

Cal's new college promises innovation

A promising trend

FRIENDS OF THE UNIVERSITY can be proud that Iowa was invited to become an initial member of the Universities Research Association, Inc.

This invitation guarantees that Iowa will have a role in directing the activities of the proposed $348 million atom-smasher being built by the Atomic Energy Commission. The atom-smasher may be built in Iowa, or it may not be, but the University will have its part in the development of the nation's largest scientific installation no matter where it's built.

The fact that Iowa and several other universities in the Midwest were asked to participate in the Association shows a trend away from the long time Government practice of including only the big name schools from politically rich country in the big time scientific projects.

We hope this trend continues when the accelerator site is selected.

The beautiful land

IOWA, THE "BEAUTIFUL LAND" as the Indians called it, is never more beautiful than in the fall, when the greenness of summer edges into gold, red and brown.

And Iowans eager to enjoy this perennial but ephemeral period flock to the many state parks, where the scenery is the biggest attraction and the beauty of autumn is at a peak. There are state parks located in every section of Iowa, so that it takes no more than a Sunday jaunt to see the fall colors before they fade and Iowa's winter scene takes over.

Pikes Peak State Park at McGregor, in the northeast corner of the state, one of the more popular autumn displays, is living up to its reputation this year, with its colors reported by Park Officer Lynn Johnson to be better than usual, owing to the unusual amount of rainfall Iowa has had recently. The hard maples, a big attraction, are to reach their peak this weekend. The park was so jammed with sight-seers last weekend that only one car in 25 could find a place to park.

Another popular park this time of year is centrally located Ledges State Park at Madrid. The oak trees in this 900-acre park are to reach the height of color next weekend, according to Park Officer Wayne Partridge. Also to see are the reds of the ironwoods and beech trees. Ledges State Park has many foot trails to enjoy, and when the weather is pleasant a person may enjoy wading in the creek.

Maples are in good form at the 350-acre Wild Cat Den State Park in Muscatine, as they also are at Backbone State Park in Dundee, and the oaks at the latter site are now a handsome red.

Other parks which can be visited at this time of year are the Fort Defiance State Park at Estherville, Lake of Three Fires at Bedford, Palisades-Kepler State Park in Mount Vernon, Waubesa State Park in Hamburg, Wapsipinicon State Park near Anamosa, Lake Darling State Park at Brighton, Lake Keosauqua State Park at Keosauqua, and many other local parks. More than 25,000 people visited these state parks last weekend, and as great a number is expected this weekend.

So if the weather is (hopefully) warm, this weekend will be the perfect opportunity to take the family picnicking or hiking, or just driving to see the sights. This year's colorful autumn scenes aren't to be missed.

HELP!

THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA'S newest institution, located at Irvine, has promised great and glorious things to prospective students, including the introduction of "instruction by computer." (See exchange column this page.)

Though a detailed explanation of what is meant by such instruction has not been offered, speculation on the subject is a bit frightening.

Students have quite enough trouble absorbing all the knowledge they must absorb in this do-or-die world of academia without being confronted with still another element of impersonality.

Won't somebody help us simple-minded students who still enjoy talking to PEOPLE?

Innovation will be the trademark of the new University of California's campuses at Irvine. Irvine, the University's ninth campus, opened for the first time this month, with 1,500 students. Located just south of Los Angeles on the Pacific Coast, the University features $20 million worth of modern buildings in an area of pasture land and wildlife.

The Irvine administration is determined to be daring and innovative in their policies, according to J. W. Peltason, vice chancellor at the new campus. One of the new ideas will be "pass-fail" courses offered in subjects outside the student's major area. The course will be figured in the grade-point average, and will be held against him only if he fails.

IN THE FINE ARTS department, courses will be "performance oriented," in the hope that Irvine will take the place of the conservatory in producing well-trained performers.

Another of the proposed innovations at the university will be "instruction by computer."

Through an agreement with IBM, the campus hopes to become a "model for modern university computerization."

A machine which may someday save the lives of 25,000 babies every year is being developed at Iowa State University. The new device, called an infant respiratory augmentor, will do the breathing for infants born with respiratory disorders.

