U.S. Plane Crashes At Sea; Nine Dead

FALMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — Coast Guard and Navy vessels groped through dense North Atlantic fog Monday night hunting seven men missing in the ditching of an Air Force radar picket plane in which nine men died.

There were three survivors who kept afloat in the sea by life packets for more than eight hours until helicopters rescued them and put them aboard a German navy destroyer.

The three survivors and nine casualties were transferred to the Navy carrier Wasp. A spokesman at Otis Air Force Base said the survivors would be flown late Monday night back to Otis and taken immediately to the base hospital. There was no immediate report on their condition.

BODIES OF THE NINE casualties were slated to be flown to South Weymouth Naval Air Station and transferred to Chelsea Naval Hospital.

The weather — fog, rain and squalls — kept night searching operations limited. The Navy reported it would keep one search plane in the air all night.

Coast Guard boats and Navy vessels continued slow searching east-northeast of Nantucket.

An Air Force officer said at midday, "The weather is bad. There is no visibility, the fog is right down to the ocean and the sea is rough."

By evening the weather was improving. Early reports from both the Coast Guard and the Air Force said 10 men had been rescued, eight bodies recovered and one was missing.

The duty officer at the Salem Coast Guard rescue station said the report of 10 rescued came from ships on the scene.

"They have since taken another count and evidently their first count was inaccurate," he said.

AT LEAST 11 SHIPS, including the U.S. Navy carrier Wasp and three German destroyers, and more than 20 planes took part in the search for survivors. The German vessels were on maneuvers with the Wasp and other American ships.

The four-engine, propeller-driven plane, valued at $2.5 million, was one of 38 radar picket planes based at Otis.

It crashed at about 9:20 p.m. Sunday. The last message from the pilot said, "Altitude 200 feet. I am ditching." He also reported one engine was on fire.

There were thunderstorms and six-foot swells in the area when the plane went down.

At dawn, thick fog moved in over the search area.

U.S. Bombers Hit Viet Nam Ammo Depots

New Infantry Landings Bring Military Total To More Than 70,000

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Air Force jets aimed another one-two punch Monday at North Vietnamese ammunition depots in the valley of the Red River, a link between Hanoi and Red China.

A spokesman announced ordnance centers at Yen Sen and Yen Bai, respectively 65 and 77 miles northwest of Hanoi, were hit in 15-plane raids following up initial attacks there during the weekend.

The spokesman said the raiders dumped nine tons of 750-pound bombs, plus rockets and missiles, on each of the depots. He said they destroyed two buildings and damaged three at Yen Bai and damaged four at Yen Sen. Two railroad cars were reported damaged in a freight yard just south of the Yen Bai depot.

LIGHT ANTI-AIRCRAFT fire was encountered, but no enemy planes were sighted and all the Americans returned safely, the spokesman said.

A spokesman said U.S. military strength at Viet Nam rises to 71,000 men with the scheduled completion today of the landing of the 2nd Brigade of the 1st Infantry Division, the "Big Red One" of World War II.

The brigade totals 3,900. Its home base is Ft. Riley, Kan.

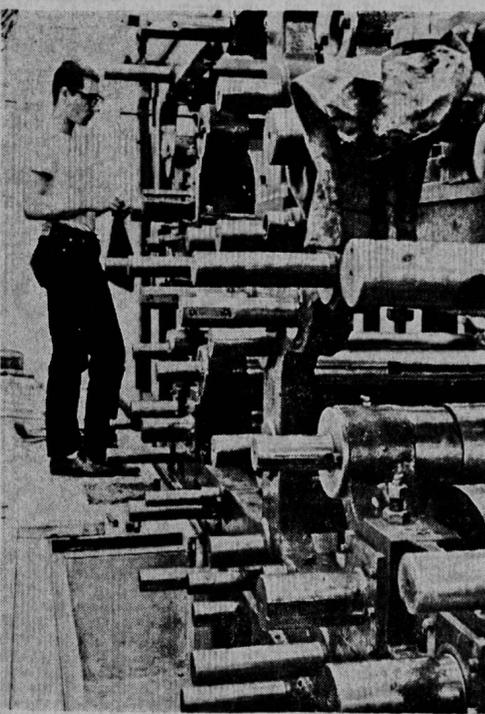

The vanguard, a reinforced battalion of 1,000 riflemen, artillerymen and support troops, streamed ashore Monday at Cam Ranh Bay, a deepwater haven on the South China Sea 180 miles northeast of Saigon.

THE U.S. ARMY'S 35th Engineer Group is working on harbor improvements in the bay, one of a string of bases beaded along the coast from Vung Tau, 40 miles southeast of Saigon, to Da Nang, 380 miles northeast of this city.

Col. James Simmons, the brigade commander, told newsmen the first mission of his men is to protect the engineers.

"Later, when we get our feet on the ground, we'll get out there and find the Viet Cong," Simmons said.

In Seoul, South Korea, a special session of South Korea's National Assembly was asked by President Chung Hee Park to approve the government's plan to send a combat division to South Viet Nam. Such a division presumably would total about 15,000 men. South Korea already has 2,500 military men — largely noncombat engineers and medical personnel — in this country.

Pickets Battle Cops at College

Scranton Tries Negotiation Of Girard's Negro Policies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A deputy police commissioner was punched and bruised Monday as club wielding pickets clashed with a crowd of pickets outside the State Office Building where Gov. William W. Scranton was trying to resolve a dispute over Girard College's white only admission policy.

At least five persons were arrested when violence flared outside the 20-story building just four blocks from City Hall.

Two policemen were taken to Philadelphia General Hospital for examinations after being kicked during the melee.

Mars Photos Develop Only For America

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The man who'll turn a skyful of radio signals into photographs of Mars after Mariner 4 flies past that planet Wednesday says it will be virtually impossible for any other nation to duplicate the feat.

"There are a few deep space tracking antennas around the world which possibly could be tuned to pick up the spacecraft's very faint signals, but I doubt there is any other place where the necessary equipment exists to decode the signals and convert them into pictures," says Frederic C. Billingsley of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL).

Billingsley, who feeds electrical impulses into black boxes and makes them come out something else, outlined in an interview what will happen to the 21 pictures — each expected to be 100 times better than any taken with earth telescopes.

DURING THE 24-minute camera run, he said, the pictures will be recorded on tape aboard the spacecraft as a stream of numbers. Each number is called a "bit" of information. They will be recorded in groups of six, called samples, each of which can show one of 64 shades of gray.

There are 200 samples in a line, and 200 lines — one beneath the other — make up one picture. The result is a square of 40,000 dots, 200 dots on a side, something like the photographs in a newspaper.

After Mariner 4 flies behind Mars it will start transmitting its stream of numbers to earth. Its transmitter, however, has only 10 watts of power — not enough to light the bulb in a living room light.

AFTER TRAVELING across 134 million miles of space between here and Mars, the signal will be so weak it can be picked up only by a giant antenna. The signal will have to be strengthened by a tremendously powerful amplifier.

After amplification the signal is again recorded on tape. The tape is fed into a computer which converts the signals either into printed numbers or into a light beam which exposes a strip of film.

The Pennsylvania governor, Mayor James Tate of Philadelphia, some civil rights group officials and the 13 trustees of Girard College were in the building when the trouble began.

DURING THE fighting, which lasted less than 10 minutes, state employees sealed off the building's eight elevators to prevent anyone from trying to reach the penthouse meeting room.

Deputy Police Commissioner Frank Rizzo was punched and suffered minor hand and arm lacerations.

