

Fifths Furnish Fun for Folks on Fourth

By CHARLOTTE WILLARD
Staff Writer

Ho-hum, the Fourth of July is coming this weekend. There must be something a person can do on the Fourth. But it's Sunday. What can anyone do on a Sunday?
"Hey, what are you doing on the Fourth?"
"I'm jet-setting to Europe. There's going to be a swinging party on the coast of Madagascar."
"MADAGASCAR is off the eastern tip of South Africa. You can't kid me. The invitation I received said the party was in Majorca."
"In that case, I'll be tending bar at the place my buddies and I just leased."

"But the Fourth is on a Sunday."
"So I'll rest on Sunday. I still have Saturday night and Monday."
Wise guy. Here comes someone who looks approachable.
"Excuse me, what are you doing on the Fourth?"
"Well-I-I, I hadn't really thought about it. I might finish an oil painting I've started. Or I might go up to Lake Geneva. I really don't know what I'll do for sure."
MAYBE SOMEONE will tell me something spectacular.
"Tell me, sir, what are you planning for the Fourth?"
"I'm going to make lots of love."
"You can't say something like that and expect to get it in print. What are you? Some kind of nut?"

Slight pause. "Really, I'm going to think hard about the Declaration of Independence and dream of George Washington."
"Aren't you going to do something at least interesting?" I asked hopefully.
HE LOOKED at me confidently and whispered, "My underground Committee to Destroy Freshman Gym Programs is planning a grenade-throwing contest."
He hurried off without giving the contest details.
Some people have a personality made to give smart answers:
"It's nobody's business what I'm doing on the Fourth."

"I'm going to sing Christmas carols."
AND THERE are the standard answers:
"I'm going home."
"I'm going to sun bathe all day so people will think I've done something."
A few people show originality:
"I'm digging two tunnels, one from my low-income home to the Iowa State Bank and the other to the liquor store."
And some show basic inclinations:
"I'm going to be recovering from the hang-over I got on the 3rd so I can start drinking again on the 5th."

SOMEONE always has to be confounding:
"What are your plans for the Fourth?"
"I'm going sailing at Macbride."
"Oh, that sounds nice. How large is your boat?"
"I don't have a boat. I'm going sailing, s-e-l-l-i-n-g — you know, popcorn, potato chips, pop, ice cream."
Why can't anyone ever be serious any more? Smart answers, that's all I get. Smart answers.
What am I doing on the Fourth, you ask? I'm going tobogganing, what else. A person has to keep cool somehow.

"It's Our Own Invention"

Letters to the editor -

Students, get out more

To the Editor:

With regard to the letter "Girls lament - where have all the fellows gone?" (DL June 25) and to its predecessor, "Men lament - where are the sweeties?" we would like to expand upon these matters.

May we say first that, from having spoken with close friends and others, we are certain there exists a definite problem of establishing male-female relationships on our campus, and that this problem is not minor. For it would appear that many students, of both sexes, meet and establish relationships with persons of the opposite sex only with much difficulty, despite the plentiful supply of these persons.

Granting this as true, one wonders how many students become, as a consequence, anywhere from mildly unhappy to severely disturbed; or worse, how many are plunged prematurely into serious emotional and sexual involvements, from which, after a time, they awaken frightened and suffering.

More explicitly, there appears to exist a high correlation between the difficulty with which satisfactory erotic relationships are maintained and the isolation of students from one another.

Roughly, this inimical cause-effect pattern may be shown thus: many SUI students, for a host of reasons, feel uncomfortably separated from those about them; their awareness of this separation engenders in them feelings of disquiet and insecurity; brooding and self-pity follow, and, to mitigate this pain, mates are sought, from whom sustenance and succor can be derived; this gives rise in turn to relationships in which one or both partners are emotionally overdependent upon the other, a situation detrimental to the stability and satisfactoriness of these relationships.

The end result of this type of human bond - one in which consideration of need instead of love and respect tend to predominate - is that one or both partners are driven to despair, forcing them to seek out a new mate and new object of ego-gratification, only to be later thrust again into despair, extreme anguish, or at the very least, states of self-disgust and self-resentment.

From this diagnosis two points emerge: that many student "love" relationships end in misery for one or both partners, and that this misery stems from isolation. Logically, then, the removal of the source of this misery will make people happier. For this reason, it is imperative that the answers to the problem of student isolation on campus be found. To begin, let us ask, where is everyone nowadays?

