Virgil M. Hancher Died 1 Year Ago

One year ago Sunday, a man who had served the University for 24 years died. He was former University Pres. Virgil M. Hancher, who died in India on Jan. 30, 1965.

Dr. Hancher arrived in New Delhi, India, Aug. 16. He was working as an education consultant for the Ford Foundation, but had planned to return to the University in 1966.

work during his 24 years of dedicated service."

Now, one year later, the contributions Hancher made are still apparent. During his administration such buildings as Burge Hall, the Pharmacy Building, Hillcrest, Kate Daum and the new Law Building were erected.

Hancher's death came the same day as first semester commencement, 1965. In his last commencement, June 1965, Hancher said:

"TODAY WE — both you and I — stand at the threshold of a great adventure. Much of your life is before you; much of mine is past. But I like to believe that the world always beckons to the young in heart."

But Hancher did not live to enjoy the long-awaited leisure and had been out of office less than a year when he died.

In his memory, the Hancher Memorial Scholarship was established this year by the faculty. The first award went to David R. Mason, A4, Lime Springs. When he accepted the scholarship this month, Mason said, "I'm sure Dr. Hancher would have wanted to be remembered in this way."

Disrespect For Policemen Is Problem, Needles Says

Increasing disrespect for law enforcement officers is a problem all law enforcement agencies must learn to deal with, Gene Needles, Iowa commissioner for public safety, said Friday.

Needles, speaking in the Union Illinois Room to the annual police traffic school, said perhaps the problem was because of the officers or the people because officers often met people under bad circumstances. A department of research and education for every law enforcement agency was suggested by Needles.

"We're limited only by our own enthusiasm and imagination," he said. "Let's make some changes and do some research. These programs should be more than one officer making a speech each year. We must get to the young people before they break the law whenever possible. Now is the time to act."

"All primary industry has research and publicity departments," Needles said. "Why shouldn't we? We deal with human life. We can educate individuals not associated with law enforcement."

He said Des Moines had started a program of officers speaking to youth groups. Giving youths the opportunity to work with the identification bureau or ride in a patrol car would also help give youngsters a respect for law enforcement, Needles said.

Three visiting quartets, the 54-man Iowa City Old Capital Chorus and a local quartet, the Ring Kings, will perform tonight in a program entitled "Voices in Harmony."

The first performance will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the City High School Auditorium and the second at 8:15 p.m. in MacBride Auditorium.

Union Leader Quill Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Union leader Michael J. Quill, who led New York's transit workers into their recent 12-day subway and bus strike, died Friday.

The 60-year-old president of the AFL-CIO Transport Workers Union (TWU) died at his home here.

He collapsed Jan. 4 in City Prison shortly after his arrest for violating an anti-strike injunction by calling out 34,400 city subway and bus employees on the first city-wide strike in their history three days earlier.

Taken to Bellevue Hospital, Quill's illness remained a mystery until the strike ended Jan. 13. Then he was described as a victim of congestive heart failure.

Quill, a thick-browed Irishman of normally ruddy complexion, had a history of heart trouble going back more than a decade.

THESE THREE OLD ORDER Amishmen, dressed in their traditional garb, leave the Iowa Statehouse in Des Moines after another conference with Gov. Harold Hughes. Hughes told newsmen after the meeting that "the outlook is dark" for a solution to the three-year school dispute.

Lack Of Rice Causes Riots In South India

NEW DELHI (AP) — Food demonstrations exploded in violence Friday in southwest India and presented Prime Minister Indira Gandhi a full-blown crisis just five days after she took office.

Angry mobs, protesting the lack of rice, went on the rampage in many cities of Kerala State, halting trains and stoning them, ripping up tracks, and clashing with police.

Mrs. Gandhi, sworn in Monday, had planned to visit Kerala Friday but postponed the trip on the advice of her aides who suggested she let the situation ease a bit.

KERALA, a political problem state for years, is one of the first to feel the pinch of India's developing food crisis, caused by a severe drought and a shortage in agricultural production. As many as 12 million Indians are threatened with starvation this year.

American wheat is flowing into India at an astonishing rate — more than 20,000 tons daily — but that does not help Keralites, because they are rice eaters.

Thursday night Mrs. Gandhi ordered Kerala's rice ration increased from 4.2 to 4.9 ounces daily for each adult.

But Communist leaders, who are strong in Kerala, said it was too little, too late.