Rizzo said a group of pickets cursed and insulted policemen on duty. He said the pickets then attacked the officers. Other police, wielding clubs, rushed in to break up the battle. One picket was knocked unconscious and two others suffered head wounds.

Those three male pickets and two women were taken into custody. Police said they probably would be charged with inciting to riot.

Girard College is a boy's school restricted to poor, white, male orphans under the will of its founder, Stephen Girard, a Revolutionary War merchant. The will has been attacked in the U.S. Supreme Court and upheld there.

Last May 1, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, protesting the white only admission policy, started picketing the school, which includes grade and high school classes.

THERE HAVE been a number of arrests at the school, located in a predominantly Negro section of the city. Hundreds of police have been on duty for months outside the walls, which encircle about four long blocks.

Pickets from time to time have grown rowdy, blocked traffic and on at least one occasion tried to scale the wall onto the campus of the institution, which now has about 750 residents.

Thomas J. Gaffney, counsel for the school's trustees, said "our whole policy in this has been cooperation with the public agencies. We're going to this meeting for the invited purpose and we hope to accomplish whatever it is Gov. Scranton wants to accomplish."

Funeral Services Held for Student Clubbed ...

Funeral services were held Monday morning in the Oakville Methodist church for Stephen Richard Charbonneau, 20, of rural Medford, who was killed in an auto accident early Saturday morning.

Charbonneau would have been a second semester sophomore at the University this fall. An engineering student, he was a pledge of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Charbonneau was killed at 1:30 a.m. Saturday on Highway 99 eight miles north of Burlington. According to sheriff's officers, the car he was driving went out of control, skidded more than 800 feet, went off the highway, hit an embankment and flipped over on its top. Charbonneau was alone at the time of the mishap.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Charbonneau, he was born Jan. 30, 1945. He is survived by his parents, one brother and two sisters, all at home, and two sets of grandparents.

U.S.-Russ Treaty Tabled by Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee deferred action Monday on a proposed consular treaty between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Growing coolness between the two countries over the U.S. role in Viet Nam was a factor in the withholding of a decision on whether to hold public hearings on the treaty, proposed by President Johnson in June 1964.

Youths Caught In Liquor Raid

The state's crack-down on under-age drinking caught 32 youths with possession of beer or contributing to the delinquency of minors Saturday night in a road block near Swisher, between Cedar Rapids and Iowa City.

A large force of local, county and state law enforcement officers issued more than 230 tickets for offenses ranging from illegal possession of beer to defective auto equipment.

Those charged with illegal possession of beer were arraigned in the Swisher Mayor's Court. Though a few pleaded not guilty, most were fined $100 and assessed court costs.

A new law passed by the Iowa Legislature went into effect July 4 and made it a misdemeanor for a person under 21 years of age to have beer or liquor may possession.

A fine for conviction may not exceed $100 and imprisonment may not exceed 30 days.

Remap Appeal Contested by Iowa Attorney General

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa Supreme Court was asked Monday to strike portions of an appeal from a lower court ruling in a suit challenging the temporary apportionment of the state legislature.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Timothy McCarthy of the Iowa attorney general's office contended five sections of the appeal brief are contrary to the Iowa Rules of Civil Procedure.

McCarthy's arguments attacked the brief filed by Des Moines attorney David Belin, who is representing Mrs. David Kruidenier of Des Moines and other Iowa residents in a suit asking that a special session of the legislature be convened to provide for subdividing of counties electing more than one senator or representative.

Polk County District Court Judge Harry Perkins in effect dismissed the suit on June 18. He upheld McCarthy's contention that the state courts should not take jurisdiction in the case while the same subject matter is pending before the U.S. District Court.

Berlin appealed from Judge Perkins' ruling. He asked the Supreme Court to rule both on the Polk County District Court's jurisdiction and on the constitutional issues involved in the case.

In his motion to the Supreme Court, McCarthy contended the "Statement of the Case" included in Berlin's brief was much longer than the one page prescribed by the Rules of Civil Procedure. He also said it didn't state what the issues were before the District Court and how they were decided, nor did it say what questions were presented by the appeal.

Police Patrol Chicago In Wake of 4th Blast

CHICAGO (AP) — Increased police patrols were ordered into Chicago's downtown district Monday night after a fresh bomb blast — the fourth in the loop area in six days — damaged the Wrigley Building, a Michigan Avenue landmark.

Police feared a "mad bomber" was striking at random.

Several other structures in the downtown area were guarded as a result of bomb threats.

The explosion at the Wrigley Building, that stands like a tall freestanding cake on the north bank of the Chicago River, occurred near midnight Sunday, shattering more than 30 windows in the building's two lower levels. Three automobiles parked nearby were damaged.

THE WRIGLEY Building blast and similar bombings at two other Loop-area office buildings last week caused authorities to speculate that a "mad bomber" might be responsible for all three.

Experts of the police department bomb squad reported all three explosions were caused by black-powder bombs, similarly constructed.

Authorities, however, admittedly were unable to determine a motive for the bombings.

Charles Siragusa, executive director of the Illinois Crime Investigating Committee, attributed the bombings to a maniac.

POLICE WERE searching for two men seen running from the scene of a West Side blast, at the Mister Softee of Illinois Corp. The firm operates a fleet of trucks used for street sales of ice cream.

Authorities speculated the two men might be the same pair seen fleeing from the scene of a bombing Saturday night that damaged a building in the wholesale clothing district.

The first explosion in the downtown area occurred early Wednesday at the Masonite Building on the southeast corner of Wacker Drive and Washington Street.

The explosion blew out windows in the building and caused damage estimated at $200,000.

Valuation Jumps 44.5% In City For Tax Purposes

Iowa City's assessed valuation of personal property and real estate shows an increase of 44.5 per cent since last year, according to an estimate made Monday by City Assessor Victor J. Belger.

Belger assessed this year's total at about $48.5 million.

The total assessment that does not come from real estate and personal property will come in assessments of utilities set by the State Tax Commission. Real estate and personal property assessments amounted to $45,702,754.

These assessed valuations will determine taxes to be paid in 1966. Each mill of tax levy will raise about $48,500 as compared with the $34,300 it raised last year.

Forty per cent of the increase stems from a general increase in Iowa City real estate assessments. Iowa City's real estate assessments were raised from 19 to 27 per cent by the State Tax Commission, which ruled that assessments should be at 27 per cent of actual value.

Belger reported that 5 per cent of the increase is a result of new construction, mainly, new residences appearing on tax ledgers for the first time.

Johnson County as a whole will probably be greater in assessments since all property outside Iowa City was reappraised in an effort to achieve greater equality and also to meet the state level.

The estimated valuation of $48.5 million and city's tax expectation of $1,283,000 indicates a municipal levy considerably reduced from last year. Since assessed valuations are higher, however, most property owners will not notice the change when tax bills are out in January.

'Rita' First Show On Union's Stage

By CHARLOTTE WILLARD Staff Writer

A one-act comic opera, "Rita" by Gaetano Donizetti, will be the first production on the stage of the new ballroom of the Union addition. The opera, produced in the Opera Workshop, will be presented at 8 p.m. Friday.

There will be no admission charge.

In the opera, Rita, the owner of an inn, exclaims over her prosperity and joy in her second marriage. Her husband, she explains, is a kind, simple fellow she can boss. She advises the ladies to "pick a man who is not very smart, for the smarter the wife is, then the more contented her life."

A ROUGH STRANGER, Gasparo, enters the inn and identifies himself as Rita's former husband. He and Beppo, the henpecked second husband, draw straws for the wife. Beppo loses and is delighted. Gasparo meets Rita, who explains that she has the only copy of the marriage contract. When Gasparo tries to get it from her, she refuses.

