

National Imbalance

ON WEDNESDAY Congressman John Culver of Iowa's Second District appeared before a Senate subcommittee to request that the Midwest be given more federal research and development contracts and awards. It is unfortunate, but evidently a fact of political life, that the coastal areas of this country are going to receive most of these awards because they are more populous and therefore have greater power in the Congress.

There is a vicious circle involved here, however, which is generally neglected, particularly by porkbarrel politicians. At least one of the reasons the Midwest is not growing as rapidly in population or economy as the rest of the nation is the out-migration of college-trained youth.

And these young people are forced to the coastal regions where they can find jobs in their specialized fields and have greater opportunities. This further increases the advantages of the East and California and forces even more of our educated youth to leave the Midwest.

Increased industrialization has made the predominantly rural and agricultural area a thing of the past. If the nation is to achieve the much discussed Great Society, gross imbalances between the coastal areas and the Midwest will have to be eliminated. At present about 36 per cent of Midwest-educated scientists with doctorates leave the area.

There will always be porkbarreling, but at least our legislators should put it where it won't be harmful to the economy of the entire nation.

Ya pays yer money or ya gets no choice

FIRST YA SAY YA do, and then ya don't; and then ya say ya will, and then ya won't; yer undecided now, so what're ya gonna do? Ah, politics - what famous song it is, and dance too.

State Sen. David Stanley, the Muscatine Republican, had a field day with the old politico's song & dance Thursday. The occasion was a meeting of the Johnson County Republican Central Committee. And with a gathering like that, why not have a little fun with words (about Democrats)?

Ah, ha! Sen. Stanley, you say, is a good man, solid about taxes and spending, no hanky panky. But wait, this is Iowa City. So the good senator continues to denounce Hughes for his piddling appropriation suggestion for Board of Regents institutions.

The Legislature did raise this suggested figure, but it's still nowhere near what it should be.

We agree with these last sentiments completely, but cannot see how they are compatible with the first statements. If we were against greater budgets (and taxes necessary to finance them), we could not favor ever increasing appropriations for the Board of Regents or anyone else.

But then, we're only newspaper folk, and needn't try to please everyone. We can come right out and say Iowa needs to have bigger state budgets to supply more state services (such as the expanding University of Iowa). We know that Iowa public schools need more state aid. We can see that the state must have more money to build more highways for heavier traffic loads.

Along with everything else, we can also acknowledge the fact that you get nothin' for nothin' - we realize all these things we want for Iowa must be paid for by Iowans. This means more taxes.

To us taxes are like the price tag on a public service. We expect to pay more as services increase and our present standard of living attempts to increase at least half as fast as our private standard of living it up.

Of course, we realize that Sen. Stanley is a politician with apters to think about. One can't confuse them with logical discussion of the issues. Heaven knows that could be dangerous - they might even start thinking, or something.

The Other Ascent Into The Unknown

Mixed strategies needed to fight war on poverty

(Second part of an article from the Nation on the historical approach to poverty.)

The American history of poverty may be interpreted as an alternating interest in and experiment with four strategies (making the system work, adapting the system to the needs of the poor, adapting the poor to the system, relieving the distress of the poor).

In the early 19th century was a time of special attention to strategy number one (making the system work), a later part of that century was the time for strategy number three (changing the poor). Number two (adapting the system to the poor) was emphasized in the early part of the 20th century and again in the 1930's.

NUMBERS ONE and four (relieving distress) were the dominant strategies of the 1930's and numbers one and three have had big billing in the 1950's and 1960's.

A full-fledged anti-poverty program must take account of all four strategies, but decisions about how to allocate any given amounts of resources and leadership can best be made according to comparative measurement of how each of the several strategies will "pay off" in terms of reducing the per cent of persons in poverty.

In 1798, Bentham guessed that in England "the multitude included under the denomination of the poor compose the bulk of the community - nineteen twentieths might perhaps be found to belong to that class."

LESS THAN A century later, in 1890, Charles Booth estimated that 30 per cent of Londoners lived in poverty. At the same time (1892), Jacob Riis estimated that from 20 to 30 per cent of the population of New York City was impoverished, and in 1904, Robert Hunter placed 10 to 20 million (12 to 14 per cent) of all Americans in that category.

The staff director of the Industrial Commission investigation reported in 1916 that he thought from one-third to one-half of all wage earnings were "inadequate."

In 1902, Sidney Webb had said he thought it was sheer fantasy to believe that anything short of complete communism could abolish poverty. However, in 1909, David Lloyd George presented his budget to Parliament with the declaration that "this is a war budget for raising money to wage implacable warfare against poverty and squalidness."

"I cannot help believing that before this generation has passed away, we shall have advanced a great step towards that good time when poverty and the degradation which always follow in its camp, will be as remote to the people of this country as the wolves which once infested its forests."

