

93 Businesses Named In Relocation Plan

The names of 93 businesses were announced Tuesday by Iowa City planners as those that would be asked to relocate temporarily if the city went ahead with a downtown urban renewal program.

The 93 are among the maximum 22 businesses located within the project boundaries that planners say "could possibly operate and survive in a temporary location for one year."

The majority of those scheduled for relocation include real estate, insurance and professional offices.

At an informal city council session last week, planners said businesses needing extensive plumbing fixtures would not be asked to move temporarily.

Three approaches to the problem of relocation are being taken, planners said.

The first involves the use of existing rentable commercial space, of which, planners point out, there is a shortage.

The second approach involves construction of commercial space within the central business district (CBD) in vacant areas now occupied by parking lots.

The third approach involves the construction of temporary steel buildings which, planners said, is a radical departure from standard relocation sources.

Planners said the third approach was tentative and depended on whether the city could find developers who would be interested in constructing the temporary buildings.

The third approach also depends upon whether the Federal Government provides funds for the plan as a federal demonstration program.

The temporary relocation plan would take place in four stages over what city planners hope would be a four year period.

During the first year, 45 businesses would be asked to relocate temporarily, 67 the second year, 64 the third year, and 46 the fourth year.

Planners have emphasized that businesses relocated temporarily would be reimbursed twice for their inconvenience.

The relocated businessman would be charged about $1.20 a square foot a year, which planners said, averages about one-half of what the businessman now pays.

The 97 businesses currently scheduled for relocation include: Leinbaugh Oil Company, in the block bounded by Court, Linn, Burlington and Gilbert streets.

John Wilson Sporting Goods, in the block bounded by College, Washington, Gilbert and Van Buren Streets.

Universal CIT Corp.; Vernon Goedken, C.P.A.; and Mercy Development Fund — in the block bounded by College, Burlington, Dubuque and Linn streets.

League of Women Voters; Meacham Travel Service; Hegtvedt Agency; Dave Armstrong Real Estate; Iowa City Board of Realtors; Jack White, attorney; Will Hayek, attorney; L. G. Klein, attorney; Buxton Agency, Roland Smith, Realtor; J. Shank & Associates, insurance; Caldwell Insurance Agency; Hagen's TV & Appliances; Johnson County GOP Headquarters; Red's World Barber Shop; Carl Goetz, attorney; S. T. Morrison Co.; Harper's Young Fashions; The Stable; Piper's Candies, (retail only); Steele's Yarn Shop; Associates Discount Corp.; Moffitt Realty; Jones-Thomas, Inc.; Interstate Finance Corp.; and John Knox, attorney — in the block bounded by College, Washington, Linn and Dubuque streets.

Wikel Typewriter Co.; Fryauf Leather Goods; Eicher Florist; Eble Music Co.; Continental Mortgage Investment Co.; H. D. Berven Agency; I. Fuiks, jeweler; and Barbara's Bake Shop (retail only) — in the block bounded by Iowa Avenue, Washington, Dubuque and Linn streets.

Young's Studio; Davis Cleaners Pick-up Station; Grell's Custom Shop; Sanitary Dairy Ice Cream Store; McDonald Optical Company; Delta Chi National Headquarters; H. D. Short & Sons; Stephen's Men's Wear; Hottel, Hottel & Langbaugh, optometrists; Redwood & Ross; Ewer's Men's Shop; Keough & Associates; Craig W. Main, C.P.A.; and D & K Bootery — in the block bounded by Iowa Avenue, Washington, Clinton and Dubuque streets.

Dotty Dunn Hats; Fairbank Agency, Inc.; Uptown Shop; The Paper Place; The Unfinished Gallery; Things & Things & Things; Kinney Shoes; L. L. Pelling Co.; Illinois-Iowa Claim Service; Retail Credit Co., Inc.; Mabel Krofta, public stenographer; Iowa City Realty Company; Russ Mishak Agency; Pauline Kelly, attorney; Liberty Loan Corporation; Johnson County Democrat Headquarters; John Schneider, realty broker; Henry Louis, Inc.; Norman Rogers, podiatrist; Rogers Shoe Repair; Speidels, Inc.; Halls Gifts-Betty's Flowers; Singer Company; Busby-Miller Agency; and Dunton Insurance Agency — in the block bounded by Washington, College, Clinton and Dubuque streets.

Barbara's Bake Shop and Sweeting's Flowers in the block bounded by College, Burlington, Clinton and Dubuque streets.

Central Sand & Gravel in the block bounded by College, Burlington and Capitol streets.

Goody Shop; Messer & Cahill, attorneys; R. G. Dickerson & Co.; Alden's Appliance; T. Wong Studio; Whiting-Kerr Realty; Don Huber Agency; and Ewer's Shoe Store — in the block bounded by Washington, College, Capitol and Clinton streets.

Hobby & Gifts Shop in the block bounded by College, Burlington, Madison and Capitol streets.

Carlton Realty Co.; Darling-Bender Insurance; and Darling-Bender Realty in the block bounded by Burlington, Court, Capitol and Clinton streets.

A. P. Fankhauser, chiropractor, in the block bounded by Burlington, Court, Clinton and Dubuque streets.

City planners said that none of the businessmen scheduled for temporary relocation would be forced to accept a location they did not want.

City Retailers Vote To Form Group To Promote Interests

A recommendation to form a Chamber of Commerce retail committee to promote the represented interests of downtown and outlying area retailers was approved Tuesday night at a meeting of about 60 Iowa City's retailers.

Richard T. Feddersen, president of Nall Motors, Inc. 216 E. Burlington St., proposed the formation of the committee in two divisions, one for promoting downtown retail interests and the other for outlying area retailers.

The motion passed on a 27 to 5 vote. The rest attending the meeting did not vote.

Merchants Call Meeting

The meeting, presided over by Chamber of Commerce President Roy Williams, was called at the request of retail merchants.

The purpose of the meeting, Williams said, was to get retailers to act as a group for downtown retail promotion.

Feddersen suggested the two-part retail committee after a number of downtown retailers said they did not wish to support promotion efforts of outlying area retailers.

