

String Quartet Forced To Cancel Tour

Illness of its cellist has forced the Iowa String Quartet to end at the halfway point its concert tour of Europe under sponsorship of the U.S. State Department.

The group gave its last concert in Wiener Neustadt, Austria, Monday, its first and only appearance in Austria. Joel Krosnick, assistant professor of music, the group's cellist, returned to the United States by air Wednesday and the other members will return to this country as soon as transportation arrangements can be completed by the Department of State, probably by this weekend.

The quartet had completed the first half of an eight-week tour as part of the cultural presentations program of the State Department winning standing ovations in Italy and what they described as a "fabulous" reception in Yugoslavia.

The quartet, represented the United States in the group's first concert in Yugoslavia July 31 during Solidarity Week in Skopje, Yugoslavia. The week includes exhibits, plays and concerts in commemoration of the aid given to the city's residents following an earthquake in July, 1963. Each nation which provided assistance during the crisis is invited to take part in Solidarity Week.

Quartet members said that the city has been almost entirely rebuilt, though 80 percent of Skopje was leveled by the earthquake. The Iowa musicians recorded two American compositions for presentation on Radio Skopje.

The concerts cancelled were scheduled in Belgium, Sweden and Iceland, with return to the United States set for Sept. 17.

In addition to Krosnick, quartet members are Allen Ahmes and John Ferrell, violins, and William Preucil, viola. All are associate professors of music. Krosnick became ill with mononucleosis early in the summer following his return from Moscow, Russia, where he was one of four musicians who represented the United States in the International Tchaikovsky Competition in June. He will recuperate for the next month at the home of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Morris Krosnick, New Haven, Conn.

He had played with the Iowa String Quartet on a three-week concert tour of Germany, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Ireland and Switzerland in May. This earlier European tour was arranged by the quartet's own representative.

When arrangements for his replacement could not be completed before the trip sponsored by the Department of State was scheduled to start July 23, he decided to go with the group rather than see the concert tour cancelled.

7 Lawyers Leave Hearing; Clients Without Counsel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Protesting what they called an "atmosphere of terror," seven lawyers walked out on a hearing of the House Committee on Un-American Activities on Wednesday leaving their clients without counsel.

The walkout followed the forcible removal of one attorney during another frequently stormy session of the committee's inquiry into anti-Viet Nam war activities.

One of the lawyers who quit the hearing room, Miss Beverly Axelrod, said she feared physical violence after seeing attorney Arthur A. Kinoy wrestled from the room by plainclothes officers.

Given Till Noon
Eight persons subpoenaed before for the committee as witnesses, who were left without legal counsel by the exodus, were given until noon Thursday to obtain other lawyers or to seek committee help in enlisting legal aid.

Two others did not respond when their names were called.

Several of the subpoena holders tried to make speeches but were gavelled down by the acting chairman, Joe R. Pool, (D-Tex.).

Meany Urges Strikers' OK; Vote Friday

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany urged striking airline machinists Wednesday to approve the proposed contract they will vote on Friday.

Approval would end the 41-day walkout and avert historic legislation aimed at forcing the strikers back to work.

Meany, in telegrams to presidents of the 12 biggest machinists union locals, said the proposed contract is "a wonderful settlement."

The 35,400 striking members of the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists rejected an earlier contract negotiated in the White House.

Many of the local presidents recommended during the consideration of the White House contract proposal that their members reject it. They did so by a majority of nearly 3-1.

The machinists union president, P.L. Roy Siemiller, and other top officials here say reaction to the new contract proposal is very favorable and predict the strikers will accept it.

End Urged
Rep. Richard Ichord, (D-Mo.), told Pool "I've seen enough" and he urged Pool to end this phase of the hearings as quickly as possible and get to the legislation the committee is to consider.

These are bills to punish those who attempt to interfere with the movement of U.S. troops and war material.

Altogether, more than a score of persons were hauled to a downtown police station and charged with disorderly conduct.

Most shouted phrases such as "End the war in Viet Nam," "End This Farce!" and "let him talk."

Bond Forfeited
Some quickly forfeited $10 in bond and returned to the hearing. Seventeen were ejected Tuesday, the first day of the hearing, for similar outbursts.

"I predict the House will take decisive action," Ichord said in speaking of the proposed legislation.

"There is a very serious need for this legislation," he said. The hearings have brought on a collision between Congress and the Federal courts over the question of whether the committee has a constitutional right to proceed.

Senate Gives Johnson Authority To Call Up Reserves For Viet

THE HOUSE PASSED 371 to 0 Wednesday an auto safety bill requiring federal safety standards for 1968 model cars, buses and trucks. The measure is similar to the bill passed unanimously by the Senate on June 24. Enough differences exist that a conference committee will probably have to meet to resolve them.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON virtually doubled Wednesday the U.S. goal for a rise in Latin America's living standards under the massive Alliance for Progress program for hemisphere economic growth. Johnson spoke in what aides termed a major address — "a second-stage booster" — on the fifth anniversary of the hemisphere self-help and reform program into which the U.S. government has already pumped some $6 billion.

SPACECRAFT PIONEER 7, built to probe radiation hazards far from earth in the path of future interplanetary space travelers, rocketed into a near-perfect orbit around the sun Wednesday and began beeping back a stream of information from its scientific sensors. Five hours after the sun-orbiting satellite darted aloft from Cape Kennedy, NASA said experiment packages aboard the craft were "working fine."

TOP CIVIL RIGHTS, political and civic leaders Tuesday in Chicago held "very fruitful" talks Wednesday on ways to ease the spreading conflict over open housing demands. The city suggested an immediate moratorium on marches into all-white neighborhoods that have triggered rock tossing and ignited riots. The conferees met for 2½ hours and then recessed until later without reaching a decision on any issues.

POLICE WEDNESDAY raided a sleazy tenement building in Scotland and pulled in tattooed James Duddy, the second man sought in the cold-blooded slaying of three London policemen. Duddy's hideaway was only 50 yards from a police station in Glasgow. His capture left scar-faced Harry Maurice Roberts, 30, as Britain's most-wanted man, the only man still sought by Scotland Yard "for questioning" about the ruthless shootings last Friday.

THE RUSSIANS HAVE discovered "operation Straight Laced," and are observing the Norwegian exercise with aircraft, ships and submarines, the Navy said Wednesday. Straight Laced is a North Atlantic Treaty Organization exercise involving units of five nations. A striking fleet led by U.S. Vice Adm. Kleber S. Masterson in the heavy cruiser USS Newport News is launching simulated air attacks against northern European targets. The Navy said Soviet aircraft had begun shadowing the fleet as it approached the Norwegian coast Sunday.

Provision Tied Into Budget For Department Of Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted solidly Wednesday to give President Johnson standby authority that he had not sought to call thousands of young Reservists and National Guardsmen to duty, as individuals, for possible use in Viet Nam.

The 66 to 21 vote tying the provision into the $58-billion annual defense money bill came after hours of heated debate.

