

Viet War Claims 351 Aircraft

THE UNITED STATES lost 351 warplanes and helicopters in the Viet Nam war last year and "we anticipate that 1966 losses will be somewhat higher," Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said today.

McNamara's forecast to Congress of higher air losses is based on anticipation of heavier air operations in South Viet Nam and, although he didn't say so, possible resumption of the strikes against North Viet Nam.

"Although the aircraft loss rate continues low," McNamara said, "the rapidly increasing number of sorties is resulting in larger total losses."

Exile Bands Raiding Cuba Again

MILITANT EXILE BANDS say they are beginning a new phase in their anti-Castro campaign; they have resumed U.S.-forbidden raids on Cuba and are now coordinating their efforts.

"If we can't unite, we'll coordinate," said Ernesto Freyre of the Cuban Exile Representation (RECE), one of three groups participating in the last announced hit-and-run attack against Cuba. Until the U.S. Government halted them, such raids occurred frequently.

Representatives of rival anti-Castro organizations meet weekly in secret plotting chambers in the "New Havana" section of West Flagler Street in Miami.

Test Measures Driver Endurance

STAMINA OF TEST DRIVERS completing a 1,400-mile, 24-hour endurance run has surprised Ohio State University researchers conducting safety experiments.

Volunteer participants in the driving fatigue study did much better than expected, researchers reported.

Of seven subjects taking part in the exploratory project, only two were unable to finish the prescribed task of driving 24 consecutive hours at 70 miles an hour. The two failing to complete the test drove for about 21 hours each before they asked, or were told, to stop.

NEA Head Knocks Rival Union

RICHARD BATCHELDER, president of the National Education Association (NEA), said Thursday the rival American Federation of Teachers (AFT) is a front for organized labor, more interested in unionism than children.

Batchelder told the Labor Relations Council of Chambers of Commerce in a speech:

"The drive on the school system is a carefully planned and well-financed program by the AFL-CIO and merely a stepping stone to the organization of millions of white collar workers in government, our new space industries, and business."

"Poppycock," said Carl Megel, former president of the federation and now the union's Washington representative, in an interview.

"This is the most ridiculous thing they've come up with yet. This is purely a membership gimmick — if teachers join the AFT, they won't join the NEA, and the NEA is running scared."

New Indian Leader To Visit U.S.

INDIA'S NEW LEADER, Indira Gandhi, announced Thursday she has accepted an invitation from President Johnson to visit the United States.

She could not say when she would make the trip.

Johnson sent his good wishes to Mrs. Gandhi, pledged "friendship and cooperation," and asked her to visit him soon in Washington for talks "on the momentous problems we both face."

Mrs. Gandhi's predecessor, the late Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri, had been scheduled to visit the United States Feb. 1. He died Jan. 11 in Tashkent, Soviet central Asia, after talks with President Ayub Khan of Pakistan.

President Johnson said he would be "delighted" if Mrs. Gandhi could make the visit Feb. 1, but acknowledged her pressing duties might make this difficult.

Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin also sent congratulations on her selection as India's new prime minister, and said his country is "deeply sympathetic to her problems."

Prof Hits 'Meritocracy' In Union Last Lecture

By BARB JOHNSON Staff Writer

Meritocracy, a social structure based on intelligence combined with effort, will only lead to a Brave New World without the test tubes, said Lowell Schoer, associate professor of education, Thursday night at the Union.

The Lecture, the second in Union Board's Last Lecture series, illustrated how an educational system based solely on intelligence, rather than individual interests, is inconsistent with democracy.

An educational system that trains students to occupy what intelligence tests show to be their position in society stifles individuality, Schoer said.

"If a student with high intelligence wants to run a gas station pump, maybe we should let him," Schoer said.

A rise of interest in talent and the increasing complexity of society, continued Schoer, has led to the more efficient use of intelligence in our society.

Using students to catch up with Russia is not in the best interests of those students and causes too great a drain on available talent, Schoer said.

A system that develops a person only so much as is good for the society does not take into consideration that talent comes in many forms and is not concentrated in just one area, he said.

Viet Nam Peace Hope Dim After U.S., Hanoi Remarks

Hanoi Blocks Peace Talks, LBJ Charges

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — President Johnson accused North Viet Nam of blocking peace talks and said Thursday "if the aggressors are ready for peace, let them come to the meeting place and we will meet them there."

The door of peace must be open to all who wish to avoid the scourge of war, Johnson said, "but the door of aggression must be closed and bolted if man himself is to survive."

Johnson joined former President Harry S. Truman at a ceremony establishing the Truman Center for the Advancement of Peace. The multimillion-dollar center, financed privately, is to be erected on the campus of Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

"I THINK every schoolboy knows that peace is not unilateral — it takes more than one to sign an agreement," Johnson said somberly. "It seems clear to all that what is holding up peace in the world today is not the United States of America."

"What is holding back the peace is the mistaken view on the part of the aggressors that we are going to give up our principles, that we may yield to pressure or abandon our allies, or finally get tired and get out."

"ON THE DAY that others decide to substitute reason for terror, when they will use the pen instead of the hand grenade, when they will replace rational logic for inflammatory invective, then on that very day, the journey toward peace can really begin."

Truman had prepared a response, but did not deliver it. The former president, who will be 82 in May, was obviously tired after sitting through more than 90 minutes of speeches.

A part of his talk was read by David Noyes, a longtime associate.

"It is all too obvious," Truman had written, "that if we do not abolish war on this earth, then surely, one day, war will abolish us from the earth."

Johnson touched, for the first time, on the moral problems of birth control.

"We will increase our efforts in the great field of human population. The hungry world cannot be fed until and unless the growth of its resources and the growth of its population come into balance," he said.

War Budget May Increase $12.7 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara asked Congress for another $12.7 billion in spending authority Thursday and said some of it may be used for a "massive application of fire-power" in Viet Nam.

The defense chief said the extra money backing is needed between now and June 30 for beefing up U.S. activity in the Viet Nam war and augmenting military strength elsewhere.

"WE HAVE assumed, for budgeting purposes, that combat operations will continue through the end of June 1967," he said.

In the public version of a statement he presented at a closed Senate committee session on the supplemental money request, McNamara included these points:

1. Creation of another Marine division as part of the general 112,843-man increase in strength for all of the four services.

