

Weekend Wanderings

By SUE RICKEL
Staff Writer

"The lover's paradise," the boy was saying. "Couples playing musical dates in Iowa City every weekend, switching partners frantically when the music stops until, suddenly, it's real — a butterscotch sundae kind of love."

The guy glared steadily at the people passing us in the Union, making faces at the ones who cast curious or amused glances at him.

He turned to me again, perched on the edge of his chair like an infuriated parakeet.

To be accepted by them, you have to be market material."

With a broad sweep of his arm he indicated the passers-by.

"You know, you've got to have the things that sell. And who wants to be marketable by their standards?"

The boy ran his hand through his mass of Medusa-like curls. They swirled magnificently above his diminutive frame, making him look, at a distance, like a mushroom. It was a pity. This boy obviously saw himself as a volcano.

"I SAY PIFFLE to all these people," he continued. "Piffle to everybody who closes his mind, siphons himself off so he can approach perfection in the marriage market."

The little boy left, leaving behind him a billow of righteous indignation. Thinking over what he had said, I reflected that marketability for girls, as he saw it, was wearing textured stockings and having shiny coiffed hair and smiling a lot.

If you were a boy it was molding yourself into a 'what kind of man reads Playboy' kind of image. Impeccable grooming was a must, no matter who you were.

AND PERFECTION was the person who was the most marketable, who had the best selling potential.

"Marketability is the thing you've got going for you, the only thing," the boy had said.

"When you see kids coming back to Iowa City after vacation you see them squirming impatiently in their seats on buses and trains and planes and cars. They stare out at the landscape, mesmerized, thinking of Julia or Abraham or Harold or Any-one."

"They can hardly wait to get back here, back to their unreal world, where dreams really do come true . . ."

Could that well-intentioned, oppressed little boy possibly look a little more closely at the people he so profanely categorizes as 'art of the system'. Are the faces really so standardized and undiscerning?

"They all look alike to me," he said.

IT INCENSES him that these market products won't accept him 'for what he is.' He is a self-imposed exile on the love isle which is Iowa City. Does he, too, want to partake of the atmosphere of our romantic, University paradise with a girl who accepts 'the real him'? He isn't saying.

"They don't give a person a chance," the kid said. "All they do is look at my blue jeans and my fatigued shirt and my long hair and they laugh. Those assembly-line products think I care!"

A few days after our conversation, I saw the boy making his grand entrance into the Union. He was effecting a swagger as he made his way past tables full of people, but his face was rigid and drained as if he were being marched forward to face a firing squad. I saw him swivel his head around sharply once when he heard laughter, then continue on with an arrogant bracing of his shoulders.

WHEN THE boy joined a group whose apparel was similar to his own, the color returned to his face, and he seemed to join into spirited, intense discussion. Here no 'squares' would intrude.

So, if we're going to pigeon-hole social groups, the 'kooks' laugh at the 'squares', and the 'squares' laugh at the 'kooks'.

I wonder if the boy I talked to, or any of his almost identical counterparts in the 'square' group, have ever taken enough time off from fighting the three-toed trolls to encounter Lord Byron's line, "If I laugh at any mortal thing, it is that I may not weep."

Really, honey. Nobody's after you. We're all in this together.

Foreign Students Arriving To Help Open Greek Week

A bus tour of the campus, a luncheon, a reception and a fraternity-sponsored dance are planned today for the American Field Service (AFS) students taking part in Greek Week.

The 35 foreign students, who attend eastern Iowa high schools this year, will tour the campus by bus at 10:30 a.m. The tour will begin at the Union south entrance.

At noon, IFC and Panhellenic Council will host a luncheon for their weekend guests. Gift boxes will be distributed to the foreign students.

At 2 p.m., the International Center, 219 N. Clinton St., will hold a reception in honor of the AFS students.

A fraternity-sponsored dance at 7:30 p.m. at the Sigma Phi Epsilon house, 702 N. Dubuque St. will close today's events, part of the Greek Week service project.