And then the Senate agreed by voice vote, with brief debate, to go along with Sen. John L. McClellan, (D-Ark.), to bar the purchase of any F111B super-fighter-bombers, the Navy's version of the controversial TFX plane.

No Plan Announced
There is no announced plan to buy any of the planes during the current fiscal year although intensive work is going ahead on development. But McClellan wants to block any purchases while the Senate Investigations subcommittee has another chance to look into the matter.

The Reserve callup provision was pushed by Sen. Richard B. Russell, (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, backed by its ranking Republican, Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts.

There was a vigorous protest from Sen. Strom Thurmond, (R-S.C.), that it was another move to rip apart the Reserve and Guard units and downgrade the forces. A retired Army Reserve major general, he offered a substitute to limit the call to young men not in units or to allow the President to call up entire units. But the Senate rejected this 60 to 26.

Russell called on his colleagues to trust Johnson and he asked them: "Do you think he's going to do anything that foolish" as to destroy the organized Reserve and National Guard?

If the senators think that way, he said, they ought to impeach Johnson.

"We've got to trust somebody," Russell said, "the commander in

Students To Get Award For Saving Boater's Life

Two University students who saved the life of a man whose boat had capsized will be presented Life Saving Awards at the Iowa State Fair at 1:40 p.m. Tuesday in Des Moines.

James L. Watson, DI, Indianola, and Richard T. Hess, DI, Rockford, Ill., will receive the awards from Gov. Harold E. Hughes.

They rescued Mervin F. Rotter, 40, 106 S. Gilbert St., when his boat capsized May 22 in the Iowa River. Another man in the boat when it capsized, Lyle Kinney, 41, Rural Route 3, was drowned.

Stocks Drop To New Low

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market slipped to another new low for the year in active trading Wednesday.

It was the third straight session of decline but Wednesday's loss was less than half that of Tuesday.

The market fell at the opening, tried vainly to recover at mid-morning and made another unsuccessful attempt at a rally near the close.

The continued decline came after major banks' increase of the prime rate — interest charged their biggest and best customers — to 6 per cent from 5½ per cent after Tuesday's market close.

Planning Commission OKs Name Revision

Members of the Metropolitan Planning Commission Wednesday night voted to change its name to the Johnson County Regional Planning Commission and then voted to ask for federal assistance to implement a county-wide planning program.

The commission's name was changed to more accurately represent the interests of the governmental bodies within Johnson County.

The new planning program will be financed by Federal-local contribution of $24,000. The Federal Government will contribute $10,000 if it approves a contract with the Iowa Development Commission, which in turn must make contracts with the regional planning commission and a private planning firm. Then, member bodies of the commission must provide an additional $8,000.

Application Voted
The commission in its resolution Wednesday night voted to make an application to the Iowa Development Commission requesting assistance under section 701 of the Federal Housing Act of 1954. The resolution also named the Iowa City firm of Powers-Willis and Associates as the planners who will do the work under the program.

Noel Willis, from the planning firm, explained the company's approach to planning prior to the voting on the resolution. He said that his company used a different

6 Candidates Are Nominated For School Board

Six candidates were nominated by a bi-partisan committee to fill three vacancies on the Board of Directors of the Iowa City School District.

Dr. Dale Liechty, 1021 Tower Court, presided over the meeting which was held at the Civic Center.

Named as candidates were: William V. Phelan, 353 Lexington Ave., incumbent; William J. Whalen, 8 Fairview Knoll; Howard W. McCauley, 219 Myrtle Ave.; Jean A. Reddick, 1302 E. Bloomington St., H.W. Piro, 521 S. Governor St.; and Charles U. Kelly, 527 Elston St.

Nominated for board treasurer was Clair A. Powers, 1209 Kirkwood Ave.

Election of the School Board Directors will be held Sept. 12.

Iowa Youth Has Shootout With Police

WATERLOO (AP) — A Waterloo teenager described as a nice boy and a crack shot was charged Wednesday after he was wounded in a shootout with police.

Bond for James H. Harp, 15, was set at $10,000 in Municipal Court. No date was set for an appearance, since the youth is under police guard in a local hospital with a bullet wound in his left shoulder. He was reported in satisfactory condition.

Harp fired at least 15 shots at police Tuesday night as they ringed his east side home on a report that he had threatened his parents. Police did not fire back until the youth tried to flee in the family car, which started all the trouble.

The boy's father, Hubert Harp, said James had blown up when he had been denied use of the car. James had received a speeding ticket Aug. 9 and also faced charges of failing to have a licensed driver in the car as required by his instruction permit.

When James said he would shoot anyone who came near him, the parents left the house and notified police. Eight officers arrived and faced a volley of shots. The boy had five rifles and three shotguns in the house.

Residents attracted by the gunfire, some of them clad in nightclothes, ignored police warnings and watched the hour-long siege.

Helps Reduce Payment Drain—

6% Interest Viewed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government assessed Wednesday the effects of recent major changes in the financial community and took a step of its own in an effort to brighten the picture.

Fiscal experts here found that a tight U.S. economy, coupled with soaring interest rates, had helped the United States to reduce the deficit in its balance of payments between April and June.

Deficit At $163 Million
The government said the deficit during that period hit its lowest level in a year — down to a seasonally adjusted $163 million during the second quarter.

The drop was attributed mainly to foreign investment in high-interest certificates of deposit which pulled the figure down from $554 million in the first quarter.

At the same time, the Federal Reserve Board took steps Wednesday to set new restrictions on the use of certificates of deposit.

Experts said this was aimed at attracting savings by increasing reserve requirements on time deposits to six per cent.

At Legal Ceiling
Raising the percentage from five to the legal ceiling of six per cent was the second such action taken on the rate since late last June.

In discussing the foreign investment phenomenon, Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler said it was temporary and added that he did not want to rely on high interest rates as the primary means of ending the deficit in this country's international payments.

He told a news conference that the heart of the problem was still a shrinking trade surplus which dropped to only $361 million during the second quarter, the lowest since the last quarter of October 1959.

He said the situation was temporary and predicted a turn for the better "because of our proven ability to maintain price stability at least comparable to that of our major competitors."

Forecast

Today partly cloudy with chance of showers east this morning. Cooler over the state today. Friday fair and cool. Highs today upper 70s.

Nervous reservists

ARMY RESERVISTS are probably twitching a bit now that there is Senate action boiling to call reservists into active duty.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the Armed Services Committee, and Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.) have offered a rider to a defense appropriation bill that would give the President the authority to order thousands of reservists to active duty for not more than 18 months if they have had six months of active duty or less.

President Johnson, and the Secretary of Defense naturally, oppose the rider. They believe that a call up of any Army reservists is unnecessary. McNamara says that reservists are not needed at the present time and that by not committing them the country has a second-line force available to meet other contingencies.

There are other good reasons why President Johnson may not want to call up reservists. The deluge of criticism that hit the Kennedy Administration during the Berlin crisis when reservists were called up would make any President think twice about such a call up. But then there was a sense of emergency. That feeling does not now exist in the war in South Viet Nam. Not only that, Johnson's popularity has taken some severe jolts because of the questionable aspects of the current war. A call up of any of the 60,000 reservists might seem like too much a chance for Johnson, to take now.

