

4 Men Leave Dorm, Can't Break Contract, Rent Two Places

By RICK GRAY
Staff Writer

James R. Morrison, A3, Moline, Ill., moved out of Quadrangle the weekend after Christmas.

Today he lives at 412 Garden St., has a job at the Union and attends the University. He is, however, still paying $110 a month to Quadrangle to fulfill the terms of his dorm contract.

Three other students besides Morrison are paying for dormitory accommodations while living off-campus because they could not break their contracts.

THE TERMS of an academic year contract state that the contract cannot be cancelled "to live in private off-campus housing accommodations, or a fraternity or sorority, to accept employment involving rooms and/or meals, or to commute from home."

Morrison said this week that he moved out because he "didn't like the dorm atmosphere." More specifically, he said, the quadruple room he had lived in was too small for four people. He added that he could not study, there was no privacy and the lighting was bad.

Morrison talked to Robert R. Kennedy, manager of dormitory assignments, about his problem but said Kennedy could do nothing to help him.

ACCORDING to Kennedy, who was interviewed Friday, there are only three officially recognized reasons for breaking a dorm contract. If a student drops registration, if he gets married, or if there is a "drastic change in his family situation, such as the death of the father," then the student will be let out of his contract, Kennedy said.

In Morrison's case, Kennedy said, there was "no drastic change in family situation." He added that he was still willing to arrange a room or dorm transfer for Morrison.

T. M. Rehder, head of the dormitories and dining services, said Friday that students have to abide by the terms of the contract.

"The contract guarantees a room for the student, and by the same token allows the dorms to make commitments and fulfill obligations for the future year," he said.

SEVERAL residents of the men's dorms, asked their comments on the contract terms, said they thought there should be some revision in the present practices.

Corwyn Berger, E1, Skokie, Ill., a Quadrangle resident, said he didn't think the present practices were fair. He suggested that an extra fee should be charged to students who want to break their contracts, but said that the student "should not be charged the full amount of the contract just because he wants to live somewhere else."

Mike Petersen, A4, Harlan, a Hillcrest resident, thinks that the contract should be signed for one semester, not two, in case the student changes his mind and wants to move out after the first semester.

Bruce Marlowe, A1, Low Moor, also from Hillcrest, said "there should be more stipulations allowing a resident to get out of his contract."

Pope Paul Eases Rules On Catholic Marriages

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI eased Friday some of the ancient Vatican restrictions on marriages between Roman Catholics and persons of other faiths.

He wiped out a rule that had obliged the non-Catholic partner in an interfaith marriage to make a signed promise that children of the union would be raised as Catholics.

He also lifted excommunication of Catholics who have married or will marry outside the Church, and provided for common prayer and the presence of non-Catholic clergy at mixed marriages performed in Catholic churches.

HOLLEY AUGUST, A2, Marshalltown, was crowned Inter-Dorm Queen at the inter-dorm Sharrack Ball Friday night. She was chosen from a field of seven finalists.

Head Start, Youth Corps Plans Ready

Proposals for summer programs of the Neighborhood Youth Corps and Project Head Start will be presented at a meeting of the Hawkeye Area Community Action Program (HACAP) at 8 p.m. Monday at the Congregational Church, 30 N. Clinton St.

Approval by HACAP will mean the proposals can be submitted to federal officials in Washington, D.C., who must approve the programs before work can start.

John Adamson, last year's Youth Corps project director, said Friday this summer's proposed 12 week program, starting June 6, would involve riverfront beautification and landscaping.

PLANS CALL for 24 youths in the corps. The project director will be Kenneth Millsap, assistant city manager.

Applications for the 24 jobs are being taken at the Iowa State Employment Service, 22 E. Court St. Applicants must be between 16 and 21 and will be chosen according to need.

Applications for the three adult supervisors and the job coordinator will be received at city administrative offices in the Civic Center.

TOTAL BUDGET for the Youth Corps project is $20,589.80, nearly $18,000 of which is being sought in federal funds.

The proposed Head Start program would be much expanded over last year's.

Marshall Field, county superintendent of schools, said Friday that the application will include a request for about $28,000 in federal funds.

The eight week program, scheduled to start June 20, is planned for about 80 disadvantaged children who will begin kindergarten this fall.

IN ADDITION to classes, plans call for the services of a social worker and a psychologist and for complete medical and dental examinations.

Field said HACAP would be the sponsoring agency and the county superintendent's office the delegate agency charged with operating the program.

College Plans Get Final OK From Board

DES MOINES (AP) — Five area vocational - community college plans won final approval Friday from the State Board of Public Instruction, one was rejected at the preliminary stage and another failed to receive any action.

Final approval, setting the stage for calling elections for boards of directors, was granted for area systems clustered around Waterloo, Davenport Council Bluffs, Cedar Rapids and Des Moines.

