LBJ Will Seek Peace, But Stay In Viet Nam

Asks For Raise In Excise Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson coupled a new peace appeal Wednesday night with a pledge to fight on in Viet Nam "as long as aggression commands us to battle" — supported by a record $112.8 billion budget.

The President did not call in his State of the Union message for a general tax increase now but he said he would not hesitate to ask for more revenues later if they were needed.

Meantime, he recommended that excise taxes on automobiles and telephone calls be raised back to where they were Dec. 31.

HE ALSO suggested a graduated increase in withholding taxes for those whose present deductions are not enough to cover their full tax bills, and a speed-up in collecting corporation taxes.

Johnson talked of peace and war and his intentions of pushing forward with his "Great Society" in a 5,000 word speech to a joint session of Congress. It was broadcast nationally on radio and television.

On the issue of his peace offensive seeking to end the brutal and bitter conflict in Viet Nam, as he called it, Johnson was compelled to report, "We have received no response to prove either success or failure."

Restating U.S. intentions, the President declared that the United States would talk or fight or do both at the same time.

"WE WILL respond," he said, "if others reduce their use of force: and we will withdraw our soldiers once South Viet Nam is securely guaranteed the right to shape its own future."

Officials said this contemplates a possibility that the war could just simmer down gradually, with first one side making a cut then the other.

And to applauding legislators, Johnson said the "Great Society" could continue along with war in Viet Nam. He set out a 10-point home front program that drew applause at almost every pause — plus whoops and cheers when he called for doubling the term of House members from two to four years.

BUT THERE was silence when the President said he would not hesitate to ask Congress for more money if it was needed because of Viet Nam.

Johnson's speech was applauded by some members as outstanding, forthright and responsible, but there was considerable criticism too.

Opposition was directed especially at the President's tax proposals, and it came from both sides of the aisle.

Southern members also hit Johnson's new civil rights proposals, and Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois indicated reservations about recommendations for broadened federal court jurisdiction.

JOHNSON SPOKE slowly and somberly with scarcely a trace of a smile.

He sounded no threats or ultimatums. But he voiced and repeated pledges to protect the freedom of Viet Nam from aggression.

And, he said, "We do not intend to abandon Asia to conquest."

At the end of his lengthy address, Johnson had a somewhat encouraging note: "I am hopeful, and I will try, to end this battle and return our sons to their homes."

Johnson could give no clue, however, as to when it might be possible to persuade the North Vietnamese to talk peace.

NOR DID HE say how long the United States might continue its pause in the bombing of North Viet Nam, now in its 20th day.

Viet Nam was the overriding item of interest and attention in the massive State of the Union address.

The address provided Johnson's first extended, detailed public analysis of the reasoning behind the U.S. war effort in Viet Nam.

But the President dealt also with the domestic scene and said that the war halfway around the world must not halt the drive toward what he calls the "Great Society."

In the new budget, however, the increased spending will go largely into military needs.

Officials said the defense budget would go up from about $54.4 billion this year to $58.3 billion in the next fiscal year starting July 1. The nonmilitary budget will increase by only $600 million, they said.

JOHNSON LISTED America's current fighting strength in Viet Nam at 190,000 men and said the buildup to that strength, along with limited air attacks on military targets in North Viet Nam, prevented successful Communist aggression but had not ended it.

But, said Johnson, "The enemy is no longer close to victory. Time is no longer on his side. There is no cause to doubt the American commitment."

"Our decision to stand firm has been matched by our desire for peace," he continued.

It has been made clear from Hanoi to New York, the chief executive said, that there are no arbitrary limits on the search for peace.

Skid'n Spin Syndrome Hits; City Traffic Badly Disrupted

Old Man Winter made his first 1966 appearance here Wednesday. Spinning tires and feet marked his arrival.

Motorists and pedestrians were first greeted by freezing rain in the morning. Thick, wet snow was blanketing the area by noon. Total snow accumulation was expected to be about five inches before the storm ended last night or early today.

A cold front is on the heels of the snow, according to the Weather Bureau, and will move into the area sometime today.

Highway Patrol officials said that all roads in District II, which includes Iowa City and Cedar Rapids, were 100 percent snow or ice covered.

Meanwhile, the average University student was more worried about the condition of the University sidewalks. Officials of the Physical Plant said that 18 employees were sanding the sidewalks until about 2:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Plows were then sent to try to dislodge the ice from sidewalks and lots. The attempt failed.

Snowplows and sanding crews were expected to resume their efforts about 4 a.m. today if the snow abated.

Students found that much of the sand put on the sidewalks during the early part of the ice storm was covered with additional ice late Wednesday morning. Falls were frequent as adventuresome souls slid down the sloping sidewalks along Washington and Jefferson Streets.

Probably the only precaution a student could take, besides crawling back under the covers, would be walking on the lawns parallel to the sidewalks or wearing good, rubber-treaded shoes.

Spinning tires and racing engines indicated the plight of the Iowa City driver as he tried to coax his vehicle up the slippery streets. The rear-engine "bugs" obviously had the advantage.

Treacherous streets also created a busy day for the police department. Officers were busy filing accident reports of the numerous "fender-benders" during the day. Most officers recognized the hazardous driving conditions and usually did not file charges.

Oh well, the storm at least reminded unsuspecting people that, after all, it is the middle of January.

Student Tells Of Gun Firing By Motorist

After exchanging remarks with a crowd of male students on Dubuque Street late Wednesday afternoon, a man pulled what appeared to be a rifle out of the trunk of his car and threatened them, a bystander reported.

The man then loaded the gun and fired into the air, according to the bystander, Norman P. Briggs, A4, Los Angeles, Calif. Briggs gave this account of the occurrence:

Students from nearby apartments and fraternity houses were out helping cars up the hill on Dubuque Street after the snowfall Wednesday. About 4 p.m. the driver of a car going north on the street stopped his car and began yelling at the boys, apparently because a snowball had been thrown at his car.

THE MAN, got of his car, continuing his comments and was met by several snowballs thrown from the crowd. The angered man threatened the students and pulled a rifle from his trunk, waving it menacingly. He replaced the gun, but continued his abusive language. The students threw more snowballs.

Immediately the man again took out the rifle, loaded it, and, after exchanging remarks with the crowd, fired the gun into the air. The crowd quickly dispersed and the man got into his car and drove away.

