Gemini 6 Back After Mission

New Women's Dorm To Open In January

A new, 563-bed residence hall for women students will be open on the University campus soon after students return from the holiday vacation Jan. 3. It is Carrie Stanley Hall, a 10-story dormitory built as an addition to Currier Hall.

The announcement Thursday by T. M. Rehder, director of Dormitories and Dining Services, probably was welcomed most by the 23 coeds in Currier and Burge Halls who are still living in the temporary "overflow" quarters of the two dormitories. This situation was brought on when construction delays slowed completion of Stanley Hall. When classes opened this fall there were some 200 coeds in some lounge and recreation areas of the two dormitories where special overflow quarters were set up.

Since classes opened, however, all but four coeds in Burge Hall and 19 in Currier have moved into regular rooms as vacancies occurred.

The top four floors of Stanley Hall, with a capacity of 150, will be occupied very soon after Jan. 1, Rehder said. The entire building is expected to be ready by early February, he added.

Besides the coeds in the overflow areas who will go into the new dormitory after the holidays, others who will occupy it will include many third occupants in some Currier Hall rooms intended as double rooms, plus a few coeds who wish to reside in the new dormitory but have taken interim housing off-campus. Approximately 375 residents are anticipated in the second semester, counting new students.

Residents of Stanley Hall will use the dining facilities in Currier Hall. These have been expanded to accommodate coeds in the addition. Cost of the $2,525,000 building will be paid from revenues of the dormitory system.

Power Supply Around Hanoi Hit By Raids

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The bombing of North Viet Nam's Uong Bi power plant has chopped off a third of the electric supply of the port of Hai-phong and 25 per cent of that of Hanoi, a U.S. Air Force spokesman said Thursday.

"It was bigger than we thought at first," the spokesman said of the strike by a flight of F105 Thunderchiefs that wrecked the plant Wednesday.

Although still off-limits to bombers, Hanoi may now be forced into an electrical rationing system such as Saigon had to institute long ago because of Viet Cong sabotage of its lines.

THE ANNOUNCED aim of the raid, however, was more restricted: to destroy the Uong Bi plant as the main source of power for factories in North Viet Nam's industrial heartland that have been making arms and other supplies for the war.

Other air raids, scattered ground action and a series of Viet Cong terrorist attacks in the Saigon area marked progress of the war toward another Christmas season.

In Washington, Johnson administration sources said there will be a full of some kind Christmas Eve if the Viet Cong permit it. The guerrillas have proposed a 12-hour truce, but hedged it with a demand that Allied troops put aside their arms for that period. American officials are skeptical about how meaningful the pause would be.

U.S. MARINE patrols killed 16 Viet Cong in the dwindling Operation Harvest Moon and found a cave containing 25 others dead of battle wounds. It was the ninth day of action in Death Valley, 30 miles south of Da Nang.

A garrison of 40 militiamen at My Trang, also south of Da Nang, was credited with killing 42 Communists in standing off a 10-hour siege by a Red battalion believed to include some North Vietnamese regulars.

Wilson Is Snubbed At UN By African Delegations

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — In a deliberate snub, 27 African delegations refused Thursday to listen to an appeal from Prime Minister Wilson to trust Britain's efforts to crush the rebellion in Rhodesia.

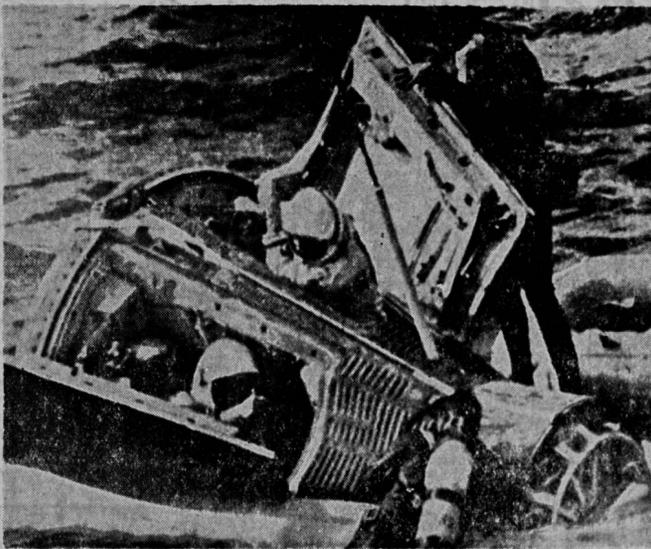

The delegations, representing three-fourths of the 36-nation African group, waited until Wilson took the rostrum in the General Assembly hall, then arose and walked out.

But as the Africans took their walk, applause for Wilson from the remaining delegates — including nine African countries — rocked the blue and gold hall. At the end of his speech he got another prolonged round.

Wilson watched impassively, then delivered a 45-minute policy address covering Rhodesia, Viet Nam, and other international issues — many of which he will take up in talks Friday with President Johnson in Washington. Algerian Ambassador Tewfik Bouatoura, head of the African group, said the walk was staged in protest against British policy in Rhodesia that has led four African nations to break diplomatic relations with London. He said the Africans want tougher measures against Rhodesia's white minority regime.

But Wilson made clear that his country was ruling out use of military force and counting on economic and diplomatic penalties to bring Prime Minister Ian Smith's breakaway regime to heel.

Faulty Fuel Cells Plague Gemini 7

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — Gemini 6 astronauts Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford splashed safely back to earth Thursday, their daring rendezvous with Gemini 7 a success. But a question then arose on whether to call troubled Gemini 7 home a day early.

The dual mission's three flight directors pondered a power problem aboard Gemini 7 into the night and announced that "indications are that the flight will continue as scheduled."

Nevertheless, the tired pilots of Gemini 7, Air Force Lt. Col. Frank Borman and Navy Cmdr. James A. Lovell Jr., 12 days and 4 1/2 million miles deep into their 14-day voyage, got assurance they would be brought down Friday morning if things got worse.