Preliminary approval for the revised Sioux City district was denied on grounds there is too much variance in population of director districts.

The board said it will need a revised application from the Burlington area before it can act on a change which switches emphasis from community colleges to the vocational-technical level.

Final approval was voted for the Cedar Rapids and Des Moines areas despite admitted wide spreads in populations of their director districts.

Paul F. Johnston, state superintendent of public instruction, explained under the law the board has little choice but to grant approval in the final stage once the counties involved have ratified the plan.

The Cedar Rapids area involves Johnson, Jones, Linn, Iowa, Cedar, Washington and Benton counties. Director districts range in population from 13,015 to 53,663.

Colloquium Discusses Asian Myths

By LEE DICKER
Staff Writer

Myths about Asia and economic determinism and their relations to U.S. foreign policy were discussed at the Cold War Colloquium Friday afternoon in the Old Capital House Chamber.

The bi-weekly event is sponsored by the Faculty-Student Committee on Public Affairs. About 30 persons participated.

Hal Wert, A4, Newton, spoke on the "Images of Asia" to begin the colloquium. He based his information on Harold Isaac's book, "Images of Asia."

WERT ASKED whether U.S. Chinese diplomacy was based on myths and whether such myths were persistent or fluctuating.

Wert said the basic myths of China are: (1) China represents a great civilization with creativity and grandeur; and (2) China represents yellow masses, tortures and inferior culture.

Christopher Lasch, professor of history, said another basic American myth was the assumption that the Chinese were contemptuous of human life.

Most participants said they thought the U.S. government was deliberately keeping the public in the dark about China.

David Gross, G. Orono, Me., moderator of the colloquium, said, "There is a desire to keep the people ignorant of China. Myths develop and such myths make us hate China, preparing us for what the government may feel is an inevitable war."

"There has been a conversion of the industry-military complex from war to space," said Lawrence E. Barrett, program assistant at WSUL. "Washington, D.C., is becoming part of this. They devise projects so expensive that these must be joint (industry and military) efforts."

Barrett called for more impetus for such space projects.

"Let them play games in space and not in Viet Nam," he said.

Recreation Needs Reported Growing

The United States has had an encouraging change in attitude toward developing suitable recreational change in attitude to the Secretary of the Interior, told the Iowa State Recreation Conference Friday night in the Union Ballroom.

"It's true we had low beautification and recreation budgets during the 1920's and '30's," Beatty said, "but at that time we

In a speech earlier Friday, Alfred B. LaGasse, general manager of the National Recreation and Park Association, said that technological progress had enhanced the value of recreation for the public.

LaGasse said that in the past, "to be idle was a sin," but attitudes had changed because of an increase in leisure time.

The present problem for the park and recreation commission, according to LaGasse, is to keep up with the public needs.

Although the trend is for local governments to ask for federal aid in financing recreation facilities, LaGasse said, park and recreation directors also should raise funds from their communities.

Zoning Suit Filed In District Court

A petition asking for a permanent injunction against Henry M. Black, 422 Brown St., was filed Friday in Johnson County District Court by the city of Iowa City.

The petition charges that Black is violating the city zoning ordinance by leasing three multiple housing units in an area under single unit residential zoning from 418 to 428 Brown St.

Black said that all tenants on his property are students or faculty members.

The petition said that adjoining property owners initiated the suit by demanding enforcement of Iowa City zoning laws on Black's property.

Three of the four buildings on Black's property are being attacked in the suit. One of the buildings is a large duplex completed last year, Black said. A series of smaller buildings now joined into a complex and a large brick mansion are the other buildings involved.

Nuclear War Is Expected By Peking

WASHINGTON (AP) — Red China now believes a chain reaction of intervention and attack may widen the Vietnamese war and eventually bring down U.S. nuclear weapons upon her, an Asian affairs expert said Friday.

While the Chinese are anxious to avoid nuclear war, Morton H. Halperin told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, they are determined not to see their Communist cause retreat in Viet Nam.

"IN PEKING," the Harvard University professor declared, "no less than in Washington, the desire to avoid another Munich is a major preoccupation of political leaders."

Retired Marine Brig. Gen. Samuel B. Griffith II said China's army is a potent regional force — but a paper tiger outside the Peking regime's own neighborhood.

But Griffith forecast a long struggle for the United States in Southeast Asia. "The Chinese are willing to sit on this situation until hell freezes over," he said.

BOTH HALPERIN and Griffith generally endorsed President Johnson's policy in South Viet Nam.

"We're going to be there a long time," the general said. But both men also said the United States should drop its opposition to Red Chinese membership in the United Nations.

"Let's get the monkey off our backs," said Griffith.

From Nationalist China's Madame Chiang Kai-shek, meanwhile, came a call for bombing of Red Chinese nuclear installations. She told the National Press Club that conventional bombs should be used against China's nuclear facilities.