HALF AN HOUR later the man returned. Police officers were directing traffic in the area. They were informed of his previous action and approached the man for questioning. The officers said they reprimanded him and released him with a warning.

Gerald W. Mueller, A1, Carroll, said Wednesday night that he had filed charges against the man for firing a gun within the city limits. Police denied that any charges had been filed.

The police officers who talked to the gun wielding man could not be contacted.

Union Calls Leaders For Special Meeting

NEW YORK — The striking Transport Workers Union Wednesday night summoned 100 of its top leaders to a special meeting after receiving and studying a formula for settlement of New York's transit tieup.

The union's top officials must pass on major policy matters and must approve contracts. This was seen as possibly significant in terms of ending the crippling bus and subway strike.

The blueprint for settling the strike came from a three-member mediation panel.

Weaver, Former Iowa Dean, To Be President At Missouri

John C. Weaver, 50, former University vice president and former dean of the Graduate College, will become president of the University of Missouri, Columbia, in September.

Weaver is presently vice president for academic affairs and dean of faculties at Ohio State University, Columbus.

Weaver will succeed Elmer Ellis, who received his doctorate from Iowa and has been Missouri president since 1955. He will retire Aug. 31.

Weaver's appointment was announced Wednesday by Robert

Neill of St. Louis, president of the University of Missouri Board of Curators. Weaver was selected unanimously by the board, Neill said, after a unanimous recommendation by a search committee of curators, faculty and alumni.

Of Ellis, Weaver said, "I consider it a difficult job indeed to follow a man who has done so much for the University. Over the years we had a cordial association and I regard him with warm affection and admiring respect."

NEW YEAR Cease-Fire Offered By Vietnamese

SAIGON, South Viet Nam — The Vietnamese government will order a three-day cease-fire during the coming lunar New Year festival, the government news agency, Viet Nam Press reported Thursday.

The Communists already had offered a four-day cease-fire. The Vietnamese chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Cao Van Vien, said details of the truce were still under study and that there might be no formal announcement of the cease-fire as there was for the Christmas truce, the agency reported.

Reliable sources said earlier, the United States was still studying the question of a lunar New Year, or Tet, cease-fire but had not decided how it should be handled.

7 Students Given Murray Awards

Seven students in business administration, law and journalism Wednesday received Murray Scholarships ranging from $300 to $500.

Award winners were Garry Toerber, B4, Massillon; Fred Jacobberger, L3, Emmetsburg; Morris Knopf, L3, Kellogg; Gene Krekel, L3, Burlington; Michael Martin, L3, Iowa City; Pam Emerson, A4, Decorah; and Jon Van Dusseldorp, A4, Des Moines. The last two are journalism majors.

The scholarships, presented by Pres. Howard R. Bowen, were awarded on the basis of scholarship, promise of ability and qualities of leadership.

They were made possible under terms of the will of the late Besse Dutton Murray of Wheatland. Her husband, John F. Murray, a millionaire in the fields of advertising and sales promotion. He died in 1936.

Toerber belongs to the College Chamber of Commerce, Alpha Kappa Psi, Beta Gamma Sigma and Omicron Delta Upsilon.

Jacobberger is notes editor of the Iowa Law Review and holds a Law Foundation scholarship.

Knopf and Krekel both have been Murray Scholarship winners previously and also hold Law Foundation scholarships. Both are members of Phi Beta Kappa and Omicron Delta Upsilon. Knopf edits the Iowa Law Review.

Martin was recently named a Rhodes scholar.

Miss Emerson, who works on The Daily Iowan advertising staff, is president of Gamma Alpha Chi, national advertising fraternity for women. She served as co-chairman of the Homecoming publicity sub-committee and is vice president of her sorority, Delta Delta Delta.

Van Dusseldorp is editor of the Iowan and a member of Omicron Delta Upsilon and Sigma Delta Chi.

MURRAY SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS are congratulated by Pres. Howard R. Bowen. ## University Has No Comment On Tuition Suit By Student

By PHIL REISSETTER Staff Writer

"Too early to tell . . . I don't know . . . ask a lawyer," was the summarized University administration's opinion of the implications involved in a federal suit against the University's higher tuition charge to an out-of-state student.

George Clarke, L1, Iowa City, filed the suit Dec. 8 in Federal District Court in Des Moines charging that the University is denying him Iowa citizenship and thus violating his civil rights.

This is the first time the tuition question has been raised in federal courts.

IT COULD HAVE a "far reaching effect in all the states," said Clarke's attorney and brother Charles H. Clarke, a constitutional law professor at the Detroit College of Law in Michigan.

Since the case is being tried for the first time at the federal level, any ruling here could presumably affect colleges and universities in other states with similar rules.

The loss of a large number of non-resident tuition checks, for example, could mean higher basic tuition or higher entrance requirements.

Both Iowa universities and the State College of Iowa could be affected by a court ruling since residence rules are uniformly set for all three by the State Board of Regents.

"RESIDENCE RULES are quite similar for all U.S. state-supported schools," W. A. Cox, director of registration, said Wednesday.

He said he "didn't know basically what would happen," but doubted a court ruling would have any far-reaching effect on present tuition ratings.

"Clarke's case concerns an individual," Donald E. Rhoades, dean of admissions, said Tuesday. "I don't think it will affect other non-resident students."

University attorney for the case, Arthur O. Leff, would not speculate on possible implications of the case.

He had said earlier that he "always expected" the tuition rules to be challenged in the courts and that Clarke "might get something accomplished."

"It's up to the judge," he said.

It is a "privilege, not a right," for an out-of-state person to attend a state-supported Iowa school, he said.

CLARKE SAID that he has fulfilled the state's six-month residency requirements, votes in Iowa, is married to an Iowa girl, is self supporting and pays state income tax.

"I'm an Iowa citizen in everything but tuition," he said. "The University states, in effect, that you can't be a citizen while you're in school."

The University requires that a student from out-of-state must live here 12 months before he can be considered a resident. Time spent in school doesn't count.

The rule adds: "Bona fide residence in Iowa means that the student is not in the state primarily to attend college; that he is in the state for purposes other than to attempt to qualify for resident status."

THE PURPOSE of the 12 month rule, Cox said, is to keep non-Iowans from coming here for the lower tuition and then leaving the state after graduation.