THE AUGMENTOR is the result of six years of research by Iowa State scientists. The machine, which has undergone numerous refinements, has been used in the treatment of 26 babies with encouraging results, according to its developers, and is available for infants who might need it at Mary Greeley Hospital in Ames.

Women students at the University of Wisconsin were recently granted their long sought-after extended hours. Junior and senior women have no hour restrictions. Sophomore women will have no hours on weekends, but must respect a 1 a.m. curfew on weeknights.

Parental permission is necessary for students under 21 to take advantage of the new hour regulation, regardless of their year in school. The new regulations will go into effect as soon as the girls in the dorms approve it.

AT PARSONS COLLEGE, Fairfield, sky-diving is quickly becoming a major sport. The Sharpshooters, the college's sky-diving club, has recently won second place in a parachute jumping competition in St. Louis.

Several members of the club walked off with individual honors in individual competition, including one girl. The club, officially sanctioned by Parsons, claims to have more female members than any other sky-diving club in the nation.

Letters to the editor—

Student hits NSA policy

To the Editor:

I would like to raise the question of why the National Student Association finds it necessary every year to adopt positions on national political issues.

It goes without saying that the positions adopted at the NSA's national conventions could be looked upon by many people as the 'opinion' of American college students. Realistically, however, it would seem clear that there is no such thing as 'student opinion.' Opinions of individual students can almost always be found on either side of any given question.

It would seem all the more inappropriate for NSA to take positions on controversial national issues when one realizes that members of student governments are elected on the basis of their positions on national political issues. It would seem clear, therefore, that the proper function of an organization such as NSA is to confine itself to campus problems.

In view of the fact that NSA has seen fit to concentrate on national political issues to the extreme detriment of any program to help student governments with local campus problems, I would suggest that membership in NSA is not worth the money it costs us every year.

I would urge, therefore, that the University withdraw from this organization.

Nazi party isn't needed in Iowa

To the Editor:

Since when have we needed an American Nazi Party in Iowa? Most of all that John R. Bishop of Davenport said in his article is very true, but what does the American Nazi Party propose to do about it — carry out the same humanitarian and tender treatment forced on millions of victims of Hitler?

Who is Mr. Bishop to lash out at leaders of "right movements" with his party's illustrious background history of violence?

Heaven knows we need to clean up the messes in our own country and our state, but we do not need help of a Nazi party, do we? Unless we have been grossly misinformed about the Nazi party, we can do everything that needs to be done without that. And I think Mr. Bishop is getting much better treatment here because we have "rights movements" — others were not so fortunate.

I'm no politician and I couldn't care less about the high sounding clap trap that is promised by any party, but I am curious — as a citizen — what the Nazi party is doing in Iowa, or in the United States for that matter. Can anyone tell me? What do you think?

'Ecco'—lots of film, but not much taste

By NICK MEYER
Iowan Reviewer

Ho hum, that "Mondo Cane" group of high-minded sado-masochists is back again with another attempt at pornography on the commercial screen — this one beating their other two for sheer dullness.

I stayed awake through this quasi-quasi-documentary by laughing frequently and placing a thistle under my chin to keep it (my chin) from sinking onto my chest.

Honestly, what's happened to perversion, anyway? Since when this tolerance of the soft core stuff? If it's not on cheap newsprint in black and white it never works. "Ecco" is worse than being vulgar and tasteless — it's dull.

IT PURPORTS to be a candid camera collection of bizarre (i.e.: sexual) customs around the world. It is a simple pastiche of the would-be arousing, shocking and disgusting. I say would-be for the camera is too steady, the shots are too varied and the color is too good for it to be believed.

It is all obviously faked and wouldn't fool a third degree pervert.

What's still worse, they try to cover up the lack of substance by jazzy music and fast paced editing. It's the old penny arcade show with the inviting pictures on the tent and nothing much going on inside.

AMONG OTHER FAKED and inane episodes were: Karate fighters in Japan, muscle men in Reno, female roller skaters in L.A., witches in England, whalers in Portugal, derriere clubs in Paris, Mardis Gras in Rio, and a prostitute sequence reminiscent of "Irma La Douce" of all things.

