

Hanoi, Johnson Appraise War

United States Is Not Heading Toward Wider War, LBJ Says

NEW YORK (AP) — President Johnson said Wednesday night the United States is not caught up "in a blind escalation of force that is pulling us headlong toward a wider war," possibly with Red China.

In his latest reply to critics of his Viet Nam policy, and hundreds of them were gathered with their anti-war placards in advance of his arrival, Johnson said this country is using only the amount of force necessary and that "under careful control."

Said the President in an address prepared for delivery at a Freedom House awards dinner: "There is not, and there will not be, a mindless escalation."

Johnson said the war with Communist China would erupt "never by any act of ours — and not if there is any reason left behind the wild words from Peking."

In a passage obviously directed at the Red Chinese, he said the United States has threatened no one, does not seek the end of any regime — and will not.

"We can live with anger in word as long as it is matched by caution in deed," he said. But he emphasized that, "To any armed attack, we will reply."

And in what apparently was meant as a grim warning to Peking, he said: "We have measured the strength — and the weakness — of others, and we know our own."

Johnson was speaking at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Before he arrived some 2,500 anti-war pickets paraded outside the hotel.

They chanted "LBJ, how many children did you kill today?" and "Burn draft cards, not children."

Johnson contended "the tide of battle has turned" in Viet Nam and said the United States persists in the search for peace.

Peace Corps Goals Cited By Volunteer

By BILL SIMBRO
Staff Writer

A panel of three returned Peace Corps volunteers and two University faculty members tried Wednesday night to answer the question, "After five years: Has the Peace Corps done its job?"

The discussion, held in 300 Chemistry Building, was part of the week-long visit of Peace Corps volunteers to the campus.

THE GOALS of the Peace Corps were described by Dick Knight, who recently returned from community development work in Ecuador, as being:

1. To supply manpower for needed projects.
2. To give Americans a better understanding of other nations.
3. To give people of other countries a better understanding of Americans.

"The hardest thing to learn is to find the local people who know, perhaps better than you, how to do what needs to be done," said Rodney Slummons, who did community development work in Chile.

THE VOLUNTEERS were asked by David H. Andrews, assistant professor of sociology and anthropology, to describe their single most important accomplishment.

Slummons pointed to the formation of a cooperative by a farmer, a local agricultural official, a lawyer and a "healer." They had previously been competitors.

KNIGHT DESCRIBED a six-month effort to organize a local committee to plan a new school and to raise the necessary one-third building costs. This qualified the village for the other two-thirds of the cost from the national government.

Miss Candace Lamb, a native of Des Moines, described her contributions as an elementary teacher in Tanzania in terms of "teaching children better English than they could have learned from native teachers, and letting them learn about America by coming to know me as a person."

ANDREWS SAID the long range impact of the Peace Corps in a country was minimal. The values, he said, are in the aid given a village which is untouched by other American programs and in the effect it has on the individual Peace Corps volunteer.

Also participating in the panel was Dee W. Norton, associate professor of psychology.

JULIET RESTS HER HEAD on Romeo's shoulder near the city gates, in the forthcoming University Theatre production, Romeo and Juliet. The play, which opens tonight, stars John O'Keefe, G. Marshalltown, and Linda John, AI, Iowa Falls.

Romeo And Juliet To Open Tonight

The University Theatre's production of "Romeo and Juliet" opens at 8 tonight. The cast is enthusiastic and well prepared, according to the two lead performers.

Linda John, AI, Iowa Falls, who plays Juliet, said Wednesday that the feel of the play and the attitudes of the actors were fine. She predicted the play would be successful.

"The costumes are fantastic and the set is excellent," she said. "The things we have to work with are marvelous. When we take time out to look at ourselves, we realize how beautiful the costumes really are."

John O'Keefe, G, Marshalltown, who plays Romeo, said that the actors were holding up quite well under the problems of the script.

"The people are not acting in a Shakespearean manner," he said. "They are trying to appear as people and not as Shakespearean characters so the audience may look at them and be able to sympathize with them as not being an abstract entity."

"Romeo and Juliet" directed by Jean Scharfenberg, assistant professor of speech, is the third play of the season.

The play will run tonight through March 5 at the University Theatre. All performances are sold out.

2 Students Seek Office Of President

Tom Hanson, AI, Jefferson, and Dick Jennings, AI, Iowa City, have filed nomination papers with the Student Senate Office to run for student body president in the March 9 election, the Senate Office announced Wednesday.

Names of persons running for other offices were also released.

Hanson and Jennings are presently student senators.

John Rupp, AI, Cherokee, will run for student body vice president on Hanson's ticket; Frank Renner, AI, Bartonville, Ill., will be Jennings' running mate.

THOSE who have returned nomination papers for senator-at-large include: Lee Dicker, AI, Iowa City; John Pelton, AI, Clinton; Phil Reisetter, AI, Jewell; Peter Frantz, AI, Deerfield, Ill.; Hugh Leo, AI, Des Moines; Randy Swisher, AI, Atlantic; and Bob Houghton, AI, Red Oak.

Four senators-at-large will be elected.

Five Town Men senators will be elected from among eight candidates: William Scott Power, AI, Newton; Dave Beed, AI, Cedar Rapids; Philip Hubbard, AI, Iowa City; Dan Grady, AI, Iowa City; Ed Lemons, B2, Iowa City; Donald B. Johnson, AI, Iowa City; Randy Wylie, AI, Brooklyn; and Larry Walshire, AI, Solon.

THREE TOWN WOMEN senators will be elected from among five candidates who have filed papers: Lynne Ann Rubel, AI, Laurens; Kathy Corcoran, AI, Iowa City; Sue Ellen Thomas, AI, West Branch; Diane Neumaier, AI, Moorhead, Minn.; and Bonnie Bachman, AI, Marengo.

Running for married student senator is Jay Eaton, AI, Waukon. Five married student senator offices will be open in the all-campus elections.

More names may be added to the list of candidates. Lyle Krewson, AI, Van Horne, Elections Committee chairman, was out of town Wednesday and additional nomination papers may have been returned to him, according to the Senate office.

A meeting of candidates and their campaign managers will be held at 4 p.m. Thursday in the Union Lucas-Dodge Room. Campaign rules will be explained, and positions on the ballot will be determined.

Hanoi Will Clarify Parley Conditions

MOSCOW (AP) — An envoy of Communist North Viet Nam promised the British to clarify some of Hanoi's conditions for a Viet Nam peace conference, qualified sources reported early Thursday.

The understanding was given by Lee Chang, the head of the Hanoi regime's diplomatic mission in Moscow, after Britain's disarmament minister, Lord Chalfont, made a surprise call on him Wednesday and discussed possible ways of promoting a Viet Nam peace.

SOME BRITISH authorities, after extensive diplomatic probing in Moscow, have formed an impression that Hanoi no longer expects National Liberation Front delegates to serve as the only representatives of South Viet Nam at any peace parley.

Chalfont, acting on orders of British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and with the full knowledge of Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, called on Lee and, according to British sources, spent much of the afternoon with him.

The upshot of the encounter seemed to be that something of a dialogue might develop between the British and the North Vietnamese on a possible peace conference.

IT WOULD be up to the North Vietnamese to decide how they propose replying to the British request for clarification. The British government, however, is known to be willing to send a high-ranking minister to Hanoi any time for direct talks with Ho Chi Minh's government.

To some extent, Lee's reception of Chalfont was a welcome development for Wilson, for he had made little progress in his attempts to persuade Kosygin and his top colleagues to join with Britain in reconvening parties to the Geneva conference of 1954 to act as a forum for peace.

Kosygin, President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev met Wilson's repeated pleas for cooperation with the argument that the Soviet Union has neither a direct standing in the crisis nor the right to intervene.

On the second day of the three-day British-Soviet exchange these developments were reported:

- WILSON ASKED the Soviet Union to cooperate in making the Middle East a nuclear-free zone where even conventional arms would be controlled. This, if accepted, would bar the region to Britain's Cyprus-based H-bombers, U.S. Strategic Air Command planes in Libya and any Polaris submarines the Allies may choose to deploy in the Mediterranean.
- WILSON AFFIRMED British interest in a disengagement of East-West ground forces on both

To Zone, Or Not To Zone

A request to abolish zoning laws was heard at a public hearing Wednesday night by the County Board of Supervisors. Other persons, however, said the laws prevented chaotic development.