Indisputably, mornings most students are in class, hastening to or from it, somewhere in the Pentacrest area, at the Union, or at the Library. Walking about, one sees and is seen in turn by many strangers, many of the opposite sex and sexually desirable. But alas, how to meet them? For, merely seeing them is not to be put in a comfortable position to, as the case may be, request or accept dates. And even in class, though people are closer, communication may be no less difficult. Hence, most of us - too timid, too proud, or just too uninterested to be outgoing enough to make new acquaintances without introductions - move about in shells. Where there is an opportunity of intimacy, we choose to avoid it.

Because of these and other adverse conditions, student isolation must be fought primarily on a student-to-student basis. Fellows desiring girls must be more assertive, and girls desiring fellows must, besides smiling more, break away from their daily orbits and refugees with the express purpose of luring dates.

But the pick-up game is degrading, some will say. We disagree; it is the prevalently held attitudes toward it that are degrading. To assert that fellows who pick up girls are single-minded and girls who accede to them are cheap, is sheer folly. People meet on this earth under the poorest circumstances, and wholesome relationships blossom. One must take chances in whatever one does; there are no guarantees.

In sum, if barriers generating isolation are to be dissolved, there must first be a marked change in individual's attitudes toward others, and toward university-sponsored social functions.

Most campus dates are flops only because many people who heat of them beforehand, sure that they will be, stay at home. Thus campus affairs have come to be "out" and not "in" in people's minds. To everyone's benefit, this notion can be changed. The responsibility of bringing about this change lies with us all.

Up in smoke

IT WILL BE INTERESTING to see if Iowa's new cigarette taxes reduce smoking in the state very much. The Government report linking cigarettes with all types of deadly diseases certainly didn't have any effect on the sale of cancer sticks; it's doubtful the new price will make much difference either.

At least the state will make a little money from one of its citizens' big vices. There's something to be said for that.

Of course we think everyone should give up cigars and smoke cigars (which aren't going up in price and have a clean bill of health), but that prospect seems unlikely.

Probably what all this will lead to is a higher cost of living for University students. Tuition is going up, cigars are higher - all they need to do it hit beer next and all Iowa City will be declared a major disaster area.

Hero needed

CAPT. CHARLES KINES, the calm voiced pilot who landed his wingless plane safely the other day, ought to go into politics. He's just what the Republican party needs to lead them out of whatever it is they are right now.

Quite a shock

WE KNEW IT WAS COMING Thursday, but we didn't know it was going to be like that. Our telephones sound funny.

Pick one up and what do you hear? That good old buzz that snaps you to attention and prepares you to talk good sense in a crisp, alert tone - no it's some sort of muffled air and siren off in the distance. Very disconcerting.

When you pick up a University extension line, you get the comfortable old buzz. That's refreshing. But dial nine on a University phone and bang - this soft screaming returns.

The new dial tone is fine if you're in need of a tuning pitch or something, but is certainly a change.

We'll probably get used to it in time, but meanwhile we're keeping our telephone calls to a minimum - especially calls we make in the morning. A change like that is too much to take before lunch.

Political nomenclature, hawks by other names

By ART BUCHWALD

A whole new set of terms are now in order concerning the position people have taken in Washington in the last few months. During the Cuban crisis the town was divided between the Doves and the Hawks and this made life very simple for everybody.

But as our foreign position becomes more complex so do the designations of people who are involved.

For example, an ultra-conservative Hawk is someone who wants to bomb Hanoi and Peking with atomic weapons.

A moderate Hawk is someone who wants to bomb Hanoi with conventional weapons and Peking with the hydrogen bomb.

A liberal Hawk is someone who wants to bomb only North Viet Nam, including Hanoi, but reserves the right to pursue communist planes into China if it becomes necessary.

A MODERATE Dove believes we should bomb only the Viet Cone in South Viet Nam and fight for what we now hold until we can get negotiations.

A liberal Dove is one who doesn't think we should get out of Viet Nam, but also feels there is no reason to be there in the first place.

An ultra-conservative Dove, on the other hand believes we should bomb all of North Viet Nam except Hanoi, and increase our ground commitment to show the North Vietnamese we mean business.

Then there are the Frogs. The Frog designation came into being LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) - On the day after the 1964 general election, Winthrop Rockefeller conceded his defeat by Gov. Orval E. Faubus in one breath and announced as a 1966 candidate for governor in the next.

"You'll find me a lot better-equipped candidate this time," the 62-year-old multimillionaire said in an interview. "Then there were a lot of areas of state government on which I was un-informed."

