India Withdraws Outposts, Peking Radio Says Today

Action Precedes Chinese Deadline

NEW DELHI (AP) — The threat of war between India and Red China appeared to have eased dramatically early today, hours before Peking's deadline to New Delhi to dismantle military outposts in the Himalayas.

Merger Out, Communities Split On Vote

University Heights voted Monday, 279 to 176, not to merge with Iowa City. Almost 80 per cent of the voters in University Heights went to the polls, compared with less than 10 per cent in Iowa City.

The election results in Iowa City were 1,301 for the merger and 150 against it.

The residents of University Heights voted against the merger although it was supported by the mayors of both communities, the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce, and the League of Women Voters.

Since the merger vote was defeated, the two municipalities will continue to operate as separate towns, each with its own government.

IOWA CITY Mayor Richard W. Burger said Tuesday:

"I am sorry that the majority of the voting citizens of University Heights did not want to assume their responsibility of having a voice in the affairs of Iowa City. I feel that we have lost a great deal for we could do nothing but benefit from the active participation of the citizens of University Heights in our government."

"I wish to thank Mayor Ross and everyone who worked so hard in the task of trying to convey to the citizens of both communities their just responsibilities."

"The voters of University Heights have decisively rejected the proposal to merge with Iowa City," said University Heights Mayor Russell M. Ross. "This is the democratic way to settle a question."

ROSS SAID, "It is my hope that the spirit of cooperation between Iowa City and University Heights will continue and not be impaired by the outcome of the election. I do not believe that the negative vote should be interpreted to mean that the residents of University Heights want to reject fire protection, library service, park and recreational service from Iowa City."

The Peking broadcast said the Indian troops destroyed all 56 military works, apparently satisfying the Chinese ultimatum. The official New China News Agency, quoted by Peking Radio, said:

"The Indian government has resorted in the past few days to various methods in a vain attempt to destroy the evidence of its crimes and to escape responsibility for its intrusions and building of many military works in Chinese territory."

Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri notified the United Nations Monday that India was ready to order a cease-fire if Pakistan does likewise.

Red China's Entry to U.N. Topic of General Assembly

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant raised the thorny question Tuesday of Communist China's representation at the General Assembly launched its 20th session. He linked the issue with military conflicts in Asia and the deadlock in disarmament.

Delegates to the 114-nation General Assembly elected Amintore Fanfani, Italian foreign minister, the assembly president.

Fanfani was unopposed for the post. Thant made his views known in the introduction to his annual report distributed as the delegates met under the cloud of the India-Pakistan undeclared war and the conflict in Viet Nam. Those issues were not on the heavily loaded agenda, but were certain to be raised in the fourth-coming general policy debate.

to maintain contact with the world body and listen to its deliberations, and thus be more directly exposed to the views of the rest of mankind."

He declared that the true interests of peace would be better served if nonmember states were encouraged to maintain observers at U.N. headquarters.

North Viet Nam, North Korea, and East Germany do not maintain observer missions at the United Nations, as do South Korea, South Viet Nam and West Germany.

University Cadets Take First Place At Summer Camp

Sixty-five University Army ROTC cadets won a first place rating for the best over-all performance during summer camp training at Fort Rucker, Kan., June 26 to Aug. 6.

Cadet Carl A. Harris of Flint, Mich., senior, accepted the Camp Commander's Trophy on behalf of the Iowa cadets from Lt. Gen. Charles G. Dodge, Commanding General, Fifth U.S. Army.

Cadet Michael B. Kennett, Grundy Center senior, was designated the outstanding cadet in military proficiency subjects among all cadets attending the summer camp.

The cadets participated in the summer training, which leads toward a commission in the Army, with some 1,600 cadets from 35 institutions.

Council Approves Expressway Route Within City Limits

The general route of a proposed southwest expressway section within the city limits was approved by the Iowa City Council at its meeting Tuesday night.

The council voted 3 to 2 for a preliminary resolution approving the general alignment submitted by the Iowa Highway Commission.

