

National League Takes Crown

Pitcher Juan Marichal, National League, got into this angular position while working in the second inning against American Leaguers in the All-Star game Tuesday.

As the starting pitcher, Marichal was voted most valuable player, following the National League win of 6-5.

Daily Iowan Offers Advice for $28 Suntan

By LINDA NOLAN Staff Writer

The minute that you finish reading this newspaper, don't walk, run to the telephone and dial 337-9633. After the tone you will hear "instant weather brought to you in the public interest by KXIC." Tuesday the heat and the humidity got an "A" for effort, since they both reached the upper 90's.

This message will tell you if today is a day for the "serious summer." The rule is that any sun is better than no sun at all. And a smooth, deep, rich, glowing suntan is an investment in beauty. Now get going, and here's the plan.

The best hours for tanning are from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., so you'll want to start early to get the prime rays of the sun.

AND TO GET "the fastest tan with maximum skin protection," you'll take along the right equipment. So collect your favorite straw hat, sun goggles, suntan lotion, lip salve, Solacane (a sun-burn medication) beach bag, radio, blanket, towel, favorite book, some food, cooler for cold drinks, and a small moving van to transport it to the beach.

But if it's "more sun for the money" that you want, you'll include all of these essentials in your baggage. A conservative estimate of the cost would be about $28, which may make this the most expensive thing you do for sometime.

Now "for a deeper tan with maximum skin protection" rub some of that suntan lotion on your shoulders. It will absorb the short ultraviolet rays but allow longer tanning rays to reach your skin. Got that?

DO PUT ON your polarized lenses, which will stop the reflected glare, your straw hat, and some lip salve. Keep the Solacane handy just in case something goes wrong.

Now spread everything out near the shore, pour yourself a glass of lemonade, and enjoy the sound of the waves lapping up the beach. Ah Heaven!

This may seem like a lot of effort, but just between you and the sun, a few days of this and you'll be the beauty of the beach. So enjoy every one of these sun-swept days. . . . Capture the lustrous glow of sunshine. . . . It's a surfer's dream day!

Draft May Be Boosted For Growing Viet War

Urban Renewal Area Expands By 30 Blocks

Council Voices Lack Between City, U of I In Projected Plans

By SUZANNE ANDERSON Staff Writer

Thirty more blocks of downtown Iowa City were added to the proposed urban renewal project by the Iowa City Council Tuesday night.

The Council, meeting at the Urban Renewal Local Planning Agency, adopted a resolution which included the area south of Court Street, east of the Iowa River, north of the Rock Island right-of-way and west of Gilbert Street in the urban renewal plan.

URBAN RENEWAL Director Arthur Westerbach said he recommended adding the area now while urban renewal was still in the planning stage.

"Hopefully we can plan the entire area at the same time," Westerbach said, "so that traffic and parking problems and problems with the University can be worked out at one time."

Bills totaling $25,294.68, the amount spent on urban renewal so far, were approved by the council.

Westerbach said that urban renewal, if it is undertaken, could take anywhere from three to five years, and planning for urban renewal would take approximately two years.

WESTERBACH replied that all advanced planning costs have been paid for by the Federal Government and would be repayable to the government only if Iowa City undertakes the program. Iowa City would then pay one-fourth of the total cost.

The association's letter also asked if the city planner, the city manager or the city council were aware of the University's development program announced by the Board of Regents Saturday. The Board approved the block west of the Johnson County Courthouse for a graduate dormitory and the block southwest for a low-cost dormitory.

City officials said they had no advanced notification of the University's plans.

COUNCILMAN Max Yocum said he had been trying to hold meetings between University and city officials ever since he got on the council.

Councilman William Maas also said he thought such meetings were important but that other council members were not as active in promoting such meetings.

The lack of meetings with University officials was not the fault of the rest of the council members, said Councilman James Nesmith. He added that he and other council members had met several times during the past year with people from the University.

Marines Kill 48 Viet Cong In 2 Battles

Leathernecks Suffer 5 Dead, 17 Wounded In Da Nang Clashes

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Marines battled the Viet Cong in two sectors near Da Nang Monday and are reported to have killed 48 of the guerrillas. A spokesman said Tuesday five Marines died and 17 were wounded.

