Boost in U.S. Forces Asked By Gen. Ky

McNamara Meets with Viet Nam Generals

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military government gave a boost Friday to the idea of swelling U.S. ranks in the Vietnamese war. It asked Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara for a further rise in American force levels in Viet Nam.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman, Barry Zorthian, told newsmen that if the Johnson Administration agrees to the Vietnamese recommendations "we would go about it quickly."

McNamara's latest fact-finding survey was denounced as "another act of sabotage against world peace" in a Viet Cong statement broadcast by Radio Hanoi. The statement declared the United States has suffered heavy failures in Viet Nam and is doomed to crushing defeat.

AMONG DEVELOPMENTS sharing attention with the McNamara mission:

—A military spokesman announced U.S. Army Sgt. Isaac Camachol, 28, El Paso, Tex., captured by guerrillas who overran a camp 26 miles northwest of Saigon Nov. 24, 1963, has escaped to safety. He reappeared Tuesday, apparently in good condition.

The spokesman said Camachol has now been removed from the country. He refused to say where. Details of the escape were withheld on the ground such information might harm other captives of the Viet Cong.

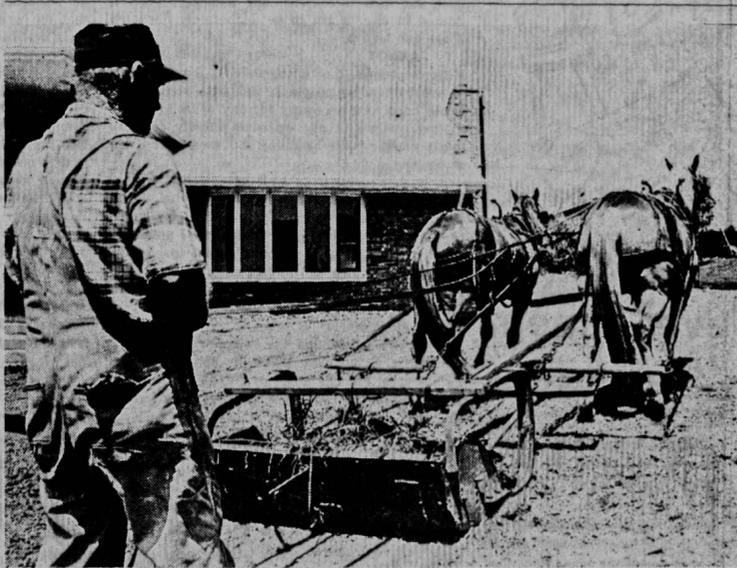

—U.S. Marines killed a Viet Cong sniper while clearing a village five miles south of Da Nang, the spokesman announced. No longer authorized to give specific losses of Americans or Vietnamese troops in any engagement, he said Marine casualties were light.

—REPORTED Viet Cong losses in an abortive ambush 15 miles south of Da Nang Thursday were raised from 56 to 152. The spokesman said this figure was confirmed. A correspondent in Da Nang said it was known that one Vietnamese Government battalion — perhaps 300 men — had been knocked out as an effective fighting force.

—Radar sites at Cap Mui Ron and Ha Tinh, respectively 205 and 185 miles south of Hanoi, were among targets in continuing U.S. air strikes against North Viet Nam. Direct hits were reported at Ha Tinh. There was no assessment of the damage at Cap Mui Ron.

McNamara met for more than two hours with the generals running the Saigon regime shortly after he arrived from Washington for a fact-finding survey generally expected to lead to a decision to beef up the American forces substantially.

Two Horse Power

It was quite a contrast between old and new—the horses breaking up the ground in front of a new split level home. It seems things with feet are better adapted to that kind of work than things with wheels that can't get into tight corners to loosen the soil. At least that's what the driver, Paul Gilroy of R. R. 2, Riverside, says.

Mars' Atmosphere Too Thin For Any Known Form of Life

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Earth's marvelous Mariner 4, now televising a stream of historic closeups of Mars, has found that planet's atmosphere is too thin for any known form of life.

But, Jet Propulsion Laboratory scientists who announced the new finding Friday, said they will expect to find some kind of life when American vehicles land on Mars in the 1970s.

Mariner 4's first picture, snapped as a 575-pound spacecraft swept past Mars on Wednesday and which was released Thursday night, showed an earth-like desert bordered by smudges which may or may not be vegetation.

EVEN BETTER pictures are likely among as many as 21 expected to be transmitted by Mariner 4 over the next week or 10 days.

Dr. William H. Pickering, laboratory director, told a news conference that Mars' atmosphere at the surface appears to be about as thin as earth's at an altitude from 90,000 to 100,000 feet. "Men landing there certainly would need space suits," he said.

"But when you consider the amazing complexity and variety of life forms on earth, you can't exclude the possibility that some other kinds might have evolved on Mars."

The report on Mars' thin blanket of air was made by the laboratory's Dr. A. J. Kliore, chief of a team of scientists who measured the fading of Mariner 4's radio signals as they passed through the planet's atmosphere Wednesday.