Negro teachers face plight

By C. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - "There is bitter irony in the plight of the Negro teachers in the South - they are falling victim to the civil rights law which was designed for their benefit," Dr. Dave Darland of the National Education Association said Wednesday.

"Hundreds of Negro teachers are losing their jobs as the Southern schools desegregate. They desperately need help," Darland said.

Darland is staff coordinator of "Operation Backstop," a proposed association program to deal with the educational problems growing out of desegregation in the South.

In an interview during the association convention here, Darland said the Federal Government should step in with a massive program of financial aid to help the Negro teachers.

"The first step should be to try to fit these teachers into their local, desegregated systems," he said. "When that doesn't work, they should be helped to relocate in other states."

Even where white and Negro teaching staffs are integrated, Darland said, the teachers are going to be faced with major problems.

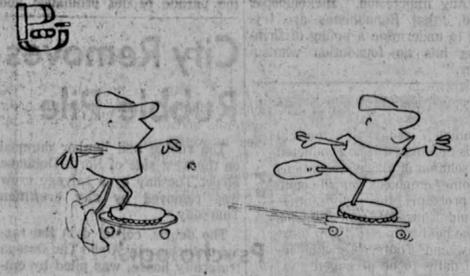

"For the first time, they are going to be dealing directly with the children and the parents of another race," he said. "They are all going to need special training to handle the inevitable clashes."

Darland said racial discrimination is not the only problem. "Many Negro teachers are going to lose out in the South, not just because they are Negro but because they just don't measure up," he said.

"Their education has been traditionally bad. They are the victims of inferior elementary schools, inferior secondary schools, and inferior colleges. They started behind, they stayed behind, and it would take a superman to catch up."

Darland also said the integration of teachers is going to be a much more difficult problem than the integration of children.

The Count and the Countess discuss plans for the rehearsal of their play. The scene, played by Don Schulte, G, Iowa City, and Hazel Hall, G, Dothan, Ala., is from the dress rehearsal for "The Rehearsal."

First Summer Play Will Open Tonight

The curtain at University Theatre will rise at 8 p.m. today on the first of four comedies by the Summer Repertory Theatre.

The first-night audience will find itself in 17th century France for Moliere's "The Misanthrope."

"The Misanthrope," directed by Aaron Frankel, is the story of Alceste, a man so bitterly opposed to the superficiality of his society that he wishes to withdraw from the world.

A COMEDY is hard to do well and this one was made more difficult by the rhymed-couplets translation being used.

The cast, however, has met the challenge boldly and adventurously, with hard work and devoted inventive responses," said Frankel. Saturday night, for "The Shoemaker's Prodigious Wife" by Federico Garcia Lorca, the setting will be a small Spanish village. The traditional farce of an old man married to a young, attractive girl forms the plot for this play.

Larry Clark, director of "The Shoemaker" and repertory managing director, said he was pleased with the play.

"There is a period in every repertory theatre when we swear we'll never get ready, but we always make it," he said.

MONDAY'S performance will be "Under Milkwood" by Dylan Thomas. A series of scenes linked by two narrators gives a kind of poetic glimpse into the life of a Welsh town from dawn to dusk of one day.

"Under Milkwood" has given the cast a chance to create more as actors because many members of the cast play three different characters. Some play four, and one actress plays six different parts. There is so little time between scenes that most of the character change must be internal, said director John Peakes.

"The Rehearsal," Tuesday's play, is also set in France. In the play, modern people, acting in an 18th century French comedy, begin to resemble the characters in their portrayals. David Knaut directs the play, which was written by Jean Anouilh. The present-day drama is played out within the rehearsals for Marivaux's "The Double Inconstancy."

The stage setting for "The Misanthrope" features simple backgrounds, but the props are built to give the setting an extreme depth perspective. "The Misanthrope" opens tonight.

Don Schulte gets a helping hand with a hard-to-get-at knot as he makes final preparation for Jean Anouilh's "The Rehearsal." The play is one of four presented by the Summer Repertory Theatre.

A letter is often convincing evidence, and that's just what it is for the misanthrope — evidence of infidelity. Jerry Mayer, G, Lincoln, Neb., plays Alceste. Linda Carlson, A3, Edina, Minn., plays the role of Celimine.

Jerry Walker, the assistant director of Dylan Thomas' "Under Milkwood" adds finishing touches to his makeup before going on stage. In the play Walker plays Butcher Beynon and Mr. Waldo.

