Hughes Views Role Of University

"The most important role for the University is to help guide us toward building a better life for our people," said Gov. Harold Hughes at the 82nd Governors' Day luncheon in the Union Thursday.

Hughes spoke at the luncheon after attending the annual ROTC parade and review in his honor. ROTC cadets, the Strategic Air Command Band, the Scottish Highlanders, the Army Guidon Society and the Air Force Angel Flight marched before the governor and about 370 spectators on the parade ground west of Old Army.

DURING THE 45-minute ceremony, Hughes presented 28 awards to 26 cadets. The awards were given for academic excellence, leadership and participation in ROTC and campus activities.

At the luncheon, Hughes said, "We must look to the University for intellectual guidance in many areas including legislative apportionment, public health, governmental reorganization, public safety and intergovernmental relations."

As an example of University participation he cited a professional study of state and local tax systems under the direction of James Papke, an economist.

According to Hughes, even though the tax systems survey is being directed by Papke, the actual research is being done by a team of economists from the University and Iowa State University.

"This project breaks new ground in bringing together the intellectual resources of two great institutions of higher learning to focus upon a major state problem," said Hughes. "I think that both universities deserve great credit for making this joint endeavor possible."

The University has the role of imparting a "third dimension of enlightened criticism and confirmation" to our experiences; this function is becoming more important as Iowa moves out of the agricultural revolution into a new era of development, urbanization and long-range planning, added Hughes.

Commenting on Iowa's growth, he said, "Our primary concern should be with how we are growing. We must not let ourselves become so preoccupied with the quantitative aspects of our development that we forget the qualitative aspects."

Governor Claims Surplus Shows Healthy Economy

A "fictional surplus" in the state treasury, estimated to be as much as $30 million by the end of the biennium, only shows the state enjoyed "good health," said Gov. Harold Hughes at a press conference in the Union Thursday.

The governor said the "fictional surplus" was not an actual surplus.

"We have to have at least $15 million to use as collateral to back monthly bills," he said. However there are many places the money could be used, but it was necessary to plan to have the surplus because under current state law budgeting must be done as much as two and one-half years in advance.

Referring to the past Republican administration, he said that there had been a greater surplus — of about $100 million — in the state treasury before and that it hadn't been spent on capital improvements.

If such expenditures had been made we wouldn't have the great need we have today, said Hughes.

China's Great Leap Failing, Experiencing Political Strife

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
 AP Special Correspondent

Red China may be experiencing its most serious political crisis since the Communist Party took power on the mainland almost 17 years ago.

The trouble seems to involve China's monumental economic problems and whether total regimentation and long-term austerity are the only answers. An economy of bare subsistence may reflect weariness in China. NEAR THE TOP of the list of purge prospects in what Politburo propaganda calls a "struggle to the death" is an official who questioned total regimentation as the answer to all problems.

This man is Wu Han, historian and playwright and vice president of the Peking City Council — deputy mayor. He has served as a propagandist and as head of one of the many "friendship" societies, this one involving "friendship" with neighboring Nepal, where China often exerts pressure.

EVIDENTLY, WU once questioned the wisdom of the 1958 "great leap forward," and of the subsequent break with the Soviet Union. He is being denounced as one whose writing has a "black anti-Communist and antipeople thread." He is accused of spreading "poisonous influence, on achieving fame and glorifying the family, an expression of bourgeois individualism."

Wu Han is a symbol, another form of warning. He committed his major sin five years ago and it is catching up with him. Back in 1961 he published a play about the Ming dynasty days. Critics have just discovered that he portrayed an imperial official not only as a human being but one who was decent and popular. According to the Politburo's doctrine, that was impossible.

Why bring it up now? Probably there is increasing official worry over internal affairs. The aging leaders also worry about the influx of younger blood into the leadership as their members pass away.

FIVE YEARS ago, China was in a difficult period. The "people's communes" and "great leap" has been spectacular failures. The break with the Russians became so wide that Moscow cut off economic and military aid and withdrew Soviet technicians.

China held her own for several years. But now, suddenly, ideas such as those of Wu Han have, retroactively, become great sins. Throughout China there is an official hue and cry against him.

Debate Held On Rhodesia

The Rhodesian controversy and legality of United Nations action in the crisis was the topic of a debate Thursday night in the Union Princeton room by the Political Science Discussion Club.

Opposing viewpoints were voiced by Julian Garret, L3, Otley, conservative, and John Barret, A3, Solon, liberal. Garret cited a history of the self-proclaimed independent nation in which he insisted the traditional way of life was undisturbed by the colonial immigrants who settled there. He said this was the case today.

Barret assailed the white supremacist policies of Prime Minister Ian Smith and said that U.N. intervention, including armed force, was justified under the humanitarian and anti-aggression points of his charter.

He took issue with his opponent's contention that effective political representation existed in the former British colony by noting that its constitution stipulated suffrage was dependent upon property qualifications.

GIs Trap Viet Cong; Renew Ground War

100 Viet Cong Dead In Valley-Wide Move

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The U.S. 1st Air Cavalry and Vietnamese troops closed in early today on 300 to 400 Communist troops a spokesman said were trapped in a valley 280 miles northeast of Saigon. The fighting is the first major ground action in three weeks.

With all the high ground in allied hands, the spokesman said the only way out for the Reds was to try to disguise themselves and mingle with the farmers in the fertile land around Bong Son.

One hundred Communists have been killed and more than 200 suspects — men of military age — have been rounded up for questioning, a 1st Cavalry spokesman said. Allied losses were described as "extremely light."

THE ENEMY, believed to be composed of elements of two North Vietnamese regulars and one unit of hard-core Viet Cong, were reported armed with mortars, machine guns and recoilless rifles, AP correspondent Bob Poos reported from An Rhe. Heavy contact continued until just before midnight, and sniper fire continued through the night.

The fact that the U.S. and Vietnamese troops already had taken in more than 200 men of army age indicates to some degree that some of the enemy already were trying to lay aside their arms and give the appearance of being farm people.

TWO CORDONS of allied forces are stretched around the valley in which the Communists are making their stand. In the air war, U.S. Air Force and Navy planes took advantage

Iowa City Cats Hop Truck; At Home After Texas Trip

The story of how the cat came back is old, but the Mommens' cats could probably tell a really tall tale about their travels.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Mommens, 1119 E. Church, about two weeks ago lost the cats, Smokie and Bibsy, belonging to the Mommens' 10-year-old twin daughters, Sharon and Sherrie.

A NEIGHBOR said she saw the cats hop into a moving van next door.

Mrs. Mommens called the moving company in Davenport. They referred her to the head office in Evansville, Ind.

The Evansville office told Mrs. Mommens that drivers of that unit were in Chicago, but they called the drivers and found the Iowa City load of furniture had gone to Big Springs, Tex.

Mrs. Mommens called a Big Springs newspaper and ran an advertisement for the cats.

A couple of days ago, a Big Springs animal shelter called Mrs. Mommens and told her the cats had been found.

