City Renewal Plans Presented

Pakistan Demands Compliance With U.N. Proposal in Kashmir

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Pakistan demanded Tuesday that the United Nations compel India to accept a U.N. force in Kashmir while attempts are made to determine the future of that disputed state.

Z. A. Bhutto, Pakistan's foreign minister, proposed in an emotional policy speech to the 117-nation U.N. General Assembly that both India and Pakistan withdraw their forces in Kashmir, and that they be replaced by a U.N. force recruited from Asia, Africa and Latin America.

The proposal came as the United Nations awaited anxiously the outcome of the Security Council's latest demand that the two countries honor their agreement to a cease-fire and withdraw their forces to positions occupied before the outbreak of their undeclared war last month.

REPORTS FROM the India-Pakistan front were discouraging. Clashes were reported in India's desert-like Rajastha state. Sporadic firing occurred on other sectors of the Indian-Pakistan lines. It appeared both sides were breaking the five-day old cease-fire at will.

Secretary-General U Thant reported that nearly 200 observers had arrived, were on their way, or preparing to leave to beef up the U.N. observer corps.

Bhutto proposed that the U.N. force remain in Kashmir pending the outcome of a plebiscite to determine the state's future status.

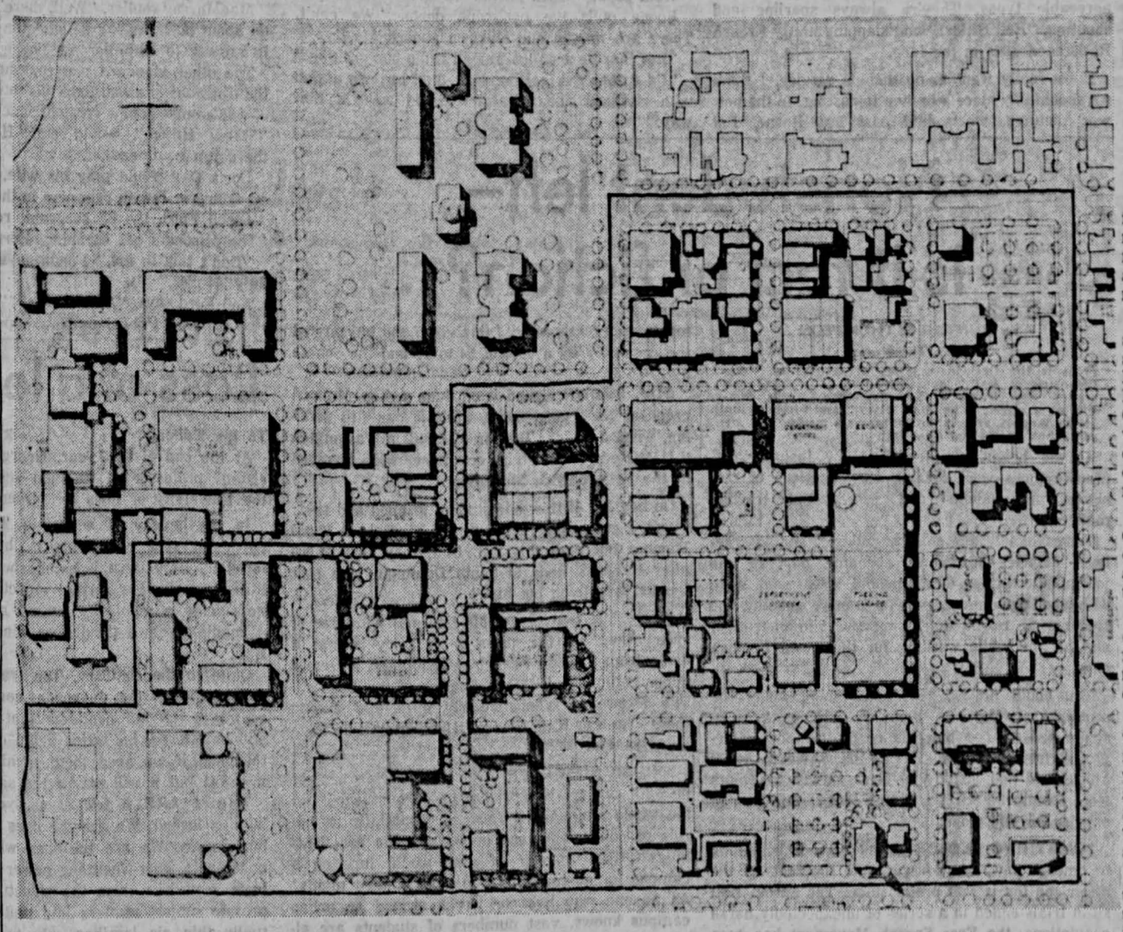
But Indian Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri already has rejected any role for a U.N. force in resolving the India-Pakistan crisis, and Indian officials also have opposed holding a plebiscite.

BHUTTO REITERATED that Pakistan would have to consider withdrawing from the United Nations if the Security Council fails to work out a permanent solution to the 18-year-old Kashmir dispute within a reasonable time.

He said it would be dishonest for anyone to suggest that the cease-fire mitigates the dangers that lie ahead.

Syed Mir Qasin, Indian minister without portfolio, told the assembly Bhutto had tried to browbeat the Security Council and now was attempting "to befuddle and confuse" the assembly.

He said India would reply in detail to Bhutto today. Sardar S. Singh, the Indian foreign minister, will arrive in New York Wednesday to attend the assembly.



Released Urban Renewal Plan

This is the plan released Tuesday by Barton, Aschman and Associates for urban renewal of the Iowa City central business district. The plan, which would allow for University expansion to the east and south of existing facilities, will be reviewed by the City Council later in the year.

City Council Sees Proposed Changes

A view of the Iowa City of the future under a proposed urban renewal plan was offered Tuesday night when the city council met as a local planning agency for renewal.

Representatives of research consultants Barton, Aschman and Associates and of Sasaki, Dawson, DeMay and Associates presented land use plans for downtown Iowa City. The plans, they emphasized, were only one possible result that could be achieved if the city decides to go ahead with urban renewal.

If this plan were adopted, some of the factors that exist in successful shopping centers would be applied to the central business district.

These include development of a compact business area, environmental improvements such as a mall and trees, and ease of accessibility and parking.

Four main sectors would be developed downtown. The hard core retail development would be kept within the bounds of Iowa Avenue and Clinton, Burlington and Linn Streets. A feature of this area would be a new, large department store.

"It's extremely important to try to concentrate in a single core those kind of activities that can interchange customers," said F. T. Aschman, of Barton, Aschman.

A second area would be University development, which would come mostly to the south of the existing University facilities. Government and semi-public buildings, such as the Public Library, Civic Center and Recreation Center, would be to the east of the retail area.

A fourth sector calls for automobile-oriented and service-related facilities to be built south of the retail core. These would include long-term employee parking and minor office development.

To facilitate these plans, the representatives recommended that the boundaries of the urban renewal project be expanded to include the four blocks between Gilbert and Van Buren streets from Iowa Avenue to Court Streets.

