Negro Representative Files Suit

ATTORNEYS FOR Julian Bond filed suit in U.S. District Court on Thursday to force the Georgia House of Representatives to seat the young Negro as a member.

The suit charged that the 184-12 House vote Monday to deny Bond a seat to which he was elected last June violated several amendments to the U.S. Constitution. These included the freedom of speech, due process, and equal protection clauses.

The House vote to bar Bond resulted from his endorsement last week of a statement by the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), labeling U.S. action in Viet Nam as aggression and encouraging Americans to seek alternatives to the draft. Bond is a SNCC leader.

The suit, in which Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. joined Bond, asked that Bond, 25, be seated temporarily until the case can be heard or that the legislature adjourn its 40-day session which started Monday.

Klan Would Not Bomb Lady Bird

SUGGESTIONS TO BOMB the campaign train of the President's wife and establish a firing squad to kill informers were too frightening for Ku Klux Klansmen, a House investigator said Thursday.

The investigator, Donald Appell, told the House Committee on Un-American Activities that Louis Di Salvo, a small-town barber and gun dealer, originated the idea of blowing up the "Lady Bird Special" campaign train as it swung through Mississippi in the fall of 1964.

The President's wife made her trip through the South without incident.

"He couldn't get anyone to go along with him," Appell said.

LBJ Names Negro To Cabinet

PRESIDENT JOHNSON announced Thursday he is nominating a Negro to the Cabinet, the first in history. Dr. Robert C. Weaver will be named to head the new Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Weaver, 58, has been administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency since 1961.

Johnson announced at the same time that Robert C. Wood, 42, chairman of the Political Science Department at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is being nominated as undersecretary of the new department.

Radio-TV Role In Blackout Told

A GOVERNMENT REPORT mixed praise with rebuke Thursday in a review of radio and television broadcasters performance during the power failure that blacked out the Northeast two months ago.

Little portable transistor radio sets, the report said, "may well have prevented a catastrophe of major proportions" by keeping the public informed on the nature of the emergency.

The appraisal was in a report to the Federal Communications Commission by its National Defense Advisory Committee.

Although defense communications remained intact, the committee said that several events during the blackout raised serious questions about the potential performance of the emergency broadcast system designed to be activated by a president during a national war emergency.

U.S. Position On Viet Nam Argued Thurs.

By BOB BUCK
Staff Writer

The issue of whether the U.S. should remain in Viet Nam was argued for more than an hour Thursday night by a protest demonstration leader, Michael O'Hanlon, and Donald Johnson, former national American Legion Commander, in what was described as a complicated form of debate.

In his opening 15-minute statement, O'Hanlon said the United States should withdraw from Viet Nam "because we are engaged in a war in which we are fighting native people."

The issue, he said, is "tied up" in the violation of a treaty with Britain and Russia in which the U.S. became involved by the landing of U.S. planes in Viet Nam.

THIS ACTION, O'Hanlon said, was followed again in 1957 by American personnel sent to Viet Nam to train and advise their troops.

In his eight-minute cross examination period following O'Hanlon's opening statement, Johnson disagreed with his reasoning and said the issue was one of freedom and slavery.

"Few of you in this room," Johnson said, "would not have denied the right for the U.S. to go into the war of '41."

Citing President Johnson's State of the Union Address Wednesday, in which he said the reason for our position in Viet Nam was our "commitment," O'Hanlon asked, "Do we have the right to tell people what kind of government they want?"

"We must get out to satisfy our consciences," he said.

Speaking in loud, political campaigning tones, Johnson supported the U.S. position as being "America at her very best, in which we are willing to sacrifice for another people."

Supporting the belief in dissent, as long as any course of action was a responsible one, Johnson reminded O'Hanlon that "those who oppose our action forget we are dealing with an international conspiracy — headed by Ho Chi Minh, who was trained as a Communist.

"WE CANNOT ignore this minority" of dissenters, Johnson said, "however, publicity has been given them all out of proportion. The Communist world is delighted with the signs of discontent with the young."

Adding further support for his stand on the issue, Johnson said the South Vietnamese people have requested the help from the U.S. and it could not be denied.

Junior Women's Hours Eliminated By Bowen

Women's hours will be changed to eliminate closing hours for junior women and to extend hours for all women some nights, President Howard R. Bowen announced Tuesday.

Bowen approved recommendations sent to him last week by the Committee on Student Life, CSL. The recommendations on changes in women's closing hours were in connection with a recent Student Senate and Associated Women Students (AWS) survey of coed opinion on hours. A Senate resolution had also recommended the change.

EFFECTIVE IN September, 1966, junior women will have unrestricted hours. Girls under 21 will need parental permission to participate.

BEGINNING NEXT fall, also closing hours for all women will be extended to 2 a.m. on Friday and Saturday nights of Homecoming weekend. Previously hours were extended to 1:30 a.m. on the Saturday night of Homecoming.