So don't get hyper, reservists, not yet anyway.

Death in the family

AFTER 115 DAYS of forced inactivity the New York Herald Tribune passed out of existence Monday and left sprawling New York City with only four major dailies.

Ostensibly the final decision in ceasing publication of the 160-year old paper was prolonged labor troubles — mostly computerized type setting. But the real reason seems to be much more deeper and tragic.

In essence the Tribune became outmoded both in and out of its field of communication.

It was neither the august New York Times with its encyclopedic coverage of all the aspects of the news nor was its appeal that of a tabloid like the Daily News with its quick, pictorial presentation of what it feels is news. It was, in the lurch, and like some 20 newspapers in New York alone in the last 35 years there was only one out — the final one.

For a city of eight million to be served by just four major daily newspapers is regrettable but in our fast-paced age not too unreasonable. For not too many people are interested in the one feature that newspapers have over the rest of the mass disseminators — all possible information, quickly as possible, in printed form.

ACLU challenges travel restrictions

Reprinted From American Civil Liberties Union Bulletin

The perennial civil liberties campaign for the right of Americans to travel abroad without restriction by government is again being waged in the courts and in Congress as complex passport questions come up for decision.

Two recent conflicting federal court decisions, in New York City and in Los Angeles, California, have raised the question of whether travel to areas prohibited by the government can be made a criminal offense. In New York three young men had been indicted on the criminal charge of organizing a student trip to Cuba in 1963, despite a State Department prohibition. New York District Judge Joseph C. Zavatt dismissed the indictment on April 15, 1966 in an 81-page opinion holding that their travel to a forbidden area had not been made a crime by Congress. The case of Lee Levi Laub, Stefan Martinot and Anatol Schlosser, which will be argued in the United States Supreme Court next fall, marked the first time the government had criminally prosecuted U.S. citizens for leaving the country with valid passports, visiting a forbidden area, and then returning home.

In Los Angeles, the ACLU of Southern California is supporting the case of Mrs. Helen Travis, who was convicted in May, 1964 by a Federal District Court after making two trips to Cuba without a valid passport in 1962. She was given a suspended six month jail sentence plus a $1,000 fine. The Union's Southern California affiliate will argue Mrs. Travis' appeal in the U.S. Supreme Court in the fall. It will come before the high court with the Laub case.

In addition to these cases involving criminal sanctions, other cases continue to challenge the use of civil sanctions (passport revocation) for disobeying government travel edicts. The ACLU is raising that challenge in its defense of Professor Staughton Lynd, whose passport was withdrawn by the State Department last winter on his return from an unauthorized trip to Hanoi and Peking. Having lost the appeal at a Department of State administrative hearing, a necessary step before taking the issue to court, the Union will argue the Lynd case in the Federal District Court. The civil liberties group will reassert the position it asserted last May in a friend-of-the-court brief in the U.S. Supreme Court that the State Department's refusal to validate a Connecticut businessman's passport for tourist travel to Cuba in 1962, was a deprivation of the "liberty of personal movement," and that "no public interest was shown to justify the suppression of a constitutional right of personal travel."

The high court in its decision in Zemel v. Rusk affirmed the Secretary of State's authority to bar U.S. travelers from unauthorized areas. In a 6-3 opinion, the majority held that the Secretary's authority was "constitutionally permissible."

In spite of the adverse ruling in Zemel, the question of whether the Secretary of State does in fact have authority to limit areas of travel or whether the 1926 Passport Law was simply meant to facilitate the issuing of passports continues to be hotly debated. The ACLU asserted in the Zemel case that "laws restricting the liberty of the people can be enacted only by Congress," and that Congress has consistently refused to pass legislation which would authorize the denial of passports for specified parts of the world.

In the attempt to clarify the various and often contradictory laws and regulations on passports, the State Department has proposed a bill which is now in the Senate Judiciary Committee's Internal Security Subcommittee. In testimony before the Subcommittee this Spring, the ACLU registered its opposition to S.3243, which would explicitly give the Secretary of State authority, with Presidential approval, to prohibit travel to particular countries. But this authority would have to be renewed annually instead of being imposed indefinitely, as it is now. The bill would also set out the limited procedures under which a passport might be revoked and would specify the review procedures to be followed in denial and revocation cases.

Objecting to the power delegated in the bill to the Secretary of State, to restrict travel whenever he finds the "full, effective, and successful conduct of the foreign affairs of the United States requires such action," the Union called such a standard "noxious to a free people." It excludes both "the people upon whose consent the government must depend and their representatives in their legislature," argued the ACLU testimony. The testimony also noted that the standard was "too vague to meet the requirements of due process."

Further ACLU objections to the bill were focused on "the authority given to the Secretary of State to prescribe which 'individuals . . . or members of any reasonable designated class may travel to designated foreign countries.'" Pointing out that the "inference is inescapable that those who support the 'foreign policy objectives of the United States' as determined by the Secretary of State could receive permission to travel to the designated countries, but those who do not, could be denied such permission," the Union called the provision "As offensive as it is unconstitutional." In addition, the ACLU attacked the lack of factual bases for the "legislative findings" set forth in the bill. "The findings of the Subversive Activities Control Act of 1950, which S. 3243 'specifically reaffirms,' that travel of Communist agents is a prerequisite for the purposes of the Communist movement" was "regarded as inconclusive" by the Subversive Activities Control Board, which held extensive hearings on the subject, observed the Union in its testimony.

High comedy, pathos in 'World of Henry Orient'

By NICK MEYER
For The Iowan

"The World of Henry Orient" is an excellent and original film, containing some wonderful performances, lovely photography, high comedy, delicately handled sensation, and unbelievably executed pathos.

Directed by George Roy Hill, the script by Nunnally Johnson deals with the friendship of two adorable girls who live in middle and upper Manhattan. They are bright, engaging, and in some ways precocious as all get out. Of the two, Val is the pivotal character. She comes from a terribly rich family who neglects her shamefully and in consequence her highly intelligent mind is also terribly high strung. She has a gift and appreciation for music which leads her to discovering a pianist of more spectacular personal appeal than keyboard artist: Henry Orient (Peter Sellers). The two girls form a very private fan club for this dubious and affected individual, and some very funny and very serious consequences result.

On the funny side is Orient, himself, as played superbly by Sellers. He is a shallow fellow with delusions of grandeur that he doesn't in the least believe, but the ability to intrigue with his fakery girls both little and big. His normal unguarded speech is the lowest Brooklynese, which miraculously becomes various half-learned continental accents the moment he is putting on his act for some enthralled female. Sometimes they even overlap. (Du'e cafe, per favore, garcon.) He uses his unmastered keyboard talent as bait to impress and seduce women who are likely to fall for this sophisticated, effeminate "culture" routine (including Paula Prentiss, in one hilarious sequence), and his whole apartment has been decorated with this goal in mind. The character might well be based on certain aspects of Liberace's public image, and Sellers has all the affections, gigolesque smiles down to perfection. Needless to say, such a personage is not going to be very happy dogged by two inquisitive but altogether too young admirers who sit opposite his house all day and stare up at the windows of his apartment, attend his concerts, and in general get themselves inextricably woven into his already frenetic existence.