"It would be ridiculous to go to law school here if I didn't intend to practice here," Clarke said.

This Week's Soundoff Slow; Only Smut And Pornography

By GAYLE HALLENBECK Assistant City Editor

The freezing temperatures seemed to have affected the opening of Wednesday's Soapbox Soundoff. No one was willing to discuss anything. But a short discussion of demons, pornography and smut broke the ice.

Dave Loney, A3, Iowa City, said during the farcical discussion, "If there is one thing that's going to put this society on its feet it's hard-core pornography."

Ron Zobel, A2, Oelwein, brought the discussion to more mundane matters by calling the Johnson Administration hypocritical for getting the United States into war and then refusing to win, for not giving the U.S. people a tax cut and for not solving the civil rights problem.

Loney, defending the Administration, said President Johnson had limited the war to Viet Nam. The draft does not include college students in good standing and Johnson has not destroyed the faith of the American people, Loney concluded.

Bob Katz, Iowa City, had a solution to the problem of which party to vote for in the 1966 elections. He said, "Don't elect a Repub-

Grocer, 70, Drives Away Armed Thug

A seventy-year-old grocer thwarted an attempted armed robbery of his store Tuesday evening.

Ross Clem, owner of Clem's Grocery & Market, 1222 Rochester Ave., told police that about 6:30 p.m. a man stuck a double-barreled shotgun through the open door of his store and announced a holdup.

Clem said that he "didn't think so" and moved toward the gunman. He said that the man then turned and ran.

Clem, described the man as about 45 years old, five feet, 10 inches tall, and weighing about 160 pounds. He said that the man was wearing a cap, dark slacks and a light coat.

CSL goof

THE CSL STATEMENT on Sigma Chi's possible discriminatory attitudes leaves much to be desired.

In effect the CSL statement says: "We haven't documented any discrimination by Sigma Chi, but we're watching them every moment for a wrong move."

This comes after months of study and investigation. It doesn't say much. Last summer, shortly after a Sigma Chi chapter at Stanford was booted out of the national organization when it pledged a Negro, CSL investigators were off and running. In the summer they told The Iowan they would be all ready for the fraternities when October rolled around.

(October was the time the University's anti-discrimination ruling went into effect. The ruling states that student organizations must be able to choose members on the basis of their individual merit without regard to race, color or national origin. Any organization not able to choose members on this basis is to have its University recognition revoked by CSL.)

October came and went, but nothing happened. In the summer we were told that CSL was investigating five greek outfits - Sigma Chi was the only one named. Sigma Chi was named because it was obvious (thanks to the Stanford incident). The others remained anonymous.

After months of study, investigation, or something, CSL has finally made a statement. Sigma Chi has been neither exonerated nor condemned; its name has just been brought up a lot. The other greeks under investigation have not been mentioned.

CSL members have confirmed that one sorority is still being investigated. (Evidently the other greek units are either okay, or they have been forgotten about.)

As things stand, then, at least one sorority is in hot water with CSL, but no one (outside that sorority) knows which it is. So nothing happens to anything except Sigma Chi, which suffers only bad publicity.

This is not a good way to administer a ruling. CSL should set up and publicly outline its standards of discrimination. It is true that this cannot be done exactly, but some specific guidelines beyond mere paper all-white clauses and waivers should be announced.

Any and all University organizations that CSL decides to investigate should be told publicly they are in trouble. An investigation should then be held with as much dispatch as possible. After the investigation, a clear decision should be made of guilt or innocence.

The present policy is mostly secretive and indecisive; it places a cloud over organizations unfortunate enough to receive publicity. Other organizations which may be equally suspect get off scot free for lack of publicity.

Punishment by publicity is not the way to fairly handle the racial discrimination situation at Iowa. Groups which are discriminating should be punished; others should not be.

This half-way approach now being followed is just not adequate.

Watch it, fellows

IOWA'S LOCAL SDS chapter is planning to move in and organize the Amish.

Of course, the Amish have been doing pretty well on their own so far, but imagine what picket lines, signs, and mass arrests could do for them. (Sit-ins wouldn't be very effective though - that's sort of what the school board is asking the Amish children to do, in their schools.) By the time SDS gets through organizing them, no Amish children will have to go to any schools ever. Then they will all be respectfully called "nonstudents," and everyone will be happy.

There is, however, one thing the SDS organizers must watch out for - it could be dangerous for them. Many Amish have beards. If too many bearded fellows get involved with the SDS pickets, it could give the group a bad name (like being beat or something).

This is to be avoided.

Any change of a cease-fire at home?

Student dissenters doubt sincerity

NEW YORK (AP) - Leaders of campus groups protesting U.S. policy in Viet Nam in general take a skeptical view of President Johnson's global peace offensive.

A spot survey showed that many already were planning new demonstrations. They said they were convinced that the major aim of the White House moves is to rally American support for an even greater war effort.

Many of the college organizations were making ready to take part in nationwide protests called for March 25-26 by the National Coordinating Committee to End the War in Viet Nam.

The protest groups at most schools include only a narrow fringe of the undergraduate body and their views are not shared by the bulk of students, university officials say. However, they tend to be well-organized and highly vocal.

A TYPICAL REACTION to the presidential diplomatic drive was that of Michael McKain, a leader of a University of Utah group called "Student Action."

"I believe the Johnson Administration's so-called peace offensive is an excuse for escalation. The Administration will use the failure of the peace offensive as an excuse to intensify the war," he said.

Stanley Nadel, chairman of a University of Michigan "Committee to Aid the Vietnamese," described the peace fellaers as "basically propaganda moves."

Nadel predicted the President, "saying he did everything he could do for peace," would soon proceed with a massive buildup of U.S. fighting forces.

At the University of Chicago, Paul Booth, National secretary of Students for a Democratic Society, also questioned the Administration's sincerity.

"WE FEEL THAT the only issue is whether the United States will permit the Viet Cong to participate in a coalition government in Viet Nam, and Secretary of State Dean Rusk has said we won't," Booth commented.

Said Gary Thiher, a member of the executive committee of the Students for a Democratic Society at Austin, Tex.:

"I'm all in favor of the peace offensive, but Johnson has failed to talk to anybody directly involved in the war. If he were talking to China, North Viet Nam or the National Liberation Front - the political arm of the Viet Cong - I would think he was more sincere.

