesday evening. A capacity crowd filled the Iowa Memorial Union main lounge for the concert.

California Records Many Attend Strong Earthquake Final Concert

A strong earthquake registering 7 on the Richter scale and located 6,000 miles northwest of Berkeley, Calif., was recorded at 5:52 p.m. PDT Wednesday.

The University of California's seismology station at Berkeley reported that the quake probably occurred off the southeast coast of Asia.

A reading of 7 would be sufficient to cause damage in a populated area. The San Francisco earthquake of 1906 registered 8.25 on the Richter scale and the 1964 Alaska quake was 8.4.

The combined groups were conducted by James Dixon, associate professor of music. A feature of the concert was the second number, Mendelssohn's "Concerto in E Minor for Violin and Orchestra," with Charles Treger on violin. Treger, a noted violinist, is the head of the string department of the School of Music.

Wednesday evening's concert opened with Overture to Iphigenie en Aulide by Gluck. After the piece by Mendelssohn, the program was concluded by Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe."

Treger was absent from the University during the first semester on a leave of absence. During his leave he toured 14 countries in Europe and the Near and Middle East.

The University Symphony Orchestra will travel to Monmouth, Ill., today to present the same concert with the aid of the Monmouth College Choir. James Dixon will conduct the concert.

The choral portion of Wednesday night's concert was prepared by Daniel Moe, associate professor of music. Moe is the director of the University Choir and the Oratorio Chorus.

Planning Firm Surveys Traffic

A survey of traffic and parking patterns is being conducted this week in the Iowa City business district.

The studies, which are a part of urban renewal planning, are being conducted by the Barton-Aschman engineering and planning consultant firm.

The survey includes traffic counts at several intersections during the rush hours, locations where service trucks load and unload, parking inventories on each block and surveys of motorists' origins and destinations.

Gross Favors Aid Project In Hometown

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. H. R. Gross (R-Iowa) noted as an economy advocate, spoke out in favor of a public works project Wednesday for the first time in his 17 years in Congress.

He asked the Senate Public Works Subcommittee to authorize an $18.6-million flood control project in his hometown of Waterloo on the Cedar River and Blackhawk Creek.

Later, Gross explained to a reporter his break with custom, let it be known he hasn't changed his money-saving outlook, and commented:

"I've only been opposed to projects which are larded in by Congress with no justification."

He said he never opposed such projects which were justified by Army Engineers and the Budget Bureau.

"Sure I've voted against public works bills in the past," Gross said. However, in each such instance, he said, "at some stage or another they had been larded up with projects which were not justified."

How dry I am

STUDENTS HAVE SCARCELY been able to fathom it. Preposterous, ridiculous, unreasonable — Johnson County is enforcing Iowa's beer laws.

Grocery stores are demanding identification before selling six packs; taverns are requiring a couple of ID cards for younger customers; and — woe upon woe — the woods are filled with gendarmes ready to pounce upon a minor quenching his thirst.

Some of the craftier students affected by the beer crackdown have been able to continue their traditional pastime without much interruption (though often considerable bother), but most find the new policy in Johnson County leaves them dry, not high, with their tongues hanging out.

If it has done nothing else, the recent shutting off of the county's beer spigots has demonstrated to college students the outdated aspects of Iowa law. Although many downtown bars have been off limits to minors for some time, no one really paid much attention to the deeper meanings of those "You Must Be 21 and Prove It" signs.

The current problem in Iowa City is similar to the problem plaguing the entire state regarding illicit booze before liquor-by-the-drink was passed (remember?). Both problems are reminiscent of the one facing the entire country under prohibition.

It's just next to impossible to enforce a law which goes against the will of most citizens.

There is no rational reason for excluding 18-year-olds from the ranks of the beer drinkers. We think including them would be rather a good idea.

For one thing, allowing 18-year-olds to drink a few beers (but nothing stronger) would help to acquaint them with the proper way to handle liquor in later life. Like it or not, this is a Drinking Society, and the sooner we learn to live with it the better.

As long as this is a Drinking Society, 18-year-olds are going to be drinking. After they have graduated from high school, young Americans all begin moving in social circles with adults who drink, and who will supply them with liquor (no matter what the law says).

Some 18-year-olds work in factories, others work in offices and stores, some join the armed services, many are married and a few go off to college. No matter what they may be doing, most high school graduates feel on their own. Indeed, college students are among the most dependent of this age group.

Petty age restrictions on beer are understandably resented and ignored by the young man with a wife and child, or the soldier just out of boot camp, or the student with a roommate's id.

What is so magical about being 21? One may well ask. It would seem that high school graduation, when a person moves from a younger "sheltered" peer group into the cold, cruel world, would be a more logical time for such a transition.

We hope several people will ask "Why 21?" on the beer issue. It's an interesting question.

In the meantime, students under 21 had better stay out of the bars and woods, and stay home where it's safe. That's not so hard to do now — with finals right around the corner.

Of course, if the beer crackdown continues next fall, it could lead to a lot of serious thought, and maybe even a slight decline in Johnson County beer sales, but we doubt any decline could be more than slight.

The Space Age requires more functioning gray matter of every generation; University enrollment requirements are growing even more demanding.

It would be surprising if tomorrow's leaders are unable to circumvent yesterday's blue laws today — at least for any extended duration.

Kids join the movement — they shall not be moved

By ART BUCHWALD

The real problem with all the sit-ins, stand-ins, teach-ins, etc., is that college students are not the only ones involved. They're now trickling down to high school and even grammar school students.