HALPERIN told the Senate committee the Red Chinese drive to develop atomic weapons is related to "their long-standing fear of an American nuclear attack."

"The Chinese have concluded that there is a substantial probability of an American attack on China growing out of the Viet Nam war," Halperin said.

He said China apparently believes she "may be forced to intervene to protect the political integrity of North Viet Nam and that this would lead to an attack on China."

The Chinese believe that a U.S. attack first would be confined to conventional weapons, Halperin said, "but they expect that nuclear weapons would ultimately be used."

U.S. Military Knows Might Of Enemies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist China and North Viet Nam together could send four or five divisions into South Viet Nam and sustain them in combat.

This is the current intelligence estimate accepted by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

So far, there is no evidence of any intention by Red China or North Viet Nam to change the character of the Viet Nam war in this fashion. But U.S. military chiefs take such a possibility into account in their planning.

A force of four to five divisions would total about 80,000 to 100,000 men, including supporting elements.

Intelligence experts believe also that Red China could put some 20 divisions, totaling about 400,000 men, into Southeast Asia on a wide front from the Vietnamese coast to Burma.

If the Chinese should choose such a course, U.S. authorities would be confronted immediately with a decision on whether to use nuclear weapons against them.

Indications are that the use of nuclear weapons would be held back at least until the enemy's objectives and intentions were diagnosed.

There is a widely held belief that atomic weapons would be the only answer to dealing with hordes of Chinese troops.

LOCAL

TWO UNIVERSITY STUDENTS were charged with attempting to buy beer and another was charged with intoxication by Iowa City Police Friday. John Sproul, A1, Lake View, and Thomas E. Moore, A1, Independence, were picked up by police early Friday morning at Joe's Place for attempting to buy beer. Robert Reinke, D4, Hartley, was picked up at the College Street parking lot.

A TEMPORARY INJUNCTION prohibiting Iowa City police from chalking tires of cars parked downtown was granted Friday to Frank Grell, 725 Bradley St. No definite date was set for a formal hearing in Johnson County District Court. Grell asked for the injunction against the enforcement of one section of the traffic code that permits police to mark tires in checking for street storage and overtime parking.

TICKETS ARE COMPLETELY SOLD out for "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" which will run Tuesday to Saturday and March 28-31 at the University Theatre. Persons may put their names on a waiting list for cancelled tickets by contacting the ticket office at the University Theatre at 7 p.m. before the performance they want to attend. They will be notified in the theatre at 7:45 p.m. if tickets are available.

"SOMEONE SPECIAL," A DOCUMENTARY film about a day in the life of a mentally retarded boy, will be presented at 8 p.m. Monday in the Conference Room of the Hospital School for Severely Handicapped Children. The film will be shown to the Johnson County Association for Retarded Children with the public invited. Morris Alter, G, Davenport, Bruce Kienapfel, A4, Carroll, and Jack Schwidder, A4, Fort Dodge, produced the film for the "Speech in Television" course.

AN EARLY MORNING BURGLARY at Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, 728 E. Washington St., netted an unidentified man about $30 and a wallet Friday. Police reported entrance was gained through a second floor hallway window at about 1:45 a.m. According to one of the girls who discovered the intruder, the man wore khaki pants and a suede jacket and had a nylon stocking pulled over his face.

W. W. MALLORY, STAFF GEOLOGIST at Denver Center, will lecture on "Pennsylvanian System in Wyoming, a New Look at an Old Bonanza," at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Geology Auditorium.

RICHARD M. BIRD, A4, CLINTON, was treated and released from University Hospital Friday evening after suffering back injuries when the car he was driving was hit from behind by one driven by Louis R. Eichler, of Forest View Trailer Park. The accident occurred at 5 p.m. Friday at the intersection of Riverside Drive and Newton Road. Eichler was charged by police with failure to stop in the assured clear distance. No estimate of auto damage was given by either owner.

Tau Kappa Epsilon Chapter Granted Probationary Status

The Committee on Student Life (CSL) has granted a probationary period of two semesters for a University chapter of Tau Kappa Epsilon (TKE), men's social fraternity.

CSL approved Thursday a petition submitted by 12 student members of TKE for a probationary period until the end of the first semester next school year.

At that time, TKE may petition for full fraternity status if it can provide adequate housing for its members and if it has at least 30 undergraduate members, 20 of whom must be active, meeting the grade point requirement.

All members must have a GPA of at least 2.0, half the members must have at least a 2.5 GPA and 15 per cent must have at least a 3.0 GPA.

The Interfraternity Council

granted TKE permission last December to colonize on the Iowa campus. TKE now has 17 members.

TKE will participate in IFC and JIFC, and in next fall's rush.

In other action at its Thursday meeting, CSL also discussed Union Board's new constitution. Final action on it was delayed until the next regular monthly meeting.

