Collins' Stroll In Space Aborted

Ship Loses Fuel Chasing Rocket

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Gemini 10 pilot Michael Collins cut short a dramatic cosmic escapade 247 miles above earth Wednesday when his spaceship ran low on precious fuel trying to stay close to an old, powerless rocket.

He spent about half the time he wanted to on his celestial stroll, but did have time to become the first man ever to touch another satellite caught in space.

Wednesday's adventure was a high spot of the bold three-day journey in space.

Is Human Satellite
For about half an hour Collins was a breathing, talking, human satellite of the earth — flicking around with a space gun. But the order came, "Get back in."

Mission control issued the order when command pilot John W. Young began using too much fuel from the already low tanks trying to stay close to the Agena rocket that was bled of all its power. Gemini 10 had caught the dead rocket earlier in the day after a space chase from record heights.

Officials wanted to make sure Young and Collins had ample power to get back down Thursday from the 247-mile-high orbit for a splashdown in the Atlantic Ocean.

It was the second time Collins had to end activity outside Gemini 10 early. Fumes rose from the ship's environment system during a photographic "space stand" Tuesday, causing his and Young's eyes to water badly. The stench did not show up again Wednesday.

55 Minutes Planned
Collins, the fourth man ever to leave an orbiting vehicle, had planned to stay out 55 minutes, and things went flawlessly at first. He plugged a nitrogen fuel line into his space gun to give it power to flash him around while he was connected to a 50-foot lifeline feeding him spacecraft oxygen.

The astronaut edged over to the Agena a few feet away while Young steered the spaceship, firing its tiny jets.

"Everything outside is about as we predicted, only it takes more time for body positioning," Collins reported. "This is indeed a problem. Although the nitrogen line got connected without too much of a problem, when I trans-

FOUR FEMALE AERIAL ARTISTS performing in the Shrine Circus on Wednesday were injured when a superstructure supporting overhead ropes and poles collapsed. The women were taken to Mercy Hospital; two were released and two stayed overnight for observation.

4 Circus Aerialists Injured In Wednesday Performance

By ANDREA GOEB
Asst. City Editor

A structure of wires, ropes and poles came crashing down on a troupe of aerial artists at the Shrine Circus Wednesday afternoon, injuring four of the women in the troupe.

The women were taken to Mercy Hospital in ambulances; two were treated for minor cuts and bruises and were released; the other two were placed under observation at the hospital, but officials said Wednesday night that their conditions were not serious.

The accident was over in a matter of seconds. The troupe of six women and six men, known as the Webb Production, had just taken their positions on the turf of the City High Athletic Field about 3 p.m. and the women were beginning their ascent on the ropes.

Poles Topped
They were about 10 feet up the ropes when suddenly the wires of the superstructures sagged and the two middle poles toppled. The poles struck the women, toppling them to the ground.

An ambulance, which had been standing by on the sidelines as a standard precaution, was there immediately. Another act was pulled away in progress as it was away with the injured.

The two women under observation were Mrs. Argentina Munoz, 34, of Argentina and Mrs. Anna Barreda, 30, of Columbia. Mrs. Petrova Luvas, 28, of Mexico, and Miss Rajja Keppo, 16, of Finland, were released.

The accident was caused by a sheared shackle on the center poles' guy wires, according to Howard Suesz, owner of the circus. A shackle is a coupling device that anchors the wire.

"It was a clean break," Suesz said, "but it would have been impossible to tell from looking at it that it was about to give way."

Performers Check
He said that although circus workmen put up the riggings to check their assembled equipment for safety.

"It was just one of those freak accidents," he said.

Mrs. Munoz said later from her hospital bed that she and her husband had checked the wires before the act and had found them to be all right.

She said the accident had unnerved her, but added that she would go up again "without a moment's hesitation."

The circus will give performances as usual, but without the aerial act, at 2:30 and 8:15 p.m. today.

Cleveland Has Trouble Spots, Stays Tense

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Fire-bombing vandals set numerous small fires Wednesday night as violence broke out in widely scattered spots in and around the sealed-off Negro section patrolled by National Guardsmen.

Rock-throwing, window-smashing and looting spread from one spot to another. Police reports of trouble increased as the night wore on.

A large crowd of Negroes smashed store windows shortly after dark in an area about two miles east of the section where rioting Monday and Tuesday nights left 2 persons dead and 234 injured.

Guardsmen joined police in wide-ranging patrols.

But in the original riot area of Hough, all was quiet in the first hours of darkness under the light restrictions imposed by guardsmen. Only residents or motorists on official business could get in or out.

More than 800 guardsmen were on patrol at dark. Police Inspector Gerald Raderaker said guardsmen and police patrols were ranging over an area 70 blocks wide.

"We are going to restore order," Mayor Ralph S. Locher said grimly after meeting with the commander of nearly 2,000 troops called up Tuesday.

In Washington, President Johnson urged citizens not to use violence. He called for cooperation with authorities in riot-struck cities to remedy "evil conditions."

Locher and Maj. Gen. Edwin C. Hostetter, commanding the National Guard, said troops would remain as long as needed to keep down the firebombings, shootings and looting.

Gunfire killed a woman Monday night and a man Tuesday night. Both were Negroes.

Two Planes Shot Down; Pilots Lost

SAIGON (AP) — Two more U.S. war planes were shot down by the Communists Wednesday, the U.S. Command announced Thursday, raising to six the number of American aircraft downed over North Viet Nam this week.

Seven American fliers were lost with their planes Wednesday and listed as missing.

A spokesman said the two craft were shot down by ground fire, but did not indicate whether this was from anti-aircraft artillery or missiles.

U.S. jet pilots Tuesday encountered a record barrage of 23 missiles and a flight of challenging MiGs during strikes at six oil depots and other targets in North Viet Nam. Two of the U.S. planes were downed, one by a missile and the other by a MIG 17.

The new losses Wednesday brought to 297 the total downed since the U.S. air offensive against the North started on Feb. 7 of last year.

News in Brief

A REPUBLICAN-LED REVOLT in the Senate against the development loan program Wednesday reduced the total to $370 million by a 59-34 vote. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee had recommended $620 million and the Administration had asked an authorization of $665.4 million.

RICHARD SPECK, ACCUSED OF MURDER in the killing of eight student nurses in Chicago, met with his defense attorney, Gerald W. Getty, for the first time Wednesday and his first request was to see a clergyman. Speck's case has been continued until July 28 after allowing the state's attorney to file a formal complaint accusing Speck of murdering Gloria Jean Davy, 22, of Dyer, Ind.

A FUNERAL SERVICE ATTENDED BY 200 PERSONS was held Wednesday in Chicago for Rosland Howard, 14, a Negro who was killed by a stray bullet in Chicago's West Side Riots last Thursday night.

A DEFENSE APPROPRIATION BILL for $58 billion was passed by the House and sent to the Senate Wednesday. The bill calls for almost $1 billion more than President Johnson had requested. The money in this measure, the most asked since World War II, is for use during the fiscal year ending next June 30.