Besides land use, the consultants had plans to improve the traffic patterns. A one-way ring of streets would be developed around the retail core. Other streets on the outskirts would be improved to carry away some of the 40 per cent of downtown traffic that, according to research, does not want to be downtown.

Street improvements include development of Madison along the river, diversion of Dubuque Street along Market and Jefferson Streets to an improved Gilbert Street, and building a new bridge across the Iowa River at Court Street.

Dubuque Street from Jefferson to Iowa Avenue, College Street from Clinton to Madison, and Capitol Street would be closed.

To meet the parking demand, about 2,900 parking spaces, exclusive of University use, would be provided.

John Adelberg, of Sasaki, Dawson, DeMay and Associates, presented an illustrated view of what the renewed downtown could be. Some of the problems to be dealt with, he said, are continuity in store fronts, above-ground utility lines, and settings for public buildings.

In matters affecting the University, Aschman said he would like to see more student housing units built south of the current University area.

Also, he recommended that housing facilities be permitted downtown if they would not interfere with commercial development on the ground floor.

This change from the usual recommendation of not mixing housing and business, he said, came because the proximity of the downtown and campus.

A study showing which downtown businesses would have to relocate is now being prepared by local urban renewal officials. Aschman estimated that only about a dozen buildings would have to be actually torn down, and the others could be fixed by repair.

The final decision on urban renewal plans will come from the city council after further studies have been made.

Rangers Fight Viet Cong; B52's Continue Pounding

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Vietnamese rangers and Viet Cong guerrillas in battalion strength battled again Tuesday in Phu Cu Pass where the Communists had heavy losses in a fight last week, a U.S. military spokesman reported.

He described the fighting as heavy but said he had no details or estimates of casualties on either side.

The battle was 295 miles northeast of Saigon and 45 miles northwest of the coastal city of Qui Nhon.

Elsewhere on the ground, the Viet Cong concentrated attacks on Vietnamese outposts and, in one raid, overran a village and executed five Vietnamese, including the village chief whose body they dumped at the flag pole.

U.S. ground forces reported only patrol skirmishing but U.S. ships and planes pounded targets in South Viet Nam and other American aircraft blasted Communist positions in North Viet Nam.

Pilots reported heavy to moderate ground fire but all planes returned safely.

B52 bombers of the Strategic Air Comand hammered suspected Viet Cong logistical facilities Tuesday night in Quang Ngai Province.

The targets, near the South China Sea, were about 320 miles northeast of Saigon.

It was the 34th raid of the war for the big bombers based on Guam.

In the new Phu Cu fight, a Vietnamese army ranger unit reported it engaged a large Viet Cong element, possibly one or two battalions.

Another Vietnamese army unit in the area reported contact with Viet Cong group believed to be of company size. A Viet Cong battalion normally has 500 to 600 men and a company about 100 men.

The U.S. spokesman said tactical air strikes were launched to aid the government forces.

Since the Phu Cu fight last week, 260 Viet Cong bodies have been counted by U.S. officers. Vietnamese and U.S. military men, however, think the number of Viet Cong killed exceeded 700. Government losses were called moderate.

U.S. and Vietnamese authorities said the enemy dead were from the 18th Regiment of North Viet Nam's 325th Division, reported by intelligence some time ago to have entered the central highlands of South Viet Nam.

Conservatives Challenging Representatives of Senate

Young Americans for Freedom (YAF) Pres. Ronald Zobel, A2, Oelwein, Tuesday night set as one of the group's goals the elimination of the National Student Association (NSA) as a representative of the Student Senate.

Other planned programs include the distribution of John A. Stormer's book, "None Dare Call It Treason," monthly petitions on national and international subjects, the distribution of material to students entering the Oct. 13 lecture by Arthur Larson and an expanded membership drive.

Zobel, speaking to the YAF organizational meeting in the Union Indiana Room, told new members that YAF is the only conservative organization on the University campus.

"If we weren't here," said Zobel, "the people who oppose liberalism would have no voice."

ZOBEL CITED certain resolutions passed at the summer NSA convention as reason to eliminate its affiliation at Iowa. The most dangerous, Zobel said, are restrictions NSA places upon fraternity life.This could lead to fraternities not being able to choose their own members, Zobel said.

A program to distribute information on NSA activities to other campus organizations is planned to achieve NSA replacement.

Zobel said, "I think we should all unite to throw this thing off campus."

YAF ACTION wil begin next week when members operate the booth in front of the Union Gold Feather Lounge to distribute some 10,000 copies of Stormer's "None Dare Call It Treason. The booth will operate Oct. 5-7 from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Zobel said the purpose of the book was to inform students of the dangers of communism.

The capacity crowd was also told by Zobel that YAF would use four techniques to present its views.

First, the organization will circulate conservative information and create study groups to study conservatism.

Second, the group will present to students entering the auditorium 7,500 pamphlets that challenge Larson's views on extremist groups.

Third, at the next YAF meeting Oct. 26, Dale Erickson, twice state senate candidate, will present a tape recording that he says will "show how communists have used student agitation as a revolutionary vehicle since Russian Revolution times."

Fourth, Zobel recommended 15 non-fiction books and five novels that reflect conservative views.

This year's membership drive will also touch upon the recruiting of fraternity members who Zobel says have much at stake in the conservative cause.

Iowa Congressmen Will Judge, Not Legislate, at Homecoming

Plans for the many events during Homecoming weekend are nearing completion. Homecoming badges will go on sale Thursday for 50 cents.

The weekend will begin with the p.m. Oct. 8. The Homecoming parade will be at 7 p.m. that day. Winners of the float categories will be announced after the parade.

Homecoming parade non-competitive float entries are due at the Office of Student Affairs, 111 University Hall, Thursday.

FLOATS AND marching units that are not sponsored by housing units and Iowa City businesses are in the non-competitive category and are not eligible for prizes. About 15 high school bands will be in the parade.

Housing units have entered 17 floats. The floats will be judged in three categories: beauty, humor and originality. A sweepstakes prize will be awarded to the best all-around float.

Sen. Jack Miller and Rep. John R. Schmidhauser will judge. Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper might also be able to judge.

FOLLOWING THE parade, a pep rally and the crowning of Miss U of I from the five finalists will be made on the steps of Old Capitol.

The Dolphin Show, "Mood Oriental," will be at 8 p.m. Oct. 8 and 9 in the Field House.

A Union Open House will be from 8 to 11 p.m. Oct. 8.

Pictures of the proposed Iowa Center for the Arts, which will be built just west of the Iowa River between Capitol Street bridge and City Park, will be on display at the Union during the open house.

Pamphlets for members and students will be at the display, which is sponsored by the Alumni Association and the Iowa Foundation.

A SENIOR PROGRAM to introduce senior students to the association is planned for the near future. After the program the seniors will be able to become life members of the association.

Department coffee hours, sponsored by the association, will be held Homecoming weekend.

Alumni may register at the Union display. Those wanting to join the association should see Jim Rauker, association field secretary, at the Alumni House across from the Union.

Spoonfeeding Of Knowledge Is Condemned

Mr. Robert J. Lux, English teacher at Charles City High School, addressed prospective teachers at the opening meeting of the Student National Education Association (SNEA) in the Union Yale Room Tuesday evening.