Closing hours for all women will be extended to 1 a.m. on the night before classes are suspended for University vacations at Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter. This rule will go into effect at the 1966 Easter vacation.

A TENTATIVE recommendation from CSL that closing hours for all women be extended to 1 a.m. during final examination week will be tried on an experimental basis in May, 1966.

Before the CSL recommendations were approved, hours for all women not seniors or 21 were midnight Sunday through Thursday and 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday.

The new rules should provide no problems for residence hall staffs, Dorothy M. Leslie, assistant director of women's residence halls, said Thursday night. SOMEONE IS on duty at information.

Regents Say Honesty Best At Any Cost

By JON VAN
Editor

DES MOINES — Honesty is the best policy, the Board of Regents reaffirmed Thursday, even if it does prove costly at times. The Board settled some sticky ethical and economic questions by adopting a specific policy covering purchasing practices by its institutions. In its proposed form, the 800-word policy statement was fairly clear. It asked that regent institutions buy quality materials at the best price possible.

There was one section, however, that caused considerable debate. The section required that all successful bids made by suppliers to regent schools be made public, unless it was to the advantage of the school not to reveal it.

SOMETIMES, as Waterloo Regent Melvin Wolf explained, suppliers will sell a university products at a lower rate if the price is kept secret. Wolf said he did not approve of the practice.

Other regents also voiced disapproval.

"I don't see how we can keep the public's business secret from the public," said Mrs. Joseph Rosenfield, Des Moines regent.

William Quarton, Cedar Rapids regent, said Iowa state schools could save money accepting some "secret discounts," but he maintained the percentage of saving would be small.

After much discussion, the board voted to make public all bids accepted by state schools and to enter no secret deals for the sake of lower prices.

It is impossible to say how much the Regent decision will cost the University in increased expenses, according to Elwin T. Jolliffe, University vice president of business and finance, but there will be an increase.

SEVERAL dealers who do business with the University have entered agreements not to sell certain goods below a set price. If they give the University a lower price than they have agreed to, they are faced with many pressures including loss of franchise, Jolliffe told the Iowan.

In the past, some dealers have quoted the University the lowest prices in competitive bidding, but they have stipulated that the bid

West Side High School Costs Will Pass Board's Estimates

Potential cost problems that might cut plans for the West Side High School were discussed by the Iowa City Community School Board in a special meeting Tuesday.

"Figures for the new buildings are still in the estimate stage, but we're bracing ourselves for escalated costs," Robert T. Davis, board secretary, said.

Specific figures can't be wrestled with until bids start coming in," he continued, "but with inflationary prices, we know they'll be over our original estimates."

No basic changes would be made in architects' plans to stay within the $3.8 million bond issue figure, he said.

"We just want to be prepared to trim our sails if we have to so we won't be hit by the shock when bids start coming in."

Valentines For Viet Nam Fly To Soldiers Saturday

About 150 valentine packages for American soldiers in South Viet Nam will be sent airmail from Iowa City Saturday by University Angel Flight members.

The packages will contain paperback books, razor blades, ready-pop popcorn and instant beverage mixes, according to Ellen Erickson, A4, Kanawha, Angel Flight commander.

Called "Valentines for Viet Nam," the project is part of a national program initiated last fall by the Angel Flight national headquarters at the University of Arizona, Tucson.

"About $150 worth of articles have been purchased since the project began here last November," she said.

To raise money for the items, the 40 Angel Flight members sold more than $1,000 in candy to dorm residents and local citizens since early December, she said.

Mary Sue McGimpsey, N2, Davenport, is the project chairman.

Student Senator Receives Hancher Memorial Award

A 21-year-old political science major was the recipient of the Virgil M. Hancher Scholarship Award Thursday night.

David R. Mason, A4, Lime Springs, received the award in a presentation made in the New Honors Building at its official opening. Rhodes Dunlap, professor of English, gave the award in the absence of University Pres. Howard R. Bowen.

The $500 scholarship was the first award of its kind. It was set up in memory of former University President Hancher. Requirements for the scholarship include high scholastic record and campus leadership.

Mason, who is an upper-class adviser for Phi Eta Sigma, is currently serving as senator-at-large on Student Senate. He is planning to attend law school.

Mason is an only child — his father is a rural mail carrier for Lime Springs. He graduated from

AEC Team May Scrap Accelerator

(Ed. Note — To eastern Iowa towns, North Liberty, and Sunbury, are among those being considered for the site of the proposed atomic accelerator.)

WASHINGTON — The Atomic Energy Commission may never build the $348-million atom-smasher for which no site yet has been selected, it was learned Thursday.

An authoritative source outside the AEC reported the commission now was considering three proposals, one of which would pinpoint the site for a less costly device.

