

Onslaught On N. Vietnamese To Increase, Humphrey Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, reporting Thursday to congressmen on his mission to Asia, said American and South Vietnamese fighting men were going to intensify their assaults on the Viet Cong.

"The tide of battle has turned," Humphrey said, echoing President Johnson.

BUT HUMPHREY said no quick or easy solution was in sight in the Vietnamese war.

Humphrey spent about four hours reporting at a series of White House briefings on his nine-nation Asian journey.

He said he returned with "a spirit of restrained optimism and confidence" that the Communists could be beaten in South Viet Nam and a better life created for the people there.

"WE HAVE now reached the stage," Humphrey told newsmen after briefing some 200 senators and representatives, "where our military forces can sustain a planned, methodical forward movement."

He said U.S. and South Vietnamese forces were aiming continuous and effective operations at Viet Cong guerrillas who once could choose when and where they fought.

"And this will be intensified," Humphrey said.

He said military operations would be coupled with a drive to win economic and social reforms for the South Vietnamese people.

ON ANOTHER front, the protest of a Johnson critic blocked an Administration bid to speed senate action on a bill to authorize $4.8 billion in new war spending.

Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana sought consent to limit debate, now a week old. It only took one objection to block the move, and that came from Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.).

Morse said he would seek a vote Monday on his move to rescind a two-year-old resolution in which Congress approved the use of armed force in Viet Nam. Johnson had cited the measure as congressional backing for his policy.

Humphrey talked first to congressional leaders of both parties, then to members of the House and Senate committees directly concerned with the war in Viet Nam.

Rebels Say President Disregarded Liberties

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — An army revolt Thursday toppled the government of President Kwame Nkrumah while he was being feted by the Communist Chinese in Peking.

The Ghanaian rebel leaders said after quickly won victory that they acted because Nkrumah abused individual rights and liberties.

U Of I Senate May Postpone March Voting

The Student Senate will hold a special meeting at 2 p.m. Sunday to consider a resolution to postpone the March 9 all-campus election until after the matter of reorganization of student government is settled.

The possible postponement of the election was discussed at a meeting of candidates and campaign managers Thursday in the Union Augustus-Dodge Room.

The final decision on postponement will be made by President Bowen.

The campaign is scheduled to open Monday morning, Lyle Krewson, A3, Van Horne, elections committee chairman, told candidates to begin their campaigns Monday unless postponement was officially announced.

AFTER THE meeting Thursday night, Krewson commented on the possibility of postponement: "I am unequivocally, irrevocably opposed to any change in the election procedure by anyone at this time. It would be entirely unfair to those who have begun their campaigns."

The meeting was called to advise candidates of the election rules and to determine positions on the ballot.

One name was added to the list of candidates for town men senator, Charles Hartman, A4, Stuart, filed his papers Wednesday with Krewson.

Only one person has filed papers for married student senator. Five positions are open. Under the present constitution, the Senate will appoint four more senators to represent the married students. No write-ins are permitted in the all-campus elections.

CANDIDATES for the Board of Trustees of Student Publications, Inc., were also released Thursday.

Two one-year terms on the board are being filled in the March 9 election. Three candidates have returned nomination papers: Bill Rosebrook, A4, Ames; Steve Morain, A2, Jefferson; and Stewart Truelsen, A2, Park Ridge, Ill.

Two candidates have filed for the one-year term to be filled: Dave Hickman, A3, Coralville, and Bloyce Johnson, A3, Odebolt.

Forecast

Partly cloudy and continued rather mild through Saturday; highs today 30s northeast to 45-50 southwest.

4 Candidates Disqualified For Submitting Late Papers

The Election Committee of the Student Senate voted unanimously to disqualify four candidates for student body president because they filed their nomination papers Thursday after the announced deadline.

The action was taken in an executive meeting of the committee later Thursday.

Deadline for filing was 5 p.m. Wednesday. Dan Nicol, A3, Milford, filed nomination papers for student body president Thursday afternoon, with Dave Beed, A3, Cedar Rapids as his running mate.

The Elections Committee agreed to consider the papers in a special meeting.

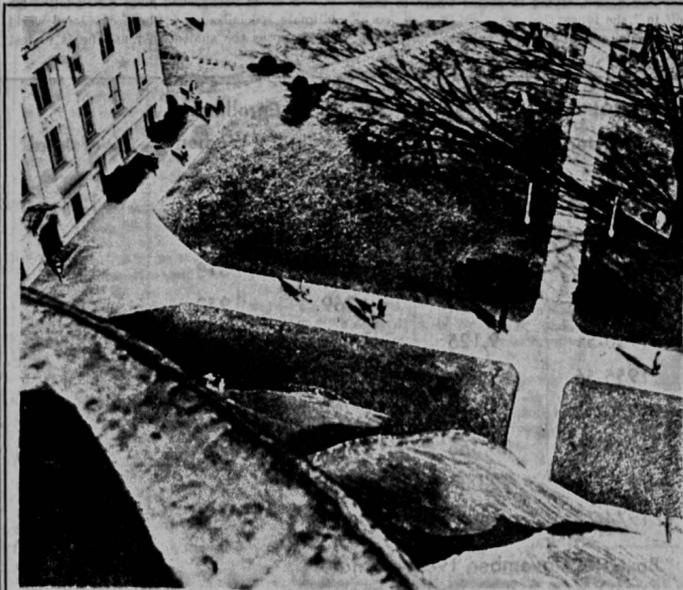

When it became known that the Committee might possibly consider late nominations, three other tickets were filed. Dick Pundt, A3 Marengo, filed for president, with Dick Mundy, A3, Manchester, as his running mate. Tickets headed by Rick Davis, A4, Fort Dodge, and Gary Lane, A3, Riverside, were also filed.

AT THE ELECTIONS committee meeting later in the afternoon, attended by Nicol, Pundt, Mundy, and Lane, Lyle Krewson, A3, Van Horne, committee chairman, stated the committee was empowered to hear cases "where there may have been a legitimate mix-up."