One fight flamed only three miles southwest of Da Nang, where Marines were clearing an area the Communists might use for a mortar attack on the strategic base.

The other developed during a Marine mission that relieved an embattled Vietnamese government outpost 11 miles south of Da Nang, itself 380 miles northeast of Saigon.

Vietnamese government forces, gunning elsewhere for the Communist enemy, said they slew 42 in two engagements.

Militiamen said they accounted for 23 in a fight 220 miles northeast of Saigon in Phu Bai Province while losing four killed and four wounded from their own ranks. Nineteen were reported killed by a task force of regulars and militiamen in a sweep in Thua Thien Province near Phu Bai Airport, north of Da Nang.

The U.S. La army depot, 125 miles west-northwest of Hanoi, was again a target of the day in American air raids on North Viet Nam.

GIs Face Prospect Of Killing Women

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — American troops in Viet Nam face an ugly prospect — having to shoot women.

War in Viet Nam for decades has been a family affair, in which the delicate-looking women of the nation have fought beside their husbands.

President Johnson and Henry Cabot Lodge, ambassador-designate to South Viet Nam, who is returning there for a second time, took a walk on the grounds of the White House before conferring Tuesday night. LBJ Drops Hint At News Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson disclosed Tuesday he is considering expanding the draft and calling up military reservists to help fight the stepped-up war in Viet Nam.

Johnson told a news conference no decisions have been reached. But he said "the government is always considering every possibility and every eventuality."

On a more optimistic note, the President said he is encouraged because Russia has agreed to a month-old American proposal for resumption of disarmament talks at a 17-nation conference in Geneva.

The administration was surprised, but not too surprised to suggest starting talking again by July 27 at the latest.

JOHNSON ranged far and dug up an assortment of news nuggets at a nationally televised and broadcast session with reporters in the White House East Room.

One of the onlookers at the meeting was Thurgood Marshall, prominent Negro lawyer who argued the school desegregation case before the Supreme Court in 1954 and now is a judge in New York on the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The reason he came apparent quickly.

Johnson named him to be Solicitor General of the United States, and he will be back before the Supreme Court again, assuming Senate confirmation, arguing the government's cases there.

JOHNSON CALLED him the leading legal champion of equal rights under the law for a quarter century, one of the most distinguished advocates in the country.

"A lawyer and a judge of very high ability, a patriot of deep conviction, and a gentleman of undisputed integrity." The President invited Marshall to stand.

Johnson selected another lawyer, Leonard Marks of School Board Affirms Budget of $4,527,062

The Board of Directors of the Iowa City Community School District unanimously adopted a budget of $4,527,062 for 1965-1966 in its July meeting last night.

The budget is an increase of approximately $777,927 over the expenditures of 1964-1965. The proposed increase which will come from property taxes amounts to $382,000 or about 12 per cent of the normal tax levy.

A higher instruction cost accounted for $330,000 of the $540,000 general fund increase. Added staff members, an increase in the salary schedule and a built-in annual advance on the salary schedule take up these increases.

Other items increasing the budget request were: administration, $35,000; health service, $4,000; fixed costs such as retirement, $36,000; operation and maintenance, $60,000 and capital outlay for alterations to buildings, etc., $56,000.

One of the resignations the Board accepted was that of John E. Moore, principal of South East Junior High.

In other action, the Board instructed the administration to negotiate to acquire land for the proposed high school for the West Side.

The Board found what it considered an "ideal site" in the east part of the George Cole Sr. farm. The land is across from the entrance to Hawkeye Apartments.

The site is physically attractive as well as being accessible for users. Water and sewer facilities will also be available.

Coralville Ponders 'Poverty Pockets'

Coralville City Council met in regular session Tuesday night, and was asked to help with the War on Poverty.

The Johnson County Council for Social Planning asked Coralville to join with Johnson County in forming a citizens committee to help wipe out poverty pockets in the county, and to initiate other projects to help the county improve itself.