Not so funny is the reaction of Val's parents to their daughter's attachment. Her mother (exquisitely played by that mother of all time, Angela Lansbury), is a greedy hypocritical whore who is only interested in censoring her daughter for peculiar personal gain. Her father is not guilty of active destruction, but is a man who has patiently waited too long before interfering with his wife's handling of his child. As played by Tom Bosely (he will be remembered for his "Fiorello," this is his film debut), he is a rather sad but intelligent individual, obviously much opposed to violence and scenes and very much attached to his daughter. He is played to perfection with restraint and understatement by Mr. Bosely who proves that he is master of the art of film acting as he is of performing on the stage.

The film is a tender one, despite its frequent moments of hilarity, and also despite them (or perhaps because of them), a powerful one. Elmer Bernstein's musical score fits it like a glove, and the characterizations are all true to New York life. Congratulations all around to those connected with the making of this unusual motion picture.

U.S. tax burden dwarfs Canada's Amid heavy hints of another hike next year, Americans are now lugging a heavier federal tax burden than their Canadian neighbors, reports Commerce Clearing House, Chicago.

Assuming he takes the standard deduction and files a joint return, a married American with two children under 16 will have to pay $290 in 1966 federal income taxes at the $5,000 income level.

His counterpart in Canada on the other hand will have to pay only $205, CCH said. These figures reflect current American and Canadian tax rates for 1966.

At the $10,000 income level, the U.S. taxpayer with a wife and two children under 16 will pay $1,114 compared to the Canadian's payment of $887.

In addition to their favorable tax status, Canadian parents get family allowances of $72 to $96 per child for all children up to age 16. Where family allowances are paid for a dependent, however, the taxpayer pays a higher tax because the dependent exemption is reduced from $550 to $300.

Court decisions aid alcoholics

CHICAGO — Recent court decisions recognizing that alcoholism is a disease, not a crime, are in agreement with a position adopted by the American Medical Association ten years ago and reaffirmed in 1962, says an editorial in the current (August 15) Journal of the American Medical Association.

As a result of the court decisions, the medical profession faces increasing responsibility for "a wide range of alcoholic problems previously left primarily to law enforcement agencies," said the Journal editorial.

The statement was approved by the AMA's Committee on Alcoholism and Addiction and the AMA Council on Mental Health.

The most immediate task, the editorial said, is to develop guidelines for diagnosing alcoholism "which are as clear and precise as possible and which satisfy medical and legal definitions."

A second obligation of the medical profession is to "foster the admission of alcoholics to those general hospitals that do not now admit such patients and to establish detoxification units closely affiliated with established, long-term treatment centers and associated agencies.

"Next, we (physicians) should play an important role, not only in the education of many members of our own profession, but also in educating police and other groups about issues of acute and chronic alcoholic infirmities."

Finally, physicians should integrate their specialized skills on an equal basis with other professions "in those long-term endeavors of alcoholic management" in which purely psychiatric or other medical factors are not predominant," the statement said.

In two recent decisions, courts in North Carolina and the District of Columbia recognized alcoholism as a disease, and defined frequent public appearance in an intoxicated state as a symptom of alcoholism, not a criminal offense.

The decisions in the Driver case in the Fourth

Circuit Court in North Carolina and the Easter case in the Circuit Court for the District of Columbia are "important landmarks," the Journal editorial said.

"These decisions do not negate statutes punishing ordinary public drunkenness; neither do they deal with the . . . culpability of persons carrying out unlawful and antisocial acts while under the influence of alcohol.

"They do portend, however, the end of the time-worn practice of meeting the problems of public drunkenness . . . of chronic alcoholic persons primarily by incarcerating them as criminals, the editorial said.

The extent to which physicians assist the alcoholic in obtaining proper medical care and other help "will be a measure of our response to the challenge implicit in these decisions," said the editorial.

Bourbon makes man tolerable

Fish, it seems don't like the smell of people either.

According to The Insider's Newsletter, the discovery that the aromatic repulsion of fish and man is a mutual one was made by John W. Woods, chief of the Fisheries Division of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

He claims some fish won't take the bait because the fisherman's hands secrete an amino acid called serine which has a fighting odor to a fish.

His cure is to place one or two shots of bourbon in a glass, add a spoonful of sugar and a spoonful of salt, mix well, pour into an atomizer and spray the mixture over the body. This, he says, obscures the offensive odor and makes the fish more amenable to the bait.

Johnson To Make Trips, Speeches This Weekend

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson takes off this weekend on trips of national and international political import — including flying visits to New York State, New England and Canada. Sparse details of his itinerary are given out by the White House.

LYNDON JOHNSON Taking Weekend Trips

On Friday, he will visit and speak in Buffalo, Syracuse and Ellenville, N.Y.

On Saturday, he will receive an honorary degree from the University of Rhode Island at Kingston and will make what may be a major speech.

In Canada, on Sunday, he will cross the Canadian border, conferring

Soviet 'Blue Belt' Includes Fleet Of Submarines

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's vaunted "blue belt" of defense is being traced to its naval power which, by the best available yardsticks, includes a huge fleet of submarines with an increasing number of them powered by nuclear energy.

These presumably can launch missiles under water, multiplying the West's defense problems in the same way that American Polaris subs complicate Soviet defenses.

Information now available on the mysterious "blue belt" indicates that it includes other elements besides submarines. One is possibly the expanding Soviet naval air force for long-range defense against Western navies.

The defense minister, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky, started the "blue belt" mystery in a speech April 1. "The creation of the blue belt for defense of our state has been completed," he said without explanation.

On May 25, the defense minister of East Germany, Gen. Heinz Hoffmann, described the striking power of Soviet land-based missiles and said: "To this are added the atomic submarines of the blue defense belt, which can operate in every sea in the world."

with Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson of Canada at the Roosevelt Campobello International Park in New Brunswick.

Although the White House called the trip "nonpolitical," it was expected that the domestic legs of it might have an impact on several hot political contests in the Northeast, to be decided in November.

Presidential press secretary Bill D. Moyers said he was not able to confirm Wednesday reports that the President would speak at several other New England points besides those announced.

Among other activities, Johnson will board a Coast Guard cutter near Buffalo and inspect efforts being made to clean up pollution in Lake Erie. The subject of his talk there was not made known nor was such information available on his appearances in Syracuse or Ellenville where he will dedicate a community hospital.

After staying overnight in Ellenville he will proceed to New England and the university speech at Kingston will follow on Saturday.

In connection with his Sunday conference with the Canadian prime minister, Moyers noted that Johnson and Pearson have met five times before: in November 1963 at Washington, following the assassination of President John F. Kennedy; in January 1964 at Washington; September 1964 in Vancouver, B.C.; in January 1964 at the Johnson ranch in Texas and in May 1965 at Camp David, Md., presidential retreat.