Imitation of 'Tom Jones' -

Amorous Moll falls short

By RICK MEYER
Iowan Reviewer

"Moll Flanders," the second imitation of "Tom Jones" film, arrived so quickly that the first one, "Fanny Hill," has not yet had a chance to leave.

Let it be said at once that "Moll" is a far more serious, distasteful and successful attempt to duplicate TJ than was "Fanny." To begin with it is a sumptuous production, with lavish sets, gorgeous costumes, and bodies of talent all over the place.

It is lovely to look at, (an improvement over "Fanny") but fails when one begins paying attention to the dialogue or tries to make sense of the plot.

A NUMBER OF things in this film will be quite galling to anybody who has either seen "Tom Jones" or read "Moll Flanders." Whatever John Osborn did when he wrote the screenplay for "Jones," he did not water it down. If anything, he revved it up. This is the exact opposite of the sensationally prudish and cowardly course pursued by the two adapters of Defoe's novel.

In the book, Moll found herself, at one point married to her own brother, surely one of the funniest moments of the original. This and all the other really sizzling material has been cut from the film. Nothing is left but the tried and censor tested cliches: highwayman and "normal" extra marital relations.

Another very irksome point was the slavishness of Terrence Young's imitation of Tony Richardson's direction of TJ. The over-all lack of daring in the making of this film (subject and execution) was infuriating. Every little detail is the same as TJ, from the cackling barnyard animals in the seduction scene, to the sloppy eating scene - really, all the imitations have so many of the same moments "obligers" that they're getting to be as bad as Gilbert & Sullivan as far as predictability of plot is concerned.

And the cast, painfully aware that they are doing nothing more than copying, perform with a kind of frantic laziness, as if they were heartily sick of all the rehearsals that went before the actual shooting. The fight scenes are notably tame and dull, due, probably, to Young's direction.

(Young is used to handling the brutality of James Bond and has yet to learn the way to stage an imaginative swordfight.)

ANOTHER cause for the feeling of the desperately (but unsuccessfully) combatted lethargy that pervades the film is the sprawling quality of the script. Whereas "Tom Jones" had a very tight plot line in which each scene was practically a causal result of the one preceding it, "Moll Flanders" has several subplots that the movie treats with such little attention that none of them are very clear or meaningful.

The impression received is that of watching a film on TV's late show - one badly hacked up so that it will end on schedule before 12:30. The story is disconnected, and the camera roams from plot to plot, with no real motivation or purpose. The result: "Tom Jones" - an active film; "Moll Flanders" - a passive one.

The passivity undoes the film. It is pleasant, occasionally amusing, with its speeded up camera and slow motion effects, but it is no more than a passive effort, requiring the audience to look, but never to be involved with the action.

THE CAST is one of the most erratic I have ever seen. The varied success of their efforts, had to do with the amount of self-consciousness they had as individuals about playing in an imitation, working for an inferior director, and to a lesser degree, what kind of parts they had to mold.

Some took the easy way out and played themselves. Angela Lansbury, Hugh Griffith (Squire Western in TJ), Richard Wattis, and Cecil Parker fell into this category. Only Lansbury and Griffith had the misfortune to do it badly, the others named, succeeded in a pleasing way.

Vittorio de Sica played himself, not because he was sick of the whole thing, but because he did not have a part he could perform in. One sensed he fell back on himself in frustration at being watched, not out of despair or laziness.

Kim Novak is not quite an actress yet. She still has not projected a character, but this was the fault of the script which strayed around so much that she did not have one to project.

SHE WAS AT ease, however, and involved in the whole thing in a way which was certainly commendable. Richard Johnson is a handsome newcomer who did very well (so well, in fact, that he married Miss Novak after the film had been completed) as the highwayman, and Leo Mackern was terrific as his sidekick. He turned in a first rate bit of acting, and managed to steal what there was of the film to steal.

Lily Palmer almost played a character part, and managed to tone down some of her exquisite lachrymose sort of Mrs. Peachum. George Sanders was really himself, but as that, this was certainly the film for him and he too, turned in a very fine performance as the unrepentant banker who became one of Moll's husbands. Daniel Massey was also excellent.

Grads dream of escape from 'jungle'

(From The New York Times)

Margaret Mead says New York City's intellectual community is locked in a struggle against hoodlums, narcotics addicts and muggers.

The anthropologist made these observations in "The Universities in Regional Affairs," a collection of essays made public recently by the Regional Plan Association, which, together with the Fred L. Lavanburg Foundation, sponsored the volume.

"The graduate student, who usually lives in some cheap apartment house," she said, "survives by closing his eyes to the illicit activities going on in the same building and by attaching a stout chain to his door."

She said the intellectual and non-intellectual elements of urban society are engaged in a struggle pitting "student against hoodlum and dope addict; night laboratory worker and hospital nurse against mugger; the well-educated well-to-do against the poor and the ignorant, and vice versa."

She called for "a new relationship between the university and the city . . . in which the two are no longer opposed."

Miss Mead chided professors for ignoring the bleak faces of the metropolis.