Gasparo, desperate to get his hands on the contract, asks Beppo to help him in a scheme. According to this play, Beppo insults Gasparo, and Gasparo pretends he can use only one arm to defend himself. This impresses Rita. After Beppo challenges Gasparo to a duel, the arm suddenly comes to action.

Rita is furious at Gasparo's deception. Beppo, feeling death is near, announces his love for Rita. Gasparo, now free, tells Beppo how to treat his wife. Beppo asserts his authority. Rita acknowledges his superiority, and a happy Gasparo says goodbye.

RITA WILL BE PLAYED by Sheila House, G. Clovis, N.M.; Beppo by Guy Hargrove, G. Iowa City; and Gasparo by Alan Peters, G. Des Moines. Peters and Miss House are also in "Die Kluge," one of the two one-act operas to be performed at 8 p.m. July 27, 28, 30 and 31 in Macbride Auditorium.

The Opera Workshop is directed by Herald Stark, professor of music. Nesbitt Blaisdell, G. Iowa City, is stage director for "Rita" and Ted Blair, G. Clinton, Ark., is accompanist.

Friday's presentation will be the sixth performance the cast has given of "Rita." The workshop members first performed the opera last fall.

The most recent presentation was at the University of Wisconsin in Madison July 8. "Rita" was performed as the first part of a musical exchange program with Wisconsin's School of Music. An opera group from the University of Wisconsin will present an exchange performance at Iowa next year.

The opera is sponsored by the summer Union Board in conjunction with the 27th Fine Arts Festival.

Grinnell Names New President

GRINNELL COLLEGE MONDAY APPOINTED Dr. Glenn H. Leggett, provost of the University of Washington, as its eighth president.

Leggett, 47, succeeds Dr. Howard Bowen, now president of the University of Iowa.

In accepting the presidency of the private four-year liberal arts college, Leggett said the opportunity to serve Grinnell "is a privilege and a challenge."

He said, "In many ways the task I see ahead is an inspiring one. Behind Grinnell College is a remarkable record of achievement in academic excellence."

Leggett, born at Ashtabula, Ohio, was a member of the faculties at Ohio State University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology before joining Washington.

Hughes Picks High Court Judge

GOV. HAROLD HUGHES SELECTED a 59-year-old Mason City lawyer as his first appointment to the Iowa Supreme Court Monday. The governor picked Michael Lawrence (Larry) Mason from three nominees given him by the Judicial Nominating Commission.

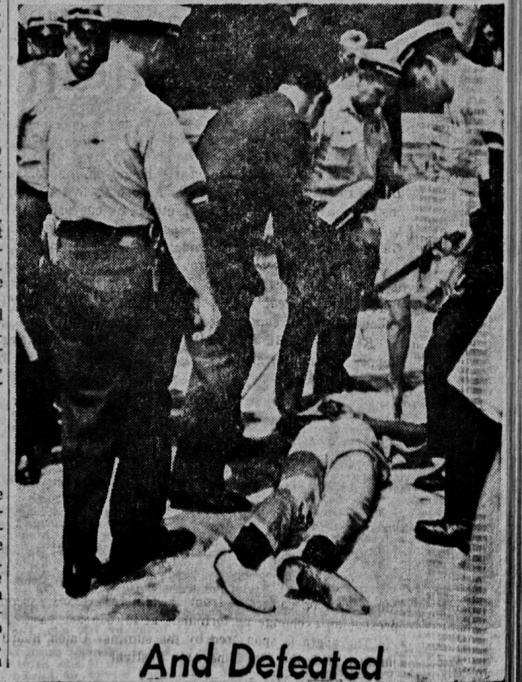

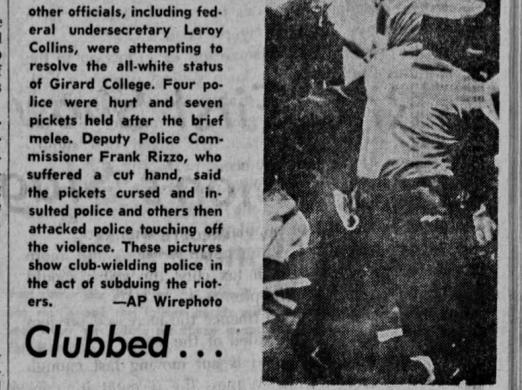

Mason, a lawyer for 34 years, replaces Justice Henry K. Peterson, 81, of Council Bluffs, who retired last June 30. Hughes also has another appointment to make to the nine-member Supreme Court. He said the selection probably would be announced later this week.

Race Violence in North

Against the Wall ...

Police and Negro pickets tangled in Philadelphia, Pa., Monday after violence erupted in a picket line outside a meeting where Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton and other officials, including federal undersecretary Leroy Collins, were attempting to resolve the all-white status of Girard College. Four police were hurt and seven pickets held after the brief melee. Deputy Police Commissioner Frank Rizzo, who suffered a cut hand, said the pickets cursed and insulted police and others then attacked police touching off the violence. ## And Defeated

Not a very pleasant vacation

By SALLY RYAN
 BREITENBUSH LAKE, Ore. — We were lost in the fog on a snowpatched hill, high in Oregon's Cascade Mountains. A gale wind threatened to blow us into an ice-covered pond 15 feet below.

It was a night of terror. But we survived it, and seven other nights like it in freezing temperatures, with no food except what we could carry.

There were 16 of us — 10 men and 6 women — ranging in age from 15 to 48; taking part in a wilderness survival school.

We went into the mountains 70 miles southwest of Portland armed only with hunting knives and survival kits, consisting mainly of fishing gear and one match for each day.

WE HIKED 45 miles with 20-pound backpacks — a physician, a mailman, a transportation company comptroller, two housewives, two teachers and a sprinkling of students, few of whom ever had been in the back country before.

At first, we worried primarily about food. We stopped at a restaurant for a last cup of coffee, and found a black and white puppy. I wanted to take him along.

"Don't!" advised Odd Bjerke, a native of Norway who conducts survival training exercises for military and civilian groups. "You'll eat it."

We left the puppy behind. That night we went to bed hungry, wet and exhausted.

The second day we ate wild sorrel, broiled ferns and skunk cabbage.

BY THE third day we were listless and wobbly, talking of nothing but food.

Then Mrs. Bjerke, a 100-pound elf who grew up on the Oregon coast hunting bullfrogs, clubbed a water snake to death. Another crew came up with a sack of salamanders. Someone caught a frog.

We ate only the tails of the salamander, but were so hungry we used them twice: once boiled for soup and then roasted to eat like shrimp. You must be very hungry to spend 10 minutes skinning one tail, but we were very hungry.

The snake, cut up, was soup, boiled and roasted. Actually, all reptiles are edible. Bjerke said the poisonous ones — such as rattlesnakes — actually taste the best. We never saw any to check.

More than a mile above sea level with snow still melting we saw deer tracks only once and one squirrel as we hiked out. So we had to rely on the plants we picked on the way up and on the streams.

There always were streams to fish or to fall into, and fish, baked or smoked, formed the basis of our diet the final days — after we reached Dark Lake, where the fish were biting.

Bjerke said most plants are edible. To test one, put about a teaspoon in your mouth, chew it five minutes and if there is no stinging, swallow it. Wait eight hours. If you have suffered no ill effect, eat more of it.

ON the fifth day, manna fell from heaven, on two orange and white parachutes. Food for one day was dropped — a chicken, potatoes, carrots, bread, ice cream and candy bars.