FROM THE gradual weakening of signals they figured Mars' atmosphere extends upward no more than eight miles — less than half the height of earth's. They also found it to be only one to two per cent as dense. Previous estimates had ranged up to 10 per cent.

Further study will be required, Pickering said, before it can be determined whether Voyager spacecraft now being designed to land capsules on Mars in the 1970s, will use parachutes or retro-rockets to brake a descent.

Telescope analysis previously has shown Mars' atmosphere is largely nitrogen, with some carbon dioxide, argon, and a trace of water. No oxygen has been found.

Kliore said the radio signals — affected differently by the various kinds of molecules in Mars' atmosphere — show no indication of other elements.

"THERE SEEMS to be no oxygen at all," he said. Pickering said this does not eliminate the chance that some form of life could evolve which does not require oxygen.

The news conference was held as Mariner 4, now climaxing a 7½-month, 325-million-mile journey, was radioing back its third picture across 134 million miles of space.

Russians Claim Satellite Heaviest Object in Orbit

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched a 12.2-metric-ton scientific space station called Proton-1 into earth orbit Friday.

The 26,840-pound satellite was catapulted into space by what Tass called "a new powerful booster rocket."

First reports said the new "space station" was the heaviest object ever orbited and therefore indicated the Soviet Union had surpassed the United States by developing a rocket with the world's most powerful thrust.

However, these claims depended on how the weight was defined.

The United States Titan 3C rocket, with a thrust of 2.65 million pounds, put a 21,000-pound dummy satellite into orbit last month attached to the second stage of the rocket, which brought total weight to 32,347 pounds.

After six hours the two sections separated, but both continued in orbit.

AMERICAN scientists noted the Soviet satellite had no rocket attached and estimated that, if it did, the two together would weigh about 40,000 pounds.

Earlier the United States orbited the 37,799-pound Saturn, but that again was not quite the same thing.

Tass said the purpose of the satellite was to study cosmic particles of super-high energies.

The station, Tass said, is in an orbit with a high point of 390 miles and a low point of 118 miles. The period of revolution around the earth is 92.45 minutes.

"In order to ensure the realization of the planned research program, a new powerful booster rocket has been developed in the Soviet Union," Tass said. There were no further details about the rocket.

Earlier, Tass announced the Soviet Union had launched five artificial earth satellites into orbit with a single rocket Friday.

They were identified as numbers 71 through 75 in the Cosmos series whose announced purpose is scientific research. The unmanned series began in March 1962.

The Tass announcement said the five satellites went into nearly circular orbits, with all equipment functioning normally.

Harriman-Russ Talk on Viet

MOSCOW (AP) — W. Averell Harriman's mission to Moscow is to avert misunderstandings between the United States and the Soviet Union on issues — particularly Viet Nam — which might accidentally lead to nuclear confrontation, informed sources suggested Friday.

Harriman, a U.S. ambassador at large, told newsmen the two great powers have a responsibility to the world to make their positions clear to each other.

He explained U.S. positions to Premier Alexei N. Kosygin Thursday in the Kremlin and heard Kosygin outline Soviet attitudes. Harriman said later he had gained "some significant information" which he cabled to President Johnson.

INFORMANTS said Friday the three-hour meeting had not been long enough to cover all the subjects adequately and Harriman is tentatively slated to meet Kosygin again next week.

Harriman told newsmen Friday that he thought he would leave Moscow before the end of next week. But the veteran American diplomat, who said on arrival Monday that he was on vacation and might travel outside Moscow, added that he now has so much to do in Moscow that he cannot leave the Soviet capital.

There have been suggestions that Harriman's visit might involve trying to get Viet Nam peace talks moving. But Harriman told newsmen this is "a subject not between us and the Soviets but between North Viet Nam and South Viet Nam." He restated the American position of supporting a settlement between Saigon and Hanoi that satisfied the Saigon government.

Harriman said in an interview in Red Square Friday that the Soviet Union and the United States "always ought to be ready to negotiate and ready to try to settle our differences."

"We must be careful to make our positions clear — that they understand ours and we understand theirs."

Soviet leaders, including Kosygin, "have no desire to become involved in nuclear war," Harriman said. "It's too dangerous not to make every effort to reach understandings and settle issues one by one that come between us."

Saturday Evening Post Buys Student's Story

A University graduate student has been notified that the Saturday Evening Post has accepted one of his short stories, "O Junior High" for $1,500.

Robert Lacy, G. Kingsville, Tex. said Friday the story was his first published fictional work. The Post will publish the story about a junior high boy and his longing for a football sweater sometime in the future.

Lacy is working for a master of fine arts degree in the Writers Workshop. He is copy editor of The Daily Iowan.

After graduating from the University of Texas, Lacy worked for two and a half years for the Corpus Christie Caller-Times. He has published articles in the Alumni Magazine at the University of Texas and also the Student Literary Quarterly.

Lacy is married and the father of two children. His wife was in the hospital Friday evening expecting their third child.