Williams said Feddersen's proposal would be brought to the attention of the Chamber of Commerce board of directors.

Urban Renewal Discussed

Although Williams told retailers that the purpose of the meeting was not to discuss urban renewal, one retailer asked for the Chamber of Commerce's position on urban renewal.

"Your Chamber of Commerce has not taken a stand for or against urban renewal," Williams responded. "Our position will be clearly heard once final plans for urban renewal are completed and reviewed by members of the chamber."

Last fall a few downtown retailers joined forces for promotion purposes. Their organization, the Downtown Retailers' Association, is associated with the Chamber of Commerce.

Williams told retailers at a meeting that membership in the Downtown Retailers' Association was low and that it remained to be seen what would happen to the group.

He admitted that the proposed retail committee, if put into effect, could eliminate the need for the Downtown Retailers' Association.

Ex-Governor Takes Lead In Michigan

G. Mennen Williams, former six-time governor of Michigan, romped into an emphatic lead Tuesday night over Mayor Jerome Cavanagh of Detroit in the Democratic contest for a senatorial nomination.

Williams was racking up 55 per cent of the vote.

The count in 1,261 of 5,315 precincts showed: Williams 101,273; Cavanagh 80,090.

On similarly fragmentary returns in Kansas, Sen. James B. Pearson, Republican incumbent, enjoyed a narrow lead for re-nomination over U.S. Rep. Robert Ellsworth.

The Michigan primary was, in a sense, a test of the current political power of labor union leaders.

For this first step effort at a return to elective office, former Gov. Williams, 55, had reformed his old alliance with union leaders who helped him win the governorship six terms.

Senate Seeks Compromise For Stopping Airline Strike

WASHINGTON — President Johnson relayed word to the Senate Tuesday that he believed Congress would be shirking a responsibility if it left him in sole charge of stopping the airlines strike.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen quoted the presidential view in reporting an effort to hammer out a compromise strike-ending bill.

It came as the Senate debated legislation to halt the walk-out amid charges of electioneering and high-pressure labor lobbying. Dirksen said he had talked with the President by telephone.

Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach joined Dirksen, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and a team of Senate experts in working on the projected compromise.

Responsibility Shared

Dirksen said in essence, it would have Congress and the President share the responsibility of ordering 35,000 striking machinists back to work on five major airlines. They have been grounded now for 26 days.

Mansfield had said earlier that Congress would be handing Johnson dictatorial power if it passed legislation authorizing him to order the strike ended.

"I haven't yet reached the state in my legislative life where I want to give the President powers that would in effect make him a dictator," The Montanan argued, instead, for the course proposed by Sen. Wayne Morse, (D-Ore.), a joint resolution which would have Congress itself end the strike for 180 days of mediation.

Meany Opposed

But AFL-CIO Pres. George Meany expressed his opposition to any action by Congress to force the 35,000 striking machinists to return to work.

Morse said advocates of presidential action wanted to pass the buck to the White House and avoid the blame for labor for a forced return to work.

While the Senate argued, President P. L. Siemiller of the striking AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists, said there was no chance of a voluntary return to work without a contract settlement with the airlines — Eastern, United, National, Northwest and Trans World.

City Council Approves $3.8 Million Budget

Sniper Said He Considered Killing People

AUSTIN, Tex. — A University of Texas psychiatrist who examined slain sniper Charles Joseph Whitman said Tuesday that Whitman had told him March 29 that he had been "thinking about going up into a tower with a deer rifle and shooting people."

Dr. Maurice Dean Healy, who said he had examined Whitman on March 29, made the disclosure at a campus news conference.

The disclosure came shortly after an autopsy report showed Whitman had had a brain tumor.

No Opposition Voiced

A $3.8 million budget for 1967 was adopted Tuesday night by the Iowa City council after no one spoke for or against it at a public hearing.

The budget was just one of many topics that came under discussion in one of the longest and most heated council sessions in recent months.

The council voted 5 to 0 to adopt the $3.8 million budget, of which more than $1.7 million is to come from taxes.

Parking Ban Approved

In other action, the council approved an amended resolution to prohibit parking on five streets, as recommended in the Interim Traffic Plan.

Parking will be prohibited on both sides of Kirkwood Avenue from Clinton to Summit streets, on East Benton from Riverside Drive to Dodge street, on Linn street from Iowa Highway 6 to East Benton street, on Church street from Dubuque to Clinton streets, and on Riverside Drive from Park Road south. Parking also will be prohibited on only the west side of Dubuque street from Kirkwood Avenue to Court street.

City Manager Carsten D. Leikvoid told the council that work on implementing the traffic plan would go ahead, but on a slower basis.

Time Needed

The program was involving more work than anticipated, and that time was needed by property owners on the affected streets to adjust to the changes, Lekovid said.

Philip A. Leff, representing the Iowa City Grocers Association, asked the council not to push too hard on the traffic program.

Leff said the small grocery store owner who depended upon street parking was being hurt the most by the parking bans.

The third and final reading of an ordinance to establish one-way streets was approved by the council.

NEBRASKA GOV. FRANK MORRISON and Omaha's Mayor A. V. Sorenson indicated Tuesday that they would crack down on rioters in Omaha's near North Side. After riots on July 4 both men met with representatives of the rioters and afterward moved quickly with programs to help eliminate the grievances. Sorenson, however, said Tuesday, "We're not going to deal with these hoodlum elements."

STOCK MARKET TRADING CONTINUED LOWER Tuesday, but stocks showed a growing resistance to further decline, some making sharp gains. Declines outnumbered advances by 165 to 481 among the 1,412 issues traded.

CHICAGO POLICE SUPT. O. W. Wilson said Tuesday his police could have covered a civil rights march adequately Sunday if they had been informed of plans earlier. White residents drove the demonstrators out of the Chicago Lawn area Sunday amid violence that left 60 persons injured and 30 automobiles wrecked.

6 City Residences Called Unfit For Human Occupancy

By BOB DILLON
Staff Writer

Six out of 3,000 Iowa City residences have been labeled "unsafe or unfit for human occupancy," Warren J. Buchan, chief of the city's housing and building inspection, said Tuesday.