Nicol contended he had made an honest mistake and was appealing to the committee in good faith. He claimed to have been misled by a headline in Tuesday's Daily Iowan stating nominations were due Friday. The story referred to senior class candidates only.

Lane claimed Nicol should have known the closing date because his name was listed as campaign manager for a candidate for senator. Nomination papers carry the date.

Old Capitol Remembers

By PAT ASLESON Staff Writer

The Old Stone Capitol has much to remember.

Much has happened during the 119 years that it has stood as the landmark of the University. The Old Stone Capitol was almost seven years old when the University was legally created by the First Iowa General Assembly Feb. 25, 1847. The cornerstone for the Capitol was laid July 4, 1840.

The Old Stone Capitol remembers the tears and triumphs of 95,300 students who have scurried by on the way to 7:30 classes or who have lingered on the dappled steps in the warm spring afternoon sunshine.

The Old Stone Capitol remembers the many induction ceremonies, the times of renewal resolutions for the upperclassmen and dream-spinning for freshmen.

The Old Stone Capitol remembers the University of only one wooden class building, the library that burned, a view of rolling farm land across the river. The Capitol remembers a time when there was no hospital tower and no barracks for married students atop the hills west of the Iowa River. The Capitol remembers a time when Riverside Drive was a mud path below the bluffs.

The Old Stone Capitol remembers the resounding cheers on football Saturdays when there was a stadium just east of the river. The Capitol remembers later years when snakes of people began wending their way across the river to the mammoth stadium and the old stadium became an empty lot for cars.

The Old Stone Capitol remembers the brisk morning footsteps and the tired evening footsteps of 19 presidents who have governed the University. The Capitol remembers the footsteps of hundreds of school children who have toured the historical site.

The Old Stone Capitol remembers the women in high button shoes whose long skirts have swished across the walks and the coeds in straw sandals who have cavorted in bermudas.

The Old Stone Capitol remembers the sad times the University community has shared on its steps. The Capitol remembers a flag draped at half staff for three assassinated Presidents.

The Old Stone Capitol remembers the horses and buggies clip-clopping down Clinton Street and the sputtering Model T's and goggles and parasols of the passengers. The Capitol remembers the first XKE that glided past. The Capitol remembers a time when there were no parking problems.

The Old Stone Capitol remembers times of loneliness when students scattered for home, only to come back in greater and greater numbers.

The Old Stone Capitol has much to remember. It will always have much to remember.

High School Competition Real Problem

WEBSTER GROVES, Mo. (AP) — Educators, parents and students in this upper-middle-class suburb are pondering a sociologist's report that Webster Groves' 16-year-olds are in a desperate fight for good grades for the wrong reasons.

Dr. Arthur Barron reported to the suburban St. Louis community Wednesday that the 688 youngsters he studied over a six-month period have lost their youth because of tremendous pressure to make good grades, get into college and be a "success."

HE SAID the main goal in life for 77 per cent of the 16-year-olds is "a good-paying job, money, success." He said love of learning and intellectually are being lost in the shuffle in Webster Groves and perhaps in other such communities across the nation.

Educators seemed disturbed by the report, which will be the basis of a CBS-TV special Friday night called "Sixteen in Webster Groves."

"This has been invaluable to me," said Miss Esther Replogle, a high school teacher. "I'm terribly disturbed at their sense of values. Apparently in some respects we are missing the boat."

"WE ARE NOT encouraging disturbing questions among our pupils," said Ed Eggers, a principal.

"I think we've pushed the kids," said Dr. Charles Garner in charge of curriculum at Webster Groves High School. "They push themselves and their parents push us."

Members of the Student Council to which Barron spoke seemed to agree with Barron. "Generally I agree with the validity of the survey," said Jim McDonald, 17, president of the council. "Personally, I don't go along with some of the ideas on values and money, but representing the student body, I would have to say that what Dr. Barron found is generally true."

THE RESULT, Barron said, is a group of serious-minded youngsters, old beyond their years, battling for good grades because they feel them necessary for college. And they feel college necessary to affluency in later life.

Fifty-four per cent told Barron they had cheated on exams because of the pressure for grades.

Barron said some solutions to the problem might be getting the youths in summer projects to escape insulation and starting courses without grades "just for the sheer joy of it."

Britain's Wilson Says Viet Accord No Closer

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson returned Thursday night from a three-day visit to Moscow and acknowledged frankly he had gotten nowhere with Soviet leaders on moves to end the Viet Nam war.

THE BRITISH leader told newsmen however, that Soviet readiness to resume talks with a Western nation on major world problems, despite the continuing Viet Nam crisis, represented "a welcome step forward."

He added "We did not make any progress on Viet Nam, however, and nothing seems to be immediately forthcoming in the Viet Nam setting."

His statement came after a communique issued in his own and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin's names had declared: "The two sides set out with great frankness their respective points of view on the situation in Viet Nam."

SDS Says Peace Corps Contradicts U.S. Policy

The reasons for and results of sending Peace Corps volunteers abroad were discussed by the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) Thursday night.

Representatives of the Peace Corps, who are on campus during Peace Corps Week, answered questions about a contradiction in U.S. foreign policy as shown in the volunteers' attempts to educate inhabitants of underdeveloped countries.

The contradiction, SDS members said, is that what the Peace Corps volunteers are trying to ac-

Iowa Trade Delegation Leaves For Far East

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An articulate and persuasive trade mission from Iowa headed across the Pacific to the Orient Thursday night. Its objective: To plant the seeds of inquiry about the agricultural, industrial and cultural qualities of that state.

Headed by Gov. Harold E. Hughes, the mission was made up of business men, financial leaders, industrialists and men with farm interests.

About 125 of their counterparts from the San Francisco Bay area were guests of the Iowans for lunch at the Fairmont Hotel. Then the 60 men of the trade mission, half of whom were accompanied by their wives, left for Seattle where they were to board a plane tonight for Tokyo. They will be gone three weeks.

Engineering Open House Added To MECCA Week

An engineering open house with displays from each department of the college of engineering will be added to MECCA Week this year, MECCA committee chairman

THE PUBLIC is invited to attend the open house from 1 to 6 p.m. Saturday, March 12, and from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday, March 13, in the Engineering Building.

