Argentines Hijack Plane, Try To Capture Islands

Woman Leads Extremists In Protest Of Britain's Rule

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A group of 18 young Argentine extremists led by a 27-year-old woman apparently surrendered to British authorities after hijacking an airliner Wednesday and forcing it to land in the Falkland Islands in a bold nationalistic stroke.

The hijacking was led by a Buenos Aires business woman identified as Maria Christina Verrier. The takeover came only hours before Argentine Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez told the United Nations General Assembly his country is confident its dispute with Great Britain over the South Atlantic islands will be settled soon.

Argentina claims the islands, which it calls the Malvinas, are its territory and were illegally placed under British rule in 1833.

The hijacking also coincided with the current informal visit here of Britain's Prince Philip, husband of Queen Elizabeth II. He plans to be in Argentina until Oct. 18 in connection with the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Argentine Republic.

To Dramatize Claim

The avowed purpose of the daring exploit was to dramatize Argentina's claim on the barren South Atlantic islands that Britain has held for 133 years.

Nine hours after the four-engine plane landed on a tiny strip with 48 persons aboard, the British Embassy in Buenos Aires said the situation was under control at Port Stanley, capital of the two islands 2,000 miles south of here.

An embassy spokesman said authorities at Port Stanley reported that the "passengers and crew members were removed from the aircraft and distributed at houses." The cable added there had been no clashes between British personnel and the 18 raiders. The hijackers had previously radioed they had taken two British police officers as hostages.

Government-Owned Plane

The Argentine government-owned DC4 was on a scheduled flight from Buenos Aires to Rio Gallegos, an Atlantic port 1,700 miles south of here, when it was taken over. It carried 43 passengers, including three infants, and five crew members.

In London, the Times carried a front-page story by its diplomatic correspondent saying, "From first reports of the 'taken invasion' of the Falkland Islands it appears that the Argentine government was not itself behind the landing. The incident was evidently shaped to give publicity to the Argentine claim to the Falklands at a time when the United Nations has received a report on bilateral talks on the Falklands between Britain and Argentina."

Guards Called In To Quell Rioting

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — National Guard troops moved into the riot-torn Hunters Point section of San Francisco Wednesday night as shootings, rock and bottle-throwing incidents and street corner beatings kept police on the run in the area where racial strife broke out suddenly Tuesday night.

Three hundred additional highway patrolmen were ready to move in to reinforce police.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown broke off his re-election campaign tour in Southern California and took a plane to San Francisco. He said "Californians and their government will more than ever match force against force."

"We cannot, and will not, tolerate violence of any kind. Our whole interest is now to restore peace, order and security to the community. This violence has got to stop."

A police patrolman was wounded, not seriously, by a rooftop sniper in a section of Hunters Point that had been cleared of small street corner crowds a few minutes earlier.

Reports said 15 other persons in the area had been wounded.

Police sealed off 10 blocks in the area when Negroes threw rocks and bottles at firemen who responded to a false alarm.

Firemen said Molotov cocktails — gasoline bombs — were thrown from windows of the Bayview Community Center at 3rd and Newcomb streets. Police closed the building.

Firemen asked police to verify fires before trucks responded to alarms, and then to accompany the fire equipment to the fire.

Helmeted police carrying shotguns and automatic rifles worked in groups during the afternoon of record heat for the date, 95 degrees at 3:30 p.m.

Lines of National Guard troops, 25 to 30 men abreast, swept 3rd street to break up groups that had regathered in the area cleared by police earlier.

Entry To Stadium To Be Speedier

None of more than 10,000 students expected at the football contest with Wisconsin Saturday should have to spend the early minutes of the game waiting outside of the stadium walls, Francis (Buzz) Graham, athletic business manager, said Wednesday.

An estimated 500 students had to stand outside the gates last Saturday while stadium guards inspected each ID photo and punched each season ticket.

The bottleneck occurred outside of the west stands about 15 minutes before game time, and by the time most of the students found their seats the score was 7-0, and the first quarter was history.

Graham said the delay was due not so much to the system of checking IDs as to other unexpected factors.

A mix-up among the gatekeepers at gate 13 caused most of the congestion. The guards taking tickets there incorrectly thought it was a public entrance Graham said.

Thus despite protests, the Hawkeye fans were held back. Adding to the problem were new students who did not have their current certificate of registration or ID photo. While these students stood to plead their case, others waited.

To prevent this from happening again, Graham said that a guard would be posted several feet in front of each student gate to see that everyone has his proper credentials ready.

Graham also said students with tickets in the west bleachers may enter any odd-numbered gate in the student section (13 through 21). Those in the north bleachers must enter gate 23.

Ethnic Relations Is Lecture Topic

Stanley Lieberman, former director of the Iowa Urban Community Research Center, will lecture on "Language and Ethnic Relations" at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol.

The Department of Sociology and Anthropology is sponsoring the lecture. It will be free to the public.

Lieberman will draw from his research in French communities in Canada. He received a Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in 1959, and was director of the research center here from 1959 to 1961. He is the author of several articles and a book, "Explorations in Sociolinguistics."

Schwengel Tells Of GOP's Need

By PHIL MCCABE
Staff Writer

Former U.S. Representative Fred Schwengel Wednesday told Young Republicans (YRS) that the Republican party is at the threshold of death and to save it the party needs young people at the grass roots.

Schwengel, a former Republican congressman from the first district, is seeking to regain the seat he lost to John R. Schmidhauser (D-Iowa) in the 1964 election.

Schwengel accused Schmidhauser of "telling a falsehood" when he said that he (Schmidhauser) had gotten the bridge at Muscatine built and that nothing had been done in the previous 10 years. Schwengel said he had sponsored a bill that was defeated calling for the same thing in 1956.

Schwengel then revealed his Iowa Plan for Higher Education which he said would provide a $50 tax credit to each family for each child until reaching the age of 18. This tax credit would be used to purchase an investment certificate that would be negotiable at any institution of higher education.

Schwengel stressed that this money would not be paid to the government, but to a private institution which would hold the certificates until the child reached college age.

Turning to the other issues, Schwengel told the YRS "The real cause of infla-

Poverty Director Tells Problems Of Iowa's Poor

"In Iowa poverty means you're terribly self-reproaching because you know you're not supposed to be poor," said Arthur Douglas at Wednesday's League of Women Voters meeting.

Douglas, who is the executive director of the Hawkeye Area Community Action Program, spoke to the women on "The Meaning of Poverty."

He said it was necessary to look realistically at the problem of poverty.

"Unfortunately, as much as we would like to think so, the poor are not more resilient to despair and they're not going to be better people than we are."

"Being poor doesn't mean just that you don't have enough money," Douglas said. "It means frustration and political impotence; it means being unable to do anything about your environment."

Douglas thought that people were not aware that there were slum areas around Iowa City as bad as those in San Francisco and Washington, D.C. He said that according to the 1960 Census, one out of five families in Johnson County has an income of less than $3,000 a year.