Joseph Zajicek, Rural Route 5, Iowa City was the first to speak from the floor. Zajicek urged that the present zoning laws be abolished.

"When you zone land, you zone people," Zajicek said. "There is only one road with county zoning and that is a road leading towards loss of liberty."

Zajicek then asked for a hand vote of those who would vote against zoning laws if given the opportunity. Of the 60 people in the audience, 19 registered their disapproval of the present laws.

Mrs. Carol Spaziani, 2820 Brookside Dr., countered Zajicek's remarks saying that she favored zoning as a "legally accepted method of preventing chaotic development of Iowa City."

Roland Wayner, Rural Route 2, suggested that the commission adopt a uniform building code, an electric code and a plumbing code.

Mrs. Norma Swartzendruber of Swisher recommended that the zoning commission meet regularly in the future and suggested that their powers be more specifically delineated.

One final comment was made by Edmond Freund of Route 3 who said that trailer parks should in the future be placed over a sewage system as many of the vehicles have difficulty with their sewage disposal units.

APOLLO SHOT POSTPONED
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — With the weather outlook still bleak, the space agency decided to wait until Friday to attempt to launch the first unmanned Apollo moonship. It scheduled the launching of an "instant picture" weather satellite for today.

The Apollo firing had been scheduled Wednesday, but was wiped out by heavy rain and winds that belted Cape Kennedy.

Enemy Is Elusive In Poverty War

By JUDY BRUHN
City Editor

The Johnson County marriage of Uncle Sam and anti-poverty seems amicable, but this may be because they seldom live together.

Out of the 11,055 persons the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) places in the poverty class, only about 110 have participated in anti-poverty programs so far. Total grants for the county's Neighborhood Youth Corps and Head Start programs amount to about $75,000.

Grants pending approval — the community action program, sheltered workshop and adult high school — are valued at about $236,000.

These programs have developed under the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964.

THE DENUNCIATION and questioning that have met anti-poverty efforts in other communities have not been heard here. This may be because the anti-poverty programs are doing their job well, or because they are not doing any job at all.

Whether there actually is a job to be done is another question. The Iowa OEO calculated a 20.6 per cent poverty level for the county. A family with an income below $3,000 a year is said to be in poverty. The state average was 25.3 per cent and the national average about 20 per cent.

Johnson County's population in 1960 was $3,663, but this figure includes students living off-campus in Iowa City. The Registrar's Office estimates that there are about 6,000 of these students, and that about 2,000 of them are married. Many of these families do not earn more than $3,000 a year. In all of Johnson County in 1960 there were 12,245 families.

DEFINITIVE OEO guides issued later vary the poverty income according to such factors as whether the family is rural, how many children are in the family and whether the head of the family is retired. This changes the composition of the poverty class, says Dr. John D. Garfield, president of the Hawkeye Area Community Action Program (HACAP), which is coordinating local anti-poverty efforts.

The number of rural persons and the total number of families in poverty are reduced, he says, but the number of children is increased.

Garfield says he does not have any figures with the refined estimates for Johnson County but he estimates that now about 12,000 people are members of families with incomes under the poverty level.

Mrs. Cleo Marsolais, director of the Johnson County Social Welfare Department, also thinks the poverty proportion is not out of line.

"YOU'D BE surprised," she says, explaining that the county is full of poverty pockets.

Scattered locations is one reason people do not realize the existence of poverty, she says. Because they do not have any contact with it they don't believe that families can live in houses with sewage in the basement and that mothers with seven children may have to carry their household water in garbage cans.

If the poor do exist in such numbers, though, the poverty people are having trouble finding them.

Thirty-five persons are on the governing board of HACAP. Five represent each of these groups: governmental units; health, education and welfare agencies, public and private; business, professional, religious and civic organizations; the rural residents; and the University. A sixth group consists of 10 residents without particular affiliation, seven of whom represent the poor.

BUT, SAYS Garfield, "when we looked around for existing organizations that might be said to represent poor people, there simply weren't any."

The search for representatives will continue to be a constant problem, Garfield admits.

Another perspective on the extent of county poverty comes from the social welfare office. About 200 persons are on old-age assistance, reports Mrs. Marsolais. Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) cases number 94, plus 12 being serviced for other counties. About 350 children are on child welfare.

REGARDING HOUSING, preliminary results of a welfare service survey showed that about 188 housing units in Iowa

City, Coralville and the adjacent area were on general assistance. This involved 650 persons, one half of whom were over 65 years of age. Forty-six "inadequate" houses were found among the 87 child welfare and ADC cases surveyed.

Present programs are dealing in the hundreds, then, compared to the OEO's figures in the thousands. Local anti-poverty workers seem more concerned with planning than with counting.

Give a poor family clothing and money for meals and they can exist today. The piecemeal approach, however, does not alleviate their problems to help them live tomorrow.

"We're going to focus on what puts them in that situation," says C. Edwin Gilmour, director of the Iowa OEO.

WHAT IS NEW in community action programs, in Garfield's opinion, is this focus on better means to intermesh welfare activities so they meet needs. The programs would then be more efficient and the money would be spent more meaningfully.

Speaking as a welfare worker, Mrs. Marsolais concurs.

"Long ago we lost the attitude that financial help alone answers the problem," she says. "It's a beginning."

Basic needs of a family must be cared for first, she says, but next the family should be referred for health care, housing and education.

As for the general poverty effort in the county, Garfield says it is still "too early to tell whether the so-called war on poverty is going to be successful."

"WE'LL KNOW A little better after we get our professional staff organized and we ask people to perform specific functions," he says about community support.

Most segments of the community, especially the Board of Supervisors, have expressed their support of HACAP. But Garfield admits that the attendance of fewer than 100 persons at the public meeting Aug. 5 to elect HACAP board members was "disappointingly small."

Some of this he attributes to the human tendency to put unpleasant things, such as poverty, out of mind. Some he says is because people aren't sure what the program involves.

"There remains a good deal of public confusion about the program and what it entails, a fear on the part of many people that it is merely going to duplicate existing health, education and welfare services," he says. "I am determined it will not."

THE COMMUNITY action programs come under Title II-A of the Economic Opportunity Act. A statement from the Iowa OEO says the program, "a cooperative venture, representing all public and private resources of the community, will focus on the totality of poverty, its causes and results."

In late October the HACAP submitted a request for a program development grant of about $34,000. The money would be used to hire a professional staff to analyze the incidence of poverty, its characteristics, existing services and the programs needed. No federal decision on the request has yet been made.

Also pending federal approval are conduct and administration grants for two specific programs. The two — an adult high school completion program and a sheltered workshop for handicapped adults — have been adopted by HACAP as preference components.

PROGRAMS THAT have been so adopted receive priority in the awarding of federal grants.

A grant for about $45,000 for six months is sought for the adult high school program, which would be administered by the Iowa City Community School District. The night classes would lead to a high school diploma.

The 1960 census reports that 6,847 Johnson County residents between the ages of 25 and 65 have not finished high school. Ralph Wahrer, director of adult education for the school district, estimates that only 100 of these might attend the high school.

The other grant sought is for the sheltered workshop, which would be run by Goodwill In-

Poverty

Proposed exchange

THE QUESTION of who is a citizen of Iowa and who is not is an important one when it comes time to pay tuition. Gov. Harold Hughes has said he agrees with University law student George Clarke who is asking the courts to lower his tuition rate. Clarke is originally from Illinois and is married and lives in Iowa City. He plans to practice law in Iowa after graduation.

Probably most Iowa students agree with Gov. Hughes in supporting Clarke's position. It is difficult to see how a person who is self-supporting, married and over 21 can be considered an Illinois resident simply because he lived there a few years ago and still has relatives living there.