2. A boost in buying of ammunition to provide "a massive application of firepower to enhance the effectiveness of our forces and reduce casualties."

3. Preparation for deploying "even more forces if the Communists choose to expand their operations in South Viet Nam."

IN THE TEXT, McNamara gave no specifics on how or when fighting might intensify in Viet Nam.

But after a morning session of the Senate Armed Services Committee and an appropriations subcommittee, Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) chairman of the Armed Services Committee, told newsmen that McNamara "implied that it would not be too long before fighting resumed if the President's peace offensive fails."

SNCC Statement Defends Georgia's Rep. Julian Bond

The Georgia legislature's refusal to seat elected representative Julian Bond curtails his right to freedom of speech, the Friends of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC), said in a statement Thursday.

The statement maintains that Bond was denied his seat "as a result of his endorsement of SNCC's statement denouncing U.S. policy in Viet Nam, and his urging the federal government to allow people alternatives to the draft."

Since the only charge levied against Bond was that he chose to speak his mind, the statement said, the legislature's decision means a state legislator does not have the right of free speech.

"If those who make the laws cannot question the laws, who can?" the statement concluded.

Larry R. Wright, A4, Chicago, is SNCC president.

Witkowski's Day In Court Still Not Set

No arraignment date had been set by Thursday for Stanley R. Witkowski, G. Rockford, Ill., who was indicted Wednesday in Des Moines by a federal grand jury for burning his draft card.

U.S. attorney's officials in Des Moines and Witkowski's attorney are scheduled to confer on a date for Witkowski to appear in court. No bond was set for Witkowski because he was represented by counsel at the time of his grand jury indictment.

WITKOWSKI, an anthropology major, is accused of burning his draft card last Oct. 22. The maximum penalty he could receive would be five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Thursday Witkowski did not wish to change the statement he made when he burned his draft card.

He said at that time, "This action has nothing to do with Viet Nam. I prefer not to take a stand on that issue. I don't believe a draft card has anything to do with patriotism or love of country."

"These are hard-to-define terms and are within a person if anywhere. I don't believe a piece of paper is equivalent to five years of a man's life. This punishment is absurdly out of proportion to the offense."

"TO SUM UP, I believe Congress has a propensity for doing silly things. Making the burning of a piece of paper punishable by five years imprisonment is one of the silliest."

"An appropriate punishment might be a ten dollar fine to cover the cost of replacing the card. Lastly, I believe the punishment violates Amendment Eight of the U.S. Constitution which forbids cruel and unusual punishment."

Diane Oliver, G. Charlotte, N.C., public relations chairman for the Committee to Defend Iowa Students, said the committee has an urgent need for financial aid.

Student Help Aids Community Sets

By SHARON ROSEBERRY Staff Writer

The Student Service Corps is a channeling agent that helps those who help others help themselves.

The corps was organized two years ago for campus groups interested in community projects. It is sponsored by the Student Senate City Relations Commission.

Dick Mundy, A4, Manchester, head of the commission, said this week that one of the corps' problems was that other groups weren't aware of it.

BESIDES coordinating service projects, the corps finds projects for groups and persons interested in community work, he said.

The corps' chairman, Cheryl Bukoff, said the corps concentrated its work on Iowa City nursing homes, the Veterans Administration Hospital, the Johnson County Home and the Johnson County Welfare Department. Each of the corps' four officers is in charge of one area.

Miss Bukoff, A3, Coon Rapids, said the corps gave students a chance to work with others and do something unselfish.

"When you come to a large university you can become very much isolated and self-centered," she said.

ANYONE WHO wants to be a member of the corps can contact any of its four officers. The corps also plans to have a booth at the Field House during spring registration. Groups and individuals looking for a community project are invited to consult the service corps, its chairman said.

About 40 students are working in the corps now, estimated Kitty Porter, chairman of the VA Hospital area.

Miss Bukoff is in charge of service work at the nursing homes. She arranges for students, accompanied by older persons from the community, to visit the homes several times a month.

PEOPLE living in the homes especially enjoy talking with young persons, she said, but few students have volunteered for this work.

Another place where the company of young persons is appreciated is in VA Hospital. Miss Porter, A3, Iowa City, said that this semester about 10 girls were

2 Students At Michigan Classified 1A

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) — Two University of Michigan students were denied appeals to reinstate their college draft deferments Thursday.

The pair had been reclassified 1A, or immediately available for the draft, after being convicted of trespass in a draft board sit-in in Ann Arbor Oct. 15.

A spokesman for the board, No. 323 of the Selective Service system in Royal Oak said, "We sent out their 1A cards yesterday."

"We are terribly disappointed but not surprised," said Ernest Mazey, director of the Michigan American Civil Liberties Union, which provided legal counsel to the students.

"Although the board invited legal briefs to be submitted on behalf of the students, they nevertheless proceeded to reclassify without the briefs being filed."

Mazey said both cases would be appealed to the Michigan Selective Service appeals board.

The two are long-time friends Ronald Miller and Robert Sklar, both 19. Both are sophomores at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, both are residents of nearby Huntington Woods and graduates of Royal Oak Dondro High School.

They were convicted of trespass after an anti-Viet Nam war sit-in at the draft board Oct. 15. A total of 13 of the 50-odd students involved in the sit-in have been reclassified by their local boards. They lost their student deferments and became 1A, eligible for immediate induction.

Radio Hanoi Urges Attacks After Holiday

SAIGON (AP) — Radio Hanoi jolted hopes that a more lasting peace might follow the military lull marking the advent Thursday of the Year of the Horse, successor in Oriental reckoning to the Year of the Snake.

The Red station broadcast calls on both the Viet Cong and a Communist North Vietnamese spokesman for harder attacks.

"Let our whole people march forward to continually strike deadly blows at the U.S. aggressors, annihilate and disintegrate many puppet troops and win greater victories," said the lunar new year's message of the Viet Cong.

Ton Duc Thang of North Viet Nam, president of the Fatherland Front, urged "more and still greater successes to bring the national salvation war against U.S. imperialist aggression to early victory."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. combat dead total in the Viet Nam war has reached 1,750 topping the battle fatalities in two previous wars in U.S. history.

The Viet Nam war toll from Jan. 1, 1961, through Monday tops the 1,733 Americans who fell in the Mexican War and the 385 who were killed in action in the Spanish-American War.