SHE ARRANGED to have them flown here, but they got lost en route and were delayed for a day.

Finally, the cats arrived yesterday in Iowa City.

But Bibsy was missing. In her place was a cat the Mommens never had seen before.

And Smokie had three kittens, about two weeks old.

Mrs. Mommens thinks the kittens may have been born in the moving van. Sharon decided to settle for one of the kittens.

Mrs. Mommens said the family still has not decided what to do with the strange cat.

SDS Will Distribute Exam

The National iViet Nam Exam will be distributed outside the Selective Service Qualification Examination testing area Saturday, May 14, by members of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS).

The action was decided at the SDS meeting Thursday night. Chapters of SDS on about 1700 campuses are participating in the test distribution.

The counter exam concerns issues relating to the Viet Nam situation. Answer sheets with sources will be handed out to students as they leave the tests.

SDS members hope to stir up awareness of the aspects of U.S. involvement in the Vietnamese war by passing out the tests.

They also appointed a committee to meet this summer to plan seminars which the group hopes to begin next fall. It was thought that a program of seminars would be a realistic approach to the SDS conception of a "free university."

The group also discussed the possibility of setting up seminar sessions this summer which would include high school students participating in summer programs here.

SDS members continued with their plans to aid Herbert F. Hoover, Mason City, candidate for U.S. Senate nomination, by agreeing to give Hoover a report of the SDS philosophy to distribute with his platform leaflets.

G.M. Cutback Jolts Other Auto Makers

DETROIT (AP) — The auto industry learned Thursday of a drop in April sales and was jolted by announcement of a production cutback at General Motors, the world's largest auto maker.

Industry officials said higher retail prices in general probably contributed to the sales decline and speculated that the auto safety issue might be dimming the public's buying urge.

One statistical agency, Ward's Automotive Reports, said: "The industry has removed an estimated 100,000 cars from its May-June-July production schedules." It termed this action a "settling down" in production after new car buyers set a record in the first three months this year.

GM'S BRIEF announcement said four of its assembly plants worked short time this week "to get production schedules in line with current stocks in the field." It was the first time in five years that GM had slowed its production pace for inventory reasons.

Disclosure that three GM plants — Chevrolet in Ypsilanti, Mich., and Van Nuys, Calif.; and a GM assembly plant in South Gate, Calif. — worked only three days this week, while an Atlanta, Ga. plant was on four days, came as surprise to the rest of the industry.

AMERICAN Motors has been plagued by such shutdowns in recent months but it worked a regular five-day week this time while GM was having difficulties. Chrysler was on a five-day week and Ford had 10 of its 17 assembly plants listed for overtime work this Saturday.

GM spokesmen said there was no indication whether the short work week would be repeated next week. Under terms of its contract with the United Auto Workers, the company must notify the union by today if it plans to put any units on short time next week.

Board Awaits Amish Action

OELWEIN — The reaction of Old Order Amish families to an appeal that they keep their children in school until May 27 will be awaited here, Oelwein Community School District officials said Thursday night.

Gov. Harold Hughes' office said in Des Moines earlier in the day that he had sent a personal letter to Amish leaders asking them not to close the schools May 11 as the Amish indicated they would do.

Under the temporary arrangement providing state-approved teachers for the two small private schools near Hazleton, the Amish had agreed to maintain classes until May 27.

That is a week earlier than Oelwein district schools close on June 3, but officials had consented to an earlier closing for the Amish so that the children could help with farm field work. Oelwein district schools operate five days longer than is required by state law.

The governor's office said Hughes had told the Amish they should live up to their side of the agreement under which certified teachers from the schools were supplied through a $15,000 grant from the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Mo.

Gov. Hughes had arranged for the grant, which pays the teachers' salaries.

AN IOWA CITY POLICE squad car sustained about $200 damage in a collision with another car about 1:20 p.m. Wednesday at the intersection of Highway 6 and Riverside Drive. Police charged John C. Thompson, 70, 702 E. 11th St., Newton, with failure to stop at a red light after his car struck the squad car. Officials said Thompson's car also sustained about $200 damage.

COINS ARE STILL BEING COUNTED to determine whether the University or Iowa City is the winner of the Penny Days campaign. Results of the contest which ended at 3 p.m. Thursday night will be known later today.

LOREN O. SCHMITT, 20, A2, Iowa City, was still in serious condition Thursday night, according to doctors at University Hospitals. Schmitt suffered severe head injuries when he was struck by a car near the Civic Center Tuesday night.

MORE THAN 500 of the about 850 residents of Quadrangle turned out to elect new dorm officers Wednesday night. Eric Morris, A2, Bettendorf, was elected president; Steven Kellogg, A1, Charles City, vice president; and Thomas Osborn, A2, Glenwood, and Stanley Rowe, A3, Newton, Student Senate representatives.

MARRIED MEN IN IOWA probably will not be drafted before September. Col. Victor Gillespie of the Iowa headquarters of the U.S. Selective Service System said Thursday Iowa must deliver 245 men in June and 378 in July.

THE STOCK MARKET Thursday received its worst pounding since President Kennedy was assassinated on Nov. 22, 1963. The closely watched Dow Jones industrial average plunged 15.09 to 899.77, its sharpest loss since the day of Kennedy's death when it fell 21.16.

Member Tells RILEEH Benefits

By DALLAS MILLER
 Managing Editor

Kenny Davis has lived for 20 years in the cotton country of Mississippi. From September to November each year he takes off from school to pick cotton. He returns to school in December until Christmas when it is time to chop cotton. When that job is done, it's back to school until May when the new crop must be cultivated.

By the time cultivating is done, it's July. Kenny is supposed to return to classes, but Mississippi is hot in the summer, too hot to sit in school. And the prospect of a job looks very inviting.

Kenny is one of the South's Negro students who live in shanties reminiscent of slavery conditions. He rarely sees a newspaper or magazine; he has never heard classical music or seen a play.

Kenny is like many students at Rust College in Holly Springs, Miss., who are working with the University of Iowa and RILEEH (Rust-Iowa-LeMoyne for Expanding Educational Horizons) in a series of student exchange programs between the schools.

Last summer, 18 Rust students spent the summer attending classes at the University of Iowa as part of the program. This year, the program will be expanded, but the number of students who will participate has not yet been announced.

Charles Williams, a member of the Rust faculty who is now at Iowa as a graduate assistant in mathematics, said in a recent interview that he thought the student exchange programs between the schools provided benefits to nearly everyone who participated.

TEACHING at Rust is very different from teaching at Iowa, Williams said. Students there are sometimes afraid to ask questions in class, afraid the instructor won't know the answer and will lower their grades as a punishment for embarrassing him.

Often students have no textbooks. Many of the Negro schools have the room for a library but few have books. Science equipment is scarce, and in some places a bunson burner is the student's only tool.

In Marshall County, Miss., where Holly Springs is located, Negroes make up 70 per cent of the population. Yet there are 16 white high schools and only 3 Negro high schools. "Obviously," Williams said,

"the Negro schools are crowded."

