

Council Advised On Temporary Relocations

By JIM KIPP
Staff Writer

A new concept of temporary relocation that may be attempted in Iowa City could launch a trend across the nation in central business district (CBD) urban renewal projects.

"We think the Federal Government will be receptive to our relocation ideas," Barry D. Lundberg, director of planning and urban renewal told Iowa City councilmen at an informal meeting Tuesday night at the Civic Center.

Lundberg said his department had contacted a local steel construction firm about formulating plans for temporary structures, but he said the firm was not interested.

Company Interested
The Butler Steel Company, Milan, Ill. was interested in working with us on what could be an experimental program, he said.

Lundberg described the plan that had been prepared, whereby the firm would erect a temporary building, rent it, and after it was no longer needed, sell it for removal to some other site.

It was emphasized that the city had not entered into any type of contract with Butler, nor had any obligation to do so, if the concept were adopted.

Lundberg said the structures would not resemble Quonset huts as had been rumored among businessmen.

Buildings Heated
The buildings would be of steel structure, fully insulated, and could be more than adequately heated or air-conditioned, he explained. The roof and interior would be white, but the outside four-foot square panels could of any color or combination of colors.

The choice of colors and the amount of window space would be left to the businessman that would occupy the building, Lundberg continued.

In many cases, he said, a businessman would gain more floor space in the temporary structure than he presently has.

Rent Charged
Butler said an average of $3.75 per sq. yd. a year for use of the temporary structures would have to be charged. Lundberg said the cost was averaged on a four year basis with $4 charged the first year, $3.50 the second and third years, and $3 the fourth year.

The relocated businessman would be asked to pay rent of $1.75 per sq. ft. a year, or, on the average, about one-half of what he would now be paying in the CBD, Lundberg said.

Preliminary plans call for 97 of the maximum 222 businesses within the project boundaries to be temporarily relocated, he said.

Business Moves
This would mean that a business would have to move twice, he explained, first to a temporary site and then to a permanent location, once it was ready for occupancy.

"We would hope that the temporary move would be only for a year, however, some moves involve longer periods," he said.

The relocation plan is based on a four-stage, four-year period, Lundberg said.

Excluded from the list of businesses to be temporarily relocated were those that would involve extensive plumbing fixtures, he said. These would include such places as bars, restaurants, and barber shops.

Grant Pursued
The city will pursue a demonstration grant for the concept, Lundberg said. If the government were receptive to the plan, he continued, it would underwrite the complete cost of the experimental program.

Lundberg said that current plans provided for four sites in the CBD for the location of the temporary structures. The four — all parking lot sites — include the Dubuque Street lot, the southeast corner of the College Street lot, the Washington Street lot, and the Loyal Order of Moose lot at Clinton and East College Streets.

The estimated cost of the entire relocation phase, including families and individuals, was placed at more than $825,000, all of which Lundberg said would be reimbursed by the Federal government.

Nobody Forced
Lundberg said that no businessman would be forced to accept a relocation site.

David J. Markusse, assistant director of planning and urban renewal, told the councilmen that the relocation of businesses would involve three methods: relocation to existing vacant buildings in the CBD, encouragement of new construction on vacant sites in the CBD, and relocation to commercially zoned areas not now commercially used for businesses that have no real need for being in the CBD.

Businesses Reimbursed
Lundberg emphasized that those businesses that were temporarily relocated would be reimbursed twice the amount provided for businesses that would only move once.

The council was told that the completed urban renewal plan would be presented early in September, and that documented plans would be available to the general public.

Two public hearings will be scheduled, Lundberg said. One will be in September prior to submitting the final plan to the Federal government, and one in January before the council would make its all-important decision to either accept or reject the urban renewal plan for the CBD.

All-Star Scrimmage
The College All-Stars, preparing for their game with the Green Bay Packers Aug. 5, lost a game-type scrimmage Wednesday, 34-20, to the Chicago Bears. See story on Page 4.

Senate Okays Military Aid After Big Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate cut $100 million from President Johnson's $892 million military foreign aid program Wednesday and then passed it.

Before wrapping up its work on the measure, the Senate beat back efforts to make a deeper slash in the program — $250 million — and to require President Johnson to dip into the defense appropriation to pay for the military-aid spending.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and thus nominal manager of the bill on the floor, voted against the military-aid authorization on the final passage.

The measure was approved 82 to 7 after a day of debate that began with Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana stressing the senators' concern with the size and cost of the U.S. troop force in Europe and urging a cutback.

Underscoring the obvious Senate mood to cut back on aid spending were the votes cast for the reduction by two of the committee chairmen most involved in the program — Fulbright of Foreign Relations and Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), of Armed Services.

The action on the military-aid program came a day after the Senate had completed action on the economic-aid program, cutting it to a total of $409 million below President Johnson's $2.47 billion request.

The 82-7 roll-call vote sent the military-aid authorization for the fiscal year, which began July 1, to a Senate-House conference along with the economic aid measure.

Judging from past performances, the final result will be a compromise softening some of the buffeting given the program by the Senate.

Premier Ky Says Long War Is Alternative To Invasion

SAIGON (AP) — While U.S. jets hammered again Wednesday at North Viet Nam, Premier Nguyen Coa Ky suggested patient acceptance of a long war was the only alternative to an invasion above the 17th Parallel.

"We have the patience, but can we say the same thing of our allies?" Ky asked. "Are they ready to help us for five to ten years? If not, we must destroy the Communists in their lair."

Evidently referring to Washington critics, the premier said he was saddened by the reaction to his previous proposals for an invasion in comparison to the reception of statements by Ho Chi Minh, who had sent thousands of North Vietnamese regulars into South Viet Nam, that the north was prepared to fight for 20 years.

"People go and plead with him and ask him to stop," Ky said. "But when I say we should invade the north, people call me names and say I am bloodthirsty. This is an injustice done by free men to free men and it makes me sad."

The premier addressed a news conference amid these developments in a war in which the United States has pursued limited objectives as South Viet Nam's major ally for more than four years.

Accidents Injure Two City Youths

Two Iowa City youths were injured Wednesday night in traffic accidents.

Thomas Frantz, 8, 935 Southlawn Dr., was listed in good condition at Mercy Hospital Wednesday night with a fractured leg that he suffered when he was struck by a tractor while riding his bicycle. Police charged James A. Swartzendruber, B4, Kalona, operator of the tractor, with driving while his view was obstructed.

Pat H. Grantham, 18, 1430 Oaklawn Ave., was treated and released at University Hospitals after the motorcycle he was riding collided with a car on South Riverside Drive. Harve J. Carner, 43, 418 Johnson St., was the driver of the car, which was pulling out of a private drive. No charges were filed.

Airline Talks To Resume; Senate Action Postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department announced Wednesday night the resumption of talks in the 20-day airlines strike while a Senate committee mulls proposed emergency legislation to halt the walkout.

A spokesman said Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz had called negotiations for the five strike-bound airlines and the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists to resume negotiations at 10 a.m. Thursday.

The Labor Department declined to say whether Wirtz had any new hope of breaking the deadlock.

Group Sends More People To Waterloo

The Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) decided to continue sending people to work with the Waterloo Negroes at the SNCC meeting here Tuesday night.