What effect this might have on the current competition among 85 communities in 43 states to win the location of the originally proposed, 200-billion electron volt accelerator was not immediately clear.

It was learned that the AEC had called a meeting of some of the nation's leading nuclear physicists for late in January to get their views on the proposals.

Rehder Sees No Problems In Housing

No housing problem is expected by the University next fall, Theodore M. Rehder, head of the dormitory and dining service, said Thursday night.

Rehder, speaking to the community housing subcommittee of the Citizen's Advisory Committee, said:

"If the enrollment increase is the same as last year's, the University will be able to handle everyone without overcrowding. We do not anticipate a housing problem this fall."

In the next 10 years, Rehder said, 2,420 more units for married students and 7,595 more units for single students will be needed.

The completion of Carrie Stanley and Robert Rienow Halls will provide 1,086 units, he said. Rehder said two dormitories that would have 3,300 units were being planned for single students.

An additional 1,550 units for married and single students will be completed by private enterprise before September, 1966.

Rehder said the University hoped to have all temporary married student housing replaced in seven or eight years. He said the first barracks to be replaced would be those by the Fine Arts Center.

Rehder said the University hoped to show a net increase, after the barracks were replaced, of 1,764 units for married students.

Iowa City housing will absorb 50 per cent of the increase in students each year if estimates are correct, he said.

City Group Denies Rezoning Request

The Iowa City Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday night unanimously agreed to deny a rezoning request by L. E. Feswick, 906 S. Summit St., which would change a residentially zoned lot on the corner of Summit and Walnut Streets to a commercially zoned one.

Feswick requested the rezoning to allow a heating and air conditioning company to move into a vacant building he owns on that corner. The building was previously used as a garage and car repair shop.

The decision came after five property owners in that area, led by Forest Evashevski, University athletic director, voiced their opposition. They represented themselves and other neighbors.

Gains Hinted At Long Talk In New Delhi

NEW DELHI (AP) — U.S. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Secretary of State Dean Rusk met with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin Thursday for a long discussion, presumably on the possibility of peace negotiations in Viet Nam. There were hints the talks made some progress.

They met for an hour and 50 minutes, far longer than expected. Asked about the meeting by an Indian government official before leaving for Washington, Humphrey said: "We had a visit we hope was of some help." A high-ranking source said the talks "were not disappointing."

THERE WERE these other developments:

• The Soviet government paper Izvestia said President Johnson's State of the Union message meant "the United States intends to continue war by means of arms to impose its will on the Vietnamese people."

• Moscow radio declared the Soviet Union is taking all measures to ship modern weapons to North Viet Nam as soon as possible to help defeat U.S. forces.

• Alexander N. Shelepin arrived in Peking to a cool reception after talks in Hanoi with North Vietnamese leaders, presumably to try to wean them away from Chinese influence. The No. 2 man in the Kremlin was believed to have agreed to increase Soviet military aid.

• Leonid I. Brezhnev, leader of the Soviet Communist party, began talks in Mongolia, and Moscow sources said his aim was to tighten defenses against Red China. The Chinese in 1964 claimed that Mongolia and 580,000 square miles of Soviet Asia belong to China.

Misunderstandings

FAILURE OF WASHINGTON and Hanoi to come to the conference table over the Vietnamese war stems partially from the failure of both sides to understand each other and lack of a true desire to reach an understanding.

American troops are fighting to preserve the liberty and independence of the people of South Viet Nam. Yet the Viet Cong claim they are fighting for the liberty and independence of the people of Viet Nam.

Our government claims it will stop the bloodshed in Viet Nam as soon as the Viet Cong stops its aggression. But, on the other hand, Hanoi refuses to stop the bloodshed until U. S. troops stop their aggression.

We have offered to negotiate on the basis of restoration of the 1954 and 1962 Geneva treaties interpreted our way. But the Viet Cong will only negotiate on the basis of the Geneva treaties as they interpret them.

Further proof of this misunderstanding of peace offers is the reaction of Hanoi to President Johnson's "peace offensive." The current U. S. peace efforts have sent U. N. Delegate Arthur Goldberg to the Vatican, Paris and London; roving ambassador Averell Harriman to Poland, Yugoslavia, India, Iran and Egypt; Assistant Secretary of State G. Mennen Williams to African capitals; McGeorge Bundy to Canada; and Vice President Humphrey to Japan, the Philippines, Taiwan and Korea.

Goldberg said all these "peace ambassadors" carried the message that the U. S. is ready to negotiate without any prior conditions whatsoever or on the basis of the Geneva agreements of 1954 and 1962. Goldberg presented our stand and desire for a peaceful settlement in the war to U. N. Secretary-General U Thant. The U. S. called on all organs of the U. N. and all the countries in the world to help get the war to the peace table.