City Park Budget Cut Called 'Handicap' For Recreation

Members of the Iowa City Park and Recreation Commission unanimously agreed Wednesday night that a $20,000 park and recreation budget cut would "seriously handicap" operation of the Community Recreation Center.

In other action, commission members heard a report on proposed bicycle trails, paved the way for the naming of the proposed southeast park and heard a plea for baseball diamonds from a Babe Ruth League representative.

Robert A. Lee, superintendent of recreation, told commission members how he would have to meet a $10,000 required recreation budget cut by the Iowa City

Wirtz Terms Union Plan 'Pointless'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The airline talks reached the point of another apparent breakdown Wednesday night despite President Johnson's urging of around-the-clock negotiations to break the 13-day stalemate.

"I don't know if we'll ever come back," said an obviously angry union vice president, Joseph W. Ramsey.

Chief airline negotiator William J. Curtin said management would refuse to make an offer for the striking machinists union to present to its members without a contract agreement.

The development came after Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz had denounced the union vote plan as "pointless . . . intolerable" and "a farce of collective bargaining."

City, University Discuss Traffic, Parking Problems

Mutual problems of traffic and parking were discussed informally Wednesday by Iowa City councilmen and University officials in the Old Capital Board Room.

The University's proposed medical complex and the contemplated closing of Newton Road to through-traffic were outlined by Merritt C. Ludwig, director of planning and development.

Traffic on Newton Road would be re-routed when construction begins on the basic science building, which currently is in the programming stage, Ludwig said.

'Congestion Not Eliminated'
Mayor William C. Hubbard asked the University to re-evaluate its plans. It is critical that north and south traffic on Wolfe Avenue have access to Newton Road, he said.

Congestion isn't eliminated by closing Newton Road, City Manager Carsten D. Leikvold said, it is just moved elsewhere.

Of chief concern to University officials was the proposed location of the U.S. Highway 218 bypass from Cedar Rapids to Hills.

City Park Budget Cut Called 'Handicap' For Recreation

Members of the Iowa City Park and Recreation Commission unanimously agreed Wednesday night that a $20,000 park and recreation budget cut would "seriously handicap" operation of the Community Recreation Center.

Burger Recommends New Regional Title For Planning Group

Richard W. Burger, Johnson County Metropolitan Planning Commission (MPC) chairman, asked Wednesday night that all Johnson County communities discuss the advantages of a regional planning commission.

Burger asked that the word "regional" be substituted for "metropolitan." He said the rewording would mean that the commission could eventually discuss mutual problems with neighboring counties.

Burger gave the representatives packets that included articles of agreement, by-laws and sample resolutions authorizing participation and membership in the proposed Johnson County Regional Planning Commission.

Report Back Aug. 17
He asked that the various governmental units in the county adopt the resolutions and return them Aug. 17 at the next MPC meeting.

The adoption of the resolutions would enable the commission to submit its applications for the "701 program," said Burger. He said that Noel W. Willis, 824 Caroline St., would present the "701" proposal at the August meeting.

The "701 program" is the Urban Planning Assistance Program, which makes funds available on a matching two-thirds federal to one-third local basis. The funds could be used for zoning studies, land maps and surveys and aerial photographs.

Burger said the commission would like to see each community appoint three members to MPC, the majority of whom would be non-elected officials. This representation would give every community an equal voice, he said.

Appointment Rotate
He asked that appointments be made on a rotating basis of one, three and five-year terms. This rotation would give the commission needed continuity, he said.

Burger said that the communities of Coralville, Hills, North Liberty, Oxford and Tiffin were not participating in the commission.

Burger, speaking from a prepared text, said, "I wish to make it very clear that the commission will not, and cannot replace the planning departments of the various cities within Johnson County."

Trial Threats Called 'Revolting' By LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson Wednesday assailed as revolting, repulsive and deplorable Hanoi's threats to try captured American fliers as war criminals. But he shied away from counterthreats and offered to talk instead.

"We are ready whenever the Hanoi government is ready," Johnson told a news conference.

"We are ready," he said, "to sit down at a conference table under the sponsorship of the International Committee of the Red Cross, to discuss ways in which the Geneva conventions of 1949 can be given fuller and more complete application in Viet Nam."

These conventions provide that prisoners of war — whether a declared or undeclared war — must be protected against acts of violence or intimidation and against insults and public curiosity.

Conveyed in Channels
Officials said later that this willingness had been conveyed to the North Vietnamese through roundabout diplomatic channels.

Johnson said, though, that there was no indication Hanoi wanted to discuss prisoners, peace or anything else.

Meanwhile, he said, more manpower will be needed in Viet Nam. He did not say how much.

"I have said to the American people time and again, and I repeat it today," the President said in firm tones, "we shall persist. We will send Gen. William C. Westmoreland such men as he will require and request, and they will be amply supplied and will give a good account of themselves."

Concerned About Riots
In response to a question about recurring suggestions that the United States again halt bombings of North Viet Nam, Johnson said he didn't think Americans should be spending all their time talking about what this government might be willing to do without the slightest indication of what the enemy might be willing to do.

Other subjects treated at the news conference:
Asked about recent racial disturbances in Chicago and Cleveland, he said he was "very concerned about the conditions that exist in many of the large cities of this country this summer."

He said he was "not interested in black power or white power — but democratic power with a small 'd.'"

"We must recognize," he added, "that while there is a Negro minority of 10 per cent in this country, there's a majority of 90 per cent who are not Negroes . . . but want to see justice and equality given their fellow citizens . . . in an orderly manner and without violence."

Cooperation Urged
He urged citizens not to resort to violence and to cooperate with authorities to see that "evil conditions" were remedied and that a stride toward equality was made — "and I shall do everything in my power to see that that is done."

Questioned about possible further action in the airline strike, Johnson said, "We have taken every legal step that we could."

He said he had asked both labor and management to follow an advisory board's recommendations, but that while management agreed, the union refused.

Parking Restricted For Street Cleaning

Iowa City police re-emphasized Wednesday the need for motorists to observe restricted parking signs on Iowa City streets.

Street cleaning becomes a problem, officials said, when drivers fail to remove their vehicles from the designated streets for the required hours.

Besides announcing the restricted parking regulations over the radio and in the newspaper, the street department at least 12 hours in advance posts four or more temporary "limiting parking" signs a block on the street.

If a driver is found in violation of the restriction, his car is towed at his expense to one of two city storage lots, police said. The driver then is assessed a $5 towing fee, a $1 storage fee and usually a $5 fine for a parking violation.

The storage lots are at the landfill south of Iowa City on U.S. Highway 218, and at U Smash 'Em I Fix 'Em, 126 S. Gilbert St.

Iowa 'make-law'

TWO STATE AGENCIES have had their hands slapped in recent court decisions for making up their own laws. This is no new practice, it's just that once in a while people get fed up with some of these unwritten laws and contest them.

