Authorities worked through Thursday in a vain attempt to recover the body of John W. Neuzil, 20, who drowned in the Iowa River below the University power plant Wednesday afternoon. They searched the river until darkness Thursday.

Drowned Man Missing Yet; Search Still On

The second day's search of the Iowa River failed to find the body of John W. Neuzil, 20, Iowa City, who presumably drowned Wednesday.

Drugging operations were carried on for more than a mile downstream from the site of the drowning. Thursday afternoon scuba divers combed the area nearest the dam.

Search operations continued late Thursday evening, and lights were set up as they had been Wednesday evening. Sheriff Maynard Schneider said Thursday that the operation would be carried on as late as volunteer help would permit.

To help the search, officials at the Coralville Dam, which normally releases 600 cubic feet of water per second, held the flow back to 200 cubic feet per second. Pressure behind the dam, however, forced officials to re-open the dam to 1000 cubic feet per second.

"If we can't find him when the water is down, I don't see how we'll find him when the river is up again," Sheriff Schneider commented at the scene Thursday.

Max Ingalls, 219 E. Benton, claims to have built the dam. His contribution is that there is a large indentation at the base of the dam and that Neuzil's body may be being held there by the turbulence of the water.

Summer Play Tickets Ready

Tickets for the Summer Repertory Theatre will be available at the Union East Lobby Desk beginning at 9 a.m. today.

Tickets for the plays, which will be given on alternating nights from July 2 through 24, are $1.50 each for non-students and free to summer session students presenting their identification cards.

The plays are "The Misanthrope" by Moliere, "The Shoemaker's Prodigious Wife" by Federico Garcia Lorca, "Under Milkwood" by Dylan Thomas, and "The Rehearsal" by Jean Anouilh.

The repertory company consists primarily of undergraduate and graduate students.

All State Musicians To Perform Sunday

After one week of rehearsals, about 370 junior high and high school musicians in the 1965 All State Music Camp will appear in a concert Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Union Main Lounge.

The program, a feature of the annual Fine Arts Festival at the University, will include two band sections, an orchestra and a chorus.

THE BLACK BAND will open the program under the direction of Barbara Rankin, conductor of the Parma, Ohio, Senior High School Band. It will play "Fanfare and Rondo" by Fritz Velke, the overture to "Prometheus" by Beethoven-Barnes, selections from "Oliver" by Lionel Bart, Norman Leyden and "Days of Glory" by John Cacavas.

The Gold Band will play "Enigma Variations" by Edward Elgar-Earl Slocum, "Capitol Hill Concert March" by Charles Carter, "Fairest of the Fair" by John Philip Sousa, selections from "Mademoiselle Angot" by Charles Lecocq-Richard Mohaupt and "Adagio and Allegro" by Vaclav Nelhybel, who was the guest conductor of the University Symphony Band for a group of his own compositions in a May concert.

Selections for the chorus are "Exultate Deo" by Scarlatti, The Crucifixion Scene from "The Passion According to St. Matthew" by Schutz, "Lullay My Liking" by Holst, and a group of folk songs by Brahms. The chorus will be directed by Robert Holliday, conductor of the Hamline University A Cappella Choir, St. Paul, Minn.

THE ALL STATE Music Camp Orchestra, under the direction of Evan Whallon, conductor of the Columbus, Ohio, Symphony Orchestra, will present "Hymn and Fuguing Tune No. 3" by Henry Cowell, "The Walk to Paradise Garden" by Frederick Delius and the introduction to Act III and the Mastersingers Procession from Richard Wagner's "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg."

James Nielson, educational director for the LeBlanc Corporation, Kenosha, Wis., will conduct the Gold Band in the closing group of the concert.

THERE ARE approximately 200 students in the Black Band for students in grades 8-10, with 90 more in the Gold Band for students in grades 11 and 12 plus those in grade 10 who qualified for Gold Band by audition.

The chorus has about 100 members and the orchestra 80.

Although most of the music camp members are from Iowa, nine other states are represented. Students have come to the camp from Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio, and Wisconsin.

Cities Reach Sewage Pact

An agreement to try to solve the flow of raw sewage into the Iowa River near the University Art Building was reached Thursday in a meeting between Iowa City and Coralville city officials.

Coralville has asked Iowa City to inspect a section of sewer on the east end of Elm Street for possible blockage.

IOWA CITY ENGINEER Barry Lundberg said that Iowa City would inspect the sewer and clean the blockage if one were found.

However, Lundberg said, the inspection may not help because there may not be a blockage and, if there is one, elimination of it still may not relieve the overflow.

At the present time, the Elm Street sanitary sewer is overflowing into the storm sewer which runs into the river. The overflow is caused by additional Coralville connections on its sewer pipes.

Lundberg said the city engineers were also studying other possibilities to relieve the overflow.

THE IOWA CITY Council has asked Coralville for a report by July on its future sewer plans. Coralville is considering building its own sewer treatment plant.

But the new lift station and southwest interceptor sewer being built by Iowa City will be able to handle Coralville's sewage, if Coralville decides not to build its own plant.

Attending the meeting Thursday morning from Coralville were City Engineer Dennis Sauegling, City Attorney Don Deals, and Mayor Clarence Wilson. Representing Iowa City were City Engineer Barry Lundberg, Public Works Director Larry Madden, City Attorney Jay Honohan, and City Manager Carsten Leikvold.

BOTH THE SOUTHWEST interceptor sewer and the lift station will be able to adequately handle University, Iowa City, and Coralville expansion.

Iowa City is also enlarging the city's sewage treatment plant which is presently being used by both Iowa City and Coralville.