All U. S. moves, from the pause in North Viet Nam bombing raids to the diplomatic efforts, are aimed at giving the Communists one more chance to make a choice; open negotiations or get set for destruction.

But Hanoi rejected the raids letup as a peace lever. They denounced the U. S. unconditional discussions proposal as a plot to negotiate from a position of strength and an attempt to force acceptance of U. S. terms on the Vietnamese people.

This reaffirms Hanoi's stand that settlement of the conflict must be on their terms. They charge U. S. peace moves are deceptive and a trick to hide the American military buildup in South Viet Nam.

To quote the editorial in the latest issue of Saturday Evening Post, "As long as each side takes negotiations to mean the enemy must confess his sins, there will probably be no peace — for years."

Either each side must make a few concessions soon or a third party (possibly the U. N.) should mediate an agreement between the two fighting nations.

Goldberg's appeal for help from the U. N. is a step in the right direction. Now Hanoi must agree to come to the conference table if the North Viet Nam government really wants peace. However, even when Washington and Hanoi reach an agreement to begin negotiations, American military leaders advise it would take a year or two to bring complete cease-fire.

Methods of reducing federal control outlined

By JULIAN GARRETT

For Young Americans for Freedom

When anyone has the audacity to criticize whatever happens to be the current leftist-sponsored welfare program, he soon runs into the argument that is supposed to put him in his place once and for all. He is told that he is always against things and never for anything. He is asked what he would do for the group that the program is supposed to help, "let them starve?" This apparently removes any responsibility from our leftist friends to even consider the weaknesses and problems involved in their proposal.

Many of those who favor more and more welfare programs insist they too are concerned about the growth of the federal bureaucracy and the resulting loss of individual freedom. They are merely accepting the lesser of two evils. Yet, it would seem clear that if the liberty we all profess to believe in is to be preserved, something must be done to reduce the amount of federal control that now exists over our society.

PROFESSOR Milton Friedman, who teaches economics at the University of Chicago, has come up with an interesting idea in this regard. This is his suggestion of what he calls a negative income tax. Under this concept families making under say, $3,000, would be granted a subsidy to bring them up to that level. It would seem that to be eligible for this payment, a person, if physically able, should have a full time job at whatever wage level he can obtain in private industry.

THIS WOULD ENABLE us to avoid subsidizing, and thus avoid making a permanent fixture out of the man who just does not feel like working. Also this would avoid governmental make-work projects, which have little or no economic value and increase governmental control and opportunities for corruption. Jobs should be plentiful at an appropriate wage level.

The strong point of this simple plan is that it would provide for the underprivileged while cutting down on governmental control over our society. It would also allow the recipients a great deal of free choice as to how the additional income might be spent.

Probably the biggest danger in suggesting this plan is that the left might just add it onto the present welfare programs. To prevent this it should be enacted only as a part of a package wherein certain of our present welfare programs are repealed. As Prof. Friedman has pointed out, this plan "makes sense only as a substitute for the present program, not as another rag in the bag."

THE OBVIOUS starting place in regard to the program outlined here would seem to be in connection with the poverty program. There seems to be much evidence that this program has been a failure. If the money now being spent on this program could be given directly to those in need rather than being used to pay salaries of a host of administrators, it would probably do a lot more good.

There are other areas where similar principles to those outlined here could be used. Dr. John Howard, President of Rockford College, has suggested that a tax credit, which means a reduction in the amount of tax paid, might be used to encourage taxpayers to give to the college of their choice.

This would be done by allowing a tax credit, up to say $100, equal to the amount that taxpayer had contributed to the college or university of his choice. The basic difference between this and the present programs is that the individual would choose the school he wanted to support and there would be no government control.

HERE AGAIN this program should be acceptable to anyone whose real aim is to aid education and not to increase governmental, especially Federal Governmental, control over education.

However, when this plan was suggested to Dr. Keppe, U. S. commissioner of education, he said it was wholly unacceptable because, "we could not accomplish our social objectives." If the object of federal aid to education is to accomplish "social objectives" (have not some people maintained that federal aid does not mean federal control?) instead of merely providing additional funds for education, then I suppose the suggestion made by Dr. Howard would be wholly unacceptable. However, I urge all Americans concerned with helping the underprivileged and our educational institutions, and reducing the level of federal control over our society, to seriously consider the suggestions made here.

Campus idealism a threat

Misdirected campus idealism threatens "a real disservice to the national interest" in a little noted area, Lawrence A. Kimpton, of Chicago, said recently.

"The idea seems to be abroad on the campuses that personal challenge and the opportunity to make a meaningful contribution to society are nowhere to be found within a corporation," Kimpton said. "In my judgement this is both wrong and highly inimical to the best interests of the very society our young people quite commendably wish to serve."

A vice president of Standard Oil Company and former Chancellor of the University of Chicago, he spoke at Rockhurst College.