THE AFS SERVICE project ends Sunday, when the foreign students will attend church services and depart for their homes.

Greek Week continues. Fraternity-sorority exchange dinners and serenades are scheduled for Sunday.

The Interfraternity Council (IFC) Queens' Tea will be held at 2 p.m. at the Union Old Gold Room when the five finalists for Miss IFC will be announced.

Quaker Calls Military Effort In Viet Nam Weak, Wrong

"Military response to Communism is inadequate and immoral. It is leading this country down the wrong road," declared Russell Johnson of the Friends' Service in a lecture Friday evening in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol.

Approximately 75 people listened to his address, sponsored by the Political Science Discussion Club.

Johnson is the former director of a series of conferences and seminars for students and diplomats sponsored by the Quaker organization, Friend's Service, in 13 southeastern Asian countries from 1961 to 1965.

"I feel we should pull out our military forces in South Viet Nam," he said. "There is no legal, ethical reason for our presence there."

RUSSELL JOHNSON
"Down wrong road"

Johnson suggested withdrawal might be accomplished without loss of face by the United States by substituting an international presence in Viet Nam, including Afro-Asian countries.

"We must face the fact of a Communist Viet Nam, both North and South," Johnson said. He added that this would be better for the welfare of the Vietnamese people, as compared to their present state.

Earlier Johnson stressed his belief that Communist China is not interested in land conquest and said he foresaw continued conflict in southeast Asia because of social conditions there.

NIC GOERES, A3, Dyersville, publicly burned what he said was his grade slip Friday afternoon in the Union in protest against what was on the report. No charges have been yet filed.

Half Dollars Going, Going...

By BOB BUZOGANY
Staff Writer

(Ed. Note: This is the first of a two-part series on the coin shortage.)

Take a dollar bill and try to get it changed for two half dollars at any retail store in Iowa City, or anywhere in the country for that matter. Your odds of receiving the two halves are not very good, and the chances of receiving two Kennedy half dollars are even slimmer.

In case you haven't noticed, the country is experiencing a coin shortage, and the shortage of half dollars is critical.

Though more than 400 million Kennedy half dollars have been minted since their introduction in March of 1964 (enough to give two to every individual in the nation), the coin has almost disappeared.

In fact, according to Miss Eva Adams, director of the United States Mint, all halves including the older silver halves with Ben Franklin's likeness on them are "almost nonexistent."

ONE IOWA CITY retailer recently said that he had not used a half dollar for commercial trade in six months. Others stated that having more than three halves in the till at one time had become a rare experience in the last year.

Some vending concerns in the country are removing the 50 cent slots from their change-making machines, and many supermarkets are using the half dollar slot in their cash drawers merely for the storage of coin rolls of smaller denominations or as another quarter slot.

Local bank officials report that, though the coin shortage has "eased up a little" from what it was three to nine months ago, the critical shortage of halves has left a supply of only a few hundred dollars in 50 cent pieces in their vaults.

THIS MEAGER amount is hardly enough to supply the teller windows, much less supply customers, said Ben E. Summerville, vice president of the Iowa State Bank & Trust Company. He added that every day his bank received requests from area banks, even as far away as Chicago, for "all the change we can spare."

The demand for silver is especially in electronic circuitry, when added to the amount needed for coinage, exceeds the current silver output. The U.S. Treasury's reserves, which once contained more than 2.5 billion ounces of silver, are down to less than 873 million ounces.

Though there is a great deal of searching for silver mines on the part of the government, poor results suggest that the Treasury Department will have exhausted completely its supply of silver before too long, according to the current issue of COIN-age magazine.

THE MAGAZINE article further states that due to the world shortage of silver, "total imports by the United States will not exceed 55 to 60 million ounces during 1966." Between 75 and 100 million ounces of silver will be required through the remainder of this year alone for coinage.

The demand for silver for artistic and industrial use, especially in electronic circuitry, when added to the amount needed for coinage, exceeds the current silver output. The U.S. Treasury's reserves, which once contained more than 2.5 billion ounces of silver, are down to less than 873 million ounces.