At the Alice Deal Junior High School in Washington eighth-graders have not only protested the quality of the food in the cafeteria, but have also demanded the right to chew gum in school as well as to have television and music at noon.

It's no secret that American youth is in revolt. Even in my own family I've seen the effects of all the newspaper coverage of the various protest movements on my three children.

In the morning, for example, we have a lie-in, with all three children refusing to get out of bed to get ready for school.

Using an umbrella, which is the nearest thing to a cattle prod that we've got, I usually manage to make them move.

When they're finally dressed, we are then faced with a sit-in at the kitchen counter. Our sit-in is different than the civil rights sit-ins in that, while we're willing to serve them breakfast, they're protesting the fact that they have to eat it.

If we yell at them, they scream, "Police brutality!" and leave the house in a huff.

The next demonstration usually takes place around 3:30 in the afternoon when the kids start picketing the house. They usually do their picketing where we've just planted new grass seed or tulip bulbs.

The big difference between our children's picketing and civil rights picketing is that in civil rights picketing the dogs are on the side of the police, while at our house the dogs are on the side of the pickets — and if we try to move the pickets away the dogs will growl and jump us.

Some of the larger issues that the pickets feel strongly about are baths before dinner, or, on the other hand, baths after dinner, our reactionary policy against skate boards, and the fact that they have to change their school clothes before they go out to play.

There is also a feeling that their rights are being violated because we make them put their bikes away before they come in.

In the evenings the demonstrations consist of sit-ins in front of the television set. Every time we try to drag them away, they link arms and start to sing "We Shall Not Be Moved." When we start prodding them again, they go limp and we have to carry them off.

The final protest takes place between 9:30 and 10 o'clock at night, when they hold a stand-in in the hall and refuse to go to bed.

This is the time when we would prefer a lie-in, but they insist on remaining on their feet until we practically knock them down.

Once again the forces of law and order in our house are charged with brutality and an unwillingness to treat them as equals.

There is no doubt that all the children in the country are being affected by the civil rights and college demonstrations and no one knows where it will end.

Just the other day my eight-year-old found out what a boycott was, and now none of the children are speaking to us at all.

Death—a reminder

To the Editor: Ivory McDowell's death is a reminder — not a reminder of death, for we are reminded of that every day in some way — but rather a reminder of courage.

I did not know Ivory McDowell personally and perhaps because of that it is easier for me to write this letter. But I did know and admire his prowess on the football field.

Yes, on the football field Ivory McDowell displayed a courageous ferocity, but he never forgot to couple it with a knowledge of the game and to weigh his chances before he made his move.

Monday afternoon he forgot. Courage comes in many sizes, for it must be different for each task it is called upon to perform. We all admire the fellow who stands up to a bully although he realizes he may later have to nurse his wounds.

We also look up to a man who stands up for his ideas and views in the presence of a hostile crowd.

In all of these things, a man must always remind himself where courage tempered with common sense stops, and where recklessness begins.

I do not mean this letter to be harsh or critical, because Ivory's death is a tragic thing, but his death should not be useless as well. Perhaps by his death Ivory can remind us of what he always practiced on the football field — always know the rules of the game and temper courage with common sense. For in the game of life, if you lose at all, you lose it all.

If you print this, don't head it with the title, "Death — A Lesson," because no one ever really learns by death. Title it rather "Death — a reminder," for that is what it is and this is what Ivory McDowell would have wanted it to be — a reminder that somebody other than us makes the rules, that somebody else names the game, and that as the line between courage and recklessness is a thin one — so is the line at the edge of a precipice.

Military reject rate increasing

The truth of President Kennedy's statement that "today's military rejects include tomorrow's hardcore unemployed" is underscored by new figures showing a shockingly high number of military rejects. The Insider's Newsletter said Monday.

The rejection rate, brought into focus by a government program to screen out 18-year-olds who can't qualify and provide them with educational, and physical rehabilitation, reportedly rose to 41 per cent for the six-month period ending December, 1964.

The figures, circulated privately by the Defense Department, are far above the 31.7 per cent rejection rate for the years 1958-60, which were publicized in the 1964 Presidential task force report, "One-Third of the Nation."

This rejection rate led to the special screening program, but was criticized by some defense and manpower officials as being highly exaggerated. However, the Newsletter said one official remarked after seeing the new figures that "these findings should persuade us how difficult it is to estimate the deteriorated human condition afflicting millions of our young people."

Air Force cadet hits local reaction to visiting officials

To the Editor: In view of all the bickering editorials appearing in the news on the subject of the crisis in the Dominican Republic and in Viet Nam, I would like to submit this letter that I received. It was written by a cadet at the U.S. Air Force Academy after he had read the article entitled "The Black-Banders," which appeared in the May 14 issue of Time Magazine.

For those unfamiliar with the article, it was an account of the largely hostile treatment received by the government team which appeared here at the University to explain the U.S. presence in Viet Nam to our students and faculty.

From the letter, I quote: "I JUST FINISHED reading Time Magazine, and as a result, I am most perturbed. The University of Iowa and the University of Wisconsin should feel very proud of the fact that they made the pages of Time — but they should have only the right of hanging their intellectual heads in shame because of the way they went about it.

"Never in my life have I been so ashamed of my state as when I read that article. I refer, of course, to the reception which greeted the government team attempting to explain the Viet Nam policy to the know-it-alls, both student and faculty, who inhabit our nation's campuses. The least they could have done was to have the decency to listen to the people who know what's going on. They might even learn something.