With the average Negro family income in the area about $2,000, most students couldn't attend college if financial aid were not available. Almost everyone, said Williams, can get some kind of aid. Some students get federal loans, but they are often unable to repay them because their average annual salaries as college-educated teachers in Mississippi will be about $3,200.

Elementary and high schools for Negroes are often hopelessly inadequate, according to Williams. Most students who enter college are reading at the seventh or eighth grade level. Few understand fundamentals like subject and verb agreement.

"ALL WE EVER did when I was in high school," Williams said, "was to diagram sentences. And nobody understands that."

Because of their economic backgrounds, most students are limited in their education. Many feel that college is completely out of their range of abilities and an advanced degree is out of the question.

"The very notion of reasoning is incomprehensible to those students," Williams said. "This is the teacher's greatest accomplishment — getting the student to reason and to understand that academics aren't beyond him.

"As teachers we try to convince them that it is possible to gain an education. Unless we can convince them of this, they can't learn anything. They have no hope, no vision."

Williams said he had an advantage over most of his peers. "I was in the Army after high school and saw how far others were ahead of me. This made me more determined to close the gap. It made me realize the benefit of education."

TO WILLIAMS, this realization is the greatest benefit students from Rust and LeMoyne College, Memphis, Tenn., will gain from the RILEEH summer exchange program.

Students are given a new look at education when they see how things are done at a university, he said. Some are inspired to work for an advanced degree because they realize that they have the opportunity to become good teachers and to help others.

The exchange program builds self-confidence in this direction, Williams said, because the Negro student has been living under the myth of the unattainable M.A. and Ph.D. degrees.

"He comes to Iowa and gains hope by meeting those who have these degrees. Before, he could never see himself in this high place. Now he can identify with holders of advanced degrees. They are his friends."

The exchange program is beneficial in another way, according to Williams. Often, he said, students from small Southern colleges are like big fish in a little pond. When they come to Iowa where everyone is doing as well or better, they are motivated to work harder.

Williams had a suggestion for Iowa instructors who will teach exchange students from Rust and LeMoyne.

"LET STUDENTS take their regular place in the classroom," he said. "Don't give them any special breaks. If they have come this far, they should learn what this university is really like."

The Negro student from the South is at a disadvantage in his classes at Iowa, however, said Williams, partly because

Alabama fiasco

VOTE OR NO vote, the Negroes of Alabama have been given a big set back in their fight for equality.

The big vote victory of Mrs. Lurleen Wallace has dramatically demonstrated how committed many Alabamians are to the old ways of "states' rights," segregation and white supremacy.

The voters have shown they are willing to serve the interests of a two-bit politician who has a blatant disdain for law. The question is why do Alabamians put up with George Wallace?

If Iowa's Gov. Harold Hughes performed at all like Wallace, Iowans would be up in arms immediately. Even though Gov. Hughes is a tremendously popular and highly skilled politician, he would not have a chance in the world of winning re-election by using his wife to get around a state law that would not let him run.

Iowans have a respect for the law that is greater than their respect for any man — including even Hughes.

Alabamians apparently do not have the same respect for the law. The baser feeling of racial hatred evidently is stronger for many.

The election of Mrs. Wallace confirms for Alabama Negroes what many of them have known all along — their fight for dignity and equality is far from being won.

'Finger Exercise' overcomes set with good cast

By GARY ELLIS SMITH
Staff Writer

"Oho, this is going to be one of those here-we-go-again plays," I said to myself as I sat in Montgomery Hall waiting for the first act of "Five Finger Exercise" by Peter Shaffer. The play was being given by Community Theatre and the set looked strangely like the one they used for their production of "Mary, Mary."

Luckily, a good cast of characters took a good play and overcame the restrictions of a poor set. Despite the warmth and my lack of breath (I took my bicycle out), I enjoyed the production very much.

"Five Finger Exercise" tells the story of a family being ripped apart by a conflict between the husband and the wife. The husband is from English stock that worked its way up in the world. The wife believes she is from more aristocratic stock and uses culture like a stick to beat her husband.

The husband and wife go at one another using their son and their daughter's tutor for weapons. In the 20 year process of their battle, they have nearly ruined the personality of the son.

The tutor is drawn to the wife because he sees her as a mother image. The wife is drawn to the tutor because she sees him as a potential lover, and a compliment to her youthful looks. The children are drawn to the tutor because he is the only one who sees them as people.

The director did a good job of staging the play in a difficult situation. It was not theater-in-the-round, but rather theater-on-three sides. The audience nearly surrounded the set and were almost part of it. So the cast couldn't pull any trick stuff that we couldn't see.

If the play had not been done well, we could have busied ourselves watching the people who were almost sitting in the set. Indeed, I was sometimes distracted by the little old lady sitting across from me. I could see all the emotions of the play staging themselves on her face.

The best acting during the evening was done by Linda John, who played the daughter. She squeezed all the laughter she could from the role of the over dramatic daughter but stopped at the point of becoming hammy.

Caroline Leinhausner played the role of the cultured mother. She carried herself with aloofness and just the right amount of culture when she swept on and off the stage. She did become too sticky in her role during a few parts of the play.

Eric Carlson did a convincing performance as the smothered-with-love son. He did particularly well in the scenes when he was swilling whiskey. His weakness was the long emotional scenes. His intense emotion became monotonous and did not seem to change pitch.

The father who did not understand anyone was played by John Craig. He shuffled in and out of the set as if the life were being drained out of him. His sullen anger was intense without being obnoxious. He was good.

I think the weakest performer in the cast was Allan Just, who played the tutor. Although he did a good job with emotions, there was little movement behind his neck. His face did some difficult calisthenics, but his hands and arms only twitched once in a while.

It is a good production of "Five Finger Exercise" and drew on the emotions of the audience without draining all the energy out of them. It's worth paying to see.

Oh, Bosch

Juan Bosch, the deposed former leader of the Dominican Republic, is one politician who isn't looking forward with much enthusiasm to his own election.

According to The Insider's Newsletter, Bosch, now officially a candidate in the June 1 presidential election, has told friends and reporters, "If I am elected I will end by being overthrown by the military, as in September, 1963, or by simply being shot."

Latin American experts say that Bosch is running to prove, by winning, that the United States was wrong to intervene in the revolt last year. By facing the threat of assassination, he also hopes to regain the respect he lost by not returning to his country when the revolt began.

The Newsletter says Bosch's campaign is expected to be heavily anti-American as well as against the military right wing in his own country. He claims a secret alliance exists between the U.S. and members of the old junta government.

A Bosch victory is virtually assured and observers fear his gloomy prediction for the future may be almost as sure. The Newsletter said.

Count down

In an attempt to reduce traffic accidents, the city of Abilene, Texas, has introduced "space age" traffic lights which give motorists a "countdown" before they "blast off" into dangerous intersections.

According to The Insider's Newsletter, the new traffic light comes on after the countdown has reached 1 and stays on for three seconds before turning red.