ROYAL VISIT — LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II has accepted an invitation to visit Chile at a future date yet to be specified, Chilean Foreign Minister Gabriel Valdes announced Friday night. The invitation was extended by President Eduardo Frei.

Passing Lincoln's Tomb

Funeral cortege bearing the body of Adlai E. Stevenson moves slowly Friday past the tomb in which Abraham Lincoln is buried in Springfield, Ill. As a former Illinois governor, Stevenson took part in public ceremonies at the tomb before he became U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Stevenson Honored At Springfield, Ill.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — For the last time, Adlai E. Stevenson came home Friday to the State Capitol that started him, a politically obscure Chicago lawyer, on his way to statesmanship and international acclaim.

Stevenson's body was brought here after a morning service in the vast Washington Cathedral attended by President and Mrs. Johnson and hundreds of other notables.

"This completely civilized man," is the way a eulogist described Stevenson.

Here everything was kept simple. There were no eulogies. Those who followed the flag-draped casket were mostly relatives or friends who had known Stevenson for years.

Even the resting place in the State Capitol was simple though historic: An old railroad table on which the body of Abraham Lincoln had rested on its prolonged trip from Washington to Springfield a century ago.

Maybe things here were the more impressive because of their simplicity.

The body will lie in state until Sunday morning, when it will be taken to Stevenson's hometown, Bloomington, to be buried on the family plot.

CURIOSLY, THE respects are being paid Stevenson in the exact reverse of the way he won fame.

His sudden death, by a heart attack at 65, in London Wednesday, brought regrets from the greats of the world, testimony of his skill as a diplomat and U.S. representative to the United Nations.

Friday in Washington were many reminders that the Democratic party had twice chosen him as its candidate for the presidency, only to have him lose both times to a popular general, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

In Springfield, it is Illinois' turn to pay its respects. Despite all the honors paid Stevenson, he was elected to an office only once. He served one term as governor, a job he liked and reluctantly gave up to run for the presidency.

Pastoral Care Meeting Ends At Hospital

A pastor can study ways in which he can be most helpful to persons under stress or facing a crisis, Dr. David Beljum, associate professor of religion, said in explaining the purpose of the Iowa Summer Pastoral Care Institute which ended Friday.

The institute was for practicing clergymen and theology students who had completed at least one year at an accredited theological school. Students studying in the program gained practical experience by working with patients at University Hospital in conjunction with the hospital staff.

"The hospital is obviously a place of crisis for many people who face sufferings, surgery, and possible death," Beljum said. "The course lets pastors learn how to work with other professions as a part of the healing team."

The Rev. Thelma Eilart of Cleveland, Ohio, and the Rev. Ellis Powell, Riverside, served as course assistants.

Participants from the Iowa City area were the Rev. Howard Booth, graduate student in religion; the Rev. John Carlsson, graduate student in religion; the Rev. James Davison, pastor of First Baptist Church and director of the Baptist Student Center; the Rev. Allen Eastland, Protestant Chaplain at University Hospital; Mr. Kenneth Nelson, graduate student in religion; the Rev. George Patterson, director of the Wesley Foundation; the Rev. Ellis Powell, minister of the Methodist Church, Riverside; the Rev. Adrian Shoemaker, minister of the Methodist Church, Solon; and the Rev. Dean Swartzendruber, minister in the Lower Deer Creek Mennonite Church.

Baroque Concert To Be Given At Local Church

A concert of baroque church music will be presented at 7 p.m. Sunday in the First Presbyterian Church at Clinton and Market Streets.

The concert will feature music edited by Robert Donington, a leading British authority on 17th and 18th century church music who is a visiting professor of music.

The music is by Henry Purcell, William Lawes and J. S. Bach.

Performing will be instrumentalists William Preucil, associate professor of music, viola; his wife Doris, violin; Joel Krosnick, assistant professor of music, cello; Gloria Rose, harpsichord; Edwin Penhorwood, G. Toledo, Ohio, organ; and Donington, viola da gamba.

Also in the concert will be a solo cantata, "Miserere, Christe, Mei" by Samuel Ehart, sung by soprano Constance Penhorwood. Mrs. Preucil, Donington, Krosnick, and Penhorwood will assist.

A cantata by Dietrich Buxtehude for two sopranos and a baritone will be sung by sopranos Diane Butcher; Suzanne Richerson, A4, Iowa City, and James Fudge, G, Grand Forks, N.D.

News in Brief

Student Electrocuted

A UNIVERSITY SENIOR WAS ELECTROCUTED Friday in a freak accident at the Clinton Corn Processing Company. Authorities said J. Edward Kearney, A4, Clinton, was loading a boxcar at the plant when he accidentally came in contact with a metal part of a conveyor that had developed a short in its motor. Kearney, 21, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Kearney.

Greeks Protest Ouster

POLICE FIRED TEAR GAS GRENADES Friday night into a crowd of 200 stone-throwing demonstrators in Athens, Greece, who were shouting for the return of ousted Premier George Papandreu. The mob formed shortly after King Constantine swore in the new government of Premier George Athanasiadis Noyas.