The Communists, assisted by all political parties and even dissident members of Mrs. Gandhi's governing Congress Party, whipped up mobs in all the major cities of the tropical state.

Hughes Sees Amish, Says Outlook Dark

DES MOINES (AP) — Gov. Harold Hughes met with representatives of the Old Order Amish Friday and afterwards told newsmen that "the outlook is dark" for a solution to the three-year school dispute.

Meeting with Hughes were three leaders of the Hazleton area Amish, including Dan Borntrager and M. N. Hirschberger.

The Amish men arrived at the Statehouse after lunch without an appointment for their second conference with Hughes this week.

Hughes said after the Amish had left, "At this point I am not as hopeful as I have been before that we can find a solution. I do not believe the door is entirely closed and I do intend to continue to work to try to find a peaceful solution to this problem."

The Amish have been repeatedly fined because of their refusal to send their children to schools with state-certified teachers, as required by Iowa law.

ABOUT 50 Amish children have been attending two small private schools near Hazleton taught by Amish teachers who have only eighth grade educations.

The Amish say they cannot afford to hire certified teachers for their own schools. They objected to sending their children to public schools for fear they will be subjected to worldly influences and leave the colony.

Borntrager, Hirschberger and Abe Yoder met last Tuesday with Hughes; the Rev. Dean M. Kelley, executive director of the department of religious liberty for the National Council of Churches; and W. Melvin Adams, associate secretary of the department of religious liberty of the Seventh Day Adventist Church.

Also attending the Tuesday meeting was William Sindlinger, attorney for the Amish. At that time Sindlinger said any further comment would have to come from Hughes.

"We wanted to make sure we understood each other," Sindlinger said. "We do."

Results To Determine Students' Draft Status

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Selective Service system announced Friday it is returning to the use of a testing system and class standing as guides for local draft boards in granting college student deferments.

Lt. Gen. Lewis Hershey, Selective Service director, said details of the guidelines will be issued in the near future.

Hershey said the procedure affects high school seniors and college students and will be effective for the next college year.

HE SAID the criteria will be similar to those used during the Korean War, which included test score or class standing.

Negotiations have been initiated with testing agencies, he said, and the student certificate which schools submit to local boards to reflect student status is being revised to provide class standing.

Hershey said a public announcement concerning the details of the advisory criteria will be made as soon as they are established.

DRAFT CALLS have climbed steadily in recent months, because of the demands of the war in Viet Nam. Recent calls have matched the levels of the Korean War.

There are about 1.8 million college students holding educational deferments currently in class 2-S.

Under the old criteria system, which was in effect prior to 1964, local boards could take into consideration the grade of a student on the college qualification test or the class standing he maintained in college, or both.

HOWEVER, under law, local boards may not be required to base their decisions solely on such data.

A passing test score under the old system was 70 for a student to be considered for deferment for a regular college course and 80 for a graduate student, except that a grade of 70 was acceptable for graduate students in the health arts.

A student in the freshman class had to be in the upper three-fourths of his class at the end of the year to be considered doing satisfactory work, a sophomore in the upper two-thirds, and a junior in the upper three-fourths.

LBJ Asserts Law Guides Viet Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, facing a decision on whether to resume the bombing of North Viet Nam, said Friday he was being guided by a 1964 congressional resolution giving him broad powers to decide military matters.

Johnson said peace in Viet Nam was being blocked by a few fanatical leaders following a rule-or-ruin strategy. The United States must not let them succeed, he said.

The President cited the 1964 resolution in responding to 15 Senate Democrats who wrote him, "We believe you should have our collective judgment before you when you make your decision."

The resolution, which the Senate and House approved by an aggregate vote of 504 to 2, also was cited by Secretary of State Dean Rusk at a session with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Rusk reminded Senate questioners that in the 1964 resolution Congress authorized the President to use armed force if necessary in defense of South Viet Nam.

He said the Senate "made no reservations" when it ratified the Southeast Asia Treaty which he said also gave legal backing for present Asian policy.

To senators who expressed alarm at the way things are going, Rusk said the Senate in ratifying the pact didn't say "this doesn't apply if things get tough."

White House press secretary Bill D. Moyers, who released Johnson's letter, disclosed the President had another meeting Friday afternoon with his top advisers on national security.