A motorist who arrives at the intersection during the countdown is supposed to be able to tell whether he has time to make it across. City officials in Abilene say the system has reduced accidents significantly during a nine-month test.

"You Gentlemen Ready To Eat?"

Buchwald holds dinner for himself

By ART BUCHWALD

It's springtime in Washington and the question of ethics can be heard throughout the land. The question has been raised over disclosures that Sen. Thomas Dodd, (D-Conn.), received $100,000 from two testimonial dinners held in his honor in 1961 and 1963.

The money was used, it was said by Drew Pearson and affirmed by a member of Dodd's staff, to pay the senator's personal bills. The IRS said that the Dodd money was not subject to tax if it was given "from a detached and disinterested generosity and out of affection, respect, admiration, charity and the like impulse and is a gift according to the law."

The revelation of how Sen. Dodd found a painless way to pay off all his debts has been a great inspiration to every debt-ridden person in the United States, and as soon as I read about it I decided to have a testimonial dinner in my honor. My personal debts are in the neighborhood of $60,000, if you don't count what I owe the newspaper boy, so I decided not to charge more than $50 a plate for the dinner.

First, I had tickets printed up. THEN I CALLED up the Georgetown Pharmacy, where I owe $130, and asked Harry Dalinsky, the druggist, if he wanted to take a table.

"What for?"
"Well, if I can pull this dinner off, I'll have enough money to pay your bill."

"Put me down for half a plate."
"How can I pay you off if you only take half a plate?"
"I'm on a diet."

I then called the president of the Perpetual Building Association, which holds the mortgage on my house.

"I know you people hold me in great admiration and affection because you keep calling me every month. I'm giving a testimonial in honor of myself and I thought you'd like to take a table."

The president said, "We never attend dinners of people who owe us money."
"Well, would you take an advertisement in the souvenir program? Say something like 'Good luck to a friend who needs it, from a friend who doesn't.'"

Perpetual took a full page.
I called the Calvert Market, Towne Wine and Liquor Store, Best's, Lord and Taylor, General Heating, Stohlman's Chevrolet, Kar's Caterers, Hechinger Hardware, and everyone else I owed money to. When I explained to them that, if they showed a detached and disinterested generosity by coming to my dinner as interpreted by the IRS, they might get paid, everyone agreed to take a table.

I THEN CALLED my Uncle Oscar in New York, to whom I owed $500, and asked him to come.

"Who are you getting for your main speaker?"
"I'm trying to get Sen. Dodd," I told him.
"But he's not answering the phone."
"I heard Dodd is dead."
"No, Uncle Oscar, that's God, not Dodd."
"I'm sorry, I have a cold."

In a week I managed to sell out the dinner and we're going to hold it next week if I can find a room.

It seems everyone in Washington has decided to have a testimonial dinner for himself since he read about Sen. Dodd and all the hotel ballrooms in Washington are booked solid. This may be the big break the poverty program has been looking for.

Thank you note

To the Editor:
Thank you very much for the support you and your staff gave us in helping to locate Mrs. Rosemary Teres's three paintings that were taken from the Main Lounge of the Iowa Memorial Union. The paintings were returned on the 28th of April in good condition and this has made Mrs. Teres very happy as these works were essential for her MFA Thesis.

We shall continue to show work in both the Main and Terrace Lounges of the Union.
Thank you again.

First lady game — who will it be?

By PETER STURTEVANT
Staff Writer

Who is going to be Lady Bird's successor? Will it be Mary Lindsay, Ethel Kennedy, Pat Nixon, Muriel Humphrey, Olivia Romney, Margaret Goldwater or the venerable Esther Stassen?

First let us assume Lady Bird will occupy the White House until 1972. After all, Lyndon is not about to step down, and if he continues to be effective in maintaining his consensus, certainly the people will not throw him out of office. Barring his death, he will be our President until 1972.

What then? No doubt a mad scramble will ensue as both parties seek to provide the most attractive candidate. Some individuals are already off and running. Richard Nixon has been running ever since 1960, when he lost to John Kennedy.

In 1962 he stumbled when he lost to Pat Brown in the race for governor in California. But he keeps running. From his law office in New York City he sends out propaganda nationwide, and recent polls indicate he is still the favorite choice of most Republicans. But he will need much more than that if he is to gain the party's nomination. He is, after all, a two-time loser. Let's scratch Pat Nixon from our list.

Margaret Goldwater doesn't talk much, but her husband does, and this proved fatal when Barry tried to upset Lyndon in 1964. Call it "shoot from the hip" or just plain poor tactics, Goldwater was the worst candidate the Republicans put up in the country's history. Goldwater is an ultra-conservative and this did not suit the mood of the people in 1964, and it certainly will not in 1972.

When an aspiring young Texas politician asked Lyndon Johnson how he should orient his thinking and pronouncements for future effectiveness, he said, "Be progressive, young man, it is the wave of the future." Barry Goldwater is not, by any stretch of the imagination, a progressive.

Goldwater intends to oppose Carl Hayden in 1968 for a U.S. Senate seat in Arizona. Chances are good that he will win, especially in view of Hayden's advanced age. This will advance his political stock, but count him out for 1972. Margaret doesn't like the limelight. She has nothing to worry about.

What about Muriel Humphrey? She lacks the ebullience of Hubert, and, too, doesn't thrive in the limelight. But Hubert does, and that's what counts. But let's look at our Vice President more closely.

Humphrey has long been considered an articulate spokesman for the liberal wing of the Democratic party, and it is from the left wing that he drew most of his support as a senator from Minnesota. He has, since becoming Vice President, deserted his liberal posture in favor of toeing the line for his demanding boss, Lyndon Johnson.

The Americans for Democratic Action, a left wing group he helped found 19 years ago, has virtually renounced him as a traitor to the liberal cause. Thus, he now finds himself on the "outs" with his old pals because he has defended the Administration's policies in Viet Nam.

So, at this point Humphrey cannot turn to the more moderate wing of the party because they also are mistrustful to his very sudden shift in thinking. Muriel, you didn't want to be First Lady anyway.

Mayor John Lindsay of New York, despite his pronouncements to the contrary, is very definitely in the running for the presidency in 1972. His ultimate success will depend largely on how well he learns to handle New York City, a town that refuses to be governed. With the state legislature and city council balking at his every plan, he is indeed off to a shaky start.

No man who has ever governed New York has sufficiently held up his political reputation in order to run for higher office. A man who governs the city well will have the world beating a path to his door, but remember, it hasn't been done yet, and as the city grows larger and its problems become more immense, the job becomes increasingly difficult.

Lindsay has ability, but he committed near political suicide by running for mayor of the most ungovernable city in the world. Mary, you fill the bill, but you and John will have to remain content in the mayor's mansion. The White House is out of the question.

We hear more and more about the governor of Michigan, George Romney. He has succeeded in bringing his state out of economic chaos in addition to advancing his own name considerably. Can he transplant his statewide popularity to the national level? Many Midwest politicians have found this a difficult task. Time will tell.