Larry Wright, A3, Chicago, said that two groups of about five SNCC members each had gone to Waterloo in the past three weeks. They attended community meetings there and talked to various people in an attempt to aid Waterloo civil rights leaders in obtaining more rights for Negroes.

According to Wright, the group going to Waterloo last weekend participated in the picketing of a hotel which Mrs. Anna Mae Weems' supporters believed to be paying bad wages.

When asked about the current climate of civil rights action there, Wright said "people are now ready to do something about their other problems after they got stirred up."

Housing Compromise Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — House debate and backstage lobbying both concentrated Wednesday on a compromise open housing provision in the administration's civil rights bill.

While speakers alternated in praise and criticism of the proposal, civil rights leaders prowled the halls outside the chamber seeking votes to hold it in the bill as now written.

The fight to retain the provision, which shapes up as the big battle in prospect on the bill, was not likely to come before early next week.

The struggle is being complicated by the bill's managers by their belief that a clarifying amendment is needed to make sure it does what it is meant to do: exempt individual homeowners from any proposed ban on racial discrimination in the sale or rental of their property.

The provision has been interpreted by many, including Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach, as exempting owners only if they sell or rent their property themselves, without using a real estate agent.

Rep Charles M. Mathias Jr. (R-Md.) author of the provision, told the House he would offer an amendment to make his intent clear.

The provision, he said, is aimed at prohibiting discrimination by those "in the business of housing," while exempting the occasional sale by an owner of an individual home. There was no intent, he said, to deny such an exempt owner the use of a real estate agent in carrying out his transaction.

But civil rights leaders, who read the language in its narrower sense, are opposing the clarifying amendment. Roy Wilkins, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, headed a contingent of lobbyists who urged members Wednesday to vote against the proposed amendment.

Wilson Wins On Austerity

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson beat down an opposition onslaught on his policy of economic austerity in the House of Commons Wednesday night.

An opposition motion of no confidence in the government's handling of economic affairs was defeated, 325 to 246, a government majority of 79.

Defending his policy, which aims at cutting spending by $2 billion, Wilson told Commons that the recent run on sterling was partly due to the pound taking some of the brunt of an attack on the American dollar.

Wilson also hinted at another major cause during a defense of the Labor government's economic policies in the House of Commons.

Importers throughout the sterling area — made up of chiefly Commonwealth lands, which peg their currencies to the pound — sped payments for their goods because they feared an imminent devaluation, he said.

This would have saved them money if the pound had been devalued from its official parity level of $2.80.

Britain serves as banker to the sterling area. Cost to Britain's reserves of a one-week speedup of the whole area's import payments, Wilson estimated, is $420 million.

The explanation did not impress Reginald Maudling, speaking for an opposition Conservative motion censuring Wilson's men on charges of mismanagement of the nation's finances. Maudling attributed the trouble to a collapse of confidence in the Labor government.

Thieves Market To Be Saturday

Student art works ranging from ceramic pieces and blown glass to oil paintings and prints will be offered for sale at the annual summer Thieves Market Saturday from 1 to 5 p.m. in the Union Terrace Lounge.

Sponsored by Union Board to encourage creative activity by students, Thieves Market will be open to the public, with the artists on hand to show and sell their works.

$13 Million Awarded To University Research This Year

By RON FROELICH
Staff Writer

This year the University had more than $13 million available for research and advanced study.

Duane Spriestersbach, vice president for research and dean of the graduate college, said recently that research and creative work in all academic areas at the University were integral parts of the overall educational program.

He added that the administration was preparing to submit a plan to the Board of Regents calling for the most extensive building and expansion plan in the University's history.

Facilities Considered
Adequate facilities for research and advanced study are always considered a care fully when the University administration submits expansion plans, Spriestersbach said. Buildings and additions are constructed to serve undergraduate instructional needs as well as provide areas for research and advanced study.

He said the University, like almost all the educational institutions throughout the country, did not have sufficient space and equipment available for as much research work as it would like to do. He added, however, that the University, in comparison with other schools of similar size, ranked very high in research and advanced study.

The University ranks sixth in the dollar volume of research funds available for each full-time faculty member. The University was ranked with the 11 institutions that belong to the Committee on Institutional Cooperation (CIC). The CIC is made up of the Big 10 schools and the University of Chicago.

Problems Listed
A magazine article in Industrial Review recently surveyed 164 colleges and universities and found that they averaged an $11,333,563 disbursement for research in 1966.

Lack of adequate research space and equipment, difficulty in finding qualified research manpower, and insufficient funding were the most serious problems listed by the schools.

The article also reported that research and development expenditures this year would total nearly $1.9 billion. The largest share, $321 million, would go to the physical sciences; medical science would get $282 million; engineering, $215 million; biological sciences, $173 million; agricultural sciences, $173 million; social sciences, $116 million; and other, $112 million.

Nationally, Federal funds would account for 68.1 per cent of the available $1.9 billion; 17.3 per cent of the total would come from institutional funds; and the remaining 14.6 per cent from alumni funds, foundation grants and gifts.

Expenditures Differ
Research expenditures at the University differed from the national pattern in several ways. Federal sources provide 50 per cent of the University's research funds, 18 per cent less than the national average.

Spriestersbach said the difference was because of the manner in which the national average percentage was computed.

Many of the 164 institutions surveyed were private institutions and thus received a higher percentage of research funds from the federal government, Spriestersbach said. The University, because it is a state institution, receives less federal aid.

Another deviation from the national average was that the University disbursed more than 21 per cent of its research funds this year to the humanities and social sciences, compared to the national average disbursement of six per cent.

Spriestersbach said the University had a tradition of producing many highly-skilled graduates in the humanities and social sciences. He said the University's strength in this area, and the fact that it had not developed strength in other areas, accounted for the high percentage.

He noted that the University allotted almost no research funds to agriculture, although such institutions as Michigan State University used several million dollars from its research fund for agricultural research.

The University expects to increase its research funds by about 15 per cent next year, Spriestersbach said, however, because of recent cutbacks in Federal spending, it is difficult at this date to determine accurately how much research money will be available.

THE STOCK MARKET rebounded Wednesday in moderate trading after seven straight sessions of decline. Volume was 6.08 billion shares compared with 7.61 billion Tuesday. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 4.06 to 856.23. Analysts said that the market had been able to rally simply because it had been battered down to new lows for the year.

LUCY JOHNSON'S bridal dress was described Wednesday by Women's Wear Daily as a "traditional white lace with long sleeves, a high neckline, a little bow to mark the natural waistline, and a face-framing Spanish Mantilla ending in a sweeping train." What the President's daughter is to wear in her Aug. 6 wedding to Patrick Nugent had been top-secret.

ARKANSAS SEGREGATIONIST Jim Johnson will face Frank Holt in a runoff battle Aug. 9 for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Johnson led the ticket in Wednesday's election with 102,024 votes in the seven-man field. The runoff winner will meet Republican Winthrop Rockefeller, who grossed only 16,871 votes, in the Nov. 8 general election.

ERNEST GALLASHAW, 17, was arrested Wednesday and charged with the sniper slaying of an 11-year-old boy during last week's racial rioting in Brooklyn. The fatal shot was said to have been aimed at a policeman.

Some friend

PRIME MINISTER NGUYEN CAO KY has taken on the characteristics of a small-fry kid looking for the town bully, but does so only with the reservation that his big brother will come along to do most of the fighting.

