

City Gets Loan To Finance 2nd Renewal Project

A federal loan to plan and survey Iowa City's second urban renewal project area was approved Friday by the Federal Urban Renewal Administration.

The grant, totaling $164,403, is for a 66.7 acre area. The area is located south of Court Street, east of the Iowa River, north of the Rock Island right-of-way, and west of Gilbert Street.

Iowa City Director of Planning and Urban Renewal Barry Lundberg said Friday he would recommend that the city council hire the same consulting firms as were used for the first project area.

"Planning for these areas," Lundberg said, "is so closely related that it is only reasonable we use the same consulting firms."

Medical Complex Centers On West Side

By PAT ASLESON Staff Writer

Ed. note — This is the second in a two-part series about projected expansion of the medical campus. The map referred to appeared on p. 9 of Friday's Daily Iowan.

The medical campus of the future on the west side of the Iowa River will concentrate the College of Medicine, Nursing and Dentistry. Also moving west is the Speech Pathology Building.

This building, currently under construction on Woolf Avenue just southwest of University Hospitals, will centralize facilities of the Department of Speech and Audiology. The Department is presently located in East Hall with clinical facilities on Melrose Avenue.

Looking at the advantages of being located on the west side of the campus, Arnold M. Small, professor of speech pathology and audiology, said, "It will be convenient to be a part of the medical center. We get a number of our patients from the hospital complex."

Basement walls were poured for the three-story building this week. Small said the department hoped to move into the structure by 1967. Without equipment, the building will cost $1.5 million, he said. The legislature provided $750,000 of this with the federal government providing matching funds.

Even though the Speech Pathology Building itself is barely more than a hole in the ground, the College of Medicine has looked into the future by providing an area (5 on Friday's map) in which the building can eventually expand.

The plan also provides for two expansions of the Hospital School (4) and of Psychopathic Hospital off the northeast wing of the present building.

Although possible additions are not pictured in this drawing, University Hospital (A) will be expanding, too, said Hardin. He added that space was available both north and south of the present T-shaped portion on the west end of the building.

The hospital staff would prefer to expand to the North, said the dean, pointing out that walking distance could be kept at a minimum.

Just as other parts of the campus are plagued with parking problems, so is the medical campus. Hardin called this part of the campus one of the most densely populated pieces of land in the state. Parking facilities must now provide for 450 visitors daily as well as for faculty and staff members and students.

The proposals for the medical campus, which will make it a pedestrian area, provide for parking ramps with space for 1,150 cars at the northeast and southwest corners. Building these two ramps would not begin to fill the present need for there are now 2,147 spaces in this area of the campus.

"We have to get started on a ramp," said Hardin, adding that a study for such a building has been made and that it would be financially possible to build one now. The engineering firm that did the study recommended a 500-car ramp, but no location has been picked.

This then is the tentative proposal for expansion of the medical campus. Refinements will be made and the more specific questions concerning building designs and financing will have to be ironed out as the overall plan evolves.

Careful planning is required to meet the needs caused by ballooning enrollments in all areas of health education. This is the reason for such long-range plans.

"Such planning is a battle against time," said Hardin. "If we don't plan for 50 years, we're dead. Where we build the basic science building will determine the location of the medical college for 50 years."

Cold War Debates Query U.S. Policy

Present U.S. foreign policy has been little discussed or criticized, Christopher Lasch, professor of history, said in opening the Colloquia on the Cold War Friday afternoon in the Old Capitol House Chamber.

Meaningful discussion is not possible, he said, because of the irrelevant propositions usually debated. He listed those propositions as: Are the Communists nice people? Should the policy of containment become a policy of liberation of the people? Is American foreign policy morally rather than realistically in its self-interest?

"WHETHER OR NOT the Communists are nice, friendly people is irrelevant to the question of how America should deal with them," he said.

Critics of American foreign policy who advocate liberation are only seeking a further step in the direction now being followed in the containment policy, he said.

According to Lasch, the most frequently voiced criticism of American foreign policy, that it is too moralistic, has been disproved by events such as the U-2 incident.

The relation between the ancient heroic myths of Greece and present American policy was discussed by Richard S. Caldwell, G. St. Paul, Minn.

The ancient myths showed the hero as a man unquestioningly courageous at all times, unflinchingly loyal to his country and convinced of his own superiority, Caldwell said.

The myths on which American foreign policy today is based, he said, include the idea that military power can solve world problems, that the American way of life is superior to all others and that opposing the myths is disloyalty.