Tom Hanson, A3, Jefferson, president-elect of the student body, was installed as a new member of CSL. Hanson, who will take office at Tuesday's Senate meeting, replaces present student body president, Bill Parisi, A4, Chicago Heights, Ill.

Also attending the Thursday meeting was Harry Maas, A3, Wellsburg, president-elect of Union Board. Maas, who takes office May 1, will replace Rick Davis, A4, Fort Dodge, present Union Board president.

Yale Political Science Prof To Talk On Internationalism

Karl W. Deutsch, professor of political science at Yale University, will return here Monday to continue his Shambaugh lecture series on "Nationalism and Internationalism: Some Recent Developments."

Deutsch will open his three-day series with an address on "The Experience of Regional Federations" at 8 p.m. Monday.

At 8 p.m. Tuesday his topic will be "Development and Theory and Analysis," and at 4 p.m.

Wednesday, "Some Prospects and Policy Problems."

The lectures, which will be in the Old Capital senate chamber, are open to the public.

As guest lecturer for the Shambaugh series for the 1965-66 academic year, Deutsch gave three lectures on the same subject last October. At the fall session he analyzed the cultural bases for nationalism and internationalism and applied the theories to western, central and eastern Europe and the developing countries.

A native of Prague, Czechoslovakia, who became a U.S. citizen in 1948, Deutsch is an expert in comparative and international politics.

Besides teaching, Deutsch was chief of the research section of the Office of Strategic Services, Department of State, during World War II and a staff member of the United Nations Conference on International Organization in San Francisco in 1945.

Auto Report Is Expected Next Week

Details of the University Parking and Security Committee report on campus parking and traffic problems are expected to be released early next week.

The committee report, which may call for a ban against some students having cars in Iowa City, is to be studied by Pres. Howard R. Bowen over the weekend.

A committee meeting was held Thursday to work out several snags in the plan and to send the final recommendations to Bowen. Committee Chairman Eugene Spaziani, associate professor of sociology, said Friday that the plan could be accepted by Bowen without change, amended or held for further study.

If approved, the plan would go into effect next fall. In addition to possible restricting use of cars, the plan might also call for improved bus service and large off-campus parking lots.

Ball Tonight Ends MECCA Festival

The MECCA Ball from 8 p.m. to midnight tonight in the Union Ballroom officially concludes the College of Engineering's week-long celebration honoring St. Patrick, the engineers' patron saint.

MECCA is the abbreviation for departments within the College of Engineering: mechanical, electrical, civil, chemical and aeronautical.

Tickets at $3.50 a couple will be available at the ballroom door. Music will be by the Hal Wiese Orchestra.

The MECCA Queen and St. Patrick will be announced at intermission.

Too Far to Walk' Pits man vs. devil

By ROD VAHL
Staff Writer

"Too Far to Walk," John Hersey (New York: Knopf, 1964), $4.95. Available at Iowa Book & Supply.

Somewhere on the University of Iowa campus there is a restless collegian frustrated about his studies, his goals, his social life. This student arrived here abounding with ambition, energy, and desire, but after a year he suddenly discovered himself in a philosophical dilemma, suspicious of his conservative provincialism, his lily-white cloak of virginity, and his Bible Belt creed of immortality.

This student is the subject of John Hersey's new novel, "Too Far to Walk," a readable account of the social-moral struggle of an intelligent student who suddenly abandons the All-American corps of Ivy League gridiron addicts to enlist in the ranks of the "Play It Cool" platoons of college cats rebelling against "conventional mores."

Hersey introduces John Fist, a mixed-up sophomore, and Chum Breed, a Hugh Hefner playboy, lead characters in a modern Faustian narrative pitting man against devil.

MAN IS REPRESENTED by Fist, a student at Sheldon College, a rigid academic school in the East. After a fruitful year of study, he wonders whether all the reading, research and examinations are necessary in attaining "happiness."

As in Marlowe's "Tragic History of Dr. Faustus" and Goethe's "Faust," Hersey's novel has a devil — Breed, the college playboy who lives "fast" to the envy of the unwary and who promises "everything" to the curious.

As quickly as he introduces the two main personalities, Hersey begins to weave a plot in which the reader hears John say:

"I've quit going to class."
"I decided it was too far to walk."
"I want to major in magic."

FIST FINDS HIS magic through Breed, who promises him all the sensual pleasures without the popular struggles facing the typical collegian. But the price is the same as in Marlowe's and Goethe's classics, man's self, his soul.

What follows is for the most part the respected Hersey reportorial account of a youth's adventure into the evil pleasures of life. Hersey gives the reader a keen, rather accurate insight into the intellectual frustrations of a student as he quizzically emerges from the traditionally adult-controlled flourishes of the adolescent.

AS FAUST SOLD his soul to the devil for 24 years, young Fist sells his betroubled soul to Breed for 26 weeks. What is interestingly different is that Hersey places the bill of sale on today's college campus.