Speaking on the changes in education since the arrival of Sputnik, Lux told SNEA members that teachers must prepare themselves to discuss with students their more sophisticated thoughts, readings and ideas.

Lux said students must be taught to think and teachers must motivate them and become emotionally involved so the teachers can understand what is happening.

"We can't spoonfeed youth," he said, "and Johnny will have to be challenged to survive in this world."

Lux, a graduate of the State College of Iowa, Cedar Falls, has taught 15 years. As a student council advisor he received the National Association of Student Councils' merit citation for six consecutive years.

He is a former advisor of the Hawkeye Boys' State and the Charles City American Field Service Chapter. Lux also received the Valley Forge Classroom Teachers Medal in 1963.

SNEA President, Sue Fischbeck, A4, Mason City, announced future meetings will be on the second Tuesday of each month. A prospective teachers' day will be held on campus Nov. 3 to acquaint Iowa high school students with the parent organization. The SNEA advisor is Jack Bagford, assistant professor of education.

Councilman Maas Won't Run Again; Election In Nov.

While Councilman William K. Maas announced he would not run for a second term on the Iowa City City Council, a fifth candidate took out nomination papers. James J. Neades, 25, 1226½ Rochester Ave., may force a primary election which would have to be held October 19.

If more than four persons file nomination papers with at least 64 qualified voters' signatures a primary is necessary.

The four others who had taken out nomination papers are: Prof. Harry R. Smith, 228 South Summit St.; Moe Whitebook, 14 Glendale Ct.; Robert D. Sadler, 3008 Friendship St.; and Max Yocum, 224 Orchard St., incumbent councilman.

There is a possibility Yocum won't become a candidate. He has said he may not complete the final papers. Two positions will be filled in the Nov. 2 election.

Maas steps down after four years as councilman.

"I have served four busy and interesting years as one of your elected representatives, and I believe it is time for me to step aside and allow someone else to serve the community," he said.

Recreation Plans OK'd In Coralville

Approval was given to tentative plans for a Coralville recreation center by the city council at Tuesday night's meeting.

Bryce Wilford, chairman of the Coralville Recreation Commission, submitted plans calling for a two-story structure. The upper floor will contain council chambers and meeting rooms and the lower floor a gymnasium, shower facilities and exits leading to a swimming pool.

Upon receiving the council's approval, Wolford was directed to refer the plans again to the recreation commission for additional study.

The council also took under advisement a plan providing for life and accident insurance for city employees.

Volcano Takes 21 Lives

TAGAYTAY, Philippines (AP) — Smoke pulsed from the Taal Volcano Tuesday night as authorities sought to determine how many of the islands 2,000 residents perished in the fiery eruption before dawn.

Police said 21 persons were known dead.

Dream Experiment Of Modern Biology Achieved by Team

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Science Foundation reported Tuesday one of its research-grant teams had achieved the dream experiment of modern biology: artificial production of a self-duplicating substance in a test tube. The substance is an infectious acid similar to one present in a certain living virus.

Without saying so flatly, the announcement indicated that the development, achieved at the University of Illinois, could be a step towards better understanding of heredity and of certain disease processes. And possibly even a step towards the goal of producing living organisms in a test tube.

The achievement was credited to Prof. Sol Spiegelman and four co-workers.

The scientists, according to the report, synthesized — that is, built up from other materials — a self-propagating, infectious ribonucleic acid.

Ribonucleic acid — called RNA — is one of the key materials of which the genes, or hereditary-carrying entities, of living cells — including viral cells — are made.

Starting with a "copy" of a viral RNA, and adding certain chemicals, the researchers synthesized new RNA. This, in turn, directed the formation of genes — leading to the reproduction of RNA indefinately in a succession of test tube transfers.

Popular Professor 90 Today

Dr. Sam B. Sloan, professor emeritus and perhaps the most popular lecturer during his stay at the University, celebrates his 90th birthday today.

"When I came here in 1921, Dr. Sloan was well-established as probably the most popular teacher in the English Department," Dr. Bartholow Crawford, professor emeritus of English, said in an interview Tuesday. "His novel classes, taught at two different hours, were using the largest room available."

Sloan lectured on the English and American novels; his particular life interest was the English novelist Thomas Hardy, Crawford said.

Crawford described Sloan's lectures as "formal in the sense that he prepared his lectures for his classes with great care. He taught the sort of course that the older students recommended to the younger ones to take."

Sloan joined the English Department as an assistant instructor in 1899 and rose to the rank of professor in 1932. He retired before retirement age in June, 1939. He is the oldest living professor emeritus at the University and has been on the staff longer than any other person.

SLOAN
90 today

In 1962 he was cited by Governor Norman Erbe "for the longest service to the University."

Sloan gave his library containing many priceless books to Coe College in 1963. He wrote the college, "I am advising you the library is now yours and I'd like to think that hundreds of your students will profit from it."

Sloan was born in Magnolia Sept. 29, 1875. He attended Logan High School and graduated Phi Beta Kappa with an A.B. from the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb. He received further college training from the University of Iowa, University of Wisconsin, Madison, and Columbia University, New York City.

Sloan, who now lives in the Jefferson Hotel, said Tuesday his favorite pastime was reading, although a stroke in May seriously impaired his vision. He spends four or five hours daily listening to the radio to keep up with world events.

Sloan's only comment about his birthday was that he was "profoundly proud to live to reach the age of 90."

OBSERVATIONS AND COMMENT

PAGE 2 WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 29, 1965 IOWA CITY, IA.

Get a horse?

IT'S THAT TIME OF THE YEAR again, not only are the students and faculty having difficulty getting organized, but so are their automobiles.

Every other driver we talk to has a plan to peddle which he thinks would solve at least part of the problem.

"We need to have an editorial campaign to do away with freshmen and sophomore cars," one upperclassman told us.

"Only students and faculty should be allowed to park in the Union Parking Ramp," claimed another, "that place is always full of cars belonging to people in the Union or from town."

We wonder, however, if the problem is as bad as it may seem to many. Students not eligible for restricted lot parking privileges are able to walk to classes, and therefore need not worry. If they can't park, they should walk.

Other students are sold $12 Restricted Lot Stickers because they live too far from campus to walk. Unfortunately, many who have stickers are unable to find a space either in a reserve lot or in the Parking Ramp. Perhaps some without spaces are overlooking the many restricted lots west of the river, by the Hydraulics Lab and the Art Building, for example.

Of course, there is no doubt but what a parking problem exists and it does not improve as the University grows.

But the basic answer is not so much one of providing more parking spaces, but one of providing an alternative to the automobile as a means of transportation. A car is just about the slowest and most inefficient means possible of traveling in a large city.

E. C. Guggenheimer, commissioner of New York's City Planning Commission, has a parking problem to face which makes Iowa City look like a suburban shopping center. In an article in The Nation Guggenheimer writes, "in 1911 a horse-drawn truck could speed through the city streets at 11 miles an hour. Today, automobiles are forced to crawl at an average speed of 6 miles an hour when crossing Manhattan."