Private Plane Down In Iowa

DES MOINES (AP) — A twin-jet private plane carrying some Omaha business executives crashed while attempting take-off here Thursday. No major injuries were reported.

The Federal Aeronautics Administration (FAA) said those aboard, all of Omaha, were Peter Kiewit, A. F. Jacobson, Gilbert Swanson, C. L. Sampson, pilot Les Strecker and copilot Vic Kils.

Kiewit heads the Peter Kiewit Sons Co., owner of World Publishing Co., publisher of the Omaha World-Herald, and also heads a world-wide construction firm.

Jacobson is president and Sampson operating vice president of Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. Swanson is a food processing company executive.

Kiewit was unhurt, except for a cut on his hand. An FAA spokesman said the other passengers were uninjured.

Strecker was believed to have suffered a back injury. The nature of Kils' injury was not immediately reported. Observers said neither appeared seriously hurt.

New Union Board Directors Picked On Basis Of Interview

Ten new undergraduate directors for the 1966-67 Union Board have been selected by interviews, not elected, as in previous years.

The new directors are: Charles Braun, A2, Oak Park, Ill.; William Edwards, A3, Iowa City; Harry Maas, A3, Wellsburg; Thomas Mattausch, A3, Davenport; Jane Anton, A2, Waterloo; Tina Babbe, A2, Fort Dodge; Barbara Beiter, A3, Davenport; Judy Lewis, A2, Des Moines; Gail Longanacker, A2, Davenport; and Mary Schantz, A3, Iowa City.

Four graduate students directors will be selected within the next 10 days.

The new board was selected by an application-interview process. In other years the out-going board selected 20 nominees who were then voted on by the students in the All-Campus Election.

The change in policy came because the board thought it could get more competent persons by choosing its own members. Loren V. Kottner, director of the Union, said Thursday.

The new board will take office when the graduate members are selected. Its first order of business will be election of officers for next year.

Wallace's Wife To Run For Him

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace's wife, Lurleen, became a candidate for governor of Alabama on Thursday with a forecast of victory from her husband and a promise to let him run the show if she is elected.

Mrs. Wallace, 39, told a cheering throng that jammed the historic House of Representatives chamber that she would seek the Democratic nomination in the May 3 party primary.

She said she would run as a "stand-in" candidate for her husband who is barred by law from seeking re-election. His term ends in January.

Mrs. Wallace told her whooping followers, "My election will enable my husband to carry on his programs for the people."

AWS Candidates Named For Vote In Spring Election

Kathy Buresh, A3, Cedar Rapids, and Barb Beiter, A3, Davenport, are candidates for the presidency of Associated Women Students (AWS).

Carolyn Mueller, N2, Oak Park, Ill., and Linda Marsh, N2, Princeton, Ill., are running for treasurer. Judy Beese, A2, Lisbon, and Mary Jo Hultgren, A2, Ida Grove, are candidates for secretary.

The AWS senior members chose the candidates from nominations made by each women's housing unit.

Candidates will be elected during the all-campus elections March 9.

Reducing apathy . . .

"FREE SPEECH" is dear to the University student . . . or is it? Soapbox Soundoff, like so many other University activities, is suffering from student apathy.

The number of speakers and size of the crowds at the discussion has been steadily dwindling since semester break. It is hard to realize why this open forum is being ignored since students are bridled with virtually no restrictions during the two-hour period.

Wednesday's Soundoff was one of the poorest all year. There were no speakers for the first 30 minutes. After three interesting subjects were discussed, three economics "experts" grabbed the spotlight for the final 30 minutes and had a cozy debate among themselves on the merits of the Marxian economic and wage fund theories. Net result: One hour of good discussion, although it involved only three students and three Peace Corps' recruiters.

The forum needs interesting topics to revive student enthusiasm.

Sally Stage, A4, Davenport, has decided to regain that enthusiasm and has asked students to drop topic suggestions into a suggestion box at Union Soapbox Soundoff or the Activities Center.

She has also suggested that "shy" students who do not want to speak at Soundoff should write out their questions or opinions and pass them to a committee which would forward them to the speaker.

We hope these revisions will cure the apathy and help to attract large numbers of speakers and onlookers again.

Auto ban plan

ONE OF THE UNIVERSITY'S oldest and dearest problems is the automobile.

We don't have so many autos that air pollution has become a serious problem as it has in some parts of the country, but the Iowa City parking problem is approaching something like a miniature New York City. This news does not, of course, come as a surprise. University officials and parking committees have been debating ways to solve the growing problem for years. And as the debates go on, the problem gets worse.

There have been several proposals for solving the problem of the auto. The proposals basically fall into two categories, a price system and a rationing system.

Under the price system the University would build several parking lots and parking ramps around the campus in order to accommodate as many motorists as would be willing to pay for parking stickers. The stickers would cover the costs of maintaining and building the lots. Stickers would probably cost more than $200 a year for parking spaces near the campus. Probably few would pay the price.

Another approach to the parking problem is one of rationing. Under this plan some people — say all undergraduates — would not be allowed to have cars thus leaving space for other drivers.

These two solutions are the extremes. The final solution probably lies in a compromise plan. Perhaps parking lots could be built far away from the campus where land is cheaper. Perhaps some students should be denied the privilege of driving on campus.

In the past there has been much discussion, and all the while more cars are being brought to Iowa City. It appears that now — within the next few weeks — something is going to be done to meet the auto situation for next fall.

At a special Student Senate meeting at 2 p.m. Sunday in Old Capitol, the senators will be asked to express their opinions on the parking situation. (They will also be asked to move the all-campus election date back in order to allow reorganization to be implemented before the elections.)

The University's parking committee is presently thinking of recommending a proposal which would ban freshmen and perhaps sophomores from driving cars in Iowa City next fall. There are many details yet to be worked out, but the committee members agree that something to alleviate the parking problem must be done by next fall.

We have no ready answers for the parking problems — no one has — and we would like to encourage students to discuss the problems and the possibility of a partial ban on student driving to be implemented next fall.