"However spooky some of the manifestations of the present campus unrest may look," Kimpton said, "they are at least higher up the intellectual ladder than devouring uncooked goldfish . . . and they bespeak a more thoughtful generation. To take the beatnik as truly representative may be to mistake a few saplings for the forest."

Dorm Academic Unit Taking Applications

Applications are now being accepted for a special Academic Unit to be opened in Carrier Stanley Hall next fall.

"The special Academic Unit will be for girls who want to gain the most from their education through living in an intellectually stimulating atmosphere in addition to their regular academic life," Mrs. Carol A. Rickey, assistant counselor of women, said this week.

THE ACADEMIC UNIT hopes to provide special student activities, including faculty speakers, discussions and social events.

Each girl who is accepted for the unit will be expected to participate in the unit government and in the activities sponsored, Mrs. Rickey said.

We want to provide an atmosphere where the informal exchange of ideas among students and between the students and faculty members will allow the girls to use the full facilities of the University," she said.

EACH GIRL must have a minimum grade point average of 2.5 and be in good standing with the University. Applicants will be interviewed by personnel from the Office of Student Affairs.

If the unit is successful next year, said Mrs. Rickey, it might be expanded to include freshmen and additional floors.

Applications for the Academic must be kept secret, lest they get into trouble. Under the newly-adopted regent policy, the practice will stop.

There are other ways of getting around these so-called "fair trade" agreements between dealers and manufacturers, officials told the regents. One firm, for example, could sell the University one item at the agreed price, and then "sell" another item at no cost. This makes his overall bid lower without undercutting prices on items covered by fair trade agreements.

Although the new regent policy will not cover the "no cost" type of discount, dealers may not give them as freely because of publicity and pressure, officials said. X-ray film, laboratory and glass supplies were cited as some items especially affected by the new policy.

During another part of Thursday's regent meeting, Pres. Howard R. Bowen told the policy committee he would ask for changes in admission requirements for four colleges within the University at today's meeting.

Bowen will ask for higher scholastic requirements for students entering the Colleges of Engineering and Business Administration. He said he planned to ask for higher grade requirements yearly as the University facilities become more crowded. The proposed changes would first go into effect in fall of 1967.

Approval of minor changes in the existing requirements for entrance in the Colleges of Dentistry and Medicine will also be asked today.

Discussion of major changes in the admission requirements for the College of Liberal Arts was tabled for this month's meeting and will be considered later this year.

'Virginia Woolf' Play Tryouts Set To Begin Sunday

Tryouts for "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Sunday, at the University Theatre, from 2 to 5 p.m. Monday and 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday in B 11, Studio Theatre, Old Armory.

All University students, both graduate and undergraduate, may try out for parts.

Those planning to try out should sign up for a specific time during the sessions listed. The sign-up sheet is on the bulletin board in the hall of the Studio Theatre.

The fourth play in the University Theatre's current season, "Virginia Woolf" was written by Edward Albee and proved to be one of the most controversial of the recent Broadway productions.

Walter Kerr, New York Herald-Tribune drama critic, called it "a brilliant piece of writing, with a sizeable hole in its head. It need not be liked, but it must be seen."

The play opens March 22 at the University Theatre, running through March 31 with no Sunday performances.

House Opening Continues Today

Open house activities will continue today at the new Honors Center, 303 N. Capitol Street, just north of the Chemistry Building.

The center for the College of Liberal Arts Honors Program was officially opened Thursday. Today it will again be open to visitors from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. and from 7 to 10 p.m.

Re-modeling work was begun on the 11-room house early this semester. The house was previously occupied by the Bureau of Labor and Management.

Unit, available from the counselors offices at Burge, Currier and Kate Daum or the Office of Student Affairs, must be returned to the Office of Student Affairs by Feb. 15.

Civic Leader Mum About Housing Plan

The chairman of the Downtown Business and Professional Men's Association had no comment Thursday on the abandonment of a plan to re-survey substandard housing in Iowa City.

The chairman, Frank Vogel, said he had not heard that the Iowa City council had given up on the plan and therefore had no comment to make.

The council considered re-surveying the substandard, or "N4," housing in an effort to prove to the owners it would not be feasible to rehabilitate the old buildings. The idea was given up Wednesday when the council found out no federal funds would be available for the project.

The first survey was made to determine the general condition of buildings and to see if a sizeable enough number of substandard buildings existed to qualify for an urban renewal project under state law.

Nicholas V. Trkla, project coordinator here for Barton-Ashman Associates of Chicago, Iowa City's urban planning consultants, said at an informal council meeting Wednesday that the survey was purposely geared down when the buildings were inspected and the benefit of the doubt was given to the owners on borderline cases.

Only about 19 of the 100 buildings found to be substandard could be rehabilitated sufficiently to be left out of removal plans, he said.