ONE OF THE tiny spacecraft's power-producing fuel cells had to be completely turned off after trouble developed. But Gemini 7 can derive enough power from the remaining cell to complete the mission, one official said.

"Fuel cell No. 1 continues to perform in an excellent condition," mission control announced. "We are going to continue to monitor its performance throughout this night, but all indications are that the flight will continue as scheduled."

Borman and Lovell kept wary eyes on two tiny warning lights on their control panel. One light went out when one cell was switched off; the other for the second cell kept shining.

THE LIGHTS signal pressure trouble in the spacecraft's two electricity-producing fuel cells. They have been coming on and off periodically throughout the flight, but the astronauts showed growing concern over the problem during the afternoon.

And, should the decision be made to end the flight after 191 orbits of the earth, Borman and Lovell would head through the atmosphere for a landing today at 7:59 a.m. CST in the same Atlantic Ocean area Gemini 6 so accurately pinpointed.

After 16 trips around the world, Schirra, a Navy captain, and Stafford, an Air Force major parachuted into the sunflicked Atlantic Ocean at 9:29 EST just 15 miles from the recovery carrier USS Wasp.

"It was ideal," Schirra declared of the historic mission. "We had no problem whatsoever."

LATE IN THE day, President Johnson got a report from Space Administrator James E. Webb on the condition of the astronauts who manned both Gemini 6 and 7 — a report that their health is satisfactory and that there is no cause for alarm in the failure of two thrusters on Gemini 7.

While the worldwide spacecraft tracking network busied itself with Gemini 6's re-entry and recovery, the Gemini 7 pilots spent much of their time worrying with the fuel cell problem.

Also, two maneuvering thrusters on the side of Gemini 7 stopped working completely. However, without these small rockets Borman can still control the craft.

Lang Cites Need For Self-Sacrifice

Men must not be afraid to think and must be willing to sacrifice if democracy is to be preserved, John A. Lang, assistant secretary to the Secretary of the Air Force, said Thursday night.

Lang, speaking in the Union Ballroom at the first Dining-in of the Air Force ROTC at the University, said progress had been amazingly rapid in the 62 years of airplane history. He said that in the short lifetime of the ROTC cadet there had already been an atomic age, a missile age, and a space age.

Lang, who characterized himself as a World War II variety Air Force man, emphasized that the new ages had not supplanted man's ability and capacity to think, but were just new ways of utilizing man's brain power.

To build a computer equal to the brain, he said, would require 10 billion electronic circuits, a building the size of the Empire State Building, and Niagara Falls as a cooling unit.

"OUR ADVERSARIES SAY it is dangerous to let the mind loose unless it serves the state," Lang said. "However, we think it is worth devoting our lives, fortunes, and sacred honors to turn it loose."

"America is the chance to hope and dream and be part of an unfolding picture. Who knows? Perhaps one of the cadets here tonight may be the first man on the moon. We have the ability to think. Let's not be afraid to use it."

Lang drew a parallel between the fall of the Roman Empire and what could possibly happen to the United States. "The Romans forgot the principles which made their society great," he said. "We must not tarry, be mediocre, or be contented bums. The lesson of Rome is worth learning," Lang said.

IN CONCLUDING, Lang said, "We have a rendezvous with destiny. We must secure liberty and freedom for our people and the freedom-loving people of the world. The struggle is never-ending. Today, some burn their cards of responsibility in public spectacles and some defend this, but many students don't feel this way and show it by giving Christmas packages, blood, and expressions of good will to the men overseas."

"We must hold fast to the basic principles that have made this country great. The history of the world will tell you that you must be willing to devote your lives, property, and sacred honor so democracy will not perish from this earth."

At a press conference before the banquet, Lang said the Air Force ROTC program was a very valuable source of officers for the U.S. Air Force. He said a great deal of his work concerned the supplying of men and officers for U.S. forces in Viet Nam and that the United States was ready to meet whatever was required.

Red Chinese World Threat NATO Told

PARIS (AP) — Ministers of the Atlantic alliance agreed Thursday with a U.S. declaration that the Western world must stand alert to the menace of Red China's global ambitions.

Heeding U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara's warning that Peking will have an efficient stockpile of nuclear weapons and medium-range missiles within two years, the ministers promised regular consultation on problems "arising out of the policies pursued by the People's Republic of China."

BEFORE leaving for home, U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk told reporters he thought the ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization had "taken seriously" the U.S. statement that Red China can be a threat to Europe as well as the United States within five years.

McNamara told the ministers Wednesday that within 10 years Red China would have intercontinental missiles capable of hitting European and American cities, and was now at work on a submarine capable of firing ballistic missiles.

Foreign Minister Paul Martin of Canada told a reporter that Canada was concerned by the report of a Chinese nuclear buildup.

RUSK DID NOT seem so sure about NATO support for U.S. policy in South Viet Nam. Asked for the attitude of the Allies on the war there, he said: "Let's wait awhile on that."

Maytag Gives $100,000 To Build Art Auditorium

A $100,000 Fred Maytag Memorial gift has been granted to the University for construction of the proposed art auditorium, the Maytag Company, Newton, announced Thursday.

An equal amount was granted to Iowa State University, Ames, to be used for the main lounge of the Center for Continuing Education, part of the new Iowa State Center.

George M. Umbreit, chairman of the board of the Maytag Co., said, "This form of memorial seems singularly appropriate since Fred Maytag, a native Iowan and former state senator, had a great interest in higher education and the enhancement of Iowa universities."

MAYTAG WAS CHAIRMAN of the board of his household appliance and manufacturing firm when he died in 1962 at the age of 51.

