IOWA CITY POLICE are looking for a 1958 Pontiac 4-door Sedan that may be connected with the murder of an Iowa City grocer May 16. The black car with a white top has a slightly damaged left front fender and may have green paint on it, according to police. They say the car was involved in a hit and run accident near the murder scene shortly after the shooting.

MRS. JOHN F. KENNEDY, her two children, and two of their cousins will fly to Hawaii June 5 for a month's vacation, her New York office disclosed Wednesday. Mrs. Kennedy's secretary, Pamela Turnure, said the former First Lady will take her daughter, Caroline, and son, John F. Jr., and two children of her late husband's sister, Patricia Lawford.

THE FEDERAL DISTRICT COURT ruling on the use of community television antennae in relaying television movies is expected to be appealed to the Supreme Court. Federal Judge William B. Herlands ruled Monday that community television companies owe royalties to movie companies when they use their antennae to relay movies. It was believed the first such ruling in the country.

THE UNITED ARAB REPUBLIC has agreed to permit the United States 6th Fleet to make its first visit to an Egyptian port, according to U.S. and Egyptian sources. Although U.S. warships occasionally travel through the Suez Canal, none has stopped at an Egyptian Red Sea port since 1962.

A NEW EXPLORER SATELLITE went into the wrong orbit Wednesday and the first version of a Saturn 5 moon rocket was rolled onto its launching pad. NASA officials said the Explorer 32 did not get an engine cutoff signal at the right time and went into orbit 900 miles higher than it should have.

Student Takes Life, Ex-Aide Of Hughes

Kirk Boyd

A University graduate student, who was a former editor of The Daily Iowan and a former aide to Gov. Harold Hughes, committed suicide Wednesday morning, according to Dr. George D. Callahan, Johnson County medical examiner.

Robert Kirkby Boyd, G, Davenport, died from an overdose of sleeping pills in his apartment at 111 Templin Park. Boyd's wife, Irene, found the body about 11:30 a.m.

BOYD'S FIRST newspaper job was covering high school sports for The Davenport Democrat in 1949 while he was a high school freshman. He held several other positions with The Democrat until he enrolled at St. Ambrose College in Davenport.

He enrolled at the University in September of 1954 and became a police reporter for the D.I. In June of 1955 he became city editor and was appointed editor on Dec. 1, 1955.

He received a B.A. degree in political science in August, 1957, and an M.A. degree in August, 1961.

Boyd was a reporter for the Des Moines Tribune in 1957 and

McNamara's Plan Opposed Here

By S. B. ELLIOTT
Staff Writer

There have been no riots protesting the proposal, not even outcries of anger. Yet, when informally polled at the University, professors and students alike seemed generally to find the latest McNamara suggestion highly distasteful.

Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara suggested at a luncheon of the American Society of Newspaper Editors last Wednesday that universal conscription be enacted. His proposal would oblige every young person to give two years to his country in the Army, the Peace Corps, or in some other voluntary work.

Some professors have reacted strongly to the proposal. Lawrence E. Gelfand, associate professor of history, said, "The McNamara proposal is fraught with ominous portents in as much as the development of universal conscription during peace time could lead to the possibility of increased regimentation by the federal government in our society."

SYDNEY V. JAMES, an associate professor of history, also opposed the plan. He said, "In general, I am against it. Universal requirements for any purpose other than taxes are undesirable. There ought to be no blanket requirement of service."

"I am against mandatory service in whatever uniform," said John Barrett, former president of the Young Democrats. "I am, however, in favor of opening up additional options and opportunities for people interested in serving their country."

Tom Gammack, A3, Des Moines, said he thought that the minute the voluntary aspect of serving in one of the government programs was replaced by a more mandatory consignment, the wrong people might get into a service such as the Peace Corps.

"Those people could do more harm than good," he said.

Kevin Roddy, G, Burlingame, Calif., said simply, "McNamara's proposal would be good in a country of 2,500 people."

THERE WERE THOSE who did favor the McNamara position, including Lyle

Krewson, the present state chairman of the Young Republicans:

"I am against universal conscription on principle," he said, "but I don't see how we can get around it. And so, as an alternative to what we now have, the McNamara proposal is a fine one."

Larry Fennema, president of the Young Americans For Freedom, also backed McNamara, but with reservations: "I think everyone owes a certain amount of service to his country. Those opposed to serving in the military should be given the opportunity to serve in some other capacity."