The Roosevelt Campobello International Park was created by the two nations in honor of the memory of President Franklin D. Roosevelt who had a summer home there. Moyers said Johnson and Pearson would hold a general discussion of affairs, and also take part in the laying of a cornerstone in a new visitors pavilion in the park.

Prof To Study Opinions Of Highest Court

What the American public knows and feels about the U.S. Supreme Court will be the subject of a study by a professor of political science, supported by a $66,100 grant by the National Science Foundation.

Joseph Tanenhaus will direct the project, entitled "Collaborative Research on Constitutional Courts," with Walter F. Murphy, professor of political science at Princeton University. A public poll on the Supreme Court will be taken after the November elections as the first part of the study.

The second part will be a conference in the spring on "Constitutional Courts, Public Opinion, and Political Stability" at the Inter-University Consortium for Political Research at the University of Michigan. Political scientists from abroad will be invited to discuss the possibility of doing similar research on foreign constitutional courts, like those in Ireland and West Germany.

The National Science Foundation only recently began giving grants for political science projects involving systematic quantitative analysis.

Before coming here in September, 1965, Tanenhaus was professor of government and international relations at New York University, where he had taught 13 years. He holds B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees from Cornell University, receiving the last in 1953.

Conferees Reject Project Mohole

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate and House conferees agreed Wednesday on all but one item in a $14-billion bill to finance various Federal agencies.

The exception: a proposal to provide $19.7 million for Project Mohole, a plan for drilling deep into the earth's inner crust on the Pacific Ocean floor near Hawaii.

The House refused to include funds for Mohole when it passed the appropriations bill. The Senate amended the measure, however, to include funds for Mohole.

Sukarno Asks Public For Support

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Fighting for his political survival, President Sukarno delivered an impassioned appeal Wednesday to the Indonesian people to follow him, saying: "Without you, I will fail."

In an independence day speech before 80,000, Sukarno cried: "I am your great leader! Follow me, follow all my instructions!"

The strong plea for popular support came as military leaders continued to consolidate positions of power aimed at cutting off public support from the president, now largely a figure-head. Army troops were posted throughout the city.

In the vast throng were 1,000 anti-Sukarno students who jeered and yelled as the president declared he still was Indonesia's leader. One student held up a sign saying: "Beware of poisonous speeches that will make the people suffer."

Alternately whispering, shouting and snarling, Sukarno lashed out at the United States, counted on by the new Indonesia leaders to help bail out the nation from bankruptcy.

Sukarno denounced U.S. policy in Viet Nam and in effect repeated his "to hell with U.S. aid" slogan of his days of power.

"By what right does imperialism kill, burn, bomb, spread poison gas?" he demanded. "I implore America: America leave Viet Nam. Please America, please get out of Viet Nam."

Sukarno declared if the United States did not heed his appeal, "You, yourself, will land in trouble."

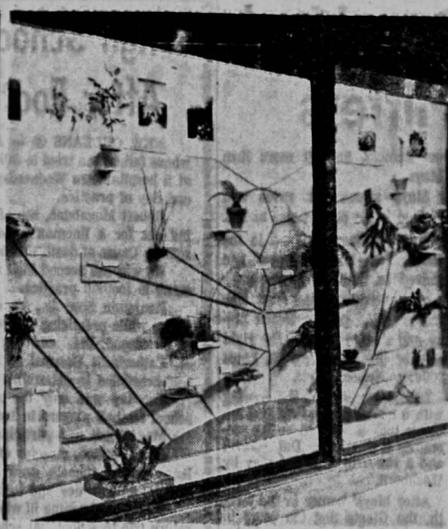

Sukarno then took off on foreign aid, saying Indonesia must stress self-reliance to rebuild its economy. This runs counter to army strong man Gen. Suharto's idea that Indonesia must have foreign aid to restore run-down communications, rubber plantations, factories and mines.

"Self-reliance," Sukarno said, "rejects a policy of begging. Yes, indeed, 'Go to hell' is still our slogan in facing the challenge of the measures of the world monopolies with their dirty tactics."

PRESIDENT SUKARNO Asks For Support

THE MUSEUM of National History staff at the University has installed a new exhibit titled "The Major Groups of the Plant Kingdom" on the ground floor at the south end of Macbride Hall. Done in cooperation with the Botany Department, the exhibit shows relationships within the major plant groups as well as gives an overall picture of the plant kingdom. It is intended for viewing by the general public as well as for use by university classes.

13 High School Journalists Here For Journalism Meet

Thirteen high school journalism educator-members of the Commission on Curriculum Study for the National Council of the Journalism Education Association (JEA) are currently engaged in a two-week curriculum conference here.

The session, which ends Aug. 24, is part of a major national study of the role of journalism in the secondary school curriculum and is sponsored by leading newspapers across the United States.

University participants in the program include Leslie G. Moeller, who spoke to the commission Monday on "Significant Trends in Journalism Education" and L. Erwin Atwood, assistant professor of journalism, who spoke Tuesday on an experimental communications workshop conducted by the School of Journalism.

Chairman of the Commission on Curriculum Study, which includes representatives from 10 states, is Sister Ann Christine, B.V.M., of LaSalle High School, Cedar Rapids. Robert L. Button, West High School, Waterloo, is also a member of the commission.

The National Council of JEA, an associate for journalism teachers and advisers of publications, has begun a three-year development program to determine areas of concentration which should be included in high school communications courses.

Deadly Capsule Of Radium Lost

NEW YORK (AP) — A "highly dangerous" capsule of radium has been lost in shipment somewhere between Fort Worth, Tex., and Woodside, Queens, the New York City Health Department disclosed late Wednesday.

Hanson Blatz, director of the department's Office of Radiation Control, said it would be particularly dangerous if anyone handled it or carried it on his person for more than half a hour.

It also "could have serious consequences" if it is kept for one or two weeks in a desk drawer or similar place and anyone is steadily in the same room with it, Blatz said.

The capsule, containing 300 milligrams of radium, was in a lead container inside a wooden crate. When the crate arrived at its destination, it had been broken. The plug of the lead shield and the capsule both were missing.

Blatz said the capsule had been shipped by the Gearhart-Owen Co., an oil well-logging concern of Fort Worth, where the capsule started its trip by rail to New York on July 26.

Area Business Managers To Meet Here This Fall

Area business and industrial managers will be given an opportunity to keep abreast of recent developments in management through a series of four Tuesday conferences to be held at the University this fall.

Registration for the series on the theme, "Management and Human Behavior," is under way at the Center for Labor and Management. The first conference will be Oct. 18, with succeeding conferences Nov. 1, 15, and 29.

At the first conference Don R. Sheriff, director of the Center for Labor and Management, will discuss "Human Behavior and Organization" and Duane E. Thompson, management program director of the Center, will lead a session on "Applications of Behavioral Research."

Morale and productivity will be examined from the viewpoints of labor and management Nov. 1, when Arden C. Walker, vice-president for industrial relations, Iowa Beef Packers, Inc., Dakota City, Neb., and Bertram Gottlieb, visiting professor at the Center, an industrial engineer on leave from AFL-CIO, will speak.