The Governor says he favors a plan which would allow exchanges of university students from Iowa and other states. This program would probably be similar to the traveling scholar program which has been arranged among the Big 10 schools and the University of Chicago. Under this arrangement, a student may pay tuition and be enrolled at one school, but go to another school for a semester or so to pick up special classes there. This program is, of course, designed to work on a limited scale.

There is no doubt but what some sort of massive exchange would be highly beneficial to everyone. Students who wish to specialize in their study might find a university outside Iowa more suited to their needs. Students from other states might find Iowa best equipped in some teaching areas. There is also benefit in mixing students from different parts of the country; this fights the provincial atmosphere which a homogeneous school tends to have.

An exchange program does have its drawbacks, however, and state officials should keep these in mind.

If Iowa exchanged students with other states and most out-of-state students here paid the same tuition as Iowa residents, the state Legislature would have to increase its support for higher education in order to make up the difference.

If the Legislature did not increase appropriations and an exchange program were put in effect, tuition rates for everyone would have to be raised — probably more than $60 a year — in order to make ends meet under the present budget.

An across the board tuition hike is not a desirable alternative.

If state officials are able to work out an exchange plan, it will be a boon to Iowa students. It should be remembered, however, that a suitable exchange, like almost everything else worthwhile, is going to cost money.

Studying our policy

ALTHOUGH THERE IS CURRENTLY much heated debate in the U. S. Senate over the American position in Viet Nam, there is little doubt that President Johnson's request for $4.8 billion will pass.

After the President has his money, what then? If Johnson does not choose to be influenced by the dissent recently aired in the Senate, what can be done?

Sen. George McGovern told us Tuesday that he thinks the Senate will expand its present discussion of Viet Nam into a broader discussion of all U. S. policy in Asia, including policies toward China.

This will be a wise decision. It is obvious that the problems in Viet Nam loom as large as they do in this country because of China. Even if by some miracle the present war could be negotiated to a speedy and final settlement, the problem of China would still haunt our Asian policy.

The United States officially does not recognize China. What it does unofficially is difficult to know. At a foreign policy meeting in Des Moines a few months ago, a State Department official was asked what the United States was going to do when Red China is admitted to the United Nations. The official replied that China was not going to be admitted.

He was then asked what this country would do if at any time in the future Red China is admitted (even if the chances are that it will not be). The official replied that the United States does not believe China will ever be admitted to the United Nations, and so the U. S. has never made any policy plans to face that possibility.

It was reassuring to learn Tuesday that at least some officials in the U. S. Government (Sen. McGovern and his colleagues) realize the significance of the China question and are ready to face it.

Okay team, let's all get organized

By ART BUCHWALD
WASHINGTON — Mr. James R. Hoffa, of the Teamsters' Union, has offered to organize all the professional athletes in the United States into his union. The sport that needs it the most, they say, is pro football. While there may be many advantages to having the pro football players in the Teamsters Union, there could be some disadvantages, as you will see if you come into the locker room of the Washington Redskins. It is half time and the Toughskins are behind 34 to 0.

The coach is standing in front of his blackboard. "You're playing like a bunch of bums. Higgedorf, why didn't you take out the left end on play number 31?" "I'm not supposed to take out ends. The union contract says I only have to take out tackles. If I took out the end, I'd be taking a job away from a blocking back."

The coach, trying to keep his temper: "All right, let's forget that. Mickazinski, why did you drop that pass that was right in your arms?" "I caught my quota for the half. If I caught another one, the guys would have thought I was trying to speed up the game."

"Well, if you drop another pass, I'm pulling you out of the game and putting Wallnicki in."

"YOU CAN'T do it. I've got three years seniority over Wallnicki. If you pull me out, the entire team walks off the field."

The coach clenches his teeth. "Harrison, you're the foreman as well as the quarterback. Can't you get any more work out of the men?" Harrison says, "You're lucky we're here at all. We're not supposed to play on Sunday." The coach says, "But you're getting time-and-a-half."

"We want double pay, and we also want to be paid for the time we spend going to and from the locker room."

"All right, bring it up at contract time. But right now I'm concerned with winning the game. The defense has been lousy. What happened to you, Brantowski, when they made that hole through off center?"

"I was resting. It says here, 'The linebackers are entitled to take a rest after every three plays.' If I didn't take the rest, I would have been fined by the union."

The coach wheels on his defensive back. "And where were you, Eberhardt, when they threw the screen pass?"

"Screen passes aren't in my jurisdiction. My job is to cover the flanker. If you want me to cover screen passes, you're going to have to get authorization from the local."

"Okay, okay," the coach says. "Now I wasn't going to tell you this, but it looks like I've got to. Just before Jimmy Hoffa went to the Supreme Court to appeal his jail sentence, he said to me, 'Coach, if ever things get rough, and the team is down, and they're getting the hell beat out of them, tell them — tell them to win one for The Hoffa.'"

TEARS START welling in the players' eyes. "Gee, coach," the halfback sobs, "You wouldn't be kidding us?"

The coach looks at them. "Those were the last words Jimmy Hoffa said to me. Well, what do you say, team?"

The foreman jams on his helmet and shouts, "LET'S GO OUT THERE, GUYS, AND MURDER THE BUMS."

'Nevsky' is epic pageant

By DON PASQUELLA
For The Iowan
Sergei Eisenstein's "Alexander Nevsky" is a strong departure from the Eisenstein of Potemkin and "Ten Days That Shook the World."

Not only is "Alexander Nevsky" Eisenstein's first completed sound film, but it is also the first time that he had vast studio settings and technical facilities at his disposal. His product from this way of working is an epic pageant of primitive propaganda — which is exactly what he intended it to be.

In 1938 the menace of Fascism was growing in Germany. The Soviet leader wanted a film to arouse the masses and prepare them to meet any war with a sense of optimism. For this purpose Eisenstein chose the patriotic saga of Alexander Nevsky, the Prince who led the Russian people in their decisive victory against the invading Teutonic knights of the thirteenth century.

THE MOST FAMOUS sequence in this film is the Battle on the Ice, the clashing of the two armies on the frozen Lake Peipus on April 5, 1242, where the Teutonic invaders were trapped by Nevsky's peasants and were forced to withdraw. As they withdrew they stumbled onto an area of thin ice and were dragged down by their heavy armor.

When Eisenstein was working on the shooting script of "Alexander Nevsky" he turned to Milton's "Paradise Lost" so that Milton's imagery of the Battle of Heaven becomes the Battle on the Ice in "Nevsky."

Eisenstein had always been concerned with the musical characteristics of montage, that is, the conception of a sequence of shots as a sequence of melody and rhythm. With the close collaboration of Sergei Prokofiev, who wrote the beautiful score for the film, Eisenstein was able to evolve many new ideas of audio-visual technique. One of his theories was to use the rhythm from an emotional experience to create the same kind of emotional experience in the spectator; a kind of psychological feedback.

One area in which Eisenstein is consistently weak is in his character development. He always does best when handling large masses of people in sweeping movements. When he has to deal with individuals he seems to be less confident. The individuals portrayed are never fully developed; they are important only in their relation to the events. We end up knowing very little about the man, Alexander Nevsky, even though he is the main character of the movie.

TO US TODAY the visual splendor and epic treatment of "Alexander Nevsky" may appear to be heavy-handed, a sort of comic book flamboyance. But we have to keep in mind that the film was not made primarily for an American university audience but for the Russian masses of 1938, most of whom were illiterate but who had a deep interest in folk tales and folk heroes.

When Nevsky says, "Whoever comes against us by the sword shall perish by the sword. Such is the law of the Russian land and such it will always be" he is simply reassuring the peasants that even though the modern Teutonic invaders, the Nazis, may try to invade the motherland they will suffer the same defeat as their predecessors. You have no doubt that they got the message.

"Alexander Nevsky," the second offering in this semester's Cinema 16 series, stars Nikolai Cherasov as the heroic prince and is beautifully photographed by Edward Tisse, Eisenstein's faithful cameraman.