IN THE DISCUSSION following the speeches, members of the audience said that the men who adopted the policy of containment thought that it best fulfilled their values and gave the best chance of reaching their goals.

"At the time when the policy of containment was adopted there was a real chance in Western Europe that unless some action were taken, Communist governments would be established," Laird C. Addis, assistant professor of philosophy, said.

Other members of the audience said they thought that the question was not the history of American policy but the future actions of the country.

The colloquia was the first of a projected series sponsored by the Faculty-Student Committee on Public Affairs.

Goodwill Industries campaign to raise $75,000 for a handicapped adults' sheltered workshop will begin Monday.

The workshop will vocationally rehabilitate physically handicapped and mentally retarded adults in the Iowa City area and aid them in finding employment.

The fund-raising campaign will be divided into two phases. The first, from Monday to Jan. 8, will be directed at businesses and industries. The second, from Jan. 9 to 16, will be a canvassing of individuals.

Phase one of the drive will be directed by Jude West, associate director of the Bureau of Labor and Management.

"Cooperation has been outstanding from every organization we have contacted for help with this project," West said Friday. "Some have even sent contributions before the drive has officially begun."

Persons enrolled in the workshop, after its completion, will repair used clothing and small appliances. Donald Johnson, West Branch, general chairman of the drive and immediate past commander of the American Legion, said last week the workshop would be designed to "give the handicapped a hand up, not a handout."

Four major New York critics have called the somber, three-act play the best ever written by Inge, who also is the author of "Come Back, Little Sheba," "Picnic," and "Bus Stop."

"Tickets for the four-night run, Monday through Thursday, are sold out.

The drama reveals the threatened breakup during the early 1920's of the 17-year-old marriage of a brash harness salesman and a sensitive woman.

Because of his work, the salesman, Rubin Flood, is away from home much of the time, to the great displeasure of his wife, Cora. During her husband's absences, Cora tries her best to raise their son and daughter, sensing that she has not done a very good job.

One of the major problems within the family is the relationship between the mother and son, the mother having pampered and protected him so much that he no longer can face the real world.

A second problem is the lack of money for the family. At the time the play opens, an argument over a new dress for the daughter erupts between the husband and wife. Rubin leaves, vowing never to return.

While Rubin is gone, Cora slowly realizes what has been wrong within the family. The change that results in her is the central theme of the play.

Inge's drama is a carefully-plotted study of the moods, temperaments and emotions of ordinary people who must face what they are and attempt to correct mistakes repeated too often.

Reathel Bean, G. West Plains, Mo., plays Rubin Flood and Joan Helg, G. West Burlington, plays Cora Flood. James MacDonald, G. Durant, is the director.

IMU Presents Xmas Events For Children

During the next three days Union Board's "Twelve Days of Christmas" is featuring events of interest not only to the University student, but also to children.

The children's concert, "Hansel and Gretel," will be presented at 10 a.m. today in the Union Music Room. Aimee Berger, A3, Superior, Wis., will narrate the story as Melanie Moyer, A2, Marion, sketches the adventures of the two children.

ART STUDENTS will have an opportunity to sell their works at Thieves' Market, which will be held from 1 to 4 p.m. today in the Union Terrace Lounge.

College Quiz Bowl finals will be at 4 p.m. Sunday in the Union Lucas-Dodge Room.

Participants will be Sigma Pi vs. Phi Kappa Psi No. 3 and Alpha Epsilon Pi vs. Burge Wellman. Winners of these two contests will compete in a final round to determine the College Quiz Bowl winner.

SANTA CLAUS will be on hand with gifts at the children's Christmas party from 6 to 8 p.m. Sunday in the Union Music Room and Terrace Lounge.

A skit entitled "Twas the Night Before Christmas," Christmas carols and games will entertain the children.

Christmas jazz music will be played from 7 to 10:30 p.m. Monday in the Union Music Room. Instrumental and vocal music will be featured.

U. S. Press In Viet Nam To Get Gifts

Correspondents and photographers on duty in Viet Nam will not be neglected this Christmas. Goods and money to buy goods are being collected by the News Photography I class in the School of Journalism.

The deadline for gifts is Wednesday. Suggested items are canned nuts, delicacies, candies, pocket-sized books, inexpensive stuffed toys to be forwarded to children, personal items such as shaving soap and razor blades, handkerchiefs, and sewing kits.

Cash donations are also being taken to buy items. By Friday evening $45 had been collected in cash as well as a number of gift items.

A BOX in which to put items is located in the Communications Center Lounge.

Since the deadline for regular Christmas mail to Viet Nam is passed, Donald K. Woolley, assistant professor of photography, said, "We will use typical journalistic ingenuity to get the contributions there by Christmas."