The secret dueling society in Germany was about the dullest, with the rest of the film running a close second.

The picture is also unbelievably long for a film with so little in it.

But the main point, the thing that upsets me is what this film implies about the quality of our pervers. If this is what Americans get their kicks from these days, our civilization must be on the decline.

WHEN WE START salivating over dull sex (or when producers think we will), we're really on the skids. You'd think conscientious perverts would do something about it.

"Ecco" is like warm — the most offensive kind of anything (except bath water). If it were a series of genuine glimpses into the ugly and the weird in this world of ours, I might tolerate it as an interesting, nay, disturbing film. I would begin to wonder about mankind, etc.

As it is, the only thing that disturbs me and the only people I am wondering about are the charlatans who perpetrated this technicolor hoax and the lousy pseudo-pervers who are contaminating the ranks by lining the pockets of the makers.

If you want to see a reindeer being castrated by a Lapland girl, then "Ecco" is for you. Marquis de Sade, forgive us!

Takes more than flu to keep a good man down

By ART BUCHWALD

Everyone has been delighted with the fast recovery of President Lyndon B. Johnson from his gall bladder operation. I myself wish the President had taken it a little easier after the operation and this is why.

I came down with the flu over the weekend and ordinarily in these situations my wife is very sympathetic. But not this time. I told her I planned to stay in bed for the day and maybe watch a couple of football games and the World Series until my temperature went down.

She showed me a newspaper BUCHWALD and said, "The President had a gall bladder operation and look what he did. He appointed four ambassadors, two judges, saw Vice President Humphrey, talked to the press, and signed three bills, and you want to stay in bed just because you have a little flu."

"But he's stronger than I am," I protested. "Besides, they say flu can be serious." She turned to another part of the paper. "Here is a picture of Mr. Johnson's gall bladder with the stone still in it. And yet do you know what he's going to do tomorrow if the doctors let him? What?"

"Dictate his budget for 1966, inspect the Bethesda Naval Hospital, talk to Dean Rusk and Robert McNamara, telephone seven astronauts, and address a joint session of Congress in the operating theater of the hospital. And you're complaining about a little fever."

"It isn't just the fever. I feel kind of groggy too."

"How can you feel groggy after what the President went through? I just heard on the radio that if all goes well the day after the President plans to meet with the National Security Council, hold a press conference, attend a barbecue at the hospital for doctors and their wives, talk to the United Nations, and help Mrs. Johnson plant 12 trees along the Belt Parkway. I don't see why you should feel sorry for yourself."

"I'm not feeling sorry for myself," I said. "It's just that the flu takes a lot out of you."

"Are you trying to say that a gall bladder operation doesn't take a lot out of a person? Listen to the President's schedule for Thursday. He's having breakfast with the Senate and House leaders, meeting with labor leaders on 14th, lunching with the League of Women Voters, making a film for a fund-raising dinner in California, and attending an enlisted man's dance at the Bethesda USO Club."

"Okay, I'll go out and cut the lawn," I said.

"If you want to stay in bed, I'm perfectly agreeable," my wife said, "but it seems to me you're not showing much moral fiber. Here's the President's schedule for Friday."

"I don't want to hear it," I said, slowly putting on my shoes.

"The President is going to sign several more bills, attend the opening of a new ward, settle the India-Pakistan dispute, and if he has time perform an appendectomy operation on a lieutenant-commander."

I started shaking as I tried to put on my shirt.

"Where should I put the leaves after I rake them up?" I asked.

"There is no reason to be surly. If you really don't feel well, stay in bed."

I went back to bed.

"Is there anything I can get you," she asked.

"Yeah. Get me Vice President Humphrey. I'll talk to him first. Then you can let the press come in. I'll talk to the Joint Chiefs of Staff this afternoon, and tonight if I feel up to it we'll take down all the billboards along Wisconsin Avenue. There is no sense letting a little flu bug get me down."

Classes May Replace Birds

By BARB JOHNSON
Staff Writer

The University's Museum of Natural History in Macbride Hall may go the way of some of its birds — into extinction.