Councilman William Maas and Max Yocum opposed the resolution. William Hubbard, James Nesmith and Mayor Richard Burger were in favor.

The route would begin on Orchard Street at the intersection of U.S. Highways 6 and 218 with Iowa Route 1 and would continue west several miles. It would curve north outside of Iowa City connecting with Interstate 80, and a proposed Iowa City-Cedar Rapids expressway.

The council's action came after several residents who would be affected by the route urged the council to defer action until the highway commission had submitted a definite location for the expressway.

The preliminary resolution, they said, would be considered as an approval of the commission's route. This east-west segment of the expressway won no support at a public hearing Aug. 26.

In other action, the council approved City Manager Carsten Leikvold's recommendation that the city hire adult crossing guards to assist school children at busy intersections.

The council also named Alan R. Leff, 316 Grandview Ct., and Max Cohen, 1508 Glendale Rd., to terms on the Human Relations Commission.

University Women Given Invitation

The University Club, an organization open to all University faculty women and faculty wives, will hold a Fall Fair Open House in the Triangle Club Rooms at the Union from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

Women may enroll in any of these groups and in Newcomers, a subdivision of the club for wives of newly appointed professional, administrative and instructional personnel.

Admission to the fair is free to all eligible women, but reservations must be made by noon Thursday with Mrs. Gordon Wasinger, 338-3866; Mrs. Robert V. Hogg, 338-9638; or Mrs. Robert Ray, 338-1960.

9 Inch Rain Deluges City Since Friday

New Yorkers would be envious of the excess of water in Iowa City. Nearly nine inches of rain has fallen since Friday night.

Over the weekend, the Army Corps of Engineers at the Coralville Reservoir recorded 6.35 inches, and 2.58 inches of rain between 8 a.m. Monday and 8 a.m. Tuesday.

RALSTON CREEK which runs through Iowa City, flooded Tuesday morning.

Larry Madden, director of public works, reported that water was

BULLETIN

A late report from the Iowa Highway Patrol said all traffic on Highway 218 south of Iowa City was stopped at about 10 p.m. Tuesday. The patrol reported that a bridge on Highway 218 between Iowa City and Hills was weakened by high water in Old Man Creek. It is hoped the highway will be open by late this afternoon, the patrol said.

more than 2 feet deep on Washington Street near the Civic Center at 3 a.m. Tuesday. He said water backed up into the Civic Center basement.

Ralston Creek crested about 4 a.m. Tuesday. The intersections of Dodge and Iowa Avenue, Washington and Van Buren streets, and Burlington street where it crosses Ralston Creek were flooded.

Madden said pumping operations stopped while the rain continued but were resumed early Tuesday morning.

RESIDENTS in the east end reported basements were flooded. Washouts caused an estimated $300,000 damage to county roads and bridges since Monday.

A dozen businesses in the Washington and Court Streets area were flooded by Ralston Creek and overloaded sewers.

Cars stalled in the rising waters at a dozen intersections.

A TORNADO was reported to have touched down on a farm southeast of Iowa City, where eight inches of rain fell.

If the rain continues, considerable flooding is expected in the Hills-Lone Tree area as the Iowa River rises.

The most severe flooding in Iowa City was the 14 inches of water inside the post office annex on Burlington Street.

Rains Slow Public Work Sewer Plan

The sewer expansion program, complicated by the recent rains, cannot be solved immediately, Lawrence Madden, Iowa City public works director, told members of the Kiwanis Club Tuesday.

Since the city has grown so rapidly in the last few years, he explained, Iowa City has not had a chance to expand the sewerage system with the city. Others problems, such as the water system, are under control, he said.

Though the public sees the results of unsolved problems, such as the sewage one, the public's inconvenience from present repairs apparently does not outweigh its inconvenience in the future.

"We do not fully appreciate the service of the public works department until we no longer have the service," he said. "And the size of the community has nothing to do with the quality of public works wanted by the public."

"Public works is the most important foundation on which a society can be built," he concluded.