Senate treasurer calls editorial 'poor'

To the Editor:

Your editorial (Feb. 19) concerning Student Senate's discussion of the reorganization proposal was poor! It not only contained inaccuracies you were (or should have been) aware of, but it was also filled with name calling, a tactic not indicative of a good editor.

At Thursday's Senate meeting I explained to you that the reorganization plan called for $2 to be billed to each student's University account. When the $2,000 acquired in this manner is added to the more than $16,000 which Senate and Union Board are now allocated from our tuition and fees, a total of $48,000 is provided for the reorganization plan. It is the intended use of this money that I would like clarified.

I do not believe students should be asked to write a blank check for an additional $32,000 for reorganization for reorganization's sake. The need for this money has not been satisfactorily explained to the students.

IT WAS UNFORTUNATE that many of the senators had not read the report. It would have been helpful, too, if more had attended the informational meetings. Partial fault here lies in the fact that some of these meetings were not publicized and only certain groups were invited. Many people who would have been interested found out about them after they had already occurred.

Yet you severely criticized those who did have knowledge of the report when they attacked portions unacceptable to them and their constituents.

For the most part the report is good. However, I am not satisfied with every part of it. I question the control of the Activity Board over the functions of housing units and individual student organizations. The appointment of the elected representatives is another unsatisfactory part. I object to the apportionment based on non-existent men's and women's residence associations.

THIS WOULD DECREASE the representation the dorms now have and in effect would remove the representatives farther from their constituents. The idea of losing representation for poor voter turnout is unfair and a form of "taxation without representation."

To obtain the best reorganized government, I believe most of the problems should be worked out before the plan is completely implemented. If you are in complete support of the plan, you should support it with facts instead of by degrading anyone opposed to it.

If you feel the report is so immediately desirable by a majority of the students without further debate, I suggest that you support a student body vote on the plan right now. After all, it is the students' government and money!

Aggression blamed

To the Editor:
Isn't it strange that only the Arabic side was invited to speak on a WSUI program on the topic: Israel In The Middle East? No wonder then that a distorted picture was presented.

On Nov. 30, 1947, the Arabs of Palestine, with the assistance of the neighboring Arab States, launched a series of attacks on their Jewish neighbors in an attempt to undo by force the decision made on the previous day by the United Nations to partition Palestine into independent Jewish and Arab States.

One of the consequences of this aggression has been the Arab refugee problem.

Joint Soviet-U.S. Space Shot Proposed by 'Parade' Editor

Jess Gorkin, editor of Parade magazine, has proposed a joint space venture to dramatize that space is free.

Gorkin told Wednesday night of suggesting orbiting a Soviet cosmonaut and an American astronaut in a single capsule to show the world that space is also peaceful. Gorkin's proposal was contained in a recent open letter to President Johnson.

GORKIN said he expected no answer until the Viet Nam situation was less pressing. Gorkin expressed his idea in a lecture in Wednesday's Advanced Reporting class, 19:109.

Gorkin, featured speaker at Wednesday night's Greek Week banquet, said joint U.S.-Russian space ventures had been successful in weather, sound testing and magnetic research.

Gorkin is best known for proposing the "hot line," the direct telephone link between the White House and the Kremlin.

GORKIN told the journalism class that the threat of an accidental nuclear war and the inadequacies of commercial communications prompted the "hot line" proposal.

Gorkin told of the unrelenting follow-through that saw his idea become a reality. Seven stories followed the original editorial that appeared in the March, 1960, Parade.

"The Cuban confrontation prompted the installation of the hot line," said Gorkin. "At one instance, it took President Kennedy 18 hours to contact Premier Khrushchev via commercial links."

CONTINUING articles and letters to the U.S. President and Soviet Premier brought about the Sept. 1, 1963, installation of the hot line.

Gorkin also told the class, "A good idea is always a simple idea. There is always a need for idea men. Be some kind of specialist."

Gorkin was editor of The Daily Iowan 30 years ago.

certified, which is important, but this solution does not get to the source of the problem.

Stone said he didn't foresee any difficulties in the solution.

"If the Amish accept it, then there is no problem," he said.

MURRAY was "very pleased" by the decision.

"Our country should make room for people like the Amish," he said.

"The critical thing here is whether the teachers will be acceptable to the Amish within the context of their religious beliefs," Murray said.

Hughes' solution is only temporary. The 1967 session of the Iowa legislature will deal further with the problem. Davis said he thought the legislature would require the Amish to attend regular public schools.

"I doubt very seriously that the Danforth Foundation will be willing to contribute funds indefinitely," Davis stressed.

In view of this, a long-range state solution is imperative, he said.

DAVENPORT (AP) — The Army Corps of Engineers decided upon, but later abandoned, a bizarre scheme to use lampblack to break up a nine-mile ice jam on the Mississippi River.

They're going to use charcoal instead.

If the sun shines Thursday, despite a forecast of cloudy skies, a helicopter bearing a hastily constructed sheet metal hopper will flutter over the lower end of the rock-hard ice pack near Buffalo, Iowa.

Some 500 pounds of finely ground charcoal will be scattered over the ice in a test to see if the black covering will absorb more solar heat and speed up the melting process.

The engineers at first proposed using lampblack, but preliminary tests showed it was too oily.

The lifting of the Bamboo Curtain and governmental intimidation of citizens will be the two biggest stories during the next five years, Parade Magazine editor Jess Gorkin said Wednesday night.

Gorkin spoke to 80 people in the Union Main Lounge under the sponsorship of the Interfraternity Council and the Panhellenic Council.

The way the situation looks now, we may land an astronaut on the moon before we get an American correspondent in Red China, Gorkin said, but we must lift the Bamboo Curtain.

Gorkin said that although he could not predict accurately when the curtain would be lifted, he thought it would be within the next five years.

THE CHINA STORY will be given as much space in the next 10 years as the Russian story has received in the past 10, said Gorkin.

The second big story is the governmental intimidation of citizens, said Gorkin.

"The federal bureaucracy is crawling with investigators," he said.

Gorkin called on the mass media to keep the people well-informed. He said journalists owed nothing to the men who governed and everything to their country.

During the question period following the talk, he said journalists in Viet Nam "have done an absolutely tremendous job. However the public information officers have not been candid, at times."

"The Chinese-Russian split is deep and bitter," said Gorkin.

He said the split began in 1959 when Russia reneged on its promise to help China build a bomb.

industries of Southeast Iowa. According to Col. Brooks W. Booker Jr., chairman of the voluntary board of directors, the workshop could get about $150,000 in federal and state money if it raised $75,000 in its local fund drive. About half of the amount has been raised so far.

BOOKER SAYS that at first the workshop will accommodate about 50 persons. They will do repair work, subcontract for industry and simple manufacturing.

About 1,800 mentally impaired and 750 handicapped persons live within a 25-mile radius of Iowa City, according to a national estimate.

Two other projects that are being studied by the HACAP before a vote on adopting them are a day-care center for children and a work-experience program to train the unemployed.

The day-care center would care for about 50 children and help many mothers who want to work. A grant of about $110,000 would be sought.

Under the work-experience program, the federal government would pay the salaries of the participants until they were able to earn their own way. Possible jobs include those of secretary, practical nurse and handyman, and about 20 persons from Johnson County would participate. The cost for the combined effort with Washington, Cedar and Muscatine counties would be about $80,000.

HACAP PROJECTS thus are not yet at the stage at which they can bring benefits. The funds finally received will be part of $667 million to be allocated nationally. The HACAP projects are locally planned, coordinated and administered, with the help of federal and some state funds.

A second front of the poverty war involves nationwide programs more directly controlled from Washington, D.C. Johnson County has set up a Neighborhood Youth Corps and a Project Head Start from this group.

The Youth Corps was developed to provide work for unemployed young men and women between the ages of 16 and 21 so they would have a better chance at a job or in school.

For eight weeks this summer Iowa City employed 40 young men on park cleanup and beautification work. They were paid $1.25 an hour for 32 hours of work a week and also attended several hours of training sessions.

THE CORPS is administered under the Department of Labor. The cost for the summer was $18,347.19 in federal money, plus $1,687.50 in salaries paid to present city employees.