University law student Tim White recently took a highway patrolman to task in court for illegally parking on the shoulder with his lights off. The patrolman was checking for speeders on his radar unit, and when he charged White with speeding, White thought it best to see that the patrol obey the law too.

In another case, a judge held that the highway commission has no right to extend the length of yellow no-passing lines on highways. To make up for the reduced height of cars, the commission compensated for the reduction in visibility by making no-passing zones longer. But the judge ruled that the commission does not have the power to extend these zones without legislative approval. Here is another case of a state agency making its own laws, and by enforcing these unwritten statutes, it violates the law itself.

In White's case, the patrolman said he was following a long-time practice of parking patrol cars without lights on the side of highways. If the Iowa Department of Public Safety had issued orders or allowed this practice, then the person or persons responsible should be reprimanded, not the patrolman who was merely following orders.

One commissioner said there was a possibility that the law prohibiting patrol cars parking on the shoulders without lights might be changed. The rationale is that a patrol car is an emergency vehicle and is not easily detected by the speeding motorist. The obvious fallacy is that private cars cannot park along highways except for emergencies. This is for purposes of safety. A parked patrol car without lights is as hard to see as any other car.

In lengthening the no-passing zones, the commission is right in its conclusion that yellow lines must be longer to allow for increased speed and decreased car height. But the existence of these faults does not necessarily give the commission power to set law.

These were only two instances of arbitrary lawmaking by enforcement agencies and officials. Hundreds more occur each day. But rather than place all the blame on the officials who are responsible for such infractions, we should likewise point the finger of accusation at ourselves, for apathy is the primary reason that law officials get away with intimidating citizens.

There are a number of reasons why the citizenry is reluctant to contest charges. Cases take up too much time and money for many people; it is easier to plead guilty and pay the fine. Some hesitate to disagree with a law officer because it is felt he usually has the upper hand when it comes to trials or that the court will favor the state in most decisions.

White is a law student, therefore he knows more about law than the average citizen, and if he does not know all the laws, he is well trained in looking up the statute in question. It is an impossibility for most people to have much knowledge in legal matters.

There are a few ways the citizen can examine the basis of what he is charged with. The most obvious is checking to see that there is a statute violation in the first place. If you are charged with breaking a law, find out what the law is. By checking municipal and state codes the citizen can usually answer such questions for himself. If not, the person can pay to see a lawyer.

An important thing for persons to remember is that uniforms do not make the wearers themselves immune from the law.

Confusion dims 'Lovers'

By ANDREA GOEB
Staff Writer

(Legend of Lovers will be presented tonight, Monday, July 29 and Aug. 3 - Ed.)
You can, if you've a mind to, believe in all sorts of things. Things like falling in love at first glance, kismet and second chances. But at the same time you should know there's something that doesn't love a lover, a believer. Repertory Theatre, in its production of Jean Anouilh's "Legend of Lovers" would have you believe, and would have you know the dangers in believing.

The play is a contemporary dramatization of the legendary love of the musician Orpheus for his wife Eurydice. It takes place in the provinces of modern France where the ancients' avatars, a young street musician and a girl from a touring theatrical company, meet and fall in love.

He is Orpheus, played by Robert Ernst, A3, Humboldt; she is Eurydice, played by Lee McCain, G, Los Alamitos, Calif.

Orpheus Legend Retold

They are allowed their ecstasy for one night, then the world bursts into their trysting place and shreds their glory. They are disillusioned by the forces of their pasts and the hopelessness of their present circumstances. Eurydice is killed in an accident; Orpheus is offered the opportunity of bringing her back to life if, when she is returned to him, he will not look at her until the night is over. He succumbs to the need to see her face, of course, and she is recalled to the dead.

The cast's performances differ widely in quality. Each actor has his moments of hot and cold, which adds further to the variegated impression left by the play.

Ernst can give a tender, almost quivering, characterization at times. He contrasts well with his father, played by Reatheel Bean, G, West Plains, Mo., who is a rickety old man with a connoisseur's appreciation and a beggar's avarice.

At Loss With Lover

Ernst, before and after his affair with Miss McCain, strikes us appropriately as a soulful and bemused youth. But when he is with his lover he seems at a loss. It may be simply in reciprocity to Miss McCain's attitude, for she, too, gives that impression.

They plop into each other's arms at first encounter with such little ado that the audience cannot grasp their meeting's significance. It might as well be an episode between street-walker and customer. Later, in the hotel room together, their conversational attempts are extremely stilted. The lines themselves, whatever they may have lost in translation, contain some ethereal poetry. From the sound of things on-stage, though, Ernst and Miss McCain are reluctant, if not actually ashamed, to deliver them that way.

This is not to say that Miss McCain does not have her moments. The best of these are in the opening scene with her mother, played by Caroline Heinshausen, G, Iowa City, and when she is reassuring the manager of the touring company, played by Harmon Dresner, A2, Chicago. At these times she has more of a hold on her part and presents herself well.

Extremes Well Portrayed

Miss Heinshausen proves once again that she can portray extremes of character. She has played in two other Repertory productions and has done an excellent job. In this one, too, she is firmly imprinted on the audience's mind as the loose-lipped, loose-loving mother.

And there is more than a smattering of confusion throughout the play. There is also an occasional spark of virtuosity, a spark that is allowed to burn out before it ignites our imagination.

Weather gets to editorial

To the Editor:

The editorial entitled "Texas Turncoat" written by Nic Goeres on Thursday, July 14 was so interperate as to lead one to believe that it was written very late at night in a sweltering printing establishment.

Mr. Goeres used expressions such as, "he has fired indiscriminately" and "he can arbitrarily do" (referring to President Johnson) that reveal very little serious thought and much passionate word slinging. This kind of writing leads the reader to dismiss the purpose and content of the editorial without much consideration.

Although I believe the editor had an idea worth expressing, I also think the method used to express it should command just as much of his attention.

Presidents rated

By ART BUCHWALD

Whenever an American and a Frenchman get together, the talk is bound to turn to the merits of their respective Presidents. Just the other day at the Hotel George V. I heard a heated argument between a Frenchman and an American.

The Frenchman said, "I beg to differ with you, my friend, but you have the best President."

"Au contraire," said the American, "Your President is superior to mine."

"Do you know, when President de Gaulle goes on television," the Frenchman said, "that everyone laughs."

The American replied, "When President Johnson goes on American television, everyone cries."

"He has a kind face," the Frenchman said. "I cry myself when I see him on French television."

"Your President," the American said, "has great humor. His eyes twinkle all the time."

"But your President is more convincing," the Frenchman said.

"When he says something, everyone believes him. When President de Gaulle says something, we know he is only talking for the record."

"Yes," said the American, "but your President has many redeeming qualities. He will listen to reason."

"But President Johnson will do what is right no matter what the political consequences are," the Frenchman insisted.

"He doesn't care about public opinion."

"That's true," the American said, "but at least President de Gaulle is not worried about his place in history. He would rather do what is necessary now than think about tomorrow."