Expressing the hope that the University will someday have a new museum, Pres. Howard R. Bowen recommended Thursday that the museum, a University landmark since 1858, be removed in favor of classrooms.

BOWEN SAID the space the museum occupies, including the third floor and a sizeable portion of the second, is needed for the University's educational program.

After saying the museum collection now serves no educational function for the University, Bowen added, "It does attract children, and I am sorry that we cannot continue to provide this facility for them."

Bowen recommended that a large, modern museum be placed on the list of long-range building needs of the University.

"Meanwhile, we would take care to safeguard the present collection," he said, adding that some of it might best be given or sold to other museums and some of it stored for a future museum on this campus.

HUNDREDS OF SPECIMENS of animals and birds, including those in the unique Laysan Island Cyclorama have been displayed in the museum. This Pacific Island scene contains 22 species of birds, three of which have been extinct for many years.

The Laysan Island exhibit and other smaller habitat groups came from the many collecting expeditions from 1860 to 1920, supported by friends of the University.

NO MAJOR ADDITIONS have been made to the museum since about 1926, however.

In the late 1920's the Department of Natural Science divided into separate departments representing zoology, botany, geology and archaeology. Some parts of the collection are used today in teaching and research, principally in botany, geology and archaeology.

THE MACBRIDE HALL museum will be removed to accommodate more classrooms. Eliot Krieger, age 5, son of Professor and Mrs. Murray Krieger, enjoys a soon to be removed exhibit. Missing Coed Still Mystery Sheriff Says

There are still no additional clues in the case of missing 18-year-old University coed Miss Patricia Madden, who disappeared from campus eight days ago.

Johnson County sheriff's authorities said Friday a girl hitchhiker picked up in Davenport Thursday, matching Miss Madden's description was checked out but she and her male companion were not involved in the case.

A native of Omaha and a political science major, Miss Madden was graduated from Iowa City High School, June, 1965, 138th in her class of 336. Because her grade point average was 2.28 she was ineligible to register for formal rush this fall. It was reported earlier that she had been considered by several sororities as a possible pledge.

The Office of Student Affairs has no record of her registering for formal rush. Meanwhile the missing girl's mother has refused to comment on the incident.

H. RALPH Aschenbrenner, assistant principal of Iowa City High School, said Friday he had little acquaintance with the girl, a transfer from Clinton to Iowa City in September, 1964.

Incidents such as this disappearance are rare for the University. "But we've never had one quite as dramatic as this," Dean of Students Marion L. Huit said Friday.

"The last case of a disappearing student occurred three or four years ago," Huit said, "when a student got up with school and took off and was found a few days later."

THE ONLY OTHER case Huit could recall in the nearly 20 years he's been at the University, happened in the late 40s, when a missing student turned up in Chicago after he'd been in Florida.

"There were also some clues left behind in that case," Huit recalled. "The fella left his suitcase with clothing in it . . . but in every case of a missing student we've never had one involving foul play and in nearly every case they always returned within a couple of weeks."

Forell Named By Regents To Head Religion School

George W. Forell, professor of Protestant theology, has been named acting director of the School of Religion.

The appointment, which is to fill a vacancy left by the resignation of Professor Robert S. Michaelsen, was approved Friday by the State Board of Regents. Professor Forell is a graduate of Lutheran Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, Pa. He earned a master of theology degree at Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N.J., and a doctor of theology degree at the Union Theological Seminary, New York City.

IN 1957-58 HE was a visiting professor at the University of Hamburg under the Fulbright Act, and from 1958 to 1961 he was on the faculty of the Chicago Lutheran Theological Seminary. In the summer of 1960 he was a visiting professor at the All-African Theological Seminar, Marangu, Tanganyika.

He joined the faculty in 1954. In other personnel actions, the Regents approved leaves of absence for Jack F. Culley, professor of industrial relations and assistant dean, College of Business Administration, and for Eva H. Erickson, associate professor of nursing.

Professor Culley will be on leave for the next two academic years to be dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Fine Arts, University of Liberia, Monrovia, Liberia. The appointment is under Cornell University's Agency for International Development project in Liberia. Professor Erickson will be on leave from Feb. 1 to Sept. 1, 1966, to complete a doctoral program at Teachers College, Columbia University.