There were about 1.8 million college students holding educational deferments currently in class 2-S. Under the old criteria system, which was in effect prior to 1964, local boards could take into consideration the grade of a student on the college qualification test or the class standing he maintained in college, or both. HOWEVER, under law, local boards may not be required to base their decisions solely on such data. A passing test score under the old system was 70 for a student to be considered for deferment for a regular college course and 80 for a graduate student, except that a grade of 70 was acceptable for graduate students in the health arts. A student in the freshman class had to be in the upper three-fourths of his class at the end of the year to be considered doing satisfactory work, a sophomore in the upper two-thirds, and a junior in the upper three-fourths.

Cape Jones?

AFTER THAT TRAGIC Friday in November, 1963, it was only natural that the world would take steps to preserve the memory of John F. Kennedy.

Many streets, bridges and squares were named and re-named in honor of the late President. Canada named a mountain in the Yukon, Mt. Kennedy. A main street in Beirut, Lebanon, was changed from Rue Clemenceau to Kennedy Street. The square in front of the West Berlin city hall was re-named John F. Kennedy Platz.

Familiar names such as Idlewild Airport disappeared. Cape Canaveral, a familiar name in American homes, became Cape Kennedy, despite objections of the residents. The name changing soon got out of hand and it is unfortunate it was not regulated.

When Prince Georges County (Maryland) Memorial Library was changed to John F. Kennedy Library, Robert Kennedy politely requested that the old name be retained. A spokesman said "Mr. Kennedy feels that if the name John F. Kennedy is used excessively its effectiveness and meaning will be greatly diminished."

This appears to be true. There are so many Washington, Lincoln, and Jefferson streets and schools in this country, the names seem as common as Smith and Jones.

It is difficult, probably impossible, to change some of the names back again but the remaining proposed changes that are still to come before state and local legislatures could be forgotten.

Newsweek reports that the Boston suburb of Marlboro is having second thoughts about a proposal to change the name of the high school to John F. Kennedy. Arch rival Hudson High has already taken that name.

As one football fan put it: "If we're a Kennedy and they're a Kennedy, what kind of rivalry is that?"

Deep freeze

WHO SAYS WINTER Is nice? Not us.

It was 46 degrees in Madrid, Spain, Thursday. San Francisco had 63 degrees. Los Angeles was one degree warmer. And Honolulu registered 82. Acapulco thermometers read 86.

San Juan led the world with 89 beautiful degrees.

So we got to thinking, what can we do about the weather?

We looked around Iowa. Cedar Rapids' temperature dipped to a minus one Thursday. Des Moines registered a high of minus three, while Decorah was one degree warmer than the minus eight degrees at Mason City.

Iowa City temperatures fluctuated around the zero mark.

In fact, weather bureaus in 32 of the 48 continental United States reported weather below zero some time Thursday.

That's a lot of cold, and it's a long time until April.

Who says all we can do is talk about the weather? We can always move, and we would if our fuel lines weren't frozen.

Final advice

ADVICE TO THE test-worn was offered in this column Friday. We neglected to mention, however, what happens when underclassmen ignore the advice of the sadder-but-wiser old folks. Freshmen at the University of Miami are being investigated for what appears to be an outbreak of cheating during final exams. The pity is that all freshmen might be required to retake exams because some students cheated.

Our final advice: though there might be some percentage in cheating, don't.

Sun, sex simmer in Coloradan

BY DAVE POLLEN
Editorial Assistant

A question of obscenity is plaguing the production of the University of Colorado's yearbook. The business staff of the Coloradan has clashed with the editorial staff over the use of some photographs which the business staff maintains are obscene.

"We simply can't condone the kinds of pictures being printed in the '66 book," said the Coloradan's business manager. "In my opinion, some of them are practically pornographic. One, for example, pictured a half-naked girl diving. Others showed campus sun-worshippers in scanty attire."

The business manager said she hoped the publicity would force the editorial staff to replace the pictures with some that would be "more representative of the University community."

THE HEAD OF THE editorial staff has refused to retract any of the pictures in question. "After all," he said, "if we decided not to print the pictures, we'd have to change our entire theme and copy approach."

The copy editor said he feels he's done some of his best work in writing the captions for the pictures. "If I can speak frankly," he said, "I am a master of the pun. I've used sparkling metaphors and other devices for some brilliant double-meanings."

While the editorial staff refuses to be denied its fun, the business staff has threatened a protest demonstration. They are concerned about the yearbook's reputation, which they claim will be ruined if the pictures are published.