He also says, "In peak hours a 9-foot-wide lane in town centers can accommodate per hour 16,000 persons on foot; between 5,600 and 18,000 by bus (depending on the capacity of the bus) and 40,000 persons per track by rapid transit. In contrast to this, a 9-foot-wide lane in a town center can accommodate only 1,200 persons traveling by car . . . . Sooner or later we must face the fact that if people are to move around a city freely they must forsake the automobile."

It is obvious that Iowa City's problems are nowhere nearly as complex as those of a metropolis, but it is just as obvious that the problems here require considerable study and perhaps some drastic changes in conventional approaches to solving them.

The Student Senate is once again conducting a study on the problem, and no doubt the University will continue to keep a close eye on things. The day draws ever closer when the time for studying and watching will be past and the time for action upon us.

In the meantime, we'll just have to make the best of it and think of possible alternatives . . . motorcycles, bicycles, buses, monorails, horses, roller skates . . . something to replace the auto for getting around town.

No one in Iowa City has the answer today, but neither does anyone in Des Moines, Chicago or New York, and their problems are all the greater.

New cheaters

AUTHORITIES IN ATHENS, GREECE, have caught students taking University entrance exams in the act of cribbing — with a new twist. They get the answers via portable radios which pick up signals from transmitters operated by modern day "ghost writers."

The intricacies of such a system are many, but the problems would appear even greater. Imagine, for example, the confusion if a student using a radio got the wrong station. His answers would turn out pure gibberish (at least they would if Greek radio stations program are at all like their American counterparts).

To foil attempts at cheating by radio, of course, is a simple matter — just have the instructors use an electric razor during the test.

Forgive and forget—

Germans ask new movie image

By ART BUCHWALD

Word has just come in from West Germany that many of the German people are getting tired of being shown as heavies in World War II. They feel it's about time motion picture producers and writers stopped showing the Germans in a bad light and that everyone forgot about their past mistakes.

I couldn't agree with them more. The German people have suffered enough at the hands of Warner Brothers and MGM and an effort should be made to forget the past and give the Germans a new image.

One of the main problems in the previous war movies is that the Nazis are played by such disagreeable types. They're always snarling and shouting, "Heil Hitler!" and slapping pretty French Resistance girls in the face.

If we really want to do them a service, I think we should pay more attention to casting. In the new war pictures, we should cast Pat Boone, Pat O'Brien, or Jimmy Stewart as the SS men, and Otto Preminger, Paul Lucas, and Helmut Dantine as the American GIs.

This would be a start in conjuring up sympathy for the German side. Once you solve the casting problem, you have to think about plot. First, we must get away from the stereotyped German U-boat commander.

I see a picture where Pat Boone is commander of a German U-boat. He is out searching for prey.

His executive officer, played by Lawrence Welk, says, "Sir, I've got a target in the periscope."

Boone grabs the periscope and says, "It's the Athenia, a passenger ship."

Welk says, "When should we fire?"

Boone pulls the periscope down. "We can't. There are women and children aboard."

"But they've seen us. They'll radio our position."

"I'd rather risk getting sunk than torpedo a ship with civilians aboard. Hitler would want it that way."

Another image we must change is that of the role of the Gestapo in World War II.

In the nouvelle vague World War II film we would show Gestapo headquarters in Paris with Bing Crosby playing the head of the Gestapo. They have just brought in Pierre le Loup, head of the entire French Resistance.

Crosby says, "Loup, we want the list of every Resistance fighter in France."

Pierre le Loup says, "You'll never get it out of me."

"We have ways of getting things out of people." Crosby rings a buzzer and Fred MacMurray comes in. Crosby says to Fred MacMurray, "He doesn't seem to be in the mood to talk."

MacMurray replies, "Well, there's nothing we can do about it. If we lay a finger on him, we'll have to answer to Himmler for police brutality."

The other standard plot that has been showing the Germans in a bad light has to do with prisoner-of-war camps. A new version, which could be called "Stalag Hilton," would star Henry Fonda as the camp commandant.

Doris Day would play his wife, who rolls bandages for the Jewish prisoners in the hospital.

Glenn Ford, the SS sergeant, rushes in, shouts, "The prisoners are escaping, Herr Commandant."

"Don't talk to me," Fonda says. "I'm in on the July '44 plot."

And Ford says, "Aren't we all?"

Nonstudent left— is it fact or fiction?

By HUNTER S. THOMPSON
From The Nation

(This is the first in a series of articles on "The "Nonstudent Left." Mr. Thompson is a free-lance writer, now living in San Francisco. He is completing a novel, "The Rum Diary," and his book on Hell's Angels and other motorcycle gangs will be published in the spring.—Ed.)

At the height of the "Berkeley insurrection" press reports were loaded with mentions of outsiders, non-students and professional troublemakers.

Terms like "Cal's shadow college" and "Berkeley's hidden community" became part of the journalistic lexicon. These people, it was said, were whipping the campus into a frenzy, goading the students to revolt, harassing the administration, and all the while working for their own fiendish ends.

You could almost see them loping along the midnight streets with bags of seditious leaflets, strike orders, red banners of protest and cablegrams from Moscow, Peking or Havana. As in Mississippi and South Viet Nam, outside agitators were said to be stirring up the locals, who wanted only to be left alone.

SOMETHING CLOSER to the truth is beginning to emerge now, but down around the roots of the affair the fog is still pretty thick. The Sproul Hall sit-in trials ended in a series of unexpectedly harsh convictions, the Free Speech Movement has been disbanded, four students have been expelled and sentenced to jail terms as a result of the "dirty word" controversy, and the principal leader, Mario Savio, has gone to England, where he'll study and wait for word on the appeal of his four-month jail term — a procedure which may take as long as 18 months.

As the new semester begins — with a new and inscrutible chancellor — the mood on the Berkeley campus is one of watchful waiting. The basic issues of last year are still unresolved, and a big new one has been added: Viet Nam.

A massive nation-wide sit-in, with Berkeley as a focal point, is scheduled for Oct. 15-16, and if that doesn't open all the old wounds, then presumably nothing will.

FOR A TIME it looked as though Gov. Edmund Brown had sidetracked any legislative investigation of the university, but late in August, Assembly Speaker Jesse Unruh, an anti-Brown Democrat, named himself and four colleagues to a joint legislative committee that will investigate higher education in California.

Mr. Unruh told the press that "there will be no isolated investigation of student-faculty problems at Berkeley," but in the same period he stated before a national conference of more than 1,000 state legislators, meeting in Portland, that the academic community is "probably the greatest enemy" of a state legislature.

Mr. Unruh is a sign of the times. For a while last spring he appeared to be in conflict with the normally atavistic Board of Regents, which runs the university, but somewhere along the line a blue-chip compromise was reached, and whatever progressive ideas the Regents might have flirted with were lost in the summer lull.

Gov. Brown's role in these negotiations has not yet been made public.

ONE OF THE realities to come out of last semester's action is the new "anti-outsider law," designed to keep "nonstudents" off the campus in any hour of turmoil. It was sponsored by Assemblyman Don Mulford, a Republican from Oakland, who looks and talks quite a bit like the "old" Richard Nixon.