This is one issue which could conceivably break through barriers of student apathy.

Cathy Lawrence is, by her own definition, "stylishly artsy-craftsy." She likes pierced ears, long walks, and intimate conversations.

Cathy daydreams of knights in shining armor but confesses she would be more realistic to dream of kings on motorcycles or princes in Volkswagens.

Since she began her college studies in 1962, Cathy has changed her major from philosophy to English to social work because she "likes to experiment."

And like most seniors, Cathy finds her last year passing "too slowly and much too quickly" for her to handle the decisions "facing one in maturity when one isn't sure one has it."

"THE WHOLE COUNTRY" is open with job opportunities, and I sit hovering in a corner, flipping a coin, trying to decide where to dash off to," she muses.

"Grad school may present itself in the fu-

University population in 1974. If enrollment is stabilized at 25,000 to 30,000 by 1984, as has been predicted, probably half the students will be graduates.

GRADUATE ENROLLMENT is expected to more than double itself every 10 years until 1984. In 1964, there were 3,332 graduate students; 6,700 are expected in 1974; and 15,000 in 1984.

The M.A., it seems, means more than Master of Arts. It also means insurance for More Advancement.

"There is a movement in many fields to require advanced degrees," says Priestersbach. "There is also a philosophy that we should take professional training out of the undergraduate college. There is the feeling that there is precious little time to get a broad education and that undergraduate work should not involve professional specialization.

"A broad background gives a foundation for ultimate specialization in the professional world and exposes the student to many fields to test out going to graduate school, I probably wouldn't go," she admits. "But many employers won't even consider your application unless you have at least an M.A."

MIXED MOTIVES

Though these reactions seem to support the idea that the prospective graduate student is making her plans out of necessity rather than choice, there are still those who are beginning graduate study because they enjoy learning. In some cases, motives are combined.

"I feel very strongly that society is starting to demand more education," says one coed, and another has "more and more questions that need answering."

A language major with a yen to travel and "to do something, anything, interesting," says she would "hate to quit learning at age 21. People who stop learning, ever, become dead." The university environment keeps you up to date among educated people.

And, though they are in the small minority, there are those who see graduate school as a place to wait out a decision.

"A major reason I will be going to graduate school is to decide exactly what I want to do," says one senior. "Up to this point, I have been unable to decide, and going to graduate school should give me more time to make the final decision."

THE MOTIVES FOR undertaking graduate study seem to line up strongly on the side of professional advancement. But since only about 25 per cent of the graduating senior women enroll in grad school, the next question is — what influences the other 75 per cent to seek their fortunes armed with only a B.A.?

The answers to this question are not nearly so pat. Many of the coeds interviewed say they intend to come back for an advanced degree "in two or three years." Many more have had quite enough of the academic life and want to "get out into the world."

Beth thinks she "will become a better teacher by teaching and working with people than by getting a degree." Connie doesn't want to do "all that research." Laura "might decide to come back, but I want to know what I'm coming back for before I do."

Some can no longer find any jolie de vivre behind the books.

"If I don't get an advanced degree," comments one discouraged senior, "it will be because I'm sick of school."

One coed, a senior English major, sums up the opinion of the minority who feel that graduate school would only compound existing mental confusion:

"In the first place I don't know what I want to do, and I never have known what I want to do. The longer I don't know, the longer I won't do anything. Therefore, if I keep isolated in school, I'll never do anything. If, after I start doing something, I find out graduate school would be beneficial, I could always go then. One way or another, I'll fall into something."

X-FACTOR

Marriage and family also play a part in a woman's decision for or against graduate school.

Many of the women interviewed mention marriage plans as a factor in their decision to find a job immediately after graduation. Only a very few plan to limit themselves to house-keeping. Most say they will work, at least for a few years, until the family is financially established.

The wife must go where the husband leads, and if the husband finds a job away from a university community, the wife's education will probably fall by the wayside, according to several of the coeds interviewed. In many of these cases, the husband-to-be has not made definite employment plans, and the woman's decision about graduate study is tentative.

Only a few women making plans for advanced study mention marriage as even a minor factor in their decision. The feeling seems to be that though the male-female ratio looks good on paper, too many male graduate students are married to make the hunting profitable.

"Frankly," disagrees one coed, "I think graduate school is about the only place I can meet the kind of man I want to meet — a man who is educated, interested and interesting."

If hopes of marriage do not provide the lure to graduate school, what does? What do senior women expect from graduate study besides that degree?

DEWEY-EYED IDEALISTS

It is at this point that the pragmatists become idealists. Answers to this question are couched in scores of dewy-eyed and altruistic phrases, but the theme is the same — a graduate degree may mean professional advancement, but that's not enough.

The young woman embarking on graduate study expects a "deeper knowledge," a "wider appreciation of people and ideas," "more perception," a "broader understanding of cultures."

"Since I'll be lucky even to get the degree," quips one English major, "I must be expecting some other reward. I'm looking for my little niche in life."

The would-be graduate student seems to expect to spend years poking through dusty library stacks in search of that niche. And she seems to expect her world to be filled with bookworms, beats, and bifocals. Her colleagues will all have soul-searching eyes, unpressed clothes, great intellects and small budgets.

THE GRADUATE STUDENT, in the view of those who will be graduate students, is a serious student with utmost dedication of purpose. He is, in fact, so serious and dedicated that he is "someone I never associate with."

The prospective graduate student, however, admits to a slowly developing realization that graduate students are people, after all.

The decision to go to graduate school is one made by more and more women every year. The choice is not made without reservations, and there are as many reasons for that choice as there are people who make it.

But the young woman who elects to ride the wind to graduate school knows where she is going.

ture, but now my idealistic tendencies promise a rich and rewarding life of independence and freedom and glory in the cultured East . . . or maybe the West Coast would be nice . . . or what's wrong with Chicago, perhaps . . . ?

For the present at least, Cathy is allowing herself to be whisked whimsically along any way the wind blows. But soon she will have to decide, along with many other senior women, what direction that wind is blowing. Her choices are several — marriage, graduate school, a career.