The head photographer's only comment: "I try to enjoy my work."

Somebody at the University of Illinois has decided to take on the responsibility of keeping Communists off the faculty. A document purporting to be a University required loyalty oath was circulated among graduate assistants last week, but the University didn't know anything about it.

THE DOCUMENT, delivered with other campus mail, ordered "all graduate students to submit each semester an affidavit affirming allegiance to the constitutional government of the United States."

According to the document, each recipient must take an oath swearing that he "was not and never had been a member of the Communist Party, or of any organization advocating or attempting the overthrow of the U.S. government."

The University didn't know about the "oath" until several graduate assistants had brought theirs into the graduate admissions office, signed and notarized.

Intelligence is doorway, not wall

To the Editor:
If I understand Mrs. Henry's letter, (Jan. 26) she believes Mensa is valuable because it provides a setting in which people who have been born "with more brains than the average person" can find understanding companionship — companionship not available elsewhere. In Mensa, Mrs. Henry says, "we . . . don't have to apologize for them (our IQs) or try to hide our intelligence as we find ourselves often doing in the world outside of Mensa."

The lady has put her finger on a very important problem. There is undeniably a strong anti-intellectual current running through our culture. It's easy to see that intelligent people, particularly if they're sensitive, are sometimes made to feel like freaks or oddballs; and it's not surprising that they sometimes react by concealing their intelligence and feeling apologetic about it. If I were intelligent I'd probably feel the same way.

But this would be wrong of me — and it is wrong of Mrs. Henry. "The world outside of Mensa," as she calls it, has more to offer than cruelty and rejection. It offers vast opportunities for satisfaction in productivity, in recreation, and in human society — even, it is worth pointing out, the society of people less intelligent than oneself.

The attitude of withdrawal to a place where "we don't have to apologize" for intelligence is unhealthy. Intelligent people should realize that there's no need to apologize anywhere — not even in "the world outside of Mensa." Let them realize that if they feel cut off from the rest of us, it is their attitudes which are to blame, not their intelligence. Intelligence itself is not a wall. It is a doorway.

If the rest of us seem nasty and brutish, let them be reassured: our bark is worse than our bite. Let them try bending down and scratching us between the ears. We'll love it.

Why protest protesters?

To the Editor:
Mr. Kirby Brouillard (Jan. 27) protested the minority who support North Viet Nam and the National Liberation Front on the grounds that these governments were totalitarian dictatorships. I should like to know what kind of government now exists in South Viet Nam which he and the majority so strongly defend. If the majority is also "sponsoring a totalitarian dictatorship over other people," there would seem to be no basis for his protesting the protesters.

Letters to the editor —

Prof joins president in praising undergrads

To the Editor:

Hurrah for President Bowen's praise of our undergraduates, as reported in The Daily Iowan, Jan. 26. Years ago I used to observe that the best thing about this university was the undergraduates; the next best, on the whole, the graduate students; and, after that, the faculty. As for the administration — well, that has changed.

All the more deplorable is the current tendency to sacrifice the liberal-college interests of undergraduates to the research interests (and specialist limitations) of professors. Or to organize a course listed as "primarily" for undergraduates — including, we hope, future public leaders, mothers, audiences for the arts, ultimately "senior citizens" ready for leisure — as if all excellence consists in these skills which make a young man a successful candidate for a narrow Ph.D. Here, lack of vision is at its worst.

PROFESSORS ARE cynically aware that their salaries can be raised, individually, by constantly making known more pieces of their own research, even if trivial in quality. To find time for this, some of them band together in a kind of tacit conspiracy to let each other get by with the murder of liberal education.

Or a sensible student seeking understanding of several areas of knowledge finds himself in the hands of a zealot who is enthusiastically perverting undergraduate education into a pre-mature training for research technicians.

Young people from various backgrounds in desperate need of cultural breadth are, to put it bluntly, cheated.

"THE HUNGRY" sheep look up, and are not fed."

Contemptible indeed is the pretense that whatever pushes a professor ahead must, by definition, be the same thing that benefits a liberal college — which is paying for the promotions obtained by "offers elsewhere." Both may be valuable, but they are not the same thing. Anyone who says they are is deceived, or self-deceiving.

We can find it in our hearts to pity the poor administrator who must stand between aggressive departmentalists and such a treasury raid.