"President de Gaulle has no style," the Frenchman argued. "He has an inferiority complex about his background and he hates intellectuals. President Johnson accepts and listens to criticism."

"That he does," the American argued. "But President de Gaulle has no nationalistic ambitions. He believes in alliances no matter what effect they will have on France."

"I cannot argue with that," the Frenchman said, "but when it comes to foreign policy, President Johnson is so much better informed. He knows exactly what he's doing in Viet Nam."

"President de Gaulle," the American said, "has made a great contribution to European solidarity. He is probably the only one who has made both Great Britain and West Germany feel secure."

"But President Johnson has been able to persuade every country that whatever the United States does is good for the world."

The American said, "The nice thing about President de Gaulle is that he believes the future of France doesn't depend on one man. He knows anybody could have done what he did, possibly even better."

"The French love President Johnson and we are all waiting breathlessly for his daughter's wedding," the Frenchman said.

"The Americans love President de Gaulle," the American said, "and we are glad he visited the Soviet Union."

At this moment the Frenchman held up his glass and said to the bartender, "let's have two more of the same."

The bartender scowled. "I'm sorry. Both of you have had too much to drink already."

BEETLE BAILEY

Research Continues; No Cure Found For Multiple Sclerosis

By BRUCE HARRISON
Staff Writer

This is Part 1 of a two-part series — Ed.
Multiple sclerosis (MS), a "hit and run disease," is without a cure, according to Dr. Maurice Van Allen, professor of neurology.

"Multiple sclerosis is one of several diseases characterized by destruction of the myelin sheath of nerve fibre. Myelin is a fatty substance which surrounds the conducting nerve fibre and may be regarded as insulation and part of the conducting mechanism," Van Allen said Wednesday.

"At the present time there is no cure for MS. We don't even know the nature of the disease. Diagnosis is very difficult and comes after the patient has had a series of attacks.

"The patient usually first experiences a painless attack of MS on some part of the body. The attack is followed by several weeks of improvement and often a high degree of recovery.

"Then the patient has another attack of MS on a different part of the body with the resultant period of recovery. Each attack leaves scars on the nervous system and decreasing degrees of recovery," Van Allen said.

"The patient may suddenly have complete blindness in one eye — with a resultant injury to the optic nerve. Paralysis of a leg may leave a scar on the spinal cord. Severe dizziness may leave a scar on the balance mechanism of the ear. All of these attacks result in a weakened, scarred nervous system and abnormal functioning of the part of the body attacked," the doctor said.

"The hit and run tactics of MS make the disease extremely difficult to diagnose, and there are no tests which can be run on the patient to make diagnosis easy or more certain. Only after a period of time and a number of attacks can we be sure," Van Allen explained.

Deterioration in the mental facilities of an MS victim is common.

"The memory factor and the ability to concentrate are often affected in MS patients," Van Allen said.

He explained that attacks and recoveries were sporadic and variable, and the disability differed each time.

Control Affected

"The loss of emotional control leads the patient into depression and sometimes complete withdrawal from his environment as the disease progresses into its worst stages," Van Allen said.

Research on MS is currently concentrating on studies about the nature and properties of myelin.

"The theories advanced are based on the disease being caused by either a chronic virus in the body, an allergic reaction to infection, a form of dietary deficiency, or a sludging disorder in the blood," Van Allen said.

Journalism Research Bureau Receives $49,000 Grant

The School of Journalism's Mass Communications Research Bureau has received a $49,000 three-year grant from the Hill Family Foundation of St. Paul, Minn., said Richard W. Budd, bureau director, Wednesday.

Budd said that the grant was not for use in any specific area of study, but rather in several communication areas.

One of these areas to be studied is in the "gatekeeper" phase in the communications system.

Budd said that a gatekeeper controlled the flow of news to the public. A newspaper editor or broadcasting station manager would be considered a gatekeeper.

The bureau will study the gatekeeper's job from all behavioral standpoints.

Budd explained that "essentially the bureau will study how the gatekeeper interacts with the system, how he influences it, and how it influences him."

Another area of research will be the study of information diffusion. In this area Budd said, the way in which information is carried from the gatekeeper to the media of communication and on to the public will be studied.

Budd said that "through these studies the bureau hopes to develop some general communication strategies." He said he hoped that through this research the bureau could assist the individual mass communicator.

Budd said that the bureau was considering sponsoring a symposium before the research project started in September. Leading persons in communication would be invited to discuss the areas of research the bureau intends to study, Budd said.

Working with Budd are L. Erwin Atwood, assistant director of the bureau, and Malcolm S. MacLean, professor of journalism.

PGA Tourney Starts Today

JACK NICKLAUS, British Open winner, comes out of a sand trap during a practice round Wednesday at the Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio. Nicklaus is ranked as one of the favorites in the PGA championship starting today.

Nicklaus, Palmer Expected To Battle For Crown

AKRON, Ohio, (AP) — The golden anniversary Professional Golfers' Association championship begins today with a two-man battle shaping up again between musclemen Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer.

"The same guys have a way of coming to the top in the big ones," acknowledged defending champion Dave Marr, who doubts that he has enough muscle on his 160-pound frame for the monstrous Firestone Country Club course.

18 Ex-Champs Included
The field of 185 includes 18 former PGA champions and virtually every top-flight professional in the United States, plus such top foreigners as Gary Player of South Africa and Kel Nagel, Bruce Devlin and Bruce Crampton of Australia.

The meet starts at 6 a.m. EDT over the 7,180-yard, par-70 layout, which annually is the scene of the American Golf Classic and the World Series of Golf.

Palmer, the all-time leading money winner, is the advance favorite despite his nightmarish foldup in the U.S. Open last month in San Francisco. At the Open he dropped seven strokes to Bill Casper on the last nine holes of his final round and six on the final nine of the playoff.

Palmer Has Top Record
"No, it hasn't left any marks on me and I don't believe in jinxes," said a relaxed Palmer who has never won the PGA. "If I play well here, I have a chance. If I don't, I won't. It's as simple as that."

No one in the field has a better record on the Firestone course.

On the other hand, the burly Nicklaus, a 6-1 choice with Doug Sanders, Gay Brewer and Player, skied to a 79 and 80 in his final two rounds in the American Classic here a year ago.

Since then, however, Nicklaus has won a Master's and British Open and, by his own admission, whipped his game to its peak. "I've never hit the ball better," he said.

NFL's Sam Williams Retires

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Former Detroit Lions star defensive end Sam Williams says he has no contract squabble with the new Atlanta Falcons — because he has retired.

"I guess Atlanta does not believe that I have retired," Williams said Tuesday.

"Last week I was on a canoe trip with my 8-year-old son, and when I returned I saw a story from Atlanta saying that I was in a contract squabble and had refused to report to the training camp," Williams said.

"I didn't report because I have retired," he told Bob Hoener, sports editor of the Lansing State Journal.

Williams, 35, a one-time All-American for Michigan State, was drafted by the National Football League Atlanta team at the close of the 1965 season, after six seasons with the Lions.