He added, "I think, however, that it's a very large project that McNamara is talking about. I don't know how you would go about enlisting everyone."

McNAMARA DID NOT outline a method for conscription in his speech, nor did he specify whether the proposal would be limited to men.

He did say that the proposal would remove what he called the inequity in the present Selective Service System by requiring everyone to serve.

Gov. Hatfield, Miami's High, Gov. Romney Seek Offices

(AP) — In Michigan Wednesday, Republican Gov. George Romney announced he will seek a third term in Florida, Miami Mayor Robert King High will face Republican Claude R. Kirk, Jr. for governor; and in Oregon, Rep. Robert Duncan (D-Ore.) challenged Republican Gov. Mark O. Hatfield to debate the issues in their race for the U.S. Senate.

Romney's campaign for his third term as governor and the state's first four-year gubernatorial term could be a workout for a distance race to the White House.

WHEN ASKED if he expected to serve the full four years if elected, Romney said, "No person can foresee what will happen two or four months from now, let alone two or four years. The only office for which I am a candidate is governor of Michigan."

He insisted all 1968 speculation was premature in light of a comeback task facing the GOP in 1966 congressional and gubernatorial races.

What some Republican leaders are foreseeing, however, is that Romney, a former president of American Motors Corp., is the most likely candidate of the moderate wing of the GOP.

Sources close to New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller now say the New York Republican leader has made a firm commitment to Romney for the nomination — a commitment extending beyond the veiled support he offered in a speech Monday night in Garden City, N.Y.

OREGON REP. DUNCAN, 45, after winning a smashing Democratic primary election victory, for the U.S. Senate race, challenged Gov. Hatfield, who won the GOP nomination with ease Tuesday.

Hatfield said the question of formal debates would have to wait but added he had always been willing to engage in public discussion.

The main issue in Tuesday's primaries was the Viet Nam conflict.

Oregon's Democratic Sen. Wayne Morse, loser by proxy in the Senate primary, said Wednesday that victory was ahead — in the person of Republican Gov. Hatfield — for critics of the United States' Viet Nam war policy.

HATFIELD HAS BEEN critical of President Johnson's policy in Viet Nam while Duncan was a staunch supporter of the administration's policy.

Morse said in Washington that the combined primary vote cast for Hatfield "indicates strongly that the Johnson administration will be repudiated on the Viet Nam war issue by a substantial majority of the voters of my state."

MIAMI'S MAYOR Robert King High shattered the rural power structure in Florida to win the Democratic endorsement in Tuesday's primary. High, 42, crushed Gov. Haydon Burns' bid for reelection even though people said conservative Floridians would never accept a governor from liberal-minded Miami. No other man from the state's biggest city ever made a serious try for the office.

High proved that a high budget campaign was not needed to win the election. His victory also proved that a candidate in Florida could no longer hope to ride the racial banner into office.

High, pictured as a Negro-backed candidate, took 85 per cent of the Negro ballot, while Burns failed to get offsetting support from the whites to whom he appealed.

Guyana Free; English Flag Taken Down

GEORGETOWN, Guyana — Thousands of peasants in donkey carts and buses streamed into rain-drenched Georgetown Wednesday for street dancing and other merrymaking to celebrate Guyana's independence from Britain, which began at midnight.

The peasants who crowded the streets of this capital on the northeast coast of South America were dressed in their best clothes and carried small, five-colored flags, their national emblem. They watched the Union Jack lowered for the last time over British Guyana.

Former Marxist Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan and his Peoples' Progressive party boycotted the celebrations under his policy of "Independence yes, celebrations no."

PRESIDENT JOHNSON represented by Lincoln Gordon, assistant secretary of state for Latin-American affairs, sent a message that said "Congratulations on this historic event which joins the people of Guyana with friends in this hemisphere and around the world."

There is now a bitter political feud in Guyana between Forbes Burnham, the prime minister, and Jagan.

Jagan contends independence is being granted under a rigged constitution that will keep him out of office.

Dismissal Of Campus Editor Stirs Students At Parsons

By SANDOR POLSTER
Staff Writer

FAIRFIELD — The student newspaper at Parsons College has averaged within the last two months a new editor every three and a third weeks.

Since March 10, one editor has been fired and one quit before the administration had a chance to fire him.

And yet, the administration maintains that there is not now nor has there ever been censorship of the weekly paper, the Portfolio.