Ky wants to have an allied invasion of North Viet Nam and does not seem to worry about the possibility of a serious confrontation with Red China.

One shortcoming of Ky's proposal is that the United States would end up spilling most of the blood in such an invasion. The South Vietnamese army has never been able to accomplish anything with success except admit to an alarmingly high desertion rate and a few successful coups in South Viet Nam. The role of the South Vietnamese army has more recently been that of a behind-the-lines security force. U. S. forces have been involved in virtually all the recent large encounters with the enemy.

And anyone who can pass off a possible war with Red China with such candor should have his head examined. Not only would there be a good chance of a general land war in all Southeast Asia, but also there would be the possible realignment of Russian with China in a battle to the end against the West. The only way the United States could match the limitless manpower of China would be to deploy atomic power. The Sino-Soviet split is not so complete that Russia would not aid China in such an event.

Some battles cannot be decided militarily. The real problems are political and economic and this is where any escalation of the war should take place.

Ky's syndrome has been shared among others. Nationalist Chinese President Chiang Kai-shek and South Korean President Syngman Rhee have moved air in the past with talk about invading Red China and North Korea respectively. Fortunately the United States has recognized the irrationality of such acts, and has accepted such gestures as mere symbols of friendship.

But with friends like that, who needs enemies?

Myopia

AFTER ALL THE TIME AND EFFORT that Iowa City has spent on the question of urban renewal, it is beginning to look as though it may someday be a reality.

The city has spent a lot of time and money researching the issue, and in the meantime, the slum-like buildings in our central business district kept decaying, making urban renewal all the more necessary.

Those who have been so actively opposed to urban renewal are displaying a nearsightedness caused by their present prosperity, that hinders the prosperity of the city as a whole. While taking good care of themselves, they have been allowing the rest of the city to rot.

This myopic condition, which apparently has affected many Iowa Citians for many years, has turned what ought to be a tree-lined boulevard along Iowa Avenue into an ugly row of parking meters. It has made what could be a major, progressive shopping area in Eastern Iowa an area filled with cheap looking false fronts over the walls of crumbling 19th Century buildings. It has wasted areas that could be put to use, and it has jumbled and slowed traffic on our wide streets.

It is most important that Iowa Citians are made to realize that we can no longer hold the city together with scotch tape, and that urban renewal must be made into a reality before the whole town crumbles.

Our city's patches have stunted her growth long enough.

Minister fights own poverty war

PHILADELPHIA — The fountain of funds is still in Washington, but community leaders trying to erase economic and cultural poverty are finding a fountain of inspiration in Philadelphia.

The lure is this city's Opportunities Industrialization Center, created only two years ago by a Negro minister who got tired of waiting "for others to train our own people." He decided it was time for Negroes to lift themselves out of economic despair.

Today, the Rev. Leon H. Sullivan's do-it-yourself, up-by-the-bootstraps war on ignorance and poverty is being emulated throughout the country.

Fledgling centers are already operating in Little Rock, Ark.; the riot-scarred Watts section of Los Angeles; Harrisburg and Bristol, Pa.; Boston; New Haven, Conn.; and East Palo Alto, Calif.

Still others are in various stages of development in 33 other communities.

To help them take wing, the original Philadelphia center is setting up a national institute in the basement offices of Sullivan's Zion Baptist church, with a federal grant of $335,930, from the Office of Economic Opportunity and the Labor Department.

Sullivan insists that despite government funds and Philadelphia guidance, each new center must be home-grown.

"The focus must always be placed in the leadership of the community, on a nonpolitical basis," he says. "One of the things that could destroy the program would be if the government were to take it over."

Reader praises 'Wanderings'

To The Editor:

An Open Letter To Sue Rickle: I am not a very avid fan of "humorous" newspaper columns, and I confess that most of what passes for wit on the pages of the Daily Iowan seems labored and juvenile to me. But your column is an exception. It has bite, brevity, and insight; I think your eye for character is very good, and I find your observations of the social scene funny and perceptive.

It must be disappointing to you when readers like Miss Young and Miss Vaughan miss the point of Weekend Wanderings so completely as to confuse it with news reporting. I can't help smiling, though, at how hot and bothered they got at the "news" of an "interracial love orgy." Like Inky, they are probably gullible to most of the fantasies of Modene's crowd. And like Modene, they are no doubt dying to be "making it with the Establishment." Why so little sense of humor, so much pretentiousness, otherwise?

To help the girls catch on, why not write a Wanderings in which a couple of self-appointed moral arbiters set out to clarify the "many questions which must necessarily arise in the minds of many Daily Iowan readers"? That should strike close enough to home.

Article gives false impression

To The Editor:

In regard to the article, "Motorbike Deaths Climb," in the July 26 issue of The Daily Iowan, we feel that elucidation of the statistics is in order. It was stated that in 1961 there were 700 fatalities among cyclists as compared to 1,100 fatalities in 1964. The article then said that this was a 60 per cent increase. Later the article cited statistics concerning the number of registered cycles in these same years — 596,000 in 1961 and 985,000 in 1964. But, the article failed to point out that this is a 65 per cent increase in the number of cycles. When used together, these statistics represent a 4 per cent decrease in the number of fatal accidents per cyclist.

In our opinion, this article may have left the wrong impression. To be complete, it should have fully evaluated the statistics given.

City Hall: labor's newest target

NEW YORK — In the first six months of this year, unions hit the nation's city halls — labor's newest target — with at least 30 strikes. More are certain to follow.

Nearly two-thirds of the strikes were by teachers, and the rest involved welfare workers, firemen, policemen, doctors, nurses, hospital attendants, transit workers, and garbage collectors.

Last-minute settlements averted strikes in some cities, and another score of labor disputes are still in contention.

The scramble to organize the eight million employees of the state, counties and municipalities has made it the fastest growing area of union activity. Union membership in the past two years has grown to more than 536,000.

The new militancy has put the unions on collision course with public officials, mindful of near inflexible budgets and the anguished cries of taxpayers. The inexperience of public officials in facing unions across the bargaining table also has made for rough going at times.

In Atlanta, Ga., where 500 firemen walked out for three days in early June in a demand for higher wages and a shorter work week, Mayor Ivan Allen Jr. said: "This apparently is going to be a summer of discontent in the union field."

In Lansing, Mich., earlier this week, some 250 unionized city employees went out on strike, accusing the city of unethical labor practices. The workers, employed by the city's civic center, public service, parks and recreation and traffic departments, had won the right last year to be represented by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO.

City employees in Dayton, Ohio, walked out Tuesday in defiance of a court order prohibiting the strike. Members of the union returned to work Wednesday after the city council promised to reopen contract negotiations and to ignore state and city laws penalizing public employees who strike.

Some employees in Duluth, Minn., started a sit-down strike earlier this week in a wage dispute with the city council. Talks were going on between union and city officials and the state labor conciliator.

Unions representing 66,000 New York City employees, including policemen, firemen and sanitation workers, are bargaining for new contracts. They want wage increases as big as those won by the transit workers in the 12-day bus and subway strike in January.

Union leaders say they are unimpressed by the city's fiscal troubles. There has been talk of a strike by the sanitation workers.