"Not going to the National Liberation Front will prevent any real negotiations from taking place."

Nanda's India will be much as Shastri's was

By CONRAD FINK

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - The political formula evolved by the late Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri is likely to guide his successor in the months ahead.

Shastri's formula - quiet conciliatory policies backed by a strong will - may in fact be the only one that will work in India.

India's new leader, Prime Minister Gulzarilal Nanda, 67, is a much more forceful personality than was Shastri. A tough man, he delights in tough jobs.

But it is unlikely Nanda will be a tough leader. Shastri felt, and many of his critics agreed, that India needed unifying mediation more than a driving taskmaster.

Nanda is likely to follow this line, now that he must deal with India's many conflicting currents, such as different religions and languages. Supported by Nanda, Shastri smoothed over many domestic quarrels.

In foreign policy, Nanda appears to have little room for maneuver, even if he wanted to reverse trends.

Shastri committed India, 9 hours and 15 minutes before he died at Tashkent early Tuesday, to a search for peace with neighboring Pakistan.

Nanda announced India will honor the Tashkent declaration Shastri signed Monday with President Ayub Khan of Pakistan.

India undoubtedly will stick to what it calls a nonaligned foreign policy. Nanda will permit the United States and the Soviet Union to continue aiding India's economy. But, as did Shastri, he will resist any attempt by either to influence India's politics.

Old Communists will not be served

By ART BUCHWALD

One of the provisions of Medicare is that any person not covered by Social Security or railroad retirement insurance is ineligible for hospital and nursing home benefits if he is a Communist or a member of a Communist front.

To enforce this, a person in this category must answer the following questions: "Are you now or have you during the past 12 months been a member of any organization which is required to register under the Internal Security Act of 1950 as a Communist infiltrated organization?"

I hadn't realized what chaos this question was causing until I got a call from my Uncle Harry who was all excited about it.

"How are you, Uncle Harry?" I asked. "MY RHEUMATISM is killing me. That's what I'm calling about. What is all this business about not being a member of the Communist party or a Communist infiltrated organization in order to get Medicare?"

"It's quite simple, Uncle Harry. We don't want people who would overthrow our Government to get free hospital and nursing care."

"With my rheumatism I can't even get to the doctor, much less overthrow the Government."

"Ah, Uncle Harry, that's just it. If you were a Communist and you got hospital care, you might become well, and then you would be in a position to overthrow the Government."

"If I could get rid of my rheumatism, I'd be willing to join the John Birch Society."

"But, Uncle Harry, I don't know what you're all excited about. You're not a member of the Communist party, are you?"

"I should hope not. Have you ever seen anyone with rheumatism who wanted to be part of a sit-in?"

"Then what are you worried about?" "It's these Communist-front and Communist-infiltrated organizations. I don't know if I belong to any or not."

"Well, what organizations have you joined in the past 12 months?"

"The Bideaway Village for Senior Citizens, $10 down and $10 a month."

"I'm sure that's not on the subversive list."

"What about the Retired Friends of the Forest Hills Library?"

"That I'd better check. Anything else?"

"The Planned Parenthood Association?"

"THAT SOUNDS BAD, Uncle Harry. It's not on the list now, but you never can tell."

"I knew it," Uncle Harry said. "I'll never get my rheumatism cured."

"Now don't be discouraged, Uncle Harry. This law is only aimed at bad old people, not good old people. I'm sure they didn't have you in mind when they wrote it."

"At your age you can say that. If you want my opinion, I think the government's trying to save some money."

"Uncle Harry, you don't seem to understand. The United States is out to eradicate the Communist party. If their members don't get hospital care, they'll be eradicated that much sooner."

"Now that you explain it to me, it does make sense. I have only one problem."

"What's that?"

"With my rheumatism my hands shake so much I can't even answer no to the question."

Outdated writing tools pose a real problem

By TOM FENSCH

Staff Writer

We bought a used typewriter the other day, and considered it a good purchase. It was an old one, a "1917 Oliver Standard Visible Writer," and although it was very intricate, it did work.

That is, it worked on some things and didn't work on others.

We discovered this quite by accident, while typing out a story on the current Viet Nam incident. The typewriter refused to spell out "Viet Nam."

We assumed that this was merely a typing error on our part and we continued.

The typewriter, however, would not spell out "Ho Chi Minh," nor would it spell "hydrogen bomb."

We considered this unusual, but switched to another topic.

WE WERE SAILING along, deftly typing with two fingers, when the typewriter jammed. It jammed on the word "automation." Gears grated inside the Oliver Stand Visible Writer and it stuck. We tried "megalopolis." The typewriter stuck again.

We thought about this quirk and finally came to the conclusion that the typewriter would not spell out anything newer than 1917. It didn't recognize that events took place after that year. It wouldn't type out "airplane"; the word came out "aeroplane."

Unfortunately we had to give up on the 1917 typewriter. We couldn't go through life hoping that everything we typed occurred before 1917. And we couldn't ignore events and people that were newsworthy after 1917.

So we traded the typewriter. We got, in exchange, a Latin dictionary, a tool certainly useful in every household.

Unfortunately, we soon discovered that we had the same problem only magnified.

NOT ONLY DID we discover that the dictioary didn't list airplanes (or aeroplanes, if you prefer) it didn't describe automobiles or buses or trains.

It couldn't give us the dates of the Spanish Civil War and didn't know where the capital of the Republic of the Congo was.

It didn't even list the word "Renaissance." Or "Gothic."

It didn't know who "Khrushchev" was or what the date was of the unification of Italy. (We thought it was 1868, we aren't sure.)

The Latin dictionary stopped, just roughly, at the fall of the Roman Empire and a dictionary that short-sighted is virtually useless.

After some thought, however, we did find a use for it. It now props open a door. Any book can do that.

Moderate debate?

To the Editor:

Several people have apparently taken for granted that because tonight's debate is sponsored by the Young Extremists, the speakers themselves are "extremists." This certainly is not the case. Mr. Johnson is speaking as a past national commander of the American Legion, and is sponsored by the Young Americans for Freedom, and the Young Republicans. Mr. O'Hanlon is not being sponsored per se, however, he is speaking as a former paid staff member of the Viet Nam Day Committee, and as an individual member of SDS. Neither of the speakers considers himself (or is considered by us) an extremist; rather the Young Extremists have scheduled and arranged a debate between two responsible experts with extremely different points of view.