"Responding to the pressures that bear in on them," she wrote, "members of every academic institution dream of green lawns and high encircling walls that would keep out the urgent problems of the city, the clamor of those with no decent place to live, the crime beat of poverty and neglect, the smog blurring the windows of halls where professors lecture about the clear skies of Greece, the roar of the traffic that drowns out discussion."

College Calls Him 'Personable' Pope

WASHINGTON (AP) — Less than two weeks ago, Duane Earl Pope donned cap and gown and was graduated from little McPherson College in Kansas. Friday night he was placed on the FBI's list of 10 most wanted fugitives.

Pope, 22, a former star end on the McPherson football team is being sought for the slaying June 4 of three bank employees.

They were shot in the back with a silencer-equipped .22 caliber pistol as they lay on the floor of the Farmers State Bank of Big Springs, Neb.

The robber shot a fourth victim, who is in serious condition, and escaped with $1,500.

The four bank employees, including a woman, were forced to lie face down on the floor of the bank after they had surrendered the money. They were shot from behind as they lay there.

The FBI said Pope, whom the agency has identified as the robber, fled in a 1965 auto which he had rented the day before in Salina, Kan. The day after the robbery, the car was returned to the rental agency.

The FBI has distributed fliers throughout the 50 states as it joins state and local police in the search for the 6-foot-2, 185-pound, dark-haired Pope.

The FBI said he is "considered extremely dangerous and may now be armed with a .38 caliber revolver and a .30-06 rifle in addition to the .22 caliber automatic." Pope has a medium, athletic build, dark complexion, dark brown eyes, and brown wavy hair, the FBI said. One of his front upper teeth is capped and discolored and he has small scars on the left side of his forehead near the hairline.

The FBI said he has worked as a farm laborer with a combine crew and has been described by college friends and instructors as "personable, polite and neat-appearing individual who is unusually strong and is particularly remembered for his dark, penetrating eyes."

Thant told a meeting of the 11-nation council that enlargement of the five-man mission headed by Jose Antonio Mayobre of Venezuela would require further council action authorizing a substantially enlarged staff and increased facilities.

The council had before it a report from Mayobre to Thant on investigations of alleged mass executions attributed to the military junta, the remains of what appeared to be two bodies and some freshly fired cartridges at a site north of Santo Domingo on the road to Victoria prison.

French Ambassador Roger Seydoux, who made the suggestion Wednesday, said he would comment later. The council adjourned without action.

Boyle's term has 1½ more years to run. His resignation which is expected to be acted upon by the supervisors at their meeting Monday, would be effective June 30. The supervisors have not yet named a replacement for Boyle.

Editors View Alabama

Westerner Notes 'Earnest Pitch'

By MALCOLM EPLEY
Executive Editor,
Long Beach Calif.
Independent Press-Telegram

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — To the frequently asked question, "Was this trip worthwhile?" my own answer, as a guest of Gov. George Wallace on a tour of the state, is an emphatic "yes."

No perceptive journalist could help but benefit from first-hand exposure to the political leaders, the people, the physical setup and the resources of an area that has become, in effect, the national proving grounds in the civil rights struggle.

While I do not agree with contentions that there has been intentional distortion in the hard news coverage of events in Alabama, it must be assumed that even in four days the newspaper people can learn enough to help correct whatever inaccuracies there may be among the reading constituencies as to the image of Alabama.

The TOUR was generally well arranged and functioned to near perfection. If there can be fair criticisms, they are that no arrangement was made for a formal meeting with a responsible civil rights leader in the state and nothing was done to give the visitors opportunity to talk with Atty. Gen. Richmond Flowers, a constitutional officer who disagrees with the philosophy of Gov. Wallace in matters relevant to our visit.

There was a little grumbling among the editors about "chamber of commerce" type visits to a number of communities. I personally found these things helpful in rounding out the picture I sought.

FOR ONE thing, I found Alabama people notably anxious to be well-regarded, a fact I consider significant. Even the girl in the telegraph office who took a message from me on the telephone recognized my identity and gave me an earnest pitch for Alabama.

If through education and extension of political participation Alabama assures all of its people maximum capability to make the most of these opportunities, the major problems should be resolved. That's my outsider's viewpoint.

Clem A. Boyle, Johnson County treasurer, submitted his resignation to the Board of Supervisors Friday because of ill health.

Boyle, who has been treasurer for 4½ years, left his duties February 17 because of illness. Donald W. Schmidt, chief clerk in the treasurer's office, has administered the office since then.

Boyle's term has 1½ more years to run. His resignation which is expected to be acted upon by the supervisors at their meeting Monday, would be effective June 30. The supervisors have not yet named a replacement for Boyle.

Eight high school seniors throughout the country have each been awarded $500 Edward J. Well Memorial Scholarships for college study in journalism by the Quill and Scroll Foundation.