"The art auditorium will be called the Fred Maytag Auditorium," said Frank Seiberling, director of the School of Art, Thursday. The auditorium will be part of the art gallery at the Iowa Center for the Arts.

"We are very happy about this gift," Seiberling said. "It represents 10 per cent of the total cost of the building and is the largest single gift received."

"THE GIFT has put the fund raising campaign within sight of its $1.1 million goal," he said.

Seiberling said he had high hopes that the auditorium would be largely completed by summer of 1967.

"We hope to break ground by next spring or early summer," he said.

Des Moines Firm Will Finance Sewer Expansion

Carlton D. Beh and Co. of Des Moines was awarded Thursday $900,000 in bonds to finance expansion of Iowa City's sewer system. The firm's bid was 3.738 per cent interest.

The city will pay off the bonds from net earnings of the municipal sewage disposal works and city facilities over a 30-year period.

The bonds will finance four trunk sewers in east and southeast Iowa City.

SDS To Set Up National Center For Press Here

The National Council of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) has agreed to establish a national SDS press headquarters in Iowa City, it was announced at a weekly meeting of the group Thursday evening in the Union.

The details of the operation and purchasing of the press remain to be worked out.

Members also discussed the stand of the local chapter on the draft and the war in Viet Nam for presentation to the national meeting to be held Dec. 26 in Chicago. Several Iowa City members plan to attend the meeting.

Volunteers were called for to work on the community organization project in Des Moines sponsored by Grinnell students. Workers will be needed over the Christmas vacation.

Random thoughts

IOWA CITY'S PARK COMMISSION was wise to retain the amusement rides at City Park. If the rides were removed at any time, the decision would certainly bring a bigger protest than Pres. Bowen's remarks about doing away with Macbride Museum...

Officials have been unable to discover any contamination in the Quadrangle food which was served the day that 400 Quad residents became ill. Maybe they're just looking in the wrong place...

It has been brought to our attention that the final examination schedule as printed in the Iowan is somewhat less than easily understandable for our readers in its present form. We'd never thought before that anyone would object to our exam format...

The Student Senate has found there aren't enough people on campus interested in going to Europe to make a plane rental worthwhile. Maybe they should have tried organizing a trip to some other place, like Southeast Asia.

Since this is the last issue of the Iowan many readers will see for a few weeks, we'd like to say that everyone connected with the Iowan: the publisher, editors, members of SPI Board, advertising salesmen, newsboys, reporters, copyreaders, mechanical staff, business office, Old Shep, and everyone else wishes you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Christmas concert wasn't Christmas

By DAVE POLLEN, Editorial Assistant

A moving and inspiring performance was at the same time a disappointment to the listener at the Christmas Concert Wednesday night in the Main Lounge of the Union.

The concert, collaborating the efforts of the University Symphony and Oratorio Chorus, began with the stirring and majestic Zedak the Priest, by Handel.

In this anthem, written for the coronation of King George II, Handel uses brass and percussion to add an inspiring richness to the dramatic interplay of chorus and orchestra.

IN THE SECOND selection, Canticle of Hope, by Paul Hindemith, Dixon's vivacity as a conductor is displayed in a contemporary example of musical drama.

Dorothea Brown, however, did not appear to share the enthusiasm for the music which was so evident in the orchestra and chorus.

The impact felt in the first two selections was not as apparent in the third and final selection, Schubert's Mass in A-Flat Major.

For the most part, the entire program must be considered to be an excellent performance by conductor, soloists, chorus, and orchestra alike.

The only work that can be considered to be of truly a religious nature, let alone about Christmas, was the Schubert Mass. The Handel Anthem, while the words are from the Old Testament, was written for royal processions, and is not a religious work.

The Hindemith work adopts the words of Paul Why not? Why don't you print a legible final examination schedule in your newspaper? For an example of what a legible final examination schedule looks like please refer to those printed in The Iowa State Daily.

Advertising pays—but who collects?

By ART BUCHWALD

Republicans are boiling over the latest Democratic party gimmick for raising money for the 1966 Congressional elections. The gimmick is that theater parties are organized in hometowns of Democratic candidates at benefit prices.

Some cynics, and all Republicans, believe that the selling of advertising to corporations for a political program is a form of blackmail, and is illegal, immoral, and, what's worse, tax deductible.

I was inclined to go along with this until I talked to the advertising manager of a missile manufacturing company, who had bought a full-page ad in the program.

"CERTAINLY NOT," he replied. "We're always looking for new media to advertise in, and what could be better than a magazine extolling the virtues of the Great Society?"

"But isn't $15,000 a page rather expensive for a theater program?" "It depends who is going to read it," he replied. "The purpose of advertising is to improve one's image, and what could give us a better image than advertising in a publication that will be read by people who have a stake in the defense of this great nation?"

"That's true," I admitted, "but there have been those who feel that the program is being used for Democratic fund-raising purposes."

"Now where would anyone get that notion? Our company would never be part of a conspiracy to give funds to one political party or another. All we are interested in is selling missiles. It so happens that this magazine fits into our hard-hitting advertising campaign."

"Well, I'm glad there was no political motive behind the ad. People are so suspicious these days." "And well they might be. But in this case we don't know what all the yelling is about. As a matter of fact, up until the last moment we didn't know whether to spend the $15,000 for a full-page ad in the theater program or to put the same amount into a full page ad in Playboy."

"How did you decide?" "WE CALLED our man in Washington and he said we should go with the 'Age of Greatness.' If it didn't pull in any business, we could always advertise in Playboy later."

"If the Republicans put out a similar publication would you advertise in that as well?" "Of course we would. Republicans buy missiles too."

"Would you take a full-page?" "Since they only make up about one-third of Congress, we might take a third of a page."

"That's fair," I said. "One more question. If you hadn't taken the full-page ad, do you think your business would have suffered?" "Of course not. What kind of Administration do you think we're dealing with?"

Remember these heroes?