The two main defects in multiple dwellings and apartments are the need for furnace or boiler isolation from living quarters and the need for a secondary exit, he said.

Buchan said that four inspection crews of two men each were taking a house-to-house survey of housing units and that the initial check should be completed by the end of this month.

Lists Given

After inspection crews check dwellings, residents are given in writing a list of what corrections are to be made, Buchan said. The time residents are given to comply with the ordinance usually varies according to the amount of work to be done; normally they are given from 30 to 90 days.

Buchan added that cost also varied with the amount of work needed.

"Usually the correction can be made for a few hundred dollars or so," said Buchan.

But he added that one apartment landlord had spent $18,000 in order to comply with the ordinance.

Buchan said that most residents had called soon after the crews submitted a list of needed corrections and had asked the crews to recheck the repairs that had been made.

Residents Called

"But," Buchan said, "if they don't call us within a reasonable length of time, we call them."

Dwellings that are declared unsafe or unfit are to be vacated within 10 days, said Buchan.

He added that only two occupied dwellings had been designated as such.

Buchan said that the crews had run into some "spot resistance" by residents but that resistance so far had been minimal.

He said that the object of the inspection crews was not to antagonize the people but to sell them on the idea that the housing ordinance was for their benefit.

Buchan said that most residences were in good shape, although some housing conditions were both unsafe and unhealthy.

"Do you realize that there are 229 privies within the city limits of Iowa City?" asked Buchan.

He said the housing ordinance required indoor plumbing, and that if sanitary sewers were not available approved septic tanks with proper field drainage systems were acceptable.

Buchan said that the crews had inspected University approved and unapproved housing off-campus.

Housing on University property, however, does not come under the jurisdiction of the city's housing ordinance, he said.

CHARLES WHITMAN Had Considered Slaughtering which officials said might have indirectly contributed to his murder rampage that left 16 dead, including himself.

Heatley, on the staff of the university health center, said Whitman had recognized, or had felt, that "he was not achieving in his school work, and this was disconcerting to him."

The stocky, bespectacled psychiatrist said Whitman readily admitted to hostility with a minimum of provocation.

Heatley, who said Whitman had been referred to him by a general practitioner, said earlier Whitman had described his father as being "cruel, domineering and extremely demanding." He quoted Whitman as saying he was "very fond of his wife."

Whitman admitted having assaulted or struck his wife on two occasions, Heatley said. However, he continued, Whitman indicated that his wife at the time of this examination had more confidence in him, "less fear of him."

Course Book Out

The 1966-67 schedule of courses is now available during regular office hours at 1 University Hall. Students must present their student ID cards before receiving a schedule book.

Negro Woman Says Police Invaded Home

A complaint that the home of an Iowa City Negro family was searched without warrant by the Iowa City Police Department was turned over to the Human Relations Commission Tuesday night by the Iowa City council.

Mrs. Louis M. Clay, 623 Maiden Lane, told the council that police officers had entered her home Tuesday in search of the diamonds that were taken from Malcolm Jewelers, 205 E. Washington St., earlier in the day.

Mrs. Clay said that only her 15-year-old daughter had been at home when the police entered.

"They had no right to enter my home," she said. "They searched everywhere — in drawers, under the bed, and even in my refrigerator."

"It's incidents like this that cause the riots in Watts and in Chicago," Mrs. Clay said.

Mayor William C. Hubbard asked that the Human Relations Commission make a full investigation of the matter and report back to the council at its next session.

Iowa City police were not reached for comment on the matter Tuesday night.

Haiphong Raided; North Viets Protest

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy planes have struck a third time at the big oil storage depot on the edge of North Viet Nam's key port of Haiphong, the U.S. command announced Wednesday.

The announcement said carrier-based bombers hit the depot two miles northwest of the city Tuesday and that no American planes were lost.

Explosion Seen

Pilots reported seeing columns of smoke and a large secondary explosion.

The depot was bombed for the first time June 29 when U.S.

Hanoi Angered

A radio broadcast from Hanoi said North Viet Nam had lodged a "most energetic protest" against the bombing with the International Control Commission and demanded an investigation by the commission.

The commission, made up of India, Canada and Poland, is charged with enforcing the 1954 Geneva Agreements on Viet Nam that ended the French Indochina war.

The protest also said "particularly serious" was the fact that U.S. aircraft bombed a number of installations of the Thai Nguyen steel complex on Monday. The complex is 80 miles northwest of Haiphong and 35 miles due north of Hanoi.

TWO U.S. MARINES crouch in the jungle and keep lookout for North Vietnamese who have just taken them under fire during patrol south of the demilitarized zone in Operation Hastings. Two dead Marines, only their boots visible, who were killed earlier in the fight, lie at the right.

Whose ailment?

ONCE AGAIN UNRESTRICTED SALE OF GUNS has contributed to slaying of innocent people. The deaths of 16 people in Austin, Tex., points up the need for legislation regulating the sale of guns in the United States. But this heinous act reflects other shortcomings as well.

Gun legislation can reduce the instances of mentally deranged persons obtaining fire arms, but if a psychopath is inclined to kill, the unavailability of guns may not deter him. In the case of the Austin slayer, there was a record of past psychological disturbances. Had Lee Harvey Oswald's past been checked, there may have been no assassination.

Restrictions on the sale of guns would limit the danger of organized armed groups that are discontented with American society. Militant racial groups that advocate violence and organizations such as the Minutemen who are preparing for a Communist invasion have stocked up on weaponry to carry out their cause; but taking away their guns will not change their attitudes. Besides, molotov cocktails, knives and other instruments are still available if anyone has the urge of kill.

Laws can prevent the sale of guns to some people. But there are no laws to deal with an unbridled infatuation with guns, with crowded societies conducive to violence, with movies that glorify violence, with a way of life in which military obligations train the man to handle his gun as the fundamental means of self defense, and with countless other factors lying behind violence.

We hope Congress will pass legislation to restrict sales of guns. It might also be worth some effort to start collecting weapons from dangerous people who already possess fire arms. The social science will continue efforts to determine causal factors leading to such violence and study remedies for society. Legal and social sciences must go hand in hand.