The whole crew was up at daylight to begin marking the bluff for the air drop — burning green boughs, and a smoke bomb, strewing yellow and red shirts and ponchos on the rocks, and flashing mirrors.

By the eighth and final night, we agreed water was the most important concern in the wilderness. Then warmth, dryness and food, in that order.

It is Bjerke's theory that nature and the elements are neither special friends nor enemies — that it is up to the individual and how he treats them whether he survives.

I survived, and if I can, anyone can.

Kennedy-Mesta rivalry rocks capital

By ART BUCHWALD
 As everyone knows, the most important crisis in Washington in the last six months was when Perle Mesta and Sen. Teddy Kennedy both gave parties on the same night in their respective homes a few weeks ago.

As time goes on, the bits and pieces of what took place on that fateful night are being put in place and I've been able to put most of them together.

This apparently is what happened. At three o'clock on Thursday Washington was telephoned and told to stand by for an important story.

They weren't given any hint of what it was, excepting that the Joint Chiefs of Staff were holding an emergency session and all caterers in Washington had been put on a red alert.

THE SOCIETY gals immediately started calling their sources and by seven o'clock in the morning it was known that Washington was telephoned and told to stand by for an important story.

IT WAS the shot heard round the world. As the evening wore on, guests nervously looked at their watches. When 11 o'clock struck, everyone held their breath.

But, as luck would have it, Sen. Mansfield lost his nerve. He thanked Mrs. Mesta for the party and then picked up his wife and drove over to the Kennedy dance.

French intelligence sources say the Viet Cong is using the paychecks of American servicemen to finance its war in South Viet Nam. The Insider's Newsletter reported today.

In Saigon alone, some 4,500 bars and cabarets have opened in the past 18 months and are attracting American soldiers and Marines with time and money to spend.

According to the Newsletter, many of the Bars are believed to be run by Viet Cong sympathizers and — while it's illegal to demand payment in American dollars — practically every bar was a money-changer conveniently stationed at the door. Many of these money-changers are said to be in the employ of the Viet Cong.

Reader digs hoot

To the Editor:
 It is somewhat gratifying to behold a crowd of some 300 (?) spectators at last Friday's Hootenanny. While this audience was by and large tight-lipped, it was by no means cold; indeed, we observed eyes both old and young glowing, even sparkling with enthusiasm. And the fact that, once guitar and banjo strings started being plucked, almost no one drifted away or otherwise acted disapprovingly, testifies strongly, we believe, to the Hootenanny's success.

To us the affair was most agreeable. We thought the music grand, the singing soothing, the hand-clapping a little disturbing but welcome nonetheless. As for the invasion and subsequent ill-timed announcement by the chap in the squad car, well, we all must earn our bread somehow, so we forgive him. And as for you lovers who snuggled and embraced now and then behind the scenes, thereby diverting our attention from other performers, we forgive you as well.

All in all, the Hootenanny's success gives rise to optimism. Hopefully, word of it will spread and, whenever future events spring up, fond memories of a chilly July evening spent or heard of will serve to spur people to walk or motor to them.

Finally may we say that our initial views, revealed in this column in recent weeks, have taken a turn. Because we now realize that there is hope, we are no longer sulking in despair. Our faith in impoverished humanity has been much strengthened.

Bravo, humanity!

Latin Americans are confident

(The writer of this analysis, back from a swing through Latin America, has been interviewing U.S. officials who deal with that area.)
 By WILLIAM L. RYAN
 AP Special Correspondent

A heady brew is bubbling in much of Latin America. There is excitement in the air, stirred by the idea that a social revolution is on the way and that it can be accomplished peacefully.

This is not true of all 20 nations. Some are as badly mired as ever in swamps of backwardness. But rising confidence is easily detected in many countries.

There is nervousness, too. Some new explosion in the hemisphere could interrupt a momentum gained in recent years.

PARADOXICALLY, the Dominican Republic crisis has helped bolster confidence. Explosions expected in its wake failed to materialize. If it had happened five or six years before, few doubt that virtually the whole continent would have been in uproar.

The conclusion was that extremists lacked either strength or public support to capitalize on what should have been an ideal situation for them — the unilateral Yankee intervention in a Latin nation.

What happened in the interim to produce the change? Mostly, say U.S. sources directly concerned with the area, there has been a change in attitude. It took several years to get the Alliance for Progress under way, but now it is gathering momentum.

Programs now going forward have had important impact on education, culture and ideology. The big effort has been in education. For the young men, accustomed to frustration, there are now alternatives to extremes and violent revolutionary action.

AT THE start, the alliance heavily stressed the building of schools — the physical plants. But it learned buildings alone were not the answer. Now the buildings come only after there is progress in over-all reform programs, specific plans for a whole range of the educational program. All this represents a joining of the contest for student sympathies, in which the Communists for a long time had an upper hand.

Something else is going on which would have been unthinkable a few years ago. Rich men are complaining about taxes. They did not complain in the past because they did not pay taxes. A few years ago it was almost impossible to talk about tax reforms. Today, some edu-tries collect taxes on graduated scales similar to those of the United States. Internal Revenue Service teams were successful enough in some areas to convince even the most hidebound that paying taxes is a necessity.

In Washington, one high U.S. source commented: "It's hard to say when the change took place — as hard as to put an exact date on the Rehearsance."

Eventually, said this informant, if the alliance is to raise its effectiveness, the ante will have to be raised. The United States now invests $1 billion a year in it, but the capacity of Latin America to absorb help is growing.

But who's so unreal?

Tuck your shirt in

WE'VE NEVER BEEN particularly concerned about what kinds of clothes a person wears, since the whole idea of fashion is primarily a concoction of Madison Avenue to get the money of rich fools who are easily led astray.

People who pay particularly close attention to the labels and brand names on the clothes they and their acquaintances wear are at best snobs, at worst psychotics. Any man who thinks his $7 or $10 shirt makes him better than another man with a $3 or $5 shirt cannot be altogether stable.

Of course, one can go to extremes. Sloppiness in dress and personal grooming is often a sign of laziness in a person. Often — but not always.

What a person does with himself is his business. He should be encouraged to be neatly dressed and well groomed, but if he chooses to be sloppy, that's his choice to make.

The Dubuque school system evidently doesn't agree that this is the case.

They have instituted a "code" of dress up there for pupils which goes a bit far. It outlaws slacks, culottes and shorts along with tight sweaters, low necklines and tight skirts. Boys cannot wear jeans, levis, tight pants or boots.

Some of these rules are sensible enough, but other are a bit silly.

How, for example, is a teacher to decide when a girl's dress is too tight, or if her necktie is too low?

Girls are forbidden to wear stockings with designs. We agree that such stockings are detestable, but, what argument may be given for banning them besides the fact that they look terrible? Is the Dubuque school system giving official aid and comfort to leg watchers?

The code also outlaws "extreme" hair styles. What would happen if a girl got caught in a rainstorm on her way to school — would she be sent home for carrying that "wind-blown look" to an extreme?

Probably the biggest effect, Dubuque's new clothing code will have, will be, to make the kids wish they could indulge in kooky fashions. It might even lead rebellious youth to change clothes immediately after school — shedding slacks and sweaters for boots and levis.

People should care enough about themselves to look decent to others, but this should be a voluntary action. Enforced good grooming carried to an extreme is not the answer to the needs of today's youth.

The tax pie

JUST ABOUT EVERYONE'S doing it — raising taxes, that is. Iowans who complain about higher gasoline and cigarette taxes will find that if they go on a very extensive vacation, most every state has raised sales taxes, cigarette taxes, beer taxes and gas taxes.

According to the Commerce Clearing House, for example, 20 states have increased their cigarette taxes so far this year. In Texas and Washington the state gets 11 cents a pack.