"I'll never go so far as to say that the hecklers are Communists — or even the slightest bit pink; they come in various and sundry shades of yellow. Now, with the proverbial war clouds on the horizon, they feel the pinch and they're running scared. If you close your eyes, it will go away, and the best way to close your eyes is to open your mouth — and heckle.

"THIS ACADEMY is brand new, but already war has become a reality here. Last November the first individual to be sworn in as an Air Force cadet was interred in the academy cemetery, the first graduate to die in action with the enemy. He died in the Nam. "I have two close friends whose dads are Air Force pilots in Viet Nam. Almost every cadet stationed here can name at least one personal friend who has died in Viet Nam. No one here wants to fight; we all have nightmares about someday being sent to Viet Nam. We are trained to fight, but we are not trained to like it.

"WE ARE NOT warmongers, nor is President Johnson. In about time those on the campuses faced a little reality. The attitude is the same one that led to Munich and Pearl Harbor.

Those blind mice had better crawl out of their holes and stand up with the rest of us, or they die there of wounds from a Chinese bayonet.

"I don't mean to condemn the entire University for the actions and feelings of 200, but surely there must be 200 sane, intelligent people somewhere on the campus who have the courage and backbone to speak up for something they believe in, instead of against something they're afraid of.

"Viet Nam has a purpose which is more than some campus types have."

Patio Art Show called poor picture of student work

To the Editor: The Patio Show has been presented to the public as "outstanding," "representative of art being done at the U of I," and "the major formal showing of student work."

The show was called outstanding even before it was judged. It is exceedingly unusual to call a show anything even before the judges. It may be outstanding, but possibly not in the way advance publicizing would imply.

As for being representative, a juried art show is representative of nothing more than the personal choice of the judges, however competent. Under the present conditions, this show could never be representative of my work, or of any number of other graduate art students at the U of I.

Two alternatives could make this show more representative of student work. The first (which is usually unfeasible) is to allow each art student, with the guidance of his major studio instructor, to exhibit one item of work. This would give an immediate, comprehensive view of the various directions within the school.

The second alternative is to have a group showing, or a series of brief one-man shows, of the work of students graduating each semester. The setting up of the show could become part of the studio thesis.

Since this is the major formal showing of student work, making short of a professional atmosphere should be utilized. Such a place would be the Art Department gallery.

At present only travelling exhibits, faculty shows, high school and public school art are presented in the gallery, and even these shows do not always use all the space available, or even use the facilities full time.

The incredibly poor timing of the Patio Show, coming at a time of studio thesis selection and major exhibitions, also prevents students from entering their better work.

Therefore, the students of the School of Art find themselves in the position of having no showing of their work, outside of a show judged by people who are not knowledgeable of work being done at the school, displayed in a very un-professional way, at a bad time of the year.

Art Student Makes Paper Using Old European Recipe

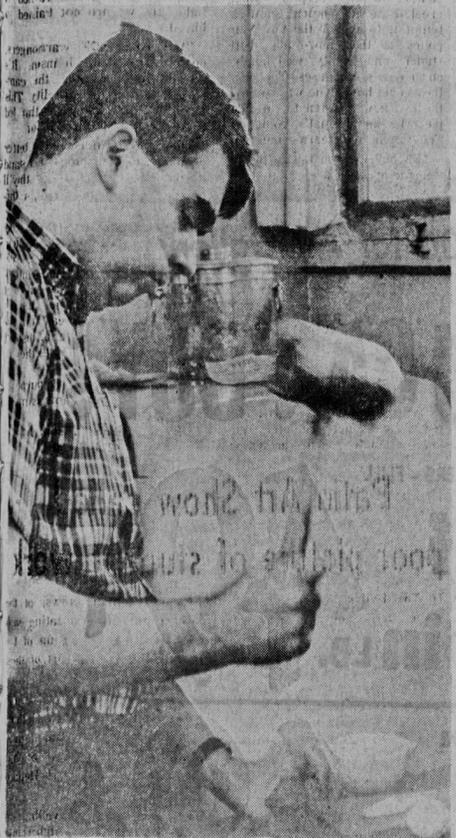

By KEN HIXSON
Staff Writer

The recipe reads: Take two fistfuls of cotton, beat the cotton with a wooden mallet for about three hours, and let it rot until the smell becomes noticeable.

No, you won't find it in a Betty Crocker cookbook. It is the general plan for making a batch of stuff.

Stuff is the technical term for the solution of fibers and water of which paper is made.

The recipe was explained recently by Jim Broderick, G. Chicago, an art student who makes his own paper. He said the two fistfuls would make six to eight sheets of paper.

He Has a Hammer

Jim Broderick, G. Chicago, takes one of the first steps in producing his own paper by beating squares of cotton with a wooden mallet. Once beaten, the cotton will then be boiled, drained and rinsed. Broderick has undertaken the project as a part of his M.A. thesis in art.

Broderick described the complete process: "Cut the cotton rags into one-inch squares, beat the cotton with a wooden mallet, then with a smaller steel hammer for about three hours," he said.

"Boil the beaten cotton in a caustic solution, drain it and rinse it."

"Let it rot six weeks or longer. You know when you are ready to start because you can't stand the smell. This destroys everything but the cellulose."

"Put the stuff into the vat, dip the mold in, and shake it to establish the bond, remove the deckle and couch."

The mold used resembles a window screen. It traps some of the solution when dipped into the vat. When the mold is removed, the water drains off and leaves a very wet sheet of paper.

The deckle is removed next. It is a wooden frame built around the top of the mold to hold the stuff in.

The wet sheet is transferred to a felt cloth by rolling the mold over the cloth in a process known as couching.