By TOM FENSCH, Staff Writer

Who hasn't gone through his childhood with such heroes as Superman, Captain Marvel, Batman, The Flash, Captain America, Wonder Woman and The Spirit, agonizing when their favorite was down and then glowing when, with a mighty blow, the villain was dispatched and justice triumphed?

Jules Feiffer grew up with the above-mentioned heroes and he was so affected in his youth that he has turned again to the comic heroes of the late 1930's and the early '40's and written about them with skill and wit.

The book he produced (The Great Comic Book Heroes, Dial Press, New York, $9.95) is a mixture of reverence and dissection. Thus for Superman: "The advent of the superhero was a bizarre confluence for the American dream. Horatio Alger could no longer make it on his own. He needed 'Shazam!' Here was fantasy with a cynically realistic base: once the odds were appraised honestly, it was apparent you had to be super in this world."

"THE PARTICULAR brilliance of Superman lay not only in the fact that he was the first of the superheroes, but in the concept of his alter ego. What made Superman different from the legion of imitators to follow was not only that he could beat up on everyone when he took off his clothes — they all did that. What made Superman extraordinary was his point of origin: Clark Kent."

Our favorite was Sub-Mariner. He came from the lost world of Atlantis and — naturally — had superpowers. But while most superheroes hated criminals (Wonder Woman seemed to hate men) Sub-Mariner was different. He hated everybody. A ferret-looking creature, he wrecked a steamship, beat up the cops, knocked down the mayor of New York, wrecked the El and demolished

Student prexy wasn't student

By DAVE POLLEN, Editorial Assistant

The president of the University of California's student body finally became a student himself last week. Jerry Goldstein, who was elected as president last semester was officially not a student this semester until a petition to the registrar reinstated him.

Goldstein neglected to file a required study list to the registrar at the beginning of the semester. The registrar then dropped Goldstein's name from the class lists, and before he knew it, he was no longer a student.

Besides his own personal embarrassment and the problem of receiving credit for this semester's work, the affair left Berkeley's student government in a rather confused state. No one seemed quite sure how to handle the matter.

OPPOSING political groups, however, cooperated, and didn't press the issue of the president's status.

AFTER TWO and a half months, Goldstein's presidency, academic credit, and pride were restored.

One way of determining what's "in" and what's "out" is to decide what has been the furthest out for the longest time. Then it becomes the most "in."

STUDENTS AT the University of Wisconsin have decided that Batman and Robin, the boy wonder, have been out long enough to be in. This renaissance of comic book culture is a manifestation of the recent trend toward "pop culture," which began with comic book characters in paintings and soon spread to other art forms.

A theater in Madison will begin to run the complete series of Batman movies, which consist of a number of 20 minute serials. If reaction to the films is favorable, Columbia Films, which distributes the series, will expand distribution of the film across the nation.

The University of Pennsylvania faculty senate has passed a resolution enabling the administration to find what's going on in the University.

SECRET GOVERNMENT research at the University of Pennsylvania has been bothering university officials for the past three years. The interest in the research "became acute" last month after the administration learned that its Institute for Cooperative Research was conducting research on the possible use of germ warfare in Viet Nam.

The resolution was adopted to apply specifically to research in which "free publication of the results is restricted by the granting or contracting agency."

Fantasy meaning came through loud, clear

To the Editor:

As an interested reader of Donald Barnett's comments on the Cold War Colloquia, let me assure him that — at least for this reader — the deletions made by the Iowan were not successful in obscuring or distorting his meaning.

Even with these unfortunate deletions, the article came through as a particularly pure specimen of the paranoid style of political debate — left wing division. It has been some time since I have seen such a short article that succeeded in expressing so many of the elements which I associate with this particular style of argumentation.

I must admit to a touch of nostalgia for the political arguments of my youth as Mr. Barnett invoked the notion of a malevolent conspiracy directing our society, imputed discreditable motives to our rulers, defied the powers that be, and gloriously confused depth of personal commitment with a particular manner of expression in argument. The article and the following letter were an amusing example of a particular kind of political rhetoric very cleverly done.

One might wonder if critics of the Colloquia from the left are as barren of ideas one might take seriously as Mr. Barnett's comments suggest, but that is to take seriously what is surely tendered as an offering in the spirit of this gay season of fantasy.

In the same spirit, let me extend to him and to those members of the contemporary left who live in the world I know, my wishes that they may have a Merry Christmas and an interesting New Year.

Americans hated war — once

To the Editor:

It is curious to see which section of the community is most anxious to proclaim "Peace on Earth!" this Christmas. The rather unhappy incongruity of the Navy recruiting poster in particular, prompts me to think of a man I met in Sweden last year. He came to America at age 19 and lived here from 1907 to 1927, when he returned home.

He was someone out of the past come back to life, very interesting to listen to as he spoke with great affection of pre-1927 America. His memory simply ended then. Places like Tunnel City and Friendship, Wis., Eureka, Cal., Calmarath and Astoria, Wash., Lincoln, Denver, and San Francisco came alive with spectres of Wm. Jennings Bryan, Teddy Roosevelt, Harding, and Wilson. He spoke of the big 5c glass of wine and the riots when conscription was introduced in 1916.

But my point is his spontaneous statement: "Then you really hated war, but now you just can't wait to have them."

In my travels I found this a not uncommon opinion among people generally well disposed toward us.

Action Marks Novak's Art

By DALLAS MURPHY
Managing Editor

Twisting, spiraling, gyrating, the colors jump from the canvas. Traffic-light green leaps from a red field; murky browns and screaming oranges melt into warm red; electric blue swirls past antique gold. And a strip of stock market quotations underlines them in stark black and white.

Colors stream together to form what artist David Novak hesitatingly calls "anthropomorphic" art. Forty of his works are on display in the Union Main Lounge in a one-man exhibit.