LBJ Pleased At Viet Peace Mission Visit

Wilson To Head Group; Speculate on Reception By Communist Nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said Thursday "we are delighted" at the prospective Washington visit of a top-level British Commonwealth mission seeking a peaceful solution to the Viet Nam war.

The President spoke to reporters in his White House office shortly after word arrived of the decision of Commonwealth leaders to have a mission visit all nations involved in the Viet Nam conflict.

BRITISH PRIME MINISTER Harold Wilson will head a five-nation group.

Whether the Commonwealth group will be admitted to Red China and Communist North Viet Nam is not known, but the President made it clear the mission would receive a full welcome in the United States.

Johnson noted that when he took office he had stated he would go anywhere if that would serve the cause of peace.

Generally the President seemed pleased with what he regarded as strong over-all support in Congress and in the United States for his Viet Nam actions.

A SUGGESTION that the United States again halt air attacks on Communist North Viet Nam as a new bid for peace came from Indian Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.) chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said earlier this week that the May 13-17 U.S. suspension of bombings had been too short to produce a Hanoi or Peking peace feeler.

U.S. officials disputed this Thursday and said the United States will continue bombings. Instead, the U.S. officials — who declined to be identified by name — anticipated some sharp fighting as the Communist guerrillas mount their monsoon season offensive.

Not until after the Viet Cong insurgents have played out their summer military drive will Hanoi be interested in possible peace talks is the opinion of U.S. strategists.

IN OTHER developments President Johnson announced the Cabinet will meet Friday to discuss "hopes for peace we are evaluating and considering."

The President, holding an 80-minute news conference in his office, said he welcomes any effort to promote peace and remains ready to go anywhere and see anybody at any time in that cause.

The President was asked whether he had been considering a possible request to Congress for a new and stronger mandate in support of his policies in Viet Nam.

Johnson said he thought the resolution passed by Congress in August authorized him to take "all necessary measures" there.

No Longer Practice

A U.S. Air Force B52 intercontinental bomber, the type used in a bombing raid Thursday in South Viet Nam, is shown in a 1964 test exercise in Florida. A fleet of 29 B52s dropped high explosive bombs on a Communist concentration in Binh Duong Province in central South Viet Nam, the Defense Department announced. This was the first time the heavy jet B52s were used in Viet Nam. They came from the Guam air base. Two of the planes apparently collided in mid-air Thursday and were lost.

Barry Announces Rightist Crusade

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barry Goldwater launched a crusade for conservatism Thursday at the head of his own organization, an outfit he called more academic than political.

But the defeated Republican presidential nominee said the research and writings of the newborn Free Society Association should convince conservatives that their place is with the GOP.

"The home they will have will be the Republican party," said Goldwater, who announced he will serve as honorary chairman. "We are not a third party. I will not be a part of a third party, now or ever."

"It's more of an academic group than anything else," Goldwater said. "We will not back candidates, raise money for candidates or participate in campaigns."

Instead, he said, the society will seek to educate Americans about conservatism, through research, publications and eventually television and radio broadcasts.

"This is not a political group and our purpose is not political," said the former Arizona senator —

1st Use of Giant Craft; 2 Collide

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A fleet of eight-engine B52s from the U.S. Strategic Air Command Friday raided a jungle hideout where the Viet Cong was reported massing for a sneak attack. It was the first time these massive planes have been used in Viet Nam.

The strike came a day after missiles fired by two U.S. Navy F4 Phantom jets knocked two Red MIGs out of the skies over North Viet Nam.

Using non-nuclear high explosives, the B52s, which roared in from Guam, hit a target 25 miles north of Saigon near Ben Cat.

TWO OF the 29 bombers en route from Guam apparently collided in the air. One B52 was known lost off Luzon in the Philippines. A second was presumed lost.

A spokesman here said the B52s, which bomb from a relatively high altitude and do not dive on their targets, were used because of their greater effectiveness rather than for lack of other planes. The spokesman said an uninhabited area of jungle was involved. He said the attack was in full daylight and that sophisticated electronic systems had assured pinpoint accuracy.

In Washington, the Pentagon said 1,000-pound and 750-pound bombs were dropped.

"B52 AIRCRAFT were used because of their greater effectiveness rather than tactical aircraft heretofore used for this purpose," the Defense Department said.

Asked if the Strategic Air Command B52s would be used again in the future, Assistant Secretary of Defense Arthur Sylvester said "I wouldn't make any speculation."

Talking of the air fight over the North, in which two Navy F4 Phantom jets shot down two MIG-17s with missiles, a U.S. spokesman called it a sequel to the MIGs' destruction of two U.S. Air Force F105 fighter-bombers waylaid during a 60-plane raid at Thanh Hoa April 4.

The Communist planes were shot down Thursday 50 miles south of Hanoi.

The four crewmen of the Phantoms, showered with congratulations, became overnight guests of Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam, at his Saigon villa.

"THEY DID a remarkable job," Westmoreland said.

The mood of the Navy fliers was reflected by the comment of one of the pilots, Lt. (j.g.) E. D. Baton Jr., Buffalo, N.Y.: "Cmdr. Louis C. Page, San Diego, Calif., the other pilot, implied there might be a celebration."

"We've been at sea quite a while and I have yet to get my first beer," he told newsmen.

Accompanying the pilots to Saigon were their radar intercept officers, Lt. John C. Smith Jr., Bellevue, Ill., and Lt. Cmdr. Robert B. Doremus, Montclair, N.J., All were from the carrier Midway.

A Saigon military spokesman and Page, as senior officer of the Phantom crewmen, gave these details of the encounter: THE SUPERSONIC Navy fighters, with heat-seeking Sidewinder missiles and radar-guided Sparrow missiles among their armament, were flying escort at 10,000 to 20,000 feet for other U.S. warplanes bombing targets north of Thanh Hoa when they sighted four MIGs in loose trail formation.