The awards were announced Friday by Lester G. Benz, assistant professor of journalism and executive secretary of Quill and Scroll. Quill and Scroll has its headquarters at the University.

Winners of the scholarships were chosen through their entries in various Quill and Scroll contests during 1964-65 academic year.

Former Student Cited For Chinatown Novel

A former writing student has received a $1,000 prize from the San Francisco Foundation on the basis of his partially completed novel titled "A Chinese Lady Dies."

Frank Chew Chin Jr., now of Oakland, Calif., worked on the book while a student of R. V. Cassill, lecturer in the University Program in Creative Writing. He was a student at the U of I from September, 1961, until June, 1963.

In making the award, Jackson Burgess, chairman of the judges for the award, said Chin's book "promises to be a remarkable portrayal of what the author calls . . . the uniquely exotic and charmingly suffocating personality of San Francisco's and Oakland's Chinatown. . ."

Two Iowa City high school students are among 35 high school students attending a research participation institute for talented secondary science students at the U of I.

The two are Thomas R. Cech, 406 Magowan Ave., and Richard Leu, 1421 Grand Ave. Cech is participating in the radiation research area of the institute and Leu is participating in the sanitary engineering area.

The nine-week U of I institute, began June 6 and will continue until Aug. 6. All participants have completed their junior year in high school and were selected on the basis of grades and science motivation. At the U of I, they are given the opportunity to work in research laboratories under the guidance of University scientists.

Instruction in various areas of science as well as scientific writing will be provided. Each participant will submit a scientific paper at the end of the institute. It will be published as part of a collection.

The institute, under the direction of Robert E. Yager, associate professor at University High School is supported by a $9,600 grant from the National Science Foundation.

Castro Drops Che Guevara

HAVANA — Highly reliable sources said Friday that Ernesto (Che) Guevara has been replaced as minister of industries in the Fidel Castro regime by Arturo Guzman, the deputy minister.

Guevara has been absent for more than a month. Government officials refused to discuss the matter.

The sources said that Guzman's appointment has been officially made, but has not been announced. Reports had circulated in Havana the past four months that Guevara had been replaced. Reasons for such a move were not given.

WE HAVE observed the restraint on both sides at Selma despite many months of tension in an evenly divided population. We have witnessed Birmingham's industrial power, the shipping at Mobile, and we have heard about many of the resources both material and human of a potentially rich state.

People everywhere have troubles. With the evidence of survival from past misfortunes and growth from modern progress, a person would have to be extremely hostile or sour not to expect Alabama to surmount race difficulties in time.

Southerner Sighs A 'Welcome Relief'

By THOMAS R. WARING

MOBILE, Ala. — From the Cumberland Plateau to the Gulf of Mexico, hospitable Alabamians have shown their state with pride to visiting journalists from other parts of the country.

If displaying the best things about Alabama reminds the press of a chamber of commerce folder acted out by human beings, and the structures they have built, nevertheless it is welcome relief from doleful recitals of racial tensions and threats of violence. Scribes so jaded they can't find news except in conflict were not totally disappointed. Token demonstrations staged for their attention were reminders that problems remain to be solved.

CONVERSATIONS with leading citizens of representative towns and cities have sketched ways of meeting, if not completely solving, the causes of friction and discontent. This is the side of Alabama that the hosts have tried to present in answer to critics.

In a sense, this tour is a counter-demonstration in response to revolutionary activity that has upset some communities of Alabama and brought death, injury and bitterness to people of both races. Even those in Alabama who oppose the political positions of Gov. George C. Wallace have praised his invitation to the outside press to come and see.

Whether any of the preconceived notions of the journalists will change on account of the tour remains to be seen. These men and women have minds of their own and widely varying interests.

COMPUTER LECTURES
Faculty members and students will have an opportunity to learn basic computer programming under the FORTRAN IV system in eight lectures to be presented beginning Monday by G. P. Weeg, director of the University Computer Center.

Dr. Weeg will give the instruction on Mondays and Thursdays from 4 to 5:30 p.m. in the air-conditioned, new auditorium, room 225, Chemistry Building. The sessions will be held June 14, 17, 21, 24 and 28, and July 1, 8 and 12. The dates in July represent a change from those originally announced by the Computer Center, which had included July 5.

50 Due Here For Mental Health Talks
The next steps in developing basic research in human relations, mental health and related areas and in putting research findings into practice will be explored by more than 50 persons registered for a two-week Workshop on Education in Human Relations and Mental Health opening Monday.

Designed for teachers, administrators and supervisors in schools, the program is sponsored by the Iowa Mental Health Authority and the Grant Foundation in cooperation with the Preventive Psychiatry Research program. In addition to teachers, counselors, school nurses and school administrators, the workshop participants will include social workers, community group leaders and research workers in mental health.

Prof. Ralph H. Ojemann of the U of I Institute of Child Behavior and Development is coordinator of the workshop. Among those giving lectures and leading discussions during the workshop will be Prof. Leonard Eron, acting chairman of the Psychology Department and Lars Slette, resident in psychiatry at Psychopathic Hospital.