It is hard to pin the blame on the psychopath or the laws or society, and it makes no sense to place more responsibility on one than another.

Winds of fortune

TORNADO WARNINGS WERE AGAIN OUT for the Iowa City area during Monday afternoon and night, but fortunately none touched down and all was well. How long will our luck last?

The only warning Iowa City residents can get of an approaching tornado is by the fire siren or over local radio stations. Either one or both is inadequate.

As has been stated in this column before, people identify fire sirens with fires. Also, not enough people are tuned to local radio stations - if they have radios on at all - to hear that a tornado is coming.

The chances of a radio receiving word a tornado has been spotted are slim anyway. Not too many people are going to take time to call up a radio station or the fire department if they see a tornado ripping up their street. They may believe in brotherly love, but circumstances are sometimes not conducive to such virtue.

If a tornado is ripping through parts of a city, there is good chance that electricity is out in that area, so residents would be unable to hear the radio warning if it were issued.

Iowa City is hard pressed for money now. It is almost at the legal limit for property taxation, yet it is faced with limitless needs. However, an investment of $10,000 by Iowa City might save the city and its residents a hundred times that amount in lives should a tornado warning system be available when needed.

Radio station aids education in Peru

By MIKE TONER
For The Iowan

Last year's chief photographer for The Iowan, Mike Toner, is currently in Peru on a grant for journalism students sponsored by the University of Oklahoma, the State Department, and a Lima newspaper. The following is an article sent to The Iowan from Lima. — Ed.

Early morning mist still clings to the cold brown hills surrounding Lake Titicaca in southern Peru when a blue and white flag is hoisted to the top of a wooden pole beside a mud hut near the little village of Ichu.

Several Aymaran Indians, wrapped in dusty red and yellow ponchos against the chill air, emerge from neighboring huts and shuffle toward the blue and white flag. Another session of "Onda Azul" radio school is about to begin. It is 4:30 a.m.

Eight miles away in Puno, the capital city of the Peruvian province of Puno, a 1000 watt transmitter atop Calvary Mountain begins its broadcast day with a half hour of Aymaran music. Nearby another tower beams broadcasts in Quechua to villages of Quechua Indians to the north of Puno. The programs reach nearly 5000 adult Indians throughout the province.

Radio "Onda Azul," or "Blue Wave," is a growing attempt to educate masses of illiterate Indians in one of the most poverty stricken areas of Peru. It is directed by a Maryknoll priest from New York, Rev. Robert E. Kearns.

The radio schools directed by Father Kearns begin with education so basic that the lessons describe the importance of washing hands before eating, how to plant potatoes to gain a greater yield, and practice sessions in the A. B. C's.

Education No Easy Task
Kearns' intention is to educate the 100,000 Indians of the Puno area to a level where they will be able to help improve their own living conditions and enter the social and economic fabric of a country where they have been loose threads for more than 400 years.

It's not an easy task. The province of Puno is about the size of the state of Ohio, but poor transportation and rudimentary communications keep the people isolated and figuratively stretch the province to twice that size. The province spans rain forests 3,000 feet above sea level, and snow capped peaks that tower three miles high. Puno itself, on the shores of Lake Titicaca is 13,000 feet above sea level.

More than 80 per cent of the people live in rural areas and live on subsistence farming and a minimum of local trade. Two-thirds of the people are illiterate, but many of the illiterates do not even speak Spanish, the national language of Peru. In all, according to the most recent survey of the Ministry of Education, Indians account for 90 per cent of the population of the province.

Because literacy is a prerequisite to voting in Peruvian elections, any attempt to change the literacy rate is loaded with political implications.

Kearns said in a recent interview that there is a desperate need for the education and integration of the people of Puno.

"Beginning of a Solution"
He said, "These people have been living in a retrograde civilization for 400 years and they are only beginning to realize what they do not have. If we don't do something to improve their conditions, they may decide to turn to the communists for the answer."

According to Kearns the radio schools represent the beginning of a solution.

In the most recent report of the progress of the radio schools, Kearns wrote, "The organization is a positive, Christian, democratic entity which has a definite purpose in mind: the social, economic, and cultural uplift of the people of the State of Puno. By its very nature, it is opposed to communism."

The Peruvian armed forces claimed in June to have eradicated a pocket of communist guerrillas in the area, but a group of 40 campesinos, or peasants, at the Maryknoll catechism school in Puno in July readily admitted knowledge of small groups of communists in their own villages throughout the province.

Block Moscow Signals
The radios distributed by the Maryknoll organization, the Catholic Foreign Mission Society of America, have a fixed frequency - the 640 kc. or the 4.8 mg. of Onda Azul - expressly to prevent the reception of Radio Moscow whose radio signal is crystal clear in the high Andean regions of Peru. The radios are not sold outright because, according to the progress report, "The organization would then lose control over the equipment and communist groups might decide to change the fixed frequency to their own advantage."

Kearns is quick to emphasize, however, that the first step of the radio schools must be to help the Indians improve their living conditions, combating the origins of the communists' appeal, rather than the effects.

An old campesino in Ichu assessed it this way, as he talked about the radio school there: "We grow up, we live, we die; there's nothing to do but drink wine and chew coca, but those young one at the school - they have something to live for. They have hope."

Each radio school is equipped with a transistor receiver, a blackboard, charts, text books and an indigenous, but Maryknoll-educated instructor.

Villagers Are Teachers
Under the present program, village residents who have some degree of literacy are brought to Puno and educated by the Maryknolls for a month. The villagers then return home to act as teachers for their own radio schools and teach the other villagers to read and write in Spanish. The Maryknoll training center has a capacity of 60. The month long training sessions alternate Quechua and Aymara speaking peoples.

In the villages, the students may decide whether they prefer to attend classes in the morning or the afternoon. Morning classes are held from 5 to 9 a.m. and the class programs are repeated in the afternoon from 2 to 6 a.m. so that each person may do his necessary work in the fields and still attend classes.