JAMES C. DICKINSON, assistant professor and assistant dean, College of Education, was named to a half-time appointment as special assistant for student personnel. The position is in the office of the vice-president for academic affairs.

Professor Dickinson will act as advisor and coordinator of activities as student personnel services formerly directed in the former division of student services are incorporated into the office of the vice-president.

Face Lifting For Old Capitol Underway By Physical Plant

Old Capitol is getting a beauty-treatment. The first part of the treatment is removing some of the ivy from the building's outside walls, Don J. Sinek, supervisor of the University Physical Plant, said Friday.

To reassure those who feared all the ivy would be removed, Sinek said, "We're not taking it off; we're just thinning it out."

This has to be done, he said, so that Physical Plant employees can proceed with the second part of Old Capitol's beauty-treatment: painting the building's wooden portions. The ivy had to be thinned to give painters access to the wooden trim around the windows. The last time the ivy was cut and the building painted was about 10 years ago, Sinek said.

Sinek also said Old Capitol's eaves and downspouts will be repaired. There will be some remodeling done in the building's basement, he added.

Sinek said: "This is the center of the Pentacrest, and we like to keep it looking as nice as we can."

4 Awarded NSF Grants In Pharmacy

Four students in College of Pharmacy have received $600 awards for participation this year in the undergraduate science education program of the National Science Foundation (NSF).

They are Thomas A. Wunderlich, P4, Ames, Roger M. Christiansen, P4, Grand Mound, Thor F. Holmgren, P3, Maquoketa, and Jonelle Johnson, P2, New Hampton, both juniors.

Donald T. Witiak, assistant professor of pharmacy and director of the NSF undergraduate program in pharmacy, said the purpose of the program is to provide the students with additional experience in research in close association with a member of the pharmacy faculty.

The students will use special laboratory equipment and instruments in studying biological active compounds, the synthesis and stability of these compounds, and the theoretical aspects of drug action. Each student will have his own desk and individual laboratory area.

Areas in which the students will study and their faculty sponsors are Wunderlich, medicinal chemistry, associate professor Joseph G. University MD's Face Draft Exam

The Iowa City draft board has asked several doctors from the University College of Medicine to take physical examinations. Dr. Woodrow Morris, College of Medicine associate dean of student affairs, said in an interview Friday.

Morris emphasized the examinations do not mean that the doctors will be drafted.

"The Selective Service is trying to clarify the books — that's all," he explained.

The doctors called to take the physical examinations had not taken them before nor had they served in the armed forces, he said. The purpose of the examinations was to clarify the doctor's positions in the Selective Service records.

"It's sort of like taking inventory," Morris said.

Car Insurance Increase Expected Within Few Days

Motorists! If you need insurance, you'd better buy it now.

Rates of many local insurance agencies are scheduled to increase 5 to 20 per cent within the next few days; as soon as new schedules have been distributed.

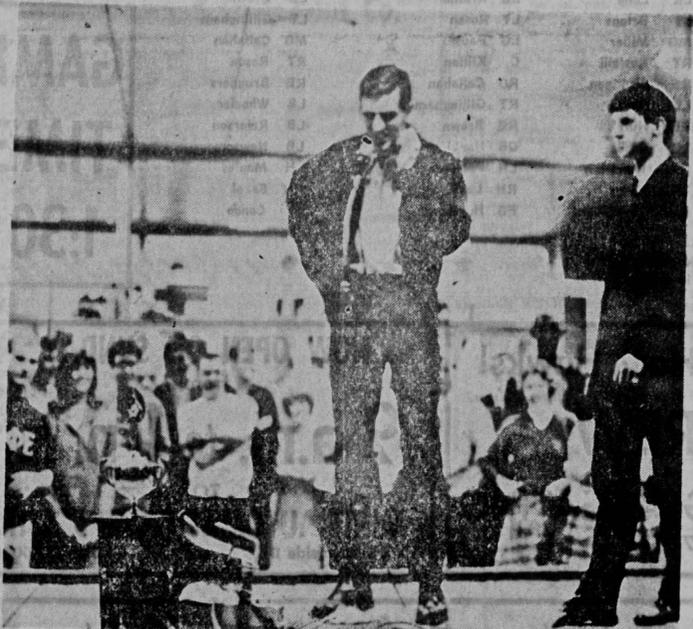

Bumps and jolts that dented humans and automobiles have caused the pending jolt to the family pocketbook, according to the National Automobile Underwriters Association and the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters.