He explained that the Economic Opportunity Act is a step in the right direction because, "It listens to what the poor have to say."

By encouraging youngsters to stay in school the act is helping to increase the opportunities for escaping from the "trap" of poverty, Douglas added.

He thought something should be done to provide better housing. He also thought special legal services should be developed for the poor.

tion is LBJ." He continued that the way to solve the inflation problem was to send dollar-conscious Republicans to Washington.

Schwengel, in a question and answer session, told the YRS, "Viet Nam is a fact and I think that we should support our boys as long as they are there." He said he did not think further escalation was the answer to the problem.

He said he would, at the present time, support Richard Nixon, George Romney or Charles Percy for the Republican nomination for President in 1968.

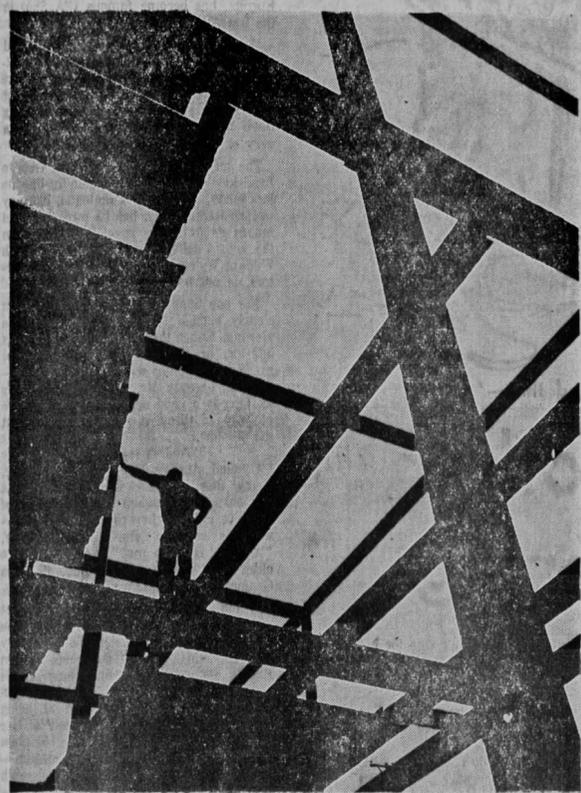

Schwengel called for wholehearted support of Republican candidates from now until the November election.

Following Schwengel's speech, Ed Bastian, former University basketball player and first district Republican campaign committeeman, told the YRS of the plan to get out the vote in Johnson County. He enlisted their help.

In other business, Carl Varner, A2, Centerville, was appointed to replace Mark Monahan, A3, Audubon, as chairman. Monahan had resigned to become head resident of Hillcrest Dormitory. Varner moved from treasurer to chairman and Kent Peterson, P3, Quincy, Ill., was named to replace Varner as treasurer.

Mistaken Bombing Kills 35 South Viet Civilians

HON BA, South Viet Nam (AP) — Americans did their best Wednesday to relieve distress at this Montagnard hamlet, where two U.S. Marine jets killed 35 civilians and wounded 16 in a mistaken bombing Tuesday. The survivors were bitter and angry.

"This is a real tragedy," said Donald Rosell of San Diego, Calif., a representative of the U.S. AID mission in Viet Nam. "But I guess it was just one of those things that happen in war."

The explosion of 500-pound bombs and a wind-driven fire that followed destroyed 120 grass-thatched huts, about three-fourths of those making up the hamlet. Several water buffalo were killed. Villagers butchered these draft animals for meat.

The wrecked hamlet is in Quang Ngai, northernmost of South Viet Nam's provinces, where U.S. Marines are campaigning with air and artillery support against infiltrating North Vietnamese regulars.

It is seven miles southwest of Quang Ngai City, the provincial capital, and 3,000 yards east of the strike zone assigned to the Marine planes.

Officers sought to determine how the pilots happened to stray — whether faulty coordinates, instrument trouble or other factors were involved. Marine Brig. Gen. Jonas Platt said he would have no comment until an investigation is completed.

A string of such errors over the last three months is estimated by unofficial sources to have killed 146 South Vietnamese civilians and wounded 233. Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the U.S. commander, appointed a military review board in August to draft revised procedures and controls.

The Hon Ba case was particularly unfortunate because the Montagnards, a normally nomadic hill people, have supplied thousands of men for the Special Forces recruited and trained by U.S. Green Beret teams and for the Vietnamese militia.

American Troops Now Being Used In Mekong Delta

SAIGON (AP) — American soldiers are campaigning in South Viet Nam's rice-rich Mekong River delta for the first time, the U.S. command disclosed Wednesday. This is one step to speed up the allied war effort in a sector where it has been inclined to drag.

A spokesman said Wednesday elements of the 25th Infantry Division have been in the delta for 13 days, conducting a joint operation with Vietnamese troops. So far there has been no significant contact with the Viet Cong.

The Vietnamese have claimed sole responsibility for pursuit of the war throughout the 4th Corps area, the southern section laced by the Mekong River and its tributaries. Even elite Vietnamese units, however, such as rangers and airborne troopers, have been unable to root out the thousands of guerrillas infesting the region.

Council To Get Park Work Plan

The grading plan for the proposed 27-acre park, to be located in the southeast part of Iowa City, will be sent to the City Council for approval Tuesday, Ed Bailey, director of parks and recreation, said Wednesday. The grading plan includes provisions for storm and sanitary sewers and water lines.

Bailey said plans for the park's bath house and swimming pool would be ready about Dec. 4. Bids for their construction will be taken beginning Dec. 15. The estimated cost is about $225,000. The tentative date for the opening of the pool is July 1, 1967.

The new park will include lighted baseball and softball fields, a lawn game field, a play-ground, horse shoe, shuffle board and tennis courts and a 300-car capacity parking lot. The parking lot will be used for ice-skating in the winter.

Bailey said the new park would be the only park in the eastern part of Iowa City. He said the park was planned as an "intense use park; in other words, we're going to have a lot of activity out there."

The park is bounded by Bradford Street on the north, Dover Street on the east, the C.P.R.I. Railroad tracks on the south, and Southeast Junior High School on the west.

Narcotics Ring Suspected As Rash Of Thefts Hits Area

Four doctors' bags — three containing narcotics — have been stolen within the last 10 days from cars parked in the Iowa City area.

Iowa City police and state agents who are working together on the case, suspect the thefts were committed either by narcotics addicts or narcotics "pushers."

Johnson County Attorney Robert W. Jansen said the thefts of the four bags are among several thefts doctors and dentists have reported in Iowa during the last two months. This has led to speculation that the thieves are tied in with a narcotics ring.

Jansen said the thieves seem to be working their way south from northern Iowa. Similar thefts occurred earlier in Waverly and Marion and later in Washington and Mount Pleasant.

One of the four bags taken was reported stolen in Iowa City, one in Coralville, one in West Branch, and the fourth in Lone Tree. All were taken from doctors' parked cars.