What does a union offer a public employe that civil service doesn't?

Unions Offer More

"There is a strong feeling on the part of employes that they've got to have something to say about wages and working conditions, and civil service has not given it to them," said Robert Hastings, assistant to the president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, largest of the three national unions in the field.

"In Pennsylvania, in this day and age, every time there is a change of political parties there is a change in 13,000 jobs," he said.

Just a few years ago union activity by public employes, much less a strike, would have brought an outburst of indignation from politicians. Calvin Coolidge, when he put down the 1916 Boston police strike, said: "There is no right to strike against the public safety by anybody, anytime, anywhere."

SDS member criticizes tactics of group's leaders

To The Editor:

Last week, the local campus chapter of Students for a Democratic Society met and rejected a proposal, originally formulated by Bettina Aptheker, calling for a national Student Strike for Peace. The date for this demonstration was tentatively set for the coming November 4th, a few days prior to the date set for the national off-year elections. The strike as presently conceived is aimed, of course, at protesting the continuation of the war in Vietnam and, hopefully, to influence those elections. As a dues-paying and card-carrying member of SDS, I consider the local club's rejection of this proposal a serious error and a tactical blunder; this decision deserves to be rescinded on the local level here, and I hope it will be overturned at the next — hopefully open and publicized — meeting.

Although the argument (and rejection) in SDS here dealt with the question of the strike mostly in the form of a discussion over a technicality — as to whether SDS's National Secretary should be a sponsor of the call for the strike — the formal rejection of sponsorship was in fact a rejection of the proposed strike. And this is true in spite of Harry MacCormack's rather absurd attempt, in a subsequent letter to The Daily Iowan last Saturday, to prove the opposite.

Like one of the "leadership" at the meeting said, "Another demonstration would just be a drag." (Rather obviously, that remark wasn't merely a rejection of the technical point under discussion, but a rejection of the whole idea of a strike.) This appears very obvious, and one wonders why such great pains were taken to conceal it. Which gives one some insight into the way the local chapter of SDS operates.

SDS usually supports such actions as the proposed strike, although perhaps maintaining some objections or disagreements with them. Why, then, if there seemed a chance that this traditional attitude were to be revamped in a diametrically opposite direction, was there absolutely no indication in the advance publicity for the above-mentioned meeting that such a turn-about was to be considered or even that such a proposal was to be debated? The number of people who attended the meeting, I understand, was quite small. At the time of that meeting I had not even heard of Miss Aptheker's proposed student strike, and I doubt whether many of those who attended — or, like myself, stayed away — knew of it either. Or that what was generally considered a fundamental position of SDS was to undergo a reorientation of about 90 degrees to the right.

Since the most recent issue of New Left Notes, SDS's internal bulletin, carrying for the first time the text of the strike call and the National Committee's discussion of it, did not arrive in the mail until the Tuesday after the meeting, it was impossible to study the call itself and make one's own evaluation of it. It is quite hard to do an adequate amount of study under the pressure of a meeting. Since this necessary material was not available to the rank-and-file of the membership, one reasonably may deduce, then, that the majority of the people in town who had advance knowledge of the text and the National Committee's position on it, with time to consider it and plan their strategy, were the very ones who controlled the vote rejection. Sections of MacCormack's letter were little more than rewritings of some of the National Committee's objections — several days before that information was available to the membership.

With such circumstances prevailing in the local chapter, it is absurd to think there can be a viable and effective debate over anything — especially so when that discussion concerns a fundamental clash of different political positions concealed under the disguise of a debate over technicalities. Rather than the "participatory democracy" (what other kind is there?) which we are pompously informed, is the basis for the organization, such manipulative tactics expose the same old authoritarian situation — a railroad. I for one am getting awfully tired of hearing the same people who play these little games mouth pious and arrogant slanders about the inadequacies of those whom they choose to call the "old left."

Disabled Employees Prepare For Sheltered Workshop

One of the 11 disabled employees preparing for the Sheltered Workshop's first day is Herman J. Smucker, Kalona. Smucker works in the electrical repairing in the workshop at 121 E. College Ave. The opening is tentatively set for Friday.

Smucker works an eight-hour day cleaning and repairing the backlog of appliances donated to the Goodwill Industries.

Rows of irons, radios and lamps surround Smucker's workbench. Some need cleaning; most need repairs before they can be placed on the counter for sale.

Fans Repaired

Smucker, who has been working at the workshop for six weeks, said the big item for repair this summer had been electrical fans. With the heat of August still ahead of Iowa City residents, Smucker said that fans would be in great demand and that they would be among the appliances for sale when the store opened.

Other items that have been cleaned, repaired and placed on the sales counter include irons, sweepers, vibrators, coffee makers, mixers and a tape recorder.

Smucker works in the former Montgomery Ward's service department at the rear of the building. He said that when Ward's moved to its new location, it had left the work benches and storage bins in the repair shop for the workshop. The facilities have come in handy, he said.

Tools Provided

Goodwill Industries will provide tools for electrical repair, but Smucker, who worked as an electrician for three and a half years at University Hospitals and for 16 years at Farmers Electrical Cooperative, now provides his own tools.

To Smucker, repair means taking the appliance apart, cleaning parts and sometimes making a part that is missing or broken beyond repair.

Appliances need a good cleaning before they can be put on sale, said Smucker. This was especially true of griddles, toasters and other kitchen appliances.

Electrician Needed

Smucker started working at the workshop after the State Rehabilitation Office told him that Goodwill needed an electrician. Smucker was then interviewed by Clinton D. Waters, executive director of the Goodwill Industries of Southeastern Iowa.

Local Workshop To Open Friday; Donations Down

Goodwill Industries plan to open their Sheltered Workshop, 121 E. College Ave., Friday.

Clinton D. Waters, executive director of the Goodwill Industries of Southeastern Iowa, said a delay in the delivery of a pricing machine for garments might hold up the store's opening.

The machine has been shipped from Dayton, Ohio, but has not arrived at the workshop.

If the store does not open this week, Waters said, it will open in early August. Store hours will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Since the initial campaign early this summer, the donation of articles has slowed, said Waters. Goodwill has bought a truck, he added, and area residents may call 337-4158 to ask Goodwill to pick up donations.

National Crime Report Shows Rise In 1965

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a sharp increase in juvenile lawlessness, the nation's crime rate continued to rise faster than its population growth, with a 5 per cent increase in 1965.

The FBI's annual crime report said Wednesday that serious crimes had occurred at a rate of five a minute last year, with more than 2.78 million such crimes reported.

The increase was sharpest in the suburbs with 8 per cent and in the Western states with 10 per cent.

The 5 per cent gain in the crime rate reflected more than 14 crimes for every 1,000 inhabitants of the United States.

And while the rate increase fell off from the 11 per cent gain reported a year ago over 1963, the crime rate continued to outpace the population increase by almost 6 to 1. Since 1960, the FBI said, serious crimes have increased 46 per cent while the population has grown by 8 per cent.

The FBI figures carried a grave portent for the future of law enforcement. Arrests of juveniles under 18 for serious crimes have increased by 47 per cent in the past five years, which is nearly three times the 17 per cent increase in the population of that age group.

In determining the rate of serious crimes, the FBI and reporting law enforcement agencies measure murder, rape, assault, robbery, burglary, larceny, and auto theft.