"I realize I can't play football all my life," he said. "I'm 35 years old now, and it's time to put my family first."

White Sox Trade Freese To Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros, hurting for healthy infielders (four are on the injured list), purchased veteran third baseman Gene Freese Wednesday from the Chicago White Sox.

The Astros gave the White Sox an undisclosed amount of cash and minor league infielder Jim Mahoney. Mahoney has been with the Astros' Oklahoma City farm club and will report to the White Sox's farm club at Indianapolis.

Freese, 32, a veteran of 13 seasons in the major leagues, is primarily a third baseman but also has played second and first base and in the outfield.

He has played for the Philadelphia Phillies, the Pittsburgh Pirates, the St. Louis Cardinals, the Cincinnati Reds and the White Sox during his major league career.

Houston's injured infielders are Joe Morgan, Felix Mantilla, Bob Lillis and Julio Gotay.

Golf Tourney For Women Has 2 Upsets

BARRINGTON, Ill. (AP) — Former National Amateur champion Barbara McIntire and Curtis Cupper Carol Sorenson Flenniken were upset in the second match play round of the 66th women's Western Amateur Golf Tournament Wednesday.

Sharon Moran, 23, from Carlsbad, Calif., nipped Mrs. Flenniken 1-up on the 19th hole in one of two overtime matches as the field was trimmed to quarter-final size at Barrington Hills Country Club.

Miss McIntire, Colorado Springs, Colo., U.S. Amateur champ in 1964 and 1959, lost 1-up to Bobbie Jo Gabrielson, 19, daughter of the University of Georgia's retired swimming coach.

Barbara Fay Boddie, 26, Shreveport, La., continued her quest for a third successive Western title by rallying for a 2 and 1 triumph over Rhonda Glenn, 20, Palm Beach, Fla.

Baseball Roundup

Orioles 7, Tigers 5

BALTIMORE (AP) — Boog Powell's two-run homer climaxed a three-run rally in the fifth inning that sent American League leading Baltimore to a 10-7 victory over Detroit Wednesday night and extended the Orioles' margin to 10 1/2 games over the second-place Tigers.

The Orioles trailed 7-5 going into the fifth, but Frank Robinson doubled and scored on a single by Brooks Robinson, and Powell followed with his 22nd homer, a blast over the center field fence off starter Denny McLain.

The Orioles' belting of McLain added to the Tigers' pitching problems. Detroit has lost 14 of its last 20 games, the last five in a row. And in those five losses, Tiger pitchers have given up 53 runs.

The loss was McLain's sixth against 13 victories.

Twins 3, Senators 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Minnesota Twins made it three straight and 10 out of 12 for the season against Washington Wednesday night, beating the Senators 3-1 behind the six-hit pitching of Dave Boswell.

The Twins scored twice in the third inning off loser Mike McCormick on Zolo Versalles' lead-off double, an infield hit by Cesar Tovar, Don Blassingame's error on Tony Oliva's grounder, and Harmon Killebrew's run scoring single.

The Senators came back with a run on Jim King's single, a walk to Dick Phillips and Ed Brinkman's two-out single.

The Twins added a run in the sixth when Earl Battey was awarded third base when his slicing fly bounced into the stands in right. In the judgment of the umpires, Battey would have made third. He scored on Mincher's sacrifice fly.

Chisox 6, Indians 3

CLEVELAND (AP) — Don Buford hit a two-run homer and Jerry Adair drove in two more runs with a double as the Chicago White Sox defeated the Cleveland Indians 6-3 Wednesday night behind Joe Horlen, who gave up four hits before he gave way to Hoyt Wilhelm in the eighth.

A wild throw by Rocky Colavito allowed the White Sox to score their first run in the second.

Adair drove in two more runs with his double in the fourth and scored when Fred Whitfield muffed J.C. Martin's grounder.

Buford's seventh inning homer, scoring Horlen, who had walked, made it 6-1.

Horlen held the Indians hitless until the sixth when they scored a run. They added two more runs in the seventh, when they were helped by two Chicago errors.

Yankees 4, A's 0

NEW YORK (AP) — Mel Stottlemyre pitched a six-hitter as the New York Yankees blanked Kansas City 4-0 Wednesday night. The victory, New York's fifth in a row, enabled the Yankees to break their seventh-place tie with the Athletics.

Horace Clarke gave Stottlemyre all the runs he needed when he whacked a third inning homer with Clete Boyer on base.

Bosox 6-0, Angels 1-1

BOSTON (AP) — Bob Rodgers, the pinch single in the 10th inning delivered the only run of the game and Dean Chance, Minny Rojas and Jack Sanford combined to pitch a two-hitter as California edged Boston 1-0 in the second game of a two-night doubleheader Wednesday. The Red Sox won the opener 6-1.

Grid Coaches Busy In Summer Months

THE SUMMER MONTHS are a busy time for Ray Nagel, Iowa's new football coach. School may be out, but summer is far from being vacation time.

Some people still think a football coach works three months in the fall and then rests for nine months; but most fans realize that a big time football coach has a demanding year around job. Before the 1966 season officially begins with the game against Arizona, Nagel and his staff face a variety of tasks which will keep them busy constantly.

If there is one job which will dominate time it will be watching films. If anyone ever asked you what job takes up most of a coach's hours you could correctly guess sitting in a darkened room with a projector. For the better part of the summer, the Hawkeye coaches will be viewing films of the spring game and scout films.

There is no way to estimate how much time will be spent with the films, but when you realize that every player in the spring game will be graded for every play, you can get an idea of the time involved. Since 22 players are always on the field, each play must be viewed 22 times, and that is a minimum.

AND THEN WHEN THE COACHES get tired of looking at Iowa players, they can always change the film and look at films of the 10 opponents to be met in the 1966 season. Thorough reports must be made on the offense and defense of every opponent. These films will not lose their value until after next season's games.

Another area that can never be forgotten is recruiting. Next year's freshman class is already taken care of, with a few exceptions, but already Nagel is looking ahead. Boys who will be high school seniors in 1966 are being contacted now, either directly, or through their coaches. And of course films are being reviewed.

Film work and future recruiting would be enough work alone, but there is more to be done. Like many businessmen, the coaches are responsible for inventory. This includes checking every piece of equipment, from shoes and socks, to uniforms, to pads. This is a large order, and when it is completed there will be the further job of repairing equipment which is faulty yet capable of reconditioning.

CONTACT WITH THE PLAYERS is also an important part of the summer job. At different times throughout the summer each player is contacted. For example, each player is sent a grade for his spring game performance.

In mid-August the entire staff will return to the classroom as Nagel conducts a refresher class on wing-T football. Everyone must be sure what is going to be done, and every step of the Hawkeye's offense and defense will be studied in many hours of staff meetings.

As if all these items, and a few not mentioned, did not consume enough time, there are also the personal demands made on Nagel which have nothing to do with preparations for the 1966 football season. Because he is new to Iowa, there are many people who want to see him, hear him, and talk with him. The banquet circuit is a regular part of Nagel's summer itinerary.