The political tension spread from Athens throughout Greece as the new premier hastily put together a Cabinet of 15 members.

Greensboro Demonstration

A DEMONSTRATION BY ABOUT 75 NEGROES turned into a near riot Friday when white bystanders waded into the crowd with sticks, hammers and rubber hoses in Greensboro, Ala.

The brief melee broke out after the demonstrators refused Mayor William C. Christian's request that they return to the St. Matthews A.M.E. Church. Police, sheriff's deputies and state troopers began pushing the demonstrators with billy clubs from the Hale County Courthouse toward the church when the bystanders attacked. Several Negroes were injured and some officers reportedly were shaken up.

Mont Blanc Tunnel Opened

THE PRESIDENTS OF ITALY AND FRANCE joined Friday in opening the Mont Blanc Tunnel and called it an example of international cooperation. Then they reaffirmed their opposing views about European unity.

The ceremony high in the Alps on both sides of the world's longest highway tunnel demonstrated the hopes and frustrations in the postwar drive toward European unity.

Gubernatorial Bid Planned By Rockefeller

NEW YORK (AP) — Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller served notice Friday on party dissidents that he is not going to be easily shoved aside. He reiterated his determination to run for a third term in 1966.

And he left open his long-standing ambition for the GOP presidential nomination, telling a news conference: "We are so far away from 1968 it is meaningless. I am not giving it time or thought."

There was nothing new in Rockefeller's announcement that he will run again for governor — he said the same thing as long ago as May 5. But the timing seemed significant since there have been rumblings of discontent with Rockefeller from the ranks of the state Republican party.

THE GIST of this criticism is that Rockefeller's popularity with New York voters has waned, and that if he runs next year he may take the party down to defeat with him.

On this subject Rockefeller, just back from an 11-day vacation at his Venezuela ranch, told newsmen that he recently had to increase taxes, and added: "You always go through a period of reaction following that. I'm very proud of our record of the past seven years."

Rockefeller denied the Republican party was split in New York, and said he thought his opposition "is more in the newspapers than anywhere else."

DISSIDENT support has appeared to center on Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.), the state's best GOP vote-getter. He out-pollied Rockefeller by nearly 200,000 votes in the 1962 election. Javits is believed to have his eye on eventual nomination for vice president — in fact Rockefeller mentioned that in his news conference. In furtherance of that ambition, it is presumed, the senator let it be known last January that he did not feel bound to support Rockefeller for president in 1968, as he has in the past. However, Javits is on record publicly as supporting Rockefeller for re-election in next year's gubernatorial contest. In Washington, Javits repeated that pledge of support but called Rockefeller's comment on his vice-presidential aspirations "completely unrealistic."

Munchers Invade Campus

The University is being invaded. No, not by creatures from outer space or the Black Lagoon, but by Public Carrot Muncher No. 1, Peter Rabbit, and all his friends and relatives.

Robert L. Flora, athletics administrative assistant, said Friday afternoon that rabbits are overrunning the University Stadium as well as many yards near his home at 415 S. Summit St.

The stadium is a great place for the rabbits, Flora said, pointing that dogs and other animals were not around the area to scare them off. The rabbits are digging holes in the freshly laid sod on the athletic field.

Friday, in desperation, Flora called Iowa City Police Chief John Ruppert to see what could be done about the problem. Ruppert said the Iowa City sheltermaster would look into the situation and try to come up with a solution.

FLORA SAID the rabbits are most numerous around the stadium about dawn. The early hour of the rabbits' exercise, Flora continued, could make it harder to catch the munchers.

Meanwhile, the rabbits continue their happy-go-lucky way of life in their peaceful abode. "Let me see. The rabbit stew recipe calls for one fresh, large, plump rabbit, a big pot of boiling water, assorted seasonings . . ."

Try something else

SOME STATE DEMOCRATS are supporting a measure for their party which would call for the party to back candidates in primary election races.

This would mean that if 60 per cent of the delegates to a state Democratic convention backed Joe Jones in his race for Democratic nomination for governor, the party would support Jones in a primary fight with Sam Smith and whoever else might be running.

This is not a good idea.

For one thing, it puts a lot of power into the hands of party bosses who control votes of delegates to the state convention. Delegates seldom vote on issues or for people simply on the basis of individual judgment. Almost always there is a trading of votes and collection of old favors involved.

If a convention votes to support Jones, and then Smith wins the nomination in the primary election anyway, this is also a bad situation since it puts the party in a position of having a candidate on the ticket who didn't have the official support of the party. It would be an easy way to have a lot of hard feelings and party splits always flaring up.

Gov. Harold Hughes is opposed to the proposal for party support of primary candidates, and this is a sound position. We hope most party officials agree with him.

Tracking stations may close

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States may consider closing its three satellite tracking stations in South Africa because of the South African government's public insistence that this country cannot send Negro scientists to the stations.

In apparent growing irritation with U.S. refusal to cooperate with South Africa's segregation policy, Premier Hendrik Verwoerd has announced he has told the United States it cannot employ Negro scientists in the South African stations.