The American electorate is becoming increasingly sophisticated and holds affection for a political figure who possesses strong personal and physical appeal. Romney doesn't appear to have this charisma which has become so vital. Does he have a firm grasp of national issues? And more importantly, will the fact that he is a Republican hurt him? It's hurting many others.

Governors Nelson Rockefeller and William Scranton are certainly prominent figures, but they have been guilty of serious errors in trying to advance their political fortunes. Rockefeller lost out to Goldwater in the 1964 Presidential primaries, and that was inexcusable. Scranton took a poke at the Goldwater forces at the 1964 Republican national convention and came out with a blemished image. Rockefeller must win again in New York this year, which is likely, but he is getting old and his hat is getting dirty from being in the ring for so long.

Scranton will leave the governor's mansion next year, and will be out of the limelight for at least two years. Can he return to national prominence? It's not likely. Happy Rockefeller and Mary Scranton, you lose.

This country is fortunate in having a man who is always willing to devote his time and energy to the task of running for President — Harold Stassen. He may run for governor of Pennsylvania this year. The odds are 100 to 1 against him. If by some breach of normality he should win, he will be installed as a 1,000 to 1 longshot for the Presidency. Esther Stassen, you haven't got a chance.

John Kennedy was our President for nearly three years. Bobby Kennedy has similar ambitions. There's not much question of that. Can he make it? Public opinion polls indicate he is now the favorite, but much can happen in six years.

Kennedy has identified himself with the liberal element in his party. He has already done that in 1964 when he defeated incumbent Kenneth Keating for senator in New York. Keating was a fine senator and Kennedy beat him badly. We must attribute this at least in part to Goldwater's presence on the ticket. But don't underestimate this young man.

He is extremely ambitious and has the same charismatic appeal that made his brother one of the most endeared men in American history. And his political views are very similar to his brother's.

He is unquestionably an able man, although some people object to his tactics. He is called ruthless, and with some justification. As Attorney General his relentless pursuit of Teamster boss Jimmy Hoffa was questionable, and for this reason some Americans are mistrustful of him, as they are of President Johnson.

Bobby Kennedy is running hard for the Presidency. In 1972, when he will be 46, Kennedy will possess the maturity and knowledge of the issues, which should elevate him to the position which he so earnestly has sought since his brother's death.

Ethel, you're the one.

of a different attitude toward education.

An example of this, he said, is that Northern students have learned that they must write rapidly to complete an examination in time. Southern students are not accustomed to this since speed is not stressed at their schools.

He suggested that the program might be implemented without giving grades to the exchange students for this reason.

The cultural benefits of such an exchange are as valuable as the academic, Williams said. The Negro student learns that white people are not automatically cruel or indifferent to Negroes.

This cultural diffusion has shown itself in the reports of the students from Rust who were on the Iowa campus last summer. Some had never heard violin music until they heard Charles Treger. They were so enthralled by his performance that when they returned to Rust they took every opportunity to hear classical music.

Students who have studied at Iowa say that since they returned to Rust they have been reading because they wanted to. Before, Williams said, a compulsory reading program had been necessary because students thought reading was something one must be forced to do.

THEIR NEW willingness to read comes from seeing others enjoying it, he said.

"They have also learned," Williams said, "that learning is a more valuable criterion for judging people than is appearance. The students who have been at Iowa have become more casual in their dress. They are beginning to feel that what they learn is more important than how they look while they are learning."

The RILEEH fund drive being conducted this week will help pay for tuition and living allowances for this summer's visiting students. RILEEH also will find jobs for the Rust students and coordinate their other activities on campus.

"Until you've been to the South," Williams said, "you can't judge the depth of the reaction these people have had to the exchange program. To most students who have been here, it is the most important event in their life."

Smoking Champ Gets $35 Prize

Aromatic fumes filled the air when 34 men participated in the 12th annual Comer's Pipe Smoking Contest at the Hotel Jefferson Wednesday night.

Chris Conn, 721 Brown St., won first prize by smoking his pipe for 1 hour, 41 minutes, 16 seconds. He received a $35 Dunhill pipe from Comer's Pipe and Gift Shop, 13 S. Dubuque St.

Each contestant was given two matches and a measured amount of tobacco. During the first two minutes, each could use his matches to light the pipe. Continuous smoking without relighting followed and winners were determined by time.

Second place winner was John Holden, G. Wichita, Kan., who smoked for 1 hour, 21 minutes. He won a $25 Meersham pipe.

Maynard Zeman, 825 Rundell St., won third place with 1 hour, 17 minutes, 30 seconds smoking time. He won a $22.50 Comoy pipe.

Cellist In Quartet Leaving University

Joel Krosnick, assistant professor of music and cellist in the Iowa String Quartet, is leaving the University to "devote more time to building a solo career," he said Thursday.

Krosnick has accepted a position as assistant professor of music at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst and will be an artist-in-residence there starting Sept. 17.

"The nature of the position has been explicitly stated as including solo touring and performing in behalf of the University," Krosnick explained.

He is leaving here May 17 to participate in the Third International Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow.

Referring to the University and the Iowa String Quartet, he added, "It's a great quartet and a wonderful place to work. I leave with regrets, but I must find out what I can do as a soloist."

"If I wanted to be part of a quartet, it would be with the Iowa Quartet. I regard them as great friends and colleagues," Krosnick said.

"In no way am I leaving because I'm dissatisfied," he said. "I'm leaving to try something new."

Building Program At Iowa Not Hurt In U.S. Fund Cut

Recent fund limitations in the U.S. College Housing Loan Program will not have an effect on the University's building program.

The College Housing Program, often misconceived as a federal grant, is actually federal aid in selling bonds for building student housing. The government guarantees the sale of the bonds at a certain interest.

The program has been severely cut to $300 million this year. Applications for the program have been expected to reach $1.1 billion.

The University has never applied for the program, Rehder said, because it has always been able to sell bonds at an interest rate lower than the one offered by the government.

RILEEH Photos Show Other Side Of Southern Life

A photojournalistic study by two University photographers of two Southern communities is on display this month in the Union Terrace Lounge.

A collection of 30 photographs, taken by Robert L. Buck, G. San Joes, Calif., and Paul J. Beaver, A2, Grinnell, are on display in connection with RILEEH Week activities.

The photographs were chosen from more than 300 which the photographers took last spring during a University-sponsored trip to Memphis, Tenn., and Holly Springs, Miss.

"Our purpose in making the trip was somewhat unique," Buck said Thursday, "because we were personal representatives of the University, attempting to bring back to Iowa a picture of the South that had never been seen before."

There has been considerable reaction to the display already, he said, particularly from people who thought the photographers captured more than was originally intended.

Fahr To Head Workshop Talks

Samuel Fahr, professor of law, will speak at a one-day workshop for state judicial and social welfare personnel today in the Union Illinois room.

Fahr will speak at 3:30 p.m. on "The Need for Future Legislation" with respect to juvenile delinquency.