THE MOST recent firing occurred May 18, when Parsons Vice President Milford E. Hughes informed Karlyn Wiedeman, a 20-year-old junior, that her services were no longer needed. Miss Wiedeman was replaced by Nancy Talbot, a 19-year-old junior.

But Miss Wiedeman's firing has perhaps shaken the shackles from the normally apathetic student body. Tuesday there was a sit-in in the administration building protesting the action, and another demonstration is being planned for Friday evening.

The firing has produced some good things, said Public Relations Director Robert Rasmussen.

FIRST, IT HAS created the Board of Student Publications, he said. Also, the college is "now searching for a qualified adviser to oversee all publications and do some teaching."

The immediate reason for the firing, according to students here, was the reprinting of an article from the Des Moines Register that was uncomplimentary to the college.

Dedication of Phillips Hall Scheduled For This Friday

Phillips Hall, new College of Business Administration building, will be officially dedicated at 2:30 p.m. Friday during special ceremonies in Phillips Hall Auditorium.

The building, completed this fall, is named for Dean Emeritus Chester A. Phillips, who will be present at the ceremony.

President Howard R. Bowen will be featured speaker at the dedication. The president's address will be on "Business, A Profession."

STANLEY F. REDEKER, president of the State Board of Regents, will make the presentation of the building, with B. L. Barnes, Dean of the College of Business Administration, accepting on behalf of the College.

William A. Knoke, professor of business administration, will preside during the program and Charles E. Carlston, associate professor of religion, will give the invocation.

Knoke is chairman of the Phillips Hall Dedication Committee, on which William J. Masson, professor of business education and Paul R. Olson, professor of economics, also serve.

Alpha Kappa Psi business fraternity will conduct tours of the six-floor building from 9 a.m. to noon Friday.

The College of Business Administration will sponsor a lecture today by John J. Balles, vice president and chief economist of Mellon National Bank and Trust Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., as part of the Murray Lecture series and Phillips Hall dedication. Balles will speak on "Contemporary Economic Problems."

Gone too far

IT'S SHOCKING TO SEE how far our aid officials in Saigon were able to go before someone back home realized to what extent they have mismanaged their office.

Government officials have just announced that up to 40 per cent of the U. S. aid going to Viet Nam disappears before it reaches its destination. Presumably much of the stuff winds up in the hands of the Viet Cong. What the Viet Cong doesn't get, probably falls into private hands or just goes to waste.

The real clincher came, however, when it was learned that our aid officials decided that what the Vietnamese really need is a $4 million brewery. Apparently someone there thought beer in Viet Nam would be in the best interests of the freedom and well-being of the Vietnamese people, since the project was to be financed with funds to be used only for necessities.

Fortunately, someone back home realized that this would be one thing that would be just a little too hard to justify, and so the project was halted.

It was a mighty good thing it was stopped. How could this country justify to its own people and the world a project that would benefit no one except a few businessmen here and in Viet Nam, and a few Vietnamese drinkers?

It's bad enough that this country must supply arms to every army in that country, whether we mean to or not. This country currently supplies weapons for Ky's army, the anti-Ky revolutionaries, and the Viet Cong, who get them from defectors and shipments that get lost.

Mismanagement, however, is only a secondary issue, which might well cloud the more basic issue behind it. We must not concern ourselves only with seeing that our aid gets where its going, but seeing that our aid programs are aimed at benefiting the people of Viet Nam, not our businessmen.

The controls now being clamped on our aid program there are coming too late, and are too limited in scope. Had people shown more concern for the welfare and freedom of the Vietnamese rather than immediate or private interests this country would never have backed into such an awful position.

'Did the Music Man say when our instruments and uniforms are coming?'

'Phoney' salesgirl

By SUE RICKEL
Staff Writer

After having been fired from two jobs that summer, in two weeks, I had lost the illusion that the want ads were a treasure hunt leading to unexpected delights. I had never dreamed that being a waitress or a salesclerk could be so tedious and demanding. My father was furious, insisting that I get a job. I was ready to try anything.

Selecting the one want ad that seemed vague enough in its specifications to be a possibility, I soon found myself entering one of the most dilapidated buildings in downtown Norfolk, Va. An elevator groaned me to the ninth floor, then wheeled me out into a narrow, disintegrating hallway with a warped floor.

GROPING MY WAY to door 913, I knocked on the opaque, unmarked glass. A woman ushered me into a small, dusty room, covered with motionless blocks of hollow sunlight.