Navy Cleans Up Oil Dump

SAILORS from the U.S. Navy's 6th Fleet remove oil from the beach at Cannes, France, Tuesday, after 3,000 gallons of the oil were inadvertently emptied into the Mediterranean off the resort from the U.S. aircraft carrier Shangri-La Monday. Oil slick drove off swimmers and sun-bathers.

Ribicoff Chides Auto Industry

SEN ABRAHAM A. RIBICOFF (D-Conn.), chided the automobile industry Tuesday in Washington, for, as he put it, "always lagging behind, waiting for someone to tell them something should be done" about auto safety and other problems.

Top General Motors officials, testifying at a Senate hearing on auto safety, protested that their company has a longstanding and costly program to eliminate mechanical hazards from their cars, and to promote safety generally.

Survivors Tell of Air Crash

AIRMAN 2.c. DAVID SURLS, 24, of Raleigh, N.C., smiled as he answered questions at Otis Air Force Base, Mass., about his ordeal after his radar plane crashed in the Atlantic 100 miles off Cape Cod Sunday night. At right is Lt. Bruce Witcher, 27, from Redding, Calif., a pilot and one of three survivors. Both men were in the ocean more than 10 hours before they were picked up by a German destroyer taking part in NATO maneuvers. Surles said "I am glad to be alive and . . . I'm not going to quit flying." Witcher replied: "Nor am I." The plane has a crew of 19.

Cigaret Warning Labels Voted

CONGRESS DECIDED TUESDAY that after next Jan. 1 cigarette packages should bear this label: "CAUTION: Cigarette smoking may be hazardous to your health."

It's now up to President Johnson to approve or disapprove.

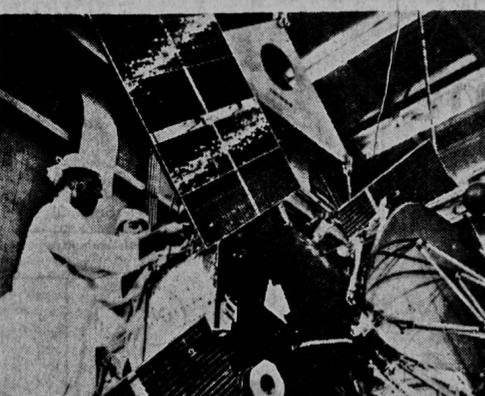

Speeches Resound On Union Soapbox

Union Board Soapbox Soundoff drew its usual speakers Tuesday as the event made its summer debut.

Soapbox was a feature of Union Board last year, when, once a week, students were encouraged to speak their minds on any subjects they chose.

A highlight of the year occurred when a group called "The Rogues" stole the red soapbox and threatened to keep it until Katz, a well-known Soapbox speaker, shaved his beard. Katz never shaved the beard, but did produce a new white Soapbox to replace the stolen red one. The red box was mysteriously returned and has been used ever since.

Soapbox promises to be a once-a-week event again this summer, giving the old hands and new speakers a chance to express their thoughts. It will be held every Tuesday from noon to 2 p.m. outside the Union Gold Feather Room for the rest of the summer session.

—University's Mariner Project—

Mars Experiment Test Due Today

When Mariner IV begins close inspection of the planet Mars today, an experiment originated by three men from the University will be in operation.

The trapped radiation detector of James A. Van Allen, Louis A. Frank and Stamatios M. Krimigis is one of several experiments on the historic Mariner flight.

At 8:18 today Mariner will make its closest approach to Mars, after a 228-day flight in which it has traveled 325 million miles in a wide-swinging path designed to intersect the orbit of Mars.

Van Allen is head of the Department of Physics at the University and is famed as the discoverer of the earth's Van Allen radiation belts. Frank is an assistant professor of physics. Krimigis is here on a scholarship from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and is a candidate for a Ph.D. in physics this August. VAN ALLEN and Krimigis are at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratories in Pasadena, Calif., today, where all data from Mariner will be processed from a worldwide collection network. Frank is waiting at home for the results, joined by some 30 Department of Physics and Astronomy personnel who played a part in the University experiment.