Stacks of wet sheets and felt cloths are pressed in a press to remove excess water.

The last step is to dry the paper.

The process Broderick uses is much like the one used by the first Europeans who made paper.

Broderick said he first became interested in papermaking and decided to try it, and now it has become a thesis topic.

"I am a printmaker. I wanted some experience for I will be using this the rest of my life," he said.

Broderick said, "I wish I had a hollander instead of a wooden mallet for the process."

A hollander is a mechanical device which chops the fibers. The smallest one made holds five gallons of stuff and costs about $1,500.

"The cost eliminate an amateur, but some day I would like to get one and make paper commercially," Broderick said.

"Just about anyone can make paper," Broderick said, "but it takes more than slipshod methods. In the last few years I have gone from slipshod to finer methods."

Sen. Miller To Discuss Viet Nam

The crisis in Viet Nam and Southeast Asia will be the topic discussed at the Political Action Institute Saturday at the Hotel Fort Des Moines, in Des Moines.

Speakers for Saturday's program include Dr. Barbara Tetters, a specialist in Asian history, Iowa State University; Sen. Ernest Gruening (D-Alaska); and Sen. Jack Miller (R-Iowa).

The program will begin at 9:30 a.m. Saturday. There will then be talks by eight speakers. A question and answer period will begin at 3 p.m.

Knowler Scholarship Awarded to Yoder

Reginald Yoder, A2, Iowa City, has been awarded the fourth annual Lloyd A. Knowler Scholarship in science, engineering and administration.

The scholarship, which covers tuition and fees for the 1965-66 academic year, is named for Lloyd A. Knowler, professor of mathematics, since 1939. The scholarship was established by the Iowa section of the American Society for Quality Control as recognition for Professor Knowler's contribution to the society.

Grad Student's Film Will Be Televised

A documentary film on the causes and effects of alcoholism, written and directed by a University of Iowa graduate student in speech and dramatic art, will be shown on the American Broadcasting Company television network, May 30 at noon (CDT).

The film, "Quiet Desperation," was written and directed by Edward S. Perry, G. Iowa City.

Coed ROTC Sponsor Corps Elects 1965-66 Officers

The newly-organized Army ROTC Sponsor Corps, a women's auxiliary group, held an organizational meeting Tuesday night and elected officers for next year.

Although the group has not yet been officially recognized by the University, it is in the process of preparing a constitution to be submitted for official acceptance.

The purposes of the group, as listed in the proposed constitution, include acting as official hostesses for Army ROTC functions and serving the welfare of the Army, the University and the community. Present plans call for members of the corps to appear with the cadets at awards ceremonies, parades and reviews.

Aussies Want To Lower Age On Drinking

Enforcing the law requiring a person to be 21 years old before drinking liquor isn't the only solution to the campus drinking problem.

According to The Australian, an Australian newspaper, the University Council of the Australian National University, Canberra, has proposed that a bar be set up to serve liquor to 18-year-old students. The minimum drinking age in Australia is 21.

The bar is installed in the University's union, but it is empty. If the 18 limit is approved, the bar will serve liquor at lunch and from 5 to 7 p.m.

Spokesmen say they believe that students under 21 will drink regardless of the law, so facilities should be provided where they can "learn the art." Both the students and the university faculty support the idea, the Australian said.

It may be some time before the

A $1,400 contribution to the proposed art gallery building was recently presented to the University Foundation by the social fraternities and sororities on campus. Loren Hickerson, director of the Foundation, uses the check to point out the location of the $1 million gallery to Carolyn Smith, A3, Sioux Falls, S. D., president of Panhellenic Council, and Bill Rosebrook, A3, Ames, president of Inter-Fraternity Council. The money was raised during Creek Week in February.

Computer Will Check Wisdom of Executives

Company officials attending the 20th annual executive development program June 13-19 will use a computer to check the wisdom of their management decisions.

Under the auspices of the University's Bureau of Labor and Management, the conference will deal with computer simulation exercises designed to emphasize interrelationships and interdependence among marketing, production and financial management.

James D. Benson, associate professor of business administration, is in charge of the computer simulation exercises. He said the conference participants will be divided into teams with each team heading a company in direct competition with the other companies.

Each company's financial position is influenced by decisions of competing companies as well as its own decisions. Decisions are required from each firm each quarter in 26 variables such as production volume, selling price, advertising budget and dividend declaration. "The number of variables attempt to adequately reflect the kinds of complex interdependent and interrelated problems faced by modern managers," Benson said. Given the decisions reached by each team, the computer will show profits or losses, inventory value, administrative costs, number of units sold, the balance sheet, and so forth. The entire computing process from the time the decisions are made to learning the effects will take only two minutes.

YWCA To Honor Seniors, Board At Luncheon

The YWCA will hold its first annual Recognition Luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Thursday, May 27, to honor the group's graduating seniors and the new honorary board members. The luncheon will be held in the Union Old Gold Room.

The seniors to be honored are: Carla Schumann, Davenport; Barbara Beckman, Moline, Ill.; Anne Cornish, Linn Grove; Margaret Corey, Chester Springs, Pa.; and Janet Bright, West Des Moines.

The new honorary board members are: Miss Roberta Sheets, 228 S. Summit St.; Mrs. Albert Luper, 213 McLean St.; and Mrs. Richard L. Jenkins, 431 Lee St. The YWCA Advisory Board elects the honorary members.

Tickets for the luncheon are $1.50. They may be obtained by mail or from the YWCA office in the Union.