To answer the silver shortage problem, Congress passed the 1965 Coinage Act, which allowed for the first change in the metal content of U.S. coins since 1853.

Currently being circulated are silverless quarters which consist of a copper core clad with a nickel-copper alloy. Dimes of similar content and reduced-silver halves (less than 50 per cent silver as compared to the current 90 per cent silver half dollar), are expected to go into circulation within a month or so.

But due to indiscriminate coin hoarding by the public, increased industrial use, and increased use of coins (U.S. News and World Report estimates there are 83 million vending machine purchases daily alone), the government has to increase coin production greatly to meet the demand.

THE WALL STREET Journal reports that the government has doubled its original plans for making the new half dollars to around 80 million for the first six months of this year, and will produce 1.9 billion clad quarters during the same period.

In the fiscal year ending June 30, seven billion new dimes, quarters and halves will have been made. A record of just under two billion silver coins were produced in the fiscal year ending last June.

A WORLDWIDE shortage of silver added to the increased demand for the use of coins in daily living has resulted in a shortage of silver coins and has nearly caused the silver half dollar to disappear, even from the handful of coins pictured above.

Doubtful Congress Offered Viet Ballot

Stephen Smith Gets 3 Years On Probation

DES MOINES (AP) — Stephen Smith, 21, who burned his draft card in search of an effective means of protest against United States military action in Viet Nam, was placed on three years probation by Federal Judge Roy Stephenson Friday.

The probation was contingent upon Smith's applying for a replacement draft registration card within ten days, and carrying it with him at all times through the probationary period.

IN THE EVENT Smith is inducted into the armed services or enlists, the judge said, the probation automatically ends. He said that if Smith failed to carry out the terms of the probation he would be called in and sentenced.

Smith, wearing a gray suit and minus the beard he was wearing when he burned his draft card at an informal student meeting known as "Soapbox Sound off" at the University of Iowa last Oct. 20, listened impassively as Judge Stephenson announced SMITH

HIS BLONDE WIFE of six days sat at the counsel table as sentence was pronounced. Smith and the former Frances Rawson, 18, of Cedar Rapids, were married last Sunday.

Smith was 25 minutes late in showing up for his sentencing. His attorney, Craig T. Sawyer, assistant professor of law at Drake University, said the youth made a wrong turn and got lost on the way to court.

Sawyer said that in pronouncing sentence the court should consider the reason for imposing punishment.

IF THE SENTENCE is to deter anyone from burning his draft card, it will not accomplish that purpose, Sawyer said. "A stiff sentence might even encourage others to burn their draft cards as a form a civil protest." If the sentence is for rehabilitation, I don't believe Mr. Smith needs any rehabilitation."

The attorney said Smith is now working full-time, is recently married and is "out of the environment in which he burned his draft card."

Sawyer also maintained that Smith's aim of promoting dialogue against war was a "laudable purpose" but conceded that Smith "chose an unlawful means to accomplish it."

Currently being circulated are silverless quarters which consist of a copper core clad with a nickel-copper alloy. Dimes of similar content and reduced-silver halves (less than 50 per cent silver as compared to the current 90 per cent silver half dollar), are expected to go into circulation within a month or so.

"A Choice I made," the film story of five volunteers who work in India, will be shown at 4 and 7:30 p.m. Monday and at 4 p.m. Tuesday in Shambaugh Auditorium.

Information about Peace Corps openings and the need for more volunteers will be distributed daily at the information booth in the Union Gold Feather Lobby.

Rusk Offers Plan At Senate Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk told a worried Congress on Friday if there was doubt about the U.S. position in Viet Nam, there should be a vote — to let us find out.

But first, he said, every member should think long and deeply about the real path to peace.

"There are moments when toughness is essential for peace," Rusk said later.

President Johnson was silent on the suggestion Rusk put before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a nationwide radio-television audience.