According to the Clearing House, 25 states have raised gasoline taxes in the past 10 years, 28 states have either enacted or raised general sales taxes, and 45 states have legislated new or increased cigarette taxes.

All this should serve as some sort of an answer to the states' rights champions who keep yelling about the Federal octopus and the power grab it is making. While all these state taxes have been growing in one area and another the Federal Government has made two significant tax cuts to stimulate the economy.

This is as it should be. State run services (such as the University of Iowa, for example) must grow by leaps and bounds to accommodate population increases.

As the Federal Government frees more and more money for spending through tax cuts, the states should step in and take a bit of the pie.

This is the only way to finance the increased services which are being ever demanded of the states.

Unfortunately, this trend is not moving fast enough — at least it isn't in Iowa. Witness the recent tuition increase as an indication of this. —Editorials by Jon Van

Iowa City Soapbox Derby Day

It Happens to the Best

Bremer's Class A soapbox racer hit the curbing during a pre race practice run and adults and the driver, Dennis Faucett combined efforts to get the vehicle back in running condition before the race began. They succeeded.

Ready To Go

Drivers scurried for their cars behind the starting line as the race neared. Fifty boys between the ages of 11 and 15 entered the first soapbox derby held in Iowa City in twenty years. The derby was co-sponsored by Nall Motor Co. and the Iowa City Optimist Club.

Instruction

The official starter, Ron Cochran, gives last minute advice to the drivers. The races were run in two-car heat eliminations.

Crowd Lines Race Route

More than 1000 persons lined the race route from the top of the First Avenue hill north of Court Street to the finish line two blocks away. The race was conducted under bright, clear, sunny skies. It lasted about three hours.

Daily Iowan Photofeature

—By Mike Toner

View from the Top

For some the press of the crowd near the race course was just too much and the loftier perch with the antennas and the birds was more appealing for these young ladies atop a house on Mayfair Road.

The Young Racers

All wearing Optimist Club T-shirts and official crash helmets, the drivers clustered around the starting ramp for instructions at the beginning of the second series of heats. Ages ranged from 11 to 15.

Oh Sister . . .

Things were often just as tense for the spectators as the driving was for the youngsters. The sight of a son, or a neighbor's son winning often caused even the most reserved to cheer.

6,296 Summer Jobs Offered to Iowa Youth

Iowa employers have offered 6,296 jobs for young people in response to President Johnson's Youth Opportunity Campaign, the U.S. Department of Labor announced Monday.

Johnson appealed to the nation's employers to provide jobs for the 2 million youths, 16 through 21 years of age, who are looking for summer employment. The original goal was set at 500,000 summer jobs for youths, but because of the success of the program to date, a new goal of 750,000 has been set.

Willard's Fashion News from California by Miriam Eisma Cullen

It is a sort of "between seasons" period for all of us except the Designers, Manufacturers and merchants who have been creating and preparing for months — So — thought you would like to know our feelings about the fashions for Fall and Winter — We may have two months of warm-to-hot weather in Iowa as in California — On the other hand, most of you are well prepared for this and should you need to supplement your summer wardrobe you may add many extra pieces now at reduced prices. Particularly those of you who are still planning vacations at resort areas: in July and August will need lots of summer sportswear — But there are so many kinds of trips planned — near and far — at home and abroad — to mountains or cities — These are months when you need to stay cool in hot weather — to travel without being mugged — to be dressed right for any occasion after arrival — to be "with-it" in every style-wise way, and for these reasons, we admire and marvel at the adaptability of the dark dacton sheers, the travel cottons, and the wondrous blends, which are indispensable for this transition period — Cool for summer and fallish for Fall. There is no reason at all not to have the right clothes for your special Vacation Trip.

WE hinted in a previous write-up of the "Courreges" Look and its influence on many of next season's dresses, coats, and suits — Courreges being the most talked of Designer of Paris at the moment, at least among many of our American Designers — His look suggests Simplicity more than anything — and the low, low, waistline — The look is sculptured and his dresses, and costumes are very, very, short. In one show room, I saw elegant suits, with a long or 3/4 length coat of leather or suede over a wonderful little dress of wool knit jersey to match or contrast — all the models wore white boots.

Completely opposite is the "Get With It Look" from London — which is generally to be found in Juniors and Petite Jrs. — One well known line which Willard's carries portrays this look extensively. This is "Garey Petite Juniors" of Los Angeles. Generally, it's also very short in length but high waisted — also called the "Mod Look" which is slightly different from the Empire look — Complete wardrobes for the back to school — or any petite miss — The "With it Look" whisks you into a new world and was created by the young doers of our time. Unusual combinations — ruffles and bows — pin dots on plaid wools — ruffles on provincial prints — Paisley and the new cords, This is the Garey Girl.

The "Total Look" in sportswear is a thing for college girls and teen-ages — and many more; it's an authentic Scotch Tartan Clan Plaid Kiltie skirt, with co-ordinating sweater matching the long British stockings, and maybe a swinging scarf and Tam-O-Shanter. We have a real British Import line for this look — and you have never seen anything so wonderful; See in August Magazines.

So long Au Revoir until next month

New Health Education Program Begins Here

By LINDA NOLAN Staff Writer

The national impetus in the direction of vocational and technical training has brought a major new department to the University.

The University recently announced the establishment of a program in health occupations education in the Division of Medical Services, according to Robert C. Hardin, division dean.

Named director of the new program was Elizabeth E. Kerr, assistant professor in the College of Nursing. Miss Kerr is also state consultant for health occupations education, Division of Vocational Education, Iowa State Department of Public Instruction.

Miss Kerr, a graduate of St. Luke's Hospital School of Professional Nursing in Chicago, received both her BA in sociology and anthropology and her MA in educational administration from the University.

In 1952 she was appointed to the faculty of the demonstration program of practical nurse education in the University College of Nursing and served as its chairman from 1955 through 1958 at which time she was appointed to her present position.

"This new program," said Miss Kerr, "aims toward meeting the challenge of rapid technological and social changes which have direct implications for health education. There is a critical need," she emphasized, "to prepare, in educational programs requiring less than a four-year degree from college for health workers such as practical nurses, medical assistants, dental assistants, and medical laboratory assistants."

Miss Kerr is responsible for providing guidance in the establishment of these programs in colleges and technological schools throughout the state. She explained that it usually takes a year to establish one department. Then she must act in an advisory capacity for the division and aid in its expansion.

IN THE LAST YEAR 15 departments have been established through the efforts of Miss Kerr. She expressed the hope that at least eight more will be established in the coming year.

The new division will function in the same manner as the previous system but on a larger scale. Miss Kerr said she will head a staff of research and consultant assistants adequate to meet the needs of the program throughout the state.

Each of the programs in a community will work with the professional association most closely related to it. For example the dental programs will be developed in conjunction with the American Dental Society.

The time required for education in each of these divisions varies since each field requires different amounts of work to bring students to the proper level of competency.

THE PRACTICAL NURSE is qualified to assume nursing duties for patients in a simple situation and assist a professional nurse in a complex situation.

The medical assistant is qualified to assist a doctor and the dental assistant is qualified to assist a dentist at the chairside. The laboratory assistant assists the pathology laboratory technician.

At present there are no dental programs in Iowa but they will be formed in the coming year.

A student in one of these courses of study will spend approximately one-third of his time in the classroom and the other two-thirds under supervision in a clinical situation.

FEDERAL FUNDS ARE available through the Iowa Department of Public Instruction to assist in establishment and implementation of the programs. The University has been requested by the Division of Vocational Education to provide guidance and consultant services for local communities as they move to establish or expand their health occupations education programs.