Regarding the summer corps, John Adamson, former city administrative assistant and corps director, says, "They've shown us and most importantly I think they've shown themselves that they can do something."

The youths developed a sense of responsibility and started thinking about what they wanted to do, Adamson says. Some returned to school in the fall and others found jobs.

The city's fall youth corps was planned for 35 young people to work in the Public Library, the Recreation Center, the Parks and Recreation Department and the Veterans Administration Hospital. Only 17 of these jobs have been filled. Five of the members are in high school and works besides.

THE REASON there is no full contingent, Adamson says, is because the labor market in eastern Iowa is very tight and "anybody and everybody can get a job as long as they are draft-deferrable."

These jobs pay more than the $1.25 an hour that can be earned in the corps, he says.

"The people who don't want to work don't want to work even for us," he continues.

Corps project coordinators have contacted the eligible persons in the county.

Job training instead of general job responsibility is being stressed in the fall corps. Next summer's corps will work on highway beautification.

A FEDERAL grant of $40,300 for the fall corps was received. Iowa City contributes mostly the salaries of the project director, now Ed Bailey, director of parks and recreation; a secretary; and two project coordinators, Chuck Pelton, L.S. Clinton, and Michael New, G. Nevada.

A younger group benefited from last summer's Project Head Start and it too is scheduled for a repeat performance this year.

Munro Shintani, director of the project, says the County Board of Education approached Head Start like men about to get married: they looked forward to it but still had some questions. Afterwards, county school officials agreed it went "quite well."

A $14,000 federal grant was received for the eight-week program.

FIFTY-THREE pre-schoolers were enrolled, all of whom started kindergarten this fall. They were divided into four groups, each with a teacher, an assistant and two volunteer helpers. About 80 youngsters were eligible, says Marshall Field, county superintendent of schools.

Classes were held from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. A morning snack and lunch were served. Trips to stores parks and museums were included, and complete physical and dental exams were given.

The program, Shintani says, concentrated on social development and enriching the background of the child. For example, he continues, some children otherwise "could be told to join hands and get in a circle and wouldn't know what to do."

NATIONALLY THE Neighborhood Youth Corps has been allocated $300 million and Head Start $150 million. This is to cope with a national poverty ratio of about 20 per cent, or 35 million people.

Local poverty programs are middle men between these poor and the federal organization. Some of the problems come from the top. A U.S. Senate minority report has charged the war on poverty with "administrative bungling, haphazard haste and costly waste."

Symptoms of problems in Johnson County include:

- The fall youth corps, scheduled to begin in October, didn't get federal approval and didn't get started until late November.
- Iowa City was invited in May to participate in Head Start, which began in June.
- The HACAP program development request, promised by early December, is still pending.

The path of union for Uncle Sam and anti-poverty, therefore, is not smooth, but at least in Johnson County they have avoided scandalous talk. Some of their offspring are considered nice enough. As for the others, the attitude seems to be waiting to judge them until they've done something.

Burlington's Sam Williams May Be Headed For Iowa

By JIM ELAND
Sports Editor
Burlington Hawk-Eye

BURLINGTON (AP) — Sam Williams is king in a city where junior college basketball is the supreme winter pastime.

Williams is an All-America forward for Burlington Community college's team which ranks number one in national junior college circles.

THE 6-4 SCORING ace who can jump higher than a giraffe's Adam's apple, is heading for the all-time scoring record here.

Setting the Blackhawk scoring mark is no small chore since the squad has had some great players in the past like Mel Daniels of New Mexico University; Jim Boyce, Detroit University; John Brodsky, Gonzaga University at Spokane, Wash.; and Bobby Joe Hill of Texas Western.

Figuring the Blackhawks will again play over 30 games (including tournaments), Williams needs to average only 16 points per game to break the all-time record of 791 set by Boyce in 1964. Williams currently packs a 29-point average.

SAM CAME OUT of Detroit two years ago to pick up a scholarship left by Ben McGilmer, now at Iowa. McGilmer had originally intended to enroll at Burlington, but changed his mind in August of 1964.

Last year Williams led Burlington to second place in the national tournament at Hutchinson, Kan.

Second place was taken away last fall, however, when it was discovered the Blackhawks used an ineligible player, Virgil Watkins, during the year.

MAJOR COLLEGE coaches from various sections of the nation have visited old Clark fieldhouse here the past season to watch Williams play before capacity crowds.

All hope to lure Sam into wearing their colors the next two seasons.

RIGHT NOW, however, Williams leans toward the University of Iowa, with Purdue and Indiana as possible runner up choices.

Williams is one of 13 children, the only one who is a great basketball player. He attended Northern high school in Detroit where he was an All-City and All-State selection.

BEFORE COMING TO Burlington, he spent a year working in a meat freezer filling orders to restaurants. "It was pretty rough in the freezer," Williams said, "it was 20 below most of the time."

"A couple of guys died of pneumonia from working in the freezer," Williams pointed out.

Sam survived, however, and if Burlington is fortunate enough to make its national tourney appearance in five years, he could become the greatest Blackhawk of them all.

Pervall Leads Iowa Scoring

Star guard Chris Pervall leads the Iowa Hawkeyes in scoring, according to the latest statistics released from the Iowa Sports Information Service.

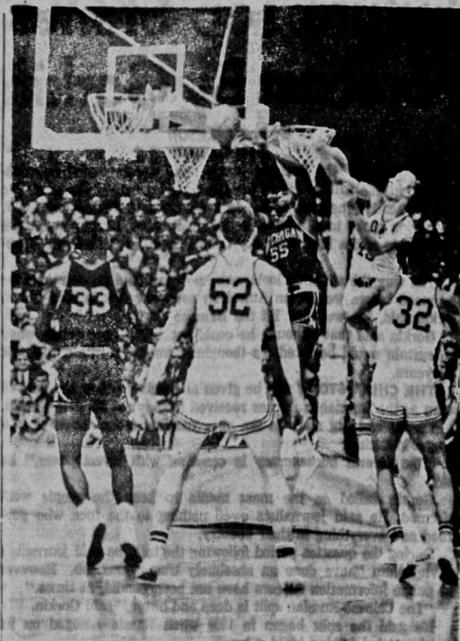

Pervall has averaged 18.6 points this season in 20 games, scoring 371 points on a total of 137 field goals and 97 free throws. He is followed by center George Peoples who has scored a total of 348 points in 20 games for a 17.4 point per game average.

Sophomore Ben McGilmer who has come into his own since taking over for ineligible Gerry Jones, has moved into the third spot among scorers with a 9.6 average. He is followed by Gary Olson who has been averaging 9.3 points per game and Dennis Pauling who carries a 7.5 point average.

George Peoples leads the team in rebounding with a total of 212 grabs in 20 games for an average of 10.6 per game.

McGilmer has the best field goal percentage among regulars with a 52.1 per cent average, and is also the best free throw shooter with a 76.7 per cent average in that department.

As a team, the Hawkeyes have piled up 1,640 points to their opponents 1,434 to give them an average of 82.0 points on offense compared to their opponents 71.7. The team is averaging 45.4 per cent in field goal shooting and 69.3 per cent from the free throw line.

IOWA'S GEORGE PEOPLES lets a "big one" get away during Monday's Iowa-Michigan game. The big one is Michigan's 6-7, 225 pound forward Oliver Darden who crashed the Iowa defense for two points on this layup. But for the Wolverines Monday night, this proved to be more the exception than the rule as the Hawks' defense slowed down a high scoring Michigan team and allowed Iowa to post a 91-82 victory over the league leaders.

Iowa's 'Big Ben' Is Striking Doom For Big 10 Opponents

By RON BLISS
Asst. Sports Editor

Since taking over for the ineligible Gerry Jones, sophomore Ben McGilmer has really come into his own as a Hawkeye.

"Big Ben," as he is affectionately called by Iowa rooters, has filled in beautifully at Jones' forward spot and has led the team's scoring in two of the four games in which he has started.

Ben drew his first starting assignment against Northwestern, just two days after it was learned that Jones was ineligible.