Iowa City detectives said they thought the thefts were by "persons passing through." The detectives met Tuesday with state authorities to determine if there was a pattern to the thefts.

Jansen said the bag stolen in Iowa City was recovered by the Highway Patrol from a rest area along Highway 218 north of Iowa City. A second bag, stolen at Coralville, was found less than a mile from the city.

Bloody gauze and used hypodermic needles were also found by police, Jansen said, and the materials indicated the thefts were committed by two persons.

Promises, promises

The athletic department got a good workout Tuesday night; but it was on the playing field of the Student Senate, not its own.

What the senate got was a lot of promises — a promise to allow students to pick up tickets without bringing their dates, a promise to make the seating arrangement more suitable to the student body by next fall, a promise to correct the slow-moving line of students trying to get into the stadium. Possibly the first promise will be fulfilled by Homecoming Oct. 22. The better seating arrangement was left largely up to the Board in Control of Athletics which promised to allow three students to sit in as representatives with no voting power. Senate President Tom Hanson said the board would have leeway for a solution to the seating problem and that student representation would help insure a better seating arrangement.

The Student Senate's inquiry of members of the athletic board and Athletic Director Forest Evashevski was a good opportunity to wield power that the senate should have. The senate must, however, insure that the athletic board does live up to its promises, and we trust it will exert pressure in the future to straighten out this seating mess.

Perhaps the athletic board has been operating on the assumption that student wishes can be ignored because the smaller the number of students paying $10 a season, the larger the number of the general public can be accommodated at $25 a season.

To an extent, this is true. For each student who decides not to buy a $10 season ticket, there will be John Q. Public ready to snap it up at $25.

But the student does have a trump card. The revenue from student tickets is to be used for financing the proposed additions and remodeling of the Field House. If the students dislike any new system and refuse to buy season tickets, then the Field House plans are going to run into a formidable roadblock. If the students are not satisfied with what they get for $1 at the basketball games the Field House will lose another chunk. With that in mind, the board does have a responsibility to the preferences of the students, for monetary purposes if not for reasons of due consideration.

Some student senators want student representation with voting power on the board of athletics. This is understandable when the student body is helping to pay its way in athletic activities, more so now than ever.

At least the board has shown that it will consider matters when the pressure is on — and it is.

Is Congress only Administration's rubber stamp?

Through its own lack of courage, the United States Congress has become little more than a rubber stamp for the White House.

So says an article in the October Reader's Digest, which presents a variety of cases in which Congress has abandoned its Constitutional duty to make our laws. To no one's surprise, the Executive Branch has stepped in to fill the resultant vacuum, and in so doing has flouted both the law and tradition.

Digest Washington Editor Charles Stevenson notes that one law clearly calls for the Executive Branch to submit five-year estimates of what new federal programs will cost. But the Administration ignores the law. Budget Director Charles L. Schultze told Congress: "We're not sure that it is always wise to express the authorizations in dollar terms." Instead, he insisted Congress should merely approve "goals" presented by the Administration.

Another law flatly forbids officers and employees of the Executive Branch to use appropriated funds for lobbying. Yet once the President has approved a legislative proposal, departmental agents swarm over Capitol Hill lobbying for its passage. Congressmen who fail to support the Administration are punished by having patronage cut off, or being denied access to party promotion machinery. With a few exceptions, Congressmen meekly accept this treatment.

Insufficient Debate
As a result of Congressional lethargy, bills are often passed without sufficient debate, Stevenson shows. Most Congressmen thought that Medicare provided only for the elderly. But now they have found that the law they passed also allows any state to furnish medical care for anyone regardless of age; the oversight could add a billion dollars a year to Medicare's cost.

In another case, Stevenson writes a controversial banking bill involving nearly $11 billion was passed by the House Banking and Currency Committee after hearing only two witnesses — both sent by the President.

With little opposition from Congress, the Executive Branch is getting laws passed that are "so vaguely written that it can make them mean just about anything it wants," writes Stevenson. Loose wording in the $2.3-billion poverty program has given officials "an incredibly free hand" in administering the program, he says.

As but one example, he says, "The Department of Housing and Urban Development was enabled to make an outright gift of $81,351 for tennis courts and a 1.6-acre park in Somerset, a swank Washington suburb . . . while the adjacent District of Columbia was left without funds to light playgrounds needed by tens of thousands of poor children."

Erosion Dangerous
Liberals and conservatives alike agree that the erosion of Congressional powers is both dangerous and degrading. Commentator Eric Sevareid finds "the once exalted title of Senator or Representative has lost much of its prestige." Democratic Congressman Otis Pike says, "The accumulation of powers in the Executive Branch, at the expense of Congress, is so huge that our system of checks and balances has largely broken down."

The situation makes the November 8 elections "as important as any in history," Stevenson writes; they offer a chance to elect not just Republican or Democrat, liberal or conservative, but men and women who "will join the battle to make Congress an independent branch of the government which takes orders only from the electorate."

Big Brother is listening

By ART BUCHWALD
WASHINGTON — It has been reported that President Johnson has a bugging device in his specially built limousine which has a reverse twist on it. Although the people along the route can't hear what he is saying, the device makes it possible for him to hear what the people are saying.

This is a very dangerous thing for any politician to do. Those of us who have covered many political campaigns know that what the people seem to be yelling and what they are actually yelling are two different things.

I truly fear for the consequences.

Suppose the President is driving down Main Street and he turns his bugging system on. This is what he might hear:

"Officer, when is this parade going to be over?"

"I'm trying to get to the shoe store before it closes."

"Don't ask me, lady. But you can't cross until the President goes by."

"Why not? I didn't vote for him."

"That's not the point. We have orders not to let anybody cross the street."

"But what about my shoes?"

"Lady, how often does the President of the United States drive down the Main Street of Ranpuckett?"

"How often do I get a chance to buy a new pair of shoes?"

"Hey, you kids, get back there. The President's going by."

"Crazy, man. We thought the fuzz on the motorcycles were looking for us."

"Look, he's waving at us."

"Don't wave back. He'll think we're for his policy in Viet Nam."

"Which one is the President, Daddy?"

"Send George Hamilton to Saigon."

"Okay, folks, now get back. Get back."

"Free Adam Clayton Powell."

"Who's the fellow in the car with Congressman Healy?"

"That's the President, you dope."

"He'll never save Healy."

"Healy could lose the election for the President."

"Martha, Martha, I'm over here."

"I see you but I can't get over to you until this damn parade is over."

"Officer, I'm from the press. How many people would you say are lined up along the street?"

"The chief of police told us not to say."

"Could you hazard a guess?"

"About 2,000, but the chief's a Democrat so he'll probably tell you 10,000."

"We want Bobby. We want Bobby. We want Bobby."

"There he is. There he is. Oh, I wish he'd stop and shake hands with us."

The President immediately shouts something to his driver who stops the limousine. The President climbs out and goes over and starts shaking hands. Then he gets back into the car again, smiling and very pleased.