STATE DEPARTMENT officials said Monday they are awaiting word on Verwoerd's move from Ambassador Joseph C. Satterthwaite.

Questioned at a news conference Monday on whether the United States presently plans to continue the satellite tracking stations in operation, a State Department spokesman said "surely."

However, press officer Robert J. McCloskey made clear in response to follow-up questions that he was speaking only for the moment and before the situation has been reviewed in the light of Verwoerd's latest move.

IN SPITE of South Africa's policy of apartheid the United States began holding official functions in South Africa on July 4, 1963, without regard to racial discrimination.

"Several days ago Verwoerd said in a political speech that his government would boycott such U.S. gatherings. He asserted the United States is trying to teach integration to his country."

Then came the statement over the weekend in which Verwoerd made a public issue of what never had been a practical problem up to this time. He said his government would not admit American Negroes if they were assigned to work at the tracking stations.

Officials here said they had not received Verwoerd's statement. They generally conceded that the South African premier is forcing the United States to consider now whether the stations should be closed.

THE TRACKING stations are in the general area of Pretoria. One is operated by the U.S. Air Force and largely staffed with Americans. The State Department said the number of Americans there never has exceeded 50 and as far as they could recall the colored question never has arisen.

Apparently it never has risen because 1) the formal agreement establishing the stations says nothing about discrimination so the issue did not have to be officially recognized, and 2) the United States never assigned Negro scientists or technicians to the South African station.

ANOTHER STATION is run by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. A third station is associated with the NASA installation and is virtually a part of it. It operates for the Smithsonian Institution.

The NASA complex is staffed by South African personnel and normally has only one U.S. liaison officer. The problem of segregation also has not arisen here.

Serviceman's insurance may be cut

NEW YORK (AP) - The serviceman bound for Viet Nam may have to shop around if he wants to buy life insurance to cover hazards there.

At least one of the nation's larger life insurance companies already has inserted "no payment" clauses in new policies of servicemen headed for Viet Nam. Others are restricting the amount of coverage on purchasers headed for hazardous duty. More are studying developments and will issue policies "as of now" to those headed for hazardous duty.

The so-called war-risk clause can be inserted only in new policies. It cannot be applied to policies already in force. The clause exempts insurance companies from paying for a death in military action overseas.

The Prudential Insurance Co., second biggest in assets, said Monday it is "inserting the war-risk clause in new policies of servicemen who have been alerted to a hazardous area."

"We're selling about 10 such policies a week," a spokesman said. "It's not a very big business."

However, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., biggest in assets, said, "We are not inserting war-risk clauses at this time."

Since April 25, 1951, no National Service Life Insurance policies have been sold by the Veterans Administration to persons in active military service.

Men and women on military duty now, including those in Viet Nam, are provided other forms of coverage to protect their dependents and survivors, in the event they die of a service-connected cause.

"I Said, WHAT MAKES YOU THINK THE COMMERCIALS ARE TOO LOUD?"

Character development missing in 'Express'

By NICK MEYER

Lionel Liner

There's some kind of built-in psychological appeal in an escape film that makes its substance virtually impossible to ruin. For escape from a prison camp is not merely the breaking of physical bonds - not to the average audience. Why was Houdini so popular? What was the secret of his appeal? Audiences hang on the word escape, for in that word are their own problems and less visible chains solved and broken. Emotional blocks, personal dilemmas, frustrations with the society one lives in - in short, an unconscious but very strong desire to break away from all of them, are quietly, and equally subconsciously solved (temporarily, at least), by taking in a prisoner-of-war escape drama.

How wonderful it is to see all those problems successfully assaulted with a blazing machine gun or a machete, sliced and mowed down like chaff. And then, a curious sense of well-being and satisfaction descends upon the viewer leaving the picture. What a picture! he says, and chances are he doesn't know how right he is.

"Von Ryan's Express" is a bit of a local though it's hard, I say, to diminish the appeal of one of these things. ESCAPE DEFIES poor writing, acting - anything. Thus "Express" is still an exciting, and fairly involving, film. It is the story of an American colonel (Frank Sinatra), who leads a daring mass escape on a captured German train, which he successfully takes from Italy to Switzerland. It is a true story, and what's more, most of it takes place on a train, a fine gimmick for such a film.

The train goes through British air-raids, several German stations (with the escapesesque masquerade as Nazis), and finally get to Switzerland. There are the obligatory hair-breadth escapes, and some particularly original and fascinating shots of a train chase on the San Gotardo rail pass through the alps.

In the true style of the 1960's, "Von Ryan's Express" is billed as the greatest escape of them all, with more everything to it than any other escape flick. It attempts to out-escape that other superlative attempt in this genre, John Sturges' "The Great Escape" (here only a few weeks ago).

UNFORTUNATELY familiarity where this kind of thing is concerned seems to breed contempt. I found myself annoyed with all this capitalizing on hundreds of men who died gruesome and painful deaths for the sake of a

A critic on criticism

To the Editor:

Mr. Meyer's thoughtful, unobtrusive and unaffected letter should, by rights, receive a clever, witty, and in general, devastatingly original reply.