The Russian-built, Korean-vintage jets — each armed with one 37 mm cannon and two 23 mm cannon — bore the yellow and red insignia of North Viet Nam on their silver hulls.

The MIGs turned as if they were going to attack, but the formation apparently was hit before it had a chance to fire.

The Phantoms' missiles knocked down the second and third planes in the formation and the others fled. A parachute was seen opening above one of the falling, flaming MIGs. There was no word on whether the other Communist pilot tried to bail out.

THURSDAY was a day of fairly heavy air strikes, with more than 70 American and South Vietnamese planes striking at a variety of targets.

The MIGs apparently hoped to intercept a force of Navy fighter-bombers attacking a bridge near Thanh Hoa and the Yen Phu barracks. A U.S. spokesman said five buildings were destroyed in the barracks area, which has been attacked repeatedly in the past week.

The hammering continued throughout the day. Four U.S. Air Force F105s capped the daylight operations by pummeling bridges and traffic along the Communists' Route 15.

A spokesman said all the raiders returned safely.

In the war within South Viet Nam, a U.S. spokesman said American aircraft and Vietnamese ground forces killed 80 Viet Cong guerrillas in three operations Wednesday.

Paratrooper Is Killed In Dominica

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — One U.S. paratrooper was killed and seven other soldiers, including four Brazilians, were wounded Wednesday night during nine hours of sporadic skirmishing along the international security zone.

Four U.S. paratroopers have now been killed in renewed fighting since Tuesday, and 36 Americans have been wounded. Five Brazilian soldiers, one a lieutenant, have been wounded. They are the only casualties among the Latin-American units in the inter-American force.

THE UNITED STATES said Dominican rebels fired tear gas at soldiers of the inter-American peace force during the fighting this week.

Lt. Gen. Bruce Palmer Jr., deputy commander of the inter-American force, accused the rebels of using tear gas on Tuesday and Wednesday. He said there were no casualties as a result of the attacks.

Palmer's statement, distributed by the Organization of American States information office said that 15 to 20 tear gas grenades were fired and thrown from rebel territory Tuesday at two companies of the 82nd Airborne Division. The paratroopers put on protective masks.

THERE WAS no immediate comment from the rebels on the accusation by Palmer.

A spokesman for the inter-American force said Wednesday night's heavy fighting began when the rebels opened fire at 3:30 p.m. on a group of Americans from the 82nd Airborne Division. One paratrooper was killed in the initial burst of fire.

— Rust Students Find City Friendly —

Attitudes, Hosts Win Praise

Four Rust College students stressed in interviews Thursday the friendliness they have noticed at the University since their arrival Sunday morning.

"We've been welcomed by everyone. When we go downtown people say 'hello' as if we were their very close friends. It's the same at Dr. Schrader's home where I'm living for the summer. I'm treated as one of the family," said John Johnson.

Johnson contrasted the general attitudes expressed toward him in Iowa City with the attitudes familiar to him in Mississippi, especially in the restaurants, stores and on the Rust campus.

"In the South they give us that stare. They tend to keep the Confederacy as much alive as they possibly can," Johnson said.

The 18 students, all undergraduates at Rust College in Holly

Springs, Miss., have begun a six-week course of intensive instruction in mathematics, reading, speech and composition.

With three classes confronting her every weekday morning Lu-gene Bailey said she is "very, very busy with these courses."

The Rust students have found time for leisure outside the classrooms, however.

"I've especially enjoyed meeting other students here. Seeing the parks, campus sites and different areas of Iowa City has been interesting," said Mattie Anthony.

Mary Norris, like the other Mississippi students, stressed the good will shown them by their "families" for the summer.

To add the only negative comments, Mattie Anthony laughingly complained of the discomfort involved in the bus ride from Mis-issippi to St. Louis. There the group transferred to a more comfortable bus.

"Every time I woke up I had a new pain," Miss Anthony said.

The Rust students said they first noticed that the Northern treatment of Negroes is different when they ate at the Burlington bus terminal after traveling all night without any food.

"The clerk was looking out for us and answered our questions. Those serving us food were cordial, also. Believe me, it's appreciated," said Johnson.

"Maybe the South will be like Iowa City in the year 2005," Mattie Anthony said with a smile.

More seriously, John Johnson said, "No, just give us ten or fifteen years. Race relations are slowly but steadily changing for the better."

Union of reason

IOWA LAW OFFICERS have gotten the word on Iowa minors — dry. They've also got a new package of laws to aid in enforcing this concept. Police formerly had to actually catch a youth sipping a bit of alcohol to throw him in the jug; now they can almost can him for having booze on his breath or a beer stain on his pants.

As we have said before in these columns, Iowa laws should be changed to allow 18-year-olds to drink beer.

If the state would take a little "forbidden fruit" fun out of guzzling, young adults might be able to adjust to the drinking society of full adulthood with a bit more ease than at present.

No matter how the law may read, the accepted norm for most people between 18 and 21 is: it's okay to drink a little now and then, but don't get caught. Underage drinking certainly is not given a real moral stigma in most circles.

Although the state's drive to enforce the present drinking laws is laudable — all laws on the books should be enforced — it will be difficult to pull off. It's very much like past efforts at enforcing Iowa's old no-liquor-by-the-drink-outlet-club-are-okay laws.

It is time the people of Iowa took a hard look at liquor laws as they apply to minors — the same way Iowans took a look at the liquor laws for adults a few years ago.

The University can and should take a positive position in this new look at an old problem. It has been proposed that some of the space made available when the new part of the Union opens be used as a sort of beer cellar — for students over 21.