Mr. Mulford is much concerned about "subversive infiltration" on the Berkeley campus, which lies in his district. He thinks he knows that the outburst last fall was caused by New York Communists, beatnik perverts and other godless elements beyond his ken.

The students themselves, he tells himself, would never have caused such a ruckus. Others in Sacramento apparently shared this view: the bill passed the Assembly by a vote of 54 to 11 and the Senate by 27 to 8.

GOV. BROWN signed it on June 2. The Mulford proposal got a good boost, while it was still pending, when J. Edgar Hoover testified in Washington that 43 Reds of one stripe or another were involved in the Free Speech Movement.

On hearing of this, one student grinned and said: "Well, I guess that means they'll send about 10,000 Marines out here this fall. Hell, they sent 20,000 after those 58 Reds in Santo Domingo. Man that Lyndon is nothing but hip!"

Where Mr. Hoover got his figure is a matter of speculation, but the guess in Berkeley is that it came from the San Francisco Examiner, a Hearst paper calling itself "The Monarch of the Dailies." The Examiner is particularly influential among those who fear King George III might still be alive in Argentina.

THE SIGNIFICANCE of the Mulford law lies not in what it says but in the darkness it sheds on the whole situation in Berkeley, especially on the role of nonstudents and outsiders. Who are these thugs? What manner of man would lurk on a campus for no reason but to twist student minds? As anyone who lives or works around an urban campus knows, vast numbers of students are already more radical than any Red Mr. Hoover could name.

Beyond that, the nonstudents and outsiders California has legislated against are in the main ex-students, graduates, would-be transfers, and other young activist types who differ from radical students only in that they don't carry university registration cards.

ON ANY URBAN campus the nonstudent is an old and dishonored tradition. Every big city school has its fringe element: Harvard, New York University, Chicago, the Sorbonne, Berkeley, the University of Caracas. A dynamic university in a modern population center simply can't be isolated from the realities, human or otherwise, that surround it. Mr. Mulford would make an island of the Berkeley campus but alas, there are too many guerrillas.

In 1958, I drifted north from Kentucky and became a nonstudent at Columbia. I signed up for two courses and am still getting bills for the tuition. My home was a $12-a-week room in an off-campus building, full of jazz musicians, shoplifters, mainliners, screaming poets and sex addicts of every description. It was a good life.

I USED THE university facilities and at one point was hired to stand in a booth all day for two days, collecting registration fees.

Twice I walked almost the length of the campus at night with a big wooden box containing nearly $15,000. It was a wild feeling and I'm still not sure why I took the money to the bursar.

Being a "non" or "neo" student on a urban campus is not only simple but natural for anyone who is young, bright, and convinced that the major he's after is not on the list. Any list. A serious nonstudent is his own guidance counselor. The surprising thing is that so few people beyond the campus know this is going on.

THE NONSTUDENT tradition seems to date from the end of World War II. Before that it was a more individual thing. A professor at Columbia told me that the late R. P. Blackmur, one of the most academic and scholarly of literary critics, got most of his education by sitting in on classes at Harvard.

In the age of Eisenhower and Kerouac, the nonstudent went about stealing his education as quietly as possible. It never occurred to him to jump into campus politics; that was part of the game he had already quit. But when the decade ended, Nixon went down, and the civil rights struggle broke out.

Small merchants face income dip

By the GOP Committee

Who gets what part of U.S. national income?

Columnist Sylvia Porter reveals that while workers are doing better than ever, corporation income is declining, investor income is declining, farm income is dropping sharply, landlords are staying about even, and small businesses are losing ground.

The division of shares of last year's national income compared with 1948 — considered by economists to be the first "normal" post-war business year — shows some interesting contrasts and poses some danger signals to continuing national well-being.

Last year, wage earners got 64.8 per cent of the national income pie in direct wages, picked up another 6.2 per cent in fringe benefits. Writer Porter says, "With contributions to private and public pensions and welfare funds in a relentlessly steep uptrend, there is no doubt that fringe benefits will continue to account for a rising share."

ALTOGETHER, THE workers got 71 per cent of the national income last year. This is up from the 60 per cent in wages and 2.6 per cent in fringe benefits workers got in 1948.

Corporations have shown a decline in profits from 14.7 per cent in 1948 to 12.5 per cent last year. The small businessmen and professional workers have dropped from 10.6 per cent in 1948 to 7.6 per cent, despite sharp increases in the earnings of professionals.

Columnist Porter states: "A big loser was, as you might suspect, the American farmer. Total farm income was actually down eight per cent in 1964 to 12 billion. The farmer's share of the national income pie today is a scant 2.3 per cent, less than one-third what it was in 1948." She predicts that farm income will decline further.

Landlords, corporate and private home renters, showed least change, with 3.6 per cent in 1948 and 3.5 per cent in 1964.

THE ABOVE FIGURE show two soft spots in the economy. Administration policies aren't designed to help either. Controversial farm programs, with rigid production controls, artificial Government markets and huge surplusses have proven that they don't help the farmer. This year's farm bill offers more of the same. More small farmers will be forced off the farm.

Small business could be damaged if higher minimum wages with broader coverage are tacked onto their aready heavy operating costs. Automation will replace low wage groups — and automation leads to larger business.

The Great Society, in short, seems more interested in voting blocs than the general welfare. Eroding farm and small business incomes could lead to a general erosion in the overall economy.

Loss of a legend

To the Editor:

At the end of this year, George Ginsburgs, assistant professor of political science, will leave the University of Iowa for 'greener pastures.'

In the heyday of academic 'headhunting' this particular type of leaving is, by now, painfully familiar. Its pattern is established. There will be little hysteria, few formal objections, and almost no suicide attempts by crazed graduate students — leaping from a third floor window of Schaeffer Hall.

Quite to the contrary. The transition is to appear smooth; the takeover complete. We will return in the fall confident that his courses will still be offered, his office again occupied, and his thoughts, if we need them, available to us only in print. But it will not be the same.

THERE ARE A few of us, you see, who will build a legend. We are the ones who have sat in his classes. We are the ones who have felt the undeniable, over-whelming power of this man. We have seen him raise the structure of seemingly prosaic subject matters into that area of intellectually thin air familiar only to the best of the metaphysical mountain climbers.

We have, in varying degrees, basked in his brilliant radiation and have, in varying degrees, been better for it.

AND, BECAUSE he is not in the 'mainstream' of departmental philosophy, we have seen him act the role of a truly magnificent gadfly and, at times, scapegoat. Surely it will not be the same.

But this was not intended to be an unhappy panegyric. The intellectual debt that we owe this man is too great to be paid in such a superficial manner. I have no particular point. I just thought you might like to know — those of you who have begun legends yourselves. The University of Iowa is losing a very great man.

House Panel Backs Gross In Dispute

Says Peterson Failed To Establish Grounds For Ballot Recount

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House Administration subcommittee Tuesday recommended dismissal of an election contest against Rep. H. R. Gross (R-Iowa).

The contest, in Iowa's Third Congressional District, was brought by Stephen M. Peterson, Waterloo Democrat.

Gross was declared the winner by 419 votes. Peterson has sought a recount.