The rape rate showed the sharpest gain among these crimes over 1964. There were 22,740 forcible rapes, for a 9 per cent increase.

Murder, robbery, assault and burglary each increased 6 per cent, larceny of $50 or more increased 8 per cent and auto theft increased 5 per cent.

Relationship Improves With Latin Americans

By MARY ZIELINSKI
Staff Writer

Relationships between the United States and Latin America appear to be improving, William A. Knoke, professor of business administration, said recently.

"In general, there is a warm feeling toward Americans," he said, referring to his personal experiences in Brazil and Chile.

Knoke served as a professor and adviser to the school of Business Administration in Sao Paulo, Brazil, from 1962 to 1964 as a member of a U.S. Agency for International Development program. Last summer he was an adviser to the Chilean government and was sponsored by the Pan-American Union.

Trained Students

His work in Brazil involved training students for a "managerial class, something that has not existed in the country before," he said. "It is regarded as a major breakthrough."

"Any opposition to this type of program that may have existed has disappeared, and this new 'class' is now welcomed. In fact, for every position available at the school, there were ten applicants."

The program had U.S. sponsorship, but "since it has now reached maturity, the Brazilians are operating it themselves," Knoke explained.

People Do Work

As a result, there is a better feeling of cooperation, since the people themselves are actively doing the work, which is aimed at strengthening the economy by providing trained managers and administrators, he explained.

The only thing that could have been labeled a problem, said Knoke, was the political situation in the country.

"There is a close relationship between politics and the operation of the government in Brazil," he said, "and, for a time, when the government was not favoring the U.S., the people had a tendency to avoid any overt closeness with Americans."

In Chile, however, there was no difficulty with the government, for the country has the most stable government in South America, Knoke said.

Geography Is Problem

"The problem there is one of geography and in getting goods to market," he said. "Possibly as much as 25 per cent of the agricultural produce spoils before it reaches the market because of the great distance involved in transportation."

Since northern Chile is primarily industrial, and agriculture dominates the south, there is no easy way of getting food distributed to where most of the population is, he said.

"In addition, there's a wide contrast in the climate, with the desert in the north and antarctic weather in the south," he said.

This means the population is concentrated in certain areas, with great expanses between them, he added.

"In the matter of transportation," he went on, "it is easier to import goods from the U.S. than to bring them around the cape from Brazil or Argentina."

At present, there is a cooperative program between Chile and California, in which California provides every kind of advisory service, similar to the Iowa-Peru project being conducted by the University and Iowa State University, Ames.

FBI Reports Crime Rate Up In Iowa

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa's rate of serious crimes jumped nearly 8 per cent from 1964 to 1965, figures released by the Federal Bureau of Investigation showed Wednesday.

The FBI report showed the increase of the seven serious crimes in Iowa had exceeded the average for the United States.

The increase in Iowa was from 650.4 crimes per 100,000 population in 1964 to 706.5 in 1965, or 7.96 per cent.

Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach said the same seven crimes over the nation as a whole had jumped 6 per cent.

In Iowa, the murder rate in 1965 was about the same as the previous year. There were 36 murders in the state last year and 35 in 1964, or 1.3 per 100,000 population.

There were gains in all other serious crime categories in Iowa except forcible rape, which declined from 137 in 1964 to 123 last year.

The report showed 365 robberies in Iowa in 1965 against 310 the previous years. Aggravated assaults were up from 625 to 654, burglaries from 8,004 to 8,398, larceny of $50 and over from 6,274 to 7,144 and auto thefts from 2,639 to 2,889.

The state's total for the seven offenses in 1965 was 19,498, compared with 17,924 in 1964.

Officials identify Woman Killed

Iowa Highway Patrol officials Wednesday identified Miss Mignon E. Pease of Los Angeles as the California woman fatally injured Tuesday afternoon in a two-car collision on Interstate 80 about five miles west of Tiffin.

Miss Pease was killed when a westbound car driven by Delmar Messer, 52, Peoria, Ill., went out of control on a slight curve during heavy rain, skidded through the median, and collided with the eastbound car in which Miss Pease was riding, a patrolman said.

Miss Elizabeth Smith, 23, Los Angeles, also in the car, was admitted to University Hospital in serious condition.

Four persons in the Messer car were taken to University Hospital for treatment. Mrs. Jessie Messer, 52, was admitted in fair condition; Barry Messer, 13, was listed in good condition. Treated and released were Delmar Messer, 52, and Larry Messer, 12. They are all from Peoria, Ill.

2 Sessions Held—

Iowa Hosts Wrestling Clinic

By JIM MARTZ Sports Editor

High school and junior high athletes and coaches from several states are attending Iowa's fourth annual wrestling clinic at the Field House this week.

David McCuskey, Iowa wrestling coach and clinic director, said Wednesday that better performance and better coaching techniques were the objectives of the clinic.

The clinic is held in two five-day sessions. About 85 athletes attended the first session last week. Another 85 are attending the second session which is being held this week.

McCuskey said that the only athletes who were not eligible to enroll were those who had graduated from high school. He said this followed National Collegiate and Big 10 rules.

No Contests Held "There are no actual matches or contests held," McCuskey said. "This is a learning process. We have some beginners and some with a lot of experience. Each boy works with a partner equal to his ability."

The daily program at the clinic includes four hours of instruction. Special sessions are held two evenings each week for coaches only. Instructions are given in fundamentals, offensive and defensive methods and officiating and rules interpretation.

Other subjects covered are take-downs, escapes, reversals, break-downs, pinning combinations, leg wrestling, control wrestling, counters for special holds, and AAU and Olympic wrestling. Movies of national meets and special training films are also shown. Each athlete is charged $50 per week for tuition, dormitory room and board.

McCuskey said that athletes

Golf Tourney At Indianapolis To Lack Noise

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The golfing clan gathered Wednesday for what will become known as the somber speedway tournament. The $92,000 affair, billed as the 500 Festival Open, starts today on the new speedway course with a field of about 135. It will be the first time for the event other than at 500-mile race time on Memorial Day, when the roar of the practicing racers boistered some golfers.

It is the first PGA stop since Champagne Tony Lema's death in a plane crash near Munster, Ind., Sunday.

Play over the entire course was halted at noon Wednesday in the middle of a pro-amateur meet. Flags were lowered at half staff, to stay there for the remainder of the 72-hole tournament which ends Sunday.

Defending titlist Bruce Crampton is returning with such current PGA tour champions as: Billy Casper, Dudley Wysong, Burt Yancey, Joe Campbell, Lionel Hebert, Bobby Nichols, Frank Beard, and Gay Brewer.

Sports Briefs

THE CHICAGO BULLS, new entry in the National Basketball Association, announced the signing Wednesday of their No. 1 draft pick, Dave Schellhase of Purdue, the nation's top collegiate scorer last season.

JUAN MARICHAL, THE 14-GAME WINNER of the San Francisco Giants, probably will miss his next turn on the mound because of an injured middle finger on his pitching hand. He was scheduled to start Friday at Atlanta. He said Wednesday that Manny Mota of the Pittsburgh Pirates accidentally shut a car door on the finger Tuesday night. The injury was not believed serious.