In addition to providing guidance and consultant services, this new program at the University will also involve considerable research.

Banker Paulson Over-friendly lender

Loans Cost Iowa Banker Three Years

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP) — Laverne J. Paulson, 54, resigned vice president and cashier of the Mechanicsville Trust and Savings Bank, was sentenced Monday to three years in federal prison.

Paulson had pleaded guilty June 18 to charges of listing three non-existent loans totaling $31,200 in the bank's loan register.

Federal Judge Edward J. McManus sentenced Paulson to three years on one count and two years on each of the other two, but specified the sentences will run concurrently.

Paulson was taken to the Linn County Jail to await assignment to a federal correctional institution where he will serve his sentence.

Asked by McManus if he had anything to say, Paulson answered that he was "very, very sorry."

He said he had been making similar false entries over about seven years, but had not kept track of the amount taken.

"I just couldn't tell you," he said, when McManus asked him what he had done with the money.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Ivan Hossack said the government estimates the total taken between $90,000 and $100,000. But Paulson said it did not seem possible it could be that much.

2 Ways Used In Teaching German, Here

The German Department has made effective use of the combination of the traditional method of teaching language through reading and the modern method of speaking and writing, according to Milton Zagel, department chairman.

The department offers more than 60 courses which help to fulfill not only the requirements for a German major but for those majoring in liberal arts.

"The primary function of the German Department is to transmit to American students of liberal arts a knowledge of the language and literature, the civilization and culture traditionally designated as German," Zagel said.

He added that although University graduates with a major in German ordinarily enter teaching, they may also find positions in government and commercial enterprises where their specialized knowledge of the language, literature, history and culture of Germany is indispensable.

City Meeting Tonight

Funds for a second planning study are expected to be considered at the Iowa City City Council's first meeting as a local urban renewal planning agency at 7:30 p.m. today in the Civic Center.

The proposed new study involves an area from Court St. to the Rock Island Railroad tracks. Approximately $300,000 in federal funds has been made available for an urban renewal study now under way of the 20 block downtown business district.

The meeting is open to all citizens interested in urban renewal developments.

Dialing Changes for City

Aren't you glad you dial? Don't you wish everyone did?

Beginning at 12:01 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 1, more people will. Then Iowa City's new telephone system will go into effect, enabling phoned to dial directly for all calls to the University and many long distance calls.

THE SYSTEM will cost $2,150,000. Included are miles of new cable needed to improve service and to connect the University's new Centrex system with the Northwestern Bell dial switching center.

Under the Centrex system, calls from an Iowa City telephone to a University extension will be made by dialing all seven digits of the numbers. Outsiders will not need to go through the University operator to place their call, as they do now.

Calls within the University will be made by dialing the last five digits of the listed number, instead of the present four digits.

All University telephones except those in the General Hospital and Children's Hospital will be on the Centrex system. Both of the hospitals will be reached from a University phone by dialing 172 and then the hospital extension.

TO PREPARE for the Centrex change-over, no telephone installations, moves, revisions or changes have been accepted in the University during July.

To prepare University staff members for the new numbers game, a series of orientation meetings will be held by the University News Service. The first will be at 2 p.m. today in 103 East Hall Annex.

Others will be at 2 p.m. Thursday in Shambaugh Auditorium, at 2 p.m. July 20 in the House Chamber of Old Capitol, and at 2 p.m. July 22 in 100 Pharmacy Building.

UNDER THE direct distance dialing, customers will be able to dial their own station-to-station calls to more than 90,000,000 telephones throughout the continental United States and Canada with 11 or fewer digits.

According to Roy Williams, Northwestern Bell manager, only coin telephones and a few others will not have the direct dialing service.

Williams explained that calls would be placed more quickly under the new system and that it was as simple as A-B-C to use.

"A — dial '1' to connect to the long distance network," he said. "B — dial the area code, if different from our area code, 319, and C — dial the telephone number.

"IF AN OPERATOR requests your number, give her the number of the phone from which you are calling."

Callers within the University Centrex system will also be able to dial directly. First they will have to dial 9 to reach an outside line, then they will proceed with the A-B-C steps.

DORMITORY callers will give their telephone identification numbers when asked by the operator. These numbers were already distributed last fall in preparation for the telephone switch-over.

Person-to-person calls, collect calls, conference calls with other cities, calls from coin telephones and calls billed to another number or to a credit card will still have to be handled by an operator.

Senate Committee Studies Car Safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — What will it cost and who foots the bill? These will be two of the big questions today when a Senate subcommittee begins quizzing automobile executives on efforts to build more safety into passenger cars.

"I am convinced that people will pay a few dollars more for a safer car," said Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.), chairman of the subcommittee on Executive Reorganization.

General Motors President James M. Roche, Board Chairman Fredric G. Donner and Vice President Harry F. Barr are to be leadoff witnesses today.

Executives from Chrysler Corp., American Motors and Ford Motor Co. will follow.

Ribicoff estimates a series of extra safety features, soon to be required on government automobiles, could be made standard equipment on all cars for about $100 apiece.

The Connecticut senator and his aides report a heavy flow of mail endorsing safety efforts. But few of the letters mention the extra cost.

The hearings this week will concentrate on the equipment aspects of highway safety.

Ceramics Display By Visiting Prof

Some 30 ceramic works by Prof. John H. Stephenson and Mrs. Stephenson, many of which were produced with techniques learned by the Stephensons during a year's study in Japan, are on exhibition in the east foyer of the Art Building, where they will be shown through Saturday.

Stephenson is a visiting lecturer in ceramics during the summer session. He is an associate professor of art at the University of Michigan, where he has been on the faculty since 1959.

Stephenson has just received a gold medal for winning fourth place in the 23rd annual International Ceramics Competition in the city of Faenza, Italy. He and a Swedish artist who placed first in this year's show were the first foreigners to win awards in the history of the competition. Mrs. Stephenson, who teaches art at Eastern Michigan College, Ypsilanti, Mich., is also represented in the Faenza show.

Building Halt Asked by City

No decision has yet been made on the construction of the multi-unit apartments by the Muscatine Development Co.

Judge Louis P. Gaffney, who presided at the hearing Monday, will review both sides and make a decision within 10 days, according to defense attorney Roger H. Ivie.

Iowa City has asked the court to grant a temporary injunction stopping the construction of the apartments and demanding the removal of what has already been built.

The Muscatine Development Co. began construction of the 18 apartment buildings with a total of 72 units, directly west of Melrose Park at the edge of University Heights.

After Iowa City annexed the land last Tuesday, the building conflicted with city zoning laws.

The amount of money already invested was the main issue, Ivie said.

An Institute for Advanced Study in English, under the auspices of the National Defense Education Act, is in session this summer at the University.

Attending are 49 secondary school English teachers who did not major in English at college.

Supported for the first time this year by the U.S. Office of Education, the University was able to enrich its program this year, to waive tuition fees and to provide each participant with a stipend of $75 per week.

Three graduate courses are being offered for the teachers. They are a course in modern English grammar, a course in advanced composition and a course in criticism and interpretation of literature.

These courses are offered for a period of six weeks. The final two weeks of the session will be a workshop to help the teachers apply what they have learned to their teaching next year.

Participants also attend informal Monday evening programs, which usually begin with a planned presentation and end with an open discussion. Presentations include lectures, social visits, movies and a poetry reading.

Most of the participating teachers are from Iowa, but nine are from southern states. Dr. Richard Bradbrook, associate professor of English and director of the Institute, said that Southern teachers come to the University because the federal government does not provide funds to states which planned to segregate the institute.