A shoemaker finds out how difficult life can be when you're old and married to a young girl in Federico Garcia Lorca's comedy, "The Shoemaker's Prodigious Wife." Marvin Bennison, G, Babylon, N.Y., plays the husband. Nancy Baker, A3, Waverly, is the wife.

Celimine finds two pairs of ears available for gossip in Moliere's "The Misanthrope." The two are Jerry Walker as Clitandre and James Spigener, A3, Lambert, as Acaste.

Johnson Okays Supersonic Jet

WASHINGTON — President Johnson committed the United States Thursday to the billion-dollar task of developing a supersonic airliner that is safe, superior and can earn its way.

Johnson took the occasion of the swearing-in of a new administrator of the Federal Aviation Agency to announce the decision to proceed with a supersonic transport — popularly known as SST — and to call for an initial fund of $140 million.

Johnson said this sum would be required to carry the SST design and development program through an 18-month period, starting next month.

The occasion was the swearing-in of a retired Air Force general, William F. (Bozo) McKee, as FAA chief.

Johnson said an advisory committee which has completed an intensive appraisal of the SST program has reported considerable progress toward a commercially profitable plane.

In testimony before Congress, officials have estimated the SST development cost at about $1 billion. More recent cost estimates have been much higher.

U.S. aircraft industry leaders have been expressing concern lest failure of the administration to make up its mind definitely would put the American plane far behind its European competitors.

Some officials are confident, however, that the American SST will be in airline service at about the same time as its competitors in the early 1970s.

Johnson said this sum would be required to carry the SST design and development program through an 18-month period, starting next month.

The occasion was the swearing-in of a retired Air Force general, William F. (Bozo) McKee, as FAA chief.

Professor Named To 4-Year Term On Cancer Council

Dr. Rubin H. Flocks, professor and head of urology, has been named to a four-year term on the National Advisory Cancer Council of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Dr. Flocks was named to the post by U.S. Surgeon General Luther L. Terry. The special advisory groups are made up of experts in various fields and advise the Surgeon General and his associates on policy, programs, and relations with the professions and the public.

A major responsibility of the councils is to review and recommend grants to support non-governmental research, with technical advice provided by other groups of consultants in the different research areas. Another responsibility is to survey the total research program in the subject field and recommend necessary action to be taken in areas where gaps exist in research efforts.

New Course In Computing To Enforce Job Equality

A three-week course to prepare computer programmers to use the IBM 360 assembly language and to understand the basic 360 system will begin July 12.

IBM systems engineers Tom Giblin, Chuck Grimsrud and Jim Farver will instruct the course, which is open only to experienced programmers.

Sessions will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily in 423 Gilmore Hall. Fifteen persons had registered for the course Thursday with the University Computer Center. Operations Manager Paul Wolfe said an additional five persons would be accepted for enrollment.

Also beginning on July 12, a three-week course in Sanskrit programming will be taught. The course will be concerned with programming language to handle specific types of program digital simulation problems, according to instructor Jim Whiteley. He anticipates an enrollment of 25 persons, mostly from the English and Business Departments within the University.

Beginning Tuesday, a Numerical Analysis Seminar will be conducted on the solution of algebra equations with some emphasis on ill-conditioned problems. Instructor James Hurt said Thursday that sessions would be held from 2 to 3 p.m. next Tuesday and Thursday, with additional dates to be arranged.

There is no registration for the course, which will meet in S-107 Engineering Building.

Margaret Nolte Named Dean at Cincinnati U.

Dr. Margaret B. Nolte, who holds three degrees from the University, will assume duties July 15 as dean of women at the University of Cincinnati.

Dr. Nolte, a native of Wilton Junction, was assistant dean of women at Ohio Wesleyan University from 1956 to 1960. She then was appointed dean of women at Eau Claire State College in Wisconsin. In 1963 she became associate dean of women at the University of New Mexico.

To Enforce Job Equality — Employment Panel Opens Shop Today

WASHINGTON — The federal government launches Friday its most ambitious — and complicated — effort to end job discrimination.

Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., chairman of the new Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, said the accent will be on conciliation and persuasion.

"Our policy," he said, "is 'no persecution'." The commission has no power to punish anybody, but if an accused person resisted conciliation and court orders he might find himself — after a lengthy process — fined or jailed for contempt of court.

Among other things it is unlawful for an employer, labor union or employment agency to publish any discriminatory advertising relating to employment. This could lead to charges in the traditional "help wanted, men" and "help wanted, women" ads in newspapers. However, it would be the advertiser, not the newspaper, that could get into trouble.