LEE WILLIAMS, FORMER BASKETBALL COACH and director of athletics at Colby College, was named Wednesday as the new executive director of the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame at Springfield, Mass. Williams, 47, a native of Oswego, N.Y., will begin his duties Aug. 1. He replaced Clifford Wells whose term expired July 1 after he had served for three years.

THE BALTIMORE ORIOLES put pitcher Wally Bunker on the disabled list Wednesday and recalled catcher Larry Haney from their Rochester, N.Y., farm club in the International Baseball League. Bunker, who has tendonitis of the elbow, must remain inactive for at least 15 days. The club physician prescribed rest and heat treatments for the next 10 or 12 days. Baltimore still has 11 pitchers.

THE COLLEGE ALL-STARS, tuning up for their big game with the Green Bay Packers Aug. 5, started slowly but finally made a respectable showing against the Chicago Bears in losing a game-type scrimmage, 34-20, at St. Joseph's College in Rensselaer, Ind., Wednesday. The main all-star fireworks were provided by Roy Shivers of Utah State, who raced 70 yards from scrimmage for a touchdown which trimmed the Bears' margin to 34-17.

THE NEW YORK JETS LIST Sherman Plunkett's weight as 300? But there's no need to use the question-mark anymore. The Jets finally have found a scale big enough to tackle the tackle. Ever since he came to the Jets from San Diego, Plunkett has been able to avoid being accurately weighed because of the inadequacies of the Jets' 300-pound scale. But this year he stepped up and the pointer came to rest at 325. "I'm not sure but I think they got that scale special for me," Plunkett admitted.

Wisconsin Court Says State Is Powerless In Baseball Suit

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin's Supreme Court called Milwaukee out Wednesday on its bid to stay in baseball, and awarded the Braves to Atlanta.

In a 4 to 3 decision, the justices ruled that baseball was a monopoly, and that leaving the city without a major league franchise clearly had harmed its economy, but "the state is powerless to deal with it."

In modern times, franchise shifts always have been from cities with two teams. The court returned the case to Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller of Milwaukee, who had found the National League and its members violated Wisconsin's anti-trust laws by approving the Braves' move, and ordered him to dismiss the suit.

More Decisions Expected The decision, however, actually is only another step in a series that long has seemed destined to be decided ultimately by the United States Supreme Court.

Wisconsin Atty. Gen. Bronson C. La Follette, who initiated the state suit, said he would ask the U.S. Supreme Court within 30 days to consider a review.

And a federal antitrust action, filed in U.S. District Court earlier last year by Milwaukee, is working its way up a crowded calendar, although it still may be a year away from trial.

Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.), one of many to comment on Wednesday's decision, mentioned federal action specifically.

"Baseball is not a state monopoly, but a federal monopoly, and a federal antitrust suit is long overdue," he told a reporter in Washington. "Baseball now is in violation of the federal antitrust laws."

Giles Comments In Cincinnati, National League President Warren Giles said he was pleased by the day's developments and that as far as further action is concerned, "I'll answer that by saying we will deal with that as the managers say during a pennant race — 'we'll play 'em one at a time.'"

Atlanta officials were overjoyed while Milwaukee's generally declined comment on the ruling. La Follette said, "The state court has held it is a Federal question and this is right down the Supreme Court's alley." But he conceded it would be fall before a decision could be expected on whether the U.S. Supreme Court would hear the case. A ruling on the appeal itself would not be likely before next year.

Contract Disputes Continue In Pro Football Leagues

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The National and American Football Leagues have signed a peace pact, but discontent continues to spread among the veteran players over the astronomical bonuses and salaries handed to star rookies during the recent signings war.

In the latest developments Wednesday, tight end John Mackey and All-League flanker back Jimmy Orr of the Baltimore Colts, and defensive back Hank Gremminger of the Dallas Cowboys, walked out of their training camps because of salary disputes.

Gremminger, a former Green Bay Packer, said he was going to telephone NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle to "find out just where I stand."

Mackey, Orr Leave "We couldn't get together on a contract," said Gremminger after storming out of the Cowboys' camp at Thousand Oaks, Calif.

Mackey and Orr left the Colts' headquarters at Western Maryland College after again failing to come to terms. Three other Baltimore veterans still are unsigned. They are split end Ray Berry, flanker Willie Richardson and defensive end and place kicker Lou Michaels.

Quarterback John Brodie of the San Francisco 49ers remained in Hawaii awaiting a bigger salary offer from the club. The Houston Oilers of the AFL were reported to have offered Brodie $750,000 in late May to jump to the AFL but the merger killed that deal.

In the AFL, veteran quarterbacks Mickey Slaughter and John McCormick returned to the camp of the Denver Broncos.

Faison May Sign The Denver Post said Slaughter and McCormick were fined $500 each for their brief rebellion over their contracts.

Two Oakland stars, split end Art Powell and halfback Clem Daniels, reported to be holding out for $50,000 a year each, left the Raiders' camp Tuesday without signing.

The AFL's Western Division champion San Diego Chargers may sign All-League defensive end Earl Faison.

The San Diego Evening Tribune said it learned Faison, a Charger who became a free agent on May 1, would sign within 48 hours a three-year contract calling for $30,000 a year.

Tigers' Manager Will Be Martin CHICAGO (AP) — Billy Martin will be named new manager of the Detroit Tigers before the beginning of the 1967 season, Chicago's American said Wednesday.

Martin, currently a coach of the Minnesota Twins, became the No. 1 choice of Tiger President John Fetzer after Al Lopez declined to succeed the ailing current Tiger pilot, Charlie Dressen, it was reported by the American's baseball writer, Brent Musburger.

Dressen on May 16 suffered his second heart attack in as many years and coach Frank Skaff presently directs the Tigers. Dressen's original replacement, coach Bob Swift, also became ill.

Baseball Roundup

Pirates 5, Giants 3 SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two ninth-inning errors by third baseman Jim Davenport and Bill Mazeroski's run-scoring single lifted Pittsburgh back into first place in the National League Wednesday as the Pirates downed San Francisco, 5-3.

The victory gave Pittsburgh the league lead by two percentage points over the Giants.

Yankees 6, Twins 3 NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Richardson and Joe Pepitone clubbed two-run homers and Horace Clarke lashed a two-run triple, powering the New York Yankees to a 6-3 victory over Minnesota Wednesday night.

The Yankees spotted the Twins two first-inning runs and then roughed up 14-game winner Jim Kaat for four runs in their half of the first. Richardson drilled his fifth homer after a leadoff single by Tom Tresh. Then Mickey Mantle and Elston Howard singled and Clarke capped the rally with his two-out triple.

Prof Collects Dictionaries

By MARY ZIELINSKI
Staff Writer

Dictionaries have always held a particular fascination for Ernest Horn, professor emeritus of education.

"They're part of the history of words," Horn said. And, for a man whose spelling texts are familiar to two generations, collecting dictionaries is only natural.

His collection, numbering about 50 volumes, contains rare first editions, unique dictionaries on obscure subjects, early Latin-English texts and dictionaries on special topics.

The collection is no mere hobby, however, for Horn says, "I doubt if three days go by before I need to use some of them to look up words."

In some cases, the early books are far from out-of-date. Horn told of a definition of arthritis given in an 18th century medical dictionary that listed the symptoms of the ailment, then attributed its cause as known only to God.