Nagel belongs to Iowa now in a real way, and he is a regular visitor at I-Club meetings, with alumni groups, and at service clubs. It is all part of the job that a football coach accepts.

You accept speaking engagements by the dozen; you accept the intense pressure of Saturday afternoon's in the fall; you accept violent criticism and backstabbing if you are unsuccessful; you accept a fulltime job regardless of what some people think. And if you don't like movies. . . .

Mets 3, Giants 2

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ron Swoboda's leadoff homer in the 10th inning gave the New York Mets a 3-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants Wednesday.

Swoboda connected against reliever Bill Henry after the Giants rallied to tie the score in the ninth against winner Jack Fisher, and saved Juan Marichal from his first loss ever against the Mets.

Marichal had given up homers to Al Luplow and Roy McMillan and the Mets were leading 2-1 going into the ninth with Fisher working on a three-hitter.

Cards 6, Braves 3

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pitcher Ray Washburn and Mike Shannon each drove in two runs, leading the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves Tuesday night.

With the game tied 3-3 in the fifth inning, St. Louis' Orlando Cepeda singled with two out and went to second when left fielder Felipe Alou misplayed the ball. Shannon then singled for his third hit of the game, scoring Cepeda.

Mike de la Hoz belted a two-run homer for the Braves in the second inning.

Reds 5-5, Cubs 4-1

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim O'Toole pitched a five-hitter as Cincinnati beat the Chicago Cubs 5-1 in the second game completing a sweep of a double-header Wednesday. The Reds rallied for four runs in the ninth inning to win the first game 5-4.

The second game was called after seven innings because of darkness.

Jim Coker drove in two runs with a bases-loaded double in the seventh, wrapping up the second game for the Reds. Don Pavletich had homered in the fourth, snapping a 1-1 tie and the Reds had picked up another run in the fifth on Leo Cardenas' single, a walk to O'Toole and Dick Simpson's single.

The Reds overcame a 4-1 deficit to win the opener.

Cardenas singled for one run and Tommy Harper tripled for two more. The fourth run was the result of rookie left fielder Byron Browne's error.

The rally enabled Sammy Ellis to gain his sixth victory in 20 decisions. Outfielder Mel Queen, making his third appearance as a pitcher, worked the ninth and a n d w i c h e d three strikeouts around George Altman's pinch single.

U.S. Planes Lost In Viet Nam At Same Rate As Korean War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist anti-aircraft guns in Viet Nam are knocking down U.S. warplanes at a rate almost identical with that of the Korean War.

While the U.S. aircraft involved in the Viet Nam operations are vastly superior to those used in Korea, so are the enemy ground defenses.

Further, the air effort to impede the movement of Communist troops and supplies to the fighting front in Viet Nam, seems to be about as successful — or unsuccessful, depending on the viewpoint — as it was in the 1950-53 conflict.

During the first full year of air war over Viet Nam, north and south, the Defense Department reported, the United States lost 386 fixed wing aircraft — 286 of them over the north.

On three full years of war in Korea, the United States lost 1,109 aircraft to ground fire — 550 Air Force, 559 Navy and Marine. Of the total 652 were World War II propeller types. The annual loss rate was 369.

The figures come from the Pentagon's Office of Statistics.

There has been some confusion over the comparative loss rate, leading to reports that U.S. air losses over Viet Nam ran at 1.5 times the Korean rate. These apparently were based on a Pentagon figure of 816 aircraft lost to ground fire in Korea — a total based on estimates before records of all air units involved in Korea were studied in detail.

Air statisticians measure losses also against exposure to enemy fire — combat flights or sorties. The more exposure, the higher the expected losses.

In Korea, American planes flew about 420,000 sorties against ground targets, plus some 69,000 in air-to-air combat operations. In

Woman Does Finger Stand In Circus Act

A Spanish acrobat who loves America is a featured performer in the Clyde Brothers Shrine Circus, completing a two-day run in Iowa City with performances at 2:30 and 8:15 p.m. today.

Princess Elena Omar, calling herself a "balancing acrobat," is from Madrid, Spain, and she has appeared throughout Europe and South America. Her act features a one-fingered handstand, and she also plays a mandolin while standing on her head.

Princess Elena has been in America for six years, but in spite of an extensive background in European and South American circuses, the current season is her first time with an American circus.

A four-generation family circus tradition led Princess Elena to performing. She started at age seven after learning the act from her father.

Circus life in other countries is a stable one, with appearances in one place for two or three months, so she was able to get an education. She recalled Wednesday that she once attended a single school in Argentina for an entire year.

For five years in the U.S. she appeared primarily in hotels. She once appeared at the Jefferson in Iowa City, but most of her work has been in Chicago. She has appeared with stars such as Jackie Gleason, Frank Fontaine and Michael Landon.

Princess Elena, who travels with her husband, is enthusiastic about America. "I like it. The people enjoy everything. Sometime I might have children, and I want them born here."

She recalled her first performance in America. "We were in Chicago, and after I finished my act, there was so much applause I cried."

She said she liked to talk to children. "People come up and want to check my hand. They want to touch my finger. That's all they ask for. Children say I have a good finger."

Although the life of a circus performer is traditionally a hard one, she said she enjoyed it. She has her own car and trailer, but she admitted the traveling was the worst part.

The circus came to Iowa City from Des Moines and will move on to Davenport after a one-day stop in Keokuk.

She said the performers average only one day off a week, but she enjoyed a two-day break after the Des Moines appearance, which allowed her to go to Chicago.

Her future is indefinite. She said she wanted to return to Spain but that she wasn't sure whether it would be to live or just for a visit. As she put it, "The future of a performer you can never tell. When I go back I will tell everyone America is good for performers."

Being Young Is Going Out

NEW YORK (AP) — Why does anyone want to be young?

Youth is such a nuisance. It is fortunate that only young people have youth, as only they have the strength to bear up under its burdens.

There is a lot of hypocrisy in today's widespread worship of youth.

"You're in the best time of life," older people tell younger people.

And the young people believe it. They don't realize they're being kidded — by experts.

People don't appreciate how wonderful life can really be until they realize that middle age, far from being a penalty, has matchless benefits of its own. Why, it enables a man to get away with practically anything except murder.

What are some of the practical advantages of being middle-aged? Well, for example:

Your kinds are either well-grown or already flown, and if you and your wife want to go out for the evening you don't have to fawn at the whims of a teenage babysitter.

You can see your way clear to actually owning your own home. The mortgage on it is probably more than half paid.

You don't have to enlist in wars or play on the office softball team.

After giving you your 25-year pin the boss no longer calls you on the carpet so often, as he no longer has any particular desire to frighten you. He gets more of a thrill out of scaring the young whippersnappers.

You adopt a forgiving attitude toward your enemies because it takes too much energy to go on hating them.

Nothing ages anyone more than the death of his dreams. As you have survived the interment of most of your own foolish dreams, this vanity is behind you.