A total of 68 U.S. servicemen died in combat with the Communists last week, the weekly report of the Pentagon showed Thursday.

Cease-fire orders — after a ragged start — had brought a measure of peace to Viet Nam for the lunar new year, which the Vietnamese called Tet. It arrived at midnight.

The roar of firecrackers set off in festive celebration in town and countryside supplanted sounds of war that South Vietnamese and American commanders want muted until 6 p.m. Sunday.

THE VIET CONG chalked up early violations, but have professed to wish the annual lull to last until midnight Sunday. That would round out four full days under their plan, launched half a day before the allied truce order went into effect at noon Thursday.

Nearly two hours after both sides were supposed to be securely under wraps, a Viet Cong company fired on men of the U.S. 101st Airborne Division west of Tuy Hoa, on the central coast 240 miles northeast of Saigon. The time was 1:50 p.m.

A U.S. military spokesman said the paratroopers, escaping injury, shot back and killed one of the guerrillas.

In the broader field, the possibility of early negotiations to end the war appeared to be fading rapidly as President Johnson's public peace offensive still failed to draw any favorable response from Ho Chi Minh's Hanoi government.

U Thant Suggests New Peace Effort In Viet Nam War

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant said Thursday that parties to the war in Viet Nam should make proposals for a broadly representative government in South Viet Nam in order to get the Communist rebels into peace negotiations.

At a news conference, he also hinted that he wished the present New Year's truce in South Viet Nam and halt in U.S. bombings of North Viet Nam would continue. He called for extraordinary patience and all possible measures to improve prospects for negotiations.

Thant said that in the last year there had been an "undeniable rapprochement between the positions of the parties," that the bombing pause had already bettered the chances for negotiations and that there was now a "fluid situation, when trends have a possibility of being reversed."

Feel a draft yet?

"ON AUG. 4, I got my B.A. On Aug. 6, I got my 1-A." Such was the lament of one Iowa graduate student only a couple months ago. Today it's beginning to look like the 1-A will no longer await the leisure of the B.A.

Draft quotas are on the upswing, though they are due to dip to 29,400 in February. December's quota was 40,200. The problem is that Uncle Sam and his local draft boards are running out of 1-A's and are probably going to begin deferring their 2-S deferments. It is predicted that the draft quotas will be filled partially with students. Which is to say, Uncle Sam wants YOU.

Gen. Louis Hershey, head of the Selective Service System, expressed the expected policy in no uncertain terms. He said deferments are not for the convenience of the registrant, but to serve the national interest. Henceforth, students will most likely have to do more to hang onto academic immunity than merely avoid academic probation. According to Gen. Hershey, the student must demonstrate he's one of the individuals who should, in the national interest, be trained.

Separation of sheep from goats may be conducted through tests similar to those given during the Korean War. Test results and class standing would help determine draft-ability.

The less promising student is in trouble, according to one Selective Service official. And pessimistic Gen. Hershey says, "I have always got to be prepared for the worst." He does admit that peace in Viet Nam could ease the draft calls. Pray for peace. — Dallas Murphy

Soundproof curtain

RADIO FREE EUROPE claims the Iron Curtain can't stop sound, but it appears that it will halt the sound of the University Symphony Band.

It was announced in May 1965 that the band had been chosen by the State Department to represent the United States on a tour of Russia and Eastern Europe. The itinerary wasn't complete but the band expected to visit Rumania, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Yugoslavia, and Russia.

The word from the State Department now is that "cultural arrangements for 1966-67 with Russia have not yet been completed." Therefore the band will go to Belgium, Austria, Luxembourg, Portugal, and Spain.

It is obvious the band is another victim of the cold war. Relations between Moscow and Washington are currently frigid so the welcome mat has been taken in.

Scheduled trips by the cast of "Hello Dolly," and the Roger Wagner Chorale were similarly cancelled last year.

Many people had hopes that the cultural exchanges would help promote better understanding between the East and the West.

It is unfortunate that artists are muffled by politicians. Things might be better if the positions were reversed. — Ted Holland

Surplus Senate

IT IS STRANGE that the student senator who criticized the student government reorganization report at Soapbox Soundoff related his comments to financial matters.

According to the senator, the present Senate has surplus money which it doesn't know how to spend. Yet this same senator was a backer of a resolution to send $600 to a Mississippi college. The resolution passed, but the money never went since the Senate didn't have any $600 to send.

PSDC president replies to letter from Extremists

To the Editor:

(1) The Young Extremists are clearly not in violation of the Code of Student Life because they have a similar function as PSDC. PSDC's purpose is to promote discussion of topics within the mainstream of political science. Does this mean that we are the only club which can promote such discussion? Does this mean we have to restrict the discussion of political affairs in the Young Demo's, in the Young Republicans or in the meetings of YAF. I think not. Each political club can be distinguished from another and on the basis of distinctions each club was granted a charter.

(2) What must be made clear is that PSDC as a club is not bringing the charges against the Young Extremist but only a few members of our club are and I, as president, am not one of them.

(3) The references to the scheduling problems which occurred between Don Johnson, Katz and myself are irrelevant to the discussion on the abolishment of the Young Extremists. I scheduled Johnson to come one day and Katz scheduled him on another day. Johnson simply became confused as to whom he was to talk. This was the single fault of no one.

(4) If Mr. Katz believes that the members of PSDC are jealous of his "tremendous" success, he is badly mistaken. The debate had a good topic and an exciting floorat of cross-examination but neither speaker was a debater. O'Hanlon's own inabilities at debating were only surmounted by those of Johnson's. The debate was populous but boring.

Help protect rare Studentus collegiatus

To the Editor:

After reading about the Dubuque Street shooting incident in The Daily Iowan (Jan. 13), we were pleased to note that the widely-acclaimed Iowa City Police Department has joined hands with Iowa conservationists to protect another vanishing species of American wildlife.

Like the buffalo and the whooping crane, the studentus collegiatus, which has previously been hunted unmercifully, now is protected by the "severe reprimand." It is now the policy of the Iowa City Police Department, upon catching a poacher shooting a rifle within the limits of the preserve, to administer two punitive slaps to the hands of the offender followed by an ear-singeing warning. If this type of sheer force is not used to discourage the offender, the studentus collegiatus will quickly go the way of the dodo and the passenger pigeon. For this reason we heartily commend the Iowa City Police Department for their extreme measures to protect this rare species.