Cellist Rose Gives Recital

By PAT ASLESON
Staff Writer

The "way-out, avant garde" music of today, popular with many college students, is a part of what cellist Leonard Rose called Wednesday an "age of neurotism" in which students live under the threat of the atomic bomb or the draft call. "I see absolutely nothing wrong with groups such as the Beatles, although I personally don't care for them. They satisfy an animal instinct," said Rose. He said he did like jazz, popular ballads and some rock 'n roll. Rose, who presented a recital Wednesday night in the Union Main Lounge, has played the cello for 37 years. He began lessons at the age of 10.

LEONARD ROSE

DISCUSSING the current state of music in America, the musician said, "America does not need to take a back seat to anyone. She has the greatest orchestras in the world. The United States and the Soviet Union have more great talent than any other country. The technical training in America is absolutely marvelous."

The "decentralization of music" — bringing good playing and good instruction to the smaller populations areas — is a trend of which Rose approves wholeheartedly.

"Music students no longer have to go to New York or Los Angeles to study," he said.

String quartets and soloists are in residence at many universities, he pointed out. There are not enough opera houses in the country, however, he said.

"Young singers lack the opportunity to learn their craft in the United States. They have to go to Europe to learn," he explained. "America needs small repertoire companies where the performers get a chance to get in front of the public, the 'firing line'."

"Music should be a part of everyone's well-rounded education. An appreciation of it rounds out a person's life," he said.

ROSE SAID his reply to people who tell him that they liked his concert even though they didn't understand the technical aspects is this, "If we had to depend on musicologists to earn our living, we would starve."

Rose bought the Amati cello, which he plays in concerts, in 1952 after seeing it in London a year before. The instrument, which is worth about $40,000 today, was made by Nicolo Amati in 1662. Rose noted that Stradivari, the famous violin maker was 18 and a pupil of Amati when Rose's cello was made.

Rose said he also owned what he called a "superb" collection of bows, several worth $4,000 to $5,000.

Inquiry Closes With Threats Of Auto Safety Legislation

DES MOINES (AP) — Three days of automobile safety hearings wound up Wednesday with threats by Iowa officials to require manufacturers to disclose some records and install certain safety devices on cars.

An Automobile Manufacturers Association spokesman said the industry has tried through the years to make cars safer and continues to do so. He advised lawmakers to turn their attention to drivers.

State Rep. Vince Steffen, (D-New Hampton) speaker of the House, said, "I for one am excited by the prospects for enacting laws which will insure greater safety on the highways for all Iowans. I think this is a distinct prospect."

He said the legislature should consider requiring auto manufacturers to make public any service bulletins and other dealer communications which call attention to safety defects in automobiles.

Mile Team Could Be Good

A mile relay team to follow in the swift footsteps of past Iowa championship quartets is in the making at the University.

The reason for Coach Francis Cretzmeier's optimism is the presence of three members of the 1965 team which ran 3:08.7, the best-ever time for a Big 10 team.

"Yes, we should be fast again, with only one vacant position to fill and with the veterans perhaps capable of improving their best time," said Cretzmeier.

The experienced quarter milers from the team are Fred Ferree, Al Randolph, and Jon Reimer. Only man missing is the graduated Steve Goldston, now running for the Chicago Track Club.

Fourth spot is a battle among Dale Thompson, who ran lead-off on the Big 10 outdoor title team last spring; Mike Mondane, a sophomore; Dennis Kohl, a letterman and sprinter with some mile relay experience; and Ron Griffith, 1964 high school Class AA state outdoor half mile winner.

Best 1965 time among the three veterans was that of Reimer, who had :45.9 for his anchor 440. Randolph ran :46.7. Both men are fine intermediate hurdlers, too. Ferree had a relay time of :47.4, as last year's record-cracking team averaged :47.2 per man.

A championship and record-breaking tradition runs with Hawkeye mile relay teams. Iowa has won seven indoor and seven outdoor Big 10 titles. The 1963 team won its outdoor race in 3:

11.2, giving Iowa the team title; and won indoors with a record 3:14.7, enabling the Hawks to share the championship with Michigan.

Next May in the Big 10 meet, Iowa will defend its outdoor mile relay title, won on the home track in 1965 with a time of 3:12.1.

The 1966 indoor season will be climaxed by the Big 10, National Collegiate and U.S. Federation championship meets in March, preceded by two dual and one triangular meet during which the Hawkeyes will sharpen their spikes for the title attempts.

Iowa Guards Both Injured

Denny Pauling and Chris Pervall, Iowa's two starting guards, are both suffering from minor ailments, according to Assistant basketball coach Dick Schultz.

Pervall has been bothered by a pulled groin muscle and a hip pointer ever since the Texas Western game. Pauling has chronic knee trouble.

The injuries aren't serious and won't keep either out of the lineup, but they do keep the players from operating at 100 per cent efficiency.

Such injuries are always a problem, Schultz said, because a boy will unconsciously favor the injury which can cause him to be injured elsewhere.

Pervall is bothered most after he has played a half, then is out of action during the half time. He has trouble getting warmed up again in the second half, Schultz said.

Pauling always has a problem with his knees by this time of the year, according to Schultz, because he's a scrambler — always going after loose balls. His knees have been banged up so much that every little bump creates a problem.

Over The Sports Desk— Nagel's Revolution Begins With Attitude Assessments

By STEU BETTERTON
Staff Writer

A quiet little revolution is taking place in the Athletic Department. It could turn out to be very beneficial.

One of the first acts of the new Ray Nagel era in Iowa football has been an attempt to find out who really wants to play football.

This does not sound very revolutionary but it may have revolutionary effects.

The fact that every Iowa football player has had an interview with one of the new coaches seems reasonable.

The fact that a weekly check is being made on grades and attendance at classes seems only a little less natural, but a good idea.

However, it is not so normal that the first action of the Nagel tenure is the difficult job of assessing attitudes.

This attempt becomes significant in the light of the following incident. One Iowa football player left his first interview after telling a coach in effect to get off his back about grades because he had a scholarship which could not be taken away in the Big 10.

A boy who talks to a coach this way is a questionable asset to any team and Nagel wants to find out immediately how many people there are with a negative attitude.

Athletes are selfish in the same proportion as non-athletes. However, they express this selfishness in a different manner.