After asking me my name and age, the woman asked me if I knew what was done here. Beginning to be upset, I replied that I didn't. "We sell magazines by telephone," she said. "It's telephone soliciting, dear."

My first association with the comment was a picture of my mother slamming down the receiver, many years ago, and telling me it was another telephone hoax.

"YOU HAVE a nice voice. I hope you'll do well. But in this business, you've either got it or you haven't."

The woman was in her middle forties, a billowing, powder-pigeon creature, with spilling flesh straining her dress at her midriff and her bosom. If she had it, did I want it? I wasn't quite sure.

But, no, I must have this job. I sat quietly while the woman, who said her name was Leslie, showed me the mimeographed spiels. It all seemed very easy.

The advertisers in certain national magazines wanted wider circulation for their advertisements and had decided to pay for years of subscriptions for certain lucky people, asking them only to pay the postage. This was the gist of it.

The tract was peppered with very subtle psychological ploys, especially at the beginning, before moving in for the kill. The kill consisted of filling out an order blank, complete with the magazines requested, to pass on to the salesman who took our leads and 'tied them up.'

Leslie informed me she had to let quite a few girls go for not getting any orders. She said an order an hour should be the goal. I would be paid a flat $1.25 an hour for four hours a day. Once I attained eight orders a day (which I later learned was simple preposterous) I could go on straight commission of $5 an order.

"So you see, dear," Leslie told me, "You could make quite a lot of money." She pointed out one of four desks to me. They were all bare, save for telephones. "That will be your desk. Let's see how you do."

MY FIRST FEW days on the job were humiliating. I hadn't quite figured out whether the offer was on the level, but the chief cause of my uneasiness was that I felt I was invading people's homes. I felt I deserved to be hung up on. My insides quivered each time I rang up a new number, hoping there would be no answer.

"Hello, Mrs. Marshall? This is Angela Jones, of Universal Publications. How are you today? Oh, well, isn't that nice. Mrs. Marshall, as an intelligent woman, you'll be interested, I'm sure, in . . ." After a while, I was saying the spiel in my sleep. I was flabbergasted the first time I got an order, but, after that, it came very easily.

Success in selling anything, I imagine, depends on one's ability to generate excitement about the offer being made. For a while I was able to talk myself into being thrilled about calling people up and making my offer to them.

But four hours a day, five days a week of imposing an artificial personality on people I thought I should be apologizing to, was quite a lot for me to take. Dialing the phone with a pencil, I amused myself.

"Hello, this is Antigone Stein . . . Ziporah Llamaland . . . Heidi Pumpnickel . . ." I summoned up the name of every boy I'd ever gone with and pretended I was his wife for twenty minutes. "This is Mrs. Rodney Gross. . ."

THE ONLY co-workers I liked were fired very quickly for failing to get orders. The ones who stayed on were fast-talking and smooth and full of phony laughter.

Somehow, I was getting more orders than anybody else.

After a week of working, I faced the fact that the deal I was offering was plenty slanted. Some of the other girls and I figured out offer actually cost slightly more than the subscription rate to the five magazines. The deal cost less money, however, than it would if the magazines were bought weekly or monthly on the newsstand. This was a far cry from our offer of 'free' magazines, however.

If the offer was a sham, the person I was on the phone was a sham, I told myself. I was making money, the hours were convenient, and no one with any brains would take the offer. The people who got it, deserved it.

I STAYED WITH the job about a month. I kept reminding myself that a different person took over once inside that office, and that person knew I must keep the job and that it was right that I do so.

One morning when I walked into the office, Leslie took me aside.

"I don't know whether you know it or not, Sue, but three of the orders you took last week were for colored." The stuporous, suffocating atmosphere I'd first noticed about the office seemed to rise into my face.

"Don't you know a colored voice on the phone?" Her voice was getting shriller. "Don't you know that we don't take orders from colored?"

I looked at Leslie a few seconds, not really sure of what I was thinking. I shrugged my shoulders and turned towards the door.

"Where are you going?"

I faced her. "Leslie, you are a fat, sloppy pig and I hate you."

I walked along the sunny streets, once again unemployed and unemployable. It was the day before my nineteenth birthday. I was, somehow, not unhappy that I no longer had a job.