Mariner IV has been traveling at approximately five miles per second, according to Frank. He said the NASA craft will approach within 8,000 miles of Mars. This is a conservative estimate in contrast to other reports, which say the craft will approach within 5,600 miles.

The closest Mars and earth ever come in their separate orbits around the sun is 35 million miles. This happens once every 15 years.

THE PURPOSE of the University experiment is to measure the intensity and direction of low energy particles on Mars and in space. Van Allen and Krimigis expect to know within a relatively short time whether Mars has radiation belts similar to the Van Allen belts around earth. The University experiment consists of four radiation detectors designed to measure charged particles of different intensities and types.

In a similar experiment aboard Mariner II, Van Allen and his associates found that the planet Venus had no radiation zones around it.

Pictures of Mars will be taken by television cameras on board, in one of the most ambitious experiments devised, according to NASA officials. It is hoped that 21 pictures of Mars will be taken in a 25 minute sequence as the spacecraft flies past. If the Mariner camera works, pictures exceeding anything ever taken through an earth-bound telescope will be produced. At a distance of 134 million miles from earth and after nearly eight months of inactivity, however, there is some question as to how successful the experiment will be.

OTHER EXPERIMENTS aboard Mariner IV will seek to detect and measure the planet's magnetic field, the extent of cosmic dust (micrometers) in the near-Mars region, and the solar wind around the planet. One experiment, called the occultation experiment, is concerned with the receiving of Mariner radio signals that travel through the Martian atmosphere.

Changes in frequency and strength of signals may help determine the density and depth of Martian atmosphere.

Frank said that the trapped radiation detector project has been under way about 2½ years. He said he and Van Allen were both working on seven or eight other experiments simultaneously.

Frank said when the idea of a spacecraft which would be sent to Mars was conceived, NASA sent out invitations to universities and research centers to propose experiments. If a group came up with a workable project, it was submitted to NASA for consideration. Each proposed addition to the "payload" was under weight and space restrictions from the start, Frank said.

AFTER FLYING by Mars, Mariner IV will continue in an orbit around the sun. The spacecraft will probably continue to transmit information for a long time, according to a NASA official, but the signal will eventually become too weak to reach the earth.

Ray Attacks Demo Record

Two areas of Republican criticism of the Iowa 61st General Assembly are reapportionment and tax reform, Robert Ray, Republican state chairman, said at a meeting of the Iowa City Kiwanis Club Tuesday.

"The reapportionment amendment is not fair," Ray said. "Some districts elect only one representative and others elect eleven."

Republicans also opposed "double taxation," the paying of two years income taxes in one year, and the monthly rather than quarterly business payment of sales taxes, Ray said.

Ray predicted that there will be future increases in taxes under the Democrats.

"Many changes were made in the recent legislative session. Some of the changes were for the good, but change alone is not progress," Ray said.

Ray said the Republicans supported the vocational training schools, the advancement of civil rights and aid to higher education.

He said that the Republicans had made mistakes in the past but the Democratic criticism that the Republicans had done nothing while in office was not true. He cited liquor by the drink, advancement in civil rights, utility regulation and a temporary reapportionment plan as several past achievements of the Republicans.

Before being appointed Republican state chairman in 1963, Ray was a member of the Republican State Central Committee. He is also a practicing attorney in Des Moines.

"I recently visited with Dwight D. Eisenhower," said Ray, whose job is to revitalize the Republican Party in Iowa. He and Ike discussed the importance of a strong two-party system, he said.

"We think the Republican Party has a new and different attitude," Ray said. "Iowa is changing and the Republican Party will change with it. We must recognize and respect differences of views."

"The Republicans in Iowa are very much alive and will continue to be an active force," Ray said.

Geography Institute Continues Research

The 40 participants of the Institute for Advanced Study in Geography are continuing a six-week program of field work, classroom instruction, and research. It is sponsored by the National Defense Education Act.

The Institute, which began June 21 and will continue through July 30, is designed to upgrade the teaching of geography in the elementary and secondary schools of the United States. State Departments of Public Instruction are also in need of qualified supervisors in the field of geography.