COOKS AND CHEMISTS

Recent interviews with more than 50 senior women at the University of Iowa indicate that the choice between cookbooks and chemicals is not easy.

Many have decided there are more things in heaven and earth than cooks and chemists and they have chosen to cast their lot with the philosophy of independence. Others have decided to join the throngs entering graduate schools next fall.

Social critics like to speculate on what will finally bring Cathy and her classmates to a decision, but the critics can't seem to agree upon any one answer.

Some say the student is confused and afraid of whatever it is he is confused about. The student, according to this theory, begins graduate study to avoid making the decisions required of him in workaday life.

OTHERS INSIST the woman graduate student is merely spinning her wheels until marriage. Wherever there is a preserve of eligible men, they say, is where the woman will begin her hunt.

Another popular theory is that the upswing in graduate student enrollments is due to increasing social pressure. Everybody goes to graduate school; it's the thing to do.

Not only is the prospective graduate student torn by conflicting opinions of woman's role in society, but also she faces the stigma of being branded a not-at-all-ah intellectual, a borderline female.

One Michigan State coed, quoted by David Bornoff in Mademoiselle magazine, describes women graduate students as "out of it; they don't have any pizzazz; they're kind of unloved and unhappy — and, oh, how they dress."

Robert P. Wolff, writing in Atlantic, delves more deeply into the student dilemma: "Eager to relax and reap the fruits of his race to college, the student must instead climb onto the treadmill to graduate school."

In light of all this social commentary, some think that graduate school is becoming a haven for intellectual misfits incapable of facing the rigors of decision-making, and a social escalator for women in search of an acceptable marriage.

Duane C. Priestersbach, dean of Iowa's Graduate College, does not agree.

MILLING MASSES?

"I'm cynical about some things, but not about this," he says. "I've never gotten the impression that our 4,000 grad students are milling around. Talk to them, and you'll see that most have very definite objectives."

Priestersbach's explanation of the surge to graduate school is that an increasing number of employers are beginning to require advanced degrees of most of their employees.

That there has been a rush to Iowa's graduate school is a matter of record. The percentage of graduate students in the total enrollment increased from 12.6 per cent in 1935 to 16.3 per cent in 1940 to 18.1 per cent in 1955 and to 23.7 per cent in 1965.

From 1935 to 1965, the University's total enrollment grew from 5,887 to 16,355; and the number of graduate students more than quadrupled, from 742 to 3,876.

University officials foresee continued increases in the percentage of graduate students. According to Graduate College estimates, graduate students will make up 27.9 per cent of the his interest. Undergraduates need to explore, and so we have introductory and survey courses."

BY THE TIME a student reaches graduate school, he should have identified with himself and should be ready to focus on his objectives, according to the dean.

"A student must have strong motivation to make it through graduate school," he says. "This is no place for dilettantes."

"I don't mean to imply that everyone should have an overriding professional objective right now. There are times in life when we should be able to pursue our interests and just to pursue our interests. We should be able to satisfy curiosities and develop our own philosophy and convictions rather than be pushed through a mill that grinds someone else's philosophy into us."

These principles seem applicable to both men and women. However, though the percentage of male graduate students has been soaring, the percentage of female graduate students has remained nearly static, except during the war years, at about 5 per cent of the University's total enrollment and at 25 per cent of the graduate student enrollment.

Last semester, only 950 of the 3,875 graduate students were women.

FACE IN THE CROWD

And, though it seems easy to pick the man who will go to graduate school, picking next year's crop of women graduate students is not so easy, as was found in a recent survey here.

The prospective woman graduate student has no distinguishing characteristics. More often than not, she is just Susie Coed, anxious to forsake the rah-rah of undergraduate days. She is captured by everything she reads, addicted to guitar playing, weary of taking up the banner for a Cause.

Sometimes she is inward and egocentric and wrapped up in research. She is also gregarious. She is Mme. Curie, Susan B. Anthony and Jacqueline Kennedy. She is Portia at the bar and Pauline on the rail.

But she is not, she emphatically announces, hiding behind the skirts of Alma Mater in a last ditch attempt to avoid making decisions in the Real World.

HER REASONS for going to graduate school are pragmatic first and idealistic second.

John Keats, in a recent Life magazine article, quotes one young man as saying, "In my field, college is just kindergarten. The M.A. means about as much as a high school diploma. The Ph.D. is like a college diploma."

Many prospective women graduate students seem to share his observation and agree that an advanced academic degree is essential for a woman's professional advancement.

For the prospective teacher, the M.A. seems essential. Several women interviewed say that since they plan to teach, they will need an M.A. to get top jobs and salaries. Others observe that many states now require teachers to have advanced degrees and that many other states soon will.

AS MORE AND MORE states jump on the M.A. bandwagon, more and more young teachers will join the parade to graduate school.

"I will be teaching at the same time as I am going to graduate school to keep up with new developments," one coed says. "Besides, pay is higher with added academic hours, and I think I need more courses to teach adequately."

Students in other professions — business, mathematics, the arts — concur with the coed who says, "Advanced degrees are not essential for getting a job in my field but they are essential for getting good jobs."

Several of the women interviewed think society is forcing them to enroll in advanced study. One such student, a science major, discusses the painful subject with a grimace.

"If I could get the type of job I want with-

THE QUADRANGLE QUEEN will be chosen from among these finalists at the dormitory's dance tonight. They are: Darlene Brus, A1, Walcott; Rae Grotenhouse, A1, Orange City; Barb Petersen, A2, Somers; Jan Munson, A1, Cresco; and Kathie Dunn, A1, Elk Grove Vill, Ill.

Charcoal Used On Ice In Quad-City Freeze

DAVENPORT (AP) — Helicopter pilots sprinkled nearly a ton of charcoal on the ice-caked Mississippi River Thursday in an effort to break up an ice jam about nine miles long. Authorities said they were unable to determine immediately what effect the experimental operation would have.

The jagged ice was covered with a dark substance that soaked up heat from the pale February sun to speed melting of the massive ice pack. The weather turned mild with a high of seven degrees above freezing.