News in Brief

Pakistanis Stone U.S. Buildings
RAWALPINDI (AP) — While the Pakistan air force used U.S. planes against India, a mob of 10,000 Pakistanis stoned and set fire to the U.S. Information Service library in Karachi Tuesday. In Lahore, the office of U.S. Consul General Lee E. Metcalf was stoned and American officials said the quarters were damaged.

Anger at American backing of a United Nations Security Council call for a cease-fire Wednesday in the Indian-Pakistani war flamed in the streets as the Pakistani air force announced destruction of an Indian bomber by its missile-armed F104 Starfighters, a Lockheed Co. product.

Reds Say Pilot Likes 'Leniency'
TOKYO (AP) — Communist China is bestowing lenient treatment on Capt. Philip E. Smith, the U.S. Air Force pilot whose plane was downed by Chinese aircraft from Hainan Island Monday, a Peking broadcast said Tuesday. It added that Smith appreciates the leniency.

The broadcast, by the New China News Agency quoted one of its correspondents, who said he had interviewed Smith at Hanoi, on Hainan where the Communists say Smith's plane was shot down.

"I hate this war. But I was made to come," it quoted him as saying.

Bolivian Uprising 'Under Control'
LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Bolivian army authorities said Tuesday a new armed uprising by tin miners has been brought under control. Unconfirmed reports said at least 30 persons were killed and 100 others injured in the clashes between the miners and government troops which began Saturday in the Catavi-Siglo mining district 250 miles southeast of La Paz.

Religious Liberty Approved
By Ecumenical Council Vote
VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican Ecumenical Council voted overwhelming approval Tuesday of an historic declaration committing the Roman Catholic Church to religious liberty for all men.

Never before in the history of the Roman Catholic Church have its leaders taken such a step toward bettering its relations with all men everywhere — with other Christians, with non-Christians and even with non-believers.

The vote in St. Peter's Basilica gave initial approval by a 9-1 margin — to a religious liberty document that had encountered bitter opposition from conservative circles in the Church.

THE COUNCIL action was hailed as a major victory of progressive prelates and was greeted by non-Catholic observers at the council as a major step forward in the Christian unity movement.

Almost 100 observers from Protestant, Anglican and Orthodox churches who attend the daily council meetings applauded along with most of the Catholic bishops as its final form.

The Numbers Racket

Numbers fly thick and fast during registration days. Course numbers and department numbers and, of course, identification card numbers. New University students, as this one who posed for her ID picture at registration Tuesday, soon find the latter as important as their name. Registration ends today following the 11:30 a.m. session.

You must register

EVERY FALL, WINTER AND SUMMER students at the University have to go through the process of registration. Most joke about it, some complain and a few even manage to ignore it.

But all in all, registration is not really as bad as most people make out. It is, of course, quite necessary to the functioning of the University. Registration is the process whereby the students and the faculty are brought together at the same time in the same place and provided with some heat in the winter.

Registration is also the process whereby both students and faculty are made part of the Records. It is imperative that at least in theory the University knows Where You Are while you're with the system. This knowledge allows students to receive diplomas and faculty to collect paychecks.

So agreed, then, Registration is necessary. But usually folks say that it could be done more efficiently. It could, and it is. This fall, our own experience was the quickest, easiest piece of cake we ever sliced.

Students complain about standing in those long lines, but is it so bad? If you go 15 minutes late instead of 15 minutes early, there's no line to keep you from getting right in. And if you avoid standing in long lines at registration tables by taking care of less popular classes until the big lines shrink a bit, you shouldn't have to wait so much.

This year several freshmen pre-registered, which also helped to keep things less confused.

Of course, people often complain about the nonacademic part of registration which takes an awful lot of time and standing in line. There are things like auto registration and identification pictures to take care of, for example.

But you don't really have to handle all that business by standing in line. You could go to the Campus Police Headquarters to register your car and to Photo Service to have your mug shot, but all that running around would take an afternoon. By a little waiting and paper shuffling, this can all be taken care of in one operation under one roof at registration.