The Iowa institute is one of 105 similar ones backed by NDEA funds being held throughout the country.

—Regents Appoint— 3 Faculty Members

Three appointments to the faculty of the University of Iowa were approved by the State Board of Regents here Friday. The board also approved one leave of absence.

Named to the U of I faculty were John E. Grant and David Hayman, both to be Professors of English, effective Sept. 1, and A.S. Norris, to be associate professor of psychiatry, effective July 1.

A leave of absence for the 1965-66 academic year was approved for Willis B. Person, associate professor of chemistry, who will accept a position as a visiting associate professor of chemistry at the University of Chicago.

Grant is presently at the University of Connecticut.

Art Exhibits

Paintings and sculpture by Allen G. Blizzard, who holds M.F.A. and Ph.D. degrees from The University of Iowa, will be on exhibition through Aug. 6 at the Adele Bedharz Galleries in Los Angeles.

A native of Boston, Dr. Blizzard was awarded an M.F.A. Degree with a major in painting in 1956, and a Ph.D. Degree in the history of art in 1958 by the U of I. He is a member of the faculty of the University of California at Los Angeles. His works have been featured in several one-man shows and in some 40 group exhibitions.

A solo exhibition of paintings and drawings by Robert Knipschild, associate professor of art, will be on exhibition through July at the University of Omaha, Omaha, Neb.

According to a review of the show in last Sunday's Omaha World-Herald, the oil painting "Autumn Landscape" "keynotes the show effectively with earthy darks, Rembrandtesque glazes in gold tones, and a pervading restfulness which does not rule out romantic excursions into a highly personal world."

Most of the paintings shown are landscapes. The drawings are studies in charcoal and chalk of shorelines and rocks.

Red Cross Meeting Hears Discussion Of Water Safety

A meeting of Johnson County water safety officials recently concluded that a lack of education in water safety is the prime cause of the recent increase in water accidents.

The meeting, which included all county officials involved in the promotion of water safety, was called by the county Red Cross chapter.

The purpose of the meeting, according to William D. VanAtta, Johnson County Red Cross water safety chairman, was to coordinate the efforts of county officials in spreading water safety education throughout the county.

Harold Smith of the Coast Guard Auxiliary said that water safety was much more important than legislation to restrict water recreation. New laws would simply increase the temptation for individuals to enter dangerous areas, he said.

One of the main problems cited by the Coast Guard Auxiliary was that more than half of the people who use Johnson County's water recreation areas are from out of the county, and the educational efforts will not be able to reach them.

Maynard E. Schneider, Johnson County Sheriff, said, however, that though this emphasis on education would be a big step toward preventing water accidents, it wouldn't solve the problem.

Communities Agree To Support Health Board

All communities in Johnson County have now agreed to support the formation of a Johnson County Health Board here.

A delegation of local officials that has worked to gain support from all county agencies met recently in the Civic Center.

The delegation will request the Johnson County Board of Supervisors for appointment of a county health board Monday.

Swisher had delayed the formation of the board for the past six months after all the other communities in the county had approved.

Eight Seated In First Day Of Brown Trial

CLEVELAND (AP) — Eight jurors — most of whom are not football fans — were questioned Monday in the opening day of the trial of professional fullback Jim Brown.

Five women and three men were seated tentatively after careful questioning by Police Prosecutor Al Corsi and Defense Atty. Norman Minor.

Brown, 29-year-old All-Pro fullback of the National Football League, champion Cleveland Browns, is charged with assault and battery against Miss Brenda Ayres, 18.

Tentative seating of the jury continues in Municipal Court Tuesday at 9 a.m., EDT. Then lawyers for both sides may exercise challenges and replace some jurors.

Both Corsi and Minor took special note to point out the meaning of circumstantial evidence. Brown has pleaded innocent and declined to make pre-trial comment to the charge by Miss Ayres that he slapped her in an East Side Motel on the night of June 19.

Neither side has indicated it knows of any witnesses to the alleged incident. Conviction on the assault and battery charge carries a maximum penalty of six months in jail and a $200 fine.

Brown, married since 1958 and father of three, has led the NFL in rushing in seven of the eight years he's played in it.

Dubuque Star Is Defeated By Ralston

RIVERFOREST, Ill. (AP) — Top-seeded Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., advanced to the second round of the National Clay Courts Tennis Championships Monday with an easy victory over Mike Sprengelmeyer of Dubuque, Iowa.

Ralston, 22, No. 1 national player and defending champion of the meet, won his match 6-2, 6-0.

Nancy Richey, also No. 1 national player and the defending champion, outlasted Connie Cristler of Shawnee Mission, Kan., 6-2, 6-2. Miss Richey of Dallas, Tex., is top-seeded in the women's division.

Two major upsets were scored in men's play when Walter Johnson of Atlanta, Ga., and Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., knocked off the nation's 12th and 13th-ranked players, respectively.

Smith, 18, the National Boys' champion, upset 12th-ranked Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico, 6-3, 7-5. Johnson eliminated 13th-ranked Tom Edelesen of Los Angeles 7-5, 6-2.

In other action, fifth-seeded Hamilton Richardson of Dallas, Tex., defeated Jeff Brown of Carmichael, Calif., 6-2, 6-0.

Student from SCI Shares Golf Lead

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A Pittsburgh high school student and an Iowa college boy shot even 71s Monday to lead a field of 150 in the first of two 18-hole qualifying rounds for the National Public Links Golf Championship.

James B. Masserio, 16-year-old senior at Pittsburgh's Baldwin High School and holder of the 1964 state and city senior Publix titles, put together nines of 34-37 but drew a rebuke for slow play.

Tying the bespectacled thin Masserio was Alan Jon Bailey, 19-year-old student at the State College of Iowa. Bailey, who holds Cedar Rapids and Mason City, Iowa, amateur titles, had even par nines of 36-35 over the hilly, baked out North Park Golf Course.

Speedy Scot Will Race International Winners

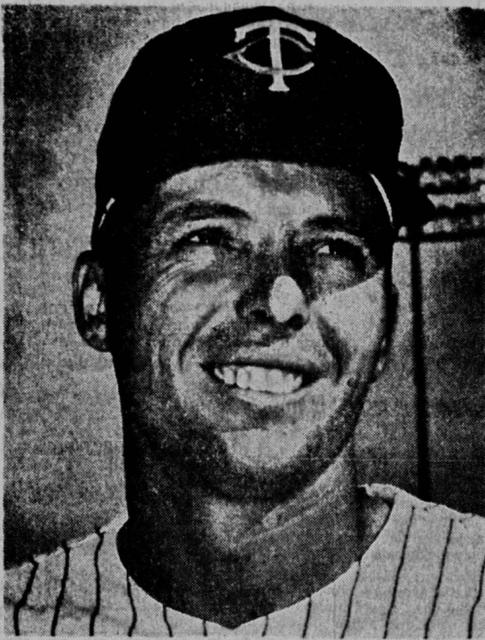

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Speedy Scot, beaten in the Roosevelt International last Saturday night, will attempt to regain prestige by taking on the first four International finishers over a grueling 1 1/2-mile route Saturday at Roosevelt Raceway.

Speedy Scot, from the Castleton Farm, broke stride while bidding for the lead in the 1 1/2-mile International and finished fifth. Trainer-driver Ralph Baldwin said immediately he would try again in the longer Challenge Cup, worth $25,000.

JIMMIE HALL MVP Award?