MCGILMER SEEMED NERVOUS in the first half of that game and scored only two points, but came back to rattle home 19 in the second half to lead the team in scoring for the night with 21.

The next week, against Minnesota, he responded to the call by scoring 22 points, only this time he yielded point leadership to teammate Chris Pervall who scored 23 points to lead all scorers in the team's rousing upset of Minnesota.

He was held to only 11 points last Saturday afternoon at Ohio State, but came back Monday night against Michigan to lead the team in scoring with 26 points on 11 of 18 field goals and 4 of 5 free throws.

ALL TOTALED, Ben has averaged 20 points per game in his last four outings and has scored in double figures in each of his last six. He came off the bench in the Detroit game to lead Iowa scorers in that victory with 24 points.

His total for the last six games is 114 points, compared to only 59 points in 12 of the first 14 games when he played irregularly. His overall average is presently 9.6 points per game, and his average in the Big 10 is 12.8.

BEN ALSO HAS pulled down 73 rebounds this season, including 11 Monday night against Michigan. That places him fifth on the team in that department. In the last four games alone, however, he has led the team in rebounding with a total of 35.

Iowa coach Ralph Miller has had nothing but praise for the 6-6½, 185-pound Detroit youngster ever since he started his first game at Northwestern.

"Ben has really come along for us," Miller said after Monday night's game. "Earlier in the season, he wanted so much to succeed that he was simply trying too hard, and he was throwing the ball so hard and fast to his teammates at close range that he was almost taking their heads off with it."

"NOW, HOWEVER," Miller explains, "Ben has learned to use his head more in games and has been playing some very fine ball for us."

McGilmer's emergence as a scoring star is no real surprise to Miller, however. "We've known for a year and a half that Ben has exceptional talent," Miller explains, "We just had to work and wait for him to develop."

Miller's patience and McGilmer's work seem to have paid off for the Hawks, and Iowa seems to have found itself a super-star.

Verdict In On Lew Alcindor: They All Agree, 'He's Great'

By JOHN McSWEENEY
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After 17 games of college freshman basketball, the verdict is in on 7-foot-1 Lew Alcindor and the decision is almost unanimous. He is astounding.

THE HIGH-RISE center from New York City, coveted by a hundred colleges last year before he chose UCLA, has averaged 33.7 points and 21 rebounds in leading his team to 17 consecutive victories — most by margins of 50 or 75 points.

Opposing coaches describe him as a younger combination of Wilt Chamberlain and Bill Russell.

UCLA COACHES shield him from newsmen and seem reluctant to comment on his exploits on the grounds that too much fanfare would be a disrupting influence on an 18-year-old.

But other experts look on in awe.

Varsity Coach Marv Harsham of rival Washington State told a reporter: "Unfortunately I saw the UCLA freshman play last night. What can you say? Alcindor is simply great. He can hold you off with one hand and put the ball in the basket with the other."

FORMER BOSTON Celtics' star Bill Sharman took a couple of looks and pronounced Alcindor ready for National Basketball Association play right now. Sharman says he could be worth $100,000 a year.

His team's games have been almost entirely against junior college teams, made up of freshmen and sophomores, and the winning scores are invariably over 100 points.

In one game Lew made 21 field goals in 23 tries. In another it was 17 out of 20.

Bush Of Hillcrest Wins All-U Title

By PAUL LOGAN
Staff Writer

Bush house of Hillcrest claimed the All-University 150-pound basketball championship Wednesday night by defeating Alpha Kappa Kappa professional fraternity, 31-27.

Rich Nading of Bush led all scorers with 15 points. Dennis Shuelke and Gary Phelps tossed in 6 points apiece to add to the Bush total.

Alpha Kappa Kappa matched Bush in field goals as each had 11, but AKK was cold at the charity line, hitting only five free throws to Bush's nine.

Mike Stitt hit 14 points for AKK in a losing effort.

In a second game, Phi Delta Phi gained the right to play in Thursday night's heavyweight division final by defeating Sigma Nu 40-32. The win also gave the Phi Delt's the all-fraternity title.

Bill Hines of Phi Delta Phi took scoring honors for both teams with 12 points. Dave Affeldt and Frosty Eveshevski added to the winning total with 7 and 6 points respectively.

Sigma Nu kept the score close for the first three quarters with the outshooting of Flip Williamson who led Sigma Nu with 9 points.

Kentucky Still Leads Poll; Michigan Remains At 10th

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The streaking Kentucky Wildcats show no signs of slowing down and relinquishing their solid lead in the AP major-college basketball poll. They need to win only three more games to complete an unbeaten regular season.

Kentucky lifted its record to 22-0 Monday night by trouncing Mississippi 108-65. The Wildcats play Tennessee this Saturday and March 5, and then Tulane in the season finale March 7.

IN THE LATEST poll based on games through last Saturday, Kentucky drew 38 first-place votes and 396 points. Fourth-ranked Chicago Loyola and seventh-ranked St. Joseph's of Pennsylvania were the only other teams named to the top position in the balloting by 40 regional experts.

Duke held second place and there was no change either in the next three positions as Texas Western, Chicago Loyola and Vanderbilt ranked third, fourth and fifth, respectively.

Providence's loss to Rhode Island dropped the Friars three notches to ninth and enabled three other teams to advance one position. Kansas climbed to sixth, St. Joseph's to seventh and Nebraska to eighth. Michigan remained in 10th place.

THE RANKING teams won 19 of 20 games last week, and, except for Michigan, appear to be following the same pattern this week.

Among the six teams in the top 10 which played Monday night, only the Wolverines lost. They were beaten by Iowa, 91-82.

The victors in addition to Kentucky were Vanderbilt 111 over Georgia, Kansas over Oklahoma, Nebraska over Colorado, and Providence over Loyola of New Orleans.

The Top Ten, with season's records through games of Sat., Feb. 19, and total points:

1. Kentucky (21-0) 396
2. Duke (19-2) 348
3. Texas Western (20-0) 305
4. Chicago Loyola (20-2) 264
5. Vanderbilt (19-3) 268
6. Kansas (18-3) 208
7. St. Joseph's, Pa. (19-4) 128
8. Nebraska (17-3) 121
9. Providence (19-3) 77
10. Michigan (14-5) 65

Faculty Ratings Asked—

Soundoff Debates 3 Issues

By DOUG HIRSCH
Staff Writer

Soapbox Soundoff debated Wednesday a professor evaluation program, Tuesday night's Political Affairs Conference debate and the value of the Peace Corps.

Soundoff chairman Sally Stage, A4, Davenport, criticized instructors who came to class with no plan, and suggested a faculty evaluation plan.

"I THINK IT is about time we quit putting up with some notoriously foul professors," she said. "I think if you go to a 7:30 or 8:30 class two or three times a week the professor should at least prepare a plan."

Steve Teichner, A3, Winchester, Mass., replied that the Student Senate had conducted a faculty evaluation program two years ago.

The poll was designed poorly, he said, but the senate is now corresponding with other schools to learn how their evaluation programs are administered.

Paul Dysart, A2, Muscatine, then asked why a conservative was not invited to Tuesday's Political Affairs Conference instead of Sen. Jacob Javits (R-N.Y.).

JAVITS AND Sen. George McGovern (D-S.D.) debated "U.S. Policy in Viet Nam and Asia" and agreed that ultimate victory in South Viet Nam was not possible.

"I'm not saying that Republicans should be conservative and Democrats liberal," Dysart said. "I think there should be a basic choice between the candidates."

A third Soundoff issue arose when Peace Corps recruiter Charlotte Crawford asked for questions about the corps.

Dysart said he thought the corps had done nothing but build resentment.

Miss Crawford then outlined the three purposes of the Peace Corps:

- To do a job.
- To learn about, live among and know the people.

• To provide a chance for people of other cultures to meet Americans on a personal basis. Joe Hardy, another Peace Corps recruiter, said that two of the biggest problems the corps encountered were logistics and readjustment.

"You are a product of this society and readjustment varies from individual to individual," said Hardy.

A NEW FORMAT for Soapbox Soundoff was announced by Miss Stage. She said that a suggestion box would be available at Soapbox and in the Union Activities Center.