Engineering Colloquia To Be Held Friday

An Iowa Engineering Colloquia regarding cryogenic engineering applications of superconductivity will be held at 3:30 p.m. Friday in S107 Engineering Building.

Thomas M. Flynn, chief of the Cryogenic Metrology Section of the National Bureau of Standards, will be in charge of the conferences. These are sponsored by the University, Iowa State University, the Maytag Company, the Collins Radio Company, and the Pioneer-Central Division of the Bendix Corporation.

There will also be a special session at 10 a.m. Friday in S104 Engineering Building.

Fine Arts Extravaganza Nears

Highlights of the 27th Fine Arts Festival which will open June 7 will include an opera double bill featuring two 20th century works, concerts by U of I musicians who have won national and international recognition, a cycle of four comedies to be presented by the Repertory Theatre, and three art exhibitions.

Prof. Herald Stark will conduct Orff's "Die Kluge" and Ibert's "Angeliqne" July 27, 28, 30, and 31 in MacBride Auditorium, with Prof. Harold Shiffler of Hastings College, Nebraska, serving as dramatic director.

The University Symphony Orchestra will present a concert June 23 under the direction of James Dixon featuring as soloists Charles Treger, violinist, and William Precuil, violinist. Treger, head of the String Department, was soloist with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra on a three-month tour of Europe and the Near and Middle East last fall.

TREGER WILL give a violin recital July 14, and the Iowa String Quartet will present a concert July 21. Dorothea Brown, soprano, and Robert Eckert, tenor, both members of the music faculty, will give an operatic recital June 7. Miss Brown has sung with the Highland Park Opera Theatre in Chicago and gave a series of concerts in West Germany last year. Eckert has sung with the New York Philharmonic, the Bach Aria Group, and the Robert Shaw Choral.

Plays to be presented in rotation from June 2 through July 28 are Moliere's "The Misanthrope," Lorca's "The Shoemaker's Prodigious Wife," Anouilh's "The Rehearsal" and Thomas' "Under Milkwood." Exhibitions will include a collection of drawings by Rico LeBrun, a native of Italy who has been an artist in residence at Yale University; and recent additions to the collection of Owen and Leone Elliott, Cedar Rapids, and works from this collection not previously shown at the U of I. These exhibitions will be in the Art Building during the summer months.

An exhibition featuring paintings loaned by the Other Big Ten universities will be shown in the Union, both as part of the Fine Arts Festival and in celebration of the opening of three new units of the Union.

The two-month Fine Arts Festival will also include two concerts by high school musicians in the All State Music Camp—June 20 and June 25.

LECTURES TO be presented during the Festival will be given by Stringfellow Barr and Harold Taylor, educators, and Harlow Shapley, astronomer. Dr. Barr, whose topic will be "Purely Academic," will speak June 15. Dr. Taylor, whose topic will be announced later, will speak June 24, and Dr. Shapley, who will discuss "Galaxies and Mankind," July 15.

Dr. Barr has served as president of St. John's College and of the Foundation for World Government and has been a professor at Rutgers University since 1955. Dr. Taylor, who was president of Sarah Lawrence College from 1945-1959, is the author of "Education and Freedom," and "Art and the Intellect." The author of "Of Stars and Men," Dr. Shapley was director of the Harvard University Observatory from 1921-52. Since 1952, he has lectured in many American colleges and in England, Belgium and other countries.

Findings of archaeological explorations in Iowa in 1964 will make up one of the special exhibits to be featured by the U of I Museum of Natural History during the 1965 Fine Arts Festival. Included will be skeletons from 2,000 to 3,000 years old and artifacts and pictures from a prehistoric fort of the Iowa Mound Builders discovered near Lansing.

Mail orders for opera tickets, which are $2.50 each, should be addressed to Opera, Iowa Memorial Union, The University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa, with a stamped, self-addressed envelope enclosed. Sale of tickets for the Repertory Theatre plays will begin June 18 at the East Lobby Desk of the Union. Requests for information and tickets for the plays may be addressed to Dr. Larry D. Clark, University Theatre, The University of Iowa. General admission for the plays will be $1.50.

All of the concerts and art exhibitions of the Fine Arts Festival will be open to the public free of charge.

Earl E. Harper, founder of the annual Fine Arts Festival, and its director through more than a quarter of a century, is again serving as chairman of the Festival committee. Orville A. Hitchcock, associate dean of the Graduate College, is chairman of the University Lectures committee.

—Million Dollar Grant— University Given New Research Unit

Nearly $1 million will be awarded to the University to establish and operate the first Biochemical Pharmacology and Toxicology Unit in the nation under a program of the U.S. Public Health Service.

The award, which includes operating funds for five years, will provide for renovation of part of Oakdale Sanatorium to house the laboratories and other facilities of the new unit. Administration of Oakdale was turned over to the University under a recent act of the Iowa General Assembly.

ANNOUNCEMENT of the new facility was made by Dr. Robert C. Hardin, vice president for medical services, and Dr. Lauren A. Woods, professor and head of the Department of Pharmacology and director of the new program.

Dr. Hardin said, "Naming the University as the site of the first such special research unit in the nation is a tribute to the high level of competence in the field of pharmacology which has been developed by Dr. Woods and his staff."

Dr. Woods said the unit will be devoted to an "intensive program for training specialists in toxicology and for research on the toxicity of selected drugs and chemicals to which humans are repeatedly exposed, such as DDT and chlordane."

AMONG the research projects will be studies to learn more about how acute and chronic exposure to drugs and chemicals affect parts of the body such as the kidneys, the liver, the blood, and blood forming elements, and what part repeated exposure plays in changing genetic and embryological mechanisms.