On totalitarianism

To the Editor:

In Mr. Brouillard's letter (Jan. 27) he mentions hearing "protesters claim no one has told them why the United States is in Viet Nam." I was one of those protesters, but now I see why we are there. We are there to fight totalitarianism. In order to do this we have supported a long string of military dictatorships; totalitarian governments that haven't been able to win the support of the people in spite of billions of dollars of American aid and 200,000 American troops.

We are doing this to repel the "aggressors." The aggressor, of course, is Ho Chi Minh, a native Vietnamese who has led the fight for his country's independence for over 20 years. The 200,000 troops, shipped 8,000 miles across the sea, are, I presume, Vietnamese patriots.

But, nevertheless, we must continue to stamp out totalitarianism wherever it exists in the world, just like we did with Batista in Cuba and Trujillo in the Dominican Republic and Peron in Argentina. Next year we are going to bomb the totalitarian government of Spain.

I can do no better than to end with Mr. Brouillard's statement. "In conclusion, I protest those who support totalitarianism."

Sentiments on snow

To the Editor:

As long as snow continues to fall, poor driving and walking conditions will remain. Iowa City, however, does not improve the situation.

Why does this problem exist? Considering that this is a college town and many people use the streets and walks, it seems that the city should be more concerned and responsible in making driving and walking conditions safer and more convenient.

Does the city have funds set aside to manage such problems in the winter? If so, where is money being spent? Why must ice and snow conditions be handled so poorly by Iowa City? The Iowa City Street Commission can certainly improve its quality of work.

Iowa's 'Jet Set' May Bring New Look In Iowa Football

By STEU BETTERTON
Staff Writer

In a world possessed with titles, this column is proud to announce that the University of Iowa has its own "jet set."

The term may be applied rather loosely, but that's what titles are for anyway.

To be truthful it must be admitted that the University's jet set may very often be found in a plain plane — there are some left you know.

INSTEAD OF BEING playboys the Iowa jet set is more interested in finding boys who can play.

Instead of vicarious pleasures the Iowa jet set seeks the pleasure of finding talented football players who would like to jet — or bus, or drive, or walk — to Iowa City.

INSTEAD OF GOING to the Riviera, or New York, or San Francisco, the Iowa jet set may be found in Chicago, or a less "cosmopolitan" place like Kansas City, or the definitely less cosmopolitan environs of Steubenville, O., and Beaver Falls, Pa.

So it can be seen that the term jet set is being used rather loosely, but a case can be made. The jet set is characterized for its youthfulness and enthusiasm (for high living).

IOWA'S NEW football coaching staff is amply endowed with youth and enthusiasm. The enthusiasm is easy to explain. The Hawkeyes new eight-man staff is full to the brim with the enthusiasm present whenever a change is made in a coaching staff. Of course it is the new coaches who are the optimists.

They have more enthusiasm now than they will ever have. You always do before a game has been played — before a game has been lost — before you hear your own fans boing.

THE NEW HAWKEYE coaching staff is also full of youth. In Gordon Lee, 27; Bud Tynes, 26; and Lynn Stiles, 25, the Hawkeyes have three of the youngest coaches in major college football.

And as these three make the recruiting rounds they could be mistaken for members of the jet set because of their youth and constant movement.

But their trips are not any aimless wanderings. Lee, Tynes, and Stiles are bright, eager, and devoted. They are devoted to the Ray Nagel brand of football. At this point no one in Iowa City can judge something called "the Ray Nagel brand of football," but at least people are reassured by the enthusiasm and approach being used.

NOW THE JET SET coaches are trying to attract some talented football players to come to Iowa. Maybe they can find some players to come to Iowa. Maybe they can find some players to match their own enthusiasm and devotion.

This would be a great thing. The bored sophistication of too many college athletes is a shame to observe if you believe that attitude is as important as talent. Nagel seems to feel this way, and we hope it becomes apparent in his recruiting.

Of course it is going to be two years before anyone finds out how well recruiting went last week or tomorrow, or next week.

Until that time Nagel will have to work his magic on a group of young men who go with the job. One thing is for sure, he's not worried about it.

U-High Upsets West Branch

University High School of Iowa City, led by Karl Hickerson's 21 points, upset Eastern Iowa Hawkeye leader West Branch here Friday night, 54-45.

U-High improved its conference record to 9-3 with the win. The Blues are now 10-4 overall. The loss dropped West Branch, now 9-2 in league play, out of the lead in the Eastern Iowa Hawkeye conference.