Need Bathing Skill

By ART BUCHWALD
WASHINGTON — The bathroom industry has struck back at Ralph Draino for his attack on bathtub safety in his best-selling book, "Unsafe At Any Faucet." Ever since Mr. Draino pointed out that bathtubs were unsafe, wash bowls were too low, and glass shower doors collapsed when someone started singing, the industry has been waging an all-out campaign to save sagging bathroom sales.

Mr. Henry Cord in an address to the National Bathing Safety Council reported that bathtub sales were off 3 per cent because of Mr. Draino's attacks. "If people start taking less baths, this country could go right into a recession," he said.

"Ever since Mr. Draino's scurrilous book came out, children have refused to brush their teeth in present day wash bowls as they claim they're too low. I tell you it's not our bathtubs that are unsafe, but the nut behind the fixtures.

"Most Americans do not know how to take a bath properly, and all the government control in the world will not prevent an accident when an inexperienced person turns on the hot and cold water."

Mr. Cord said that he believed that bathing licenses should only be issued to those persons who had taken lessons from professional bathers. "Bathers need 'up to date' bathing skills, rather than shift the responsibility to the 'bathroom people.'

"What, with increased washrooms, showers, and bathtubs, we have added congestion, changing conditions, and situations that no bather had to contend with ten years ago.

"Bathroom users must realize that all the unbreakable soap dishes, vertical safety bars, and eight-ply rubber mats won't help if the bather has been drinking or taking a shower faster than the legal speed limits."

MR. CORD SAID, although he considered American bathtubs the best and safest in the world, his company would continue to work on making them ever safer and more solid. But he called for more defensive bathing on the part of the public.

"Bathtub users must look to the right and to the left before getting into the tub. They must slow down when reaching for a washcloth or a bar of soap, and they must learn to be ready for the unexpected when they are rinsing off.

"OUR STUDIES have shown that more accidents in the bathroom are caused by shampooing one's hair than by any structural weaknesses in the wash bowl. The best bathroom lights cannot help someone when he gets soap in his eyes."

Mr. Cord announced that he was giving $100,000 to the Bathroom Improvement Foundation, which would send qualified bathroom instructors around the country to teach men and women how to avoid the hazards of bathroom bathing.

"They will be equipped with visual aids," he said, "including old Brigitte Bardot movies to show how to bathe the right and wrong way. "Playboy magazine has also offered to help us in any way they can."

After Mr. Cord made his speech, I contracted Mr. Draino for a reaction. He scoffed at Mr. Cord's statements. "It's typical of the bathroom people to attack the bather instead of the tub. I will be very interested in studying their films. Brigitte Bardot has always been a big favorite of mine."

Ignorance of war cited by student

To the Editor
Concerning the chaos in Viet Nam, one dreads to think which is more tragic: the devastations each day of bombs and bullets, or the deep ignorance of many Americans in the face of them.

This "deep ignorance" is an ignorance not only of the undeniable realities of the "war" — e.g., the fact that, to win sanction for their illegitimate actions, our leaders have repeatedly fed us pretexts; or the fact that, as to our Viet Nam policy's ever attaining its desired objectives, most experts have expressed grave doubts — but also, and more importantly, an ignorance of root values of right and wrong.

Indisputably, such values do exist. The Ten Commandments embody them; so do our own Federal Constitution and law. Being given values, one either accepts them as true or one does not. If one does not, he is in effect repudiating authority of all traditional codes of value and law.

FOR ONE PERSON to bear malice against another, for example, is always wrong. It is doubtful whether anyone who is truly aware of and honest with himself would deny this. And to acknowledge this is to acknowledge, of logical necessity, the wrongness of anyone ever willing the death or suffering of another.

One tragedy of our time is that so few persons will avow these basic truths, and that, among them, far fewer are courageous enough to act in strict accordance with them. Expediency, not morality, now reigns supreme in the world. As a consequence, most men no longer regard the extermination of those opposed to them as something tragic (as it always ought to be), but merely as something inevitable.

INTELLECTUALS and non-intellectuals alike stand guilty of this "crime." For basic truths, truths imbedded in all human hearts, are accessible to all. Only persons ignorant of where their hearts lie, of what their innermost impulses tell them, can shout such slogans as "Burn the peace creeps," or "Drop more bombs." Since ample and trustworthy proof of the popular fallacies of the war is in reach of all, for anyone to live tranquilized by such delusions as "It's either them or us," or "If we don't fight them here, we'll soon be fighting them on our shores," is inexcusable.