The subcommittee acted after considering the contest in an executive session.

The meeting was called by Chairman Robert T. Ashmore (D-S.C.), after nearly three hours of testimony at a public hearing earlier in the day.

Ashmore said the action was taken on the unanimous vote of the eight members present. The subcommittee had met for about 35 minutes.

Asked what the subcommittee action was based upon, Ashmore told reporters:

"It was the over-all picture. Peterson failed to prove any grounds for a recount. Numerous charges were made but they were all of a flimsy nature. There was no certain evidence that a recount would change the results."

Ashmore said the recommendation, in the form of a resolution, will be submitted to the full Administration Committee at its next meeting, tentatively scheduled for Oct. 6.

If this position is upheld by the full committee, he said, "I think the resolution will go to the House floor for action."

At the open hearing Peterson and his attorney, Howard W. Dresser, argued that Iowa election laws were violated in that some voting machines were not cleared before being used, unused ballots were destroyed too fast and a few marked ballots were given to voters when they entered the polls.

"I think there is a probability that the results might be changed by a recount," Dresser said.

Neither Peterson nor Dresser accused Gross of any wrong-doing in the election. They said they were making no allegation of fraud against him.

Leroy H. Redfern, Gross' attorney, told the subcommittee that the Peterson case was the weakest one to be presented "from the first Congress down."

"He (Peterson) has the burden of proof and he has failed," Redfern said. "He has proved just one thing — that he was 419 votes short of election."

Redfern said violations cited were of regulations and not election laws and contended that clerical errors occur in all elections.

University Hears Of World Efforts To Help Students

A representative of World University Service (WUS), Miss Joy Strohbeem, visited the University Tuesday. WUS is an association of university students, staff and administrators who work for the advancement of universities and students throughout the world.

Miss Strohbeem talked to campus ministers, administrators, and Student Senate members about setting up a WUS committee at the University. The committee would work under Student Senate, and would raise funds to be sent to overseas students and universities.

WUS was operated in 1920, Miss Strohbeen explained, to help the European university community rebuild after the war. She said WUS now has organizations in 60 countries.

The work of WUS is mainly in under-developed countries. It includes improving student health, building living quarters, improving educational facilities and activities, and providing emergency aid to individual students.

WUS works on a student to student basis, Miss Strohbeem said, and is unhampered by political difficulties.

"Being concerned with education we can cross barriers which individual countries couldn't," she said.

For an example, she cited the WUS projects being carried on between India and Pakistan. She also mentioned a WUS project to aid students in Viet Nam who, because of the war, have no textbooks.

Free information is provided by WUS for any group interested in starting similar projects of their own, Miss Strohbeen said. The WUS address is: 19 South La Salle St., Chicago, Illinois, 60603.

Western Sources Doubt Value of New Red Plan

MOSCOW (AP) — Western diplomatic sources expressed doubt Tuesday that the economic reform proposed by Premier Alexei N. Kosygin will cure the Soviet Union's chronic economic ills.

The Central Committee of the Soviet Communist party spent the day discussing Kosygin's program, which he introduced at the committee's initial session Monday.

The meeting was called specifically to consider ways to pull the Soviet economy out of the slump it fell into in the last years of Nikita S. Khrushchev's leadership.

Kosygin called for greater incentives for the labor force, more reliance on the profit motive and whittling down bureaucracy.

He argued that the Soviet Union is not going over to capitalistic methods and said his reforms "will strengthen the positions of socialism in the economic competition between the two social systems."

But well-informed Western diplomatic sources in Moscow said the reform would not correct the basic cumbersomeness of the Soviet system, directed from the top and stifling initiative on the operation level.

They predicted that the partial use of the profit motive, cost accounting and other capitalistic devices could well add to the confusion and further set back production.

Westerners said the Kosygin program seemed a halfway attempt aimed at holding the new group leadership of the Soviet Union together, and giving the people hope for better times.

Kosygin and the Communist party first secretary, Leonid I. Brezhnev, who took over from Khrushchev last Oct. 14, are seeking to solidify their power at the Central Committee meeting.

Last March, the committee took up agricultural problems and produced a program Western observers regarded as having merit, but this was ruined by bad weather. The country is suffering another wheat shortage.

Adderly Voted Player of Week

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Intercepting a John Unitas' pass is a feat worth mentioning because the Baltimore ace lost only six last season. Herb Adderley of Green Bay, however grabbed two Sunday and also recovered a Tom Matte fumble in a superior defensive effort.

Adderley's play won the Packer corner back recognition by The Associated Press as the defensive Player of The Week in the National Football League.

Fumbles and interceptions cost Baltimore the game with Green Bay 20-17 and nobody was more responsible than Adderley. The former Michigan State halfback raced 44 yards for a touchdown in the second period after grabbing a Unitas' pass intended for Jimmy Orr. He also picked off a pass in the first period and ran it back 42 yards to the Colts' 41.

Roger Brown, Detroit Lions' defensive tackle, also earned mention for the job he did on the Minnesota Vikings' Fran Tarkenton in a 31-29 Detroit victory. Brown grabbed Tarkenton, trying to pass on the Vikings' 5 late in the first half, knocked the ball loose and recovered on the Minnesota one to set up an easy Lion touchdown.

Jim Burson of St. Louis, who intercepted two passes against Cleveland in that 49-13 romp, drew support for the honor. Both interceptions set up touchdowns.

Merlin Olsen of the Los Angeles Rams was impressive in his effort against the Bears. Olsen, 6-foot 5 and 276 pounds, harassed Bill Wade, Rudy Bukich and Jon Arnett all afternoon in a 30-28 victory for the Rams.

Fall Baseball Practice Begins

The Hawkeye baseball team will start fall practice this afternoon at 3:30 on the varsity diamond if the weather is good or in the fieldhouse if the weather is bad.

Baseball coach Dick Shultz has asked that all varsity and freshman candidates for the team report to practice and bring their own equipment.

Long Barnstorming Stint Embitters Satchel Paige

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Satchel Paige, the seemingly ageless Negro, does not feel fortunate at pitching again in major league baseball.

"It was no big deal for me to come back up here, because I had no business being out," Paige said bitterly to Lou Hatter, reporter for the Baltimore Sun.

"You can put it this way. You can say I resent being overlooked by organized baseball all these years while I threw away most of my best years pitching for a barnstorming club."

The Athletics hired Paige 10 days ago for his third stint in the American League. In his first appearance for the A's last Saturday night he held Boston scoreless for three innings and allowed one hit.

"Everybody thinks it's remarkable how I keep getting batters out in my 40th year of pitching — that's right, 40 years of straight baseball," Paige said.

"All they ask me, though, is how old I am. But nobody asks me why I stayed out the major leagues for 15 years. That's a long time, isn't it? That's a lifetime for most professional players.

Paige pitched two seasons at Cleveland and three at St. Louis until the Browns franchise was transferred to Baltimore in 1954. During the 1956-58 seasons, he posted records of 11-4, 11-8, and 10-2 for Miami, Fla., in the International League.

Paige said he was glad Kansas City hired him, but only because "now folks can see that I must have had a lot more going for me and deserved to be in the big leagues when I was in my prime."