"He stopped and shook hands with us, Gertrude. It's almost as if he heard exactly what you were saying."

Football fan asks for break

To The Editor:
Leaflets sent by the University to entering freshmen point out that the Big Ten campus encompasses approximately 1300 acres bordering the Iowa River. It's a wonderful sales pitch to the unknowing freshman who doesn't realize that through the fall, winter, and spring he will trek and retreat those acres a thousand times in a pair of loafers.

His classes will begin at 7:30 in the morning and go well into the afternoon. Weekdays are miserable, but then there's the big weekend on the Big Ten campus and EVERYBODY looks forward to the football games on Saturday afternoon.

At least everybody used to — now just picking up a ticket, to support the home team, has become so involved that it's easier to sit in a eight by ten room and listen to the sports broadcaster.

But who cares? Certainly not the athletic department! They stopped cooperating with the student long ago, apparently in hopes that he'll stay home and make available more $5 seats.

Over the past couple of years the Department of Athletics has effected many changes in student seating at athletic activities. Last winter the student body weathered a limit on basketball seating and this spring right before finals the opportunists in the Field House proposed still another plan to bring in the $5 alum.

It's enough to pay $10 for a student ticket (and that's just for the football season — wait until basketball), but how many students hoofing the 1300 acre campus everyday have time to get together in a body and hike up to the Field House to reserve a seat? And that's what it amounts to — pick up your date and physically take her across the windy river

'Peons' unhappy with new society

To the editor:
Let's call a spade a spade! How much longer can the "haves" hold out on the "have nots."

We're speaking of the so-called fraternal system here at the University. We could think of a few more appropriate terms than "fraternity" or "sorority" but common decency forbids us to put them in print.

It's not that we have anything against a few drinking parties or amorous nights, but why do the dorm residents and students living in approved housing have to live up to a strict puritanical code. When is the University going to admit that as "peons" we must follow the old ways while our fraternal friends enjoy the fun and freedom of our new sophisticated society?

'How to Steal' is semi-success

By NICHOLAS MEYER
For The Iowan

"Right, then. Into that room and off with your clothes," says handsome Peter O'Toole to lovely Audrey Hepburn, who responds, "Are you sure we're planning the same sort of crime?" It seems that when all is said and done, they are — for slightly different reasons.

The crime is the theft of a priceless Cellini Venus, residing in illegitimate pomp and highbrow respectability at the Gallery Lafayette in Paris. She wants it because it's a fake and the discovery will ruin her criminal but loveable poppa (Hugh Griffith), who passed it off as genuine — along with a steady stream of his own forgeries, in which he takes great pride. O'Toole is there helping her because — well, it's really not to be given away.

Better Than Semi-Failure

"How to Steal a Million" is a semi-success, which, all things considered, is better than a "semi-failure." Like an A-minus instead of a B-plus. The film's greatest asset is its screenplay, which is filled with the crackling wit for which its author, Harry Kurnitz, has become famous ("A Shot in the Dark" etc.).

Mr. Kurnitz can be said to have had some previous experience with alk-writen mystery-suspense scripts about art forgeries. It is not so many years ago that his book "Reclining Figure" was packing them in on Broadway, where it made a very exciting and clever play.

The screenplay he has written of George Bradshaw's short story, is line-for-line no less funny, but Kurnitz's dialogue, like any well-written comedy, has its own style and makes its own very specific demands on the actors delivering it. The trouble with William Wyler's production is that the actors do not handle the lines properly.

For one thing, they do not handle them clearly enough to be understood at one viewing. Either the quality of the sound is inferior, or Hugh Griffith just was not made to take pains with his enunciation — too bad, because Mr. Griffith, when he is working is a good actor, and here, all he did was to throw a good part right out the window.

Audrey is Trying

I found Audrey Hepburn very trying, always dewy-eyed and modeling the latest fashions. Indeed, when the exigencies of the plot call for her to appear in charwomen's costume, she petulantly asks, "What's that do for me?" to which O'Toole observes, "Well, for one thing, it gives Givency a night off."

I, too, was relieved, but it was not enough. I would have rather seen one with far less acting mannerisms — or very different ones — take the role. Lauren Bacall, for example, would have made much more of the dialogue's potential. Audrey Hepburn works too hard at being cute, when she really doesn't need it. Her obvious intention is to be very helpless and feminine — which she is already — but the way she goes about it here is with the subtlety of a falling wall.

Mr. O'Toole is less bothersome when he isn't playing his part with shades of Lawrence, a temptation to which he frequently succumbs.

By far the actor who knows most what to do with Harry Kurnitz dialogue is Eli Wallach, whose appearance as a sub-plot American art lover in Paris, is easily the best performance in the film.

Charles Boyer's bit as a dealer, may be gratifying for the sake of nostalgia, but he is very much wasted with the little he is given to do.

William Wyler, a usually competent ("The Collector") and sometimes inspired ("Roman Holiday") director, is to be taken to task for not working enough with his actors, and giving them on their own heads too much; they fall back on over-exposed mannerisms and just plain lazy performances.

"How to Steal a Million" is too glib in its direction. The mechanics are there, but no pains have been taken with the film. However, if you can catch the lines, it is worth seeing, if only to hear Harry Kurnitz doing what he does best, and that includes a fairly ingenious and funny burglary.

I NEGLECTED TO CONSIDER THE LAW OF SUCTION.

14 Professors Join Faculty

Fourteen new faculty members, including an institute director and department chairman, have joined the Colleges of Business Administration, Engineering and Law.

Professor and new director of the Institute of Hydraulic Research in the College of Engineering is John F. Kennedy. Thomas P. Anderson is new professor and chairman of the Department of Mechanical Engineering.

Other new professors are Fred C. Leone, who holds a joint appointment as professor of industrial and management engineering, and statistics; and Bertram Gottlieb, a visiting professor in the Center for Labor and Management of the College of Business Administration.

New associate professors are Earl N. Bailey, business administration; Earl D. Eymann, who holds a joint appointment in mechanical and electrical engineering; and Darrell D. Penrod, mechanics and hydraulics.

New assistant professors are Bruce D. Campbell, law; Edgar R. Czarnecki, business administration; Hyman Joseph, economics; Sun-Tak Twang, chemical engineering; Franklin D. Moore, electrical engineering; John H. Smith, accounting; and Burns Weston, law.

Civil Engineer

Kennedy, who became director of the Institute of Hydraulic Research July 1, received his B.S. from the University of Notre Dame in 1955, an M.S. from the California Institute of Technology in 1956, and his Ph.D. from Cal. Tech. in 1960, all in civil engineering. He was formerly associate professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Anderson comes to the University from Northwestern University where he was associate professor of mechanical engineering and astronomical sciences. He earned his B.S. in 1956, M.S. in 1958, and Ph.D. in 1961 from Northwestern in mechanical engineering.