We should like to congratulate Dean Donald Rhoades and the many persons in the Registrar's Office who handled this year's record registration with record ease. They undoubtedly made a lot of mistakes and certainly upset a number of confused students, but the job was big and well done.

Possible finkery?

THE WEATHERMAN, we all know, is not a sport. He sends Iowa City far more rain than it ever needed, while New York City must make up its water as it goes along.

We first realized the weatherman was not a sport some time ago, when he kept sending rain during the State Fair, Tuesday we decided the weatherman may well be less than a nonsport. He may be a fink.

After awakening in a basement apartment with 2 inches of water on the floor, we became suspicious. When we found the water was there because the water table is higher than the floor, we became nervous. But when the weatherman on the radio passed the word to expect more rain — and a higher water table — we became upset.

We don't like to complain, and so will make this brief, but things have gone far enough, too far, in fact. It's time someone did something about the nonsport weatherman who may well be a fink.

Someone should shut his water off. Any suggestions?

NATO looks at future without France

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER AP Special Correspondent

Leaders of the United States, Britain, West Germany and other allied powers in Europe are coming face to face with a stark question: Can NATO, already seriously ailing, survive without France?

The question probably will have to be answered decisively next year. Allied officials have already begun studying the problems that must be dealt with if the crisis comes.

The issue was sharpened by President Charles de Gaulle of France in a news conference 13 days ago. De Gaulle declared that France intends to end its "subordination" in the Atlantic Alliance's military command structure, meaning that the integrated command must be dismantled by 1969, so far as France is concerned.

Since the NATO alliance was formed in 1949, France has been the heartland of the Western defense system. It is the base of supply lines feeding the Allied front in Germany. It is home for NATO's political and military headquarters.

SHOULD FRANCE, under President De Gaulle, pull out, an enormous psychological readjustment and physical relocation would be necessary. Headquarters and supply bases would have to be moved back to England or forward into the Low Countries of Germany.

The loss of French troops would not mean much; they have been progressively reduced in number to two understrength divisions and some air squadrons in West Germany.

But the shock of an amputation would be great, and no one knows what the emotional impact would be.

It is also true that no one knows for sure what De Gaulle will actually do. Though he has often been critical of the NATO system of integrated commands and forces, he has not spelled out his intentions for the immediate future, beyond talking generally about reorganization.

Pending French national elections in December, De Gaulle is not expected to show his plan. He may not have made final decisions yet. He is expected to win the election and he has given enough hints of his future course to set alarm bells ringing from Washington to Ottawa to Ankara.

To the White House and State Department, De Gaulle's most significant move was to block the building of a new center for Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe.

FOR YEARS the NATO military command has been housed in a temporary structure at Rocquencourt, 15 miles from Paris. Several years ago the NATO staff began working for a new and permanent building. It was thought to be a routine kind of undertaking.

But this spring, according to an account given to Washington officials, De Gaulle chanced to see a newspaper drawing of the proposed structure. Shortly afterward French officials told NATO authorities they had better forget the whole thing — if the building were pushed to a final decision France would veto it.

This warning has led other allies, including the United States, to decide that De Gaulle does not see a long future for NATO in France. The view is reinforced by private information from French officials — arguments that NATO is no longer essential, and that if the Western alliance withers away the corresponding Communist "Warsaw Pact" in Eastern Europe will also wither, thus contributing to European peace. U.S. officials don't buy the argument but they see its logic for De Gaulle's policies.

Republicans irked by foreign trade

By THE GOP CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE

The U.S. farmer is getting short-changed in the world food and fiber market.

That's the gist of a Republican Task Force on Agriculture report issued last week by the House GOP Planning and Research Committee.

Rep. Odin Langen of Minnesota, chairman of the farm task force, said foreign countries are allowed to close their borders to U.S. farm products while we allow foreigners free access to our markets, thus undercutting our own price support programs.

Langen said the U.S. should conduct hard bargaining to boost exports of domestic farm products. He called on Congress to check Administration compliance with the farm law which requires that import policy be geared with domestic price support programs. Last year, the U.S. spent $220 million to buy surplus domestic beef, which amounted to about 10 per cent of the volume of beef imported from other countries.