Clyde F. Kohn, professor of geography, is supervisor of the Institute's program. He also teaches the group in the use and evaluation of new educational media in geography.

Participants in the Institute, all of whom have a thorough background in geography studies, may earn six semester graduate credits for work completed this summer.

Visiting lecturers subsidize the instruction provided by the University's geography department. Lecturers during late June included L. N. Jensen, Assistant Superintendent for Instruction, Department of Public Instruction for Iowa, and Mrs. Mildred F. Chesney, Chief of the Bureau of Social Studies for the State Education Department of New York.

The lecturer July 21 to 23 will be Mrs. Howardine Hoffman, Director of the Division of Elementary Education for the county of Los Angeles, Calif.

The group concluded a weekend field trip to the iron-mining region of northern Minnesota Monday. Headed by Neil Salisbury, associate professor of geography, the group viewed ore mining operations and studied the special problems in the "iron range" area.

As the Institute enters the middle of its fourth week it is proving profitable for all 40 participants as well as the instructors, according to Kohn.

"We believe the University's program will show these people how to organize and conduct study in the field of geography. The study and work will provide more insight for them," he said in an interview Tuesday.

Witnesses said Fox was mixing chemicals which exploded. He was said to have screamed, "God forgive me," before he collapsed.

College officials said Fox apparently was mixing non-compatable chemicals not included in the class experiment.

The college reported three persons were in serious condition. Hospital officials said 19 of the 24 were treated but could not say how many would be admitted.

Most of the injured students were cut by flying glass although two or three were burned by the exploding chemicals.

Will Present Varied Works—Tregger To Perform Tonight

Charles Tregger, professor of music, will present a violin recital at 8 p.m. tonight in the Union Main Lounge.

He will be accompanied by pianist Paul Lyndon, in residence at Monmouth College, Monmouth, Ill., and assisted by cellist, Joel Krosnick, assistant professor of music.

A MEMBER of the University faculty since 1961, Tregger has appeared as a soloist with most of the major orchestras in the United States. Last year he was soloist with the New York Philharmonic in five concerts.

Following the New York appearances, Howard Klein of the New York Times called Tregger "one of our most important violinists." Irving Kolodin said in the Saturday Review, "Tregger made his first Philharmonic performances memorable ones."

The recital will open with Bach's "Sonata in A major."

Krosnick will join Tregger and Lyndon in the "Trio No. 2 in C major, Op. 87" by Brahms. Written in the early 1880's and 30 years after his first trio for these instruments, his work represents the composer as a fully matured musician.

WALTER NIEMANN, a 19th century German author and composer, said in reference to the trio's first movement, the Allegro, that Brahms seldom had written chamber music "so grandly and boldly planned and so imposingly built as regards form. The movement is Beethovenian in its rich development of ideas and in its bursting vitality."

The ballad-like Andante con moto is followed by the half-ghostly third movement.

The final movement, the Allegro giocoso, has been described as "Cerberus restrained and subdued festive mood translated into an idiom of Brahms."

FOLLOWING the intermission Tregger and Lyndon will return to present Prokofiev's "Sonata in F minor Op. 80."

The "Sonata," fresh and melodic, approaches at times the folk-style in its invention. Full of musical ideas and imagination, the work is an uncommon scoring for the two instruments.

Tregger has been internationally known since he became the first American to win the Henryk Wieniawski competition in Poznan, Poland in 1962.

The final part of the recital including the "Sonata in E major" by Paganini, will feature the "Polonaise Brillante in A major" by Wieniawski.

No tickets are required for the recital.

Chemistry Class Blast Injures 24 College Students

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—An explosion at a chemistry laboratory in the Bakersfield College science building Tuesday scattered glass like shrapnel and 24 students were rushed to Kern General Hospital.

One student—William J. Fox, 19, of Ridgecrest was in critical condition with a mangled arm and internal injuries. He was transferred to Bakersfield Memorial Hospital.

The college reported three persons were in serious condition. Hospital officials said 19 of the 24 were treated but could not say how many would be admitted.