As in "A Bell for Adano," Hersey displays a sharp eye for human nature as he traces young Fist through frustrating events. The reader will soon experience empathy as Fist fails in an attempt to divest himself of his virginity with a high school girl; suspense as he loses his virginity to a college town prostitute; and hilarity as he shocks his provincial parents with a Beatnik-type weekend visit.

Hersey is not satisfied at this point, however, and feels it necessary to have Fist experience the sordid and ugly effects of LSD — lysergic acid diethylamide — or, as the folks back home would call it, dope.

Hersey leads the reader through a five-chapter sequence of dreams experienced by drugged John Fist in which he meets his family and friends in metaphorically described situations that should arouse a repugnant reaction in the reader.

IN HIS DELIRIUM, Fist tells the world to go to hell, discovers a different kind of father in the Viet Nam war, and finally encounters his mother in a demonic orgy that is the most hideous and repulsive bit of description and dialogue in the book.

But Hersey is kind to the boy. He brings him back to reality.

After his venture with LSD, Fist replies to Breed, who seeks to renew the 26-week pact, "I cannot go on living in a world that's on a knife-edge between hallucination and objective truth."

Thus, in fairly tale style, Fist escapes from the devil and departs from the reader with a firm vow to face the realities of life.

"Too Far to Walk" is an informative and entertaining story despite the LSD chapters, which will lessen the reading pace, for Hersey seems to become enraptured in his metaphoric adventure and at times loses his reportorial grasp as well as the sight of his theme.

And, some will question whether John Fist is a truly typical college youth in that he reaches out for the red-and-white capsule.

IF RECENT NEWS reports are true, LSD has gained popularity on East and West coast campuses as a momentary escape from the realities of life. Psychiatrists report that LSD is used solely in psychoanalysis in a limited function and that, though it is not habit-forming, it is dangerous and ineffective as a means of solving personal anxieties and frustrations.

In this sense, Hersey performs a service in giving the reader a seemingly realistic and authentic account of its use, and his novel could well serve as a warning to the frustrated student that LSD offers him only an additional frustration.

Students in particular should enjoy the 246 pages of "Too Far to Walk" for it is close to home.

And one would hope that each reader would say to himself, "It isn't too far to walk."

The old saying proves true

The Old Saying "Beware of Greeks bearing gifts" took on special meaning at the United Nations when it was discovered that a statue of the "all-wise" Zeus presented in 1953 is really the "earth-shaker" Poseidon.

According to The Insider's Newsletter, the case of mistaken identity — and the important symbolic difference — was revealed last week when the Greek Government advised the UN that the statue on display in the General Assembly building was actually the god of the sea, Poseidon.

In ancient times, Poseidon was especially feared for stirring up storms that lashed the land. He was called Enosichthon (earth-shaker), producer of terrifying earthquakes. His offspring (like the cyclops, Polyphemus and the cannibal, Laestrygones) were all wild and cruel. Some observers points, however, that Poseidon was also known to the Greeks as Gaieochos — holder of encirler of the earth.

The Newsletter says the UN is retitling the statue accordingly.

The policy now is to get the patient moving around

On other campuses —

California, here we come

By DAVE POLLEN
Editorial Assistant

Quite often this column has devoted its interests to events from colleges in California, notably the Berkeley campus of the University of California. This preoccupation with an area so remote from Iowa's cornfields probably requires some justification.

California is to most Midwesterners what the Land of Oz was to Dorothy. People who listen to travelers' tales can only sigh in amazement; what they hear are tales that no one dares imagine in Iowa.

A recent Newsweek article featured profiles of some teenagers from across the country. One was a boy from a farm near Newton, Iowa; another was a girl from Los Angeles' surfing set.

THE BOY'S INTERESTS lie in his high school band, the wrestling team, and his livestock. He wakes up at six every morning, and watches television and reads books for entertainment. The girl's interests lie in surfers, motorcycles, and Sunset Boulevard. She spends her evenings out, choosing boyfriends and circuiting the night spots.

It's difficult sometimes to believe that these two wholly different worlds can only be a few hours apart, or that one American can actually have less in common with a fellow American than he has with a lot of foreigners.

To an Iowan, California's wonderland has the same appeal as a James Bond movie does to most other people. The tales about California life rival the best romances.

Iowans hear about beaches in a land where it never snows, where the world's most beautiful women lie on the sand in their bikinis, watching muscled young men master the king of sports, surfing.

THEY HEAR OF CITIES glowing and pulsing with a night life in the best playboy tradition, where Hondas swarm as thick as hornets, and are just as noisy and troublesome.

They hear about the majesty of the Big Surf, of the Sequoia forests, and of the mountain ranges. They hear about the stillness of California's deserts, the serenity of the Pacific, and the excitement and color of Hollywood.

Is it any wonder that the Golden West should become so legendary in our Midwest towns?