Leone, formerly professor of statistics at Case Institute, earned his B.A. in mathematics from Manhattan College in 1942, his M.A. in mathematics from Georgetown University in 1943, and his Ph.D. in mathematics and statistics from Purdue University in 1949. He is currently editor of the technical statistical journal, "Technometrics."

Gottlieb, who is on leave as an industrial engineer for the Research Department of the AF-CIO in Washington, D.C., holds B.S. and an M.S. in industrial management from Illinois Institute of Technology.

On Leave From Texas
Bailey, visiting associate professor, received his B.S. in accounting in 1960, an M.B.A. in finance in 1961, and a D.B.A. in finance in 1964, all from Indiana University. He is on leave from an assistant professorship in finance at the University of Texas.

Formerly a research engineer for Caterpillar Tractor Co., Peoria, Ill., Eymann earned his B.S. in engineering physics in 1959, his M.S. in mathematics in 1960 from the University of Illinois, and his Ph.D. in electrical engineering from the University of Colorado this year. Seminar To Study Therapist's Role

The physical therapist's role in disaster situations will be outlined Friday at the opening session of the ninth annual Rehabilitation Seminar for Physical Therapists at the University.

Describing events before and after the armory explosion at Keokuk last November will be James B. Smith, chief physical therapist at Graham Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital in Keokuk.

Other subjects to be discussed at the seminar, which will conclude at noon Saturday, will be sports, medicine, electrotherapy, communications, and the needs and problems in the field of physical therapy.

BRING ON THE BADGERS! Terry Mulligan, 6-3, 230 pound defensive right tackle for the Hawkeyes, believes Iowa can stop Wisconsin's four-game winning streak over the Hawks here Saturday. "They're number is finally up," he says.

Badgers Hold Scrimmages In Preparation For Hawks

Grossman was a starter in the defensive secondary last season but Cavill beat him out of his job this year.

Coach Milt Bruhn sent the Badgers through two 10-minute scrimmages. The first was at the goal line and the second was devoted to sharpening the passing attack.

Sophomore quarterback John Ryan, his left ankle heavily taped, continued to alternate with junior John Boyajian at quarterback. Ryan's ankle has not fully recovered from a pre-season sprain.

Linebacker Mike Criter, who suffered a leg injury that cost him a starting job, will miss the Iowa game, Bruhn said. It had been hoped that Criter would be ready by Saturday.

Wisconsin will begin tapering off from heavy drills Thursday.

Pirates 2, Phillies 1
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Donn Clendenon's 28th home run and clutch relief pitching by Steve Blass and Tommy Sisk carried Pittsburgh to a 2-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday night in the first game of a crucial two-night doubleheader.

Indians 4, Twins 0
MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP) — The Cleveland Indians spoiled Jim Kaat's bid to become the 'biggest winner in the major leagues Wednesday by defeating Minnesota 4-0 behind Luis Tiant's six-hit pitching.

Kaat, whose 25 victories tie him with Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles for the major league lead, was tagged with his 12th defeat. He yielded six hits in eight innings, including Joe Azcue's eighth home run.

Tony Oliva, runnerup to Baltimore's Frank Robinson in the American League batting race, had three hits for the Twins. This lifted his batting average to .308. Robinson is hitting .316.

Sports Briefs

RED SCHOENDIENST HAS signed a contract to manage the St. Louis Cardinals for the 1967 season, August A. Busch Jr., president of the Cardinals announced Wednesday. It will be Schoendienst's third year as manager of the Redbirds. He became the Cardinal manager at the end of the 1964 season after serving as a St. Louis coach for two seasons.

LEN DAWSON, KANSAS CITY'S veteran quarterback, was named the American Football League's offensive player of the week Wednesday by The Associated Press. Dawson completed 20 of 22 passes for 291 yards in the Chiefs' 43-24 rout of the Boston Patriots last Sunday.

THE BOSTON RED SOX placed added stress on an all-out youth movement by naming 37-year-old Dick Williams manager Wednesday in a bid to regain baseball respectability in the American League. Williams, a former utility player in the major leagues, was picked to guide the Red Sox' flock of young prospects after leading Toronto, Boston's top farm club, to two straight International League playoff victories in his first try at managing.

SHORTSTOP LUIS APARICIO of the American League champion Baltimore Orioles said Wednesday, "You bet your life I want to come back next year." It's the most positive statement he has made in years about an upcoming season. Usually at this time of year he hints it will be his last season.

NEBRASKA FOOTBALL COACH Bob Devaney indicated Wednesday he would use midweek scrimmages to give experience to players who didn't get a chance to show their wares on Saturday afternoons. Departing from his long practice of shunning scrimmages after a season begins, Devaney scrimmaged his players Tuesday and found it fruitful. The coach said Mike Green and Paul Critchlow looked good running with the ball and indicated Critchlow's performance might have earned him a spot on the traveling squad for the Iowa State game at Ames Saturday.

Hawkeye Star Lamont Predicts Improvement

By DAN GLEASON
Staff Writer

You might expect Iowa hopes to be dimmed after the Hawkeyes' 17-3 loss to Oregon State Saturday. But according to Roger Lamont, Hawk quick-tackle who co-captained Saturday's game, things are going to get better.

"We're going to get better," Lamont said Tuesday. "That quick touchdown (by the Beavers' Bob Grim) hurt us. I'm not taking anything away from our defense, but it's easier to play when you have the lead."

Lamont is 6-2, 225, and was graduated from Chicago's St. Ignace High School. He was recruited by Purdue, Indiana, Northwestern, Tulsa and Arizona, but decided on Iowa. This year he is a senior and he's looking forward to a strong finish.

ROGER LAMONT
"Things Will Get Better"

"Saturday's Wisconsin game will be a very tough one," he said. "We'll have to play another team that's after revenge. (Wisconsin lost to USC, 38-3 Saturday). But we're going to be out after revenge, too, and we're going to win."

Lamont said the Hawks could still be tough if they stayed healthy. Gary Larsen and Paul Usinowicz, Iowa's offensive ends, were injured Saturday. Larsen will be out for a few weeks and Al Bream, a sophomore, has been moved up in his place. Usinowicz, however, should be ready Saturday when the Hawks open their Big 10 season.

Lamont was almost lost for the season when he was injured by some heavy equipment while working on construction in Chicago this summer. He was flagging cars so that a piece of heavy equipment could be moved across an intersection. A car did not stop and knocked him under the piece of equipment, which ran over him and injured his right leg.

The injury doesn't bother him now, but the thought of losing does. He said Iowa would have to be on top of Wisconsin at all times.

Lamont, a psychology major, hopes to get into personnel work after graduation. But his thoughts are now centered on the eight Saturdays.

"The spirit is better this year," he said. "I was happy that the fans stayed behind us when we were losing. We know we're smaller than most of the other teams and that makes us work harder. The team spirit is exceptional this year and everybody is out there to win."

Notre Dame Sophomore End Named AP Lineman Of Week

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Notre Dame's sudden pass-catching star, Jim Seymour, is as steady headed as he is sure-handed.