Today there is an uncomfortably large number of young athletes who have the attitude that they are doing someone a favor by playing for a school, and the school and the coaches should be eternally grateful.

This is unfortunate, but it is a fact. It is also a fact that a team can win with these people. Such athletes can make a team the Big 10 Champion, or NCAA Champion, or All-World Champion.

It would appear that Ray Nagel is not satisfied with winning alone. He is taking a precarious stand. He was hired to be a winning football coach, and little else. If he wins not many people will question the how.

Yet if this column interprets the present action correctly, Nagel is saying he is particular with whom he wins, or loses.

He is to be commended. There is no reason to believe any miracles are in the offing, but the idea of a new approach after a thorough house cleaning is appealing.

Some people might say it is naive to worry about attitudes. Some people might say a coach has to put up with ingratitude.

We take the naive view that when you give an Iowa boy a scholarship worth $1275 a year, and an out of state athlete a scholarship worth $1785, he owes you something. He owes you his respect and a 100 per cent effort, on the field and off.

Last year's coaches did not get a 100 per cent effort from the Hawkeyes. The team did not have a bad attitude, it didn't have any attitude at all.

The indifference of the 1965 team was a frightening thing. They weren't so much stoic about a dismal year as they were stony.

Hopefully this will be changed. Hopefully between now and next fall there will even be some reductions in personnel.

Let the revolution be complete. Let some heads roll to show everyone that anything less than full cooperation and effort will not be tolerated.

Coaches always claim they play their 11 best men, so why is it necessary to have 70 men on the squad? Find out who is serious and send the rest off to some intramural field.

Of course the moment of truth for the Nagel no-nonsense approach comes when a person of talent decides to test the system. This corner hopes the first such occurrence will be met with decisive action.

It could be very good for team morale, and it would definitely show that the rules apply to everyone. This is the only way the system will be successful.

The Iowa football program needs a shot in the arm, and a more enthusiastic, sincere group of players would be a small start in the right direction.

Nagel's fate is going to be decided in recruiting wars yet to come. If he can recruit talented enthusiasm instead of talented indifference and selfishness Iowa will return to respectability.

He faces an extremely difficult task.

Nicklaus, Palmer, Player To Miss San Diego Open

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The San Diego Open, famed for its tight finishes, gets underway Thursday with three of the biggest names in golf conspicuous by their absence.

In fact, officials of the open say they plan to file a protest with the Professional Golfers' Association because Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player will not be here.

The three reportedly are skipping the San Diego Open to tape a television match at Palm Desert. Officials say PGA rules prohibit pros from playing an exhibition match within 200 miles of a PGA tourney within the consent of the sponsor.

But there are plenty of other big guns scheduled to play in the $44,000-added tournament at the Stardust Country Club.

Wes Ellis, the defending champion, will be there as will Billy Casper, Tony Lema, Doug Sanders, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Bobby Nichols, Tommy Aaron, Frank Beard, Jackie Cupit, Red Funseth, Mason Rudolph and Don January.

Allen Case Is Continued Until Tuesday

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — The case of George Halas vs. George Allen as been continued in Circuit Court until next Tuesday.

Owner-coach Halas of the Chicago Bears seeks a temporary injunction to restrain Allen, his defensive coach, from becoming head coach of the Los Angeles Rams.

Allen told the court Wednesday he thought the case should be submitted to National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle, adding:

"HALAS told me there were eight or nine men on the Rams list for head coach and that it was all right for me to talk to Dan Reeves (Rams owner). Then after Halas found out I could get the job his whole attitude changed. I have not yet signed a contract but I have an agreement. All my life I've worked to get a better job, and then you get this — your employer won't release you."

Albert E. Jenner Jr., Allen's attorney, told the court that the allegation that his client was taking along confidential defensive manuals and secret information of the Bears to the Rams was a "red herring."

"Allen doesn't want the defense manuals and the Bears can have them back," he said. "What Allen has in his head he is not going to get out of his head."

In his suit, Halas charged Allen with taking Bear secrets with him to Los Angeles and undermining Bear chances for the National League title in 1966.

HALAS SAID Allen has "special, exceptional and unique knowledge and skill as a coach which cannot be measured in monetary terms and cannot be adequately compensated."

While court procedure was going on, these other reports circulated among members of a staff Halas hopes can help guide the revived Bears to a 1966 NFL title:

1. Chuck Mather, whose Bear contract expires in April, is seeking a top job with the Washington Redskins, St. Louis Cardinals, Pittsburgh Steelers or the new Atlanta Falcons.

2. Abe Gibrón, highly successful as Bear offensive line coach last season, already has rejected a head coaching job offer from the new Miami Dolphins of the rival American Football League.

Halas views the possible departures of Allen and Mather in completely contrasting manner.

ALLEN, a key personnel man who figured prominently in corraling three Bears who won NFL Rookie of the Year honors since 1961, has a $19,000 a year contract extending until 1968.

Allen, who several years ago survived a showdown as defensive coach with Clark Shaughnessy, personally signed tight end Mike Ditka and fullback Ron Bull and persisted in signing of Gale Sayers, pegged a good-run, no block prospect. All three became NFL Rookies of the Year.

Halas figures Allen's talent bloomed in the Bear organization and that he owes the club the benefit of that talent for the duration of his contract.

Monday, Allen signed as Ram head coach at an estimated $40,000 annually in a multi-year pact.

Allen and Mather both came to the Bears in 1958, but Mather never attained Allen's inner-cantanker status.

Cards' Pilot Likes Park

By ROBERT SHAW
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Red Schoendienst stood in St. Louis' new baseball stadium Wednesday and envisioned his Cardinals dashing off to an extra base they wouldn't have taken last season.

"I anticipate that we will do a little more running in this park," he said. "And that should help us."

The occasion was the Cardinal manager's first look at the $8 million oval structure in downtown St. Louis and the installation of the first 49,300 seats that will go into it.

The Cardinals will open the park May 12 against the Atlanta Braves after playing their first 12 home games in their present home, Busch Stadium.

Schoendienst said pitchers and line-drive hitters would like the new stadium because of its uniform dimensions and a roomier right field. It will be 330 feet to the left and right field corners and 414 to center.

Busch Stadium is 352 to left, 425 to center and only 310 to a high screen in right.

Schoendienst said the new stadium is almost tailor-made for the Cardinals.