U.N. Assembly Students From 20 Colleges To Meet Here: At Forensics Meet Here

About 90 students representing 50 nations will begin committee meetings of the mock United Nations General Assembly at 7 to-night in the Union Big 10 rooms.

Eight students representing three delegations will come from Coe College in Cedar Rapids for the assembly, James Starr, B4, Wyoming, a coordinator for the assembly, said Thursday.

Resolutions already submitted to the coordinators of the assembly deal with world "hot spots" — Viet Nam, the Dominican Republic, Kashmir and Jordan.

Other resolutions oppose recent U.S. intervention in the Dominican Republic, grant the people of Kashmir a plebiscite to determine between uniting with India or with Pakistan, grant membership to Communist China, strengthen the 1963 test-ban treaty, and deny voting privileges to nations that do not pay their dues.

Assembly committees will discuss the resolutions tonight. Debate will begin at 9 p.m. in the hall.

Prof Rebuts Coeds' Protest Of Psychology Experiments

Leslie D. Wright, assistant professor of psychology, gave vigorous rebuttal Tuesday to a letter to the editor that appeared in Tuesday's Daily Iowan. The letter was from four University coeds who protested the system of required student participation in elementary psychology experiments.

"They have just raised a straw man. They don't know enough about the situation to pass judgment," Wright said.

Under the system, students in elementary psychology, 31:1, and general psychology, 31:3, are required to act as subjects for a total of five hours of experiments.

Wright said that if the student had trouble getting enough experiments, he should see his instructor and explain the problem.

PETER MURDOCK, assistant professor of psychology and instructor in the elementary course, said most students did not strongly object to participating in the experiments.

In some universities, students are paid instead of being given participation points.

"This would not work here for two reasons," Wright said. "First, the experimenters, usually graduate students, do not have the finances. And second, points add more incentive than the amount of money that could be paid."

He said he was sure that most borderline students would just as soon have the points as the money.

Alumnus Gets State Position

Richard F. Houston, a 35-year-old Iowa City resident and former field secretary of the University Alumni Association, was named Thursday to succeed William Kendall as public information officer and personnel director of the State Department of Public Safety.

The appointment, which becomes effective March 15, was made by Gene Needles, state safety commissioner, as part of reorganization and personnel changes in the department.

Houston, who was also president of the Iowa City Junior Chamber of Commerce in 1962, has been accounting supervisor for the department since last July. His new position pays $8,400 annually.

Former Prisoner Of Russia To Speak In Union Monday

John Noble, an American who was held prisoner by Russia for nine and a half years, will speak at 8 p.m. Monday in the Union ballroom.

Noble and his father, both enemy aliens in Dresden, Germany during World War II, were accused of espionage against the Soviet Union. The Russians claimed that late in the war the two attempted to organize the close cooperation of American and German monopolies and that they spied against the Soviet Union after the war had ended.

In his book, "I Was a Slave in Russia," Noble tells about his experiences after his arrest. While at Weimar Prison in Erfurt, Germany, he was sentenced to 15 years of slave labor. His case was tried in Moscow.

NOBLE WAS then sent to a prison north of the Arctic Circle in Vorkuta, which is in Siberia. At Vorkuta, Noble writes, he was made to work in the coal mines daily with prisoners whose average weight was 75 to 115 pounds. The temperatures sometimes fell to 90 degrees below zero.

On Jan. 8, 1955, after years of work by the U.S. State Department, Noble was freed to American officials in Berlin.

Of his crossing into West Berlin, Noble writes, "I had crossed a border that separated two worlds. The world of fear, terror, deceit, Godlessness, and slavery was behind me in the east."

TICKETS to the speech, which is sponsored by local service organizations, are on sale at the Union Activities Center, Whetstone's, Campus Record Shop, Ewer's Men's Store and the Henry Louis Camera Store.

The Old Gold Singers will sing before Noble speaks.

Proceeds from the speech will be contributed to the Goodwill Industries of southeast Iowa's fund drive for a sheltered workshop for handicapped adults.

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, who concedes he has put his nimble foot into his big mouth, never needed plain talking more than he will before the Illinois State Athletic Commission Friday.

The commission is meeting to reconsider its previous sanction of a Clay-Ernie Terrell title bout here March 29 in the wake of Clay's remarks about his new 1-A draft reclassification and the war in Viet Nam.

Jones Should Be Eligible Next Year

Gerry Jones, a starting forward for Iowa before he was declared ineligible at the semester, should have no trouble bringing his grade point up so he can play next year, according to Assistant Coach Dick Schultz.

Jones missed being eligible by only one hundredth of a grade point. A 1.75 average is required for a junior to be eligible and Jones had a 1.74.

However, Gerry may have trouble getting enough semester hours to rank as a senior next year. To be eligible to play, a 1.85 GPA and 84 semester hours are needed. Jones has only 63 hours now, but plans to go to summer school, according to Schultz.

BASEBALL STARTS—

Iowa's baseball team started regular workouts this week and will continue practices everyday until the season opener against Western Illinois on April 1.

Ban On Women At Finkbine On Weekends May Change

Women may be back on the fairways of South Finkbine Golf Course during the weekends if the Iowa Board in Control of Athletics approves a Faculty Council proposal.

All women are now barred from the southern course until 3 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays. Miss Gladys Scott, professor of physical education, recently expressed opposition to the rule in a letter to the Faculty Council. On Feb. 14 the council approved a memorandum to the board urging that more equitable means be adopted to maintain the pace of play.

THE MEMORANDUM IS EXPECTED TO BE SENT TO THE BOARD THIS WEEK.

Robert V. Hogg, professor of statistics and chairman of the golf committee on the board, said he thought one of the reasons for the council's decision was that the council "wants better women to play on Saturdays and Sundays."

"We've never completely restricted women and said they can't play golf," said Hogg. "The North Finkbine course is open. The play will just not move. You could always argue that some ladies can play right along. This is true. We just thought it would be easier for women to play during the week."

GOLFERS can now tour the 18-hole course in about four hours, he said, but if the course were opened to women it would take 5½ hours.