Woolley, who originated the project, said, "In a time where there is controversy over the government's position in Viet Nam, our foreign policy and our various Asian commitments, we must rely more and more on the journalists in Viet Nam to keep us well informed."

"WE FEEL that our fledgling journalists should support the men in our field," Woolley said. "It is entirely possible that our contributions will be superfluous in light of other groups' contributions, but we want the correspondents to know that we are thinking of them and that we respect them and their reports. You might say it is a 'Christmas vote of confidence.'"

Woolley indicated that plans had been made to ship the packages directly to Viet Nam through "Friends of the School of Journalism, University of Iowa."

Vona Custer, A3, Burlington, is purchasing chairman for the project. Kathy Ketchum, A4, Rockford, is packaging and distribution chairman. Knut Royce, G. Carlisle, Pa., is research and coordination chairman.

Studio Play Has Premiere Monday Night

The relationships and conflicts among the members of a small town family in Oklahoma form the basis of William Inge's "Dark at the Top of the Stairs," opening Monday at the Studio Theatre.

Four major New York critics have called the somber, three-act play the best ever written by Inge, who also is the author of "Come Back, Little Sheba," "Picnic," and "Bus Stop."

Regents Veto Plan To Purchase Land

DES MOINES — Although Iowa City land prices are high, the Board of Regents decided Friday that there must be a limit.

By a five to four vote the Board failed to approve the University's proposed purchase of the Dean Jones Oil Company.

Regent Melvin Wolf of Waterloo raised the first objection to the purchase, saying that Jones was asking too much money.

Two independent appraisers have placed the value of the property of the oil station and garage at between $167,000 and $170,000. Jones' price was $175,000.

WOLF DID not object to paying $5,000 more than the highest appraisal, but he said he did not like the terms of the deal. Under those terms, Jones would receive $47,000 by Jan. 16, 1966, and the balance of $123,000 in five equal annual installments of $24,500 beginning Dec. 1, 1966. Jones would also receive 5 per cent interest each year on the unpaid balance after the University would take possession in June, 1966.

Under the proposed arrangement, Jones would also be able to operate the service station part of the property — without charge — until final settlement on Dec. 1, 1970. At the time of final settlement, Jones would have an option for a year to rent the station facilities for $250 a month.

"I object to letting Jones use the gas station rent free for five years," Wolf told the Regents. "This means that we're adding the rent value of this building for five years on to the total purchase price. And that makes it too much above the appraised value."

Wolf said he thinks that the land is valuable to University

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Three white men accused of killing a pro-integration Boston minister, the Rev. James Raybe, were acquitted Friday by a jury in state court which deliberated less than two hours.

The defendants — Elmer L. Cook, 42, manager of a novelty company; Namon O'Neal Hogle, 31, an auto mechanic; and his brother, William Stanley Hogle, 37, a salesman — displayed no emotion.

Regents Name Deans To 2 Vacant Positions

Philip G. Hubbard First Negro Dean

By JON VAN Editor

DES MOINES — The Iowa Board of Regents Friday appointed two deans at the University of Iowa.

They are Dr. Philip G. Hubbard, named to the new position of dean of academic affairs, and Dr. Hunter Rouse, appointed dean of the College of Engineering.

Both take office Jan. 1.

Hubbard, 44, is a professor of mechanics and hydraulics at the university, where he has been a faculty member since 1946.

A UNIVERSITY spokesman said Dr. Hubbard is the first Negro to be named a dean at the school.

Hubbard met with members of the Board of Regents briefly to outline his new duties as dean. He said he would be working closely with students and hoped to develop personal contact with many students.

HUNTER ROUSE New Dean

working with the faculty through several committees of which he will become a member. He intends to divide his time equally between working with students and faculty.

ROUSE, 59, is internationally known as an educator and researcher in fluid mechanics. He has been director of the Institute of Hydraulic Research at Iowa since 1944, and has lectured at institutions in 23 countries.

Pres. Howard Bowen told the Regents before they voted that the asking price of the property was high, and he recommended they use their judgment in making a decision.

During another part of the meeting, the Regents authorized Iowa State University to hire Marion Hirschberg, an Ames tax attorney, to handle that institution's problems with the Federal Internal Revenue Service.

Although Educational Institutions do not usually have trouble over taxes, since they are tax free, Iowa State has been in hot water with I.R.S. off and on for the past 14 years.