Jude P. West, associate director of the Center, will open the third conference, Nov. 15, with a session on "Managerial Delegation," followed by a discussion of "Participative Management" by Thompson.

The final conference will be devoted to an examination of "Attitude and Attitude Change" by Sheriff.

UAW Asks Wage Boost Of 50 Cents

DETROIT (AP) — Pressing for an increase now of at least 50 cents hourly for skilled tradesmen, the United Auto Workers Union (UAW) has told automakers it would consider any boost an advance on new contracts to be negotiated next year.

At least one Chrysler plant was shut down Wednesday as 400 workers left to join unionists demonstrating at General Motors (GM) headquarters for a wage increase for the skilled. Chrysler said workers had left for lunch and failed to return.

There were several hundred in the GM picket line as the demonstration began at 1 p.m. Union leaders had urged only those members not working Wednesday to participate.

While none would comment for direct quotation, industry sources indicated that the UAW would get a "no" next Monday to its request for contract reopening. They confirmed the 50-cent request. Union spokesmen would say only a "substantial increase" had been requested.

A Monday answer was asked three days ago by the union in secret meetings with the Big Three — General Motors, Ford and Chrysler — where current contracts run until Sept. 6, 1967.

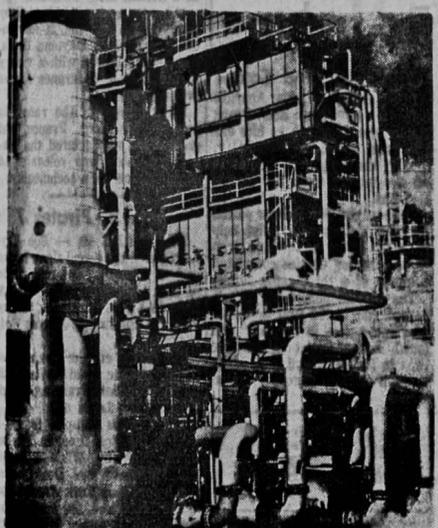

Speidel Head, Bunker, Dies

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Harry S. Bunker, president of Speidel Newspapers Inc. from 1957 to 1964, died here Wednesday.

Officials of the newspaper group in Reno, Nev., said Bunker, 66, died of complications which developed after major surgery.

He was chairman of the Speidel executive committee the last two years. Bunker entered the newspaper business in 1923 after graduation from the University of Iowa. He joined the staff of the Iowa City Press-Citizen in 1935, first newspaper in the Speidel group.

Bunker was a director of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association for six years. He was a director of the First National Bank of Colorado Springs since 1962.

80 To Attend Conference About Educational Media

Eighty delegates from the United States, Puerto Rico, and Canada are registered for the 12th annual Lake Okoboji Educational Media Leadership Conference which runs from Sunday through Thursday, Aug. 21 to 25, at the Iowa Lakeside Laboratory near Milford.

Purpose of the conference is to discuss problems in education and the educational media field. It is sponsored by the University Division of Extension and University Services and its Audiovisual Center, in cooperation with the National Education Association's Department of Audiovisual Instruction.

Lee W. Cochran, director of the Audiovisual Center and chairman of the conference, said that past conferences "have made a major contribution toward the acceptance of education media as an essential part of the educational program in the schools and colleges of this country."

The topics of this year's conference will be "Our Responsibility to Other Educational Media Oriented Groups" and "The Impact of Federal Legislation on Educational Media."

The keynote address will be given on Sunday by Philip Lewis, director of research development and special projects for the Chicago Board of Education.

Representing the University at the conference will be Cochran; Raymond Wiman and Lida M. Cochran of the College of Education; John R. Hedges, associate director of the Audiovisual Center; Donald Lacock of the center's graphic arts section; Ann Clark and Norman Felsenthal of the center; Edgar Joines, of Miami, Fla., a visiting instructor; and Calvin Mether, graduate assistant.

Mays Sets Home Run Mark For Right-Handed Hitters

WILLIE MAYS Sets Home Run Mark

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie Mays became the greatest right-handed home-run hitter in baseball history Wednesday and Jesus Alou drove in the winning run with a ninth inning pinch-hit single as San Francisco beat St. Louis 4-3.

Mays' 533rd career homer, giving him one more than Jimmy Foxx and sole possession of second place on the all-time homer list, came in the fourth inning off Ray Washburn.

It was his 30th homer of the season and went over the right-field fence on a line into a mob of children. The crowd of 32,035 shouted a standing ovation, and Mays returned from the dugout after circling the bases and tipped his cap.

Only Babe Ruth, with 714 career homers, has hit more than Mays.

Mays struck out twice and walked in his other times at bat.

With the score tied 3-3 in the ninth, Tom Haller singled and moved to third on a single by Jim Davenport. Alou then batted for relief pitcher Frank Linzy and singled through the right side of the infield off St. Louis reliever Nelson Briles.

Lou Brock started the scoring with a homer in the first and the Cards took a 3-0 lead in the second on a single by Dal Maxvill and a run-scoring double play by Washburn.

After Mays' homer in the fourth, the Giants tied the score in the eighth on run-scoring singles by Tito Fuentes and Willie McCovey.

Big 10 Sports Network Set; 24 States To Be Covered

CHICAGO — Big 10 football will have nearly nationwide radio coverage this fall through the new Big 10 Sports Radio Network, it was announced Wednesday by its originator, John Dickson.

To date, more than 160 stations covering 24 states outside the Big 10 area, coast-to-coast and Hawaii, plus the island of Guam and world-wide through the facilities of Armed Forces Radio, have joined the network.

By the first broadcast on Sept. 17, nearly 175 stations are expected to join the network, the largest independent sports network in the industry.

Announcers Named

Dickson also announced the lineup of announcers for the 10-week season — Bill Orwig of Indianapolis; Dick Beals of Los Angeles; and Steve Juday, co-captain of the 1965 Big 10 and national champion Michigan State Spartan football team.

Orwig, 26, becomes one of the youngest men to handle the play-by-play assignment of such a vast network. He is the son of J. W. (Bill) Orwig, Director of Athletics at Indiana. For the past several seasons, young Orwig has handled the state-wide Indiana football and basketball network.

Backing up Orwig will be Beals, who has appeared in hundreds of network radio shows and whose voice has become a mainstay for a number of national commercials. For more than 12 years Beals, 40, has been the voice of "Speedy Alka Seltzer." He is a Michigan State graduate and the immediate past president of the Big 10 Club of Southern California, one of the largest alumni clubs in the nation.

Juday Wins Award

Juday, 22, now a graduate student at Michigan State, gained his assignment as a result of the first annual "on-the-job-training" award, which will be given each season by the Big 10 network. He was selected from a list of outstanding seniors from the 1965 Big 10 football rosters.

Ed Willey, an engineering specialist from WFOX Milwaukee, will handle technical and engineering assignments for the series.

Dickson, who has produced Big 10 Game-of-the-Week broadcasts back to California for three seasons, predicts that the network will reach more than 250 stations in the 1967 season with greater emphasis on Eastern markets.