It might even be possible that some day, the Legislature willing, 18-year-old college students could drink a beer or so in the Union — but no place else in town. This sort of arrangement would assure control over legalized underage drinking and would relieve pressures brought by illegal drinking.

In the interests of promoting discussion of this idea, we have reprinted an Iowan article of May 20 on today's editorial page. It deals with an Australian university and its experiences with students and liquor.

Read it and think. Why shouldn't Iowans approach the drinking question with a rational, reasonable attitude?

20th century lottery

THE LADIES WERE dressed up, in high heels and fancy dresses; many gentlemen wore suits — although some had levis, bermudas and cut-offs.

The teen-agers had clean shirts and pressed blouses, but some had sweatshirts and t-shirts.

The little children swarmed all around — wearing every conceivable sort of outfit.

A few dogs played in the grass.

Over 200 people had turned out for the occasion. Better than an average Sunday in church.

But what was all the fuss about? Couples held hands; kids chased each other; everyone chuckled and enjoyed themselves.

A party? A carnival? A picnic at the river?

No, a young man had drowned, and the police were working. There were photographers, divers, deputies, ambulances, reporters and — the crowd.

BARRY GOLDWATER tells Young Republicans the United States ought to throw another blockade around Cuba. It's all part of his campaign strategy: Cuba, Viet Nam, Santo Domingo — if he can get enough Americans out of the country long enough, maybe the GOP can win the next election by default.

'Major Barbara' is film triumph

By NICK MEYER
Iowan Reviewer

By all means, stop whatever you are doing, put down your studies, set aside your meal, leave the fields (and TV) and go at once to see "Major Barbara."

See it for several reasons, all of them excellent and conclusive. First, it is the only screenplay written by George Bernard Shaw. (He based it on his play of the same name, but has made a very happy and sensible adaptation of it.)

SECOND, IT is acted by the largest array of well-handled talent to be seen on the screen in Iowa City in some time. Wendy Hiller is an admirable Barbara, beautiful and inspired; Rex Harrison is witty and delightful as Adolphus, her devoted lover — and professor of Greek. Robert Morley (in a great deal of make-up) does a wonderful job as Barbara's capitalistic father, antithesis of her Salvation Army life — molder of cannons, to boot.

Robert Newton, one of the greatest actors film has ever had the fortune to attract to its medium, (he is most famous for Long John Silver in "Treasure Island") is on hand as the brutal, cynical Bill Walker; and Deborah Kerr, so young you'll hardly recognize her, plays Jenny Hill, young Salvation Army lass.

STANLEY HOLLOWAY appears in just one brief scene as "Bobby" and Emyln Williams (also looking fantastically young) plays a reformed derelict.

The cast is directed with deftness and sensitivity by Gabriel Pascal, and the film as a whole manages to strike just the right note between the talkiness of a Shavian play, and semi-talkiness of a Shavian film.

Shaw has proved difficult to film successfully. The most frequent attempts are made by Anthony Asquith ("Doctor's Dilemma," "The Millionaire") and they have all failed. Some years ago "The Devil's Disciple" was filmed with Kirk Douglas, Burt Lancaster and Laurence Olivier, and met with fair success.

"Caesar and Cleopatra," with Claude Rains sticks out in my mind as having worked as cinema, but "Major Barbara," possibly because it was Shaw who adapted, is easily the best Shaw film to come from a Shaw play, and pretty good Shaw it is, too.

I'D LIKE to note in this column the arrival of the first of the Union Board movies for the summer. Several very fine films will be shown there this summer. They led off Thursday, with "Cyrano de Bergerac," for which the star, Jose Ferrer, won the Academy Award.

Other notable works as "The Overcoat," "The Lavender Hill Mob" (the Alec Guinness classic), "Blood of the Poet" (Jean Cocteau), "The White Sheik" (Federico Fellini), and the French version of "Crime and Punishment" (soundtrack by Arthur Honegger) will be shown.

Inquire at the Union for schedule and details.

Aussies propose limited drinking for minors

(This article is reprinted from the May 20 issue of The Daily Iowan. See related editorial on this page.)

Enforcing the law requiring a person to be 21 years old before drinking liquor isn't the only solution to the campus drinking problem.

According to The Australian, an Australian newspaper, the University Council of the Australian National University, Canberra, has proposed that a bar be set up to serve liquor to 18-year-old students. The minimum drinking age in Australia is 21.

The bar is installed in the University's union, but it is empty. If the 18 limit is approved, the bar will serve liquor at lunch and from 5 to 7 p.m.

Spokesmen say they believe that students under 21 will drink regardless of the law, so facilities should be provided where they can "learn the art." Both the students and the university faculty support the idea, The Australian said.

It may be some time before the bar is opened, however, because a university statute must be enacted and sent to the Minister of the Interior for approval. The university union would then issue identification cards to union members. The age requirement for drinking, 18, would be strictly enforced.

Three colleges in Australia now allow students to have light wines at meals. Whether colleges in Australia will be allowed to provide students with liquor will be up to the national government.

France, Romania — similar paths?

(From the Christian Science Monitor)

If Washington and Moscow looked at each other today and sighed — they might be sighing for the same reason. Each is having the same kind of trouble — a worrisome ally. In fact, so similar are the problems which the United States is having with France, and the Soviet Union with Romania that Washington's and Moscow's sighs might almost be interchangeable.

Both France and Romania — each in its own way and with due regard for differing circumstances — are pulling away from its big ally. President de Gaulle is more and more outspoken in his disapproval of many aspects of American foreign policy, of a American presence in Western Europe and of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's primary dependence upon American nuclear might. Romania is equally outspoken (for a Communist country) in its disagreement with many Russian policies.