The trouble started in 1951 when the I.R.S. adopted a policy of taxing money making ventures owned by tax free institutions which did not serve an educational purpose. In 1953 it was ruled that WO-TV in Ames, owned and operated by Iowa State, was more commercial than educational and should pay taxes.

PHILIP G. HUBBARD New Dean

Rouse replaces Dr. Arthur Melloh, who was dismissed as dean of engineering last May, effective last June. Dr. Willard Boyce, vice president in charge of facilities, has been acting dean.

Rouse's salary will be $25,000 a year.

HUBBARD is a research engineer in the Institute of Hydraulic Research and is president of Hubbard Instrument Co. of Iowa City, a small firm specializing in measurement consulting and manufacture of electronic measuring instruments.

Pres. Howard R. Bowen said Hubbard will work with the vice president for academic affairs "in a wide range of academic matters."

Born in Macon, Mo., Hubbard attended Des Moines public schools and has bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Iowa.

HUBBARD is co-author of a book on advanced mechanics and fluids and has published 12 articles in professional and scientific journals. He has also developed two special instruments for measuring fluid turbulence.

During the summer of 1962, Hubbard was in Argentina as a consultant for the Organization of American States and last April he attended the Japanese-American Instrumentation Seminar in Japan.

To take his new job, he said he would cancel a Fulbright lectureship that would have taken him to the University of Chile at Santiago next semester and summer.

ROUSE WAS born in Toledo, Ohio. He has bachelor's and master's degrees from Massachusetts Institute of Technology and doctoral degrees from the Technical University of Karlsruhe, Germany, and the Sorbonne, University of Paris, France.

He had a leading part in a Russian-American exchange of hydraulics experts in 1961-62, and has served as a consultant in this country and to several foreign governments.

Rouse has won three major awards, the most recent being the Theodore von Karman Medal in 1963, for distinguished achievement in engineering mechanics. In 1948 he received the George Westinghouse Award of the American Society for Engineering Education for excellence in engineering education. The Vincent Bendix Award was granted Rouse in 1958 for outstanding contributions to engineering research.

MEMBERS OF the faculty committee who assisted in the selection of the new engineering dean are Professors Dan E. Branson, J. Wayne Deegan, Fred C. Higbee, Philip G. Hubbard, W. R. Hudson, Howard McCauley, James O. Osburn, J. M. Trummel and William Wade, all of the College of Engineering.

Organization should change direction

A REPRESENTATIVE of the Daughters of Bilitis, Inc., an organization of homosexuals, spoke recently at the University to explain the purpose of her organization to the public.

The organization seeks to enlighten the public about the long-tabooed subject, and works toward the integration of homosexuals into society. Laws which make homosexuality a crime are being fought, and social functions are organized so homosexuals have an opportunity to meet one another under "respectable" circumstances.

Simply stated, the Daughters of Bilitis wants society to accept homosexuality. This is all fine — to an extent. It's time the public learned that homosexuals can be useful members of society, and that persecution of all sexual deviates is not in the best interests of society.

The organization however, has taken a stance that makes solution of the problem much more involved than it needs to be. Instead of asking society to adjust to homosexuality, the problem would be simplified if the organization sought to adjust homosexuals to society.

Psychiatric treatment has often been successful in transforming sexual deviates into people with socially acceptable sexual tendencies. Perhaps a social problem which encourages the spread of homosexuality could be found through research and then alleviated. Homosexual organizations could better spend their efforts in this direction.

Public education about homosexuality must by all means be furthered, but it should be directed toward explaining the nature of the deviation instead of teaching society to accept homosexuality as a social institution.

An easy out

A DISSERVICE was done American journalism at Ann Arbor, Mich., last week. Paul Miller, president of the Associated Press and Gannett Newspapers, dismissed criticism of the press with the magic wand of verbiage.

As reported by AP, Miller said: "Organized attacks on the press usually are based on one or two contentions, both of which are wrong."

The contentions he cited were that there is a growing concentration of newspaper control contrary to the public interest and that there has been infiltration of the press by subversives.

Miller refutes these contentions by the expedient method of denying them. He countered that "American information media are now engaged in the most vigorous competition."

"And," he added, "an extensive series of checks protects against any possible attempts at perversion of the news." He does not, unfortunately, list any of these "extensive" checks.

Not a few individuals intimately and affectionately connected with journalism would question Miller's easy out. The press does have problems. Denying they exist, as too many Millers have done for too long, does no service to the press or its public.

*'Twas the night before Christmas
And all through Hanoi,
Everyone had agreed no troops to deploy.
The Yankees were smuggled all warm
in their beds
While visions of hand grenades danced

The Communists in Viet Nam decided to play Santa Claus this week and learned a lesson that every good Santa should know — it's not the thought that counts, it's the gift.