Seymour, an acrobatic 6-foot-4, 205-pound sophomore, was named Associated Press college lineman of the week Wednesday for his sensational debut in Notre Dame's 26-14 victory over Purdue Saturday.

realistic about it, this was a first game for us. We have nine more to go. Now the pressure will mount against all of us."

Seymour Saturday confounded Purdue, grabbing 13 passes from another Irish sophomore surprise, quarterback Terry Hanratty, for 276 yards and three touchdowns on catches covering 84, 39 and 7 yards.

A few weeks ago, a group of football writers heard Seymour described by Coach Ara Parseghian as "an excellent receiver, with a long-legged, deceiving stride and swift moves."

Heneghan Rated High
But the writers were more curious about another sophomore end, Curt Heneghan, last spring voted the "outstanding offensive receiver," while Seymour was tabbed the "outstanding freshman lineman."

If Heneghan hadn't suffered a leg injury in fall practice, Seymour might have had to share the split end job against Purdue — just as Coley O'Brien was expected to do with Hanratty at quarterback.

But now Heneghan, still hobbled, and O'Brien, may have a long wait in the Irish wings.

Seymour, a business administration student, was undecided between attending Notre Dame or Michigan.

"It was between those two schools, but when I visited the campus here at Notre Dame, it was love at first sight," Seymour recounted. "I've never seen anything as beautiful as this place."

Commented Seymour, 19, an Irish-Bohemian lad from Berkley, Mich.:

He's Delighted
"I'm delighted I did so well Saturday and over this honor which came with it. But, being

Cyclones Use Soccer Players To Aid Kicking

AMES (AP) — Two members of the Iowa State Soccer Club were given trials by the Cyclones' football Coach Clay Stapleton Wednesday in a move to bolster the team's kicking department.

Stapleton did not name the soccer players, nor did he say whether they made the team.

The Cyclones drilled for an hour and 45 minutes as they continued to prepare for Saturday's encounter with Nebraska here. The workout consisted of a lengthy session on pass offense and defense, goal line offense and defense stands and wound up with a 15-minute kicking session.

Sophomore Ben King practiced with the No. 1 offensive team at the fullback slot occupied by Willie Robinson for the first two games. However, Stapleton indicated the change was not necessarily permanent.

N. Dakota Teams Rated 1-2 By AP, Parsons Is 9th

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The football teams representing North Dakota State and North Dakota do not play each other until Oct. 22. Right now, though, they are battling for the top position in The Associated Press' small-college poll.

North Dakota State retained first place in this week's balloting, collecting 96 points, including 50 from five first-place votes. North Dakota, third a week ago, rushed up to challenge for the lead by accumulating 92 points on a basis of 10 for a first-place vote, 9 for second, etc.

North Dakota State beat Morningside 28-14 last weekend for a 3-0 record. North Dakota is 2-0 after defeating Idaho State 41-0. Eastern Kentucky, unranked last week, jumped to the No. 6 spot after defeating Marshall 26-6. Ball State is seventh, followed by Wittenberg and Parsons. Arkansas State and Middle Tennessee State are tied for 10th.

The top 10 with first place votes in parentheses and total points on a 10-9-8 etc. basis:

1. North Dakota State (5) 96
2. North Dakota (1) 92
3. Montana State (0) 80
4. Sul Ross 62
5. San Diego State (1) 49

Goodwill Industries Store Aids Handicapped Persons

Everton O. Dibb, acting executive director of Goodwill Industries, which opened a store here on June 10, said that employment at the store had jumped from an original three to 25.

The Goodwill Industries store was opened to provide jobs to handicapped persons from the area who cannot be absorbed in the competitive market.

The basic program consists of employing handicapped persons to repair and recondition usable clothing and household articles contributed by the public.

The store now has a truck that operates daily. It averages 11 calls a day from contributors.

Dibb said there was great demand at this time for desks, chairs and tables, which college students need to fill their apartments. He pointed out that the store is always in need of all the clothing, furniture and household furnishings it can get.

Goodwill Industries is now distributing collection boxes in various places in the city where people can leave articles.

Dibb said that the Iowa City Goodwill Industries was progressing faster than most newly opened Goodwill Industries did during their first few months of operation.

"Already, our store sales are able to take care of our payroll," Dibb said. "We are now averaging between $600 and $700 a week from store sales. This is enough to meet about 75 per cent of our total expense. Usually, a new Goodwill Store will operate at a much higher deficit in the early months of operation. We are very happy with our progress," he added.

County Plans New Park

—Beautification Projects Handled By Board—

By TOM LONGDEN
Staff Writer

The need for the conservation and beautification of land is one of America's biggest problems, as Lady Bird Johnson will testify, but the problem is being confronted in Johnson County by the County Conservation Board.

For example:

— Scott Church Corner, east of Iowa City on Highway 6, is being developed by the board as a roadside park and rest area for travelers. Picnickers have already made use of the park this summer.

— Tentative plans have been made to acquire a 186-acre park site west of Iowa City on Highway 6, halfway between Oxford and Tiffin. This area has places for skiing, tobogganing and camping, and a possible 20-acre lake.

— The board has decided to acquire the 125-year-old "Stone Academy" schoolhouse north of Solon as a historic landmark.

These projects are the evidence of the progress made by the board since its establishment by the November, 1964, county election. The board began preliminary planning in 1965, without a budget, and this year has begun taking concrete action with a $41,000 budget allocated by the Board of Supervisors.

Iowa began meeting this problem in 1954, when the state legislature passed a law permitting individual counties to establish their own locally financed conservation boards. The law was passed both because the state was unable to provide all the rural recreational areas the public demanded and because there were gaps between city and state park systems.

Counties were thus enabled to acquire, develop and administer their own recreational areas. Counties wanting to set up their own boards were — and still are — required to submit a petition of at least 200 signatures to their Board of Supervisors before an election. The Johnson County board was one of 11 organized in 1964, bringing the state total to 83 boards in 99 counties.

The 10-year lapse between the passage of the law and the establishment of the local board has hurt the board's efforts to select suitable areas for parks and recreation facilities. Quality areas are now somewhat scarce, Mrs. Schwegler said.

"Actually, the best time for acquiring land would have been about 20 years ago," she said. "Today, adequate sites are difficult to find and are costly."

The problem is not confined to Johnson County. According to the state commission, the fact that Iowa provides 25 per cent of the nation's farm products makes it more difficult to set aside much land for recreational use. The local board has therefore been concentrating on acquiring as many park sites as possible, explaining that the acquisition of land takes precedence over its development. Developing the parks can be done over a period of several years.

County Is Wealthy

"We realize that Johnson County is wealthy in natural resources," Mrs. Schwegler said, "but there is still a need for local parks and recreation areas in all sections of the county."

She said that many people took for granted the facilities provided by the Iowa River, the Coralville reservoir and Lake McBride.