Many Midwesterners maintain that the glamour of California is nothing more than legend; the good life and the color of the West is all an illusion.

PERHAPS THEY ARE right. Perhaps California girls are not the most beautiful; maybe the fierce competition on the beaches has forced off all but the most beautiful. Maybe the wild night life is merely evidence of a decaying urban society. Maybe surfing is really no better than skiing, or even girl's basketball.

It's pretty useless to argue about which is really the better life; the question is an academic one. It also does little good to debate whether the California legend is mostly truth or mostly illusion.

The fact remains that the legend exists and continues to grow every time a traveler returns from his adventures West. And it does serve a useful purpose. It gives us Iowans something to daydream about.

Re: public service

WE RECEIVED a questionnaire in the mail recently asking, among other things, what we would do if given a free hand to change television.

Our immediate reaction was to include more serious drama, more top-flight special programming like the recent Julie Andrews songfest, and more in-depth documentaries on issues of the day. Our second reaction was that it was really quite hopeless because nobody would watch our network if such changes were made.

Nothing better calls attention to the problems networks must have in scheduling programs than this week's reports from ABC, NBC and CBS. The networks say they have received thousands of complaints about the televising of the Gemini 8 splash-down Wednesday night and that they lost millions of dollars in advertising revenue.

Not only did one network have the audacity to interrupt Batman (holy horrors!), but another cancelled "Lost in Space," a science-fictional account of the real thing.

"Public service" is a nice, altruistic phrase, and we all agitate for networks that will provide it — as long as their idea of public service doesn't interfere with prime time "quality" programming. But television people are in the business to make a profit, after all, and if the public insists on Batman rather than Gemini, television must be performing a service by presenting it.

Nobody's fooled

JOE ATHLETE STOPPED a moment. He got up from his desk and locked the door to his room.

"Give me a cigarette, will you?" he said to his roommate.

The next day Joe and his teammates lost the big game. Poor conditioning was the excuse. Joe's team was worn down by the opponent. Joe's team just couldn't keep up.

In an office on this very campus is a sign that reads: "Poor Workmanship Gives Us All A Black Eye." Does the University of Iowa have a black eye? Look for yourself. This week take notice of the Joe Athletes on this campus. Which ones are breaking training rules. Did they obey the rules when their sport was in season? Chances are they didn't.

Who does Joe think he's fooling when he locks his door and lights up, or when he stays out past hours? Surely it's not his fellow students. He might as well smoke in public as behind a locked door because most people know about it anyway. Does he think the crime is in getting caught, and not in doing the act?

His delinquency is shown by his performance on the field, track, floor, or mat. The coach doesn't really care whether his squad breaks training. He'll be paid regardless. If he loses his job, there will always be another. Those who do care are Joe's fellow students — those whom Joe is representing. If Joe shows poor workmanship, it is the rest of the team and the rest of the school that receives the black eye.

How can an athlete, if he can be called this, give his best to his teammates, his sport, his fans (if he has any left), and his school if he deliberately and consciously breaks training rules?

— Gary Olson

Strike up the band

THE UNIVERSITY BAND has finally arrived. The Soviet Union has lifted enough of the iron curtain to allow the band to tour the country.

When the tour was first arranged, the USSR and other East European countries were on the agenda, but as time went on, the Communists put politics over culture and cut the band out.

Perhaps the smashing impression the band has been making in Western Europe made the comrades decide they would be missing a good thing. And they would.

Be more careful

THE UNITED STATES has recovered the hydrogen bomb it lost near Spain a few months ago. Good, we hope that the government officials will be more careful with their bombs in the future. Those things are expensive; a waste in government cannot be tolerated.

The taxpayers have a right to know their money is being spent wisely and not squandered on lost bombs.

Union music shows government in action

To the Editor:

In your "Muzak" editorial (March 16) you offer an interesting example of student government in action.

As you say, it seems possible that nobody really wants this music at all. Where did it come from? As far as I can remember, it appeared coincidentally with the opening of the new portions of the Union last summer. I never saw any word in any of the public media about it. There seems to have been no publicity or discussion of any sort.

Did student government at any time undertake inquiries about this, or try to determine whether students were in favor of it? I have heard of no such inquiries.

The stock answer of a politician is: No one came to me with a complaint. As if he had not promised in his campaign to initiate action. Perhaps it is his way of taking revenge on you for ignoring him. Twenty-one per cent of those eligible voted in the last student election — laughable when you reflect that every public high school in the land for decades has tried to pump this parliamentarianism into its captive audiences.

But suppose 79 per cent of the electorate was fed up at last with the parliamentary farce, this swarm of do-gooders interposing themselves between student and teacher, student and administrator? As if the instructor were not already isolated and ineffectual, the administrator all-pervasive in his vacuum.

How much sense does a student senate make in a community of similar interests where anyone can reach any individual in the establishment by telephone, or private letter, and present his suggestions? Or write to a wider audience in a letters column?