Viet Cong Santa offered to call a 12-hour cease fire to the Viet conflict on Christmas Eve, but

"Hello, Hanoi? Did You Place A Call To The U.S.P. Hanoi? Hello?"

Uncle Sam found himself in the dilemma which faces recipients of many Christmas gifts. He wasn't sure he wanted the gift, but he didn't know if he could exchange it without hurting the donor's feelings.

SOME GOVERNMENT officials felt the cease fire would be more of a gift to the Viet Cong than to the United States. The lull might provide time they needed to regroup for an intensified attack on Christmas morning. Not only that, but the acceptance of such a gift could also be interpreted as a frightened response to the peace demonstrations in the United States.

According to Robert J. McClosky, a State Department press officer, the Viet Cong could "give the world a real Christmas present" if it would express a "readiness to make peace and to accept any suggestions made by ourselves and others to move to the conference table."

Under the circumstances, it's quite obvious that the Viet Cong didn't care enough to send the very best.

BAHI HUMBUGI

England cares enough. But she doesn't always send the very best. Witness Zambia. Zambia received a Christmas-type gift from England. The gift was Gloster Javelin air planes to be used in defense of the Zambia-Rhodesia border. But Zambia adopted a "Bah! Humbug!" attitude and said it had been "bluffed, cheated."

The cause of irritation was that the planes were out-of-date second-hand gifts. Rhodesia, Zambia's neighbor to the south, has the more modern Hawker Hunters at their disposal, and should a conflict develop between the two countries, Rhodesia's planes would probably beat Zambia's planes.

England sent the planes to Zambia in the first place to discourage any aggression by Rhodesia. Zambia is ruled by its black majority, and Rhodesia is ruled by a shaky white minority. Rhodesia had been part of the British Commonwealth until it unilaterally declared its independence several weeks ago.

OTHER AFRICAN COUNTRIES have expressed dislike for Rhodesia's declaration. They have also expressed dislike for England's non-violent methods of quelling the rebellion. They be-

Classless schools increase

By DAVE POLLEN
Exchange Columnist

Experiments in gradeless and classless schools are being conducted at several colleges and universities across the nation. At Lake Forest (Ill.) College, 75 freshmen will begin a course of study that will earn them a bachelor's degree without ever going to a class. There are no grades, credits, or required courses.

Students in the program were selected on the basis of high school records and results on proficiency tests. Degrees will be offered solely on the basis of faculty-guided individual study.

UNDERCLASSMEN at San Jose State College in California are the subjects of a similar experiment. Freshmen and sophomores are individually tutored, without specific courses, tests, or grades. Students study individually so they needn't work on a competitive basis.

At the end of the year, the student's tutor assigns a grade for the equivalent courses to enable the student to continue his education in a normal grading system. Grades will be based solely on individual work, and on participation in seminars and discussions.

A number of other schools, including Carlton College, Washington University, California Institute of Technology, and Princeton University, have instituted programs which have eliminated grades from normal courses of study, putting students on a pass or fail basis only.

Tulane University in New Orleans has succeeded where the University of Iowa failed — beer is now being served in their Union. The opening of the Rathskeller in the basement of Tulane's University Center places Tulane among the few large Universities to allow alcohol on campus. Wisconsin and Cornell University have been serving beer in their Unions for over 25 years.

The University of Illinois has added a machine to its faculty — a teaching machine. The machine is a large computer with a keyset typewriter and a television screen, so a student can communicate with it.

The system, called PLATO, for Programmed Logic for Teaching Operation, combines "the knowledge of an instructor with the speed and convenience of a computer."

BY USING the typewriter, a student can ask the machine to turn pages in a text, draw graphs, tell of mistakes, and answer questions. The machine responds by flashing the information on the television screen.

PLATO has two teaching systems: either the machine asks the student questions about a given subject, and if necessary corrects his answers, or the student does the asking. A button labeled "help" tells the student what mistakes he's made.

College instructors in Texas have made sure that what they say in lectures won't be held against them. The Texas Association of College Teachers has adopted a resolution opposing the use of tape recorders in classrooms.

The resolution states that "tape recorders and other mechanical recording devices . . . be permitted in classrooms only with the express consent of the instructor, which is also necessary for any reproduction or editing of a recorded lecture or class discussion."

lieve England should defend the right of the Rhodesian black majority to rule in that country.

And, subscribing to the theory that it's more blessed to give than to receive, the Organization of African Unity has decided to give England and Rhodesia a Christmas present.