The GOP group said a small increase in export volume could trim surpluses and save U.S. taxpayers money. They pointed out that imports and exports are nearly even, thus causing small surpluses each year which have accumulated into today's massive stockpiles.

The report accused the Johnson Administration of "soft" bargaining in the Kennedy Round of world trade talks at Geneva and said that U.S. agricultural interests were being sacrificed without return concessions from foreign nations.

The task force report summed up: "The U.S. must point out to her trading friends that world trade is a two-way street."

Too many lines called frightening by newcomer

By SANDOR M. POLSTER Iowan Columnist

Frightening, that's what it was.

I mean, I was herded into this massive hall, with fences all around me. The push and pull of human bodies was ever-present. There were all these policemen in sky-blue uniforms pointing first one direction and then another.

Grouchy old ladies were screaming back at the screaming students. And there I was, flowing with the tide, waiting to be loaded onto the cattle car.

I wouldn't have minded the impersonal herding so much if it weren't for the money-hungry monsters I met along the way. I measured it — I couldn't walk for more than five minutes without being hit for one thing or another.

A FRIEND of mine told me since all my courses would be in one department, my registration shouldn't take more than 15 or 20 minutes.

Ha! Did I ever prove him wrong.

One hour and many minutes later I finally saw daylight.

The first few days of this semester have left me with lasting memories of Iowa City and the University: torrential rains and long lines.

The two have something in common — everyone complains about them, but no one does anything. We have to live with the rain, but not the lines. Let's see, where does one find a line?

Restaurants, movies, bars, book stores, ice cream joints, banks, post office (but not at the recruitment section), the Registrar's Office, football games.

Oh yes, mustn't forget the lines at registration. Now most of those lines can be eliminated by either getting more facilities or getting rid of some of the people. Registration, however, can be solved the same way other universities solve it — by mail.

STUDENTS COULD pick up their schedule cards at the respective college office, meet with an adviser if needed, fill in the blanks on the cards, list alternative courses in case something is closed out, return the cards to the college office and then wait for the university to mail the approved schedule and the fee cards to them.

Once the students receive the finished product, all they have to do is mail their checks to the bursar's office. Or, they can wait in line to pay.

But all the running around in a field house is eliminated and the student can save his energy for waiting in the countless other lines which plague a university city.

Of course, if one is a masochist, he likes this cattle herding type of registration.

Lady Bird practices her husband's specialty

By ART BUCHWALD

JACKSON HOLE, Wyo. — There has been a lot of talk about President Lyndon B. Johnson's arm twisting when it comes to Congress, but very little has been said about Mrs. Johnson's persuasive powers with that same body.

Mrs. Johnson is very interested in legislation that has to do with beautifying America and she came all the way to Jackson Hole to dramatize the cause.

The bill she is seeking is now being considered by Congress and a spokesman for Mrs. Johnson said that the First Lady called several Congressmen to "thank" them for their help.

I haven't been privy to any of these conversations, but I would guess they may have gone something like this.

"Hello, Congressman Jones, this is Lady Bird Johnson calling."

"Oh, how do you do, Mrs. Johnson."

"Ah just called to thank you for everything you've done to help get H.R.8701 through Congress."

"YES, YES, well, uh" (aside to his secretary: "Find out what the heck H.R.8701 is all about.") "I'm certainly glad to oblige, Mrs. Johnson."

"Ah told Lyndon, just this morning at breakfast, that Congressman Jones could be counted on our side, not only to get it out of committee, but to a vote."

"What did the President say, Mrs. Johnson?"

"He said, 'Congressman Jones has never let us down before, so there is no reason on this good green earth why he'd let us down now.'"

(Congressman to secretary, "Did you ever find out what the bill is?") "All of us up here on the Hill are for you, Mrs. Johnson."

Goldwater man didn't really leave America because Barry lost

By JOHN FITZGERALD

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Robert Ansett may be remembered in California as the young American who took his family to Australia — assertedly because Barry Goldwater lost the Presidential election.