Dickson's background for the project comes from — setting up the original Los Angeles Dodgers' radio network when the team moved to California and forming radio networks for UCLA football and basketball, the Los Angeles Rams and the California Angels.

States included in the network: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, Kansas, Kentucky, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, Washington, Virginia, West Virginia, and Wyoming. . . plus the Territory of Guam and Armed Forces Radio.

The schedule:

Sept. 17 — North Carolina State at Michigan State.

Sept. 24 — Indiana at Northwestern.

Oct. 1 — Wisconsin at Iowa.

Oct. 8 — Michigan at Michigan State.

Oct. 15 — Purdue at Michigan State.

Oct. 22 — Purdue at Michigan State.

Oct. 29 — Illinois at Purdue.

Nov. 5 — Minnesota at Northwestern.

Nov. 12 — Wisconsin at Illinois.

Nov. 19 — Michigan at Ohio State.

High School Youth Dies After Football Practice

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A 16-year-old high school junior, whose father had tried to talk him out of playing football, died at a hospital here Wednesday after collapsing during the second day of practice.

Robert Mogabgab, son of a prominent physician, was trying out for a lineman's position on the Benjamin Franklin squad. Cause of death was not announced pending an autopsy.

He was the second high school player in two days to succumb in football practice.

Benjamin Stur Jr., 17, died Tuesday after suffering an injury while practicing with the Bishop Noll High School team in Hammond, Ind. Officials said he was dead on arrival at St. Catherine's Hospital in East Chicago, Ind. An autopsy was scheduled to determine the cause of death.

Tuesday was only the second day of practice for high school football players in Indiana.

Mogabgab had participated in a two hour session.

Jack Pizzano, director of physical education for New Orleans public schools, said the practice consisted of wind sprints, calisthenics and instruction in football fundamentals.

Mogabgab became ill when the boys got on the bus for the return trip to school. At school he was helped out of the bus, wrapped in blankets, and then taken to a hospital.

The father, Dr. William J. Mogabgab, 44, is an associate professor at the Tulane University Medical School. He is a specialist in the study of viruses.

Dr. Mogabgab said his son was given a complete physical examination before he was permitted to go out for football practice.

Nicklaus, Palmer Chosen For Canada Cup Matches

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, the season's second money winner, were named Wednesday to represent the United States in the international Canada Cup matches at Tokyo starting Nov. 10.

In picking the game's two muscle men, the special committee of the Japanese organizers passed over the year's No. 1 golfer, Bill Casper, winner of the U.S. Open and three other tournaments.

This is the fourth appearance in the matches for the 26-year-old Nicklaus, who won the individual title at Paris in 1963 and Hawaii in 1964. This is the fifth appearance for Palmer, who has shared in four team prizes but never won the individual crown.

Palmer shared the Canada Cup team victory with Nicklaus in 1963 and 1964 and with Sam Snead in Ireland in 1960 and Buenos Aires in 1962.

Nicklaus paired with the late Tony Lema last year in Madrid where the individual title was won by Gary Player of South Africa and the team prize by Player and Harold Henning.

Player and Henning again will represent South Africa and will compete against 37 other teams from throughout the world. Japan's representatives will be Hi-deyo Sugimoto and Mitsutaka Kono.

The event will be played over the Yomiuri Country Club course.

NICKLAUS PALMER

from this list is picked the two American players the hosts would most prefer to see.

Again it's Nicklaus and Palmer, two of the world's most successful and most publicized performers.

Palmer shared the Canada Cup team victory with Nicklaus in 1963 and 1964 and with Sam Snead in Ireland in 1960 and Buenos Aires in 1962.

Nicklaus paired with the late Tony Lema last year in Madrid where the individual title was won by Gary Player of South Africa and the team prize by Player and Harold Henning.

No Pressure Felt By Mays

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A relaxed and smiling Willie Mays said, "I don't think the pressure was on me at all," to hit the homer Wednesday that made him baseball's all-time right-handed slugger of home runs.

"I felt the pressure much more for 512," the San Francisco Giants center fielder told a crowd of newsmen about the homer in May that broke the National League record.

That was 23 homers ago. And now Mays has passed the 534 hit by Jimmy Foxx for second place on the all-time homer list and is behind only the left-handed Babe Ruth's 714.

"It was a fast ball away," Mays said about the line shot that cleared the right field fence and went about 380 feet.

Ray Washburn, the St. Louis right-hander who threw No. 535, said it was a slider. So did Cardinal catcher Tim McCarter.

"I feel real great about it," said Mays. "This is the first time anyone has achieved this in so short a time. The rest of those guys had 20 years and I've had only 15."

The baseball was caught by Joe Huestace, 16, of Oakland, Calif. He got $25 and two autographed baseballs for the ball that now goes to the Cooperstown Hall of Fame.

Chicago Bear Castoff Stars For New Atlanta Falcons

ATLANTA (AP) — The Chicago Bears had two of pro football's best rookies last year, but a youngster they kept on the bench is a top candidate for sophomore honors with the Atlanta Falcons.

Ron Smith was rarely employed in his rookie season by the Bears, who gave him away last winter by placing him in the player pool from which Atlanta's new National Football League team was stocked.

The oversight by the Bears has elated the Falcons, because Smith has been the Atlanta standout in all three of its exhibition games.

A defensive halfback, Smith is the Falcons' leading scorer with two touchdowns, and one of his three pass interceptions set up Atlanta's only other touchdown.

Smith intercepted two passes and returned a punt 42 yards in Atlanta's 9-7 loss to the Philadelphia Eagles.

Smith, who was not drafted by any pro club after an erratic career at Wisconsin, scored the

Race Car Driver Killed In Test Run

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Racing car driver Ken Miles was killed instantly Wednesday when a sports car he was testing went out of control at Riverside Raceway, a track official said.

The car veered off the course and flipped end over end. Miles, 47, was thrown clear of the car, which burst into flames.

Officials said Miles died of multiple injuries.

The car Miles was testing at Riverside was Ford's new Formula J car, a test vehicle which has never raced, an official said.

Miles, who lived in Hollywood, Calif., with his wife and two children, had been racing for nearly 30 years. He started racing motorcycles in his native England in 1938.

Miles came to the United States in 1951 after spending seven years as a British army sergeant.

Miles teamed with Lloyd Ruby this year to win the 24-hour endurance race at Daytona Beach, Fla., and followed with a victory at the 12-hour endurance test at Sebring, Fla.

He led most of the race this year at Le Mans, France, and originally was declared the winner but later was relegated to second place on a technicality.

Iowa Grid Player Pleads Innocent In Assault Charge

DES MOINES (AP) — Five Des Moines youths, one of them an Iowa football player, pleaded innocent Wednesday to charges of assault and battery filed by two teenagers.

Judge Harry B. Grund of Municipal Court set bond at $200 each pending trial Aug. 29 for William C. McCutchen, 20; Robert D. Williams, 19; Hubert C. Clark Jr., 20; David DeBolt Jr., 21, and Charles A. Becker, 19.