Members of the Preventive Psychiatry staff will take part in the program.

Group discussions led by U of I personnel will supplement individual study during the two weeks. Advisers drawn from many University departments will be available for workshop members needing help with individual projects.

Postmaster Names IC New Mail Delivery Center

Iowa City has been designated as a sectional distribution center to process regional mail in Iowa. Postmaster General John Gronowski announced Thursday.

Because of this designation, he said, the Post Office Department will lease the John Nash Grocery Co. Inc. warehouse at 426 E. Burlington St. for use temporarily as a parcel post annex.

The warehouse will first be remodeled. According to Iowa City Postmaster Walter Barrow, the remodeling will take about two months.

Barrow said Thursday that he did not know if additional personnel would be hired for the annex.

Baseball Roundup

Phillies 6, Astros 5

PHILADELPHIA — Johnny Callison hit an inside-the-park homer with two out in the 10th inning, giving the Philadelphia Phillies a 6-5 victory over Houston Friday night.

Callison lined a hard shot off the right-center field score board against Jim Owens. Center fielder Lee Mays played the bouncing ball off the scoreboard and fired to second baseman Joe Morgan, who fumbled the ball and was unable to make a play as Callison raced home.

It was Callison's 13th homer. The Astros had tied the score in the ninth when Mays tripled and scored on Walt Bond's sacrifice fly. Houston closed to within a run in the eighth inning on Jim Gentile's double, a wild pitch by Ray Culp and a throwing error by shortstop Bobby Wine.

A's 5, Indians 2

KANSAS CITY — Jim Landis hit his first homer of the season and Rollie Sheldon won his first game in a Kansas City uniform as the Athletics defeated Cleveland 5-2 Friday night.

The A's pounced on Jack Rafter for four runs in the first two innings and moved to the victory behind the steady seven-hit pitching of Sheldon, making his fifth start since he was obtained in a trade with the Yankees.

Sox 5, Senators 2

WASHINGTON — Juan Pizarro, a 19-game winner last year, needed help from Eddie Fisher but finally scored his first victory of the season as the Chicago White Sox beat the Washington Senators 5-2 in the first game of a two-night doubleheader Friday.

Pizarro left after Ken McMullen's leadoff single in the sixth inning but had a 5-1 lead at the time. Fisher held the Senators, picking up his 13th save. Chicago, 200 012 000—5 7 0 Washington, 010 000 100—2 8 2 Pizarro, Fisher (6) and Martin; Ortega, Bridges, Sparta, Sherry (7), Fox (11), W-Pizarro (1-1), L-Ortega (6-7). Home runs — Chicago, Catter (7).

Twins 5, Detroit 4

DETROIT — Jimmie Hall drove in his third run with a sacrifice fly in the 10th inning, giving the American League leading Minnesota Twins a 5-4 victory over Detroit Friday night in the first game of a doubleheader.

Singles by Sandy Valdespino and Frank Kostro plus a sacrifice by Tony Oliva preceded Hall's game-winning fly. Chicago, 010 002 001—5 7 0 Detroit, 000 103 000—4 8 1 Grant, Worthing (6), Fosnow (6), Plets (7), Stigman (9) and Bately, Zimmerman (9), Sparta, Sherry (7), Fox (11), Nischwitz (10) and Freehan, W-Stigman (1-0), L-Fox (3-2).

Pirates 5, Giants 3

PITTSBURGH — Jim Pagarioni slammed a two-run homer and reliever Frank Carpin turned in a two-hit relief performance for four innings as the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated San Francisco 5-3 Friday night for their seventh straight victory and 19th in 21 games.

San Francisco, 003 000 000—3 9 1 Pittsburgh, 320 000 000—5 8 1 Hands, Bohn (1), Murakami (3), Herbel (6), Safford (8) and Haller, Hlatt (6), Carwell, Schwab (6) and Pagliari (6). W-Carwell (4-2), L-Hands (0-2). Home runs — San Francisco, Mays (19), Pittsburgh, Pagliaroni (6).

Dodgers 2, Mets 1

NEW YORK — Don Drysdale, winningest pitcher in the majors, gained his 11th victory Friday night, pitching a four-hitter and hitting an eighth-inning home run off Warren Spahn that gave the Los Angeles Dodgers a 2-1 triumph over the New York Mets.

The Dodgers handed the Mets their seventh straight defeat before 55,023 — largest crowd in the majors this season. Drysdale, who has nine of his last 10 decisions, broke a 1-1 deadlock with two out in the eighth. He drove a 3-2 pitch over the center field fence for his third homer of the season and the 23rd of his career.

The hit was only the fourth off Spahn, who suffered his seventh defeat against four victories. Los Angeles, 000 010 010—2 5 0 New York, 000 010 000—1 4 0 Drysdale and Roseboro; Spahn and Gander, W-Drysdale (11-3), L-Spahn (4-7). Home runs — Los Angeles, Roseboro (3), Drysdale (3).