The Overalls In The Manhattan Chowder

Racing sells cars; manufacturers compete

(From The Nation)

Auto racing is big and it is going to grow bigger because Detroit has discovered that participation in automobile racing, or for that matter even a peripheral association with it, sells cars. The youth of the nation is interested, and youth today is the buying public not only of the future but of the next week.

By 1967, more than 50 per cent of the American population will be younger than 25. A high-performance image is the best way to sell these customers. The degree of industry involvement varies. Ford is the leader and proud of it, having for the past two years supported a program which has placed its cars in almost every phase of the sport. General Motors claims it does not race — and in May of last year its board chairman, Frederic G. Donner, personally assured the press that GM doesn't race.

The Chrysler corporation invests heavily in certain areas — though not nearly as lavishly as Ford — while American Motors, despite having been forced to put the shift lever back on the floor, so to speak, still abounds. Of the accessory manufacturers, Goodyear and Firestone are the most active and are waging a savage battle for domination of the race-track field, domestically and internationally.

Detroit, Akron and the rest compete in five basic forms of the sport: oval track racing with single seaters (Indianapolis is included here), oval track stock car racing, road racing with stock and sports cars, drag racing and rallies.

Latest-model stock car racing, a comparatively recent phenomenon (the first race of this type took place in the late 1940's), is biggest in the Southeast and is perhaps loved best by the manufacturers because the vehicles involved at least look like something the spectators can buy.

NOT THAT MANY could afford them. As one of the South's better known builders of this sort of machinery puts it: "You take the stock water pump and jack it up, then you start adding on your own pieces."

The entire car is dismantled, the interior gutted, everything is reinforced and refined, such items as standard production hubs, brakes, shock absorbers being replaced with special heavy-duty equivalents. The engine is thoroughly gone over and its horsepower output boosted to about 350.

An immensely strong roll cage is installed around the driver's seat to enable him to survive crashes. By the time the standard production car comes out of one of the more reputable shops, such as Holman & Moody of Charlotte, N.C. (they set up the factory-backed Fords), the list price is $10,000.

A car such as this is capable of running at a top speed of 185 miles an hour and will lap the Daytona Beach 2.5-mile high-banked circuit at an average of 170. The factory sponsored vehicles will use one or more engines for practice at a big race, then use another for the event itself. That's when it starts to get expensive.

RACING TIRES, although supplied at cost or less by Goodyear and Firestone, cost $50 apiece and the Daytona "500" can involve five tire changes. In 1964 it was reliably reported that the stock car races were costing Ford $10,000 per car per race.

The biggest organization sanctioning and promoting stock car races is NASCAR, which stands for National Association for Stock-Car Auto Racing. NASCAR sanctions about 1,000 races per year, 60-odd of which count toward the Grand National Championship. That's what attracts the manufacturers.

At various times the NASCAR picture has been dominated by one company or another. In 1961-62, Pontiac made good use of the NASCAR circuit as part of its drive to change the Pontiac image from that of an old ladies' car to being the hottest thing on the market. In 1963, Ford was pretty much the leader; last year Ford and Mercury fought it out with Chrysler's Plymouth and Dodge.

In 1965, the rules were changed so that the engine which Chrysler had been using was declared ineligible as being a "nonproduction" item. Chrysler withdrew its NASCAR support for this year and is instead concentrating on the somewhat smaller USAC stock car circuit.

The newest model Chevrolet, equipped with an engine rated the best horsepower producer ever to come out of Detroit, is expected to make its debut soon. The Chevrolet, with a little indirect factory support, figures to be as fast, if not faster, than the Fords. If it isn't, in all likelihood they will set the car up so that it will at least qualify among the fastest — thus grabbing valuable pre-race newspaper space — and won't worry too much about what happens during the event itself. There is more than one way to skin the cat.

(To be concluded Saturday.)

White House goes 'artsy-craftsy'

By ART BUCHWALD

Last Monday was Culture Day at the White House and it certainly was an impressive sight to see. There was sculpture on the lawn, paintings in the hall, singing in the East Room, dancing in the Rose Garden, and, except for McGeorge Bundy's daily briefing to the President, everyone had a wonderful time.

Nobody is quite sure how the White House Festival of the Arts came about, and now that it's over I can reveal the background.

One evening last winter President Johnson was reading a book. Suddenly he turned to Mrs. Johnson and said, "Say, this fellow Robert Lowell writes some mighty pretty poetry. We ought to have him over to the house for lunch."

Mrs. Johnson replied, "What a wonderful idea. Who should we invite with him?"

"How about that fellow Saul Bellow who wrote that best seller, 'Her', about my dog?"

"Herzog," Lyndon, and it wasn't about your dog."

"Well, it reminded me of my dog."

"Why don't we have John Hersey?" Mrs. Johnson said.

"Did he write 'For Whom the Bell Tolls'?"

"No, Lyndon, he wrote 'A Bell for Adano.'"

"Yeah, let's have him."

"We can't just have writers," Mrs. Johnson said. "Why don't we have some musicians?"

"Lady Bird, are you escalating on me again?"

"No, I'm not. But it would be sort of fun if we asked people from the other arts."

"You make up the list, Lady Bird, and I'll think of a nice toast after lunch."

A month later the President said, "You ever heard from Robert Lowell about lunch?"

"Not yet," Lady Bird said, "but I've invited the Louisville Symphony Orchestra, Marian Anderson, Helen Hayes, the cast of 'The Glass Menagerie,' Duke Ellington, Gene Kelly, and Charlton Heston."

"Gee, I'm not going to get much chance to talk to Robert Lowell, am I?"

"Now, Lyndon, you have to be nice to all the creative people. You can't just single out one poet."

"I guess you are right. I am the President of ALL artists."