Novak is an M.A. and M.F.A. candidate in the School of Art and a painting instructor in the school.

His goal is to create strong movement on canvas. This he COLOR IN MOTION is the theme behind the paintings of David Novak, G. Cedar Rapids. Novak, a candidate for M.A. and M.F.A. degrees in art, currently is exhibiting 40 of his abstract works in a one-man show in the Union Main Lounge. Novak's show is sponsored by Union Board and is the first of its kind to be held in the Union.

"You throw it out and see what happens."

THE ARTIST said he thought painting gave the artist a sense of freedom not found in other forms. An artist must have freedom, he said.

That's what I preach to my students. A teacher must help the student in whatever direction he wants to take.

The paintings on exhibition were done from 1962-1965. One, "Evolution of a Titan," was completed a few days before the exhibit opened.

Paintings of the early period are often bordered in a solid color, with multi-color arrangements hung from this border. Later paintings extend to the edge of the canvas without a border.

Novak's color patterns also have changed in those three years. His early works are dominated by brown-orange-red arrangements. Red dominates in a middle period, and blue in the most recent works.

IN SEVERAL paintings, large flat shapes are the central element. In others, there is a studied effort at texture patterns. One such work is a collage titled "Ode to Winston." It includes such materials as newspaper, headline words, a picture of Sir Winston, and scraps of raw linen.

Want ads and stock market reports appear in many of the paintings. They usually take the form of a bar across the bottom of the canvas.

Novak described it: "Sometimes it's a stabilizing agent which doesn't move. It calls at-ention to movement within the painting. Sometimes it moves and the painting is the stabilizer. If you look at the bar, the painting moves, and if you look at the painting the bar moves."

Novak paints in oils and acrylic. The advantage of the acrylic medium, as he sees it, is that it dries quickly and can be applied over other colors to create a transparent effect.

From far away, an oil painting looks flatter and more muted than an acrylic painting. Distance also changes the perspective of the painting.

AT CLOSE range, a careful overlay of color on color and a juxtaposition from one color to another is visible. This is lost as distance increases, and the on-looker gets the total effect of the spatial relationships.

Six of the paintings in the exhibit belong to the "Voyage Series." The voyage paintings convey a lightness pitted with vivid color arrangements.

"They are not voyages to any place, but rather voyages of the mind," Novak said.

Figures will play a more prominent part in his future work, Novak said.

"I feel I might be restricting myself by working only with landscapes, and figures personalize the work."

Novak's wife, Margaret, is a graduate student in speech pathology and audiology.

In 1964, Novak won the sweepstakes and first place awards in the All-Iowa fair in Cedar Rapids with "Sonorousness in Red." He also won first prize in the fair in 1963 with "Early A.M."

New Directories Being Delivered

Distribution of 30,000 new telephone directories in Iowa City and 15 nearby communities started Wednesday and will be completed Dec. 23, according to R. A. Williams, manager for the phone company here.

The work will be supervised by Directory Distributing Associates, Inc., of St. Louis, Missouri, who will hire a delivery force locally.

Civic pages have been updated to reflect current statistics and new streets have been added to the city map. An area code map of the United States, instructions on customer long distance dialing and typical long distance rates for calls from Iowa City are included.

The directory cover this year features the new Herbert Hoover National Historical Site at West Branch, Iowa.

Williams said that Iowa City presently has 29, 871 telephones or a gain of 2,225 telephones since the last directory.

Baby Suffocates During Sickness

Funeral services for two-month-old Karen LeVier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert LeVier, 151 Riverside Park, are pending at the Goetsch-Perrin Funeral Home in Gladbrook.

The child died at her home Thursday morning. She apparently became ill and was asphyxiated, police said.

An ambulance was called to the home about 8:30 a.m.

LeVier is a graduate student at the University.

Lucia Festival Queen Elected In Currier Hall

Mary Grace King, A3, Hancock, was crowned Santa Lucia Queen in Currier Hall at a special Christmas breakfast this morning. She was crowned by Rebecca Hubbel, A3, Mallard, the 1964 queen.

Miss King was elected from among five finalists by residents of Currier Hall. The members of her court were Carol L. Bunn, A3, Muscatine; Barbara A. Close, A1, Antioch, Ill.; Andrea L. Layne, A1, Loves Park, Ill.; and Karen A. Michna, A1, Bettendorf.

Currier residents were awakened for breakfast at 6:30 a.m. today by caroling in the halls.

After the crowning of the queen, Mary L. Harneck, A1, Mason City, and Ann L. Willis, A2, Burlington, sang the Santa Lucia Carol in several languages including English.

The Santa Lucia Queen is nominated by her housing unit for her character and all-around activities.

The Festival of Santa Lucia is celebrated in memory of a Sicilian noblewoman who was executed for giving her dowry to the Christians.

The Santa Lucia Festival began last year at Currier. This festival was chosen because Santa Lucia represents the noblest traits of womanhood.

Miss King was a member of AWS Freshman Council, Student Senator from Burge Wellman House, and a member of Social Board.

Divers Begin Installation Of Pipe Line

Divers, working in the Iowa River north of the Burlington Street dam, made initial preparations for the repair of a broken water main.

The water line broke about a month ago, cutting off the water supply to eastern sectors of the campus for a few hours.

Henry T. Barbatti, assistant director of utilities at the University Physical Plant, said the main was not replaced immediately after breaking because time was needed to determine exactly what length of pipe was needed for the repair. Allowances in length had to be made for the uneven river bed and for the stress on the pipe caused by the river's current.

The divers Thursday were uncovering the broken main and preparing it for the actual repair work, Barbatti said. They can't work too long at a time because the water is cold, he said, but the repair work will probably be completed in a few weeks.

When the main broke, the University connected its pipeline with Iowa City water mains to supply water temporarily to the eastern parts of the University.