Major emphasis of the day's discussion will be on the most recent legislation concerning juvenile delinquents, the Iowa Senate File 95.

Representatives of the Juvenile Court Judges Committee, the District Court Judges Association, the Municipal Judges Association and the Correction Division of the Iowa Welfare Association are expected to attend the meeting.

Forrest E. Eastman, Cedar Falls, will speak at 10 a.m. on "The Over-All Picture of Senate File 95." Donald L. Tidrick, Des Moines, will speak at 11 a.m. on "Experience in Practice."

Scheduled after a noon luncheon during which Harvey Uhlenhopp, Hampton, will speak on "Senate File 95 in Relationship to Proposed Legislation," are E. J. Kelly, Ames, speaking at 1:30 p.m. on "Forms To Implement the Law," and Kent Martin, Atlantic, speaking at 12:30 p.m. on "Terminology and 'Bugs' in the Law."

A panel of reactors, led by Cyril F. Engler, Anamosa, chairman of the Corrections Division of the Iowa Welfare Association, will discuss the various aspects of the law after each speech has been delivered.

Decision On Ralston Creek Analyzed By Army Engineers

Flood prevention work on Ralston Creek, which runs through the east side of Iowa City, will not receive help from the Rock Island District Corps of Army Engineers, the Iowa City council was told Wednesday.

Col. H. B. Coffman, district engineer, described for the council the guidelines that determined whether the engineers would participate in such programs.

The decision not to enter the program, Coffman said, was based on studies of the cost of past flood damage in relation to the estimated cost of an effective flood control program.

The ratio of the cost of improvement to benefits can not be justified by the history of damage costs, he said.

Engineers estimated that effective flood prevention work on the creek would cost about $3.3 million.

Coffman and the three other engineers who assisted in making the report urged the council to consider:

- Restricting construction too close to the creek.
- Cleaning the channel and maintaining the unrestricted flow of water as much as possible.
- Possibly constructing a dam on the north branch of the creek about 1,500 feet upstream from Rochester Avenue.
- A new diversion route for south branch water.

Council members said the corps' studies and report would help greatly in planning for possible improvements.

Prep Footballers Visit University

The University will be entertaining two high school football players this weekend in hopes the prospects will pick Iowa for their education.

Randy Reeves, a 6-2, 190 pound halfback or defensive safety, is the top student in a class of 660. He was an all metropolitan and all state selection and further honored as Omaha's back of the year.

He set the Nebraska pole vault record of 14-2 as a junior and was a regular on the basketball team. He also won the Cornhuskers Boys State Pentathlon.

Reeves is from the same high school that produced Iowa's great Nile Kinnick and his feats closely resemble those of Kinnick. He won a National Merit Scholarship this year and was elected Boys State governor in 1965 and represented Nebraska in Boys Nation in Washington, D.C. He also received an American Legion Citizenship award.

The league mark of six verdicts in one season was set in 1946 by Wisconsin's Gene Jaroch and equalled three times by Marv Rotblatt of Illinois in 1947, by Pete Perini of Ohio State in 1948 and by Ohio State's Steve Arlin last season.

Michigan, which got a big title boost when its April 23 twin bill with defending champion Ohio State was rained out, rounds out this week's action with a Saturday pair against invading Purdue.

Ohio State, with four of six scheduled starts canceled by bad weather, should pick up momentum at home this weekend.

The Buckeyes meet Wisconsin Friday and Northwestern in a Saturday brace.

Iowa's three-game invasion of Minnesota probably will make or break the title chances of either.

Other single Friday games include Northwestern at Indiana and Purdue at Michigan State.

Prep Cage Star Joe Bergman Picks Iowa, Signs Tender

The University has landed one of the top basketball players in the state. Clinton St. Mary's 6-10 center, Joe Bergman, has indicated he will enroll at Iowa next fall, according to Assistant Basketball Coach Dick Schultz.

Schultz said Tuesday that Bergman called the night before and said he had signed Iowa's tender and would send it immediately.

Bergman had narrowed his choices to Kentucky and Iowa. He had previously been considering Holy Cross, too. Bergman received 104 offers from colleges across the country.

He scored 1,553 career points at St. Mary's and led his school to the finals of the state tournament in his junior year. He set scoring records of 40 points in one game and 84 points in three games that year. Both as a junior and a senior he was named to several all state teams.

Two other Iowa stars are expected to return tenders soon. Tom Schultze of Des Moines Roosevelt and Dick Jensen of Madrid have both said they plan to enroll here.

Trackmen Host Drake, Chicago Track Club

By ROGER WALLENSTEIN Staff Writer

What promises to be a great track meet will take place Saturday on the Iowa track and field when the Hawkeyes host Drake and the Chicago Track Club.

The Chicago team has some outstanding former collegiate stars. Among them is Steve Goldston, a track star for Iowa in 1964 and 1965.

Goldston, one of the best sprinters in Iowa history, works in Chicago for the Cook County Welfare Agency.

Former Olympic sprinter Trenton Jackson, a graduate of the University of Illinois also runs for the Chicago club.

Another former Illinois athlete who will be here is Allan Carinus, winner of the Big 10 cross-country and mile titles during his collegiate career.

Iowa Coach Francis Cretzmeier said he thought the Chicago team could be real tough if the entire squad were present for the meet.

Jobs in Chicago restrict the travel of some of the squad.

Cretzmeier added that Drake also has some good runners, especially in the middle-distance events.

The biggest problem confronting the Iowa coach is the condition of weightmen Tom Knutson and Bill Smith. Both are suffering from injuries sustained in spring football practice.

Cretzmeier said that it was possible that Iowa would not have any entries in the shot put and discus events.

Dick Gibbs, the leading broad jumper for Iowa, is also sidelined with a football injury that will probably keep him out of the meet.

Aside from the injuries Cretzmeier said that Iowa should win the meet. But he added that it would be tough.

The field events will begin at 1 p.m. and the running events at 1:30.

Indians 4, Yankees 0

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Howser and Chuck Hinton, replacements for the injured Larry Brown and Leon Wagner, knocked in the first two runs, and the league-leading Cleveland Indians went on to a 4-0 victory Thursday over the hit-hungry New York Yankees.

Howser's deep fly to center in the seventh inning scored Fred Whitfield, "The Yankee Killer," who opened with a triple. In the eighth inning, Vic Davalillo also led off with a triple, scoring on Hinton's sacrifice fly to right.

The victory gave the Indians a sweep of the Yankee Stadium series in which the Yankees scored only one run in three games. It was the 14th victory in 15 games for the Indians, who have beaten the Yankees five straight.

Lefty John O'Donoghue, making his major league debut, was the winning pitcher, limiting the New Yorkers to three hits before he was replaced after walking the first batter in the eighth.

Hinton played left field and Howser short, replacing Wagner and Brown, who were hospitalized after a collision in Wednesday night's game.

Giants 9, Dodgers 8

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants blew an early 7-0 lead Thursday and then battled from behind for a 9-8 victory in 10 innings over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Two Dodger errors and a passed ball brought the Giants' winning run home.