"If there is doubt in Congress about the policy, let us vote. Let us find out," Rusk said.

"I WOULD hope that before the votes are taken that members of the Congress would go into a quiet corner and think very long and deeply about what we've been through in the last three decades," Rusk said, "and on what basis can we build a peace — and then decide which vote is a vote for war and which vote is a vote for peace."

Sen. Wayne Morse, (D-Ore.), a critic of the Johnson policy, has proposed that the Senate repeal the Aug. 10, 1964, resolution with which Congress authorized any measure — including armed force — to bar Communist aggression in South Viet Nam.

Morse said he would seek a vote on his proposal next week.

WHILE THE committee heard Rusk's testimony, the Senate was considering a bill that would authorize another $4.5 billion to pay for the Vietnamese war.

"Now we have pleadings filed on both sides," Morse had said after Rusk outlined the administration case. "There must be a political settlement in the United States."

It was hours later that Rusk talked of a vote.

"How do we organize a peace?" Rusk asked the committee.

A crowd of some 1,800, who packed Lisbon's largest theatre, clapped loudly after the performance for the students of the University of Lisbon who made up some 90 per cent of the audience.

"The American group confirmed in this performance what had been said about them before — they are young but excellent musicians," a leading music critic said.

Rusk already had said repeal of the resolution, the step Morse seeks, would harm U.S. interests. He said it would bring about a major change in the world situation that would be disadvantageous to the United States."

Committee Chairman J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.), said there must be something wrong with U.S. diplomacy if it could not get the Communists to talk about a compromise.

RUSK SEEMED annoyed. He said the Communists were barring the path to peace.

"Senator," he said, "is it just possible that there's something wrong with them?"

Rusk said one-sided worry about a widening conflict could lead the Communists to expand the Asian struggle.

Stupid senate

IOWA'S STUDENT SENATE BONEHEADS have given students one of the best arguments we can think of for implementing a governmental reorganization plan immediately and completely — before the spring elections.

The senators spent almost an entire evening Thursday in discussing what they thought were the issues of the reorganization plan. Their discussion demonstrated a total lack of familiarity with the plan as presented last month in a report published in the Iowan.

The Senate treasurer was under the impression that the plan, which calls for financial support to the tune of $2 a year from 16,000 students, would provide $48,000 for the total budget.

When it was pointed out that $2 times 16,000 students does not equal $48,000, he said no one had explained the budget proposal to him at all. He said all he wanted was clarification.

Other members of the Senate seemed to be similarly confused. In fact, when they were polled, only about half the senators at Thursday's meeting even said they had read the reorganization report.

The resolution which this fuzzy-minded outfit passed was expectedly ambiguous. It favored the "spirit" of reorganization, but opposed changing anything.

We suggest that if the present senators were really interested in representing their constituents intelligently, they would all have studied the reorganizational report and would have attended some of the informational meetings held during the past few weeks. They would have asked questions and clarified things they did not understand.

The truth is that not even 10 student senators have attended any meetings to ask any questions. The majority can only criticize the report because it is confusing to them.

If a student senate under any system cannot attract people who are more interested than the present bunch, student government at Iowa is bound to remain farcical and far removed from the "main stream" of student life.

Policy salesmen

THERE IS A TRADITION that has dominated U. S. foreign policy making — the tradition of executive supremacy.

With few exceptions Congress has remained a silent partner in the business of policy making. And, after all, Congress had its reasons. Information is vital to the intelligent formation of policy, and the President has always had more of the right kind of information than have Congressmen. Then, too, there's the question of constituency — the President is a more natural representative of the country at large. Congressmen, if they hope to be reelected, must not neglect the pet projects of the folks back home for the folks across the sea.

Control over the national purse is supposed to be the constitutional safeguard against the ill-advised action of a wild-eyed President. But pity the poor Congressman when confronted with the testimony of military experts who insist that it will take $4.8 billion more to effectively fight Communism in Viet Nam. Who are they, these legislative jacks-of-all-trades, to defy acknowledged expertise?