If not thwarted and reduced in time, widespread lack of ethics and sound judgment will drive our nation and others to their ultimate downfall; of this there can be little doubt. The perplexing question is, how much time remains? The great German poet Goethe writes: "No nation acquires the power of judgment unless it can pass judgment on itself." And adds: "But to this privilege it can only attain at a very late stage."

Research needed

To the Editor:

Recently a main topic of conversation and controversy has been car safety. Since I drive a car quite a bit, I am naturally very interested in car safety, and it has come to my attention, through some articles that I have read, that car safety is not of the quality that it should be. According to Popular Science of August, 1964, small cars are more dangerous than larger cars in crashes. From tests made of ten head-on crashes only one small car bettered a larger one. That car was a Falcon with a triangular strut in the frame that made the body more resistant on impact. Also, in these tests, it was noticed that not one windshield broke, only a few doors popped open, many seats tore loose, and all throttles jammed open. These facts are quite contrary to most reports about automobile accidents. It is quite possible that this big bust about car safety will lead to nothing until Detroit and the government realize that they do not really know how to prevent deaths in car mishaps because they do not really know what happens during a car accident.

According to the Denver Post of May 19, six of the seventeen safety specifications required by the government will be on new 1966 cars. However, car sales are down according to Time, May 20. Corvair sales are down 55 per cent from 1965. People will also put off buying until 1967 models are out so that they will receive all of the safety modifications. This is sensible. It is time for car safety, but I do not believe that the safety features will do as well as everyone thinks. In the test I mentioned previously, it was found that even shoulder harnesses did not work at their full efficiency unless they were tied to the rear seat of the car. Detroit and government should test extensively before they jump headlong into a safety program for cars.

Russia's 'Greatness' Emphasized — Soviet Culture Line Promoted

MOSCOW — The Soviet military establishment has thrown its weight against liberals on the Soviet cultural scene.

Literature must show "the greatness of our time" instead of questioning heroic legends of World War II, a military spokesman said. And, he added, Joseph Stalin's reasons for sending people to their death or concentration camps should be appreciated.

After earlier sniping by Red army spokesman at liberal writers who failed to follow the officially endorsed canons of "Socialist realism," a summary of the military attitude on culture was published Wednesday with these points.

The summary was made by Gen. Alexei A. Yepishev, head of the central political department of the Soviet army and navy, in a speech reported by the military paper Red Star. Yepishev, the Soviet Communist party's watchdog for the armed services, spoke at a meeting on "military patriotic education of Soviet youth" through literature and art. The defense minister, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, attended the recent meeting.

Yepishev's hard line on culture came as part of a recent resurgence of Stalinist-type comments about arts.

Yepishev's praise of writers and artists who were favored during the Stalin era indicated a craving for the simple old days of party-line culture that existed only to support the regime.

But in the past decade some writers have deviated from the simple approach of depicting heroic builders of communism.

Iowa Hitter Marc 'GJ' Michel Sparks '67 Baseball Hopes

By MIKE FINN
Staff Writer

Every baseball team has colorful ball players like Jimmy Piersall, Dizzy Dean, or Tony Conigliaro. The Iowa Hawkeyes this spring had Marc Michel, or "GJ" as his teammates called him.

"GJ" stands for the "Golden Jet" of ice hockey, Bobby Hull, who along with Arnold Palmer is a favorite with Marc Michel is never at a loss when it comes to supporting his claim that they are the best athletes in their respective sports.

THIS SPRING Marc was the second leading hitter among the Hawkeyes in Big 10 competition. Against Michigan and Michigan State, Marc collected four of the Hawks' nine hits, including two doubles. His big blow of the season, a home run at Illinois, did not count because the game was rained out.

"MITCH" CAME to Iowa from Chicago where he attended Fenger High School. Fenger is the alma mater of baseball's Sammy Esposito, Rich Kreitling of the Chicago Bears and Cleveland Browns, and Eliot Ness of FBI fame.

This summer Michel will play for the Gately Bears, an amateur team in the Chicago area which has won national prominence.

Michel, who is 5'10" and 180 lbs., was one of three sophomores who started for coach Dick Schultz' nine. Asked about next season, Michel replied, "We are only losing four seniors—Mickey Moses, Bob Schauenberg, Larry Myatt and Roger Wallenstein." It looks like a good year next season and Michel could be the key to the Hawks' title hopes.