During the hour between class programs, music, news and commercials are transmitted. In all, Radio "Onda Azul" transmits 18 hours a day, 10 hours in Spanish on both of its frequencies, and 8 hours in Quechua by short wave, and 8 hours in Aymara by regular commercial band.

In addition to its regular function as co-ordinator of the radio schools, "Onda Azul" under the direction of Father Kearns also serves as a center for dubbing American motion pictures in native languages, production and recording of local talent programs, and an outlet for broadcast material from the Voice of America.

Other Educational Functions
Kearns also supervises the operation of a nearby model farm, managed by Peace Corpsman Frank Salvesson, a former student at Luther Cllege, Decorah. The experimental farm and the radio school operate together to encourage the improvement in care and feeding of livestock by Indians in the area.

The radio station also works closely with the Maryknolls in the publication of a newspaper for the students of the radio schools. The weekly publication was recently awarded the first prize for general excellence in competition with other rural newspapers from all Peru.

The priest has developed the radio schools project entirely on contributions of interested groups. He has had technical and financial aid from the Alliance for Progress, the United States Information Agency, the Peace Corps, and numerous Peruvian institutions including the national government's Ministry of Education, the nearby University of the Altiplano, and a local development agency, Corpuno.

The situation is managed by Maryknoll missionaries, but it makes extensive use of local help. It employs 10 Quechua speaking persons and 10 who speak Aymara.

Expansion Is Planned
Kearns said he expects the stations to become self-supporting by 1968 when most of the original building, purchase of equipment, and initial investment will be completed. The budget for 1966 is more than $600,000, all financed from the contributions.

Kearns also has plans for further expansion to reach even more of the residents of Puno. He predicts that by 1970, there will be 10,000 radio schools throughout the area, each serving about four families.

"This is saturation education," Kearns points out, "not just sphere of influence teaching." In addition to the radio schools, Kearns is also working in co-operation with a commercial television company, Telepuno, to bring educational television to the Lake Titicaca area within 50 miles of the city of Puno. He has set the end of 1967 as the target date for the first educational TV telecast.

Construction of the television tower has already begun, alongside the "Onda Azul" towers overlooking the dark blue waters of Lake Titicaca.

Through their work in mass communications, public service, improvement of agricultural conditions, and even the management of credit unions founded in Peru by a Maryknoll priest, the missionaries headed by Father Kearns have made themselves well known throughout Puno.

It is a standing joke among the townspeople to answer questions of "Who did it?" or "Whose is it?" with a smile, a chuckle, and the words, "Padre Roberto."

Letters Policy

Letters to the editor are welcomed. All letters must be signed and the author's address included. Letters should be typed, double spaced, on regular paper, and must be less than 500 words long. The editor reserves the right to edit and shorten letters.

Magazine's release kills wedding's suspense

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — My wife and I were absolutely furious at Women's Wear Daily for revealing the description of Luci Baines Johnson's wedding dress. For weeks we had eaten up every word that was written about this exciting marriage, and we knew more about Luci and Pat Nugent than we did about our own children.

We knew, for example, that Pat's favorite dish was fried chicken which Luci loves to cook with French bread slices fried in butter. We knew that Luci would do her own housework without the help of a maid. We knew Pat was going to work for a master's degree and that Luci said she hoped he would be the boss in the family.

We studied pictures of Luci's dream house which had been rented for $165 a month in Austin, and we had not only read up on how they would furnish their bedroom, but also where the Secret Servicemen were going to sleep.

The women reporters attached to the White House had spared us no details about the young couple, and as the day of the wedding approached my wife and I were so excited we could hardly sleep.

"I wonder what she'll wear on her wedding day?" I said.

"I'd rather not know," my wife replied. "Her dress will be the only surprise left and it's going to be so much fun to see it on the day of the wedding on television."

"I agree," I said. "If you knew what her wedding dress looked like, it would hardly be worth staying home."

"I wonder if it will be lace," my wife said.

"Now you're just teasing yourself," I warned her.

"Well, it's fun to speculate. Did you know there were going to be live lilies of the valley on the wedding cake?"

"I didn't, but I could have guessed it," I said. "What are you doing there?"

"I've made up a list of all the bridesmaids and ushers, so we'll know who is who."

"That's a good idea. It will be like watching a football game with a program. What's that?"

"It's a newspaper photo of the wedding invitation. I thought it would be nice to have it in front of us while we were watching."

I looked at my wife with pride. "You've thought of everything."

She was cutting out some more newspaper clippings.

"What are you doing now?"

"I'm cutting out something old, something new, something borrowed, and something blue. The something old is President Johnson's latest statement on Viet Nam, the something new is Marshal Ky's decision to invade North Viet Nam, the something borrowed is the country's latest deficit, and the something blue is Sen. Dodd's opinion of Drew Pearson."

"You're in fine shape," I said.

But our happiness was short-lived.

Wednesday I walked into the house and found my wife in tears.

"What happened?"

"Women's Wear Daily has revealed all the details of Luci's wedding gown. We have nothing to look forward to."

"Oh, the dastardly press!" I cried. "Is nothing sacred? What are we going to do now?"

"I don't know about you," she said as she started pulling on her long rubber boots, "but I'm going fishing."

Other division chairmen are Byron R. Ross, audits and reports; Robert J. Thoenes, training; and Kenneth Donelson, publicity. Mrs. B. F. Patrick, executive secretary of Community Givers, is in charge of office coordination.
Warren Siek and William F. Sueppel are assistant chairmen of the publicity division and Fred H. Doderer is assistant general chairman of the campaign.
Dane, Doderer and the division chairmen will join more than 400 local volunteer workers in planning and conducting the drive. The official campaign is four days longer than those of past years which, Dane said, will give

Diamond Rings Worth $2,000 Stolen Here

A tray of 16 white-gold diamond rings valued at $2,000 was taken Tuesday from Malcolm Jewelers, 208 E. Washington St.
Employees reported to Iowa City Police that the tray of rings had been missed shortly after 11:30 a.m. Clerks suspected two Negro women in their mid-twenties who were in the store about 9 a.m. of the theft.
One of the women was of heavy build and carried a large black handbag and the other was slender and wore a blue-striped dress and a white scarf, the clerks said. Both were wearing sun glasses.
The women were thought to be driving a car with Missouri license plates, the police reported.