Twins' Hall Makes Bid for MVP Honor

By BEN OLAN Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmie Hall of the pace-setting Minnesota Twins, making a strong run for the American League batting lead, must also be considered among the circuit's most valuable players at the season's halfway mark. He leads the league in batting with a .325 mark and runs batted in with 52. He also shares the club home run lead with slugger Harmon Killebrew.

The 27-year-old North Carolinian tops the Twins in batting New York Sunday and enabled Minnesota to take a five-game lead in the pennant race. Both Hall and Killebrew have 16 circuit blows.

Hall hit .448 in last week's games. He collected 13 hits in 29 times at bat, picked up 14 points and moved into second place in the AL batting competition.

THE LEADER, Boston's Carl Yastrzemski, has been sidelined with an injured leg since July 2. He is batting .340.

Vic Davalillo of Cleveland dropped to third place at .321. He slumped 14 points with only six hits in 31 attempts. Felix Mantilla of Boston also fell one notch to fourth at .316. His average dipped eight points on a 5-for-23 performance. Willie Horton, Detroit outfielder, held the No. 5 spot despite a three-point drop to .306.

Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants took over the National League lead with a .339 average. The veteran outfielder gained six points with nine hits in 22 tries and took the top position from Philadelphia's Richie Allen, who slipped to fourth.

PITTSBURGH'S Roberto Clemente is only one point behind Mays at .338. He climbed five points with a 14-for-38 showing. Allen and Pittsburgh's Donn Clendenon are tied for third at .328, followed by Hank Aaron of Milwaukee with .326.

Mays continued to hold the NL home run lead with 23. Ernie Banks of Chicago and Deron Johnson of Cincinnati are tied for the most runs batted in with 68.

Rocky Colavito of Cleveland and Detroit's Horton are tied for the AL home run lead with 20. Colavito drove in two runs last week and took over sole possession of the RBI lead with 61.

Mauch got a close-up look at the 14-game winner Saturday night when he shut out the Phillies 7-0 on two hits. The 26-year-old right-hander has a fantastic 1.55 earned run average and has completed 15 of 20 starts.

Mauch hinted Cincinnati's Jim Maloney, who has a 10-4 record, would be his second pitcher and said all eight might work if needed. No pitcher can work more than three innings unless the game goes into overtime.

AL LOPEZ of the Chicago White Sox, filling in as American League manager because Yogi Berra was fired after winning the 1964 pennant with the New York Yankees, didn't make the noon news conference but sent word that Pappas would be his pitcher.

Pappas, a 26-year-old right-hander, has a 9-3 record with a 1.74 ERA for the Orioles. He shut out the White Sox with four hits Friday night. Jim Grant of the home town Minnesota Twins and Mel Stottlemyre of the New York Yankees might follow up.

Mauch surprised many by putting Mays in the leadoff position.

"If there is a chance for anybody to be up five times, I'd like to have it be Willie," said Mauch.

Mauch spotted second baseman Pete Rose of Cincinnati No. 7 in the order and fleet shortstop Maury Wills of Los Angeles in the No. 8 position.

"I would like them to be on base when Willie comes up," he explained. "But if it's tied in the late innings I want Willie or Hank Aaron coming up because they could win it with one swing of the bat."

The statistics give the Nationals a 12-point edge in batting with a composite average of .296 to the Americans' .284. National League sluggers have hit 200 home runs to 178 by the Americans, who used to dominate in this department.

MAUCH HAS LONG-BALL power in left fielder Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh, center fielder Mays, right fielder Aaron of Milwaukee, first baseman Ernie Banks of Chicago, third baseman Richie Allen of the Phils and catcher Joe Torre of Milwaukee. Rose is a hustling consistent hitter and Wills already has stolen 55 bases in a drive on his own record.

The American League moved Harmon Killebrew of the Twins into the starting line-up at first base when Chicago's Bill Skowron had to give way because of an injury. The Killer beat the Yankees Sunday with a dramatic ninth-inning homer.

Other power men in the American starting line-up include left fielder Willie Horton of Detroit, right fielder Rocky Colavito of Cleveland, second baseman Felix Mantilla of Boston and shortstop Dick McAuliffe of Detroit.

Third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore and catcher Earl Battey of the Twins can hit the long one occasionally, and center fielder Vic Davalillo of Cleveland is hitting .321.

ALL STARTERS, except the pitchers, were picked by the players, coaches and managers. They must play at least the first three innings.

This is the first time since 1943 that no New York Yankees are in the starting line-up, although four are on the squad since first baseman Joe Pepitone has been named as a replacement for Skowron on the 25-man roster.

Pappas worked the ninth inning of the second All-Star game in 1962 at Chicago. That was the last American League victory, but he was not the winner. The National has won six of the last eight and one of the others was a tie.

Lopez is 0-4 as an All-Star manager. This is Mauch's first effort after serving as a coach in 1961 and 1963.

In All-Star Game—

Marichal To Face Pappas Today

By JACK HAND Associated Press Sports Writer ST. PAUL — MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Juan Marichal, the high-kicking ace pitcher of the San Francisco Giants, will face fiery Milt Pappas of Baltimore in Tuesday's 36th All-Star baseball game before 47,000 fans at enlarged Metropolitan Stadium.

Although Willie Mays still is aching from a home-plate collision with Pat Corrales Saturday and may see only limited action, the National League remained a 7-5 favorite over the American League team.

The game starts at 1 p.m., EST, with network radio and television via NBC.

The National League, which once trailed 12-4 in the series dating back to 1933, pulled even at 17-17 last year by winning at New York's Shea Stadium on Johnny Callison's three-run homer in the ninth.

GENE MAUCH, Philadelphia manager who got the NL All-Star managerial job because St. Louis' Johnny Keane shifted to the New York Yankees, named Marichal as his starter.

ALL STARTERS, except the pitchers, were picked by the players, coaches and managers. They must play at least the first three innings.

This is the first time since 1943 that no New York Yankees are in the starting line-up, although four are on the squad since first baseman Joe Pepitone has been named as a replacement for Skowron on the 25-man roster.

Pappas worked the ninth inning of the second All-Star game in 1962 at Chicago. That was the last American League victory, but he was not the winner. The National has won six of the last eight and one of the others was a tie.

Lopez is 0-4 as an All-Star manager. This is Mauch's first effort after serving as a coach in 1961 and 1963.

Mauch spotted second baseman Pete Rose of Cincinnati No. 7 in the order and fleet shortstop Maury Wills of Los Angeles in the No. 8 position.

"I would like them to be on base when Willie comes up," he explained. "But if it's tied in the late innings I want Willie or Hank Aaron coming up because they could win it with one swing of the bat."

The statistics give the Nationals a 12-point edge in batting with a composite average of .296 to the Americans' .284. National League sluggers have hit 200 home runs to 178 by the Americans, who used to dominate in this department.

MAUCH HAS LONG-BALL power in left fielder Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh, center fielder Mays, right fielder Aaron of Milwaukee, first baseman Ernie Banks of Chicago, third baseman Richie Allen of the Phils and catcher Joe Torre of Milwaukee. Rose is a hustling consistent hitter and Wills already has stolen 55 bases in a drive on his own record.

The American League moved Harmon Killebrew of the Twins into the starting line-up at first base when Chicago's Bill Skowron had to give way because of an injury. The Killer beat the Yankees Sunday with a dramatic ninth-inning homer.

Other power men in the American starting line-up include left fielder Willie Horton of Detroit, right fielder Rocky Colavito of Cleveland, second baseman Felix Mantilla of Boston and shortstop Dick McAuliffe of Detroit.

Third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore and catcher Earl Battey of the Twins can hit the long one occasionally, and center fielder Vic Davalillo of Cleveland is hitting .321.