Texas Ranked Number One

NEW YORK (AP) — Darrell Royal thinks it's too early to rate Texas the No. 1 college football team in the nation and the supporters of Purdue, Nebraska and a host of others agree heartily.

Texas moved into the lead in the weekly Associated Press vote of a panel of sports writers and sportscasters announced Tuesday but just barely ahead of Purdue and Nebraska. Teams like Arkansas, Louisiana State, Kentucky, Michigan, Notre Dame, Michigan State and Georgia are nipping at their cleats.

"The hardest possible way to win a national championship is to get the top spot early and have to play under that pressure all season," said Royal.

Michigan State and Georgia were the new members of the Top Ten, replacing Florida and Syracuse, which were beaten Saturday. When Notre Dame lost to Purdue 25-21, the Irish dropped from first to eighth.

There is only one meeting of ranked teams this week.

Georgia No. 10 will be at Michigan No. 7.

The vote with points on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis and first-place votes in parentheses:

1. Texas	(15)	2-0	389
2. Purdue	(14)	2-0	381
3. Nebraska	(13)	2-0	363
4. Arkansas	(3)	2-0	264
5. Louisiana State		2-0	248
6. Kentucky	(1)	2-0	168
7. Michigan		2-0	166

Iowa Prepares for Wisconsin; Burns Makes Two Changes

The Hawkeye number one offense drilled against the number one defense at a two hour practice session Tuesday, trying to get ready for the Wisconsin game at Madison on Saturday.

Coach Jerry Burns had the two units working together on passing drills to give the defense a better workout. Wisconsin and Iowa use a similar set in their passing attack, according to Burns.

Burns has made two changes in the starting lineup since the Oregon State game, moving Jerry O'Donnell to left halfback and Terry Huff to linebacker. Both O'Donnell and Huff saw their first action of the season against Oregon State.

Dalton Kimble should be sufficiently recovered from his heel injury to spell O'Donnell at half. Kimble did not make the trip last week.

Burns said he did not have the slightest idea whether Farley Lewis would be ready for the Wisconsin game. Lewis suffered bruised ribs at Oregon State. Gary Simpson is doubtful for the Wisconsin game. Simpson has a severely bruised thigh.

Looking toward Saturday's game, Burns said the Hawks would be facing the best defensive secondary they have seen this year.

"Wisconsin's defensive unit is the best that has been in the conference for two or three years," he added.

The Badgers went through intensive offensive football drills Tuesday in an effort to strengthen their weak running attack for the game.

Coach Milt Bruhn also made wholesale changes in the lineup to get more punch into an attack that gained only 11 yards rushing against Southern California.

Fulback Tom Jankowski was moved to left halfback and Gary Bandor, a speedy sophomore, took over the wingback spot from Vic Janule.

End Tom Tietz, who performed well against the Trojans, was moved up to starting left end. In the line, Dave Aulik was promoted to first string center and John Roedel to starting left guard.

Defensive changes had Don Bliss and Tom Domres moving into the line at left tackle and middle guard.

Bruhn said everyone should be available for the Big Ten opener against Iowa.

ISU Prepares For Nebraska

Iowa State's football team drilled outside for the first time this week Tuesday, but recent rains made footing on its practice field treacherous.

Coach Clay Stapleton continued to stress offensive blocking as the Cyclones prepared for Saturday's Big Eight Conference opener against No. 3 ranked Nebraska at Lincoln.

The defense worked on pass defense and ways to stop Nebraska's quarterback Bob Churchich and split end Freeman White.

Stapleton said he plans no lineup changes for the game. That means the Cyclones' first two units will include ten sophomores, while the experienced Huskers will have only one first-year man in the top 22.

Meanwhile, Nebraska football coach Bob Devaney shuffled players experimentally on his first defensive unit Tuesday and tested the new combination in a scrimmage.

The objective, he indicated, was to bolster both the rush on passers and the pass coverage which Devaney has faulted for permitting the Air Force Academy to gain 290 yards via aerials last Saturday.

Middle guard Walter Barnes was moved to right tackle replacing Carl Stith. Richard Czap, who has alternated with Stith at right tackle, was moved to the left tackle and Jerry Murphy was installed at middle guard where previously he had understudied Barnes.

Mariner 4 Signals To Stop

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration's (NASA) most complex deep space mission, Mariner IV, will conclude this week. NASA officials announced they are ending transmission between the spacecraft and Earth before Oct. 1, though resumption of the radio link may be made in 1967.

The space mission, launched Nov. 28, 1964, was a triumph for the University.

Much of the information relayed by Mariner IV came from four radiation detectors designed here under the direction of Dr. James A. Van Allen, head of the physics department.

THE DETECTORS were used to measure the intensity and direction of low energy particles on Mars and in space.

According to NASA officials, the spacecraft will continue transmitting, but changes in the high-gain directional antenna to an omni-directional antenna will end contact with Earth.

Dr. Van Allen and others who worked on the project here expressed hope that transmission would be resumed, for additional data from the spacecraft could prove useful.

SINCE ITS LAUNCHING, Mariner IV has transmitted nearly 50 million engineering and scientific measurements on the environment of interplanetary space. July 14, the space-craft flew past Mars at an altitude of 6,118 miles, recording the first close-up pictures of the planet's surface. In July, Dr. Van Allen, Louis Frank, assistant professor of physics and Stamatos M. Krimigis, G, Minneapolis, Minn., were at the NASA jet propulsion laboratory when worldwide data collected by Mariner IV became available.

Work for the space project at the University began when NASA sent out requests to a number of universities and research centers for a workable project. The detectors, designed by Dr. Van Allen who also is the discoverer of the Van Allen radiation belts, measure charged particles in space.

DURING THE NEXT two years, tracking of Mariner IV with a new 210 foot antenna will be possible. No data will be received, but periodic tracking will determine if the transmitter is still working.

It is hoped such tracking will increase the accuracy in plotting the known relative positions of Earth and Mars.

By mid-1967, Mariner IV and Earth will be close enough to attempt resumption of communications using the low gain antenna.

At present Dr. Van Allen and his staff are working on operations for three interplanetary monitor platforms to orbit Earth and Mars. The first launching of such a platform is tentatively set for late 1966. Other launchings have not been scheduled yet.

Trials in South Recalled By City Unitarian Minister

Young adults who have grown up under miserable conditions and who literally have nothing to lose are, according to Rev. William M. Wier of the Unitarian Universalist Society, the leaders of the civil rights movement in the South.

Rev. Wier spoke and showed slides on his experiences as a civil rights worker in Selma, Ala., and Jackson, Miss., at the Iowa City Kiwanis Club luncheon, Tuesday.

The drive for civil rights in the South is not a middle class movement, he said. Many of the older people aren't active in the movement because they don't feel they can risk their jobs and their families' security by protesting against the government and society. The people, on the other hand, he said, are risking nothing and can gain much.

HE SAID, HOWEVER, that people of all ages, classes and religions are working together for civil liberty in the South. During the crisis in Selma, he said, "one individual could walk up to another and begin on the premise that we are all here for a common cause."