Hogg said he would abide by the request and review the present policy, but added that the council had not suggested any alternatives to the present plan.

One possibility is that closer supervision of South Finkbine be used to maintain the speed of play.

"MISS SCOTT said that it was up to the committee to find any alternatives.

"We've had a good reception of tee times," said Hogg. "It's been perfect. Before you'd have to wait one to one and one-half hours before teeing off. Now you move right out."

Russell, Schellhase Clash On Purdue Court Saturday

CHICAGO (AP) — Pressure will be on both pacesetter Michigan in the title race and Wolverine star Cazzie Russell in his scoring championship quest against lowly Purdue on Saturday's Big 10 basketball program.

The game on Purdue's court is the second Wolverine-Boilermaker tangle in eight days and based on last Saturday's wild fray at Ann Arbor, anything could happen.

MICHIGAN, currently holding a one-game margin over second-place Michigan State, won that scorcher, 128-94, but it cost ground to Russell in his scoring battle with defending champ Dave Schellhase of Purdue.

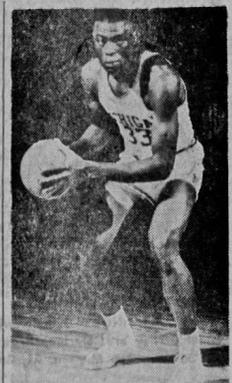

Schellhase pumped in a Big 10 single game record 57 points, while Russell collected 28. But Michigan's 128 total also was a conference record.

Official league statistics released Thursday now show Russell leading Schellhase on a per game average only 31.9 points to 31.6, each for 10 contests. They have four game left.

Schellhase, whose Purdue club is tied for last at 3-7, won the scoring crown last season with a 14-game average of 27.9. Russell finished second with 28.2.

IF SCHELLHASE, current national leader with an overall average of 32.5, beats out Russell, it will mark the fifth time in seven seasons the scoring title has gone to a Purdue star.

Third among the current leaders is Don Freeman of Illinois with 26.6, with Minnesota's Archie Clark fourth 25.5 and Northwestern's Jim Burns fifth with 21.7.

Michigan State's surprising challenge of defending champion Michigan is hubbed around the seventh and eighth best shooters in the league, Stan Washington with 19.1 and Bill Curtis at 18.7.

Michigan and Michigan State, who meet in a probably decisive finale at East Lansing March 7, are the top offensive and defensive teams respectively. Michigan has averaged 94.6 points and Michigan State has yielded an average of 72.9.

Gym, Fencing, Track Teams Travel For Weekend Matches

Three Iowa teams will have road contests Saturday as the last preparation for the Big 10 championships March 3-5.

The gymnastics squad will take on Illinois, the track team goes to Minnesota and the fencers will meet the University of Chicago and Ohio State in two dual meets at Columbus.

The gymnasts are 5-3 on the season and face a stiff test at Champaign. Illinois suffered its first losses of the season last weekend at the hands of Michigan and Michigan State — teams which also beat Iowa.

Illinois' outstanding performer is Cookie Rollo, a sophomore, who competes on the trampoline, long horse and parallel bars. Rollo has not been defeated on the trampoline this year.

The track team faces a formidable foe in Minnesota. But the Hawks are off to a strong start after winning a quadrangular meet at Illinois last week. Iowa beat Illinois, Northwestern and Purdue and won seven of fifteen first place ribbons.

The fencing squad will be trying to salvage a 500 season, after dropping four dual meets last weekend. They now have a 5-7 record. The squad was without the services of foil man Orville Townsend, who had a sprained ankle and lost two of the meets by close scores.

Phi Delt's Win Cage Crown

Phi Delta Phi won the varsity basketball championship last night by defeating Grinnell 49-34.

Although the Phi Delt's 15 points the game was closer than the score indicated.

Late in the third quarter the Phi Delt's reeled off seven straight field goals and took an 18 point lead into the fourth quarter.

Grimes got hot in the fourth quarter and pumped in six straight field goals and a free throw to narrow the Phi Delt's lead to five points.

At this point, Grimes made two costly turnovers and the Phi Delt's took advantage of Grimes' errors to score three out of four field goals and a free throw. This surge built their lead to 10 points.

With time running out, Grimes had to foul to get the ball. Grimes' strategy failed, however, when Phi Delta Phi made four straight free throws to put the game out of reach.

Jim Neppel led Phi Delta Phi with 10 points.

Dennie Rue took game scoring honors with 12 points in a losing cause.

DRABOWSKY SIGNS—MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Pittsburgh's Phil Drabowsky ended his 10-year major league career with a home run off Baltimore Orioles for a $14,000.

Career Opportunities With A Major Manufacturer AC SPARK PLUG DIVISION GENERAL MOTORS CORPORATION

AC Spark Plug Division, General Motors Corporation, is seeking graduates with degrees in Engineering, Liberal Arts and Business Administration for productive and rewarding careers in the areas of engineering and research, finance, manufacturing and reliability, and quality control.

Beginning with a single product — spark plugs — AC has extended its list of products to more than 100 automotive components. These include speedometers, instrument panels, oil filters, fuel pumps, cruise control systems, tachometers, marine and industrial gauges, and aircraft oil filters and spark plugs. Today, AC has emerged at the top among the world's manufacturers of automotive parts and accessories.

AC employees enjoy the advantages of the General Motors Employee Benefit Programs, among the most progressive and liberal in industry. These include competitive salaries, group insurance, paid vacations, comprehensive medical expense, savings-stock purchase program, sickness and accident benefits and an outstanding retirement program.

AC is located in Flint, Michigan, a community of people enjoying the better things in life. The $25,000,000 College and Cultural Development Center affords growth in the fine arts. This community development includes music, art, theatre, planetarium, museum and library facilities.

The tuition refund plan at AC encourages you to continue college level studies in your spare time. The University of Michigan Extension Center, in Flint, offers graduate programs in mechanical engineering, electrical engineering, industrial administration and business administration. General Motors Institute and the University of Michigan Branch offer additional studies at the undergraduate level. In addition, Michigan State University, in Lansing, the University of Michigan campus, in Ann Arbor, and Wayne State University and the University of Detroit are within commuting distance.