Jim Davenport opened the 10th reaching base on John Kennedy's error.

After Ollie Brown forced Davenport, Willie Mays fled out. But Brown reached second on a passed ball and came home when Willie Davis dropped Jim Hart's long fly in right center field.

Homers by Wes Parker, Ron Fairly and Lou Johnson started the Los Angeles comeback after Dodger starter Sandy Koufax lasted only 1 1/3 innings with the Giants racing to a 7-0 lead.

Mays, who set a National League career home run record with his 512th Wednesday night, had two singles for the Giants.

At 4 p.m. the members will take a tour of the Measurement Research Center in East Hall. An association banquet will be held at 6 p.m. in the University Athletic Club.

The association comprises editors of magazines and newspapers of industrial firms in Iowa.

Mason Ladd Gives Talk To Rotarians

Law Day U.S.A. is designed to counteract the Communist propaganda of May 1 in Moscow, Mason Ladd, dean of the College of Law, told a noon meeting of the Rotary Club Thursday.

"The American Bar Association and United States Congress proposed that Americans celebrate in appreciation of their liberties on May 1, Ladd said.

Theme for Law Day was, "Respect the law, it respects you." LADD SAID that without society there would be no need for law.

"Law involves the regulation of people and their associations with each other, he said.

"The great hope of the world today is not more armaments, but peace through law. The rights of people and nations must be respected and the spirit of the people must be behind this.

"The individual was important in the formative years of this country, and he still is. Everyone should be assured of a fair trial under law."

"Law wasn't designed for the preservation of the status quo. Law exists for the maintenance of stability, but nothing is more prevalent in this world than change."

LADD MAINTAINED that the law sought to channel this change in an orderly fashion.

Thus, he said, Law Day U.S.A. helped people be aware that, through law, orderly change and stability were maintained.

Ginsburgs Will Lecture At War Colloquium

George Ginsburgs, assistant professor of political science, will be the main speaker about the history of Russia's Cold War involvement at the Cold War Colloquium at 3:30 p.m. May 13 in the Old Capitol House Chamber.

John Rutherford, G, Iowa City, also will speak.

Ginsburgs suggests that participants in the colloquium read "The Soviet Bloc: Unity and Conflict" by Brzezinski. Rutherford suggests Khrushchev's "Report to the 20th Party Congress" on Feb. 25, 1956, available at the University Library reserve desk in an anthology by Inkes, "Soviet Society: A Book of Readings." He also recommends "Russia Since 1917" by F. L. Schuman.

Band Members Will Answer Russian Students' Requests

The Russian student who asked a University Symphony Band member for a copy of "The Art of Trombone Playing" probably never has heard Meredith Willson's "Seventy-Six Trombones," but he's going to get a copy of both when Iowa band director mails the book to Moscow.

Frederick C. Ebbs, director of University bands, who conducted the band on an 11-week concert tour of Western Europe and the Soviet Union under sponsorship of the U.S. Department of State, told this week of the many friendly contacts the Iowa bandmen made with Russian students and musicians.

THOUGH MOST OF the 89 band members who made the trip returned to their homes following the group's arrival back at the Des Moines airport last weekend, many will be answering the requests of Russian friends for sheet music, instrument mouthpieces and books on technique which are not readily available in the Soviet Union.

Steve Wright, A2, Burlington, will send Maynard Ferguson records to a group of trumpeters in the Moscow Conservatory and Jan Docketdorff, A4, Danville will mail a selection of flute music to students whom she met in the Leningrad Conservatory. Several musicians in Moscow asked another band member for some contemporary American string bass music.

In answering such requests the students will be returning some of the many kindnesses shown them by the Russians, Ebbs pointed out. Copies of Russian music and many records not available in American stores are among treasured gifts brought home by the students.

THOUGH ONLY MINOR repairs were needed on band instruments throughout most of the tour of the continent, the bell of a tuba came loose in shipment to Leningrad and had to be redressed. A member of the Leningrad Symphony Orchestra, who is also an instrument repairman, heard of the mishap and volunteered to repair the tuba. He would not accept pay for doing it.

The band members were thrilled by their friendly reception by audiences in the Soviet Union, Ebbs said. Some of the band's European concerts were free to the public, but tickets for the group's concerts in Leningrad, Kiev, Kharkov and Moscow, cost between $1 and $2.75 each. In spite of the admission fee, the band played to completely filled houses in the Soviet cities.

Cries of bravo and the traditional rhythmic clapping usually saved for the end of a performance echoed around the hall through four encores played at the band's first concert in Moscow. Tass, the official Soviet news agency, reported that the band "captivated the audience."

EBBS HAS A collection of slips of paper on which members of the Russian audiences wrote requests for encores, sometimes half in English and half in Russian. They include "Stars and Stripes please," "Gershwin porgi end Bess," and "Please Gould 'Cowboy Melody'" (Morton Gould's "Cowboy Rhapsody").

Dimitri Tiomkin, Russian-born composer who came to the United States in 1925 and has since composed music for some 120 American motion pictures, was in Moscow when the band was there and attended both Moscow concerts. Tiomkin told Ebbs after the second program that this was the first time he had come to two successive concerts by the same organization.

The Ministry of Culture in Moscow sent a photographer with the band members on their visit to the Kremlin, walled city within Moscow which houses many art treasures, and provided several sets of photographs of the students on the tour.

WHILE THE COURTESIES shown the group in the Soviet Union may have made the strongest impression on the students, friendly gestures from European hosts were frequent across the continent, Ebbs said. One incident in Leon, Spain, will be recalled with a thrill through the years, he believes.

The band had visited a 15th century cathedral near Leon during the day, but could not see the full beauty of its stained glass windows in the daylight. City officials arranged for a bus to take the band to the cathedral after the group's evening concert. The lights had been turned on so that the Iowans could enjoy the jewel-like colors of the stained glass.

Ceramics Workshop Coming

"Ceramics and the Architect," an open workshop sponsored by the Department of Ceramics, will be held May 13 and 14 at the University.

Nicholas Vergette, head of the Ceramics Department at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, will conduct the workshop.

IT WILL begin at 7:45 p.m., May 13 in the Art Building auditorium with slides and a speech by Vergette on "Ceramics and the Architect."

At 9:30 a.m., May 14, a demonstration is scheduled in Union Temporary J. A discussion of the technical and aesthetic considerations related to the execution of a mural will follow at 11 a.m.

A demonstration of design and decoration is scheduled for 2 p.m. At 3:30 p.m. Vergette will criticize preliminary sketches for a mural contest conducted with the cooperation of the First National Bank, 204 E. Washington St.

Vergette is an experienced potter, muralist and ceramic sculptor who has completed architectural commissions both in the United States and abroad. One of his works, a 400-foot mosaic in the Cathedral of Immaculate Conception, Syracuse, N.Y., has won the Association of Architects' Certificate of Merit for Outstanding Design.