Cop tells student to ask City Hall

To the Editor:

Is the Iowa City Street Department waiting for someone to spin out and get killed in an accident or are they just naturally this inefficient? After having my car stuck twice on main streets and fishtailing every day to class, I wonder if any Street Department does exist! Certainly this prosperous city can afford a little more salt and sand for the icy streets.

A friend of mine had his car banged into by a sliding, out-of-control car. I asked the officer on the scene at the time why more sand wasn't used on the streets. His hot remark was, "If you don't like it, go to City Council!" I'm afraid if everyone who has been stuck, spun out or had his fender crumpled this past week goes to the next meeting, it will have to be held in the Colosseum (seating capacity 87,000).

Snowball editorial called uncalled for

To the Editor:

I was interested in the "cute" comments you had to make regarding the snowball-throwing fraternity "boys" of last week.

I believe the use of words like kids, youngsters and kids in the third grade were uncalled for in regard to the people who were there.

Did you or anyone else take time to find out if any of the 100 plus men that were out there were pushing any cars down the hill and laughing at the motorists plight? If you did, you would find out that quite the opposite was true. I saw only cars being pushed up the hill. Cars that didn't have a chance of making it up the hill did because the childish fraternity "boys" decided to help. The work that these people did, helped alleviate a bigger traffic jam than there already was and they should be commended for it, not criticized.

Everyone is criticizing the fraternity men these days, but no one bothers to bring to light the good they do. As a policeman said at the scene of the snow-balling last week when he saw members of the different houses working together, pushing stalled cars up the icy hill, "We never hear about the good you men do, only the bad things."

Blend of cinema and stage in "Where the Ducks Are"

By MARY ZIELINSKY
Staff Writer

Freudian sex, and echoes of Tennessee Williams and Robert Penn Warren are combined in Ted Perry's new play, "Go Where the Ducks Are," making it an incoherent experiment in theatre.

The play, which opened Wednesday at the Studio Theatre, was an ambitious undertaking, and in this lies its failure.

Peppered with earthy insinuations of sex hunger, both natural and unnatural, the play was a stereotyped view of the so-called decadent South. The most that can be said for the play is that it was an unusual matching of cinema and stage techniques.

Much of the effectiveness of the first act, which was the best part of the play, comes from the use of slides and film footage with the stage actors. In fact, filming the entire play may have salvaged it.

RELYING MAINLY on visual images to tell the story of a well-fondled mother's boy, the play is never clear as to whether or not its protagonist, Roby Washburn, is a character or a caricature. He's certainly not a man.

Washburn, played by Paul Pancotto, is a shadow at best, made of vague idealism and still vaguer fears. The director of the County Poor house, Washburn finally entered the state political campaign to get state aid for the Poor-

Enrollments held low at High Away

By JON VAN
Editor

A recently approved new program of limited enrollment in the College of Engineering is only part of an overall policy of tighter admissions requirements at the University of High Away.

The University has recently opened a new Probationary Student Center to aid its plans to control constantly increasing applications for admissions. The Center was formerly an old house, but it has been completely remodeled by the University. Only students with a GPA under 2.0 are allowed to use the Center's facilities.

There is a pool room, a complete library of Ian Flemming, Mickey Spillane and Bat Man, a large television room (with a color set), a snack area (with free beer in the refrigerator) and a rock 'n' roll room for dancing.

Firestone S. Lane, professor of slang and director of the University's dropout program, explained the purposes of the new Center to us Thursday in glowing terms.

"The University is finding there are just too many persons who want to enroll — there isn't enough space for all of them. Limitations on enrollment are, therefore, a necessity and they're getting rougher every year. Academic standards are shooting up almost as quickly as LBJ's budget," Lane said.

"But limiting enrollment takes more than just high admissions standards. It takes pizzazz, moxie, cool, but most of all, imagination. That's where I come in."

"How so?" we inquired, confused.

"Well, University enrollment is like a garden hose," he said with a smile. "You got students coming in and students going out. Just like water — in one end, out the other. Only thing is, not all the kids who get in will ever go out the nozzle — graduate, that is. This is sort of like having a leaky hose. But the leaks — drop outs (or drip outs, if you like) — don't do anyone much good."

"AND WHAT'S worse, the longer these students stay in the University — or hose, take your choice — the more things get clogged. It adds to the crowd to have probationary students enrolled, but it often doesn't add to the flow out the nozzle (or graduation, take your choice). In any event it does take longer.

"So my job is to speed up the rate of leakage. This way we can run more water through the hose. See? Easy examples explain everything," Prof Lane alliterated.

"That's confusing," we confessed. "Just what is it you're trying to say? What's your job, man; what do you do?"

"Why, I flunk 'em, boy, flunk 'em. That's what I've been telling you here for 15 minutes. It keeps enrollment down," he answered.

"You see, we make it so easy not to study that the probationary students are able to flunk enough courses in one semester to get them out of school for good. It used to be that some students would hang around the University for years without graduating — like monkeys in trees. But they had no bananas; they just were hanging there!"

"Beg pardon?" we muttered.

"They never went out the nozzle, boy — no degrees (neither Fahrenheit nor centigrade, take your choice). In a nutshell, they never graduated. But they were still here for years, holding up the train."

"So now we get them flunked out within a year. And their GPAs are so bad, they never come back," Lane said, smiling broadly.

"But how do you get the students with low grade points to spend so much time at your Center?" we asked the professor.

"QUESTION-WISE, that was a good one for you to ask, son," he said. "We use know-how — good old gray matter on that one. You see, there is an Honors Center at the University for honors students only. Did you know that, or do I have to shoot by you again?"

"No, that's okay."

"Well, anyhow, these honors kids have a certain amount of status from their Center and discrimination-wise, it looks bad."

"What?"

"It looks like special discriminatory treat favoring the bright kids. So we at old High Away decided the poorer students should also have a Center."

"Now everyone can have status, and we axe enrollment in the meantime. A real happy scene."

"This is all very interesting," we admitted. "Does the University of High Away have any more plans in the works for limiting enrollment?"

"I think they do, but don't quote me. Word has it there's somebody new working on the problem for the big wigs. You ought to talk to him."

"Who do you mean?"