Orioles 5, Boston 4

BOSTON — Stu Miller rescued bullpen mate Harvey Haddix, and batterymate John Orsino hit a deciding two-run homer for Baltimore in a 5-4 victory over Boston Friday night.

Miller got the call after Felix Mantilla's single and a walk ended a spectacular relief job by Haddix, who had allowed one hit in 4 1/2 innings.

Miller slammed the door by striking out Tony Conigliaro and finished by running his strike to only one run in his last 3 1/2 innings of relief. Catcher Orsino put the Orioles in front to stay 5-4 by lining a two-run homer, his seventh, off a light tower high above the left field screen in the fourth inning. Baltimore, 002 200 000—5 10 2 Boston, 103 000 000—4 7 2 Roberts, Haddix (4), Miller (8) and Orsino; Bennett, Lamabe (4), Ritchie (6) and Ryan, W-Haddix (6-4), L-Bennett (1-1). Home runs — Baltimore, Orsino (7), Boston, Mantilla (9), Thomas (12).

Women's PE Hosts 2-Week Workshop On Girls' Sports

Fifty-seven women from 13 states are attending the two-week Workshop on Sports for Girls and Women which opened Tuesday at The University of Iowa under sponsorship of the U of I Department of Physical Education for Women.

The workshop provides an opportunity for teachers of students at all age levels to gain new sports skills and information for teaching sports ranging from archery to volleyball.

Mildred Barnes, an assistant professor of physical education for women at the U of I, is director of the workshop. The workshop staff includes Professor M. Gladys Scott, chairman of the Department of Physical Education for Women, and Barbara Jensen and Pauline Loeffler, instructors in the department.

NCAA Offers Olive Branch But Athletic Union Spurns It

By TED SMITS Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK — The National Collegiate Athletic Association extended a tentative olive branch Friday to the Amateur Athletic Union in their wrangle over control of amateur sports in America, but the AAU spurned it.

At the heart of the current hassle is whether the United States will send the best possible track team to Moscow to compete against Russia or whether it will lose the services of such collegiate stars as Randy Matson, world's greatest shot putter; Jerry Lindgren, the sensational young distance runner; Bob Day, Larry Questad, Jerry Cerulla, Jon Reimer, and others.

The American team will be made up of the first two finishers in each event at the AAU championships in San Diego June 26-27. The collegians can't compete unless the NCAA and its United States Track and Field Federation sanctions the meet. Sanction means giving it formal approval.

THE NCAA president, Everett D. Barnes of Colgate, made the peace offer in an open letter to news media: "Members of the NCAA are perfectly free to enter their student athletes in any track meet, including those conducted by the AAU. The only requirement is that the AAU grant permission for NCAA certification and USTFF sanction of such meet. In like fashion, the NCAA and other USTFF members are perfectly willing to welcome AAU sanction of their meets in which AAU members compete."

Barnes thus invited cooperative sanctioning wherein "each organization respects the rights of the other to approve the conditions of its own members' participation."

But the AAU was not interested. In Chicago, where he will attend an Olympic Committee meeting, Cliff Buck of Denver, AAU president, declared "it is more accurate to say that the NCAA by its convention action in January is keeping undergraduates out of the AAU meet."

The convention action barred competition in meets unless sanctioned by the USTFF. Said Col. Don Hull, executive director of the AAU: "It is a basic principle that there can only be one governing body. The NCAA proposal is contrary to an existing rule which does not permit dual sanctioning."

"Within a few days after Mazerowski got back into the line-up the club started to move. Clemente was sidelined for the early part of the season with malaria. He was weak. He's got his strength back now and his bat is singing."

There's been a combination of other things — like Bob Veale, Vernon Law, Willie Stargell, Billy Virdon and Gene Alley to mention a few other names, Brown pointed out.

"We got only five runs for Law in the first five games and he lost every one. He's won the last four and I don't detect anything different in his pitching. Veale has been tremendous all year. He's completed his last five games."

"Stargell was struggling with a .187 average the day the Pirates lost their eighth straight game on May 20. Now he's hitting .287 with 13 home runs, second only to Willie Mays. In the last 20 games he's hit for something like .394."

"The entire club has jelled. Billy Virdon is hitting well. So is Don Clendenon. Our pitching has been excellent. We were 13 games out of first place in May. Right now we're in fifth place only 5 1/2 games off the pace."

"Most important don't forget the field management. Harry Walker and his coaching staff have done a tremendous job. Sure, they were unhappy with the losing streak but they never got discouraged."

Drake loses star back to grades

DES MOINES — Drake football coach Jack Wallace said Friday the Bulldogs will be without halfback C. T. Traylor next fall because of scholastic reasons.

The coach said Traylor, a two-year headliner for Drake, has not made satisfactory progress toward graduation, by Missouri Valley Conference rules.