A poll of local insurance agencies yesterday disclosed a spotty price-increase situation. Some agencies have increased rates, others know increases are due, and a few haven't heard of any increase.

The actual amount of premium change for the individual motorist depends upon where he lives; the type of car he drives and its principal use; the motorist's driving record; whether he has youthful drivers in his household and their age, sex and marital status; and whether they have driver education; the amount of insurance carried and other factors.

The rate-setting companies estimate that the statewide average increase for private passenger cars will be 18.9 per cent for liability and 12 per cent for physical damage insurance.

Hawks Look For First Big 10 Win

'Odd Year' Jinx May Hit Gophers

"Odd years" in the Minnesota series have been good to University of Iowa football teams, with five wins in the last six games.

It's 1965 and the Hawkeys, disappointed a 0-2 in the conference, today will aim at continuing this "odd year" domination of the Gophers before a sell-out crowd of about 60,000 persons.

However, it obviously will take more than any recalling of past successes to handle the Gophers. Minnesota erased frustrations of two non-conference defeats by running over Indiana, 42-18, last Saturday.

Hawks figure it is about time that the closest ones start coming their way. They lost at Wisconsin, 16-13, Oct. 2 and last Saturday it was another 3-point loss, 17-14, to sixth-ranked Purdue. And last year at Minneapolis the Gophers sneaked through with a 14-13 win. With 1:39 on the clock, a two-point conversion pass sailed over Karl Noonan's head in the end zone when Gary Snook's arm was hit.

AT STAKE today is the "Floyd of Rosedale" trophy. The Gophers have possession of it now after last year's victory.

Offensive problems continue to plague Iowa. Now it is the likely loss of fullback Silas McKinnie, the No. 1 ground-gainer, with a bad shoulder. It has been necessary to quickly groom former linebacker Tom Knutson for the position along with punter Larry McDowell.

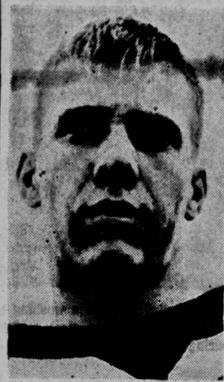

The running halfback position will have Dalton Kimble in top shape, backed up by Farley Lewis and Jerry O'Donnell. Kimble, the leading rusher in 1964, missed one game and has only 17 carries for a 2.8 average to date.

THE FORWARD pass will be a potent Iowa weapon — if the potential of Gary Snook and his chief receivers, Karl Noonan and Dick Wilder — is reached. Snook has hit only 45% of his passes for 504 yards and two touchdowns, with Noonan catching 21 for 246 yards.

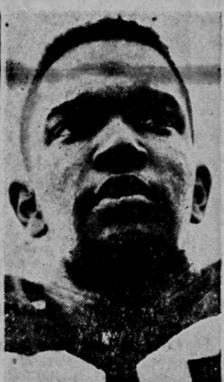

"Minnesota has a complete and sound football team. It is a basic team, with power sweeps, dive action and inside traps. Its passing game is simple but effective with John Hankinson as the fine passer and several sharp receivers, including the great Aaron Brown," said Coach Jerry Burns.

Iowa vs. Minnesota is a mighty rivalry. It started in 1891 and Minnesota leads, 38 wins to 19 with only one tie. The teams have met for 35 straight years and have missed only one year (1930) since the first Iowa victory in 1918.

Since the game is a sell-out, Director Forest Evashevski Tuesday announced that it will be shown on closed circuit television in the field house, with an admission charge of two dollars.

Pictured here is 453 pounds of Iowa defense that has made a habit of putting crunching stops on opposing runners. At left is end Dave Long, 222, and at right is tackle Bill Briggs, 231.