Humphrey Is Confident Of Victory

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, home from a fence-mending tour of Southeast Asia, told President Johnson Wednesday night: "I return with a deep sense of confidence in our cause and its ultimate triumph."

Ending his 43,000-mile trip, Humphrey stepped from a jet at Andrews Air Force Base, rode in a helicopter to the White House, and in a ceremony on the South Lawn gave this assurance to Johnson concerning the Viet Nam conflict.

"The challenge we face is widely understood as a test of free men everywhere," Humphrey said. "Free Asia's leaders are confident of success and they are increasingly eager to give of their resources in the wider battle for a better life for their people."

"I am encouraged," he said, "because the tide of battle in Viet Nam has turned in our favor, the spirit of our fighting men and those of our allies is good. Their courage and performance in battle is superb."

City's Code To Be Ready In 2 Weeks

Iowa City's new municipal code is now being printed and should be ready for distribution to the public in about two weeks, City Clerk Glen Eckard said Wednesday.

The new code will contain 2,377 ordinances that have been passed since the code was last printed in 1951. The city is ordering 150 copies.

The city decided to update the code so all ordinances could be placed in a single text.

Copies of the new municipal code may be purchased at the city clerk's office for $25 each. Code changes will be printed and sent out annually to those who own books, according to Eckard.

The municipal code will be furnished with a three-ring binder so subsequent copies of ordinances can be inserted.

Center for ideas about future topics. Names of persons well-versed on the topics should also be submitted, she said.

Topics will be assigned to every other Soundoff.

Spilled Gas Causes Pickup Truck Blaze

About $500 damage was caused by a fire at 8:37 a.m. Wednesday involving a pickup truck and an air compressor. Gasoline, spilled from the compressor, was ignited by exhaust fumes from the truck.

According to firemen, gasoline was spilled while the compressor was being towed by the truck over the turn-up intersection at Court Street and Shrader Street. After detaching the compressor, the driver pulled over the gas-line-covered pavement, and the truck exhaust ignited the fumes.

The driver of the truck, which was owned by Frantz Construction Company, was not injured.

News Panel Urges Revamp

The News Panel, Wednesday criticized the Student Senate's refusal to reorganize before the March elections.

The panel, a new program by Union Board, met in the Union Illinois Room. Panel members were John S. Harlow, professor of business administration; Eugene Spaziani, associate professor of zoology; John Huntley, associate professor of English; Jon Van, editor of The Daily Iowan; and Dick Pundt, Student Senator-at-large.

Speaking of the reorganization, Van said, "The Senate faces the prospect of elections taking place under the old system while a new system of organization is under serious discussion."

IF REORGANIZATION did take place, he said, some new Senate members would lose their positions or have them changed.

Pundt urged students to pressure their senators to take action on reorganization at the special Senate meeting Sunday. He said he supported the plan.

"The plan for reorganization would get the Senate out of the activities game and leave it as a true student voice," Van said. "Reorganization will strengthen the Senate as well as all other student organizations."

ALSO DISCUSSED by the panel was the Steve Smith court decision. Smith, a former University student, burned his draft card Oct. 29 at Soapbox Soundoff.

Last week he was placed on a three-year probationary period for "willfully destroying his draft card."

"Burning a draft card doesn't make any difference," Harlow said. "I'm opposed to giving this kind of weight to symbols. The judge acted wisely when he judged him moderately."

Greek Contest Set

Music, legs, ugliness and money are part of today's Greek Week activities.

Music will be provided by the Greek Week Concert at 8 p.m. in the Union Main Lounge. The Ramsey Lewis Trio will perform.

Throughout the day 10 cent votes will be cast for Miss Legs and Mr. Ugly Man. From 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. the voting booth will be in the Union Gold Feather lobby. During the evening, votes will be cast at the entrances to the Union Main Lounge.

Voting will end a half hour after the Greek Week Concert. Winners will contribute additional participation points to their Greek housing units.

Music by the Moonrakers at the Greek Week Dance at 8 p.m. Friday in the Union Main Lounge will continue the festivities. Tickets are $2.50 a couple and can be purchased from fraternity treasurers until 5 p.m. Friday.

Miss Interfraternity Council and Miss Junior Interfraternity Council will be crowned at 10 p.m. at the dance. Miss Legs and Mr. Ugly Man and participation trophies to the most active fraternity and sorority during Greek Week will also be presented at this time.

Greek Week's theme is "Tribute to Brotherhood," which takes place during National Brotherhood Week.

OIL TO ZAMBIA—
DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP)—In response to urgent appeals, a first consignment of 61 tanker trucks has arrived by sea from Nigeria to carry oil from this Indian Ocean port to landlocked Zambia. The overland supply line is expected to supplement and then replace an oil airlift offsetting a stoppage of oil from British-embargoed Rhodesia to Zambia.

Lutheran Society To Hear Works By 2 Music Profs

The musical works of two University instructors will be presented at the regional conference of the Lutheran Society for Worship, Music and the Arts (LSWMA) Sunday at Gloria Dei Lutheran Church, Dubuque and Market Streets.

"The Contemporary Liturgy," an order of service written by Daniel Moe, associate professor of music, will be presented during the first session at 3 p.m.

An evening session at 7:30 will feature "Organ Vespers," written by Gerhard Krapf, associate professor of music. Krapf will play the organ for the service and will be assisted by the Gloria Dei Lutheran Church choir.

LSWMA has about 3,000 members nationally, including pastors, theologians, church musicians, architects and artists.

Hospital Employees Exceed Goal For Development Fund

Mercy Hospital employees have exceeded their section goal of $25,000 by 180 per cent, it was announced Tuesday by Charles Dore, general campaign chairman of the Hospital Development Program.

Dore was presented with pledge cards totaling $45,890 by Walter O'Malley, hospital employee chairman, who expressed his appreciation to the many employees and volunteers who helped make the section a success.

In accepting the pledge cards

Dore said, "It is gratifying to see that the hospital needs are recognized not only by the sisters, but by every employee as well."

Speaker Lauds Creativity

Get out of a rut. Be creative and solving problems will be easier. Warren Guthrie, of Standard Oil of Ohio, urged at Wednesday's Career Day luncheon.

was "Rocks in Your Head." STRESSING the importance of knowing how to communicate successfully, Guthrie described the best mode of communication as one that comes about through creative thinking.

to a problem without considering every possible alternative," he said. "However, a business concern shouldn't change merely because its policy calls for a change at regular intervals."

stick in a rut and follow the well-worn paths," he said. "We must get out of the realm, learn to avoid the obvious if we are to become creative thinkers," Guthrie explained.

Registrar Adds 19 To Feb. List Of Graduates

In addition to 600 students who received degrees at commencement Feb. 5, the names of 19 students have been announced by the Office of the Registrar as having completed requirements for graduation.

The students, by degrees received, are: Bachelor of science: John Anderson, Bettendorf, general science; Roger Burt, Estherville, psychology; Susan Simone, Grinnell, speech pathology and audiology; and David Huston, Iowa City, general science.

Moeller Planning Trip To Journalism Meeting

Leslie G. Moeller, director of the School of Journalism, will attend a meeting of the planning committee of the Association for Education in Journalism. The meeting will be Friday and Saturday in Austin at the University of Texas.

The president of the association, De Witt Reddick of Texas, named the committee to make suggestions for the program to be carried out in coming years. The association is made up of college and university instructors in journalism.

Herd Book Delay Caused By Lack Of Printing Paper

A shortage of paper has caused a delay in the release of the second semester student directories. The directories, which are due Feb. 28, will probably not be available until about March 4, Robert Leahy, associate director of admissions and registration, said Wednesday.

The second semester edition will not include the staff section although office phone numbers will be listed. Cost of the directory is again $1.35.

Botany Facilities Will Be Housed In Chem Addition

The new addition being constructed on the north side of the Chemistry Building will house facilities for the Botany Department, according to Richard R. Jordon, staff architect for the University.

Included in the four-story wing will be a new electro-microscope, a room where plants are exposed to a steady ray light from bulbs, new graduate research laboratories, faculty rooms and a large museum.