At the risk of disappointing him, I would rather descend momentarily from the dizzy heights of daily eminence and examine at closer range some of the assumptions he appears to be making about the role of the reviewer in contemporary society.

To begin with, I am sorry to have offended Mr. Meyer, as, indeed, I am sorry to have offended anyone who has taken the trouble to read what I write, and who has taken the further trouble to comment upon it. Such a conscientious audience, even if limited in size, is not to be deliberately alienated if one can help it.

I CANNOT help, however, questioning Mr. Meyer's premise that the function of a reviewer is to avoid offending people. If this were the case, it would hardly be necessary for any of us to bother writing reviews at all; we could merely continue to express the polite banalities that pass for opinion at opening nights.

It is unnecessary, as well as impolite, to say what one is thinking during most normal social intercourse. But it is equally necessary for someone, once in a while, to ignore the social amenities and say out loud what he believes has to be said, in a manner which will attract enough attention to assure its being listened to. This sometimes onerous burden is one which I feel the reviewer must be willing to assume.

Nor can I agree that the reviewer should limit himself to giving his readers his opinion of what he has seen. For one thing, as Mr. Meyer seems to be hinting, an opinion is only as valid as its source; there are as many opinions of any given performance as there are spectators and participants. Most of these opinions, I think he would agree, are at best uninteresting and at worst worthless; in any case, they are unlikely to be influenced by anything short of shock therapy.

What is called for on the part of a reviewer, then, is not mere opinion, but a reasonably informed and articulate opinion. This begins, as Mr. Meyer points out, with the reviewer's obligation to attend, the effort, watch, and pay attention; there is a further assumption that he has brought to the performance something other than a weary body and a tired mind, both seeking relaxation.

THE LAST curious notion of Mr. Meyer's that invites comment is that criticism should necessarily be constructive, helpful and non-antagonistic, so that the writer's views may be heeded (and perhaps acted upon by the players).

He seems to be confusing the roles of the critic and the dramatic coach. Aside from the question of whether most reviewers are competent to offer technical advice in the arts, there is a danger of failing to observe the distinction between the creative act and the evaluative function.

It is not the reviewer's place to tell the director how he should have directed or the actor how he should have acted; it is his place to find out what the director or actor was trying to achieve, how close or how far short he was of his aim, and how valid that aim is.

As for Mr. Meyer's statement that he was misled not so much by what was said as by the manner in which it was said, I sympathize with him. I feel the same way about Bosley Crowther. We all have our personal stars, to which we hitch our literary wagons; for my part, I think one could do worse than aspire to Mr. Meyer's criteria of cleverness, wit, and originality. And I shall continue to enjoy Mr. Meyer's thoughtful, unaffected - and, above all, unobtrusive - reviews.

Film apology stated

To the Editor:

To calm any justly irate Union Film series patrons, and perhaps to salve the conscience of the Union Board, let me apologize on its behalf for the outrageous mix-up on July 8. The scheduled film was "The Lavender-Hill Mob," but because of its sudden withdrawal from 16 mm. circulation, we were unable to show it. Notice of this withdrawal came far too late for us to do anything but rely on the various Iowa City-news media to publicize the change. Evidently that was not enough.

We were forced to order an alternate film on very short notice. "Cleo From 5 to 7" was the best we could muster; hardly in the same vein as "Lavender Hill Mob" but in a different sense just as good. However to complicate matters even more, the second reel was defective, sending more angry film-goers into the halls.

Upon whom to pin the blame is irrelevant - certainly we are in error for false advertising, but our control over the film companies extends only so far. And this letter is neither to confess nor to point fingers; only to soothe tempers and to ease confusion. Following is a list complied as of today with all withdrawal, substitutions, etc. I promise that unless the Brandon warehouse burns between now and August 1, these will be the films appearing. From now on to prevent any difficulties during the showing we shall preview each film before it is to be shown as previously scheduled.

July 29 - "Closed Vision." The Interview - the previously scheduled film ("Crime and Punishment") was withdrawn.

Behavior which appears superficially correct but is intrinsically corrupt always irritates those who see below the surface. -James Bryant Conant

Whatever is felicitously expressed risks being worse expressed; it is a wretched taste to be gratified with mediocrity when the excellent lies before us. -Isaac Disraeli

NEW YORK - The irresistible sounds of the Pied Piper helped rid the town of Hamelin of its rats and mice, but today it's unbearable noise that's being used to chase unwanted rodents. The soon-to-be marketed machine, which can be used in homes or barns, emits a super-high-frequency noise that only rodents can hear when it's turned on. At first, the nerve-racking sound makes them sick and dizzy, then they start to fight among themselves and end up with nervous breakdowns. Researchers say all creatures can be similarly affected by overwhelming sound. The machine's developers (Haydu Corp. of Hialeah, Fla.) claim that the rodents that aren't killed make a rapid exodus from the premises.