Staff Changes Announced In Army ROTC Department

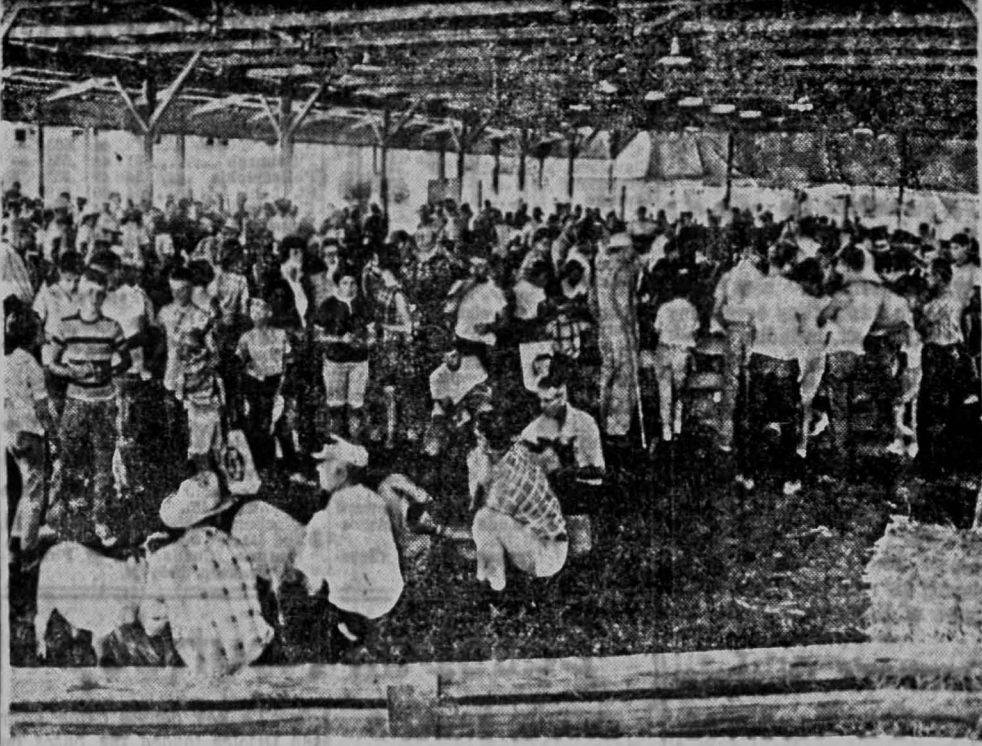

The Army ROTC Department announced Tuesday that four officers would be added to the staff and two staff instructors had been reassigned.
Col. Cyrus R. Shockey, professor of military science, will become the chairman of Army ROTC on Sept. 1. Shockey will replace Col. William N. Holm, professor of military science, who will retire from service this fall.
The three other new officers are:
Capt. Gary L. Arndt, Quartermaster Corps, who received his B.A. and was commissioned through the ROTC department at the University of Wisconsin in January, 1960.
Capt. Robert F. Zielinski, Corps of Engineers, who received his B.S. at the U.S. Military Academy in 1961 and his M.S. from the University of Illinois in 1964.
Capt. Richard I. Merchant, Infantry, who received his B.A. in political science from the University in 1961. He received his commission in 1963 upon graduation from the Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning, Ga.
Maj. James H. Ferguson, associate professor of military science, has been reassigned to Fort Leavenworth, Kan., for attendance at the Command and General Staff College.

Charge Filed For Robbery

SIGOURNEY (AP) — Keokuk County Sheriff John Henry Walker filed a robbery with aggravation charge Tuesday against a man that authorities said was his distant cousin. The man was charged in connection with the robbery of Farmers State Bank of Keota Monday.
The charge was filed against Charles Robert Wallerich, 32, of McCausland, an Iowa State Penitentiary inmate who had fled from University Hospitals here Thursday after being taken there for treatment of a gunshot wound.
Nevertheless authorities continued their search for the lone bandit who pointed a black revolver at the Keota bank's assistant cashier and escaped with $6,308.
William H. Henderson, the assistant cashier, described the holdup man as 5 feet 8 inches tall, with dark hair and dark eyes.

Bourjaily Completes Novel To Be Released In Spring

A member of the Writers Workshop, Vance Bourjaily, associate professor of English, will have his fifth book released next spring.
The novel, "The Man Who Knew Kennedy" (Dow Press, 386 pages), deals with contemporary American life, Bourjaily said Tuesday. It is a narrative that begins at the time of the Kennedy assassination.
The plot follows two people who when they are young, build a good friendship. However, education and society cause the two friends to drift apart. The events concerning the death of Kennedy bring the friends together once again.
Bourjaily said that the resolution of the narrative took place on a schooner at sea.
The novel originally began as a short story, Bourjaily said. But as it became more complicated, it turned into a short novel and eventually into a full-length novel.
Although the book is not autobiographical, Bourjaily said that he had taken voyages similar to those in the book and had known people similar to some of the novel's characters.
Bourjaily's first book, printed in 1947, was entitled "End of My Life." His second book, "Hound of Earth," was published in 1963.
According to Bourjaily, his most important novel is "The Violated," published in 1957. Having sold a million copies in paperback, the book "established" him critically.
"A point comes when an American author is taken seriously by the critics, and this was the book that I think did it for me," he said.
The fourth book, "Confessions of a Spent Youth," was written by Bourjaily in 1961.