EXEMPT FROM title 7 are federal and state governments, Indian tribes — which may discriminate in favor of Indians — bona fide private membership clubs, persons employed by an educational institution to perform educational work, persons employed by a religious educational institution, persons who refuse to employ Communists.

If an employer can show that religion, sex, or nationality are prime requisites for a particular job, he is in the clear. But this exemption does not extend to race or color.

Title 7 makes its bow under fire from friends and foes of civil rights legislation.

Roosevelt was told Thursday by Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) that the new commission is "a useless agency, unnecessary and uncalled for."

Roosevelt appeared before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee, headed by McClellan and considering a proposed $3.2-million budget for the commission for the next year.

After delivering his criticism, McClellan said: "But, if we've got to have the commission, we've got to have some money."

Gold Outflow Reported High

NEW YORK — The biggest weekly outflow of gold since 1959 was reported Thursday by the Federal Reserve System.

Most of the $359-million out-flow went to the International Monetary Fund and dropped the total national supply to $13.9 billion, the lowest since August 1938.

The weekly loss was the biggest since 1959, when the United States last made a major gold contribution to the monetary fund.

Of the total outflow for the week, the fund under legislation signed by President Johnson Wednesday, is to get $258,750,000. The remaining $100 million was transferred to the stabilization fund to meet foreign government conversions of dollars into gold.

Following usual policy, the Federal Reserve declined to identify what countries will get the gold from the stabilization fund.

Arbitration Asked In Ames Dispute

DES MOINES — The Master Builders of Iowa asked Gov. Harold Hughes Thursday to appoint a board of arbitration to try to settle a labor dispute which has interrupted work on an Iowa State University building at Ames.

An aide to Hughes said the governor would have no immediate comment.

The Master Builders, an association of firms in the construction business, said the dispute "has shut down construction work on the $3 million Plant Sciences Building at Iowa State University."

SOMEBODY LOSE SOMETHING?

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — An Indian canoe unearthed near Lakeland in central Florida is estimated to be 3,000 years old.

5 Agencies Gave Iowa $8.6 Million Last Year

The University's share of federal research and development funds ranks eighth among the Big 10 schools. Last year the University received $8.6 million in research from the five principal scientific-oriented agencies.

A breakdown of some of the federal grants reveals the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) has given Iowa close to $3 million. The HEW money has gone for educational improvement for the handicapped, graduate fellowships, language and area centers and fellowships and training grants.

The University also received $264,000 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for training grants.

The National Science Foundation granted the University $478,000 for the development and improvement of institutional service programs, science education programs and fellowships.

The Defense Department and the Atomic Energy Commission also provided federal grants.

Iowa State University at Ames received more than $1 million less than the University from the same departments.

These statistics represent only part of the total federal grants to the University last year.

Arms Report Lid Remains

WASHINGTON — The Johnson administration declined to lift official secrecy Thursday from a five-month-old report to President Johnson on the problems of negotiating an agreement on halting the spread of nuclear weapons.

Both the White House and the State Department refused to comment on a story by the New York Times that the report recommended the proposed nonproliferation agreement be given priority over another pending proposal, backed by the United States and West Germany particularly, for creation of a nuclear weapons force within the Atlantic alliance.

The United States has argued for several years for a treaty aimed at halting the spread of nuclear weapons to other countries. The Soviet government, while professing interest in the goal, has contended that the proposed allied nuclear force would in fact constitute proliferation.

State Department officials said the Allied force plan has not been shelved and there is no basis for suggesting that it would be shelved. They declined to comment, however, on the Times story that the report made to the President favored shelving it if that was necessary to obtain a non-proliferation treaty.

Oakdale Will Join U. System Sunday

Oakdale Sanatorium will become a part of the University hospital system Sunday, but will continue to operate as the state's tuberculosis treatment center.

The hospital brings with it 57 years of history that have developed it from a wooden frame building to the modern facility that it is today.

Originally established on 280 acres, it now covers 555.37 acres. The patient load has increased from two in 1908 to an average of from 200 to 225. Admission in 1964 totaled 389.

Plans are being formulated to expand the activities of the hospital in such areas as rehabilitation, psychiatry, and toxicology. There is also speculation that the nation's first regional toxicology center may be located on the Oakdale grounds.

The merger of Oakdale with the university system was made under an order of the Iowa General Assembly during the past session.