By BILL PIERROT

So you think the Hawks have had a few rough football seasons lately? Well, take a look at Iowa's sister institution in Ames if you want to see a team that has really been down on luck in the past few years. A team that may be on the way up though.

Last year they won only one, while losing eight and tying one. In '63 they were 4-5, in '62, 5-5, in '61, 5-5. In '59 and '60 the Cyclones had highly successful seasons, winning seven each year while losing only three each year.

With the exception of last year, these records don't really look too bad, until you remember some of the men who played for Iowa State then. In fact they have had an All-American every year for the past six at Iowa State. These were: Dwight Nichols, tailback, 1959; Tom Watkins, fullback, 1960; Dave Hoppmann, tailback, 1961 and '62; Tom Vaughn, fullback, 1963; and John Van 'Sicklen, tackle, 1964. And Iowa State's junior fullback Tony Baker has been predicted by many to achieve All-America honors before he graduates.

Baker, from Burlington, is just one of a host of big running backs the Cyclones will field this fall, but probably the best. He stands 5'11 and weighs 212, and moves like a Sherman tank with a jet engine in it. He seems to lift his knees to his chin on every step while running, and isn't the least bit afraid of plowing through the middle of the defensive line.

He is also hard tackling, can't be defensive player. You can't helping black he was going to be wearing blind and gold and running out of a T-formation behind Gary Snook this fall. The Cyclones also have Leslie Webster, 5-11, 200 pounds, Ernie Kennedy, 5-10, 198, Eddie Barney, 6-1, 200, and Willie Robinson, 6-0, 188, in the backfield, which should give them one of the best running games in the Big Eight.

A great deal of Iowa State's hopes will ride on quarterback Tim Van Galder. He was injured and saw little action last season, which helps explain why the Cyclones had such a poor season. Coach Clay Stapleton has been quoted as saying he expects Van Galder to develop into "an outstanding junior quarterback."

The Cyclones will also have to use a large number of untested sophomores on the first team. Stapleton expects to have 22 sophomores on his first team. Defense could be a weak point as nine sophomores are now listed on the defensive team. The change to two-plateau football was a big factor in advancing so many sophomores to starting spots. Harry Alley, of Winter 6-2, 200, who is also a member of the track team, is one of the few experienced defensive backs the Cyclones have. Alley is also a top-notch punter.

TRYING TO PREDICT the 1965 finish of the Cyclones is almost impossible. It looks like a rebuilding year, which could mean a typical Cyclone year — a few outstanding individual performances but a poor team showing. However, with many sophomores and juniors on the squad, they could be in a good position to make a run for the conference title in 1966.

In case any avid Iowa State fans don't want to wait another year, there is hope. A strong Van Galder and Baker could provide just the extra punch to boost an average team into a title contender.

Palmer Makes Move; Devlin Keeps Lead

TORONTO — Bruce Devlin of Australia, weakening in the third round of the Canadian Golf Championship, shot a one-over-par 71 Friday for a 205 total that was good enough to keep him in the lead in the $100,000 tournament by two strokes.

An eager quartet was crowding him with 207. It was made up of Arnold Palmer; Gene Littler of Las Vegas; Jack Nicklaus, the Masters champion, and Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn.

Palmer made the strongest comeback of those now challenging the Australian, who plays out of Hilton Head Island, S.C.

Palmer, trailing Devlin by five strokes starting the third round, banged out a 68, his best round of the tournament.

Littler, starting at 138, shot a 69.

Nicklaus, only one stroke behind Devlin at the halfway mark, had trouble down the back nine, taking a two-over-par 37, to finish with 72, still two over.

Rudolph, who started four strokes away from Devlin, matched Littler's 69.

Lionel Hebert of Lafayette, La., and Randy Glover of Florence, S.C., were alone at 208. Hebert shot a three-under-par 67 and Glover 69.

Gary Player, the South African winner of the U.S. Open, turned in a three-under-par 67 — his best round of the tournament — for a score of 209.

Player said the neck pain that hit him in the British Open struck him again but added it hasn't affected his playing.

Testimony Varies From Sex to Money

CLEVELAND — Testimony in the trial of Cleveland Browns fullback Jim Brown turned from sex to money Friday as court adjourned for the weekend.

Brenda Ayres, the 18-year-old girl who has accused Brown of assault and battery, spent most of her third day on the witness stand saying, "No," to questions by Norman S. Minor, Brown's attorney.

Minor's questions were directed toward an alleged telephone conversation June 21 between Miss Ayres and Paula White, her 16-year-old girl friend who introduced her to the 29-year-old All-Pro fullback.

Minor finished his cross examination in late afternoon. Asst. Police Prosecutor Albert Corsi said the girl may be called again Monday for re-direct examination. After that, Corsi said, he probably will call the girl's mother, Mrs. Barbara Ayres.

Miss Ayres had previously denied she said that Brown would give $1,000 to have her leave him alone. Friday she said Brown gave her $60 to visit a sick uncle in Dayton, Ohio, but testified it was "a gift."