Killebrew Swings

With the Americans needing a run to tie the game in the ninth, Harmon Killebrew gets only a piece of the ball in Tuesday's All-Star game. He eventually struck out this time, although he had hit a home run earlier in the game. Pitcher is Bob Gibson, catcher is Joe Torre and umpire is John Stevens. Nationals won 6-5.

Mays, Marichal Lead N.L. to Victory

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP) — Willie Mays was hurting so much Tuesday that all he could do was hit a lead-off home run in the first inning, walk twice and score the winning run for the National League in a 6-5 All-Star game victory over the American League.

Mays still carried a painful bruise on his right hip—a souvenir of a home-plate collision at Philadelphia Saturday night — but he went blithely on, strewing records along the way.

With the help of Mays, his San Francisco Giants' Juan Marichal, and a host of others the National League finally took the lead in the mid-season series 18-17-1. At one stage the American League held a 12-4 edge and the National wanted to call the whole thing off.

Mays, in the unusual role of a lead-off man, opened the game with a homer. Joe Torre of Milwaukee followed a single by Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh with a two-run homer in the first inning. Stargell opened up a 5-0 lead with a two-run homer in the second.

"I THOUGHT for awhile we were going to win 15-0," said National League Manager Gene Mauch of Philadelphia. The stunned capacity crowd of 46,706, seeing its first All-Star game at Metropolitan Stadium, was beginning to wonder what strange brand of giants performed in the National League before the American League struck back.

One run in the fourth and a big four in the fifth on a pair of booming two-run homers by Dick McAuliffe of Detroit and Harman Killebrew, the home town hero of the league-leading Twins, tied the score.

After this long-range bombing, it was ironic that a scratch single by Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs finally provided the Nationals with their 6-5 victory edge in the seventh inning.

THE AMERICANS took it right down to the wire and threw a scare into the Nationals when Tony Oliva of the Twins opened the ninth with a double off Bob Gibson of St. Louis. However, Max Alvis of Cleveland popped up trying to bunt. Gibson, the World Series hero last fall, then struck out Killebrew and pinch hitter Joe Pepitone of the New York Yankees.

Mays, the Giants' center fielder, opened the game with a 398-foot home run and scored the winning run in the seventh after drawing his second walk.

Willie led off the seventh by working McDowell for a walk on a 3-2 pitch. Hank Aaron of Milwaukee singled to center, moving Mays to third. When Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh forced Aaron at second, Mays held third base.

BUT WILLIE WAS off and running with the big run of the hot, humid afternoon when Santo, the Chicago Cubs' third baseman, beat out a high bouncing single. Santo's hit hopped past Bobby Richardson of the Yanks and finally was taken back of second by Ziolo Versalles of the Twins. Santo beat Versalles, throw to first while Mays scored.

Sandy Koufax, the Los Angeles Dodgers' ace lefty, was credited with the decision over Sam McDowell of the Cleveland Indians.

But it was Juan Marichal of the Giants who really turned in the glittering pitching job. The high-kicking right-hander, who started the game, faced only nine men in the first three innings and allowed only one hit — a bouncing single through the box by Vic Davalillo of Cleveland leading off the third.

MAYS SLAMMED the second pitch by starter Milt Pappas of Baltimore into the lower section of the new left-field pavilion seats. It was his third home run in All-Star play and the hit, his 21st, set an All-Star record. He had been tied with Stan Musial, the retired St. Louis Cardinal. This run and his winner in the seventh also boosted Willie's record total to 18 runs in 16 All-Star games.

Pappas, the fiery Oriole right-hander, steadied a bit and retired Aaron, but Stargell lashed a single to center. After Rich Allen of the Phillies popped up, Torre hit a 2-2 pitch into the left-field pavilion for two more runs.

It was Stargell's turn in the second. Jim Mudcat Grant of the Twins had taken over for the Americans after Pappas' disastrous first. Stargell slammed a long home run into the bullpen in center field, scoring Marichal who had opened the inning with a single to center.

McAULIFFE, a pesky hitter for the Americans all afternoon, opened the fourth with a single off big Jim Maloney of the Cincinnati Reds, who was destined to give up all five American runs. After a walk to Killebrew, Rocky Colavito of Cleveland singled to center, scoring McAuliffe.