But the University already possesses a marvelous instrument for ascertaining the state of opinion on its policies. Could not each student receive, with his monthly invoice, a proxy ballot such as those which corporations provide for their shareholders, together with enclosures presenting information on issues of importance?

The idea of this proposal is to recover, through new techniques, the forms of pure democracy which have been virtually lost in the schools. I don't consider the concept of pure democracy outdated or less suited to our times than what currently passes for representative democracy. What is needed is new ways to get and distribute reliable information on student opinion of issues like the Union soundtrack or scheduling of public events or examinations.

The mechanism of proxy voting is a dignified and respectful way to solicit individual participation in matters of public interest. I find it preferable to the system of representatives, with their harangues against apathy, because it does not, like the latter, insult the intelligence.

5 Football Recruits Learn About Iowa

By JOHN CLOYED
Sports Editor

Five high school football stars who are on campus this weekend will know the University inside and out before they leave Sunday, according to Assistant Football Coach Dick Mansperger.

Every minute of the prospective Hawkeyes' time will be accounted for as they meet professors from their major fields, talk to the Iowa coaching staff, tour the campus and meet community leaders.

FOUR OF THE five athletes are from the Chicago area and the fifth is from Kirkwood, Mo.

Helmut Goral, 6-4 and 2-15 pounds, Cliff Hardy, 6-0 and 185, and John Prusiecki, 6-0 and 235, played together at Roosevelt High in East Chicago, Ind.

Goral was an all state offensive center, a vicious tackler at defensive tackle and a better than average punter. He also played center on a fine basketball team. Hardy has been called the most outstanding back Roosevelt has ever had. He scored 13 touchdowns last season and repeated as an all stater. He also broad jumps 23-1 and plays forward in basketball.

Prusiecki was an all Northwest Conference tackle and was one of the big factors in the success of the fine Roosevelt line. He is an excellent student and plans to major in math.

Pat Dunnigan, 6-2 and 190, played at Forest View High in a suburb of Chicago and was on all-conference and all city pick in both football and basketball. He was a running back and defensive safety in football and averaged 17 points a game in basketball. He is also an all round performer in track and ran the hundred in 9.9 while a junior. He plans to major in physical education.

Jim Leicht, 6-1 and 210, is the epitome of a small town, all America boy. Leicht has the size and savvy to be an outstanding football player and was both all conference and all district.

He also was an outstanding wrestler and ranked third in a class of 170 academically. His primary assets, besides size and intelligence, are toughness and hustle.

EVERY ONE OF THE prospects has the potential to become a starter and star in the Big 10, according to Mansperger.

Mansperger said the prospects Iowa invited to the campus were carefully screened and were considered the best in the area. The coaching staff tries to recruit only boys who could play a lot of football as sophomores and start as juniors.

PAT DUNNIGAN, left, Elk Grove, Ill., eats his first meal as an Iowa guest with Stoney Jackson, a freshman football player, while Jane McHarg, A2, Victor, a hostess at the restaurant, looks on. Dunnigan was the only one of four expected high school football prospects from the Chicago area to get in on the meal—the others missed the plane, but were expected to arrive on a later flight.

But Head Coach Ray Nagel has warned that Iowa isn't the only school trying to recruit these boys and pointed out that many prospects Iowa has entertained have also visited all the other Big 10 schools.

"RECRUITING IS a constant battle," Nagel said. "A student who has something to offer a University, whether it's in music, academics or athletics, is highly sought."

Nagel said a few of the visitors said they would like to come here, but nothing is certain until the athlete signs a letter of intent. The Big 10 letters may be signed April 1, but a boy might still be tempted by a school outside the conference. National letters are signed May 15, and after that it's pretty safe.

Nagel said the Big 10 allowed up to 30 boys to be signed, but Iowa planned to sign only 25 to 30. Almost 45 prospects have been invited to the campus.

Washington Moves To Final

DES MOINES — Cedar Rapids Washington rolled to a big lead, and then held off a ferocious Ames rally Friday night for a 71-55 victory that sent the Warriors into Saturday night's championship game of the Iowa Boys high school basketball tournament.

Tourney favorite Marshalltown played Sioux City Healan in the other semifinal game.

Washington had a 46-25 lead in the third period when Ames started its comeback. The Little Cyclones' McKinley slapped in five straight points and teammate Rich Agard came up with 13 to cut the Warriors' advantage, to 44-43 going into the final period.

Agard, who scored 25 points, fouled out with 6:34 left in the game and Ames sorely missed him.

Washington quickly pulled from a 56-47 spread to 67-52 and sewed up the victory.

The Warriors, making their first appearance in the state tournament, streaked away from a 4-4 tie early in the game to take a 13-4 lead. They slowly expanded the margin to 38-24 and built it to 46-25 before Ames got going.