Although land is currently its chief concern, the board is still on the lookout for other worthwhile conservation projects: parks, roadside rest areas, recreational areas and playgrounds, outdoor classrooms for the study of natural science, hunting grounds, fishing areas, river access, camping sites, picnic areas, wildlife preserves, historical landmarks, forest preserves, hiking grounds, boating areas, game covers. The board would like to acquire access on the Iowa River south of Iowa City for boaters.

In the spring of 1965, the board sent 5,000 questionnaires to 80 county organizations to determine the conservation projects preferred. Topping the list were river access, camping sites and picnicking areas.

Last fall, the board placed classified ads in county newspapers for, and talked to real estate men about, "wooded areas suitable for potential park and recreational facilities." Members have also toured possible sites and visited surrounding counties to observe their park systems.

Public Interested

"We are grateful for public interest in the board's activities," Mrs. Schwegler said. "The board is planned and financed by the taxpayers of the county, and the resulting parks and recreation areas are something that everyone can benefit from."

The public, however, has not shown a great deal of interest in the board's activities, though all meetings (fourth Thursday of each month, in the courthouse) are open. Few attended a special public meeting last year to determine public conservation interests.

Nevertheless, at that meeting and at subsequent ones, Mrs. Schwegler explained, "though we haven't had large turnouts, those who have attended are really interested in conservation."

She said that the board needed suggestions and recommendations from the general public.

"Five persons cannot possibly know all the places in Johnson County that might be developed into parks," she said.

She described the board as "a harmonious one, working on a majority rule basis."

"Each of us is really interested in conservation," she said, "and the progress of our work comes before personal feelings."

Woman, 4 Men

Mrs. Schwegler has seen no problems resulting from a woman's being chairman over four men.

"I don't have enough sense to feel out of place," she said. "I'm too much interested in the projects."

Members are selected solely upon recommendation by the Board of Supervisors. Those first appointed hold office for one, two, three, four and five years, respectively. Succeeding members will be appointed for five-year terms.

There is no election of officers. The board's by-laws state that the chairman is the person whose term of office is the first to expire and that the vice-chairman and secretary are the persons whose terms expire second.

"We think that this is more equitable than elections," Mrs. Schwegler said. "If a person is qualified for the board in the first place, he is qualified to be chairman. This system allows each member to become chairman, first gaining experience as vice-chairman and secretary."

Members serve without pay, except for expenses, but can hire a paid director and personnel such as maintenance workers. Mrs. Schwegler said the members did not mind not being paid.

"We figure that if you're interested in working on the board, you're really interested, pay or not," she said. "We are concerned for the public's money and spend it as cautiously as if it were our own."

Budget From Taxes

This year's budget was acquired through a half-mill tax. State law provides that the Board of Supervisors may levy a one-fourth to one mill tax on all real and personal property for a conservation fund.

Last year, the board worked without funds, except for minimum operating expenses, and up until now its only expenses have been those for the Scott Church Corner park and survey work for the 186-acre park between Oxford and Tiffin.

If the board did not spend the remainder of its $41,000 by the end of the year, the money would revert to public funds. But the board has plans for all its funds.

Mrs. Schwegler said.

"We haven't bought any equipment yet, so if we have funds left over, we'll purchase lawn mowers and other necessary park equipment for future use," Mrs. Schwegler said.

The addition of equipment, however, raises another problem for the board. When enough equipment has been purchased it requires a shelter for it, a centrally located site will have to be selected so that the equipment will be equally accessible to all sections of the county. An other future expense will be for full-time maintenance men for both parks and equipment.

According to board member Osmondson, a long-range park acquisition and development program has been planned so that the board will be eligible to receive federal funds made available by the Land and Water Pollution Fund Act of 1964. The board will be eligible to receive all or part of $15,000 available to the entire county annually for 2 years. The State Conservation Commission is responsible for deciding which organizations are to receive the funds.

City Planner Helps

Aiding the board members with their long-range plans will be Earl E. Stewart, city planner and associate professor of civil engineering.

County conservation boards in Iowa must have all plans approved by the seven-member State Conservation Commission before a board can legally acquire land or initiate construction or development. State coordinators act as advisers and consultants in planning and procedural work solving problems and seeing that activities are carried out as prescribed by law.

When a new program is presented to the commission, the coordinators make investigation and submit a report. The commission then provides recommendations.

"The state commission takes this precaution to protect against buying land that isn't feasible to develop," Mrs. Schwegler said.

Scott Church Corner

The county board's first project, already approved by the state commission, has been the renovation of Scott Church Corner, a roadside park on Route 6 six miles east of Iowa City at the junction of American Legion Road. The park, a wooded, wedge-shaped, 5-acre site, was obtained last December through the Iowa Highway Commission, owner of the land, which allowed the county board to take over "through sponsorship."

The park was a popular choice for development because of its size and accessibility, Mrs. Schwegler said. The board members were so enthusiastic that they personally set out the wood stakes marking where the facilities would be placed.

The board appropriated $6,150 for improvements to the park. Well has been drilled and a pump installed, trees planted and deer ones removed, and six grill and eight picnic tables installed embedded in concrete to dissuade vandals. The board has let a $3,389 contract to the Gudenkau Concrete Construction Co. of Swisher for the construction of shelters and toilets.

Martin Schwegler, Mrs. Schwegler's husband, has been part-time supervisor of the Scott Church park operations. Schwegler retired last fall from the Army Corps of Engineers and had been foreman of the Coralville reservoir.

Physiology Prof Gets Grant

A research grant of $5,000 from the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America (MDAA) has been awarded to Byron A. Schottelius, associate professor of physiology at the University College of Medicine.

The semi-annual award will finance the first phase of a 1967 research program being directed by Schottelius and supported by MDAA. Nearly $110,000 has now been provided by MDAA for research by Schottelius over the past 11 years.

The check for $5,000 was presented to Schottelius by Paul Faas, a Cedar Rapids youngster who has muscular dystrophy. He is the son of William Faas, treasurer of the Cedar Valley Chapter (Linn, Johnson, Jones, Benton, Cedar, and Iowa counties) of MDAA. Paul is a candidate for the state poster child.

Present for the award presentation were Mrs. Faas, Lt. Raymond Hess, Iowa City Fire Department, and MDAA representative, Delmer A. Duffy, Cedar Rapids, district director of the Cedar Valley Chapter. City fire departments are instrumental in the program campaigns.

MDAA, which receives its funds from voluntary contributions, now allocates about $4 million annually for research. Schottelius' continuing research concerns the biophysics of dystrophic muscle contraction.

MDAA also offers a variety of services to persons with muscular dystrophy, including provision for wheel chairs and various orthopedic appliances, maintaining recreation programs for children and adults, and financing therapy for patients.

An inherited disorder, muscular dystrophy causes a progressive weakening of the skeletal muscles. Scientists are searching for physical or chemical abnormalities of the affected muscles which could explain the nature of the inheritance.