Bowens Set Family Xmas

"Home for the Holidays" is the Christmas theme for Pres. Howard R. Bowen and his family this year. The president's two sons will be home for Christmas together for the first time in four years.

President Bowen said having Tom, 23, and Jeff, 26, home is "the biggest thing in our Christmas this year." Jeff is in a property management business in Denver, Colo., and Tom is studying for his doctorate in anthropology at the University of Colorado, at Boulder.

"We're just going to celebrate in the traditional family way," said Bowen.

The Bowen traditional family way, explained Mrs. Bowen, is opening gifts on Christmas morning, then participating in some outdoor activity, and finally, eating a big turkey dinner.

"Normally we go skating to work up an appetite," she said.

The whole family enjoys skating, she said, but this year the weather here isn't producing the necessary ice.

Development Of Epigram Discussed By Professor

A history of the form and development of the English epigram was given Thursday in the Union Music Room by Frederic Will, associate professor of English. The lecture was entitled "Witticisms in Poetry."

An epigram was defined by Will as a short poem on a single thought or event ending with a witticism or ingenious turn of thought.

According to Will, tombstone inscriptions were the basis of development of the literary epigram.

Early Roman and Greek epigrammatic writing provided the background for Will's discussion of the gradual secularization of wit in England.

"Between the Greek epigram and 'our' epigram, literary historical trends have intervened," Will said, "making a witty or ingenious turn of thought a dominant criterion."

Will's lecture was taped by WSUI and will be broadcast at 8 p.m. March 1 as part of their Literary Topic Series.

The series, which is presented every Tuesday, is based on tapes of literary discussions given by the faculty or visiting lecturers.

2 TV Shows Will Feature Iowa Singers

Viewers in this area will be able to see the University colorful Old Gold Singers in two special holiday TV broadcasts next week.

On Sunday at 2:30 p.m., KCRG-TV will present a half-hour videotape featuring selections from the Singers' concert repertoire as well as traditional Christmas music. The 35 Singers, under the direction of Mike Livingston, will present numbers ranging from "Hey, Look Me Over!" to the Austrian carol "Still, Still, Still."

At midnight Christmas Eve, WMT-TV will re-broadcast a videotape made last year by the Old Gold Singers, directed by John Quinn, who is now teaching in the Cedar Rapids school system. The program, featuring the Singers in an informal living-room setting, includes such Christmas standards as "Winter Wonderland" and "The Little Drummer Boy."

In addition to their TV performances, the Old Gold Singers have recorded a Christmas radio program to be heard on 46 stations in nine states.

The Singers, organized in 1957 under the sponsorship of the Alumni Association and the School of Music, carry the University's name throughout the Midwest and other areas of the United States, appearing in more than 50 concerts annually. The group is composed entirely of non-music majors, selected on the basis of voice quality, talent and appearance.

Drake Tries To Get Even; Face Hawks Here Saturday

By RON BLISS
Asst. Sports Editor

The Iowa Hawkeyes will be putting their unbeaten record on the line Saturday night when they face the Drake Bulldogs in the Field House at 7:30 p.m.

Drake, still bitter over their 66-60 loss to the Hawkeyes in Des Moines last Saturday night, will be out to get sweet revenge in a game that shapes up to be Iowa's toughest test of the season thus far.

"It should be another interesting contest," coach Ralph Miller said Wednesday night. "The enough to scrimmage Minnesota," he added.

"We'll have to wait a while for that game, as Iowa doesn't

"scrimmage" Minnesota here until Feb. 15, but for now for stage is set for the rematch with Drake Saturday night.

Drake goes into the game with a 3-2 record, after a 72-66 victory over Iowa State Thursday night. Their only losses have been to Minnesota, 81-68, and to Iowa. Iowa's record is 6-0.

The Hawks will also play in the Sun Bowl Classic in El Paso, Texas Dec. 29 and 30, where their first opponent will be Arkansas. The other teams in the tournament include Texas Western and Loyola of New Orleans.

Drake players were very disappointed after their loss to us last Saturday and there is every reason to believe that they will be up for this one.

"All of my players have great respect for Drake," Miller continued. "And I think there is no doubt that they are the best team we have played this season."

Iowa had to come from 12 points behind in the final 10 minutes of last Saturday's game to defeat Drake, 66-60.

After the game many of the Drake players voiced criticism of Iowa's play and promised that they would win the rematch.

"We'll take them next time, no doubt about it," Drake forward Harold Aldridge was reported to have said after the loss Saturday.

Another Drake player, guard Herman Watson, was also reportedly bitter after the contest.

"Iowa and Minnesota don't even belong on the same court," Watson said, comparing Iowa to Minnesota, a team the Bulldogs lost to Dec. 7.

DES MOINES (AP)—Drake capitalized on Iowa State's cold shooting for a 72-66 basketball victory before 6,850 persons here Thursday night.

The Cyclones managed to hit only 23 per cent of their shots as the Bulldogs took a 27-20 halftime advantage.

Herman Watson led Drake's scoring with 23 points, including some vital points in the second half that kept the Bulldogs out of danger.

Don Smith, who produced six of Iowa State's last seven points took scoring honors with 27. He also grabbed 20 rebounds.

Big 10 Teams Will Be Busy This Weekend

CHICAGO (AP)—Minnesota and surprising Iowa, the Big Ten's only unbeaten basketball teams, risk their perfect records against Creighton and Drake in an 11-game program involving conference quintets this weekend.

Iowa 6-0 is host to Drake's bulldogs whom the well-balanced Hawkeyes nipped 66-60 at Des Moines on Dec. 11.

Minnesota 3-0 is back in action Saturday night against Creighton's Blue Jays after an 11-day respite for classroom exams.

Another Saturday night game of import sends Michigan State, winner of three straight after an opening defeat, on the road against nationally second-ranked St. Joseph's Pa.