Tops on the OAU's shopping list is a declaration of war for Rhodesia and a cut in diplomatic relations for England if the revolt isn't put down by Dec. 15.

This is one gift that may be opened before Christmas if British Prime Minister Harold Wilson sticks to his economic sanctions rather than to his guns.

THEY'D RATHER FIGHT

The conflict between sticking to economic policies and sticking to guns was emphasized this week in a showdown between LBJ and the Federal Reserve Board. The only trouble was that both sides wanted to fight rather than to switch, and everybody stuck to everything.

The Federal Reserve Board declared an interest rate increase from 4 per cent to 4.5 per cent, and LBJ didn't like it. The increase comes in the discount rate which banks pay when they borrow from Federal reserves.

The board said it was forestalling inflation; LBJ said he "regretted" the action.

AFTER A GENTLEMAN'S dispute, the adversaries agreed that each felt the other ill-advised.

President Johnson may find himself even more ill-advised, or perhaps quite unadvised, when the resignation of his special assistant for national security becomes effective Feb. 28. The assistant, McGeorge Bundy, submitted his resignation this week so he can become president of the Ford Foundation.

Reports have it that LBJ, who has three months to decide how to fill the job, may decide not to fill it at all. He may just leave it to the State Department.

THE ENEMY WITHOUT

It would seem, however, that the State Department has enough to do already. One of their chief problems is dealing with The Enemy.

One of The Enemy, Russian Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, this week personally approved the sharpest attack on the United States since he came into power.

The United States, he said in an interview with James Reston, associate editor of the New York Times, is whipping up a military psychosis in the world and forcing the Soviet Union to raise its military budget by 5 per cent.

OTHER POINTS in Kosygin's seasonally cheerful message were that he could not feasibly meet with President Johnson until the Viet Nam conflict has been settled and that the United States supports colonialist regimes all over the world.

He added the United States is "keeping the dangers of war before the eyes of the European people and the European people will never forgive you for not letting them live in peace."

Soviets themselves, however, are having a bit of difficulty living in peace. A party shake-up Thursday left Anastas I. Mikoyan, last of the old time Bolsheviks in semi-retirement. He was replaced by Nikolai V. Podgorny.

Official Soviet statement on the reshuffle is that Mikoyan's health was not up to par.

Russia's Luna was not up to par either. The unmanned space ship failed to make a soft landing on the moon and made a hard landing instead. It was the Soviets' fourth attempt this year to land softly.

GEMINI A GO-GO

Space efforts are A-OK for the United States. Astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell were launched down the space slot this week inside Gemini 7.

It is hoped they will orbit the earth for two weeks and then make a space rendezvous with Gemini 6, which is scheduled for launching Sunday.

Gemini 6 developed computer trouble this week, making a launching schedule difficult. Experts said they would have to replace the computer's memory.

THE FACT THAT a computer could lose its mind is almost as frightening as the fact that a computer could be right in predicting a political defeat for one of the world's most entrenched leaders.

Gen. Charles deGaulle, president of France, failed to win a majority of votes in the French presidential elections this week.

A run-off between De Gaulle and chief contender Francois Mitterand is scheduled for Dec. 19. Though De Gaulle is the favorite in the run-off, his failure to win on the first ballot came as a surprise to much of the world.

GO IN PEACE

But all good things must come to an end — even DeGaulle's reign of France.

Another good thing that ended this week was the Vatican Ecumenical Council. Pope Paul VI officially closed the council Wednesday. During the council's three years in session, many important decisions were made. The controversy, however, has been about the decisions that weren't made, including one on birth control.

The 36,000-word schema on the modern world did not alter the church's formal teachings on birth control, but left the way open for future changes. The council decided the issue should be studied further.

OTHER DECREES proclaimed by the Pope were concerned with religious liberty and Christian unity.

Pope Paul officially closed the session with the benediction, "Go in peace."

And speaking of all good things coming to an end . . .

Weekend Wanderings

FLINGS

"Chef Boy-Ar-Dee and the Leftovers" was the first thing they considered calling the group. Naming a rock-and-roll band is, after all, more perplexing than most people would imagine. That name was later mixed in favor of "Victor and the Spoils."

Now, having settled on "The Spoilers," the group is appearing every Friday and Saturday from 3:30 till 5 or 6 p.m. at L'il Bill's Discotheque. James Cooney, A4, Des Moines, plays the guitar; Vic Huber, A2, plays piano and sings; Bill Jackson is on drums; and Jim Delaney is on the bass.