It no longer galls you so much to make necessary compromises in your daily living. You adjust to the fact that it is a physical impossibility for you to reform the whole world. You decide to let mankind stew in its own juices — and feel better for this decision.

You meet the girl you might have married, and are glad you didn't. The one you did marry may not be a beauty any more, but she's got her points. For one thing, no other girl her age can dish up a tastier casserole. Or clean snow off the driveway quicker.

Best of all, time has taught you and everyone else to accept your limitations. They don't expect you to be anyone else, or to do more than you can. And that's a blessed relief.

These are the advantages of middle age. Who'd trade such known and lasting joys for the pallid, passing, panicky pleasures of the snobbish young?

Katzenbach Is Opposed To Klan Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach said Wednesday that legislation aimed at alleged terrorism and violence by members of the Ku Klux Klan "might unnecessarily complicate prosecution of the perpetrators of such violence."

Katzenbach told the House Committee on Un-American Activities that "there are constitutional difficulties and problems" with some aspects of the legislation sponsored by Rep. Edwin E. Willis, (D-La.), the committee's chairman.

Despite Katzenbach's criticism, early approval is expected for the bill which Willis introduced after the committee's six-month investigation of Klan activities.

The attorney general and Willis disagreed whether a provision of the administration's civil rights bill, also aimed at terrorism, would be more effective than the anti-Klan legislation.

"The proof would be easier under the Civil Rights Act," Katzenbach told Willis.

"The element of proof is less under this bill than under the civil rights bill," the Louisiana Democrat replied.

Willis said several times that the bill is not exclusively an anti-Klan bill, and Katzenbach noted it could be applied also to the Cosa Nostra crime syndicate.

Referring to a provision aimed at persons who teach or advocate force to further the purpose of any clandestine organization, the attorney general said prosecution would involve proving the membership or agency in an organization plus showing a direct connection between advocacy and the act of violence.

"I think it's going to be difficult to prove the membership or agency in these particular situations," he said.

Katzenbach said he is opposed in general to broad authority such as the bill would give the attorney general to use injunctive procedures to deal with criminal acts.

Senate Group KO's Exchange

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee knocked out President Johnson's proposed Peace Corps exchange program Wednesday.

The program would have provided for foreign countries to send volunteers to the United States, principally for teaching of languages and foreign cultures.

But the committee, at a closed session, stripped the proposal — plus that for an expansion of the school-to-school program — from the Peace Corps.

The committee approved the Peace Corps request for an authorization for $12.15 million.

SERVICE RESTORED — Telephone service between Iowa City and Solon was restored Wednesday afternoon, after a construction crew accidentally cut the non-toll telephone cable linking the two communities.

Service during the break, which occurred early Wednesday morning, was limited to a cable carrying toll calls only.

Woman Does Finger Stand In Circus Act

A Spanish acrobat who loves America is a featured performer in the Clyde Brothers Shrine Circus, completing a two-day run in Iowa City with performances at 2:30 and 8:15 p.m. today.

Princess Elena Omar, calling herself a "balancing acrobat," is from Madrid, Spain, and she has appeared throughout Europe and South America. Her act features a one-fingered handstand, and she also plays a mandolin while standing on her head.

Princess Elena has been in America for six years, but in spite of an extensive background in European and South American circuses, the current season is her first time with an American circus.

A four-generation family circus tradition led Princess Elena to performing. She started at age seven after learning the act from her father.

Circus life in other countries is a stable one, with appearances in one place for two or three months, so she was able to get an education. She recalled Wednesday that she once attended a single school in Argentina for an entire year.

For five years in the U.S. she appeared primarily in hotels. She once appeared at the Jefferson in Iowa City, but most of her work has been in Chicago. She has appeared with stars such as Jackie Gleason, Frank Fontaine and Michael Landon.

Princess Elena, who travels with her husband, is enthusiastic about America. "I like it. The people enjoy everything. Sometime I might have children, and I want them born here."

She recalled her first performance in America. "We were in Chicago, and after I finished my act, there was so much applause I cried."

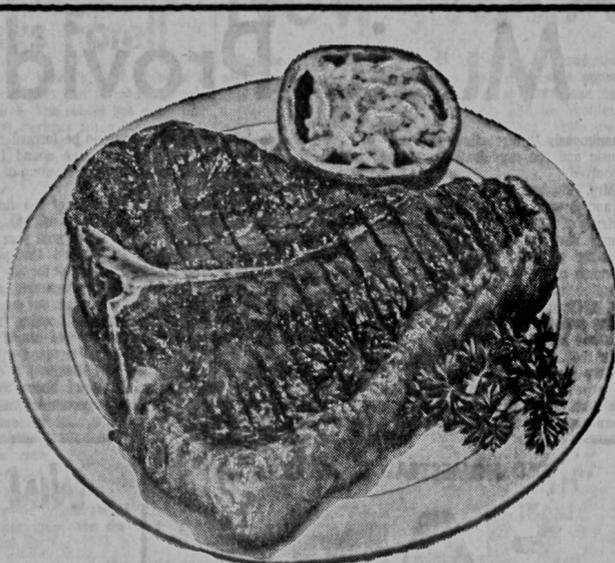

She said she liked to talk to children. "People come up and want to check my hand. They want to touch my finger. That's all they ask for. Children say I have a good finger."

Although the life of a circus performer is traditionally a hard one, she said she enjoyed it. She has her own car and trailer, but she admitted the traveling was the worst part.

The circus came to Iowa City from Des Moines and will move on to Davenport after a one-day stop in Keokuk.

She said the performers average only one day off a week, but she enjoyed a two-day break after the Des Moines appearance, which allowed her to go to Chicago.

Her future is indefinite. She said she wanted to return to Spain but that she wasn't sure whether it would be to live or just for a visit. As she put it, "The future of a performer you can never tell. When I go back I will tell everyone America is good for performers."

Friends Of Music Provide Concert Series

By GAIL LONGANECKER
Staff Writer

Hard work and the determination to serve a community's needs were the basis for founding Friends of Music, Inc. That spirit still exists.

Friends of Music is a non-profit, privately-supported, local organization that provides Iowa City with an annual concert series of internationally known soloists and ensembles.

Following the tradition of the "Gesellschaft der Musikfreunde," which was founded in Vienna in 1813 to sponsor concerts, many such independent groups throughout the world have used the name Friends of Music in designating their purpose.

Friends of Music is an outgrowth of an Iowa City music group which was a member of Civic Music Association, a national organization, for more than a decade.

On March 26, 1962, the Iowa City organization severed its connection with the national organization. The minutes of a meeting on March 29, 1962, state, "With a decline in membership and with fewer people willing to work for the organization, the Board at its meeting March 26, voted unanimously to discontinue Civic Music and the organization was dissolved."

Mrs. Gustav Bergmann, 124 Grand Avenue Ct., secretary of Friends of Music, pointed out recently that block booking, the inability to announce artists in advance and the sale of season memberships brought the downfall of Civic Music.