The weekend card starts Friday night with Wisconsin 1-3 and Indiana 1-3 engaged in two-night tournaments, the Milwaukee Classic and Kentucky Invitational, respectively.

Remainder of the Saturday night program:

Tulane at Northwestern 1-2.

Ohio State 2-2 at St. Louis U.

Purdue 2-2 at Evansville College.

Illinois 3-3 vs. Princeton, in a Chicago Stadium double-header also pitting Chicago Loyola and Tulsa.

Big Ten champion Michigan 4-1, No. 3 in the Associated Press national poll, is idle until a significant Dec. 21 clash with top-ranked Duke at Detroit's Cobo Arena.

The powerful Wolverines were spilled 100-82 by Wichita in their fourth start of the season Dec. 8 at Wichita.

Thus far, Big Ten teams have recorded a modest 600 percentage in non-conference competition, winning 24 and losing 16.

However, the conference has two stars among the nation's scorers. Purdue's Dave Schellhase is the country's top point-maker with a 35.7-point average. Don Freeman of Illinois ranks eighth with 30.0.

Iowa Gymnasts To Contend For Big 10 Title Once More

By PAUL DYSART
Staff Writer

"The Big 10 gymnastics championship this year will go to either Michigan, Michigan State or Iowa," predicted Hawkeye gymnastics coach Dick Holzapel. "Michigan won it last year and Michigan State will probably be favored this year."

Holzapel pointed out that gymnastics is strictly a team sport, with only the gross team score counting in the meets.

"There are no individual winners in gymnastics," he pointed out. "Each team is judged in all seven events and points are awarded for their showings."

Seven events comprise a gymnastics meet. The side horse, the floor exercise, the trampoline, high bar, long rings, parallel bars, and still rings all fall under gymnastics events in the Big 10.

One gymnast on each team is tabbed the "all-around man" and he competes in every event. A second man can also compete in every event, but he cannot be designated as an "all-around man." Four gymnasts are allowed to compete in each event.

"Our 'all-around' man this year is Neil Schmitt," the coach said. The sophomore from Willow Brook High School in Villa Park, Illinois has proven himself proficient in all seven events.

The second man is Ike Heller, a junior from Skokie, Illinois. He works all of the events except the trampoline.

Ken Gordon, last year's runner-up in the NCAA meet, and Marc Slotten, are top side horse men, according to the coach.

Dan Price is a high bar specialist as well as a long horse vaulter. Price did well in the recent Iowa Federation Meet.

Don Singerman, who works the high bars, the parallel bars, and the still rings, was injured last year, but is expected to give the Hawks more depth this winter.

Other gymnasts on the squad are Arnie Lazar, on the parallel bars, Tom Goldsborough on the long horse, parallel bars and the still rings, John Keller on the trampoline, and Charles Menching on the side horse.

Keller is the only senior on this year's squad, promising better things to come for Holzapel's crew.

Also contributing to this year's success are Paul Omi, on the parallel bars, floor exercise and the still rings, and Al Smith on the floor exercise.

Both Omi and Smith will not be eligible until next semester because of scholastic reasons, however.

The squad will go to Florida over the holidays for a gymnastic tournament, then return for the Big 10 schedule.

"The dual meets count in the scoring in the Big 10 meet," Holzapel stated. "You get one point for every dual meet you win and ½ point for every dual meet in which you managed a tie. In the Big 10 meet itself you get two points for every team place."

Although there are no individual champions in the Big 10 meet, the eight top men in each event can compete in each event after the meet is over to determine the eventual champion. This has no bearing on the outcome of the actual meet, however.

OLD SHEP WINS—

CUT AND SHOOT, Texas—It was a tense match, but Old Shep, world champion con-hound, retained his title in Thursday's action at the Happy Hollow Holiday Meet here.

Old Shep, under his new trainer Rip Sniggle, stomped arch rival Big Ruff by treeing 19 coons to Big Ruff's 12.

It was Old Shep's sixth consecutive successful defense of his title this season. His owner Irving Fenster said he was mildly pleased by Old Shep's performance, but he hoped Old Shep would be in better form for later meets. Fenster was probably referring to the meet with the famed and highly touted con-hound from the north, Michigan, whom Shep meets in February.

Police Court Judge Ivie Says City Needs Municipal Court

Iowa City needs a municipal court with a full-time judge to cope with the expanding Iowa City community, Police Court Judge Roger H. Ivie said in an interview Thursday. Ivie has submitted his resignation to the Iowa City council effective Jan. 1. "The municipal court would take a lot of criminal jurisdiction that the district court now handles," said Ivie. "These are what is called 'indictable misdemeanors' — for example OMT's (operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated)." THE COURT, Ivie suggests, would also have some civil jurisdiction in cases up to $2,000. The police court now has no civil jurisdiction. Regular juries would be selected for the municipal court. According to Ivie, a sizeable addition to the Civic Center would be needed to provide offices for the judge and clerk of court and to house a full time court room. Ivie has made his municipal court recommendation to the city council.

"PRESENTLY WE are authorized by statute to create a municipal court that would have a full time judge," he said. "But I think that the city council probably won't do anything until it is sure how far the judicial reform will go. It is even possible that municipal courts will be knocked out of the system."

Ivie was referring to an amendment that may be added to an judicial reform bill during the next session of the state legislature. This amendment would enable the district court to have jurisdiction over all judicial matters within the district. Under the amendment, Ivie said, each district court would have various levels of enforcement.

He said that there was also a somewhat unpopular proposal to group counties into new districts. Johnson County, now grouped with Iowa County in the Eighth District Court could be joined with Cedar and Linn Counties.

"IT MAY BE efficient economically, but I don't know how efficient in any other way," said Ivie.