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, headed by J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.), has apparently tired of traditional passive role and has decided to remind the world of its existence. Heated arguments are the order of the day when the Foreign Relations Committee gets together. Be it Latin American or Viet Nam, committee members vociferously line up in defense of the various policies they advocate.

But the battle isn't confined to the committee. Wednesday, the floor of the Senate was the scene of a lively discussion on the merits of a $4.8 billion emergency appropriation for the Viet Nam war. Sen. Russell Long (D-La.) accused the Senatorial opposition to the war effort of dividing and confusing the country. He reminded his listeners that we are the good guys and must not tarnish our honor by withdrawal. Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) disagreed, of course, but added that we should protect Our Boys Overseas even though they shouldn't be there.

The Senate has at least put its foot in the door of foreign policy making, and the way things look now, there isn't much likelihood of it backing out. As for the President — he may not buy what the Senate is selling, but he won't be able to avoid listening to the pitch.

RUSS SILL, Iowa's top wrestler in the 167-pound class, gets the upper advantage on his Michigan State opponent in meet action Friday afternoon. Sill was "de-feeted" in a 6-5 decision, and the Hawks came out on the short end of 21-8 point total.

Spartan Matmen Pin Hawks

By RON BLISS

Assistant Sports Editor

Michigan State University made Iowa its ninth wrestling victim of the season Friday afternoon, pinning a 21-8 defeat on the Hawkeyes in a dual meet at the Field House.

For the Michigan Spartans, though, the victory didn't come as easily as expected.

IOWA, A team that had won only two of its eight meets during the season and had been shut out in three of them, didn't figure to be much of a match for the highly touted Spartans, who came into the meet sporting an 8-1 record and boasting two Big 10 champions.

With the odds heavily against them, however, the Hawks put on a gallant show, winning two matches, tying another, and losing several close decisions.

Iowa jumped to an early lead in the meet when 123-pounder Jim Ewoldsen scored a 3-1 decision over MSU's Fran Larsen, but soon lost its edge when former Iowan Dale Anderson of Michigan State mauled Iowa's Garland Smith 12-0 in the 130-pound match.

FOR ANDERSON, a former state champion from West Waterloo, it was a happy homecoming; he not only won his match, but also got a chance to meet his former coach Bob Siddens, who was the referee for the meet. Anderson's record for Michigan State this year is now 4-1.

The only fall in the meet came in the 137-pound match. Michigan State's Carr threw Don Berger in 5:46 of their match. A win by Iowa's Ray Davis at 145 and Dennis Wegner's draw at 137 pulled the Hawks to within two points at 10-8, but the Spartans then won narrow decisions at 167 and heavyweight and were awarded a forfeit in the 177-pound match and won going away.

RUSS SILL, Iowa's top wrestler led his opponent throughout much of his match at 167, but lost out near the end of the match and dropped a narrow 6-5 decision.

In the heavyweight division, Iowa's Dave Moss gave away nearly 40 pounds in weight to Michigan State's mammoth Big 10 champion Jeff Richardson, but lost by only a 3-0 margin.

Following the meet, Iowa coach Dave McCuskey complimented his team for a fine effort and said that everyone wrestled well. McCUSKEY said he forfeited

Fashion Title Is Offered By Glamour

Applications for Glamour Magazine's Best-Dressed Coed will be distributed to women's housing units today.

The local contest, sponsored by Gamma Alpha Chi professional advertising fraternity for women, will be March 1 and 2 at the Union.

Each housing unit may nominate one contestant. Applications are due at 5 p.m. Thursday at the Office of Student Affairs.

Local and area judges will choose the University representative to the national contest from an interview and the modeling of outfits in three categories — campuswear, date dress and semi-formal dress.

Ten semifinalists will be chosen after individual interviews March 1.

These 10 will model all three outfits in the final round of the contest at 7:30 p.m. March 2 in the Union Illinois Room.

A runner-up and a winner will be selected.