MARC MICHEL

Track Future Looks Bright

By ROGER WALLESTEIN
Staff Writer

Iowa remained in the running for the Big 10 outdoor track and field championship until the last event at Bloomington, Ind., Saturday. Next year the Hawks may win the title long before the last event is run.

Coach Francis Cretzmeyer's fleet squad has only two seniors, Denny Kohl and Al Randolph.

Kohl is the lad who surprised everybody by winning the 100 and 200-yard dashes at the Big 10 meet, and Randolph is an excellent hurdler who doubles as a member of the mile relay team.

Randolph will begin a professional football career with the San Francisco 49er's in the National Football League next fall.

Returning Members
The remaining members of the team will return next year, along with a few freshmen who can help.

Sophomore Mike Mondane, the Big 10 660-yard run champion, will try to better his time of 1:17.7 next year.

Ted Brubacher, a half-miler who switched to the 660 for the conference meet and ran a 1:18.5 to place third, will return next year as a senior. Brubacher also ran a 1:52.1 half mile this year.

Junior Fred Ferree, fourth place finisher in the Big 10 440, will be back to try to improve his best time of 48.1.

Junior Jon Reimer missed winning the 440-yard hurdles title at Bloomington when he hit the last hurdle, but he still ran his best time of the season, 52.0.

Iowa's Miller
Iowa's great sophomore miler, Larry Wiecezorek, should be even better next year. He finished second in the Big 10 outdoor mile and won the indoor mile last March.

His best time of the year was 4:06.9 in a meet with Drake and the Chicago Track Club.

Sophomore Ben McGilmer and junior Dick Gibbs placed fourth and fifth, respectively, in the long jump in the Big 10 meet. McGilmer jumped 23' 8 1/2" for his best effort of the year. Gibbs leaped 23' 13 1/2".

Bill Burnette, winner of the Big 10 pole vault, has one more year of eligibility. He vaulted 15' 4" last Saturday, his best effort of the season.

Ron Griffith, a sophomore, ran 1:51.7 in the half mile, which was fifth place at Bloomington. The meet was his best of the year.

Weightman Tom Knudson, a junior, was slowed by a spring football injury and failed to place in the Big 10 meet but will have another year to improve in both the shot put and discus.

Sophomore Sprinters
Cretzmeyer said that a pair of sophomore sprinters, Dale Teberg and Roger Menke, may be able to take Kohl's place next year.

Cretzmeyer also mentioned a few freshmen who have a chance to help the team. Two of them are from Denver, Colo., Jerry Stephens and Steve Dertinger. Stephens is a half-miler and Dertinger is the 1965 prep 440 champion of Colorado.

Carl Frazier, Princeton, runs the 440 for the freshmen and has a chance of making the varsity team next year.

Cretzmeyer said that two freshmen milers, Rolie Kitt, Bettendorf, and Curt LaBond, Carroll, show some promise. Kitt ran a 4:20.1 mile while in high school.

Freshman Mike Morse, Jefferson, Iowa, has high jumped 6' 4" and could provide help when Iowa needs it.

Don Duvinger is a freshman from Davenport who has pole vaulted 14'.

A transfer student from Graceland College, John Wilkinson, is a good 440 man and half-miler, according to Cretzmeyer.

Meets Left
There are still four meets that some of the Iowa trackmen are going to compete in this year.

The Iowa Federation meet will be held in Des Moines on Saturday.

Notre Dame will be host for the Central Collegiate meet on June 4.

The United States Track and Field Federation meet will be held in Terre Haute, Ind., on June 10-11, followed by the National Collegiate meet in Bloomington, Ind., on June 18-19.

Sig Eps, Phi Eps Win In Frat Softball Semis

Sigma Phi Epsilon and Phi Epsilon Pi moved into the championship round of the social fraternity intramural softball playoffs Wednesday afternoon by scoring convincing victories in semifinal play.

The Sig Eps gained their position by blasting previously undefeated Pi Kappa Alpha 20-8, while Phi Epsilon Pi gained the finals by virtue of a 13-5 victory over Sigma Nu.

The two are scheduled to meet today at 4:30 p.m. on Finkbine Fields for the championship. The winner will advance to the All-University playoffs, set to begin next week.

Minnesota Ends Losing Streak

BOSTON (AP)—Jimmie Hall lashed a two-run homer off Dick Radatz in the 10th inning, giving Minnesota a 7-5 victory over Boston Wednesday night that snapped the Twins' five-game losing streak and ended the Red Sox' winning string at six.