Jordon said that except for some laboratory equipment, the structure would be ready for use by the beginning of summer school.

SUDAN TRACKING STATION—KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP)—Premier Mohammed Ahmed Mahgoub said a three-months-old U.S. request to build an astronomical tracking station in the Sudanese Red Sea hills is under consideration but told his parliamentary opposition it will be consulted before a decision is made. Recent press references to the request have led to sharp debate.

New Plan Cuts Sewage Plant Cost

Principal features of a method that can save several billions of dollars in the construction cost of sewage and waste treatment plants needed to control stream pollution in the United States have been worked out here.

Use of results of research conducted at the University would make it possible to use the method to achieve up to 90 per cent reduction in the size of structures required for the secondary phase of high-efficiency treatment of sewage and industrial wastes.

About one third the cost of a conventional treatment plant is the cost of secondary treatment portion.

H. S. SMITH, chairman of the Department of Civil Engineering, reported recently that the method could save as much as 30 per cent of the cost of a trickling filter plant of the type used in Des Moines, Waterloo, Cedar Rapids and Iowa City, and could save as much as 20 per cent of the cost of conventional activated sludge systems as found in most major cities, such as Chicago, Milwaukee and New York.

The method can save as much as $5 billion in the next two decades, said Smith, who based his estimate on a 1962 U.S. Public Health Service report that predicted American municipalities and industries would spend $42 billion for waste treatment plants through 1982.

The money-saving aspect would be that physical structures required for treatment plants could be smaller and less expensive. Smith said the method would not involve extra equipment cost. It could be used to expand the capacity of existing plants as well as to reduce the size of the new structures.

THE CONCEPT of waste treatment has been proved experimentally by research during the past five years in a special laboratory operated by the University at the Iowa City treatment plant, which the University and city built cooperatively in 1954.

The laboratory itself was named in memory of the late Philip F. Morgan, a University sanitary engineer who pioneered in wastewater treatment research. Morgan established the laboratory in 1952.

"The ability of biological cultures to remove organic contaminants from wastewater at very high rates, if a favorable environment is maintained, has been recognized for some time," said Smith.

"The research we are doing is defining the environmental conditions needed in real systems and it is proving the ability of such systems to achieve a high degree of treatment in very short time."

"We are now evaluating the factors necessary for successful design and operation of full scale systems," Smith said.

The development described by Smith concerns the biological phase of treatment that removes about two thirds of the organic pollutants contained in raw waste. A complete treatment system using the special process could remove a total of 90 per cent or more of the organic material in the waste — equal to the performance of conventional activated sludge or trickling filter systems.

INCOMING sewage in conventional systems moves progressively through an aeration tank or trickling filter and the organic material is gradually removed by biological action. In the case of aeration or activated sludge systems four to six hours aeration time is required to obtain a high degree of treatment.

The new system would apply the principle of complete mixing in the aeration tank so that incoming sewage would be instantly dispersed throughout the tank by compressed air. The air would also supply the oxygen necessary for the biological process. The method would allow the process to proceed at a uniform rate throughout the entire tank rather than at progressively decreasing rates as in conventional systems. This would reduce aeration time for high-degree treatment to as little as one hour, Smith said.

Previously, said Smith, no reliable information has been available to design or predict performance of full-scale continuously operated waste systems.

The potential cost saving was reflected by the relative volume of secondary treatment structures needed to do the same work. "Communities of 10,000 will generally require 90,000 cubic feet of trickling filter or 25,000 cubic feet of activated sludge aeration tank for high degree treatment. The new system needs only 7,500 cubic feet of aeration tank to do the same job," Smith said.

One aspect of the research is supported by a $23,000 grant from the U.S. Public Health Service, Division of Water Supply and Pollution Control.

Prof Favors 4-Year House Term

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Harvard government professor said Wednesday the present two-year term for House members weakens their influence.

But after supporting a proposed constitutional amendment to lengthen the terms to four years, Prof. Richard E. Neustadt said only House members themselves could decide the wisdom of the change.

"You must judge this. I can not," he said. "You gentlemen are the experts."

Neustadt found that few of the experts on the House Judiciary Committee shared his support of a four-year house term.

And two congressmen who preceded him as witnesses urged that the present two-year terms be retained. One of them was Rep. Bert Bandstra, (D-Iowa).

Neustadt based his support of the longer terms on the belief it would strengthen the House's role both in the legislative and the executive branch.

A substantial portion of the House, composed of junior members from contested districts, he said, is at a serious disadvantage compared to the longer-term senators and the permanent officials of executive agencies.

Bandstra not only opposed lengthening House terms but called for shortening the six-year term of senators. "All the reasons for not having longer House terms also apply to the Senate," he said.

FLOODS IN ARGENTINA— BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Four persons drowned and more than 30,000 lost their homes as flood waters spread Wednesday over thousands of square miles in the provinces of Argentina's north-east.

English Teachers' Institutes To Be Here This Summer

Special institutes for teachers of English will be conducted this summer at the University.

One session, from June 20 through July 29, will be for high school teachers who majored in English. The other institute, from June 15 through Aug. 10, is designed for high school teachers who have little more than a minor concentration in English.

Sponsored by the English Department, the institutes will be supported by the National Defense Education Act (NDEA).

Deadline for applications for admission from teachers interested in attending either of the institutes is Monday. Deadline for applications is March 21. Applications for English majors may be obtained from Richard Braddock, professor of rhetoric, who is director of the NDEA Institute in English, 4 OAT Building, The University of Iowa, Iowa City. Applications for the other institute may be obtained from Carl Klaus, instructor in English, who is also a director, NDEA Institute in English, 200 ODB, The University of Iowa, Iowa City.

THE SHORTER institute will emphasize advanced composition and its teaching, modern English grammar and types of advanced composition. This program is for teachers associated with either the Advanced Standing Program or the Advanced Placement Program. Other teachers of college-bound 12th-grade English students will be admitted if space permits.

The objective of the Advanced Standing Program, which was developed by the University, Iowa State University, Drake University and the State College of Iowa, is to offer advanced instruction on the senior high school level that will increase the probability that cooperating colleges will excuse advanced-standing students from the usual freshman composition requirements.

The eight-week institute will emphasize criticism and interpretation of literature, modern English grammar, and advanced composition.

BRADDOCK, Richard Lloyd-Jones, professor of English, and John McLaughlin, associate professor of English, make up the full-time staff for the first institute. The staff for the longer institute includes Klaus, Marvin Bell, lecturer in English, Clark Griffith, professor of English, Norman C. Stageberg, of the State College of Iowa, and Richard Hootman, chairman of the English Department at Iowa City High School.

A special workshop for demonstration and teaching material preparation will be built into the eight-week session. The instructor for this will be M. Agnella Gunn, author and editor of numerous studies and textbooks on education. She is a visiting professor of English education at the University of Connecticut, and is retired from Boston University.

Woodwind Five To Give Concert In Des Moines

The Iowa Woodwind Quintet, all University faculty members, will make a guest appearance at the Des Moines Art Center Sunday.

The quintet, which has received special attention during recent years for its presentation of contemporary works, will play a program of modern compositions, including works by Milhaud, Hindemith, Ibert and Alvin Etler.

The Iowa Woodwind Quintet has performed in conjunction with visits to the University by such leading composers as Samuel Barber, Wallingford Riegger and Elliott Carter. It has also presented premieres of compositions by University faculty members.

Quintet members are Betty Bang, flute; Thomas Ayres, clarinet; Paul Anderson, horn; Ronald Tyree, bassoon; and William Zonn, oboe.

ROTC Enrollment Up

University male sophomores are enrolling for the two-year Air Force ROTC program in greater numbers than at any other mid-west school, according to Capt. Robert A. Stein, assistant professor of aerospace studies. Enrollment was 17 last year and is 75 this year.

MCNAUGHTON TO GREECE— ATHENS (AP) — U.S. Asst. Secretary of Defense John T. McNaughton arrived Wednesday for two days of talks with Greek government and military officials to ascertain Greece's military requirements.