"Speaking of artists, I've arranged to have not only the artists come, but they're going to send their pictures on ahead. I've made an art gallery out of the ground floor of the White House."

"Lady Bird, I wish you'd stick to planting rose bushes on Pennsylvania Avenue."

"Now, hush, Lyndon, and tell me where you want to put the sculpture."

"What sculpture?"

"We've got to show sculpture if we're going to show art."

"This lunch is getting out of hand. I think I'll send Hubert in my place."

"No, you won't. This is OUR party."

Several weeks before the big event, which had now become known as the White House Festival of Arts, Mrs. Johnson said:

"Lyndon, I have something to tell you if you promise not to get mad."

"All right, I won't get mad."

"Robert Lowell doesn't want to come to lunch."

"Why not?" the President shouted.

"He doesn't like your foreign policy."

"Well, neither do I! But it's the only one I've got."

New Help for Needy Students— Poverty Bill Gives Extra Funds, Jobs

Federal funds totaling $130,658 will be available to the University for participation in the college work-study program this summer and in the 1965-66 academic year, Howard B. Moffitt, assistant director of the Office of Student Financial Aids, announced recently.

Jobs are available and applications are now being accepted, he said.

A facet of the Federal Economic Opportunity Act (war on poverty), the college work-study program is designed to provide financial assistance for academically qualified students from low-income families or those who have no families. Moffitt said that where possible the work-study funds will be combined with loans, scholarships and grants-in-aid to the extent necessary to enable students to meet educational expenses.

STUDENTS IN the program may work 15 hours a week during regular sessions and 40 hours a week during vacation periods, including summers. The University pay scale will range from $1.15 to $2.75 an hour depending upon the qualifications needed for the job.

More than 100 jobs are available for participants in the work-study program both on the campus and in the Iowa City community.

Moffitt said a low-income family is one with an annual income of $3,000 or less when there is one dependent in the family, plus $600 for each additional dependent.

The federal funds include $104,308 for work to be done on jobs within the University and $25,095 for the off-campus jobs, in addition to $1,255 for administrative expenses in connection with the off-campus work.

THE UNIVERSITY and other employers will contribute an amount equal to one-ninth of the federal amount granted for wages to be paid under the work-study program. After next academic year, this share of the cost will rise to 25 per cent.

Moffitt listed these rules of eligibility for the work-study program at the U of I:

- The student must be a citizen or a national of the United States or be in the U.S. for other than a temporary purpose, and have intention of becoming a permanent resident.

- The student must need the earnings from the program in order to be in school.

- The student must be capable, in the opinion of the University, of maintaining good standing in his studies while employed under the program.

- The student must be enrolled as a full-time student, and carry at least 75 per cent of a full-time course load.

Moffitt said low-income family means one whose basic needs exceed its means to satisfy them to such an extent that it is unable to maintain a decent standard of living, or the family can not be expected to contribute significantly to the educational expenses of the student.

Among factors for deciding whether the basic needs of the family exceed its means to satisfy them is a determination of whether the family is receiving or is eligible to receive cash or other assistance from public or private welfare agencies, said Moffitt.

U.N. To Celebrate 20th Anniversary

Board members of the Iowa City chapter of the United Nations Association met Wednesday to discuss plans for the local celebration of the 20th anniversary of the United Nations.

Some preparations for the community-wide celebration are under way. On May 27th, a group of representatives from 20 local organizations met to begin planning.

A workshop to help organizations select programs for their members will be held in September.

U.N. Week is scheduled for Oct. 24 to 30, and the UNICEF celebration will be held Oct. 30.

Twins 3, Sox 1

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Kaat's four-hit pitching, backed by solo homers by Don Mincher and Zoilo Versalles, led Minnesota to a 3-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox Thursday.

The triumph gave the Twins the rubber decision in a three-game set and moved them 1½ games ahead of the second-place Pale Hose.

Mincher was used in a line-up shuffle by manager Sam Mele, seeking to beef up Minnesota's attack against Chicago's starter Joel Horlen, who gave up all three runs including Mincher's homer in the fifth and Versalles' blast in the sixth.

With Mincher at first, Harmon Killebrew shifted from first to third. Rich Rollins switched from third to second and Sandy Valdes took over in left for Bob Allison.

Tigers 6, Boston 5

DETROIT (AP) — Norm Cash's eighth-inning home run capped a come-from-behind 6-5 victory for the Detroit Tigers Thursday and handed the Boston Red Sox their seventh straight setback.

It marked the 19th time in 32 victories that the Tigers have rallied to gain the verdict. The home run was Cash's third of the season and first since April 27.

The Tigers knocked Boston starter Jerry Stephenson out of the box in the seventh inning when he gave up a solo homer to Dick McAuliffe and walked Jerry Lumpe.

Braves 4, Phillies 2

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Joe Torre's single with the bases loaded in the eighth inning drove in the deciding runs as the Milwaukee Braves defeated Philadelphia 4-2 Thursday night.

Trailing 2-1, the Braves got started in the eighth when Felipe Alou drew a leadoff walk against Ray Culp. Richie Allen then threw Mack Jones' sacrifice away for a two-base error and Hank Aaron was intentionally passed, filling the bases.

Torre followed with a single to left center, scoring Alou and Jones and putting Milwaukee out front 3-2. Aaron scored the final run of the uprising on an error by John Herrnstein.

Indians 5, Solons 0

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland's Sonny Siebert fired a three-hitter and struck out 15 Thursday night as the Indians belted Washington 5-0 for their fifth consecutive victory.

Siebert's strikeout total was the highest in the American League this season for a nine-inning game. Teammate Sam McDowell also struck out 15 in a 10-inning game.