A pair of fumbles inside the 20 yard stripe and an intercepted TD while Kos ended the scoring with a 20 yard dash and a PAT. Surprisingly enough, Ron Ellis won the battle of the league's fastest backs. Ellis picked up 75 yards in 25 carries while Kos netted 67 in 13 attempts.

U-High outrushed the Golden Hawks in the first half 89-26 but couldn't push the ball any closer than the 15. A fumble ended the threat.

The final half was a different story as Gary Kos, a 135-pound halfback, put the wheels in motion for Mid-Prairie. Kos with the help of Terry Redlinger, a strong-running fullback ran U-High's pennant chances out of the FINED — PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steeler Coach Mike Nixon has been fined $1,000 by the National Football League for a verbal blast at officials, it was learned Friday.

City High Beats E. Moline

City High won its first football game of the season Friday night, beating East Moline, 7-0.

Quarterback Mike Ciek fired a 25-yard pass to end Dale Hill for the game's only TD. Actually the pass was deflected by a Moline defender, but Hill lunged for it, hung on to it and fell into the end zone. This score capped a drive of 97 yards.

The PAT was added by Tom Taylor.

The rest of the game was a defensive battle, with East Moline having only one scoring threat. In the second quarter, East Moline drove to the 5-yard line where it was first and goal. However, the City High defense held on and stopped the drive on the 1-foot line.

Minnesota Band Plays At Independence Game

The University of Minnesota band began their Iowa visit by playing for the Independence-Maquoketa high school football game last night. Due to a mix-up in their Cedar Rapids reservations, the band is staying in Independence.

Grid Picks

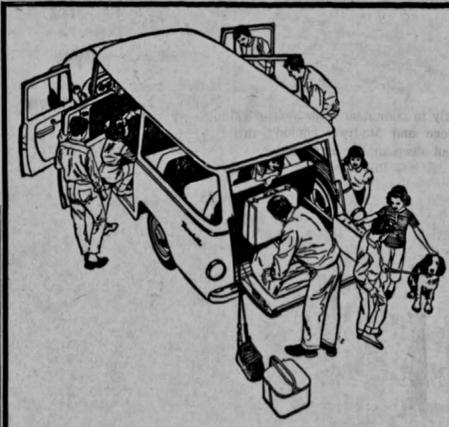

The Daily Iowan grid pickers enter their third week of guessing today, and about the only thing that has been proved is that rank doesn't help.

Being sports editor you would think that Bill Pierrot might get some inside information, or at least make a decent showing in the weekly poll. However . . . he has only picked 22 out of 40, a 55 per cent average. He was 5 for 10 last week.

On the other hand assistant sports editor John Cloyd seems to be getting all the inside information and has made the correct picks. To date he has 31 of 40 right choices, a 79 per cent average. Last week he was 9 for 10.

George Kampling, local AP correspondent, is in between in his picking. He has correctly picked 28 of 40, for a 65 per cent average. He was 7 for 10 last week. This week's picks are:

The Week That Was...

RAIN INTERRUPTED Iowa City's Indian summer weather briefly to pour nearly an inch of rain on Iowa City Thursday. The storm sewers at the corner of College and Madison couldn't drain the water fast enough, and for a short time the water was a foot deep in the intersection.

IOWA'S TWO VARSITY coaches talked jovially Friday at basketball press day. Head coach Ralph Miller and his assistant, Dick Schultz, have had the team lifting weights and running with the cross-country track season to prepare them for the basketball season.

Miller Outlines Program For Cage Success

By STEU BETTERTON

A three point program for future success was outlined by Iowa basketball coach Ralph Miller as he greeted the press Friday afternoon in the opening act of the 1965-66 season.

Speaking to a relatively small gathering at the annual picture and press day the Hawkeye coach gave three reasons why his club should be better than they were last season:

1. Eight of the first nine men are returning.
2. New additions give the club much more height.
3. There will be much more bench strength than a year ago.

Included in the returning group are four of last year's starters, and the usually vital sixth man.

GUARD CHRIS PERVALL returns as the team's top scorer with a 21.1 average. Returning as the top rebounder is center George Peoples. His 17.0 point average was also second high in '64-65.