Traylor, of Greenville, Tex., carried 242 times for 1,094 yards and scored 19 touchdowns as Drake's leading ground gainer in the last two years.

Aaron Takes 2-Stroke Lead At Cleveland

CLEVELAND — Tommy Aaron, 28-year-old Georgia pro, took the half-way lead in the $125,000 Cleveland Open Golf Tournament Friday by carding a four-under-par 67.

Aaron's 135 total for 36 holes was seven under par and two strokes better than defending champion Tony Lema and Gordon Jones, a former Ohioan who plays out of Orlando, Fla.

Jones turned in the day's best round, a 66, to go with his even par 71 Thursday. He birdied five holes on Highland Park's 6,821-yard front nine for a 31.

U.S. Open titlist Ken Venturi failed to make the cutoff when he finished with a 76-74-150.

Lema dropped in a 12-foot putt on the final hole for a 70. He shot a 67 Thursday to share the lead with Billy Casper.

But Casper had alarm clock trouble Friday, arrived at the course only 10 minutes before tee time, had no time to warm up and soared to a 73 for a 140 total.

At least a dozen others were bracketed at 141, including Arnold Palmer, who scored a one-under 70.

A score of 146 or better was needed to make the cutoff for the final 36 holes.

Iowans, First Day In France Is Fruitful

PARIS, France (AP) — The Iowa Trade Mission's first day and a half of activity here proved to be quite fruitful, according to several members of the delegation.

Members of the delegation headed by Gov. Harold Hughes, are making a three-week five nation tour of Europe in an effort to increase Iowa's exports.

Paris was the first stop on the tour, and at a reception here Thursday night several sales of Iowa products were completed and the way was cleared for further discussion of future sales.

ABOUT 100 French businessmen were guests of the Iowa delegation.

Arthur M. Vogel, president of the Vogel Popcorn Co., of Hamburg, Iowa, said Friday, "I came to Paris not expecting to do business, but to lay the ground work for future business. However, I made contacts with an importer at the reception and was able to conclude a sale."

"While this cannot be considered a major transaction, still it is an indication of what can be accomplished," said Vogel.

Vogel said France had the smallest potential as a popcorn market of the countries to be visited, and hoped to do more business in other countries.

CLAUDE W. AHRENS, president of the Miracle Equipment Co. of Grinnell, said he had several meetings with French government officials and the way appeared to be cleared for Miracle Equipment to add up to $1 million in additional sales.

Walter Ronk, president of the Barnard & Leas Manufacturing Co. of Cedar Rapids, reported he had a sales discussion with the chairman of the board of France's second largest fertilizer company. He said the discussions will undoubtedly open up new markets for the Cedar Rapids plant.

Robert H. Isensee, Mason City banker and treasurer of Blue Ribbon Beef Pack, Inc., said he made contacts which he expected will produce a new market for the packing company. He also said he had a profitable discussion with members of the French banking industry.

MANY other Iowans said they were encouraged by the interest the French showed in their businesses.

Members of the tour interested in agriculture made a tour of several farms in the Paris area Friday.

The Iowans also got a chance to meet other Iowans with whom they had had business deals, but never met.

Lewis Grundon, President of Little Giant Crane & Shovel, Inc., of Des Moines, said "We've been selling to Merlin Anderson's company for a number of years — but this is the first chance I've had to meet him." Anderson is president of General Filter Co., Ames.

MORE business meetings were scheduled for Saturday morning, but there will be some free time in the afternoon for the members to get in a little sightseeing.

The delegation departs for Hamburg, Germany, Sunday morning. Other countries on the itinerary are Italy, The Netherlands and Great Britain.

The Trade Mission will return to Iowa June 29.

Flood Racks Texas Town; Fourteen Die

SANDERSON, Tex. (AP) — A cloudburst sent a 15-foot wall of water surging through this far West Texas town Friday, drowning more than a dozen residents and leaving 450 homeless.

State police who struggled into the community hours after the cloudburst struck confirmed at least 14 deaths. One person is missing and there were some injuries. Officers said 50 to 75 houses were destroyed in the flood that was caused by up to 9 inches of rain.

THE OFFICERS said 250 to 400 persons were to be evacuated as soon as possible to Fort Stockton, 4 miles northwest.

Communication came largely by limited radio facilities. At one time, no one could approach closer than 12 miles because of floodwaters and washed-out bridges.

BRIDGE destruction stalled two trains carrying a total of 500 persons.

State police said both trains were on high ground and the passengers safe.

The patrolmen entered by way of U.S. 285, the route to Odessa, which itself was impassable for hours.

The Midland state police officer said water remained high and dangerous, and that all bridges on highways into the town were out.

HELICOPTERS flew doctors, groceries, drinking water and medicine into the stricken community.

Sheriff Carl Williams of Alpine said, "Ten miles this side of Sanderson, 12 miles of highway have been washed away."