Washington had a balanced scoring attack with Tom Kelly, a 6-2 senior, and Mike Seyfer, 6-0 senior, each scoring 25 points.

Washington shot at a 50 per cent clip, hitting 30 of 60 field goals. Ames managed only 22 of 53 tries for 41 per cent.

Washington out-rebounded the Little Cyclones 34-12 in building its halftime bulge and finished with a 56-30 advantage.

Kelly, Tom Heck and Joe McGillicuddy each hauled down 10 retrieves for the Warriors.

Washington moved into the championship with an 18-7 record while Ames bowed out with a 19-6 mark.

High for Hillcrest were Dave Nagel and Merle Royce, each getting 12.

Many of Quad's points came on easy layups as Tom Eggers, Mike Harter and Paul DiBlasio controlled the defensive boards and set up the fast break with long passes. Mike Fuller helped with his good out-shooting and ended with 11 points.

Hillcrest had trouble with Quad's tough 2-3 zone defense and was unable to work the ball into its big man, Tom Buttel, who scored only 6 points, way below his average. Lynn Willett and Jim Brogan were key defensive men as they intercepted many of the passes intended for Buttel.

Kentucky Beats Duke, Plays In NCAA Final

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Kentucky's top-ranked Wildcats, led by little Louie Dampier and courageous Larry Conley, beat Duke 83-79 Friday night and moved into the finals of the NCAA national basketball championships.

The Wildcats, seeking a record fifth national championship under Coach Adolph Rupp, will play the winner of the other semifinal in Saturday's title game.

The Kentucky-Duke match was all that a clash of the nation's top two teams should be — including some obvious jitters, loose play and flagrant mistakes in the early going.

In the end, however, it was the 23-point scoring and floor leadership of Kentucky's All-America Dampier and the inspirational work of the flu-ridden Conley that prevailed.

Duke, ranked second in the nation with a 25-3 regular season record, blew a five-point lead and Kentucky gave away margins of nine and seven points before the game settled down midway through the second half.

The score was tied six times between 61-61 and 71-71 before the ailing Conley flipped in two free throws on a one-and-one situation. Dampier, a little guard who looks like Gail Goodrich of last year's UCLA champions, fed Pat Riley on a fast break and moments later dropped in a layup to give Kentucky an unbeatable 77-71 margin.

The teams traded baskets regularly over the last 90 seconds, but Kentucky had its 27th victory well in hand. The Wildcats have lost one this season.

Junior College Tourney In Final Round

HUTCHINSON, Kan. — Wilson of Chicago, Burlington of Iowa and Chipola of Marianna, Fla. advanced Friday to the final round of consolation play in the national junior college basketball tournament.

The Dallas Baptists from Texas played Moberly of Missouri and Cameron A & M of Oklahoma played Hutchinson in the championship semi-finals Friday night.

Burlington, ranked the nation's No. 1 junior college team through most of the regular season, but a victim of Cameron A & M in the first round of the tournament, advanced to the final consolation game of the first-round loser's bracket with a 119-96 victory over Wesley of Dover, De.

Wilson beat Casper, Wyo., 88-65 in the same bracket and will play Burlington for fifth and eighth places in the tournament Saturday afternoon.

Chipola held off Cumberland of Lebanon, Tenn., in the final minutes for a 77-72 victory in another consolation game.

FRAT BASKETBALL — Delta Sigma Pi and Alpha Kappa Psi business fraternities will play their annual basketball game at 10 a.m. today in the Field House North Gym.

IFC Honors 60 Men For Academic Excellence

Sixty students have been named to the Interfraternity Council's honor roll for the fall semester. Fourteen were named honorees with highest distinction with a GPA of 3.75 or above. Twenty-one were honorees with distinction, with a 3.5 to 3.74 GPA and 25 were honorees, with a 3.3 to 3.49 GPA.

According to David McKinney, fraternity affairs adviser, about 5 per cent of the members in the 19 social fraternities are on the honor roll.

Annual Police School Scheduled

The 14th annual Police Command School, sponsored by the Bureau of Police Science, will be held Monday through Wednesday in the Union Illinois Room.

About 80 men from 36 police departments throughout the state are expected to attend, according to Richard L. Holcomb, director of the Bureau of Police Science.

Holcomb said the purpose of the school was to improve the quality of commanding officers and to inform them of new police methods and court decisions.

Speakers will be: Holcomb; Capt. Thomas A. Teale of the Des Moines Police Department; Clay ton Ringgenberg, associate director of the University's Institute of Public Affairs; Carl Badger, assistant police chief at Cedar Rapids; and Jay H. Honohan, city attorney of Iowa City.

Tire Is Stolen

Theft of a whitewall tire from a car parked in the Hydraulics Laboratory parking lot was reported to police Friday by the owner, Karl Klang, A3, Mason City.

Klang said the tire was taken by forcing open the trunk of the car.