"Oh, some old guy. I think he used to work with the Government. Name's Hershey . . . or something."

Reviewer panned

To the Editor:

Surely a movie reviewer more capable than Nick Meyer can be found amongst the 16,000 of this establishment.

When first introduced to Mr. Meyer's remarkable reviews I was surprised to find The Daily Iowan had instituted a weekly column devoted to humor, especially under the guise of movie criticism.

Upon realizing he was serious in his near-incoherent evaluations, and did not intend these opinions to be interpreted as satire or farce — I was shocked! Indeed! Then many happy editions passed without this column and I assumed the reviewer had been canned, or kidnapped by the forces of darkness, or even grew up, but oh no. For this mediocre movie "Soft Skin" inspires him to new heights of indecisive rhetoric.

Perhaps your talents lie elsewhere, Mr. Meyer? As a film critic you are less than mediocre, your reviews as reviews fail. But on the other hand, considering your column "as the account of a tragic individual downfall, it must be called magnificent."

house, but why the Poorhouse and its residents are so important to him is never revealed.

Before long, Washburn begins to feel that he is a dupe, nothing more than a strawman, and it is at this point that the play starts to disintegrate. If Washburn's suspicions and resulting anger had been left as the inner workings of his mind, rather than an ambiguous balancing between fact and imagination, his subsequent actions would have had meaning. As it was, it only further confused an already disorganized play.

Some of the most conflicting dialogue ever written was in Chole's (the mother's) part. It is much to Linda Russell's credit that she overcame it and turned in one of the better performances of the evening.

A COMPLETELY professional job was done by Tal Russell (Billy Joe) as the southern demagogue. As Washburn's political opponent, Russell had full command of his part, from the simplest piece of dialogue to his wildest stage actions.

John Feakes (Papa) was an equally polished performer, lending a painful credibility to his role of man who has withdrawn completely from life by turning back into a child.

Director Addison Powell is to be credited for the blending of film and play. It is regrettable that he could do nothing for the play itself.

New Activities Center Seen As Helping Communications

Increased student communication, one of the main reasons for the Union Activities Center, has become a reality, Peter D. Grundfossen, Union program director, said Thursday.

"It's terrific," was Grundfossen's opinion of the center, which provides facilities for 37 student organizations, is located east of the Rathskellar room.

Five student organization rooms are headquarters for YWCA, Central Party Committee and Union Board, Student Senate, Associated Women Students, and Panhellenic and Interfraternity Council. Three rooms equipped with instant desks are used by 30 other organizations.

Also available for student use are two conference rooms and two workrooms. Four staff offices are provided for the Union Board advisers and program director.

Favorable student comment followed the opening of the center in November, according to Grundfossen.

Presidents of major campus organizations have an opportunity to run into one another and talk about mutual problems," he said.

Housing student organizations GRUNDFOSSEN in one area is much more efficient than having them scattered throughout the campus," Grundfossen continued. "The present system makes the possibility of finding people much easier."

Grundfossen also pointed out that poster and office supplies could be purchased in the center. Materials important for communication, such as ditto and mimeograph machines and typewriters, are also available.

Rooms divided by walls rising only halfway between the floor and ceiling have not caused any great acoustical problem, Grundfossen said. He credited piped-in music and a normal conversation level with preventing excessive noise.

Lynn Vinall, program director secretary, and Linda Fogarty, activities center receptionist, both agreed that students were making good use of the available facilities.

"STUDENTS REALLY seem appreciative of being able to communicate so easily with other organizations," Mrs. Fogarty said.

"The main problem seems to be in informing all students that the center is here," she continued. "When they learn what and where it is, the center will be used even more."

Hours for the activities center have not officially been set. Now the center is open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Mondays through Fridays; 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays; and noon to 10 p.m. Sundays.

City Changed By Fires, Not By Renewal

Iowa City's face is changing, not because of urban renewal but because of fires.

Downtown's two latest fire victims, George Dasovich and Robert Harper, are currently renovating their fire-damaged structures in the 100 block of South Dubuque Street. Dasovich, owner of George's Gourmet, and Harper, owner of Harper's Young Fashions, were victims of the Nov. 1 fire that gutted the restaurant and damaged the clothing shop.

However, both men have remained in business since the fire. Dasovich has been operating dining, delivery and carry-out restaurant facilities from 830 First Ave. East. The restaurant's seating capacity is 85.

Harper closed his store for a few days after the fire, but then opened the store again with a fire sale of smoked clothes.

Since the fire both businessmen have also expanded their facilities.

Dasovich bought the Sherwin-Williams Paint Store, south of his restaurant, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) post above the paint store.

He said Thursday that both his former building and the paint store were being demolished. The combined space will house his new restaurant, he said, which will open in June.

The new building will be 40 by 80 feet and two stories high, said Dasovich. He estimated that the seating capacity would be well beyond the 100 persons the restaurant held before the fire.

Harper said Thursday that he purchased the Coffee Mill, which is located between George's and his shop, and would remodel it for a new teen and junior clothing shop.

Start, an anti-poverty program for preschoolers.

Another of the corps' officers, Billie Jean Redfield, A3, Batavia, Ill., is organizing groups to provide entertainment at the Johnson County Home.

Next semester she hopes to have two groups a month entertain at the home. She said the patients especially enjoyed hoot-nannies because they could join the singing.

Miss Redfield indicated that, although the corps was successful in working in the community, it had a communications problem on campus.

"THE ORGANIZATIONS aren't as aware of the Student Service Corps as they should be," she said. "We're trying to help other groups, we're not trying to take over."

The fourth corps' officer, Steve Grouell, A3, Ida Grove, works with the Johnson County Welfare Department. The corps set up a "big brother-big sister" program for local children who are underprivileged or have only one parent.

Ten students are participating in the program now, Grouell said. The students establish a friendship with children through the corps and the Welfare Board, he said, and spend one or two hours each week in some recreational activity with the children.

Political Internships Given To Students This Summer

Student internships for a summer's work with political organizations and candidates are now being arranged by the Iowa Center for Education in Politics.

The internships are being offered to eight students from Iowa colleges and universities.

SINCE 1966 is an election year, the interns will be placed with congressional candidates, state office candidates or at party headquarters. In odd-numbered years, student interns work and study in the national offices of interest groups and organizations.