She explained, "The problems of Civic Music due to rising artists' fees, restrictive policies and a drop in membership continued to grow. We could no longer maintain ourselves financially on memberships alone. To make a new group be formed and that it be put on a sound financial basis through a system of guarantors.

"At the end of the first year we only had to ask the guarantors for $5. The next year it went down to $3, and last year we didn't have to ask for any money. This new arrangement also allowed us to select our own artists without block booking and allowed the sale of single admissions," Mrs. Bergmann explained.

"We now maintain a constant membership of about 500. This core is the economic base of the organization, but we can't support ourselves on that alone. It's the sales at each concert that permit us to operate on the level we do."

New policies adopted by Friends of Music to insure a stable financial base were the patron system and sustaining members, proposed by Dr. Richard Caplan, associate professor of dermatology and president of the organization.

"We wanted to have the business community behind us. We feel that many industries choose Iowa City because it has cultural advantages for employees. Therefore, in some respects it is to their advantage to support us," Mrs. Bergmann said.

Patrons contribute $50 or more and receive a complimentary pass for bearer and guests. Sustaining members contribute $25 or more and receive two season memberships. The guarantors agree to contribute up to $15, billed pro-rata, in the event of a deficit. All contributions are tax deductible.

Another policy adopted by Friends of Music was left from Civic Music days.

"Because of our limited budget we had to shop around very carefully for artists. We found that booking good, young artists whose reputations were not widely established and whose fees were low was to our advantage," Mrs. Bergmann explained.

She added, "They not only gave us brilliant performances, but we helped them in their careers. As this or that artist's reputation rose, we often proudly said that we had him in our series before anyone knew him."

Friends of Music often presents new artists. Nearly every season they also present a European group which often is touring America for the first time.

Economic Growth Not Down, But Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Much of the talk these days is about the economy turning down. But most of the key statistics show the economy is still climbing to new highs.

The economy was booming ahead at a rapid rate in the first three months of this year, and it is now advancing at a more normal pace and responding in a more healthy fashion to seasonal factors. With few exceptions, the key segments in the economy have not turned down or even leveled off.

And the exceptions, such as auto sales, housing starts and new orders for durable goods, have exceptional circumstances of their own.

Car sales are lower at the moment than a year ago when they were at a record high. But no one can be sure whether that means that consumers are tightening up on spending or are influenced by all the talk about auto safety.

Although Americans were buying fewer cars in April, May and June, total consumer spending for the period grew by $3.3 billion to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $48.9 billion. You can view this with alarm because the gain was less than the $1.4 billion advance in the first quarter of the year, or you can hail the more normal rate of advance and the new high it set.

Housing starts have had periodic sinking spells for two years now. At the moment a new uncertainty — tight money in the mortgage fund field — is complicating the picture. And tight money stems from the inflationary boom of the first three months of 1966 — both because of official efforts to tighten credit and of still booming demand for loans in many fields.

New factory orders for durable goods — watched as a guide to future output — in June came to a seasonally adjusted $24.1 billion. This was $100 million below the May and April totals. But the June orders were $2.8 billion higher than a year ago. And a "large increase in bookings for defense products" is reported by the Commerce Department.

The backlog of durable goods orders actually rose by $1.2 billion to a total of $70.7 billion at the end of June, or $13.2 billion more than a year ago. Factories apparently still have lots of orders to keep them busy.

Worriers about the economy like to point to a slowdown in the advance of the Gross National Product. Actually, this measure of the total output of goods and services is still rising. In the second quarter it hit a new high, a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $73.2 billion.

Spaziani Given Research Grant

Eugene Spaziani, associate professor of zoology, has been given a three-year research grant of $88,228 by the U.S. Public Health Service, National Institute of Child Health and Human Development.

The grant, which began June 1, will cover a project studying mechanisms of hormone action in reproductive organs.

The work concerns the hormones secreted by the testis and ovary which maintain in a functional state such organs as the seminal vesicles of the male and the vagina of the female, Spaziani said Tuesday.

"The purpose of this project," Spaziani explained, "is to find the underlying basis of the action of hormones at the cellular level in the reproductive tract."

Spaziani pointed out that anything that might help explain how the process is regulated would be helpful.

Spaziani said that the work would be carried out exclusively on laboratory mammals, particularly the rat.

Machine Gunner Nabbed By Cops

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Patrolman Charles Deery walked up behind a man who was holding several people at bay in a downtown garage with a submachine gun recently and said, "What are you doing with that thing?"

"I'm just trying to scare people," was the reply from Richard Belfatti, 30, police said.

The gun was not loaded and its barrel had been plugged. Belfatti was jailed on a charge of illegal possession of a machine gun.

Religion Program Here 'Unique,' Says Forell

The great difference between the University's School of Religion and programs of religious education elsewhere is the organic unity of the school with the University, George W. Forell, director of the School of Religion, said Wednesday.

Forell said most religious courses in other universities have been offered in affiliation with other departments such as English or philosophy and that it was difficult to compare them with the "unique operation" at the University.

Forell commented that it should be noted that the school was not a seminary and did not offer a bachelor of divinity degree.

The school's graduate program is the only one in an American state university leading to a doctorate in religion. A unique feature of the program is that every student, whatever his religious background, is required to become familiar with the history of Judaism, Catholicism, Protestantism and other non-Western religions.

Corn Insect Dusts Still Have 'Bugs'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Agriculture says it can keep the insects out of stored corn, but there are plenty of bugs in the process.

The department has announced that four chemically inert dusts protected stored corn from 8 to 12 months. The dusts were tested on corn stored in Illinois and Georgia.

But, said the department, "some undesirable features may limit their (the dusts) commercial use."

Tests showed the dusts compacted the grain, making it difficult to handle, workers had to wear masks to protect their eyes and noses and floating dust clogged elevator motors.

New NDEA Funds Praised

The recent Administration proposal to provide an additional $30 million for National Defense Education Act (NDEA) student loans "looks sound," John E. Moore, student financial aid director, said Wednesday.

Moore said that the proposal, presented to the Senate Education Subcommittee July 12 by Commissioner of Education Harold Howe II, was a way that the Office of Education was willing to help students who needed money.

According to Howe, the money is needed because approved requests for NDEA loan funds from colleges and universities totaled $213.5 million, while the authorized loan limit was $190 million.

Under the proposed plan, the additional $30 million would be appropriated for loans to educational institutions. Institutions obtaining a loan would be relieved of their present obligation to provide one-ninth matching funds, but would still be liable for 10 per cent of any collection loss.

Moore said that the proposal was an apparent effort by the Administration to get around providing extra funds to meet NDEA student loans.

The proposed system, called a revolving loan system, does not make Congress fund the NDEA student loan program as much as Congress had said it would, Moore said.

The proposal has the approval of the American Council on Education (ACE). In a recent report, the ACE said that colleges and universities would be able to receive a greater proportion of their requested student loans. The University has received 61.9 per cent of its requests for student loans for fiscal 1967, the report said.