The educational program will provide special training for experienced scientists, post-doctoral fellows and pre-doctoral students.

The unit will employ at least 50 full-time professional and technical personnel including specialists in biochemical pharmacology, experimental pathology, electron microscopy, nucleic acid biochemistry and embryological pharmacology.

Youth Council Gets Backing From Officials

Iowa City high school students met with city officials Wednesday afternoon to discuss a proposed Junior Council.

John Adamson, administrative assistant to City Manager Carsten Leikvold, moderated the open discussion to determine the need for acceptability of such a council.

The proposed council would meet to discuss the problems of teenagers and develop an informal parent-youth code.

The organization would also permit youth to voice opinions on civic affairs. Representatives from the organization would be present at city council meetings which concern youth.

City Councilman William Maas and Police Judge Roger H. Ivie addressed the group.

Judge Ivie said he had a teenage son and recognized the value of his association with students in court had been under less favorable circumstances and it was encouraging to see the proposal of a Junior Council.

Maas presented a list of problems the council might discuss. The students decided their immediate task was to publicize the council and gain support for it.

Councilman Maas said he hoped the city council would appoint an organizing commission composed of students from University High School, City High School, and Regina High School.

Philly Oldsters Rock 'n Rollsters

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "Just look at them cats relax," exclaimed a grinning onlooker, his admiration getting the better of grammatical nicety.

Relax? A gal named Dolly — everybody yelled "Hello!" to her, naturally — was dancing the twist on a table. Another enthusiast was piping away furiously on a kazoo.

Elsewhere on the scene, if it wasn't the bossa nova beat, it was some pop singer wailing a ballad of the lovesick.

And lest you think these revels ended there, how about those bouncy dancers, many of them in costume, hamming it up for the photographers and spectators.

There was steam enough here to blow the lid off a teenage jamboree, but this was no kid frolic. It was what you might call a social security swing, a golden age antic, a sizzling sound-off by 4200 senior citizens in Fairmont Park. Not one of those making merry was under 60.

The theme of the affair was "You're as young as you feel."

Lone Tree Book Service Urged

Children in Lone Tree could have library books if the communities in Johnson County would establish a rural library service, Sally Helm, 422 Grant, told the Metropolitan Planning Commission Wednesday night.

Mrs. Helm said she wanted the commission to be aware that small communities could build libraries with the help of the Federal Government under the Library Services Act of 1956.

The commission also received a report on the school facilities in Lone Tree from Leland Stock president of the Lone Tree School Board.

Horse Race Bill Barely Escapes Axe

DES MOINES (AP) — A bill to legalize betting at horse and dog races in Iowa escaped probable death Wednesday only because of a parliamentary maneuver.

Sen. Eugene Hill (D-Newton), an opponent of the bill, moved to return the bill to the Ways and Means Committee. He said the fact that 57 amendments were pending showed that it was not ready for a vote.

The roll was called and an unofficial count showed that Hill's motion was favored by a 28-25 vote.

However, some senators were absent and the bill's chief sponsor, Sen. Howard Reppert (D-Des Moines) said a call of the Senate on file prohibited any action unless all senators were present.

Lt. Gov. Robert Fulton ruled that the roll call would be incomplete until all senators were present. The Senate then recessed for committee meetings, with Hill's motion to return the bill to committee still pending.

While the vote had no formal effect on the measure, it showed that a majority of those present were willing to return it to committee.

Another trip to the committee at this late point in the legislative session easily could end the controversial measure's slim chance of passage this session.

The measure would legalize pari-mutuel betting at existing tracks and at two commercial tracks which could be put into operation.

It was discussed for more than three hours in an unusual night session Tuesday, but never faced a vote which tested its strength.

Iowan Jon Reimer—

Versatile Trackman Could Steal Show

In 1963 Jon Reimer won the Iowa Class B track championship with 21 points.

No, Jon Reimer isn't the name of a high school. Instead, it's the name of the University of Iowa sophomore trackman who this weekend could steal part of the show at the Big Ten track and field championships at Iowa City.

Actually it was George Community high school that went into the record books as the team champion in 1963. But it was Reimer who won three firsts and a third to single-handedly walk away with the team championship.

All that Jon did as a senior in high school was win the high hurdles in :14.8; take the lows in :19.8; finish first in the 220-yard dash in 22.4, and place third in the broad jump.

Reimer admits that prior to the state meet his times in high school were no where near his clockings he turned in that day. In fact he said that only Minnesota and several small colleges had talked to him about track scholarships before his championship performance.

"BUT I HAD always hoped that perhaps I could attend Iowa," he said. "And when Coach (Francis) Cretzmeier talked to me later that summer, I decided to pass up Minnesota and come here to school."

Right now both Jon and his coach are undecided about what events to compete in. The choices have been parceled down to the broad jump, 220-yard dash, 440 run, 330-yard intermediate hurdles, 120-yard high hurdles and the mile relay.

To make matters worse it was only about three weeks ago that Reimer first tried the 440. And his coach believes that perhaps it may be his best event.

The first time he ran it seriously he was clocked in :51.4. Two weeks ago in a time trial in practice he broke the tape in :47.7. Although not official since it was not made in a regular meet, this ranks as the fastest time run so far in the conference.

Jon considers the intermediate hurdles the event where he thinks he can improve his time considerably. He hopes that he will be able to run about :37.4 in Saturday's final. His best time to date is :38.

Although he perhaps runs with more consistency than overall flashy speed, Reimer trains like a sprinter during every practice. He thinks running straightaways helps him to smooth out his stride and makes his timing more effective.