70 Radio Stations To Have University Xmas Programs

Christmas musical programs featuring students and staff of the University will be heard on 70 radio stations in Iowa and surrounding states during the holiday season. A total of 46 stations will broadcast a half-hour program by the Old Gold Singers, under the direction of Mike Livingston. The Singers, a group of 35 non-music majors, will present both modern and traditional Christmas music.

More than a third of the radio stations requesting the program are in the neighboring states of Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, South Dakota, Colorado and Wisconsin. This week's Christmas concert featuring the University Choir, Oratorio Chorus and Symphony Orchestra will also be broadcast by 23 stations, which will present the concert's major work, Schubert's "Mass in A-flat." The combined groups, conducted by Professor Daniel Moe, number more than 300 musicians.

University radio station WSUI (910 kc) will broadcast a recording of Handel's "The Messiah" at 6 p.m. Dec. 23. In addition, the station will offer the following programs of special interest: Dec. 20 — 2 p.m., Nativity for N-Town; 8 p.m., The Soldier and the Woman; Dec. 21 — 2 p.m., Nativity for N-Town; 8 p.m., And Death Came To Town; Dec. 22 — 2 p.m., Nativity for N-Town; 8 p.m., The Small Miracle; Dec. 23 — 2 p.m., The Goblins Who Stole a Sexton; Dec. 24 — 1 p.m., Cyril Ritchard reading "Alice in Wonderland."

Man Awarded $22,000 In Suit

An Iowa City man was awarded $22,103.45 in Johnson County District Court Thursday.

Frederick Sutton, 730 Whiting Ave., was granted the sum as the result of a personal injury suit against Richard Aicher, Robert W. Wright and William Wright, all from West Branch.

Sutton sought $36,196.45 as the result of an accident July 9, 1964, at the Oasis intersection, 8 1/2 miles northeast of Iowa City. In the suit he said that he was riding in a truck driven by Robert W. Wright and owned by William Wright when the vehicle was struck by a car driven by Aicher.

Sutton said he suffered facial scars.

Pilot Tells About Viet Nam

By BILL PIERROT Staff Writer

The voices of those who sit in the United States and protest our country's involvement in the Viet Nam war are heard frequently. First Lt. James L. Deegan can present a different side of the story, a first hand view of the war.

Deegan recently returned from duty with the Army in Viet Nam, where he flew 1,500 combat missions and won the Distinguished Flying Cross (one of America's highest military honors), the Air Medal with 38 clusters, the Purple Heart, the Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal and the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry.

Deegan, the son of James W. Deegan, head of the Department of Industrial Engineering here, spoke to the Hawkeye Company Association of the Army ROTC last week. His talk featured color slides of the Viet Nam countryside and of the war, including many taken from the helicopter he piloted. DEEGAN graduated from the University in 1963 and spent 22 months in Viet Nam. For 15 months he flew gun ships out of Da Nang.

A gun ship is a helicopter, in his case a NU-1, armed with machine guns and rockets and used for reconnaissance, assaulting the enemy and carrying troops.

"I wouldn't have traded my job with anyone in Viet Nam," said Deegan, a slightly-built man of 25.

Much of the equipment he used was now outdated, the lieutenant said.

"We were working with about 25,000 troops in the country," he said. "Now with around 250,000 men here, bigger and more modern equipment is being used."

COMMENTING favorably on the way the war was progressing, Deegan said the United States had a 10-1 kill ratio (10 Viet Cong were killed for each American killed). He considered this ratio especially good since much of the war was being fought on Viet Cong terms and on terrain familiar to the Cong.

Deegan said that a specific number couldn't be applied when American casualties were announced as light, moderate or heavy, because the term depended on how many men were involved. Six men killed or wounded out of a group of 12 would be a heavy loss, he said, but the same number from a group of several hundred would be light.

Regarding the peace demonstrations in this country, Deegan said, "They definitely haven't lowered the morale of our men in Viet Nam."

"THE INITIAL reaction when we heard of the demonstrations was that those people just don't know what's going on," he said. "It's very aggravating though."

Deegan's slides contrasted the modern city of Saigon with the isolated mountain villages and the natural beauty of the country with the ugliness of war.

"ONE OF THE most terrifying things I ever did was fly through the fog around those mountains," he said.

The mountains often rise to 5,000 or more feet from sea level and heavy fog accumulates at the higher altitudes. Deegan and his wife, a Vietnamese woman, are planning to move to Seattle, Wash., in March where he will study for an M.A. in anthropology at the University of Washington.

McDonald's Filet o' Fish SANDWICH
"WHYNA GOOD" — you're sure to say when you bite into a McDonald's Fish Sandwich — an adventure in good eating. More fish — choice deep sea "fresh-catch" ... seasoned, breaded and drenched in a golden brown on the outside and moist, flaky white inside. Served hot on buns with tangy tartar sauce, it's fish as you like it — good as can be!

He Finds Newspaper Advertising Has Fine Career Opportunities

Talk to Robert D. Hirst of The Grand Rapids Press and he'll tell you he made a wise choice when he decided to enter newspaper advertising as a career. A marketing and sociology major, Bob graduated in 1958 from Michigan State University with his B.A. As a member of the Booth Newspaper Training Program, he spent his first training period in accounting and circulation at The Bay City Times, one of nine Booth daily papers in Michigan. He also did a tour in display advertising on The Muskegon Chronicle, and in the classified and national advertising departments of the Jackson Citizen Patriot. With his training completed, he joined The Ann Arbor News as a member of the local advertising staff. He was later promoted to his current position — Assistant Classified Advertising Manager of The Grand Rapids Press.

If you are wondering where your business future lies—why not consider Booth Newspapers. Ask your Placement Officer for the date and time of Booth Newspapers' visit to your campus, or write: Coordinator, Training Program, Booth Newspapers, Inc., Suite 2100, 211 West Fort Street, Detroit, Michigan 48226.