He stressed that America must grant to all citizens the rights it now only claims to give them. He noted that there has been legislative progress in this field; for example, the voting rights bill. But, he said, there is still fear of reprisals among Negroes if they take advantage of their legal rights.

"THERE ARE PARTS of America we've just been oblivious to!" Rev. Wier said.

He spoke of the contrast between the atmosphere in Selma and the one in Iowa City. In Selma, "you see a police car and you fear," he said.

Rev. Wier was in Jackson, Miss, before there was much coverage of that trouble spot by the communications media. He witnessed a "sick repudiation of the Negro as a human being" by the white community, he said.

He said that incidents related to the Freedom Democratic Party's protest against the meeting of the Mississippi Legislature, there "was indeed police brutality."

SOME DEMONSTRATORS in Jackson were arrested and forced to swallow the SNCC insignia pins they wore. Prisoners were held in buildings without ventilation, and were given only one mattress for every three persons, he said.

Medical care for prisoners arrested in the Jackson demonstrations was also inadequate, Rev. Wier said. But he told of one woman doctor who marched with the demonstrators, ready to be arrested, if necessary, in order to go along with them and give them medical attention.

Homecoming By Dolphin Club Has Desert Theme

"A Dip in the Dunes," based on an Arabian theme, is the title of the Homecoming swimming show to be presented by the Dolphin fraternity.

The show will be given in the Field House pool Thursday, Oct. 7, at 8 p.m.; Friday, Oct. 8, at 8:30 p.m.; and Saturday, Oct. 9, at 7 and 9 p.m. Tickets are $1 each and are on sale at the Field House or from Dolphin members.

The Dolphin Queen and her court will be presented at each show. Ten semifinalists for the position were chosen by the Dolphins Monday night from 49 candidates representing women's housing units.

The girls are: Linda Higdon, Fort Dodge, Burge Wellman House; Barbara Jess, Ames, Alpha Delta Pi; Barbara Shafer, Davenport, Gamma Phi Beta; Judy Allen, Burlington, Kappa Alpha Theta; Drenda Hicks, Rochelle, Ill., Currier; Patricia Gregory, Webster City, Currier; Mary Jo Donnelly, West Des Moines, Burge Wellman House; Cheryl Ames, Cedar Rapids, Delta Delta Delta; Sara Horstman, Britt, Burge Wardall House; and Virginia Hans, Chicago, Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Final selection of the queen will be made by the Dolphins Oct. 6.

The show, the 42nd annual performance by the Dolphins, is dedicated to Mrs. Beulah Gundling, a world champion synchronized swimmer. The program tells the story of three Arabs who are trying to catch a glimpse of a queen in her court.

The show will include water ballet, clown diving, fancy diving, acrobatic stunts on trampoline, parallel bars and flying rings, and juggling.

The Student Senate trip provides: $8,000 free flight insurance, an Air France travel bag, briefing sessions, information on housing and transportation, seat choices if reservations are made by Nov. 15, and chartered transportation to New York at additional cost if there is sufficient interest. Sixty-six pounds of luggage per person will be allowed.

Those interested in registering for the flight should contact the Student Senate office in the Union.

Freud Is Useful, Vatican Council Told By Bishop

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A progressive bishop from Mexico told the Vatican Ecumenical Council Tuesday that the Roman Catholic Church should make more use of psychoanalysis and the discoveries of Freud.

Bishop Sergio Mendez Arceo of Cuernavaca made the statement in the name of ten Latin-American bishops.

"There is no field of pastoral activity where psychoanalysis is not useful and it has already produced enormous good. It provides a useful method of purification," he said.

Members of the American bishops press panel commented afterward that as far as Roman Catholicism in the United States was concerned, Bishop Mendez Arceo's proposal was behind the times.

"There are many Catholic seminaries in the United States where individuals get psychiatric help," said one member of the panel. "Four or five years ago it was all the rage."

But the American panel members did not hide the fact that Sigmund Freud, the Viennese Jew who founded modern psychoanalysis, was opposed by many circles in the Church.

Fall Enrollment Nearly 16,300 According to Initial Figures

At least 1,700 more students are attending classes at the University now than were enrolled a year ago, according to the preliminary count of 16,182 reported Tuesday.

University officials said the final tally is likely to show that there are some 16,300 students in residence on the campus this fall — an increase of 1,820 or 12.5 per cent, over last fall's enrollment of 14,480, and 450 more than the University's estimate of what the enrollment would be.

Commenting on the preliminary enrollment figures, Pres. Howard Bowen said, "As we begin the sixth consecutive year in which the University has an all-time record number of students enrolled, it is sobering to realize that we are responsible for the education of 1,700 more young people than were here just one year ago, and for 3,260 more than were enrolled two years ago this fall. We are proud that they have turned to us for help at this most important stage of their lives, and they in turn can be proud of the state which has made this opportunity possible for them.

"That the University could absorb so many of them this fall with such relatively little confusion is a tribute to many persons: the faculty and staff who planned this fall's program, the Regents and the legislators who were concerned that we have sufficient teachers and facilities, the housing officials and the many Iowa City householders and builders who sought to provide additional rooms this fall."

The College of Liberal Arts now has at least 9,364 students, compared with a final 1964 enrollment of 8,111. The Graduate College had an enrollment of 3,332 in the fall of 1964, but this year has 3,744 students pursuing advanced studies.

The preliminary 1965-66 first semester enrollments in the other colleges (with last fall's final figures in parentheses) are: Business Administration, 466 (478); Dentistry, 209 (248); Engineering, 590 (569); Law, 449 (437); Medicine, 741 (692); Nursing, 403 (428); Pharmacy, 216 (185).

$600 TV Set Stolen

A television set valued at approximately $600 was reported stolen from Jackson's Electric, 11 E. Washington St., Tuesday. According to Iowa City police, a salesman noticed that the key to the storage room was missing when he went to lock the door Monday.

There was no sign of forced entry and nothing else was taken, police said.

Library To House Prairie Press Exhibit

A month-long exhibit of Prairie Press books will open Monday in the lobby of University Library.

Probably the first private press in Iowa, the Prairie Press was founded in 1935. It is owned and operated by Carrol Coleman, 111 Lusk Ave., one of the nation's outstanding typographers. For 30 years Coleman has hand-set and printed high-quality, limited edition books and pamphlets.

Frank Paluka, head of the library's Special Collections Department, said Tuesday that 40 to 50 books would be on display.

"Although the Library does not have all the Prairie Press books," he added, "we do have a very good collection."

Because machine composition costs have increased 800 per cent during the last 50 years, hand-setting, especially for short jobs, is not much more expensive than machine-setting. Prairie Press books sell for less than many smaller machine-set books of lesser quality.

Editions are limited to 300 or 400 copies, with several editions of fewer than 100 copies. The Prairie Press' longest run was 3,500 copies for the Iowa State Historical Society's Iowa Emigrant in 1949.

The best collection of Coleman's books is owned by L. O. Cheever of Chicago. Cheever has written a short history of the Prairie Press, which, together with a complete list of all its books, will appear in the November issue of Books At Iowa, the semi-annual Iowa Library publication.