"That's just about where we are today," a medical friend of Horn's remarked when he read the definition.

One of his rarest dictionaries is a 1578 volume that still is in remarkably good condition. One of the earliest of all dictionaries, it predates by almost 200 years the famous one compiled by Samuel Johnson.

Horn also has a first edition of Johnson's dictionary, dated 1775, as well as Noah Webster's first one, dated 1806.

"Most people think that Webster's dictionary goes back to 1828," Horn explained, "but actually, the first one was more than 20 years before that."

The Webster dictionary, which has undergone many changes since the first one, is used extensively by Horn.

One of his most interesting is a tiny, 16th century dictionary that lists words according to their endings.

"It is form of early rhyming dictionary," Horn said.

His collection also provides clarification and illustrates the changes that have occurred in the English language.

"I read a sentence in an old book once that said 'John got the whisky and we went to town,'" he said. "I thought this was rather strange and looked up whisky in the old English (British) dictionary, and found that a whisky was an early buggy."

Words have occupied a major part of the 83-year-old professor's life. He is widely remembered by many Iowans as the co-author of the famous Horn-Ashbough Speller widely used in the state.

In 1953, Horn retired from the University after 53 years devoted to the improvement of spelling, reading and social studies education.

One of his most widely used books was "Methods of Instruction in the Social Studies." Although it is now out-of-print, it is still regarded to be a basic reference.

Born in Mercer county, Mo., Horn began teaching in 1901 in a rural school before he was 18. He graduated from the University of Missouri in 1907 and earned an M.A. there the following year. Columbia University awarded him his Ph.D. in 1941.

Before joining the University faculty in 1915, Horn was principal of Missouri University Elementary School and later taught at Colorado State Teachers College in Greeley and at the Brooklyn, N.Y., Institute of Arts and Sciences. From 1913 to 1915 he was principal of a Speyer experimental school of Columbia University.

Even today, when he is at an age when people are content to look back on their years of service, Horn is still actively engaged in education both through his part-time work at the University and his own research and writings.

If Interest Rates Cut, Hot Money To Europe

NEW YORK (AP) — Rising interest rates in Europe are a stumbling block for those who are clamoring for Congress to cut interest rates in the United States.

Europe's much higher rates could attract more U.S. dollars seeking higher yields. Lowering interest rates here on short-term money could send this pool of temporarily idle dollars — usually called "hot money" — overseas.

And this would make it just that much harder for the United States to see that the dollar doesn't fall into the straits that beset the British pound. The guardians of the dollar's status of being as good as gold are having plenty of trouble now, even with the interest rates at home still on the climb.

Gap Narrows
For one thing, the U.S. trade gap is narrowing. Exports still top imports, but by less than they did in previous years. Imports are growing at a 15 per cent clip, and exports by only 8 per cent. This cuts the balance of trade to around $4 billion this year, against more than $5 billion last year and $6 billion in 1964.

This means fewer dollars that the United States can use to offset its rising dollar-spending abroad for other things such as the Viet Nam war, foreign aid, private investments, tourist travel. The guardians of the dollar aren't anxious to see the U.S. balance of payments deficit — already rising this year — boosted by a flight of dollars seeking higher interest yields overseas.

There are a lot of dollars over there now, called Eurodollars, with the total estimated as high as $9 billion. These are in private rather than foreign government hands, and were built up in the years that the United States has run a payments deficit.

Eurodollars are used to finance many private deals, including plant expansion overseas. The interest rate at which they can be borrowed swings widely, reflecting the ease or tightness of the international money market.

Dollars Brought Home
Higher interest rates here has brought some dollars home, along

Slum Protests City Problem In Des Moines

DES MOINES (AP) — Gov. Harold Hughes and Mayor George Whitmer of Des Moines agreed Wednesday that protests by residents of Des Moines' Southeast Bottoms slum are primarily city problems, although the state and federal governments may help solve them.

Hughes and Whitmer conferred on the matter as Hughes promised Monday when a group of residents of the area marched to the Statehouse demanding such improvements as extended water and sewer service.

Hughes said he would try to find some way the state or possibly the federal government can help, perhaps using some program in the war on poverty.

Whitmer said it had not yet been determined whether to retain the Southeast Bottoms as a residential area. He said the question arises because of low elevation and its nearness to railroad tracks and industrial plants.

Both men said extending the existing sewer system in the area would involve more expense than in most areas, because the sewage would have to be pumped to a higher elevation and devices installed to protect the system against flooding.

Whitmer said 98 per cent of the homes in the area which did not have running water would be connected to the water system if their owners installed plumbing and paid a $25 connection fee.

Hughes and Whitmer said the area might be rehabilitated through an urban renewal program but said the residents in this case should have other low cost housing to which to move.

They agreed public housing would be one answer, and Whitmer said he expected a public housing proposal to be on the ballot before Des Moines voters this fall.

Income, Taxes Expected To Increase; Food Prices Reported On Upswing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite fresh estimates that federal income would climb higher than government economists figured, a tax increase is still a possibility for next year.

But officials emphasized Wednesday that no tax decision had been made by the Johnson administration. The door is still open for a possible hike even this year, although this now appears unlikely especially in view of November's congressional elections.

"It's still an open question," one source said. "Any decision will depend on future developments."

Tax Collections Climb
It was learned that federal experts now expected tax collections for the fiscal year that began July 1 to climb about $4.5 billion higher than they originally estimated. However, increases in Viet Nam war spending could offset this and then some.

Congress also has added a billion dollars to President Johnson's $112.8-billion spending proposals for the fiscal year, and some officials see a potential for adding another $4 billion or $5 billion.

Exact figures are still lacking, but government experts foresee tax collections higher than expected during the current fiscal year from both corporate and individual income levies without any boost in basic tax rates.

State Taxes Are Factor
State and gift taxes, which produced more revenue than expected last year are another factor.

None of the anticipated increase in revenue is attributable to higher personal income tax withholding rates that went into effect June 1; the original estimates took account of those increases.

Some government economists have talked of a possible $10-billion tax increase in 1967.

The fresh revisions for the current fiscal year — if they stand up — place net tax receipts at about $115 billion to $116 billion compared with the original estimate last January of $111 billion.

Johnson Forecast
Johnson forecasts a deficit of $1.8 billion for the current fiscal year.

Last year's deficit of $2.3 billion — compared with an anticipated $6.4-billion deficit last January — resulted from higher than expected tax collections of $104.6 billion. The original estimate was $100 billion. This is what triggered the fresh estimates for the current fiscal year.

The higher cost of living is being brought home to housewives across the country by rising prices of bread, butter, eggs and milk.

Situation Is Rough
"The situation is pretty rough," Sol H. Renik, New York's deputy city market commissioner, said. "Prices are either at or near their record highs."

Many bakeries have raised wholesale bread prices an average of 6 per cent forcing a 2 cents rise in the retail price of a one-pound loaf. The increases reflect rising costs of flour, labor and packaging, bakery spokesmen said.

The cost of flour has risen about $1 per hundredweight, or 20 per cent. The cost of sugar is about 5 per cent above last year. The boost in the flour price was blamed on a smaller than estimated wheat crop because a severe winter damaged seeds in the ground.