After giving up hits in the first and second innings, Siebert didn't let another Senator reach first base until Ed Brinkman's single in the eighth as he recorded his seventh victory against three defeats.

The Indians jumped off to a 4-0 lead in the first inning, knocking starter Bennie Daniels out with four hits.

Lopez Is All-Star Manager

CHICAGO (AP) — "I hope it will be finally Lucky Lopez in the All-Star baseball game this year."

That is what Manager Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox said Thursday after his appointment to manage the American League All-Stars at Minneapolis July 13.

Lopez, like the Phillies' Gene Mauch, manager of the National All-Stars, is a replacement due to the managerial shakeup of the New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals after the 1964 campaign.

Lopez never has been on a winning All-Star team in seven appearances — two as a National League catcher, one as a coach under Yankee Manager Casey Stengel and four as manager of the American League squad.

Lopez managed the Americans last year, also on a replacement basis when Ralph Houk was promoted from Yankee manager to general manager.

That squad lost to the Nationals 7-4.

NFL-AFL Expansion Plans Clash at Atlanta

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Club owners of the National Football League will meet Monday to consider 1966 expansion to Atlanta in a battle with the rival American Football League for the city's new $18-million stadium.

After the AFL granted an Atlanta franchise to the Cox Broadcasting Co. June 7, the Atlanta Stadium Authority said it would not award a lease on the stadium before July 1.

A poll by The Associated Press showed earlier in the week that seven NFL owners have gone on record favoring the expansion at Atlanta, four were not ready to commit themselves and three others were not available for questions. Twelve yes votes are necessary.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle made a hurried trip to Atlanta on the heels of the announcement that the AFL had voted to expand. It is reported that members of the stadium authority prefer an NFL team.

The NFL had announced June 4 that Rozelle recommended expansion by adding two clubs in 1967. However, Rozelle said in Atlanta, "We could expand with no trouble in 1966."

If the NFL decides to go into Atlanta next year, the battle will be on with the AFL for a lease on the stadium where the Milwaukee Braves expect to operate their baseball team next season.

Tulsa Names Baugh Coach

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Sponsors of a proposed Tulsa entry in the professional Continental Football League said, Thursday that Sammy Baugh, former Washington Redskins quarterback, has signed a five-year contract to coach the team.

Nagle Leads in Open, Favorites Fall Back

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Kel Nagle, a crusty, 44-year-old Australian, "slammed" into the lead with a two-under-par 68 Thursday and the roof fell in on Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Ken Venturi in the opening round of the National Open Golf Championship.

The heavily favored Nicklaus, the giant no one could beat, blew himself to a pair of double bogey 6's and staggered with an unbelievably bad 78.

Palmer, the harassed one-time king of the pros, did little better. Scrambling over the course and showing none of his old charging spirit, he limped home with a 76.

The MIRACLE dream also collapsed for the gallant Venturi, the defending champion who won in Washington's sweltering heat a year ago and later turned up with a tragic hand ailment.

His right hand almost useless, Venturi shot a heartbreak 81.

"I couldn't reach the par 4's, and I had 40 putts," the champion lamented afterward. "It was a frustrating round."

Venturi three-putted six greens. He said he had little feel in his right hand. "I hope to play Friday," he said.

All three will have to struggle to survive the traditional halfway cut when the field will be reduced

Friday from 150 to the low 50 and ties.

Two other prime favorites stayed alive. Sam Sneed, making his 25th bid at the age of 53, shot a 75. British Open Champion Tony Lema had a 72.

Rifle-like iron play gave Nagle a cluster of birdies on the incoming nine for a 35-33-68 and a one-stroke edge over amateur Deane Beman of Bethesda, Md., and Mason Rudolph, the bespectacled tour regular from Clarksville, Tenn., only other players under par at 69.

GARY PLAYER of South Africa, who has captured every major title except this one, became a stern foreign threat when he posted an almost flawless 70 and tied at that spot with stringbean Al Geiberger of Santee, Calif.; Rex Baxter of Amarillo, Tex.; and little-known Lou Graham of Nashville, Tenn.

It was a day of complete frustration for most of the 150-man select field, butting heads with Bellerive's exasperating 7,191 yards, the big, rolling greens and gusty north-easterly winds.

Four well-known players — former PGA champion Jim Ferrier, Bert Weaver, Terry Dill and amateur Bill Joe Patton — withdrew. Ferrier finished with an 82 and then complained of a bad back.

Steinhauer Sets Track Record In Shot Put at NCAA Meet

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Oregon's 255-pound sophomore Neal Steinhauer put the shot 62 feet 9½ inches to shatter the University of California track stadium record Thursday in the qualifying round of the 44th annual National Collegiate Athletic Track and Field Championships.

The Oregon star bettered the record of 61-9 set by Dallas Long of Southern California in 1960 but didn't seriously challenge Long's meet record of 64-7 set in 1962.

With Randy Matson of Texas A&M out of this NCAA meet with a knee injury, Steinhauer had the favored position in the shot put although his distance in the qualifying does not count in the final.

Steinhauer's three puts were all longer than the longest of his nearest competitor. He threw 60-5, 62-7½ and 62-9½. Carl Wallin of Northeastern was second among the qualifiers at 59-10½.

Ten men in each field event qualifying round go into the finals. And this is the first year such preliminaries have been held in the championship meet.

Defending champion Morgan Groth of Oregon State, who won the mile run in both 1963 and 1964, won his heat in 4:03.7, with UCLA's Bob Day scant inches behind with the same time.

Missouri's Robin Lingle won the other mile preliminary in 4:06.0, followed by Rick Cunningham of Miami of Ohio in 4:07.2.

The preliminaries opened three days of competition with the six-mile run the only final event on the first day's program.