"There are five railroad bridges washed out from Longfellow to Sanderson — a distance of about 10 miles."

Sanderson is a railroad center of 2,350 persons about halfway between El Paso and San Antonio, 170 miles south of Odessa and about 20 miles from the Mexican frontier.

It is in a thinly settled section subject to occasional cloudbursts and flash flooding that has taken untold numbers of lives in times past.

Amistad Dam on the Rio Grande is being constructed to stop some of the flooding, particularly from 100-mile-long Devil's River which got its name because of its destructiveness.

Taylor Sees Hard Fighting Ahead in Viet Nam Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor said Friday "the time for battlefield resolution is now upon us" in South Vietnam and "I anticipate some hard fighting ahead for the next two months."

Winding up a week's strategy review in Washington, the diplomat generally made plain that he expects much more will have to be done even if the U.S.-aided Saigon government successfully repulses the current monsoon season Red offensive.

As of now he sees no need for a further big buildup in U.S. forces on the scene. However, "I am not prepared to predict what the future may require," he said.

TAYLOR REPORTED Friday to congressional committees and to the National Security Council on Vietnamese developments since he was last here about two months ago. Then he spoke to newsmen at the White House.

He announced he probably will leave Saturday, arriving at his Saigon embassy headquarters Tuesday.

Word of bloody fighting in which Communist guerrillas overran a South Vietnamese district capital, killing hundreds, added a somber note to the week-long review. President Johnson, the secretaries of state, defense and other high officers took part in the study to see how the military, political and economic efforts in Viet Nam could be improved.

WORD OF THE resignation of South Vietnamese Premier Phan Huy Quat apparently had not reached the National Security Council at the time of his session early Friday afternoon.

Taylor spoke of the political difficulties and their related effect on the war effort, but indicated he thought a solution of the current political problem was possible.

Taylor, the former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said he anticipates that the "hard fighting ahead" will result from the new Viet Cong guerrillas offensive mainly in the delta and highland areas of South Vietnam.

HE SAID THE Reds had devoted the past two months of comparative quiet to a buildup, and now are striking.

As for the U.S. and South Vietnamese air attacks started last February on Communist North Viet Nam, he said: "The bombing program has accomplished what it was intended to do. Bombing itself is never the final answer. It is a corollary."

Kosygin Says U.S. Must Quit Viet

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Alexei Kosygin said Friday the removal of U.S. troops from Viet Nam was a necessary condition before there could be any peaceful solution. He said negotiations were up to the Vietnamese themselves.

The United States, Kosygin said, violated the 1954 Geneva Accord on Indochina in which the states of South and Communist North Viet Nam were created.

The United States did not sign the agreement. Russia and Great Britain were co-chairmen of the conference.

Kosygin spoke with Swedish correspondents at a reception honoring visiting Swedish Premier Tage Erlander.

Writer Sees Trouble Seething in Guatemala

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A situation like the Dominican Republic crisis can develop in Guatemala at any time. If it does, it can be much worse than what happened on the Caribbean island.

A Guatemalan version of the Dominican Republic's Francisco Cammaano Dengo, who touched off the revolution and crisis in Santo Domingo, may even now be waiting in the wings for Guatemala's military government, with its confusions and divisions, to open the door to a power struggle.

Outwardly, Guatemala seems calm. But the terrorism that long has been taken in stride now seems to be getting on the capital's nerves.

A few nights ago, the corner of a sitting room where I was chatting with a columnist of the newspaper Prensa Libre was shattered by one of seven bombs that exploded in quick succession throughout the city. We had left our seats only minutes before the blast.

The meaning was clear. The terrorists wanted to link the Dominican crisis with a burgeoning domestic one churned up by the military government's foot-dragging on the issue of a return to constitutional government. It obviously was meant to force the government to continue its state of siege, a modified martial law, and thus add to political aggravations.

Senate Clips $200 Million Off Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration forces were jolted by a $200-million cut in President Johnson's foreign aid bill Friday after beating back what one Senate leader called a "meat ax" whack at the $3.4-billion measure.

The drive for a top-to-bottom cut in the bill was led by Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.), who called the foreign aid program "a stinking mess."

Whatever slim hopes Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana had of passing the measure Friday night went aglimmering when Morse announced he plans to call up a series of amendments Monday proposing country-by-country cuts.

Morse said the program is laced with "waste and mismanagement."

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Republican leader, predicted the Senate will reach a final vote on the authorization measure Tuesday. It must be followed later by an appropriation bill providing whatever funds are authorized.

Morse tried first to cut the whole program from $3,443,170,000 to an even $3 billion for each of the next two years, starting July 1.

Administration backers stemmed this attack but were unable to halt Morse's next drive. His amendment to trim the measure by $200 million a year carried 40-35. It was the administration's first major setback.

Morse's amendment was aimed at the program as a whole, leaving it up to President Johnson's foreign aid directors to decide where to distribute the $200-million reduction if it prevails.