SPECTACULAR BUYS ON NEW CARS FOR GRADUATIONS STUDENTS

Low prices and long term payments await the University graduate who is thinking along the lines of a new Plymouth, Valiant or Chrysler. Hawkeye Chrysler-Plymouth offers a plan where no major payment is needed until October 1. Here is how their easy payment plan works: Your balance is $2500. Pay only $20 each month from June until September and then only $77.43 for the remaining 31 months. This plan allows the graduating student to buy from a large selection of models in Valiants, Plymouths or Chryslers and not a payment is made until after your first full pay check on the new job. Now you can buy that new car and avoid chances on the old 'clunker' that you're driving.

Come on out, and jump into a sporty Plymouth Fury I with a mighty V-8 engine. Feel the power and then enjoy the price. It can be picked up as low as $2500. Or if you're the economy minded person, how about a Valiant 4 door sedan. These can be purchased for $1950 and you can add a few luxury items that may appeal to you. However, if you are interested in styling plus comfort, why not try the new Chrysler. Here is the ultimate in styling and luxury. Get in and drive away. A Chrysler starts at only $3000.

If you want that new car now, but don't want to make payments till October, why not drop out and see one of the friendly people at Hawkeye Chrysler-Plymouth in Coralville on Highway 6 West. Art Moore, Larry Peterson, Mike Boyer or Bill Ferrell will be pleased to look after your new car needs. Call up now at 338-9491 and tell one of these fellows you're on your way out to see him. You'll be glad you made the call.

THE MURAL contest was originated by Peter Layton, visiting lecturer in ceramics from London. Advanced and graduate students in ceramics will design and execute a working model of a ceramic mural as part of a class project.

The mural, according to Layton, would be a three dimensional relief using clay as a base. The working models will be judged in late May by Clark Houghton, 920 River St., president of the First National Bank; J. Bradley Rust, architect, of 910 River St., and Dr. Webster B. Gelman, 435 Lexington Ave.

THE FIRST National Bank will award $100 for the winning design, which will be chosen during the summer and hung in the bank.

"After the mural has hung in the bank for a year," Layton said, "the bank has the option to buy it for an additional $150." Layton said the prize is an additional incentive for his students.

"To design in a vacuum is pretty useless," he added.

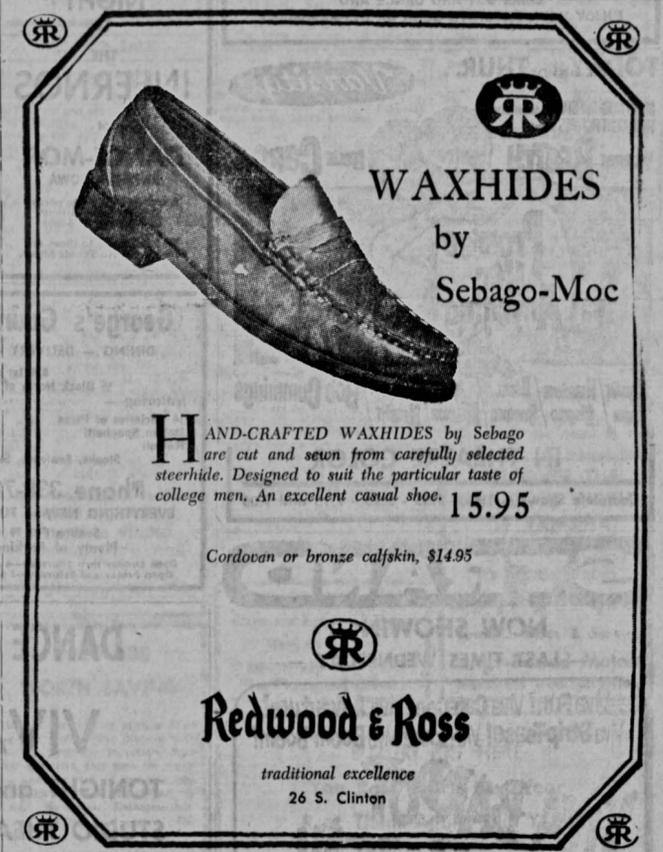

SIGNS OF RANK ABOLISHED—TOKYO (AP) — Albania has abolished all outward signs of rank in its armed forces, reports the New China News Agency. The tiny European country was following the example of its ally, China, which did the same thing last June 1.

LOCAL COLOUR

From every quarter of the world, colors and materials have been drawn to brighten the life of the sport coat wearer. Such as Madras Cotton from India, wool and silk from England, and others. All done in the natural shoulder model with the gently rolled lapels as shown here. Stop and reflect your spring view at Stephens... come and see us.

Professor Elected To Head Physical Education Group

Professor Margaret Fox, of the Department of Physical Education for Women, was chosen president-elect of the American Academy of Physical Education in an election held by mail last week.
A native of Minneapolis, Dr. Fox has been a member of the University faculty since 1949.
Active membership in the American Academy of Physical Education is limited to 100 persons actively employed in one or more of the fields of health education, and recreation. Chosen by the governing body of the academy from some 47,000 professional employees in these fields, the fellows of the academy hold membership for life.
Dr. Fox will take office as president of the academy at the next annual meeting of the organization in March, 1967, in Las Vegas, Nev. She will succeed Dean Arthur Esslinger of the School of Physical Education and Health at the University of Oregon. The outgoing president of

Delinquency's Causes, Effects Analyzed By C.R. Policeman

Carl Badger, Cedar Rapids assistant police chief, called for firmness, patience and understanding in dealing with juvenile offenders, in a lecture to some 50 police recruits at a two-week basic training course here.
"The greatest cause of juvenile delinquency is damage to the personal happiness of the offender himself," Badger told the new officers.
The lecture was part of the curriculum of the Police Recruit School sponsored by the Bureau of Police Science.
"Realize that a child lives in a childhood or adolescent world," Badger said. "Adult standards, ambitions, experiences and insight are not necessarily applicable to him."
Terming the home the "incubator for the social graces," Badger said, "More often than we would like, children in trouble come from homes lacking in understanding, self-respect and affection."
Badger told the officers, "Remember that 98 per cent of our children are behaving. They are not going to the dogs."
"Somehow children in every generation manage to grow up

Charges Dropped In Store Robbery

Charges of robbery with aggravation against Estel Bob Braden, 40, Gary, Ind., were dropped Thursday in Johnson County District Court because of insufficient evidence.
Braden was charged in connection with the Oct. 11, 1965, robbery of more than $3,000 from Eagle's Food Center, 600 N. Dodge St.
Braden said in a petition filed March 14, that he was in Cincinnati at the time of the robbery. He was released to the Dubuque police where he will face other charges of robbery with aggravation.

Union Will Show Religious Works

"Religious Themes by Old Masters," German reproduction of masterpieces of religious art of all periods, will be shown May 10 through May 14 in the Union Terrace Lounge.
The exhibition is sponsored by Inter Nations, Bonn, and the German Embassy in Washington. It tours nationally under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C.
The show includes works by the great masters of religious art who worked from the 14th through the 17th centuries in France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Russia and Spain.