"The recent decision to hold primaries in September instead of June has created somewhat of a problem in scheduling this summer's jobs," George Mather, director of the center, said recently. "We are unable to know for sure who the political candidates will be."

But Mather added that he was relatively sure political parties would endorse candidates before the September primaries, making it possible to allocate the internships.

Under the summer intern program the student works full-time at whatever duties are assigned to him by the candidate or organization. Beside these duties, he is expected to do research or gather material that will be used in preparing a paper upon his return to school.

EACH STUDENT receives a grant of $500 for two months of summer work and study. One half of the award comes from the candidates and the parties, the other half from the center.

Mather said that applications for the summer interns would be made available through the Political Science Department.

The three major criteria Mather said were used in determining who should be awarded an internship are: (1) a favorable academic background, in terms of grade point and the political science and related courses completed by the student; (2) political interest and involvement, as shown by the campaign and related activities; and (3), leadership potential.

Efficiency Methods Save State Hygienic Lab $15,000

The State Hygienic Laboratory at the University saved $15,000 last year by using new efficiency administration methods.

Information on the savings was published in booklet form by the Communicable Disease Center of the U.S. Public Health Service. The booklet is now being distributed to laboratory directors throughout the country as an example of administrative efficiency.

In four years, the administrative office reduced its clerical staff from 11 to 6 persons and installed new machines. The combined cost of the equipment, maintenance and operating supplies is approximately $2,200 per year.

Other savings came from changes in lab specimen forms and daily reports.

The total salary cost for the staff of the administrative office was reduced from $32,940 in 1960 to $23,820 in 1965.

Union Schedules 'Sleeping Beauty' Saturday Morning

"Sleeping Beauty" will be presented at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Union Music Room by Union Board's Concerts committee.

All student, and faculty and Iowa City children have been invited.

Melanie Moyer, A2, Marion, will sketch the story as it unfolds. Her sketches will be distributed to the children at the close of the concert.

Narration is provided on records purchased for the concert. Attendance at the concert is increasing, according to Sue F. Sondrol, A3, Clear Lake, chairman. Sixty children attended the last performance.

'NICKEL MACHINE' is the title of this example of the painterly approach to pop art in "From the West," an exhibition of 52 paintings from the San Francisco area now being shown in the Main Gallery of the University Art Building. The painting is by Wayne Thiebaud, a leading pop artist on the west coast. The exhibition will be shown through Feb. 6.

Government Will Probe Ala. Voting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal examiners were ordered Thursday into Birmingham, Ala., and surrounding Jefferson County, to register Negro voters under the 1965 voting rights act.

Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach said it is the largest metropolitan area designated to date under the five-month-old law.

A Justice Department spokesman said at least 20 registrars may be sent into Birmingham — Where Negroes have been demonstrating in the streets for more registration opportunities — and nearby Bessemer and Fairfield. That is more than double the number sent into any of the 36 Southern counties previously designated for federal examiners under the act.

what is your potential?

When you think deeply about it from a religious standpoint, you begin to wonder — can anyone really measure man's potential, or put any limits on it? Can you measure God's love for His creation? No. But we can learn to let it mold and fill our lives. Hear this public lecture, "What Is Your Potential?" by JANE O. Iowa Swimmers, Gymnasts At Michigan State Saturday

Iowa's gymnastic and swimming teams, fresh from victories over Minnesota last Saturday, travel to East Lansing, Mich. tomorrow to battle powerful Michigan State squads.

In gymnastics, Iowa coach Dick Holzhaefer predicted Michigan State would be the strongest Big Ten foe the Hawks would meet. He said that the Spartans are expected to dethrone Michigan as champion this year.

MICHIGAN State, Michigan, Iowa and Illinois are the present front-runners in the conference race.

"If we hit 100 per cent, we will give Michigan State a good battle," Holzhaefer said. "And we'll win if they don't hit."

Top performers for Iowa through the young season, according to Holzhaefer, have been juniors Ian Heller, Dan Price, Bob Singerman and Ken Gordon, and sophomores Neil Schmitt and John Kellner.

"The nice thing about our team," said Holzhaefer, "is the fine attitude. These fellows are very cooperative, and they never quit."

IN SWIMMING the Hawks will face a Spartan unit that is expected to push Indiana and Michigan for the Big Ten crown.

Leading Michigan State is

Gary Dilley, a back-stroke and sprint specialist who was a member of the U.S. Olympic swimming team in 1964.

Iowa coach Bob Allen said that by a comparison of times in meets this year, there should be some very close races. In the medley relay, for example, Michigan State has been clocked at 3:45 and Iowa at 3:46.

The Hawk tankers return home for a dual meet with Wisconsin in the Iowa Fieldhouse Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Iowa's gymnasts are idle until a Feb. 7 home meet with the University of Arizona.

SHEP DRAFTED?

TWIN HOOKS, Ark. — Old Shep's owner, Irving Fenster, said he was not worried by reports that Old Shep would be required to retake an obedience test to see whether he qualifies for the K-9 Corps.

Old Shep took the test a year ago, but failed it. A local K-9 Corps recruiter said a champion coon hound like Old Shep should be able to pass the test and suggested something underhanded was afoot.

Fenster commented, "Old Shep's mighty independent about the way he trees coons."

3 Key Contests On Tap In Big 10 This Weekend

There are three important games on tap in the Big 10 Saturday, with the showdown being Minnesota's battle with Michigan at Ann Arbor, Mich.

Minnesota's Gophers, rejuvenated by the return of Lou Hudson to the lineup, pose a threat to Michigan's league leading Wolverines in a game that could have bearing on the Big 10 title race.

Hudson, who was sidelined with a broken wrist Dec. 18, returned to the Minnesota lineup last Saturday night and helped the Gophers defeat Indiana 91-82. Hudson scored 20 in the game despite the fact that he was wearing a cast on his right wrist.

In another top game, Michigan State's Spartans will find out whether or not their title hopes are real when they take on the Iowa Hawkeyes in a regionally televised game from Iowa City.

The third game pits Northwestern against Ohio State in a must game for both teams in Columbus, Ohio.

Hawks' Gerry Jones Coming Into His Own

By PAUL DYSART
Staff Writer

Gerry Jones has finally come into his own.