Prices Increase
In the New York area, the price of butter has gone up 10 cents a pound to 81-87 cents. Eggs have risen from 50-53 cents a dozen to 67-69 cents. Milk went up a cent a quart to 25-27 cents.

In New York, a division of Continental Baking Co. lifted wholesale prices by 1½ cents per one-pound loaf, which will up the retail price to about 30 cents. Russell J. Hug, executive vice president of Ward Foods, Inc., said "everything in the book is up this year" and a price increase is "inescapable."

A spokesman for Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. said it hadn't raised prices but is watching the situation.

Wholesale Prices To Rise
Fuchs Baking Co. of Miami, which serves most of the Florida east coast, plans to raise its wholesale prices by 1½ cents on all loaves in August. The company also expects to boost some sweetgoods prices.

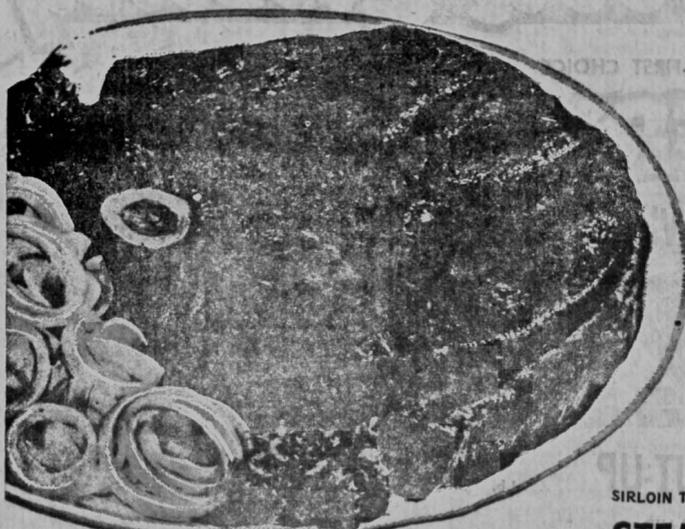

Wheat this week sold at Kansas City for $1.93½ a bushel, up 44½ cents from a year earlier. Hard winter wheat flour wholesaled for $7.82 a hundred pounds in New York, 95 cents more than a year earlier.

Despite the decline in per capita consumption of bread in recent years, the average American family eats nearly two pounds weekly.

SHARK IN WATER — WESTERLY, R.I. (AP) — Lifeguards cleared the water near Misquamicut State Beach of several hundred bathers recently when they sighted a fin in the water.

It turned out to be a large ocean sunfish, instead of a shark as feared.

Ship Bringing Health Aid Subject Of Report Friday

By NEIL SIDEN Staff Writer

Dr. Robert Liechty, associate professor of surgery, will lecture on "Six Years of Hope," at 7 p.m. Friday, in the Union Indiana Room. He is a member of the medical board of advisers for the Hope project.

Liechty said Tuesday that he planned to incorporate slides of his recent trip to Ecuador into the presentation. In general, he plans to review the achievements of the Hope project since its organization six years ago.

LIECHTY

Project Hope is the principal activity of the People-to-People Health Foundation, founded by interested Americans to carry out cooperative health programs between the people of the United States and those in newly-developing nations of the world.

Hope is a former Navy transport loaned to the project by the U.S. Government after the Korean War, during which it had been changed into a hospital ship. Comparing the ship's facilities to those of the University, Liechty said, "They are smaller, but the equipment and the means of use are every bit as good."

Serves 3 Years

Liechty said that his involvement with the Hope project had begun when he read about the first trip of the ship in 1958. This, combined with his interest in the "international aspects" of medicine, brought him through three years of active service with the organization.

Presently, Liechty serves the project as a member of the board of medical advisers, a post he has held for two years. Two other University doctors, Dr. Richard M. Caplan, associate professor of dermatology, and Dr. Jeremiah S. Lawlor, instructor in obstetrics and gynecology, are serving on the ship. The ship is presently in Nicaragua.

As an adviser, Liechty aids in choosing the ship's destinations and its policy. The primary function of the ship, he said, is "to teach professional people at all levels — nurses, doctors, lab technicians, nutritionists, record librarians, hospital administrators — the whole gamut of hospital organization."

Raising Standards Is Aim The ship is always invited where it goes by doctors and local governments, he said. The emphasis of each visit is to "teach and try to raise standards of medical care at all levels. Service to patients is secondary but important."

Since January, Hope has admitted more than 900 patients to its hospital, and more than 11,000 people have been treated as outpatients on board ship and in the shore-based clinics. In addition, 42,000 children have received polio vaccine, and 10,000 of these were immunized against tetanus, whooping cough and diphtheria.

Liechty said that when the ship had been in Ecuador, more than a half million people had been given tetanus and polio inocula-

Man Is Plagued By Walls, Professor Tells Optimists

Walls, both visible and invisible, divide people and cause violence throughout the world and in the United States, Dr. William E. Connor, associate professor of internal medicine, said Wednesday.

CONNOR

Connor spoke to the Optimist Club on "The Concept of Non-violence in a Modern Society — A Quaker's Philosophy."

The Berlin Wall said Connor, is a visible symbol of present-day barriers between countries, men and ideas. He said that such barriers could be bridged by non-violence if men applied their knowledge to live together peacefully.

Violence Abhorred President Johnson recently said that he abhorred violence, said Connor. But Connor said that the President had been referring to the race riots in the Midwest.

Connor said that the President should abhor the violence in Viet Nam also. If a peaceful society was sought by the United States, he said, the nation should be consistent on the value of human life, be it in Chicago or Hanoi.

In Iowa City men solve their problems by peacefully discussing them, said Connor. He then asked if Iowa City was any better than beating them over the head.

The Quakers, Connor said, believe that man must get inside people to convince them rather than beating them over the head. He said that man could use his knowledge to knock down barriers between men and create a different environment that would remove the threat of violence.

Hitler Discussed

Connor then discussed the rise of Adolf Hitler after the German defeat in World War I. He said that had the world realized the German people needed help after their defeat, Hitler might not have been viewed as Germany's answer to its economic chaos.

He said that British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's proposal in the Munich Agreement of 1938 could not be considered an attempt to deter violence. Connor said the environment of violence had been present already in Nazi Germany.

Connor said the Quakers, believing that war damaged mankind's morality, had opposed wars and violence since the founding of their faith in the 17th century.

ROTC Instructor Given Promotion

The ROTC department announced Wednesday that John H. Kirkwood, assistant professor of military science, received his promotion to the grade of major by U.S. Fifth Army Headquarters in Chicago. The promotion was effective July 22.

Kirkwood, who joined the faculty in June, 1964, is the freshman cadet instructor.

This summer, he is on temporary duty at the 1966 Army ROTC Summer Camp at Fort Riley, Kan., as a bayonet instructor.

Bread To Cost More Dough

NEW YORK (AP) — August is "sandwich month" — and bread prices are going up for it.

Smaller wheat crops and rising milk and egg prices have upped the cost of bread by two cents on a one-pound loaf in many cities.

Prices of rolls and other bakery products are also expected to climb in the near future.

While bread prices go up, sandwich fillings remain reasonably priced.

Chicken, turkey and beef cuts are good buys across the country. Many areas are featuring chuck roasts and steak cuts.

With specials on chicken, celery, carrots, and corn, most stores are geared for picnic planners.