McCutchen is a defensive back on the Iowa varsity squad. He already had posted $15 bond pending a hearing next Tuesday on an intoxication charge.

The charges were filed by Miss Tomalin Thompson, 17, and John Arensberg, 19, both of Des Moines, as the result of an altercation last Friday night in front of Arensberg's home.

Baseball Roundup

Indians 5, Senators 3

CLEVELAND (AP) — Leon Wagner slammed a three-run homer in the seventh inning, boosting the Cleveland Indians to a 5-3 victory over the Washington Senators Wednesday night.

Larry Brown singled in another run in the seventh as the Indians wiped out a 3-1 Washington lead.

Rocky Colavito also hit his 26th homer for the Indians — a solo shot in the sixth inning.

Washington starter Pete Richert contributed to his own cause with a home run — his first — in the seventh.

The Senators picked up two unearned runs in the fifth.

Orioles 8, Red Sox 4

BOSTON (AP) — Luis Aparicio collected five hits and Frank Robinson collected three hits and two runs batted in Wednesday, leading the Baltimore Orioles to an 8-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Right-hander Jim Palmer posted his 14th victory with relief help from Stu Miller as the American League-leading Orioles completed a sweep of a three-game series.

The Orioles picked up an unearned run in the first and added single tallies in the third and fourth before exploding for five runs in the ninth inning en route to their eighth victory in nine games.

It's time you looked mental retardation square in the face.

The biggest enemy of this mentally retarded child is ignorance. Plain, old-fashioned ignorance.

Ignorance that says anyone who's mentally retarded should be shut away.

Ignorance that says the mentally retarded always have been and always will be burdens on society.

Ignorance that says the mentally retarded never can learn enough to hold jobs.

True, there are some severely retarded children. But the vast majority of them are like the youngster shown here. Attractive. Friendly. Capable of being educated and trained for jobs. Capable of living usefully and happily.

But only if all of us treat them as such as possible like other human beings. For the retarded can be made much worse—or much better—by the attitude of those around them. Families. Friends. Teachers. Recreation directors. Employers. Everybody.

How can you help retarded youngsters get a better break in life? You can find out easily enough. Simply write for the free booklet to The President's Committee on Mental Retardation, Washington, D.C.

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Skowron's three-run homer in the eighth inning boosted Chicago to a 4-2 victory over Kansas City in the first game of a two-night doubleheader Wednesday.

Kansas City had taken a 1-0 lead into the eighth but Don Bonifed doubled, went to third on a passed ball and, after Tom Agui walked, scored on an error of grounder by Ken Berry. Skowron then hit his sixth homer.

ABC To Televis Clay's Next Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — The ABC network said Wednesday the Sept. 11 world heavyweight title fight involving champion Cassius Clay and Karl Mildenberg of Germany would be telecast live on its circuit starting at 1:30 p.m. EDT.

The fight telecast from Frankfurt, Germany, via satellite will be followed by the Syracuse vs. Baylor football game from Waco, Tex.

Golf Winner Fires 64

HARTFORD, CONN. (AP) — Charles Coady of Fort Worth, Tex., fired a 7-under-par 64 at the Wethersfield Country Club Wednesday to take top honors in the pro-amateur warmup to the $100,000 Insurance City open.

Coady picked up $300 for his performance. He was three strokes better than the next best score, carded by George Archer, Kel Nagle, and Bob Goalby, who pocketed $250 each.

Bruce Crampton and Bobby Nichols had 68.

The 72-hole tournament begins Thursday.

Genetics May Help Solve Most Health Problems

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer

"You say you're sick, friend? You say you've got cancer, your kidneys won't function and your heart beats only half the time?"

"Tell you what I'm going to do, I'm going to let you have — for a small fraction of a dollar — a box of these pills absolutely guaranteed to make you into a new man."

That spiel of the oldtime medical quack is laughed at these days, but actually he may have been only 100 years or so ahead of his time.

May Be Available
Before this century ends, some reputable scientists believe, biological drugs may be available to counter virtually all the physical ills known to man. It may take longer, but the more optimistic are certain they are on the right track.

This confidence stems from recent gains in genetics, a comparatively new science that probes the molecular makeup of the living cell.

Geneticists are beginning to crack the great mysteries of how cells pass on information and stronger hearts, but first it will be employed in efforts to make the bodies we have function with less trouble.

Subject of this research is the gene, an intricately fashioned molecule in the heart of the cell which has two vital functions: to control the heredity of the species and to direct the growth of the individual.

Goal Is Correction
Accidental changes in the cell frequently result in deformation or disease. The goal of man-made mutations is to correct defects and cure disease.

Eventually this new skill may be used to grow better brains and which are repressed.

Chemically Encoded
Just how a cell knows which genes to activate and which to repress is not fully known, but apparently the instructions are chemically encoded in the genes. Geneticists are busy cracking this code and many believe that the ability to turn any gene on or off is not far distant.

Since genes are made up of chemicals, they can be altered by adding or removing chemicals or by changing the arrangement of chemicals in their structure. The instruction they carry can be changed. By learning the genetic code — the language of the genes — scientists hope to control their functions.

One of the Genes' tasks is to direct the manufacture of proteins, the stuff of which living tissue is made. Some cells are directed to make muscle, others to make bone, nerve or hair.

Some cells make proteins for use elsewhere in the body. Among the transported proteins are substances called antibodies. Antibodies react against invading bacteria and viruses and the poisons they produce.

Antibodies Persist
Once formed, antibodies tend to persist in the body, providing an immunity against the disease caused by the invader.

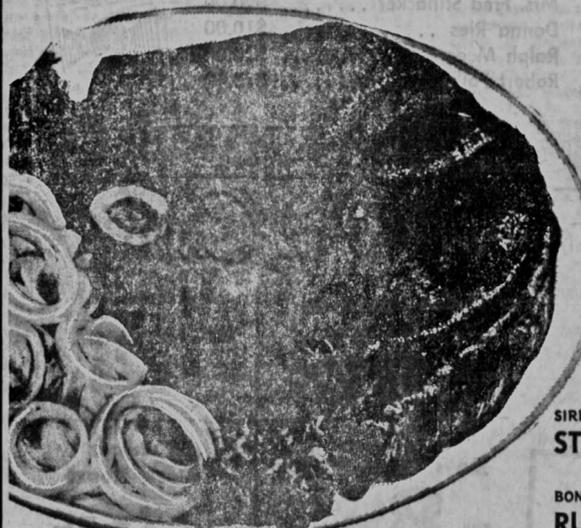

But what if genes could be directed, simply by taking pills containing certain chemicals, to increase antibody production when you are sick from a virus infection and to reduce antibody production when you need a new kidney or heart?

With full knowledge of how genes work, it could be that you would never need a transplant.

If a kidney started to fall, the genes in the kidney cells might be directed to repair the damage.

Even the most dreaded disease, cancer, could be whipped through control of genes.

Cancer is a wild, uncontrolled growth of cells. If the genes of cancer cells could be turned off chemically, the cancer cells would die and be carried away through normal body elimination processes. The cells adjacent to the cancerous area could then take over and repair any damage.