City Sales Down In Summer Following Student Migration

By ELIZABETH SCHNEIDER, Staff Writer
Summer comes to Iowa City. The number of students drops. Sales drop. But exactly what is the relationship between these two latter phenomena?
It is generally assumed that fewer students mean fewer sales, although no formal study to determine the effect of fewer students in the summer has been made.
"It is really hard to compare the summer months with the rest of the year," said Keith B. Kafer, manager of the Chamber of Commerce.
"Fall and winter are natural buying times. Summer is always a time of adjustments because people are going on vacation," he said.
Sales Lower
Sales are lower in the summer than at other times of the year, but they are increasing steadily. The 1965 retail summer sales were $2 million greater than the 1964 summer sales, he said.
Lloyd Berger, president of Bremers, Inc., 120 E. Washington St., a men's clothing store, said that while it was "evident that summer sales are down, a valid assessment of student influence cannot be made."
Of course there are fewer students, he said. But since clothes cost less in the summer, there is a built-in reduction of summer sales revenue, ranging from 5 to 10 per cent.
Burger pointed out that although fewer students were in Iowa City in the summer, the growth of the University had been so rapid that this summer's enrollment equaled the 1953 fall semester enrollment.
Population Increases
Steven Richardson, manager of Seiferis, 10 S. Clinton St., a women's clothing store, said the Iowa City population had increased by 20 per cent each year.
"We have many student customers, and sales do drop in summer, although sales this July were 30 per cent higher than sales last July."
"In summer the ratio of University to town customers is 60 to 40, while the rest of the year it is 80 to 20," he added.

Smith Transferred To Fort Madison

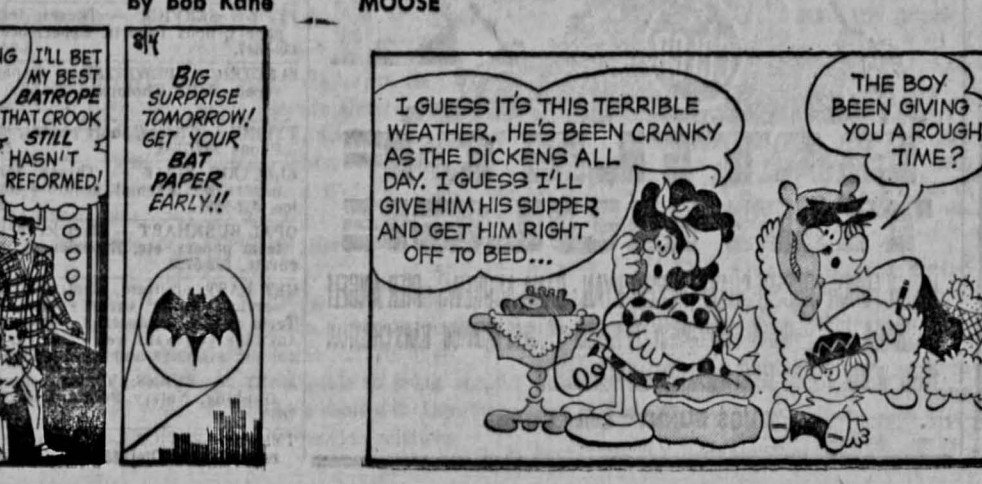

Johnson County Sheriff Maynard Schneider reported Tuesday that Paul Donald Smith, 31, Hayward, Calif., had been taken to the Iowa State Penitentiary, Fort Madison, for "safe keeping."
Smith, who escaped the Johnson County jail and was apprehended here Saturday, will be held at the penitentiary until the fall term of the Johnson County District Court when he will be returned here for trial, the sheriff said.
Smith was transferred late Monday afternoon from University Hospital where he had been treated for a cut wrist after he attempted suicide Saturday. He is being held on charges of armed robbery and rape in lieu of $28,000 bond.

12 ROTC Cadets Will Be Made 2nd Lieutenants

Twelve senior students will be commissioned second lieutenants by the Army and Air Force ROTC departments at 4:30 p.m. Aug. 10 in the Pharmacy Auditorium.
Army cadets Ronald O. Boe, Artillery, Chicago, and Robert L. Farter, Armor, Crystal Lake, Ill., and Air Force cadet Thomas L. Purvis, New Shrewsbury, N.J., will be commissioned Distinguished Military Graduates.
Other Army cadets to be commissioned are: Delbert E. Gehrke, Adjutant General's Corps, Mendota, Ill.; LaVern B. Harvey, Transportation Corps, Bettendorf; John S. McCarthy, Adjutant General's Corps, Manchester; David G. Moss, Armor, Iowa City; Robert W. Sheridan, Transportation Corps, Monmouth, Ill.; and Samuel K. Simmers, Signal Corps, Monroe.
Other Air Force cadets to be commissioned are: Donald G. Bergert, Long Grove; Michael E. Jennings, Columbus Junction; and Lonny B. Rodd, Des Moines.
James C. Spalding, associate professor of religion, will give the invocation for the ceremony.
The commissioning address will be given by Leslie G. Moeller, director of the School of Journalism.
Maj. John H. Kirkwood, associate professor of military science, and Capt. Mayland D. Welty, assistant professor of aerospace studies, will administer the oath of office to the men.
Commissions will be presented by Col. William N. Holm, professor of military science, and Col. Brooks W. Booker Jr., professor of aerospace studies.

LBJ Seeks Bill Curbing Arms Sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, acting in the wake of the mass killings at the University of Texas, called on Congress Tuesday for quick enactment of strong legislation to control the sale of firearms.
Johnson said a gun control law "might not prevent all such tragedies, but it would help reduce the unrestricted sales of firearms to those who cannot be trusted in the use and possession of them."
Some members of Congress joined in urging speedy passage of pending legislation to restrict the sale of firearms.
Sen. Roman L. Hruska (R-Neb.) said, however, it would be "deplorable to trade on the emotion generated by the sniper incident."
Charles J. Whitman, 25, an architectural engineering student, killed 13 persons, including an unborn baby, and wounded three others during an hour and a half of sniping from atop the University of Texas tower before he was slain by police Monday. Earlier, Whitman killed his wife and mother.
In his arsenal were three rifles, a shotgun, two pistols and a knife.