"We've got a pretty fast ball club and we're mostly line-drive hitters," he said. "We don't have the base stealing speed, but the speed that will get you the extra base on a hit."

"In the old park you had to run like mad to get a double off the right field screen. I expect it will be easier to make it to second in this park."

JUDY THIESEN, head adviser at West Lawn, landed this 50 pound sailfish along with dolphin and barracuda over the Christmas holiday. Miss Thiesen caught the fish near Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

NCAA Keeps 2 Platoon Ball, Minimum Scholastic Standard

By W. B. RAGSDALE Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association killed a recommendation Monday for a return to one-platoon football.

The resolution was offered at the final business session of the NCAA convention by Guido Daug of the University of New Mexico, acting for the Western Athletic Conference.

BEFORE ANY debate, H. C. (Fritz) Crisler of Michigan, a member of the NCAA Football Rules Committee, offered a motion to table the resolution — in effect killing it. This carried by a voice vote.

"I shudder to think what might happen . . . if we got into the business of revising football rules," Crisler said. He argued that this is the business of the Rules Committee which meets this weekend in New Orleans.

EARLIER, the NCAA voted down efforts to delay or change a rule establishing a minimum scholastic standard for college athletes.

The rule requiring a 1.6 average, roughly C minus, in a 4.0 scale, will take effect after Feb. 15. It was adopted last year by the NCAA.

An expected floor fight by the Ivy League failed to materialize, but an Ivy League spokesman said feelings are so strong that the league may bolt the NCAA.

NCAA Executive Director Walter Byers told a news conference that any school not certifying it will abide by the rule before Feb. 15 will be ineligible to compete in NCAA events. The first two events affected would be the NCAA indoor track meet and basketball tournament in March.

One measure of a nation's strength is its production and use of electricity.

Take the top six nations of the world, ranked in terms of the electricity they produce. The U.S.A. heads the list, with more power than the other five combined . . . more than 2½ times as much as the Soviet Union.

By far the greater part of our electric power comes from more than 300 investor-owned electric companies across the country. Companies like Iowa-Illinois. Companies that will go right on staying well ahead of our nation's needs—planning, building, raising the money, all in the traditional American business way.

Every day, these companies are proving that this way of doing things serves you—and your future—best.

Thanks to "plan-ahead" investor ownership, Iowa-Illinois will continue supplying you with all the electricity and gas you need . . . low in price, high in value, always dependable.

State Investigating Ethics In Lawsuits

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa attorney general's office said Wednesday they were investigating possible unethical practices involving attorneys and the filing of lawsuits arising from the Keokuk gas explosion.

Twenty-one persons were killed in the Thanksgiving Eve tragedy at the Keokuk National Guard Armory where members of the Swing Ezy Club were holding a square dance.

A spokesman for the attorney general's office said two agents from the Iowa Bureau of Criminal Investigation were working on the case, but so far had uncovered no evidence of wrongdoing.

Officials expect lawsuits against the state and possibly against the Keokuk Gas Service Co. to run into the millions of dollars, and legal fees to exceed hundreds of thousands of dollars.

In addition to the state agents, Robert H. Walker, a Keokuk attorney, is looking into reports that lawyers had solicited business. Walker is acting as a committee of one for the First Judicial District Bar Association, which consists of Lee County. Meanwhile, Leonard Bryant of

New English Being Tried, Replaces Dick and Jane

A grade school pupil may soon be able to read high school literature if federal studies on the "new" English prove successful.

"It is a fact that children know language better than their textbooks assume they do," John C. Gerber, head of the English Department, said this week.

Gerber said the "new" English programs could speed learning somewhat. The "new" English would eliminate the restricted vocabulary of elementary English texts such as the Dick and Jane series. Instead, learning would follow a more natural pattern of the child's own speech.

The aim of the "new" English is to speed and improve English teaching so that grade school pupils can do high school work and high school students can do college work.

Gerber said books such as the Dick and Jane series might bore children. The Office of Education and other series try to excite children with the English language, he said.

Under the new system, spelling is taught by "sequence sound" method. Pupils are taught to build words around one syllable. Out of the syllable "in," for example, words such as pin, tin and sin can be formed.

Reports on the new English were given at the Modern Language Association's December convention.

Viet Nam Debate Tonight

U.S. involvement in Viet Nam will be debated tonight by Michael O'Hanlon, a protest demonstration leader, and Donald Johnson, former national American Legion Commander.

The debate, will be at 8 p.m. in the Union ballroom.

O'Hanlon, 23, from Berkeley, Calif., will speak against American policy in Viet Nam. Johnson, from West Branch, who has toured military bases in Viet Nam and taken part in demonstrations supporting American involvement in the current American policy.

O'Hanlon is a member of the Berkeley Viet Nam Day Committee which has been working almost a year on projects protesting the Viet Nam war.

He is credited with the idea of stopping troop trains in Berkeley in protest of sending American troops to Viet Nam. The troop train incident received nationwide attention.

O'Hanlon spoke against the Viet Nam war at the Union Board Soapbox Sound-off Jan. 5.

SOCIAL VISIT — WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of Britain's Conservative party, Edward du Cann, and the chairman of the U.S. Republican party, Ray C. Bliss, conferred Wednesday in Bliss' office. GOP sources said the meeting had no political significance.

He said he had begun a speaking tour of universities across the United States to fulfill the "moral obligation" felt by himself and other members of peace groups to try to sway American thinking toward disengagement from Viet Nam.

Photo Group Names Prof As Director

John Schulze, professor of art, was named recently to a four-year term on the board of directors of the national Society for Photographic Education and to a one-year term as membership chairman of the group.

At the society's annual meeting in Chicago Dec. 27-29, Schulze presented a film, "The Elusive Shadow," recently compiled by students in the School of Art under Schulze's supervision.

Three of his students presented slide shows at the Chicago meeting. They were Michael Teres, G. Brooklyn, N.Y.; Victor Landweber, A4, Iowa City; and John Huston, A4, Iowa City.

"The Elusive Shadow," a 20-minute educational film, shows the experiences of a photographer on three assignments — photographing a model, an empty house and a city.

Graduate Student's Paintings Are Displayed in Union Show

Club To Present Songs Of India

A Folklore Club concert to be held at 8 tonight in Shambaugh Auditorium will feature Deepak K. Majumdar, G. Narendrapur, India, singing a selection of songs written by the Indian poet Rabindranath Tagore.