Brown, married and the father of three children, reportedly makes $50,000 as a player and has added income from endorsements. He also is employed off season in the public relations department of a soft drink company.

Baseball Roundup

Yanks 9, Senators 5
NEW YORK — Hector Lopez, inserted in the New York lineup for injured Tommy Tresh, drove in three runs Friday night and led the struggling Yankees to a 9-5 victory over hapless Washington.

Lopez drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single in the Yanks' important five-run third and got another with a sacrifice fly in the seventh.

Lopez, who has played more than many of the so-called Yankee regulars, took right field when Tresh was forced to the sidelines with a knee he twisted a week ago.

Ray Barker, another sub who made the starting line-up when Joe Peptide was benched for light hitting, had two singles and an RBI.

Indians 4, Boston 3
CLEVELAND — Larry Brown smashed a leadoff home run in the 10th inning, giving the Cleveland Indians a 4-3 victory over Boston Friday night.

Brown connected on a 2-1 pitch from Dick Radatz, who suffered his seventh defeat against four victories. The homer sailed into the left-field seats.

Sixth-inning home runs by Fred Whitfield and Leon Wagner had given the Indians a 3-2 lead, but Boston tied it in the ninth against Sam McDowell in the singles by Tony Conigliaro and Bob Tillman sandwiched around Lee Thomas' double.

Braves 4, Pirates 2
MILWAUKEE — Wade Blasingame scattered 10 hits and Felipe Alou and Rico Carty powered home runs as the Milwaukee Braves whacked the slumping Pittsburgh Pirates 12-2 Friday night.

Blasingame lost his chance to become the first Braves' pitcher to throw a shutout this season when Roberto Clemente drilled a two-run single in the seventh inning.

The Braves pitched Blasingame, now 10-7, with a three-run cushion in the first inning as they jumped on losing pitcher Bob Veale for three runs, two scoring on an infield out.

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL — The Kansas City A's rushed in four runs after two were out in the first inning Friday night and went on to a 10-2 romp over the Minnesota Twins.

The A's added three-run clusters in the third and sixth innings while Diego Segui checked the American League-leading Twins on seven hits.

Mudcat Grant, the Minnesota starter who lost his third game in 12 decisions, retired the first two men he faced.

REDS 5, PHILS 1
CINCINNATI, Ohio — The Cincinnati Reds, staked to two unearned runs in the first inning Friday night, breezed to a 5-1 victory over Philadelphia behind the five-hit pitching of Sammy Ellis.

Philadelphia first baseman Dick Stuart let in two runs in the first when, with two out, he dropped a throw and Pete Rose and Vada Pinson scampered across.

The Reds knocked out Phillies starter Jim Bunning with three runs in the seventh, stopping his victory streak at five. Ellis brought his record to 13-4.

The victory enabled the Reds to hold onto first place in the National League.

Cards 8, Mets 5
ST. LOUIS — St. Louis, taking advantage of errors by Al Jackson and Roy McMillan, erupted for six runs in the sixth inning and defeated the New York Mets 8-5 Friday night.

Trailing 4-2 going into the sixth, the Cardinals tied it on a walk to Dick Groat and singles by Phil Gagliano, Curt Flood and Bill White.

Then, with runners at first and second, Mike Shannon bunted, and Jackson fired wildly to third, allowing Flood to score the tie-breaking run.

After Gordon Richardson relieved Jackson and filled the bases by walking Bob Uecker, Jerry Buchek threw to McMillan. The shortstop grounded low to the plate, and White and Shannon raced home.

White and Shannon scored the scoring by singling in Uecker.

Davis Cup Tennis Team Is Named

CHICAGO — A six-man United States Davis Cup squad, headed by nationally top-ranked Dennis Ralston, was named Friday for the American Zone finals to be played in Dallas, Tex., July 31-Aug. 2.

The U.S. squad, designated by non-playing Cup Capt. George MacCall of Los Angeles at the current National Clay Courts Tournament, will meet the winners of the Mexico-New Zealand Zone showdown starting Saturday in Mexico City.

MacCall named Ralston and Arthur Ashe Jr., Richmond, Va., to play No. 1 and 2 singles respectively at Dallas. Presumably, they will face Mexico's Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox, favored to pace their country to victory over New Zealand.

Hamilton Richardson, veteran from Dallas, and Marty Ritszen of Evanston, Ill., were picked to round out the likely playing quartet; and Clark Groehner of Evanston and Frank Froehling of Miami, Fla., were named alternates.

Richey Will Meet Mike Belkin Today

CHICAGO — Unseeded Mike Belkin, a University of Miami sophomore, and young Cliff Richey, center of a Davis Cup squabble, meet Saturday in the semifinals of the National Clay Courts Tennis Tournament.

Belkin defeated the No. 2 seed, Arthur Ashe Jr., Richmond, Va., 0-6, 7-5, 6-0, 6-4, 8-6 Friday, Richey, 18, of Dallas, Tex., eliminated Ron Holmberg, Highland Falls, N.Y., 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3.