Not that the talented 6-3 forward wasn't impressive last winter's December stretch. But a sudden flurry caught him during the holiday tournament in El Paso, Texas and he's been leading the Hawks ever since.

But you can't tell him that. "I don't think I've played a good game all year," he flatly stated. "One game I score, in another I rebound and in another I lead the team in assists. But I haven't really been able to put them all together."

"Maybe it's just a mental problem," he mused. Jones has always been that type of guy. Back in high school at Carver High in Chicago he was never a super-star. Of course, he had to play behind Michigan ace Cazzie Russell his junior year and share the spotlight with Bradley star Joe Allen his final season.

"We were highly specialized," Jones recalled. "We all had our individual jobs to do. Primarily I played the boards and worked against a zone. I was never a big scorer."

Jones posted an 11 point average his senior year and led the rebounding on Carver's state championship crew, for which he received all-state honorable mention.

GERRY JONES Leads Hawks

Gerry led the frosh squad in his initial year at Iowa but it wasn't until last winter that the talk started flowing over the hustling sophomore. Sports announcers and scribes were comparing him to various Hawkeye flashes of years gone by, and it seemed apparent that the Chicago boy was headed for big things here.

And in recent games Jones has fulfilled whatever hopes fans have entertained for him. After winning the Arkansas contest with a last second tip-in he has exploded to lead the Hawks in both scoring and rebounding.

But the team isn't clicking now. "We just need more teamwork," Jones advised. "And we haven't set our minds to playing basketball lately. We've just been taking our opposition entirely too lightly."

"Everyone on the team could put out more," Jones contended. "I know I could. And we'll have to Saturday against Michigan State or we'll never beat them—not even in the Field House."

The home court, he asserts, gives a team a ten point advantage.

"You notice we haven't been beaten at home yet, even when we've played poorly," he said. "We were just lucky to have had that Northwestern game at home."

Jones termed the Creighton and Washington games in December as the Hawk's best overall performances. "We followed the coach's instructions then," he stated.

But in spite of the glory of college ball, Gerry admitted that he liked his high school days better.

"The kids would really turn out for the games back then," he said rather wistfully. "And they'd cheer. I don't know why they don't here. Maybe if we'd win more . . ."

Did Clay Extend Patterson Fight?

NEW YORK (AP) — Cassius Clay told sportscaster Howard Cosell he was carrying Floyd Patterson in the seventh round of their Nov. 22 world heavy-weight title fight at Las Vegas. Clay's remarks were recorded on a tape commentary to accompany films of the fight, scheduled to be seen on the American Broadcasting Co., Wide World of Sports Television program Jan. 29.

The fight eventually was stopped by the referee in the 12th round and Clay was declared the winner on a technical knockout.

The Hawks Are Down But They're Not Out

By RON BLISS
Asst. Sports Editor

The chances for Iowa winning the Big 10 basketball championship this year received a severe setback Monday night when the Hawks lost their second of three conference games, falling to Indiana, 73-61.

But though the loss certainly lessens the Hawks' chances of winning the title, it does not necessarily take them out of the title picture.

THE BIG 10 IS, by reputation, a tough conference to win in, especially on the road, and it also has a reputation as being a conference in which any team in the league can defeat any other team in the league on any given night.

In recent weeks, the Hawks have found that this is only too true, and have fallen prey to two supposedly inferior teams.

BECAUSE OF THIS, many Iowa fans (like some we've heard from recently) have thrown their hands up in the air in disgust and said, "Well, nice season wasn't it."

The other day we even received a post-card that said, "Well, I see that Iowa lost another basketball game the other night. That's three out of the last four isn't it? And if I'm correct, I think it's two losses out of three in the Big 10. It looks like the basketball team is going to turn out to be the same 'flop' the football team was."

IT IS SAD THAT anyone would express such an opinion of this team, especially since it has proven itself so well this year, and despite a current slump, has recorded a 9-3 record.

It was this same type of attitude that caused our football team to "flop," as some people put it, and this attitude can do the same thing to the basketball team if we let it.

The losses are discouraging, yes, but it is not time to give up on this team completely. The players don't enjoy losing any more than the fans do. They're human just like anyone else and have feelings. And currently their morale is down.

FORWARD GERRY JONES expressed to me after Iowa's recent victory over Northwestern that he was "beginning to wonder whether or not the team could win anymore." That victory helped temporarily, but now, with their loss to Indiana they seem to be having greater doubts about their ability.

And their doubts can increase if they don't receive assurance that the student body is behind them. We know that they're a great team so why not let them know that we know.

When you go to the game tomorrow and also the game Monday, let them know that you're there. Don't go just because you want to see whether they win or lose — go to cheer them on to victory. After all, they can still win the Big 10 title even with two losses. They may be down, but they're certainly not out.

WITH A LITTLE LUCK next year, Indiana can be a strong contender for the Big 10 basketball title. They may be small and inexperienced this year, but with the help they have coming next year, few people will regard them lightly.

Talking with Tom Miller, Indiana's sports publicity director the other night before the Iowa-Indiana game, we learned that Indiana's freshman team this year is the best that they've had at Indiana since the Van Arsdale twins were freshman four years ago.

"As a matter of fact," expressed Miller, "they're so good that we didn't even schedule a freshman-varsity game this year because we knew that the freshmen would win and thought it would be bad for varsity squad morale if the freshmen beat them."

WSUI sportscaster Don Hein and I were quite impressed with the freshman team when we watched them scrimmage against each other in a preliminary game Monday night. They seemed to have good size, speed and exceptional shooting ability.

THEIR SHOOTING was so good in fact that we once counted a period of almost three minutes when neither side missed a shot, and most of the shots taken in this period were from 20-30 feet.

The team also has good size in the form of Bill DeHeer and Steve Muerin. DeHeer is 6'8", weighs 220 pounds and hails from just outside of St. Louis, Mo., while Muerin is 6'7" and a native of Danville, Ill. Both are considered top prospects for next year.

With this size added to the shooting ability and speed of the current sophomore-junior dominated Indiana team, the Hoosiers could be a team to answer to next season.

Geiberger Grabs Lead In Crosby Golf Tourney

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Slim Al Geiberger dropped a 25-foot putt and two more from 15 feet Thursday while fashioning a three-under-par 68 and the first round lead in Bing Crosby's $104,500 golf tournament.