The re-survey was proposed by former Mayor Richard W. Burger when it was thought federal funds could be obtained for a re-survey. The re-survey would have cost an estimated $100,000.

Senate's Lack Of Influence On Campus Policy Rapped

The Student Senate might as well disband if ways cannot be found to give it real influence on University policy, Steve Teichner, a student senator, said Thursday.

The comment by Teichner, A3, Winchester, Mass., came during a panel discussion on the merits of Senate at a meeting of the Senate Freshman Intern Program. Other panel members were Tom Hanson, A3, Jefferson, also a senator, and Bill Parisi, A4, Chicago Heights, Ill., Senate president.

STUDENTS WILL have more voice in University policy if recommendations of a committee on student government reorganization are followed, Parisi, chairman of the committee, said. He said these recommendations would probably be announced Wednesday.

The "almost tragic inability" of Student Senate to communicate with other student groups was mentioned by Hanson.

To improve communication within the Senate, Hanson suggested that Senate meetings be less formal and that "polarization" be ended.

"If you want to work for the good of the students, it's not a good idea to rush anything," he said.

Charlene A. Ressler, house manager at Burge Hall, agreed that the new rules would probably bring no problems in implementation.

"I'm sure there will be times when it will be convenient for the girls to use these privileges," she said, adding that she was confident that the girls would use the hours privileges wisely.

Susan M. Curtis, A3, Cherokee, chairman of Associated Women Students Central Judiciary Board, said she was very happy with President Bowen's action.

The re-survey was proposed by former Mayor Richard W. Burger when it was thought federal funds could be obtained for a re-survey. The re-survey would have cost an estimated $100,000.

Pantomimes, New Dances To Highlight 'Discovery V'

A dance performed to a Gregorian chant, one performed to television commercials and an assortment of pantomimes are among the features to be presented at Discovery V, the mid-winter dance concert of the University Dance Theatre.

The concert will be at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday in Macbride Auditorium.

"The dancer's world is a place of continual discovery," said Marcia Thayer, director of the Dance Theatre and instructor in physical education, in explaining the concert's name. "Also, this is the fifth year we have had such a program."

Discovery V was choreographed and will be performed by members of Dance Theatre. The 40 members designed and made their own costumes and have staged their own dances.

This will be the first concert of the group on campus this year, although they have performed throughout the state.

Mrs. Thayer said Thursday she had been surprised and pleased by the reception given her modern dancers in Iowa.

"We often go where people haven't seen much dancing before," she said. "People have generally been very appreciative and very interested."

Evie Stanske, a University food service helper, created nine pantomimes for the concert. Some, such as The Laundromat, and In The Park, are performed by groups of Dance Theatre members under Miss Stanske's direction.

Campus Political Chairmen Assess President's Policies

SHEP STRICKEN —

GOTHAM CITY — Old Shep was reported in good condition here Thursday night after being admitted to the Gotham City Dog Hospital with howling fits.

Old Shep was reportedly in the city guarding the Maldavian Mastodon, a bejeweled elephant stuffed with valuable postage stamps, which is being displayed at the Gotham City fair grounds by the Maldavian Chamber of Commerce.

Old Shep had stopped off at Gotham City with his trainer Irving Fenster on their way back to Twin Hooks, Ark. They had been vacationing in Downtrodend, Mass.

Illini Lead Big 10 Statistics; Iowa Has Top Defense

CHICAGO (AP) — Surprising Illinois is a front runner in the Big Ten basketball race, and statistics released Thursday showed why.

Illinois, 3-0, paces the conference in offensive average at 89.3 points a game, has the best field goal accuracy at 49.6 per cent and boasts two shooters among the league's top 10 individual scorers.

The scoring leader, however, is All-America Cazzie Russell of defending champion Michigan, 2-0, with a 29.5-point average.

Close behind is the defending scoring champion, Dave Schellhase of Purdue 0-2, with 28.0.

3 Iowa Teams Face Gophers On Saturday

It's Hawkeye day at the University of Minnesota Saturday as University of Iowa gymnastic, swimming and wrestling teams meet the Gophers.

These contests comprise half of the Saturday-through-Monday sports events for the Iowans.

Only home events are dual fencing meets Saturday at 11:30 a.m. with the fencing clubs of Cornell college and Ames. The contests with the clubs were added to the Iowa schedule last week. The formal intercollegiate schedule does not open until early February.

Iowa's basketball team goes to Bloomington for a Monday evening game with Indiana, the last road game of the first semester. Home games with Michigan State Jan. 22 and Ohio State Jan. 24 are other contests of the first semester.

Hawkeye wrestlers now have a 1-2 record, following last week's losses to Michigan and Toledo. The gymnasts were a close second to Michigan in a triangular meet and swimmers last Saturday were sixth in an 8-team field in the Big Ten relays at Madison.