Hall hit his third homer of the season into the left field screen with one out in the 10th and Harmon Killebrew, who had walked, on base.

The Red Sox had tied the score 5-5 on Carl Yastrzemski's two-run double with two out in the ninth.

Run-scoring singles by Rico Petrocelli and Joe Poy in the seventh pulled the Red Sox within range after Killebrew's two-run homer sent the Twins ahead 5-1 in the top of the inning.

OLD SHEP NOT GUILTY

Old Shep, world's champion coon hound, was found not guilty of a charge of possession of beer as a minor in Police court Wednesday.

Irving Fenster, trainer of Old Shep, said he had reminded the judge that Old Shep was 3 years old, which equaled 21 years in a human's life.

Old Shep was arrested Monday at a local pub while he was celebrating his victorious coon and snipe hunt.

National Art Gallery Offers Wheelchair Tours Of Rooms

A fleet of 25 wheelchairs awaits you at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. to make your tour more enjoyable, the gallery's director said Tuesday evening.

"The best way to see the gallery," said John Walker, National Gallery of Art director, "is to get a wheelchair, push it into the room you wish to view, sit in the chair and simply turn it in all directions."

Walker's remarks concluded a lecture, "How to Enjoy the National Gallery of Art," given before an audience of about 50 persons in the Art Building Auditorium.

He said that at one time he wanted to install motors in the chairs, but the gallery's lawyer advised against it. "He was afraid someone might not know how to operate it, hit a woman with a baby carriage and we would be sued," Walker said.

BUT VISITORS to the gallery can avail themselves of the manual wheelchair and a portable electronic speaker system with a recording of Walker's discussions of the paintings.

Walker has been director of the National Gallery since 1956. Previously he was chief curator for 17 years.

The gallery was established in the 1930's by philanthropist Andrew Mellon, who provided the building and a large endowment to get it started.

According to Frank Seiberling, director of the School of Art, many art professionals were dubious at the time that a collection of international importance could be acquired to compare with the European galleries. But the gallery's exhibits have given evidence to the contrary, Seiberling said.

HE COMMENTED after his lecture on one of the gallery's recent acquisitions which cost $620,000. Measuring only 6 inches by 4 inches, it is the most expensive painting per square inch in the world.

In his lecture, Walker said he had tried several ways to get people to enjoy the National Gallery. He tried to get visitors to learn the attributes of the religious pictures or to view paintings for the visual pleasure of color and texture.

This proved inadequate, however. "The most successful device to get people to enjoy the gallery is sex," he said.

Nicholas Clark, A4, Iowa City, and Janet Rice, G, Earby Colne, Eng., will travel to Holly Springs, Miss., this summer under the sponsorship of SNCC, it was announced at SNCC's weekly meeting Tuesday night in the Union Miller room.

Clark and Miss Wright will help with voter registration and educational work in "Freedom School" classes. They will also campaign for the Rev. Clifton Whitley, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for senator. Whitley is a member of the Rust College, Holly Springs, Miss. faculty.

The club voted to send books of trading stamps to Melville, Calif., in order to purchase a bus to transport southern workers to the polls this summer.

Blood Fluid Made

A special fluid that reconstitutes frozen blood is being produced at the College of Pharmacy for wounded fighting men in Viet Nam.

The College of Pharmacy began producing the fluid for the Navy in March. Since then 240 units have been air shipped each month to the naval hospital at Subic Bay in the Philippines.

The fluid is being produced under a contract with the Navy. Under a previous Navy contract, the College of Pharmacy did development work on adapting the fluid containers to the cytometer.

Viet Nam War Is Topic Again For Soundoff

Fascism and the desirability of the United States' pulling out of Viet Nam contended for the limelight Wednesday at the semester's last session of Soapbox Soundoff.

There are now four graduate student classifications, and a higher minimum GPA is needed for acceptance into the Graduate College.

Grad Classification Change Released

The old classification, a student was admitted to the Graduate College with a 2.0 without a department accepting the responsibility of advising him.

According to Scaff the new minimum GPA required by the Graduate College will be 2.3 for conditional students, not 2.13 as stated in the Iowan article.

Iowa's Flag Now Flying Over Capitol

The state flag of Iowa took its place Tuesday beneath the United States flag atop the glittering dome of Old Capitol.

The reason for tightening the classifications and entrance requirements Scaff said, is due to the increased enrollment in the University's graduate programs.