186-Acre Park

The board's second project has been the investigation of a 186 acre site 12 miles west of Iowa City, halfway between Oxford and Tiffin. The board has a $100 option on the land until the end of the year. The land is owned by Robert Larew of Oxford.

"The site is ideal for a park," Mrs. Schwegler said, describing it as hilly, wooded and containing a spring-fed creek.

Total cost of the land would be $46,500, or $250 an acre, to be paid in installments. The contract states that the down payment is not to exceed $10,000, and the interest not to exceed five per cent per annum.

Stone Academy

The newest project of the board is the tentative acquisition of Stone Academy, a one-room school 1 1/2 miles north of Solon built about 1841. It would be a historic landmark. It was offered to the board by the Solon Community School Board.

Mrs. Schwegler, active in the Izaak Walton League for about 10 years, previously worked to establish roadside parks in Scott County. After moving to Johnson County, she gave several conservation talks to local groups on behalf of the league.

"I became interested in conservation through my husband's work," she said.

Then, to keep from becoming an "Ike's widow," she decided to join the league. Soon after on a day when she and her husband were on ladders painting the outside of their house, he was called away for an urgent league project.

"He left me up on the ladder painting the house and trying to look after our three small children," she recalled. "It was then I realized that there must be something to conservation."

—Skyscrapers Are No Longer Banned—

Tokyo Picks New Direction To Grow: Upward

EDITOR'S NOTE — The city of Tokyo, leveled by the great earthquake of 1923, has overcome its fears and now allows skyscrapers. Tall buildings are springing up in the capital and other Japanese cities. It means more room for gardens and parks, and for roads and parking lots.

TOKYO — Tokyo is growing in a new direction — upward. Skyscrapers are beginning to change the profile of the metropolis.

There was a time when a law banned buildings more than 102 feet tall. The law now has been scrapped, and at least a dozen skyscrapers under construction or in the blueprint stage will rise twice as high as the old limit.

Japan's ban on tall buildings went back about 40 years. It stemmed from memories of the disastrous 1923 earthquake that killed thousands of people in Tokyo and Yokohama.

Architects and engineers argued that the limit on high buildings was vital in a country such as Japan, where there are several earth tremors every day.

The limitations produced some unhappy side effects. Buildings forced to grow sideways, spilled over into park, roads and even school playgrounds. Some buildings seemed stunted, with engineers burrowing into the soft Tokyo subsoil to build downward.

More than one building has gone five or six stories underground.

With this background, and the development of new building materials and techniques, the government came under pressure to revise the law. The limitation was slightly modified in 1961, and a few buildings taller than 102 feet were permitted.

In 1963 the limitation was scrapped entirely. Blueprints for skyscrapers poured in. The highest of them will be the 482-foot Kasumigaseki Mitsui building with 35 floors in the sky, three in the soil. At its site in the heart of Tokyo a steel skeleton has begun to rise. The building is to be completed in December, 1967.

Next highest will be a Tokyo government building, 427 feet tall. This one is still in the blueprint stage.

Other Japanese cities are following Tokyo's lead. In Yokohama a 260-foot hotel is already in operation. A bus terminal in Nagoya will stand 326 feet when completed in August, 1967. In Takamatsu, a 213-foot bank building is near completion.

With skyscrapers springing up everywhere, some Japanese still worry about earthquakes. However, Kiyoshi Noto, a specialist in quake-proof buildings and a professor emeritus at Tokyo University, isn't worried.

He explains, "We use 'soft structure' in designing skyscrapers today, not the old 'hard structure' with heavy pillars and thick walls.

"Today's architecture features thin, high-quality steel columns and light materials like glass or special metals for walls. A skyscraper can sway to and fro. It can ride out an earthquake. It's like standing in a train, moving with its motion."

Such "soft structure" buildings, however, require complicated calculations. "Actually it would take centuries if you worked with paper and pencil, but electronic computers do the job in a matter of months," says Muto.

City planners say the merits of skyscrapers for overcrowded cities like Tokyo cannot be over-emphasized. The planners will use the increased amount of open space for gardens, parks, roads and parking lots.

Our managers have taken over!

This is a special week. We call it Managers Week.

They've taken over the store. They've planned a terrific thrift event. Storewide values that you'll recognize as "first-aid" for your ailing budget.

Why this special week? First, to express special appreciation to you. Second, to honor our managers. Third, to give us a chance to prove "We Care". If you're a regular A&P customer, this week is for you. If you've never shopped A&P, this is the week to test-shop A&P. When you see the savings on your total food bill, when you experience the warmth of being cared about, we think you'll come back time and time again. Millions do.

Highlanders Wing Leader Is Chosen

The University's Scottish Highlanders will make its first appearance under its new director Alan G. Melvor in Cedar Rapids on Monday.

About half of the 88-member group will entertain at a British Festival sponsored by Killians' Department Store at Lindale Plaza shopping center. They will present a half-hour display of marching, piping and dancing.

Drum major Linda Nolan, A4, Guthrie Center, will lead the all-girl band. The girls will play several traditional Scottish songs including "Scotland the Brave" and Louden's "Bonnie Woods and Brae."

The Highlanders is the largest women's drum and bagpipe corps in the world. Since its formation in 1937, the group has toured Europe four times, has given exhibitions in Scotland and England and has performed at two Rose Bowl games and two World's Fairs.

The group has traveled more than 125,000 miles and has entertained more than 10 million people.

Cadet Colonel Richard J. Floyd, A4, Des Moines was named the Air Force ROTC Wing Commander for the 1966-67 school term, in an announcement made Tuesday by Col. Brooks W. Booker Jr., head of Air Science.

The members of the Wing Staff for the fall term were also announced. They are:

Cadet Col. Glen M. Anderson, B4, Dunkerton, Commander Arnold Air Society; Cadet Lt. Col. Robert W. Peters, A4, Carroll, executive officer; Cadet Maj. Richard Galt, B4, Iowa City, operations officer; Cadet Maj. William P. Irvine, A4, Waterloo, personnel officer; Cadet Maj. James A. Bright, B4, Lowden, inspector; Cadet Maj. Terry L. Brinker, A4, Maquoketa, material officer; Cadet Maj. John H. Birkeland, L2, Rock Island, Ill., security and law enforcement; Cadet Maj. Henry J. Engel, A3, Dubuque, administrative officer.

Cadet Maj. Francis M. Goldsberry, A4, Boulder, Colo., personnel services officer; Cadet Maj. Robert Y.

Woodford, A4, Cedar Rapids, information services officer; Cadet Maj. Marvin L. Kipp, A4, Oquon, Group I commander; Cadet Maj. Paul L. Fookes, A4, Moline, Ill., Group II commander; Cadet Maj. Franklin M. Plotky, A4, Mount Pleasant, Group III commander; Cadet Capt. Paul J. Hicks, A4, Maquoketa, Squadron I commander; Cadet Capt. Mark E. Walker, A4, Jewell, Squadron 2 commander; Cadet Capt.