The band plays rock-and-roll and popular songs for anyone who feels like dancing or listening on weekend afternoons.

FLICKS

This weekend the movies are better than usual, and a few deserve special mention.

"The Hustler," Union Board Movie on Saturday and Sunday is an exceptionally well-acted and directed depiction of low-life pool sharks and the gamblers who prey on them.

JACKIE GLEASON is "Minnesota Fats," an aging pool hustler taken on by a young pool shark, played by Paul Newman. Though the original movie was over two hours long, Robert Rossen's excellent direction sustains interest throughout.

"The Ipcress File" is a British spy-and-chase thriller somewhat in the James Bond tradition. Though Michael Caine, the hero, doesn't have the flamboyant sex appeal of Sean Connery, the biting, satiric humor of his role is similar.

Camera devices are artfully used in this suspenseful, violent film. It is presently showing at the Englert.

"Dhool Ka Phool," Hindu for "Flowers in the Dust," is the India Association Movie being shown in the Chemistry Auditorium Saturday. It deals with the rehabilitation of illegitimate children in society.

The Student Senate standing committee will hold an open meeting at 3:30 p.m. Monday in the Union Kirkwood Room to discuss resolutions pending before the Senate.

The meeting was authorized by the Senate Nov. 30 when it called for open discussions of Senate resolutions before they are introduced. The discussions will be on trial for the rest of this semester.

According to George Soukup, B3, Sioux City, chairman of the standing committee, Senate meetings will be more efficient if the resolutions are more thoroughly studied before the meetings.

The open meeting will provide a chance for students and Senators to ask questions about bills, he said, and improve communication between senators and the students they represent.

War Protests Are Natural, Severeid Says

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The complicated war in Viet Nam is likely to be a long one, Eric Severeid, CBS news commentator, said Wednesday.

Severeid told an audience of 5,000 at the annual Consumers Cooperative Association convention that unless something unforeseen happened, "We are in for a long, long, war, much like Korea."

College students' protests against the war were also discussed by Severeid, who said it was natural for students to question the war. Young people measure occurrences and ideas in terms of ideals, Severeid said, but adults tend to evaluate things on more practical terms.

Severeid also said the United States was still in the process of learning to adapt to its leading role in the world.

"We are uneasy as the number one world power," he said. Turning his attention to domestic affairs, Severeid commented that President Johnson had made a deep impression on American society. He questioned, however, Johnson's ability to continue pressing legislation through Congress.

Severeid suggested that the next session of Congress should re-evaluate some of the large amount of legislation passed in the last session.

Girls' Dorms Plan Xmas Festivities

Coeds will bring Christmas into their dormitories with decorations, tours, a festival, open houses and special dinners.

The women's dormitories, Currier Hall, Burge Hall, and Kate Daum House, will hold open house from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Interdorm Presidents Council (IDPC) has invited 38 community and civic leaders to Burge for a special tour of the dormitory facilities during the open house.

The group will tour the dining, recreation, and residence facilities of Burge Hall. After the tour, coffee will be served in the private dining room and members of the dormitory staff will be available for questions.

Each house in the dormitories is sponsoring contests for the best door decorations. Prizes are given in five categories: beauty, religious, originality, humor and sweepstakes.

Currier Hall is sponsoring the Santa Lucia Day festival Dec. 17. Each unit in the dormitory will nominate a candidate as the All Around Girl.

The ancient Swedish custom of Santa Lucia was introduced to Currier last year by Mrs. Jacquelyn Gimse, Currier head counselor.

Santa Lucia, a Sicilian noblewoman, gave her dowry to the Christians. Angered by this action, her husband appealed to the emperor, who ordered her burned at the stake.

Although this order was carried out, Santa Lucia was not hurt. She was finally executed with a sword.

Currier Hall residents will be awakened at 6:30 a.m., Dec. 17, for a special Christmas breakfast at which the new Santa Lucia Queen will be crowned.

Christmas dinner will be served at the women's dormitories Dec. 15. The decorations will include candles and centerpieces of holly, apples, and candy canes.

The menu for the dinner will include rib-eye steak, baked potatoes, and egg nog pie. Meal tickets for guests can be bought in advance.

Currier Hall Art Guild will sponsor a handicraft showing from 1 to 7 p.m. Sunday in the Green Room.

White Gifts will be the service project of Currier Hall this year. The gifts will be taken to the Johnson County Welfare Agency to be distributed to needy children.

Christmas trees in the dormitories have been set up and trimmed in the lounges and the dining halls.

Students To Register Voters

Students willing to spend one or two weeks of Christmas vacation helping to register voters in Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, South Carolina, or North Carolina are being sought by the University Friends of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC).