In Australia, Robert Ansett is known as a transport magnate's son who returned home to make good.

Ansett, 31; his wife, Karen; and their three children arrived last April and settled into a house in a Melbourne suburb. He has become general manager of one of Australia's four big rent-a-car firms and is showing business acumen as he struggles to improve his company's position in a tough market.

Ansett's father, Reginald Myles Ansett, heads the huge Ansett Transport Industries, including an airline.

The younger Ansett hasn't found it necessary to call on his father's resources. The son — by a previous marriage — lived in Melbourne until he was 10. He is an American citizen.

"I knew nothing about the car rental business when I decided to leave San Diego and migrate

I was just telling Betty this morning at breakfast how interested we were in your legislation."

"Ah spoke to Betty at lunch. She told me she was sure that you would be able to work something out that would be satisfactory to all the women of America."

"BETTY SAID that?"

"Yes, she said that she was surprised you hadn't done anything about the bill before now and she planned to discuss it with you tonight."

"Well, you know, Mrs. Johnson, it's fortunate you called at this moment because I was just going over the bill with my staff." (Aside to secretary, "Look in the other files. The bill's got to be somewhere.")

"Lyndon said you would probably get to it today or tomorrow and he suggested Ah wait until you get it out of committee before Ah thanked you, but Ah told him, Ah knew you were going to do the right thing and Ah wanted to thank you in advance."

"That's awfully nice of you, Mrs. Johnson."

"Lyndon said you've got that dam you want so badly on your mind that you might have forgotten about mah little old bill, but Ah said Ah was sure Congressman Jones would put mah bill before his dam."

"The President's right, Mrs. Johnson. Without your bill, my dam would have no meaning at all."

"WELL, THANKS so much, Congressman Jones. You and Betty must come over sometime and have a meal with us."

"Yes ma'm. Anytime."

He hangs up. "Miss Smith, report H.R.8701 out on the floor today."

"But don't you even want to read it?"

"Don't ask any questions, and if my wife calls, tell her I've already got the message."

back to Australia," he said. "I had not even thought of making a living from renting cars." He has helped lift the firm from a small one-city outfit into a national operation. Last year, the father warned Robert he was getting to be an age when it might soon be too late for him to migrate successfully. "I made a now-or-never decision," Ansett said. "But when some of our San Diego friends suggested that we were leaving because Barry Goldwater lost, we kidded along with a Republican at heart and a Goldwater Republican. But I've also started thinking like an Australian which complicates it a little." Ansett has received letters supporting his migration, from "equally upset Republicans." His secretary has stenciled his first impressions of Australia for people who feel they would like to follow him Down Under. He replies to every letter. "I tell them the truth," said Ansett. "I point out that I am delighted with this country but then, it is my birthplace. I don't feel lost here, no matter how hard you have to battle at first. "I tell them I have come with contacts to ease me into Australian social and business life. I warn them that they may not find it so easy if they come here without such advantages." Ansett rates the cost of living in Australia on a par with that in San Diego. Home financing is much tougher — you cannot buy a house without at least a fourth of its value as a deposit. "It's harder to get into debt. People just aren't prepared to lend you money without good security," he said.

Twins Lose, Magic Number Remains 3

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP)—Luis Aparicio's single and a bases-loaded walk gave Baltimore two 10th-inning runs and a 6-4 victory over Minnesota Tuesday, preventing the Twins from clinching a tie for the American League pennant.

Minnesota's pennant-winning number remains at three — any combination of Twin victories and Orioles losses totaling three gives Minnesota its first pennant. The Twins and Orioles conclude their two-game series here Wednesday.

CUBS WIN— CHICAGO (AP)—Ron Santo drove in six runs, five of them on two homers, as the Chicago Cubs defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 7-5 Tuesday.

Santo's 30th homer in the first inning was good for three runs.

Four Changes in No. 1 Team; Lewis, McKinney Advanced

Halfback Farley Lewis and fullback Silas McKinney were promoted to the first team Tuesday by Coach Jerry Burns in an attempt to spark the Iowa offense.