Tickets are 50 cents and may be purchased at the door. The Iowa City in 1916 while on a lecture tour.

Majumdar, who has been greatly influenced by Tagore's works, is working on his Ph.D. in comparative literature in order to study the relationships, if any, between modern western drama and Tagore's plays.

According to Majumdar, no one has tried to understand seriously Tagore's plays in relation to the form and idea of modern drama in the West. He is hoping to obtain a thorough knowledge of Western dramatics and modern dramatic literature to reach such an understanding.

Majumdar earned his M.A. from Jadavpur University, Calcutta, India, in 1959.

A poet himself, he has published 60 poems and considers himself a member of the younger generation of poets in India.

Majumdar's interest in the theater led him to play many roles in the plays of Tagore and German writer Bertolt Brecht.

He taught at Visva Bharti University, Santiniketan, West Bengal, founded by Tagore in 1901, and Jadavpur University before coming to the University last fall on a Fulbright Scholarship.

In addition to studying comparative literature, Majumdar is also taking a course in Writers' Workshop and one in the department of dramatic art.

He has also translated his first play, "Amal Bedana and the Dog," written in 1964, for Translation Workshop.

Majumdar, who will sing alone during a major part of the concert tonight, will be joined in several songs by Sujit K. Dhar, G. Sriniketan, India.

Bhupendra R. Thakar, G. Gujarat, India, will accompany the performers on the bongo drums.

LECTURE CANCELED— Lowell A. Schoer who was scheduled to lecture on "Education in a Meritocracy" at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Union was unable to attend the lecture because of the weather. The time and place will be announced.

Ear Bank Program Hopes To Outlive Its Usefulness

A University ear bank, unlike its highly-successful cousin, the eye bank, hopes to outlive its usefulness one day.

"That day will come when we have learned all we can about nerve deafness," said Dr. Brian F. McCabe, head of the Department of Otolaryngology and Maxillofacial Surgery.

The ear bank seeks donations of temporal bones from deaf persons, provides for the removal of the bones at death and processes them for research study.

The University ear bank, one of 39 in the nation, serves North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Wisconsin and Iowa.

Several "centers" coordinate the acquisition, distribution and medical documentation of the donated ear structures after the death of the donor. Iowa belongs to the Midwestern Center which has headquarters at the University of Chicago.

"The knowledge of the inner ear and causes of deafness are still in the horse and buggy era, while the rest of medical science is in the space age," said Dr. McCabe.

Deafness is the country's single greatest cause of physical impairment, including back ailments and limb defects, he said.

By studying specimens made from the temporal bones of deaf people and relating them to the medical reports, doctors can observe the abnormal conditions accompanying the various kinds of disease, especially nerve deafness.

Between 400 and 500 deaf persons in Iowa have already signed pledges to contribute their temporal bones. Dr. McCabe said the bank hopes to reach 10,000 donors. About 200,000 "significantly" deaf people are in Iowa, he said.

DOCTORS IN THE DEPARTMENT inform their patients of the program and more than 5,000 Kiwanis Club members have also been asked to cooperate with the University in obtaining donations. Dr. McCabe said all ear doctors in the state had also been asked to aid in the project.

"The response to the letters has been good," said Dr. McCabe. "Donors usually tell us that they appreciate this opportunity to help someone else though they can't be helped."

To become a donor, a person must complete a form, have two people sign as witnesses and obtain the signature of his nearest kin. A parent can sign for his child, but at legal age the child will be sent new forms.

Narcotics Crackdown Continues

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An 11th man was taken into custody Wednesday as Columbus police, assisted by Franklin County deputy sheriffs, continued a crackdown on narcotics activities of students or former students.

Only one of the persons arrested thus far is actually registered as a student at Ohio State University. Many of the others, who live in the university area, were reported to be former students or dropouts.

The 11th arrest was that of a 24-year-old Westerville man. He was not identified immediately but authorities said they planned to charge him with possession of narcotics.

Police began their roundup of suspects Monday in raids on a dozen rooming houses and apartments in the university area. Officers said they acted on information supplied by Akron police, and through the efforts of Columbus Dispatch police reporter John Huddy, who acted as a police undercover agent for six weeks.

A quantity of marijuana was confiscated in the series of raids.

Charges have been filed against 10 of those arrested and they appeared in court Wednesday.

Six of the 10 pleaded innocent before Municipal Judge Clifford Rader and were ordered held under bonds pending further action in their cases. These included the only registered university student, Carol Lynn Stecher, 21, of Smithtown, N.Y. Her bond on a charge of illegal possession and illegal sale of narcotics was set at $5,000 and her case continued to Feb. 8.

Recital Scheduled

Mrs. Boyd is presenting the program in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the master of arts degree in music.

Magsig To Give Piano Recital

The recital, which will begin at 8 p.m. in North Music Hall will open with "Toccata in F. Sharp Minor" by J. S. Bach.

Tickets Left For New Play

Iowa Wants Tourists To Increase In '66

How to attract tourists to southeast Iowa was discussed Wednesday at a meeting at the Holiday Inn by 55 representatives from 20 communities.

The representatives, invited by the Iowa Development Commission, decided each community has something to offer the tourist, but something must be done to combine the efforts of all the communities in attracting tourists.

Each community will name a chairman and representative to send to a meeting Feb. 3 at which a program will be set up to attract tourists in 1966.

Tickets for all performances of "Go Where the Ducks Are," are available at the Union east information desk.

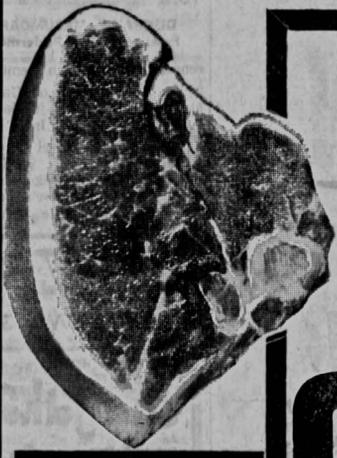

Tickets are free to University students upon presentation of ID cards. General admission is $1.

The play opens at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Studio Theatre, with performances through Saturday.

The play, second in the theatre's current season, deals with a state political campaign and its effects on one of the candidates.