The registration drive is part of the national Freedom Christmas Project, sponsored by the National Student Association, (NSA).

Although the 1964 Voting Rights Act should guarantee fair registration procedures in these states, local registrars, according to NSA, still refuse to enter names of Negro voters.

Workers are needed in those counties which have federal registrars to conduct a door-to-door canvass to get people to the court house to register, said Friends of SNCC President Larry Wright, A3, Chicago.

Volunteers are also needed to drive people to the county court house, publicize meetings, and assist in voter education projects. Students are responsible for providing their own transportation, but Wright said transportation would be provided for a limited number of persons going to Mississippi.

Living expenses have been estimated by NSA at $10 to $15, not including transportation. In addition, Wright said, each volunteer should have $500 ball bond money available. For those unable to provide this sum, he said, NSA and SNCC will assist in raising ball bond.

Students interested in working either week of vacation on voter registration may get more information from Wright, 351-1101.

Kelso Calls Press Meeting; Rumor Says Nagel Hired

Hugh Kelso, chairman of the Board in Control of Athletics, has called a press conference for 10:30 this morning, presumably to say something about the football coaching vacancy here. Kelso would not comment on reports that Ray Nagel, coach at the University of Utah, had been hired to replace Jerry Burns.

Nagel was at the University Wednesday and Thursday with Kelso and Athletic Director Forrest Evashevski, who returned to Iowa City from a Big Ten meeting in Chicago. Evashevski was in bed with laryngitis Friday night and could not be reached for comment. Bob Flora, Evashevski's assistant, returned from the Big Ten meetings late Friday night and had not heard anything about the press conference.

Iowa Teams Start Action

Iowa winter sport teams all move into action today. Varsity and freshman gymnasts will seek individual places in the U.S. Federation open meet to be held at the Field House today at 1 p.m.

Also at the Field House is a dual swimming meet with Kansas State at 2 p.m. The meet will use the full 150-foot pool, which is usually not used because it is not a standard length.

The wrestlers will compete in the State College of Iowa Invitational meet. Wrestling coach Dave McCusky started the meet 15 years ago when he coached at SCI. Iowa State, the defending National Champion is favored to make the strongest showing, although no team points will be totaled.

The Amateur Fencing League of America is hosting a meet at Ames in which six University fencers will compete. The meet will be scored on an individual basis and no team points will be kept.

Drake Has Top Rebounder

Iowa's game at Drake tonight could give Hawk center George Peoples the toughest job of his career.

Peoples will be up against 6'8", 220 pound, Bob Netolicky. Dick Shultz, Iowa assistant basketball coach who watched Drake fall to Minnesota 81-67 on Tuesday, said, "Netolicky is as strong or stronger than anyone George has played against including Bill Buntin last year at Michigan."

Shultz seemed impressed by Netolicky, and with good reason. In the game Netolicky scored 32 points, while no other Drake player could manage double figures.

DRAKE IS building around Netolicky this year. He won letters in both his sophomore and junior year and last year led the team in rebounding.

"George won't be able to muscle him because Netolicky is much stronger. He'll have to rely on his speed and quickness. It'll be a real test for George," said Shultz.

Peoples, Netolicky and Neil Johnson, Creighton's husky center, were different kinds of ball players.

Johnson is a more rounded player. He can drive and shoot from outside. Netolicky stays close to the basket. He scores on tips. He's a much better jumper than Johnson.

Besides Netolicky, Drake has another tall starter in the front line, and a tall reserve that sees a lot of action — both are good rebounders.

Gary Lovemark is 6'7" and has a good jump shot. He transferred from Minnesota last year.

The reserve is John Mayes, 6'6", who is a strong jumper and good around the basket.

Shultz said Drake's main strength is rebounding and that Minnesota was able to handle Drake by blocking them off the boards. Another factor was Drake's poor field goal percentage. Drake hit only 26 per cent the first half and 33 per cent for the game.

Drake had had two top sided wins before the Minnesota game and may have been looking ahead to Iowa, said Shultz.

Drake used a straight man-to-man defense against Minnesota in the first half, then switched to a "3-1 zone in the second. The zone kept the second half to a four or five point game, said Shultz.

The 1-3-1 zone was the defense that gave Iowa trouble against Southern Illinois.

Shultz said Drake was not as good a shooting team as Creighton, nor as fast, but that Iowa would have to do a better job of blocking Drake off the boards than they did Creighton.

He called Drake a dangerous ball club and said, "We'll have to play a good game or we'll be in trouble."