Added to this group are Gerry Jones, who averaged 14.0 points and was second in rebounding as a sophomore; Dennis Pauling, this season's captain; and Gary Olson, a rugged 6-5 forward.

Four newcomers who range from 6-6 to 6-7 give the added height which has Miller so pleased. The group includes three sophomores and one junior college transfer.

At 6-6 are sophomores Dick Agnew and Huston Breedlove. The other top sophomore is 6-7 Ben McGilmer.

THE JUNIOR COLLEGE transfer is Harry Venik who measures 6-6½. Last year he averaged 22 points at Henderson County Junior College in Athens, Texas, but Miller has been following his career since high school days in Beaver Falls, Pa.

All four of these men figure to see action for the Hawks, and their expected performances account for the bench strength Miller is counting on.

Miller also sees some more plus factors at this stage of the season. First is the fact that this seems to be a better balanced club and there are more ways to adjust than a year ago.

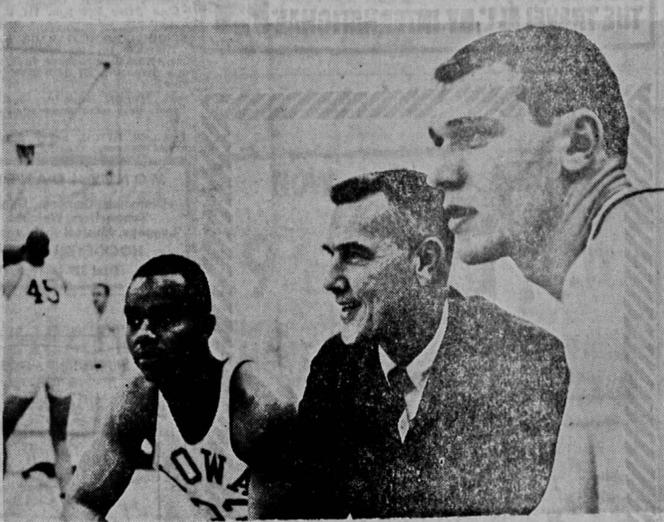

This is accounted for by the ability of a number of the players to fill in more than adequately at more than one position.

The veteran Pervall and the newcomer McGilmer can play guard or forward. Underneath Miller feels that Venik and Breedlove can operate as forwards or centers.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT plus factor is that the big men can move as fast or faster than the little men according to Miller.

When questioned about last year's success Miller said he thought "speed, desire, and skill" were the main ingredients, and he added, "There is no reason to think I won't get the same performance now."

He lingered on this point and maybe was giving what he considers the most important consideration of the season when he said, "If they haven't forgotten what they learned they should be interesting, they should be very good."

What they learned last year was more than the Ralph Miller system of basketball, they learned what they could do as individuals and as a team in the pressure of battle. Without saying so Miller seemed to be emphasizing that this factor is even more important now.

AS IT WAS bound to, the question of a possible Big 10 title came up, and Miller quickly replied, "It is ridiculous at this stage to consider us a championship team." "However," he added, "we should be able to improve our position."

An improved position would mean finishing higher than the fifth place spot won last year with a 8-6 record. Many feel that key injuries late in the year kept the Hawkeyes from finishing even higher.

According to Miller the team to beat is Michigan. "They're number one right now and until someone knocks them out the title is theirs."

MILLER SAID that they are not "awesome" as they were a year ago, but pointed out that it might be a relative matter. Last year they had six regulars returning; this year they have only three, including All-American Cazzie Russell.

An interesting sidelight of the conference was the realization by most of those present that only three home games will be held on Saturday's this season.

Miller was obviously aware of the situation and questioned the "equity of scheduling" that prevailed. He thinks it might be important because he freely admitted, "I can think of nothing nicer than a full house."

The home court advantage is no myth in modern basketball and this small item could prove important, or meaningless, in the long season ahead.

NO FIGHT — NEW YORK (AP) — The New York State Supreme Court refused Friday to halt the scheduled middleweight title bout in Madison Square Garden next Thursday night between champion Joey Giardello and Dick Tiger.

The final TD came in the fourth quarter on Holland's six yard scramble.