In basketball, the Hawkeyes now have a season's record of nine wins and two losses. Iowa whipped Northwestern Monday, 70-58, and evened the Big Ten record at 1-1. Indiana has 4-7 overall and 0-2 in the conference after losing to Illinois and Michigan. The Hoosiers play at Minnesota Saturday, while Iowa is idle.

Coaches' Conference Gives Johnson Award

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Football Coaches Association presented its annual Outstanding American Citizenship Award to President Johnson Thursday in the White House Cabinet room and Johnson called it "a very special honor."

"You are developing the leaders today on the athletic field who will be the leaders of tomorrow in the world," the President said in an exchange of compliments.

He said that if all the nations conducted their affairs with "the same fair play the game of football stands for, peace in the world would have been secured long ago."

The president of the coaches organization, Abe Martin of Texas Christian University presented the award to Johnson for "the highest of distinction in service to others" and for outstanding service in the field of public service. He said that with Johnson in the White House "we look ahead, secure in the knowledge that freedom's course will prosper."

Iowa Athletic Director Forest Evashevski and assistant football coach Ted Lawrence are presently attending the coaches meeting.

IOWA'S ATHLETIC DIRECTOR, Forest Evashevski, hard at work on plans to expand the University's recreational facilities, carefully weighs the factors involved. Evashevski implied that present space for recreation is inadequate.

Evy Hopes To Expand Recreation Facilities

By ED SKORUPA
Staff Writer

Iowa Athletic Director Forest Evashevski explained last week the need to expand recreational facilities for the University's rapidly growing student body.

Evashevski, in an interview with the Daily Iowan, asserted he was not satisfied with what was being done. He insisted that four times the space now available for recreational and athletic purposes was urgently needed.

ACCORDING TO Evashevski, the facilities in the presently overcrowded fieldhouse and adjacent recreational areas have become something of a "three-pronged," multi-purpose affair. The time and space allotted to three separate programs — physical education, intercollegiate athletics, and intramural activities — has become insufficient to accommodate the University's needs, he said.

Evashevski said that the big stumbling block, as usual is money.

The current $650,000 renovation of the field house, in its sixth phase, was financed through the Athletic Department's gate receipts, Evashevski said.

"We receive no state funds," Evashevski explained. "The athletic program is self-supporting."

Iowa has the lowest activity fee, a nominal sum of $10 a student, of any university in the Big 10," he added.

Evashevski expressed pride in the many improvements already completed. He singled out the modernization of the swimming pool, and the expansion of its dressing room facilities for both swim personnel and women students. He described it as one of the best pools in the United States.

ALSO DRAWING praise from

Evashevski was the soon-to-be completed physical therapy room. When finished, this injury treatment complex will be the finest such field house facility in the country, he said.

It will be adjoined, by the Varsity Room, a recently completed letterman's study lounge.

According to Evashevski, a special committee has been appointed to study the needs of the overall recreational situation and to make recommendations.

ONE PLAN, he said, would be to erect complete new gymnasias with facilities available for handball and squash. Evashevski said he would like to see a program of co-educational recreation established.

Another proposal, Evashevski said, would be to construct another swimming pool and above it skating rink for use by the students. Such facilities, he said, would be housed in the proposed multi-purpose outdoor sports building, which would be attached to the south end of the present field house.

This recreational complex would have to be sanctioned by the Board of Control and coordinated with overall University expansion, Evashevski said.

Basically the only thing that they're doing different this year is winning. Their team is basically similar to last year's in regard to personnel, although they have had one favorable addition in the form of Matthew Aitch, a 6-7 junior college transfer. But it is obvious that new coach John Benington has also had something to do with the Spartans' success.

BENINGTON, WHO coached at the University of St. Louis before coming to Michigan State this year, is a familiar face to Iowa coach Ralph Miller. Their teams played against each other in the rugged Missouri Valley conference when Miller was coaching Wichita and Benington was coaching St. Louis.

Benington, like Miller, specializes in teaching his team defense, and the value of his teaching is certainly showing up this season with the Spartans. Michigan State currently has a defensive average of 68.3 points a game overall and a two-game average of 71.5 in the Big 10 — second best to only Iowa, which currently leads the conference with a 63.5 defensive average for two games.

Michigan State will get a chance to prove itself as a contender this Saturday when they take on Ohio State in a televised game from East Lansing, Mich. The game will start at 3 p.m. (CST) and will be carried over WMT-TV Channel 2 in Cedar Rapids.

INCIDENTALLY, while we're speaking of televised basketball games, the Iowa-Indiana game will be televised live from Bloomington, Ind., Monday night starting at 6:30 p.m. The telecast will be carried by WMT-TV, Cedar Rapids.