As a freshman, Reimer almost decided that perhaps track wasn't going to be his best sport. His times did not improve and he became quite discouraged and worried that he might not be able to keep his scholarship.

But this year is another story. During the indoor meets he consistently took second in three events and was the team's third-best scorer. Outdoors, Cretzmeier is hoping for a performance on Saturday equal to his high school heroics.

Gary Olson receives a trophy clock from Charles M. Mason, director of student financial aids, in recognition of Olson's selection as winner of the Nyle Kinnick Memorial Scholarship for 1965-66. Ralph Miller, basketball coach, is at right.

Olson Wins Kinnick Award

Gary Olson, University of Iowa basketball forward in the past season, has been named 1965-66 winner of the Nyle C. Kinnick Memorial Scholarship at the U of I.

Olson, from Swedesburg, played high school basketball at nearby Olds. He is majoring in psychology at the University and will be a senior next fall. The scholarship will cover the cost of his tuition, room, board and books next year. Olson has better than a "B" average, and this year was on the Big Ten's third all-academic basketball team.

Last season the 6-5 Olson ranked fifth among Iowa scorers with an average of 8.3 points per game. He was Iowa's second-best free-thrower among the usual starters, with a 71 per cent mark. Olson missed three games because of injury. He is a strong defensive player who fits in well with the "pressure" style of basketball taught by Coach Ralph Miller.

The Kinnick scholarship was held in the current academic year by Glen Gailis, star Hawkeye gymnast. Established by the Iowa State Junior Chamber of Commerce in 1945, the Kinnick scholarship is made possible through contributions of alumni and friends of the University.

Kinnick, an all-American football player at Iowa in 1939 and a Phi Beta Kappa honor graduate in 1940, died in a plane crash in the Caribbean Sea in 1943. He had been a law student at the University before entering the Navy air corps.

The scholarship is designed not only to honor the memory of Kinnick, a native of Adel, but all Iowa men who gave their lives in the service of their country in World War II.

Dodgers' Hopes Come True

LOS ANGELES (AP)—There are several basic explanations for the current lofty position of the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League pennant race but here's an observation that covers a lot of the area:

"Everything we said all winter, which not a soul believed, has come true."

Author of the statement was Arthur E. (Red) Patterson, for years the public relations voice of the club.

Included was the firm belief that the Dodgers' star southpaws, Sandy Koufax and Johnny Podres, would recover from 1964 aches and breaks; that pitcher Claude Osteen would fill a starter's role, and young hopefuls such as Wes Parker and Jim Lefebvre would play up to expectations. Manager Walter Alston goes along with these facts but just before taking off on the Dodgers' present road trip, he had a more succinct theory.

"The biggest difference between this ball club and last year is Wes Parker," said Alston.

Parker, 25, in his first full year in the major leagues, has been a gem. His .302 batting average leads the club.

The Dodgers lost nothing, in fact gained, when Parker forced Ron Fairly off first into right field, where Fairly has more than replaced Frank Howard.

Four Teams End Seasons This Weekend

End of the baseball season and the Big Ten title meets for the track, golf and tennis teams comprises the University of Iowa's sports schedule for the weekend.

The baseball team, sixth with 4-5 and with three games rained out, plays Wisconsin at Madison Friday and closes vs. Northwestern at Evanston in a Saturday doubleheader.

In track, the Hawkeyes are at home to the Big Ten meet Friday at 3 p.m. and Saturday at 1 p.m. hoping to snare fourth place. The tennis team will try to avoid tenth in the final standing and the golfers will attempt to improve upon their last place spot of 1964.

No Seats Reserved For Track Meet

No seats are reserved in the Iowa track stadium for the Big Ten meet Friday and Saturday. The stands seat about 2,500 spectators and tickets are $2 each per session for the public and $1 for university staff, students, and children.

The Friday program opens at 3 p.m. and the pole vault at 1 p.m. is the first Saturday event.

Cadets Will Get Training

Approximately 600 Army ROTC cadets and 25,000 citizen-reservists from the Midwest area will begin training at summer encampments during May and June. ROTC cadets from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, North Dakota and South Dakota will train for six weeks at Fort Riley, Kan., and Fort Lewis, Wash. The programs begin in June.

State Board of Control Bill Passes Iowa House 101-0

DES MOINES (AP) — A bill to appropriate $25,866,940 a year to the State Board of Control for operating the 14 state institutions in the two years starting July 1 passed the House 101-0 Wednesday. The bill now goes to the Senate. Under an amendment attached by Rep. Conrad Ossian (R-Red Oak), the Board also was given $36,000 to develop a coordinated program with the State Board of Regents to provide for education of deaf and blind mentally retarded children.

Illinois House Defeats Bingo, Lottery Proposals

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois House choked off Wednesday attempts to revive proposals to legalize bingo and lotteries, apparently dooming the controversial issues for at least another two years. The constitutional amendments, offered by Rep. John Fary (D-Chicago) would have permitted bingo for charitable purposes and lotteries which would be taxed for state revenues. Fary's attempt to rescue the bingo measure was defeated, 95-50. His lottery proposal lost, 92-43.

Burning For A Suntan? Student Health Can Help

It's spring — and in spite of the threat of final week looming darkly in the near future, University students still take to the sunshine in hopes of getting that glorious bronzed look.

The "in" look is a suntan that looks like you just returned from a Florida-vacation. Most students attempt to find it on the riverbank, Burge roof, in their back yards, and even on their rooftops.