Geiberger, eighth among the pro money winners in 1965, played the Monterey Peninsula Country Club, one of three in use in this event.

He held a one-stroke lead over four others, who toured the same course on a sunny, chilly day.

Bracketed at 69 were Californians Ken Towns of San Jose, Paul Bondeson of Palm Springs, and Lee Raymond of Redwood

City, along with Oklahoma City's Ernie Vossler.

Most of the big name golfers and celebrity amateurs played at Cypress Point, a tougher course which drew the great majority of the opening day record throng of 25,000.

Arnold Palmer, who won the recent Los Angeles Open, and 1964 Crosby champion Tony Lema stamped themselves top contenders with two-under-par 70s at the Cypress Point course.

Billy Casper, twice winner of this tournament and the recent San Diego Open, had a 71 at Cypress as he came home with a 32 on the back nine after a 39 on the first.

Jack Nicklaus, last year's leading money winner, made his 1966 debut with 73, going over par on two of the final three holes.

In the 70 group with Palmer and Lema were Chris Blocker, Rex Baxter and Don Massengale. The latter played Cypress Point and the other two at Monterey.

The pros are aiming at two top prizes — the $11,000 for the low individual pro at the end of Sunday's final round and $4,000 awarded the pro on the leading pro-amateur team.

Gay Brewer and Dale Morey, High Point, N.C., amateur, led the pro-amateur team competition with the best ball 60. Morey played with a five-stroke handicap and on his handicap holes he recorded four pars and a birdie, thus helping by six strokes.

Four teams were tied at 62 net — pro Joe Carr and Hollywood amateur Jim Magoney; Al Besselink and Los Angeles Dodger pitcher Don Drysdale; Vossler and Bill Higgin of Lafayette, Calif.; and George Archer with Los Angeles sports writer Nelson Cullenward. The latter team tied for first a year ago.

Bill Ogden, a veteran pro who plays out of Tucson, Ariz., and Chicago, shot a hole-in-one in the first round of the tournament.

His tee shot with a No. 6 iron hit one foot in front of the 155-yard third hole on the Monterey Peninsula Country Club and bounced in.

Freshman Is Go-Go Girl; 'It's What I Like To Do'

By TOM FENSCH
Staff Writer

She's five feet two and she wears a black go-go dress and black hose. When she dances, her hips go-go, her arms go-go, her legs go-go, her hair flies and she smiles.

And her dancing sells beer and entertains the customers.

She is Cheryl Ray, A1, Des Moines, and she dances from 9 to 11:30 p.m. every Wednesday at the Hawk, Route 6, Coralville. She also takes 15 hours as a major in speech and dramatic arts.

"I've been dancing for as long as I can remember," Miss Ray said Wednesday night. "It's what I like to do and I need the spending money."

She makes $10 a week at the Hawk.

"YOU HAVE to be awfully broadminded — you have to be able to take what some people say to you," she said. "The thing I don't like is the guys who come out, get drunk, and make smart remarks. If they can't hold their beer without getting drunk, they shouldn't drink in public."

Nineteen-year-old Miss Ray started dancing when she was five. She was in a chorus line during her high school sophomore and junior years. She danced for conventions and banquets and was, for a while, a member of the American Guild of Variety Artists, a dancers' union.

"A lot of people think dancers have a bad reputation," she said. "But when they think of a person like me who is dancing — doing it because she likes it and needs the money — then that's different."

EVENTUALLY she would like to become a writer and playwright. She considered majoring

Traffic School For Police Here Monday

Gene Needles, Iowa public safety commissioner, will be a guest instructor and speaker at the 11th annual Police Traffic School Jan. 24-28 in the Union.

Needles, who took office Jan. 1, will speak on "The Problems of Law Enforcement" on the last day of the school.

Special problems with drinking drivers, pursuit driving, and accident investigation will be discussed by an expected 80 Iowa law enforcement officers, Richard L. Holcomb, director of the University Police Science Bureau, said Thursday. The bureau hosts the school.

"Law enforcement bears a major burden in reducing accidents," Holcomb said, "and we cannot do the job without well trained men. One of the major values of a school like this is that it allows men from all over the state to get together and discuss law enforcement problems."

The officers attending will be mostly city police, he said, but 14 highway patrolmen and some sheriffs are also expected. Other lecturers at the meeting will include Holcomb; Max Weyling, Cedar County attorney; Jay Honohan, Iowa City city attorney; Ansel Chapman, an Iowa City attorney; Emmett Evans, assistant chief, Iowa City police; Capt. Henry Overman and Arthur Zimmerman, Cedar Rapids police; and Capt. Leonard Sims and Sgt. Richard Reddick, Iowa Highway Patrol.

Viennese Group Slates Musical

The "Concentus Musicus," a Viennese group that interprets original music on the original instruments, will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday in Macbride Auditorium.

The concertus plays music written from 1200 to 1600 by the Gothic and Renaissance masters. The group uses the earliest string instruments available, some of which are from the 16th century.

The group consists of: Alice Harnoncourt, Jurg Schaefflein, Leopold Stastny, Hans Pottler, Kurt Theiner, Josef de Sordi, Nikolaus Harnoncourt, and Hermann Hobarth.

Tickets for the concert, sponsored by the Friends of Music, are available at West Music Co., Eble Music Co. and the Campus Record Shop.

RECORD TOTAL —

Gifts, grants, and contracts to the University in 1965 totaled $15.9 million, a record figure.

STUDENT CHARGED—

A University student was charged by police with making an improper left turn in connection with an accident Thursday.

The student, Thomas G. Hackett, A1, Danville, N.J., was the driver of a car that collided with a car driven by John W. Neal, 810 Roosevelt St., police said. The accident occurred about 7:30 a.m. at Burlington Street and Riverside Drive.

A passenger in the Neal auto, Mrs. Alonzo Fountain, Iowa City, was treated for facial cuts.

N. LIBERTY MAN CHARGED—

Harold Edward Bascom, 31, North Liberty, was in the Johnson County Jail in lieu of $2,500 bond Thursday, after his arrest Wednesday by sheriff's officers.

Bascom is charged with embezzling corn from the Roy Maltkick farms in North Liberty and Ely.

In a signed statement before Deputy Sheriff F. W. Suplee, Bascom said that he had taken about eight loads of corn from Maltkick and sold most of it in Cedar Rapids for $1,400.