Administrator At Hospital To Get Honor

Reuben H. Denning, assistant director of the Iowa City Veterans Administration Hospital, will be promoted to Fellowship status in the American College of Hospital Administrators Aug. 28 in Chicago.
The announcement was made Tuesday by Pres. Boone Powell, administrator of Baylor University Medical Center, Dallas, Tex., who will preside at the ceremony.
Denning, 1905 Rochester Court, has been in his present position since 1956. He has been active in hospital and community affairs.
The American College of Hospital Administrators is a professional society of men and women whose life's work is in the field of hospital administration. The membership comprises 6,900 administrators and administrative assistants of hospitals in the United States and Canada.
The honor will be presented at the college's 32nd annual convocation ceremony to be held in the Aric Crown Theater, McCormick Place, Chicago. The convocation precedes the annual meeting of the College, held in conjunction with the convention of the American Hospital Association.

Thesis Missing From Art Building

An intaglio print submitted as a master's degree thesis project was reported missing Tuesday from the Art Building, the Campus Security Department said.
The print, "23rd Spring," by Susan B. Hale, G. Buffalo, N.Y., is 30 by 28 inches and was on exhibit in a first floor corridor. It was matted, framed and behind glass, according to Norval Tucker, associate professor of art, who first "discovered it missing" Saturday night. The print is valued at $100.

Lawrence Has Vital Role In Future Of Iowa Football

By STEU BETTERTON
For The Iowan

In the last few years Ted Lawrence has not always been a pleasant sight to Iowa high school football coaches.

It's not that people didn't like him, it's just that his football teams always had a way of beating you. When Lawrence showed up with his Cedar Rapids Jefferson J. Hawks it was bad news.

Now Lawrence will be much more welcome. He is one of the University's new football coaches, and the only loss a football coach can suffer from Lawrence now is the loss of a player — after he graduates.

Lawrence put in 16 years as a high school coach before becoming one of Ray Nagel's first appointments. His record has to rank him with the top coaches of all time in Iowa, and the record certainly has made him a good coaching choice when Iowa decided to clean house and start all over.

Lawrence compiled an enviable record of 101 victories, 33 losses, and six ties in 16 campaigns. He spent six years at Cedar Rapids, four years at Geneseo, Ill., two years at Anamosa, and four years at Wilton Junction.

His last two seasons were perfect, as the J-Hawks went undefeated. Lawrence received due recognition after last season when his team was named the mythical state champion, and Iowa newspapers named him "Coach of the Year."

In his new job Lawrence will be called on to use every bit of coaching skill. He is being given the responsibility for developing the freshmen, and many of his first group are expected to be ready for varsity competition as sophomores. The appointment of Lawrence as fresh coach has to be emphasized as a move calculated to speed up the return of Iowa as a football power.

With his proven ability he will be somewhat above the normal freshman coach. Certainly not in every case, but in a large number of schools the freshman coach is more often a graduate assistant. He may turn into a famous and successful coach, but as fresh coach he is only starting — and learning.

With Lawrence at the helm, the Hawkeyes have a man who has already proven himself — and very successfully. His trademark has been teams which were well drilled, well disciplined, and tough.

Now he will have the finest group of players he has ever seen, and there is no reason to believe he won't get the most out of them, and develop them as quickly as any coach would.

When Nagel became Iowa's new head football coach he certainly understood that he must return Iowa to respectability, and the sooner the better. Because time is of the essence, the choice of a new freshman coach was important to Nagel.

With Lawrence, the new Hawkeye coach was getting everything he could expect, including the all important item of a coach who has successfully coached young football players for 16 years.

This success is vital, because there is a difference between coaching seasoned football players and developing football players while you coach them. In this respect Ted Lawrence will be playing his most vital role in the future of Hawkeye football.

Denver's Gilchrist Put On Reserves

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Broncos said Tuesday that Cookie Gilchrist, 31-year-old fullback who says he doesn't want to play for Denver, will be placed on the American Football League's reserve list.

It was the last-place Cubs' seventh victory in 11 games against Atlanta this season.

Adolfo Phillips led off the 12th with a single off Ted Abernathy and Glenn Beckert sacrificed. Billy Williams was intentionally walked and after Abernathy struck out Ron Santo the runners moved up on a wild pitch.

Ernie Banks then drew another intentional walk, loading the bases, and Browne broke the deadlock with a single to right.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Manny Mota lashed a run-scoring double in the eighth inning Tuesday night, boosting Pittsburgh to a 6-5 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers that halted the Pirates' four-game losing streak.

The victory pushed the Pirates to within two percentage points of the National League-leading Dodgers.

With the game tied 5-5, Bill Mazerowski led off the Pittsburgh eighth with a single off Ron Peranoski. He was sacrificed to second and remained there as Andre Rodgers walked. Mota then came up and doubled to right field, bringing Mazerowski home.

CELTICS SIGN DUKE STAR — BOSTON (AP) — Art Heyman, former backcourt star at Duke University, was signed Tuesday as a free agent by the Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association.

Football Coach Sees More Use Of 'I' Formation

HOUSTON (AP) — Coach Frank Broyles of Arkansas, who admits he adjusts to the formation that's most successful, said Tuesday he anticipated a bigger swing to the I formation in college football this season.

He also said there would be a strong trend to the 5-4 defense instead of 6-2 because platoon football had opened up the offense and brought much more passing.

"We all imitate others," he told the press in an interview at the Texas coaching school Tuesday, where he is a lecturer on football. "I'll admit I adopted the I when I saw how successful John McKay at Southern California was with it."

Twins Win In 9th

MINNEAPOLIS — ST. PAUL (AP) — Jimmie Hall hit a grand slam homer with two out in the ninth inning, lifting Minnesota to a 7-3 victory over Boston Tuesday night.

Both Sloan and Nobis belong to the new Atlanta Falcons of the NFL.

Sloan's election indicated All-Star Coach John Sauer may have resolved the problem of a starting quarterback which prevailed since the collegians began drilling at Northwestern University in mid-July.

Sloan and quarterbacks Bill Anderson of Tulsa and Gary Lane of Missouri previously had been rated equal. However, Sloan appeared to move the All-Stars best in a July 27 game-type scrimmage with the Chicago Bears at Rensselaer, Ind.

Sloan, who broke seven All-Star passing records after succeeding Joe Namath as Crimson Tide quarterback, has a great chance to impress his Falcon coaches in the All-Star game. In the last 11 All-Star games, no fewer than eight quarterbacks have emerged as the college squad's most valuable player.