The city of Flint is the second largest in the State of Michigan, and offers excellent residential areas, educational facilities, shopping and churches. Its location makes it ideal for sports enthusiasts—both as spectators or as participants.

If you'd like to know more about all this, our representative will be on campus March 2, 3 and 4. Plan to see him—he'll have all the details.

More Students Buy On Credit According To Businessmen

By RON FROELICH
Staff Writer

University students, along with a majority of the American public, are buying more and more on a charge-as-you-go basis, according to a national survey and reports from two local bookstores.

An information sheet released by the National Consumer Finance Association (NCFA), an organization of state-regulated small loan firms, showed that within the last 20 years consumer credit outstanding has increased more than seven times to more than $76.8 billion.

Locally, Mrs. Barbara O'Rourke, an office employee at Iowa Book and Supply Co., said recently that because of increased student requests for charge accounts the store was converting to IBM machines to handle its accounting.

The IBM machines have been ordered and will be first used in June.

Mrs. O'Rourke said the bookstore currently carried about 3,000 student accounts and anticipated more in the future. She said 400 accounts had been added since the start of the spring semester.

Dick Lindsay, manager of Hawkeye Book Store, said his store carried student charge accounts, but the number was limited because of a small office staff and a lack of office equipment for billing and keeping accounts up to date.

"Charge accounts are something we'd like to expand on," Lindsay said, "because it's another way of getting extra business."

The NCFA information sheet noted that most persons who have charge accounts "default on their obligations with astounding rarity."

Members of the NCFA indicated only a fraction of 1 per cent of the loans on their books had to be written off as bad credit debts.

Mrs. O'Rourke said that out of the 3,000 student accounts carried by her store, only 50 were delinquent last week. She said accounts not paid within 60 days are put on a "delinquent list" which is posted at all check-out counters to prevent additional charges.

Lindsay said his store had few student accounts that needed to be written off as bad credit debts.

"In fact," Lindsay said, "the number of bad student accounts is generally much lower than it would be if we were dealing with the general public."

Ford Motor Company is:

inspiration

College graduates, new to Ford Motor Company, often comment on the comparative youth of many of our top executives. The example of these men in key positions is evidence that being young is no handicap at Ford to those who possess ability and ambition. In fact, new employees can expect challenging assignments while still participating in our College Graduate Program. This means an opportunity to demonstrate special skills and initiative while still learning the practical, day-to-day aspects of the business. Consider the experience of Jim Weston, who has been with Ford Motor Company for three years.

Jim came to Ford in February, 1963. His first assignment was in marketing analysis where his principal job was evaluating present and potential dealer locations. For a time, he also gained experience in the actual purchasing of dealer locations. Later, an assignment forecasting sales and market potential with Ford Division's Truck Sales Programming Department gave him the background he needed to qualify for his present position. His job today? Only three years out of college, Jim is now a senior financial analyst in Ford Division's Business Management Department.

Jim Weston's experience is not unusual. At Ford Motor Company, your twenties can be challenging and rewarding years. Like to learn more about it? Talk to our representative when he visits your campus.

4-Day Clinical Pharmacy Seminar Will Discuss Distribution Of Drugs

Pharmacists from several states will attend the fifth annual Clinical Pharmacy Seminar at the University from Sunday through noon Wednesday.

Central themes of the seminar will be drug distribution systems and drug information programs. Other topics will include Medicare and pharmaceutical service, clinical practices of pharmacy, unit dose packaging, and the use of electronic data processing in drug distribution, inventory control and purchasing.

William Nelson, chief pharmacist at Mercy Hospital, Cedar Rapids, and president of the society, will preside at the opening session in the Union Sunday afternoon.

Among the speakers at the seminar will be Grover C. Bowles Jr., president of the American Pharmaceutical Association; F. Regis Kenna, president of the American Society of Hospital Pharmacists; George Archambault, pharmacy liaison of to the office of the Surgeon General of the United States; and Paul H. Crews, secretary of the Iowa board of pharmacy examiners.

Senior pharmacy students will be hosts at a display and demonstration session Monday evening. Thomas A. Wunderlich, P4, Ames, president of the student chapter of the Iowa Pharmaceutical Association, will preside.

Wendle L. Kerr, professor of Pharmacy, is program director for the seminar.

Coeds To Attend Theta Sig Meet

Three senior coeds from the School of Journalism will attend the "Upper Case Careers—1966 Edition" College Week-end conference Saturday and Sunday in Chicago.

The conference, sponsored by the Chicago chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, national professional journalism fraternity for women, will outline career opportunities for women in the communications world.

Attending from Iowa are Suzanne Anderson, La Crosse, Wis.; Margaret Fones, Des Moines; and Charlotte Willard, Clinton.

Choir To Begin Tour Soon

The 67-voice University choir will begin its fourth annual spring tour next month, bringing to audiences in Iowa and Minnesota choral music from the 16th century to the present.

The choir, acclaimed by one critic as "a major choral organization in the Midwest," will present evening concerts in Newton, Des Moines, St. Ansgar and White Bear Lake, Minn., beginning March 12. The group will also present two daytime programs on March 13 for students at Des Moines' Lincoln and Roosevelt High Schools.

The choir will mark its return to Iowa City with a concert March 18 in the Union.

Under the direction of Daniel Moe, the ensemble will present choral works ranging from a "parody" Mass for six voices by Palestrina—in which musical material is borrowed from an earlier motet by the 16th century composer—to selections by such modern composers as Halsey Stevens and Igor Stravinsky.

The choir, organized in the fall of 1961 by Moe, is one of the youngest major performing ensembles at the University. In

U of I Graduate Exhibits Works

Recent drawings and painting by Carolyn Autry, who received an M.F.A. degree from Iowa in June, 1965, are on exhibition in a two-man show at Baldwin-Walace College, Berea, Ohio, where Miss Autry now teaches in the Department of Art.

The exhibition of works by Miss Autry and another faculty member of the college opened Feb. 13 and will be shown until March 14. Miss Autry is formerly of Grinnell.