Around The Big 10 —Broken Wrist Not Enough To Stop Gopher's Hudson

By RON BLISS
Asst. Sports Editor

Minnesota's talented Lou Hudson — despite a broken wrist — may attempt to play against Indiana Saturday when Minnesota takes on the Hoosiers in Minneapolis.

Hudson, who fractured his right wrist in a game against Creighton Dec. 18, reportedly has been practicing for the past two weeks with a protective cast on his wrist and feels that he is ready to go.

The decision as to whether or not he will play, however, will be left up to Gopher coach John Kundla.

THOUGH KUNDLA admits that Hudson has been working hard in practice, he may hold the 6-5 all-American forward back for several reasons.

Among the questions that Kundla is faced with are: "Can Hudson regain the sharp physical condition he displayed before breaking a wrist bone Dec. 18? Is there danger of re-injuring the wrist if he plays too soon? How will the cast affect his shooting? How will the cast affect his defense? Will the game officials permit him to play with a cast on?"

The answer to this last question was answered a week ago by the officials at the Michigan State-Minnesota game in East Lansing, Mich. At that time they ruled that Hudson's sponge and rubber cast would be acceptable in event he should be called upon to play. That night, however, Kundla chose not to play Hudson as a rampaging Michigan State team swamped the Gophers 85-65.

The other questions remain unanswered, however; but if Kundla should decide that Hudson is ready to play Saturday the answers may come quickly.

THE COACH seems optimistic about Hudson's HUDSON spirit and says that in practice Hudson has been "working twice as hard as anyone else on the squad." But still he is undecided as to whether or not to play him.

"However," Kundla says, "There is one thing certain. Lou's presence would give us a big psychological lift and would ease the manpower shortage that killed us in the second half at Michigan State."

Like Iowa's game with Northwestern last week, Minnesota's game Saturday night against Indiana will be a must game for them if they are to have any Big 10 title hopes.

They are presently 0-1 in the Big 10 after their loss to Michigan State and need a victory over Indiana desperately to stay in the title race. Indiana is 0-2 in the conference.

AN ADDED NOTE on Hudson: Hudson is due to get his cast off in about two weeks and therefore, unless he reinjures his wrist, should be able to play against Iowa when the Gophers invade the Field House Feb. 15.

THE MICHIGAN STATE SPARTANS seem to be the team to watch this season in the Big 10 basketball race. They have already shown surprising strength with Big 10 victories over Minnesota and Purdue and are likely to improve some more yet.

The Spartans, who had a 5-18 overall record last season and finished 1-13 in the Big 10 last year for the 10th place, have turned an almost complete reversal and are presently tied with Michigan for second place in the conference. They also have a fine 9-3 overall record.

Basically the only thing that they're doing different this year is winning. Their team is basically similar to last year's in regard to personnel, although they have had one favorable addition in the form of Matthew Aitch, a 6-7 junior college transfer. But it is obvious that new coach John Benington has also had something to do with the Spartans' success.

South. Illinois Holds Lead In Small College Cage Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Southern Illinois Salukis, leaders in the Associated Press small-college basketball poll, go after bigger game this weekend when they face major opponents Arizona State and Arizona.

The Salukis, whose 8-1 record includes this week's conquest of Kentucky Wesleyan, take on Arizona State Friday and Arizona Saturday. Their only setback came at the hands of Iowa on Dec. 6.

the latest balloting by a special panel of 13 regional experts, Southern Illinois collected eight votes for first place and 111 points on a basis of 10 points for a first place vote, 9 for second, etc. The voting was based on records through last Saturday.

Grambling moved up one place to second, placing Evansville, which slipped to the No. 5 spot. Grambling has a 12-1 mark. Evansville lost its fourth game last week, 83-73 to Valparaiso.

Akron, 9-0, the only unbeaten team among the top 10, climbed two places to third after beating Hiram and Marietta. North Dakota, 12-2 including three victories in last week's action, advanced from sixth to fourth.

Youngstown, Central State of Ohio, Northern Michigan, Valparaiso, and Mt. St. Mary's complete the rankings. Valparaiso is the only new team in the top 10.

Arkansas State, eighth in last week's ratings, dropped out of the ratings after losing to Abilene Christian.

The Top Ten, with season's records through games of last Saturday and total points:

1. Southern Ill. (7-1) 111

2. Grambling (12-1) 86

3. Akron (9-0) 63

4. North Dakota (12-2) 61

Iowa City Jaycees To Honor Best Boss And Young Man

The Iowa City Junior Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual award banquet honoring the outstanding young man and boss of the year Tuesday.

The banquet will be at 7 p.m. at the Curt Yocom Restaurant. A social hour will begin at 6 p.m.

Donald E. Johnson, past national Commander of the American Legion, will be the main speaker at the banquet. His topic is to be "Young America."

The annual distinguished service awards are given to the young man and boss who have contributed the most to the Jaycees and have excelled in serv-