Lewis moved ahead of Dalton Kimble, while McKinney went in front of Gary Simpson and Larry McDowell. Both McKinney and Lewis are sophomores.

In a move to strengthen the defense, Gary Swain went ahead of Dan Hillsbeck as the No. 1 right linebacker. Tom Knutson shifted to left side linebacker as No. 1 man ahead of Rick Hendryx.

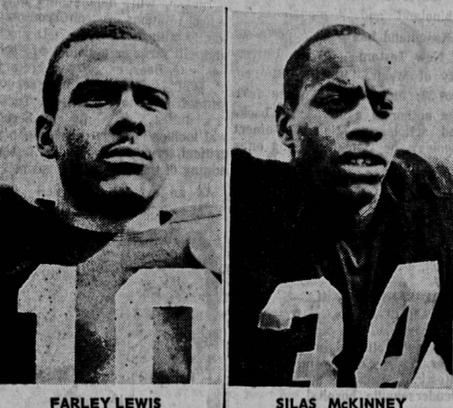

Also on defense, Dick Gibbs moved ahead of Karl Ryan as left roving back, or "Hawk." Gibbs, a junior from Chariton and a broad jumper on the Iowa track team, did not play against Washington State.

Burns said he made the offensive changes because he is still looking for "a hitter — someone who can hit the line and go."

Burns described the changes this way: "I want to explain it this way, as I told the kids. In making these changes we are not trying to pinpoint the blame for Saturday's loss on any one or two individuals. We all made some mistakes and we've all got to do better. A game is never lost by one man."

"We are making the changes in the offensive backfield for now because we are looking for a spark to ignite the running game. The backs we are putting in, while less experienced, are bigger. We are not getting the job done with the backs we've got in there now and we must do something."

Burns described Tuesday's practice as "real good," but he ordered a rare night session in the

FARLEY LEWIS To No. 1 Halfback

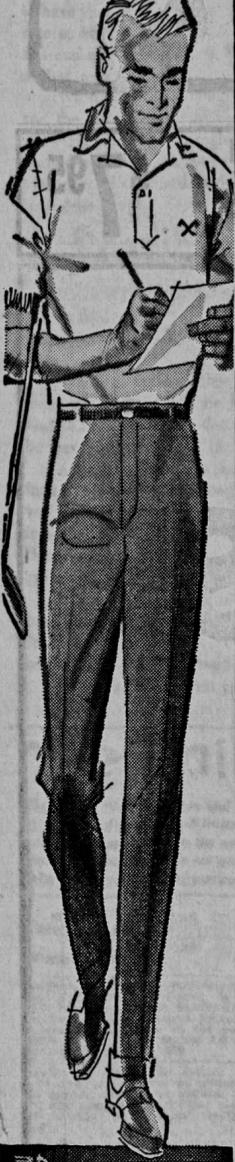

SILAS MCKINNEY To No. 1 Fullback

Field House for backs, ends and centers. "We need the night work because 2. How well Wilder is able to use his finger during the next few practices will determine whether he'll be able to play Saturday cast removed from his left wrist against Oregon State.

Big 8 Teams Set Passing Mark

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Big Eight coaches weren't kidding about passing the football a lot more this fall. The league teams ran 192 rushing plays and threw 168 passes, almost the 50-50 predicted earlier by the coaches.

Five teams made 100 yards or more by air with Oklahoma State at 144, Nebraska 134 and Iowa 100.

WHERE'S THE NEW WHEEL FOR THIS YEAR? IT'S UNDER WRAPS.

WHERE IS IT NOW? I HIDE IT!

WHEN DO WE GET TO SEE IT? AS SOON AS I CAN REMEMBER WHERE I HIDE IT!

BETLE BAILEY By Mort Walker

SARGE, IT'S SILLY FOR YOU AND ME TO GO ON BICKERING LIKE THIS. I'M GOING TO MAKE A REAL EFFORT TO AVOID ANYTHING THAT MIGHT GET ON YOUR NERVES.