Maloney, who lost a toughie to the New York Mets a few weeks back 1-0 after pitching 10 no-hit innings, was knocked out in the four-run fifth inning.

It looked like a quiet fifth when the first two batters went down quickly. Then pinch hitter Jimmie Hall of the Twins walked on a 3-2 pitch and McAuliffe powered a long homer over the center-field wall. Mays went back as deep as he could and then tried to climb the fence, but the ball sailed into the bullpen.

BROOKS ROBINSON of Baltimore beat out an infield single off Santo's glove. Then came Harmon the Great of Minnesota. The Killer almost struck out but catcher Torre failed to hold a foul tip on the third strike. Given one more chance, Killebrew drove the ball deep into the stands in left field over 400 feet from the plate. Robinson and Killebrew trotted home with the tying runs. Gene Mauch, the Philadelphia manager who was bossing the Nationals, didn't spare the horses. He used 20 of his players and called on both Don Drysdale and Koufax of the Dodgers.

Three Hawk Pitchers Sign With Professional Teams

By JIM O'DONNELL
Staff Writer

Iowa's baseball team has the distinction of having all four of its top pitchers approached by the pros this summer to play professional baseball. Of the four, Jim McAndrew, Bob Gebhard, Joe Madden and Bob Schauenberg, only Schauenberg declined the temptation to play for pay, and that was because he decided to finish his fourth year of school.

McAndrew signed with the New York Mets at a bonus price of $8000. He is playing in the all-rookie league in Virginia in Class A.

"He is a very fine pro prospect," Hawk coach Dick Schultz said. "And I was sorry to lose Jim. We could have gotten another year of eligibility from him."

McAndrew was granted an additional year of eligibility by the Big Ten following an elbow injury which kept him out of the line-up the entire spring of 1964. It was a big loss to Iowa, especially after he was defeated his sophomore year, two seasons ago.

SCHULTZ CALLS McAndrew the "Friday" ball gamer. Jim was always the starting pitcher on the mound for Iowa on Friday afternoons, which is considered to be the toughest game of the week around the Big Ten.

This past spring, McAndrew appeared in 10 games, pitching 5 complete games and 59½ innings. He allowed 44 hits and 22 runs, 13 of them earned, had 19 bases-on-balls and 69 strikeouts. Jim's Earned Run Average was 1.96, the second lowest on the squad, and his record was 3-4.

BOB GEBHARD signed with the league leading Minnesota Twins of the American League, played in the Florida League and is now playing summer ball for Duluth, Minnesota, a Twins farm club.

Gebhard also had a 3-4 record for Iowa this past spring as he pitched 52 innings in 7 games, 6 of them complete, and gave up 45 hits and 22 runs, 16 of them earned. Bob had 14 walks, 57 strikeouts and an E.R.A. of 2.77.

Joe Madden is playing in the San Francisco Giants farm system this summer. Joe appeared in five games for Iowa this year and pitched 5 innings.

MADDEN GAVE up 22 hits, 11 runs, nine of them earned. Joe walked 14, had 33 strikeouts, an E.R.A. of 3.24 on a 2-2 record.

Schauenberg will be a senior this fall, and undoubtedly will be the main gun for the baseball Hawks next spring on the basis of his performance this past year. Bob had the lowest earned run average on the team, which was a phenomenal 0.28 in 32½ innings of pitching.

It seems strange that four pitchers on one collegiate team would be approached by the professional scouts to play baseball, but Iowa proved to be an exception. The records of these four men are ample reason why they'll all be pros, they pitch like pros.

Iowan Makes Cutoff in Golf Tourney

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Veteran Stan Poploski of Pittsburgh added an even par 71 to a first-round 73 Tuesday to lead a trimmed field of 64 golfers into match play of the 40th National Public Links Championship.

It took a score of 154 to make the cutoff for the match play that starts Wednesday and winds up Saturday.

First-round leaders Jim Masserio and Al Bailey of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, fell off the pace but made the cut.