IF THEY'RE lucky, they're rewarded with a toasty-brown look. But for some the results are disastrous, and the skin hue is less desirable — a blotchy red.

Student Health treats many severe cases of sunburn every spring, according to Dr. Chester Miller, head of Student Health. He termed the most severe cases as the "incapacitating" type of burn.

He said this type requires medical attention and, in very severe cases, hospitalization.

MILLER ESTIMATED that between 20 and 30 students had been treated for severe sunburn this spring.

Student Health uses a special treatment for such cases, Miller said. Cold compresses are alternated with a "sunburn ointment."

The ointment is specially prepared for Student Health by the University Hospital pharmacy.

Miller said that another kind of sunburn commonly treated at Student Health is the result of over-exposure to a sunlamp. He said this type was more common during the winter months.

STUDENT HEALTH also treats numerous poison ivy and poison oak cases each spring, Miller said. Many students are also treated for severe cuts on their feet, the result of swimming or wading in the Iowa River.

Miller said such cases have not been as prevalent this spring because the river has been high. However, he warned students that silt-covered broken bottles and discarded cans cover the Iowa River bottom.

ROBBERY BY CAB—
DETROIT (AP) — A handit robbed a Detroit bank by taxicab Wednesday.

A taxi driver, according to the FBI, unwittingly drove the robber to the bank, waited for his return and then drove him away. The robber paid his cabbie, alighted a block away and disappeared. The loot was estimated at $600.

Parisi Wins Award

Winner of the annual Penningroth Award is Bill Parisi, A3, Chicago Heights, Ill., student body president for 1965-66. Loren Hickerson (right), director of the University of Iowa Foundation, presents Parisi with an $80 check as Charles Mason, director of student financial aid, looks on. Parisi also received a pen set. The Penningroth Award, presented on the basis of over-all achievement, cited Parisi for activities including general chairmanship of the 1965 Spring Festival, Varieties director for 1964, service on the Central Party Committee and on executive council of the Young Republicans. The award was set up in memory of William and Elizabeth Penningroth, Tipton.

Top Civic Theater Award Goes to Mary Ellen Miller

Miss Mary Ellen Miller, Rural Route 2, Iowa City, has been awarded the Board Award for the best total contribution to the Iowa City Community Theatre (ICCT). The award, a bronze "Irving," was presented at the group's annual awards dinner May 15.

Miss Miller played the leading female role in "See How They Run," was assistant to the director for "On Borrowed Time" and was stage manager for "The Cave Dwellers."

OTHER IRVINGS, small-statuettes which are the ICCT's version of Hollywood's Oscars, were awarded to members of the ICCT judged best in their categories for the 1964-1965 season.

Ronald Vanlieu, G, Wooster, Ohio, and Mrs. A. S. Gillette, 4 Rowland Ct., were named best actor and best actress for their roles as the king and the queen in "The Cave Dwellers."

Alumni Director Cites University Growth Problems

Great potential for growth is evident for both Iowa City and the University, according to Loren Hickerson, director of the U of I Alumni Association. But he said many problems faced growth planning.

Hickerson told the newly-formed Sunrise Optimist Club that recent planning talks on the University's growth were "both exciting and depressing."

Hickerson pointed out the lack of space in the dormitories and classrooms, and the problems of putting facilities near the core area.

He called for taller buildings, and more parking space. He pointed out that the University does not own necessary land for building and that a new core area may have to be found.

Raise in Pay Recommended For Governor

DES MOINES (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee recommended Wednesday that the governor's pay be raised from $18,500 to $25,000 a year, with his expense allowance continued at $5,000 a year.

The committee recommended by a 24-2 vote that departments of state government receive about $29.5 million a year for operations for the biennium starting next July 1.

This is about $5.6 million a year more than was appropriated for the current biennium and is about $528,000 more than Gov. Harold Hughes recommended in his budget message.

The committee action sends the appropriations bill to the full Senate for action.

Sen. Eugene Hill (D-Newton) chairman of the joint subcommittee which sent the bills to the full committee, said that 30 state employees now are getting more money than the governor's salary, but only three would be getting more with the boost.

The joint subcommittee had provided more money to the state administrative departments than had been recommended by Hughes, who had not recommended an increase in his salary.

Hill said that for state employees a two-step salary increase was provided in the big appropriations bill, on which the committee has been working since early in the session.

The wage increase, said Hill, would be from three to five per cent during the next two years except for the Highway Patrol, given a $60 a month across-the-board increase and boosting starting pay from $365 a month to $425.

Most of the $5.5 million increase in spending over the present biennium was to bring salaries of state employees in line with salaries paid in other states of comparable size.

Leadership Eyes Cloture On Vote Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders served notice Wednesday they will try to invoke the Senate's antifilibuster rule next week and pass President Johnson's voting rights bill.

The announcement was made by the majority leader, Mike Mansfield of Montana, after the Senate voted, 69-20, to write into the legislation a congressional declaration that the right to vote is denied or abridged in certain states by requiring polltax payments.

The declaration was offered by Mansfield and Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois in an effort to end the dispute among the bill's supporters over the poll tax issue.

Immediately after the vote, Mansfield asked for unanimous consent to limit debate on all further amendments to one hour each and to vote on passage of the bill next Tuesday.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.), leading the Southern opposition, objected to setting any time for a final vote. The bill has been under debate since April 22.

Noting that this was the third time Ellender had blocked a debate-limitation agreement, Mansfield said he and Dirksen will file a petition Friday to invoke rule 22.

It will limit each Senator's speaking time on the bill and all amendments to one hour, if approved by two-thirds of the Senators voting.