Thorson Tied In Girls' Golf

GRINNELL (AP) — Suzie Thorson of Cedar Falls, the pacemaker through two rounds, soared to a 97 Thursday and was forced to share the Iowa Junior Girls golf lead with Ann Brecurier of Waterloo at the end of 56 holes. They tied with 257 totals.

Miss Brecurier made the first trip around the nine-hole Grinnell Country Club course with a 39 for the best third round of the day but slipped to a 46 and settled for an 85.

Miss Thorson, who broke the women's course record with a 77 on opening day, saw everything go wrong and needed 20 more strokes than that just to stay in contention. She had led by 10 strokes at the halfway point.

The 72-hole tournament ends Friday.

DM Reporter To Speak Today

Drake Mabry, state house reporter for the Des Moines Tribune, will speak this afternoon on "The State House Beat: Problems of Covering Legislative News" at a session of the Workshop on the Newspaper in the Classrooms of a Free Society.

Mabry's speech, which will be at 1:30 p.m. in Butler Hall, back of the Iowa Center for Continuation Study, is open to the public.

Mabry has been a political, legislative and state government reporter for the Tribune for the past nine years. A 1955 graduate of the University School of Journalism, he has been a winner of the American Political Science Association Award for distinguished reporting of state and local government.

He has won two Associated Press news writing awards, the most recent for an analysis of Gov. Harold Hughes' victory over Norman Erbe in 1962.

This morning's sessions of the workshop will deal with the economics of the daily press and political understanding and the interpretation of the news.

Saturday's session will consist of the demonstration on the techniques of newspaper analysis in the classroom.

Next week's sessions will include talks on foreign newspapers, planning units on the newspaper for grades 7-12, planning and organizing a local newspaper, newspaper research and the newspaper as an

Mental Health Workshop Study Problem Avoidance

A workshop on Education in Human Relations and Mental Health is currently in session at the University.

Organized by Dr. Ralph H. Ojemann, professor of child behavior and development, the workshop is being attended by 53 people who are involved in education at all levels.

The workshop is aimed at teaching principles of mental health and preventive psychiatry in the schools to avoid the need for more serious help later on in life.

Teachers are given projects to work on during the session. They will be able to incorporate these projects into their teaching next semester.

The workshop was addressed this week by Dr. Richard L. Jenkins, professor of psychiatry. Dr.

Leonard D. Eron, acting chairman of the Psychology Department, is also to address the group.

The workshop began June 14 and will run through June 25.

New System Set For State Schools

Glenwood State School has started a summer program aimed at trying to find better methods in training of the deaf and retarded.

A project was started Monday, by both the school and the Iowa School for the Deaf to find better ways of serving the needs of the deaf retardate at the Glenwood school and throughout Iowa.

NDEA Awards U. Funds for Loans

Rep. John Schmidhauser (D-Ia.) announced Thursday that a total of $263,000 has been awarded to colleges in the First District of Iowa. The money allocated will be used in funding loans to students under title II of the National Defense Education Act.

The University has been awarded $174,213 of this amount.

Schmidhauser said, "These funds will enable college and university students in Southeast Iowa to continue their education and increase the standards of academic excellence in Iowa's First District."

Street Holes Aid Renewal

It's not oil the workers are drilling for in the Iowa City business district. Instead, those 23 holes are borings for subsoil studies in the proposed urban renewal project.

Arthur Westerback, city planner, said Thursday that Soil Testing Services, Inc., has completed drillings and is now analyzing results.

The findings will comprise part of a study on structural conditions for buildings in the proposed urban renewal district. Studies of the subsoil conditions in the downtown area will aid in determining what types of buildings can be constructed.

According to Westerback, land values may be affected by the types of buildings that may be built. Poor subsoil conditions will increase construction costs.

Westerback said the traffic and parking study, as well as the structural conditions study, may be done in about 30 days. At that time several urban renewal consultants will meet to discuss the results of their studies and future plans.

Funds have been provided by the Federal Government to cover the cost of preliminary project planning. If the renewal project is approved, those funds become a portion of the total project cost.

Westerback said the planning costs would be absorbed by the Government if Iowa City does not go ahead with the project.

Swimming Hours Fixed for Women

Women's recreational swimming hours during the summer will be from 4 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday in the Women's Gymnasium pool.

The program is open to women students, faculty members and faculty wives.

Those using the facilities must furnish towels and bathing caps. The women's physical education department provides tank suits.

A certified water safety instructor lifeguards during the period. An average of 10 women use the pool daily.

The pool is 25 feet long, 10 to 12 feet wide and 7 feet deep.

Engineers To Hear Welsh Lecturer Early Next Week

John A. Sandover, Senior Lecturer and professor with the University College, Swansea, Wales, will visit the University next week. Sandover has been working in the Department of Civil Engineering at the University of Illinois on a National Science Foundation Fellowship.

Sandover will lecture to students and faculty Monday and Tuesday. He'll be working with J. W. Howe, head of mechanics and hydraulics, in the Department of Civil Engineering.

Sandover is well-known in the fields of air-cushion vehicles, the generation of sea waves and general fluid mechanics.

Special Ed. Head To Quit in August

Munro Shintani, Johnson County director of special education for 10 years, has resigned as of August to do Ph.D. work at the University.

Shintani has received a graduate fellowship from the Iowa State Department of Public Instruction to study in the area of mentally retarded children.

Shintani will continue his work on Project Head Start, the program to prepare deprived children for kindergarten and first grade.

Estherville Man Found in River

ESTHERVILLE (AP) — The body of William Heidke, 51, of Estherville was found in the Des Moines River near the city park Thursday.

Authorities said Heidke, who had not been reported missing, drowned. His body was spotted by passersby.
