

—City Clerk Explains Which Students Can Vote—

Laundry Clause Is Out, But Other Rules Hamper Voting

By RICK GRAY
Staff Writer

About 25 years ago a University student went to register at the Iowa City city hall to vote. One of the questions the registration official asked was: "Do you send your clothes home to be washed?"

If the answer was yes, the student was ruled ineligible to vote because he was not a resident. If the clothes were washed in the city, he was considered a resident.

Glen V. Eckard, city clerk, recently explained the latest rules governing student registration for the Nov. 8 election.

He said all students must register no later than Friday, Oct. 28, at the Civic Center to be eligible to vote.

Voting Qualifications

To register, a student must meet four general qualifications: (1) he must be a resident of Iowa City, (2) he must have lived six months in Iowa, (3) he must have lived 60 days in Johnson County, and (4) he must have lived for 10 days in the precinct in which he is to vote.

Even if the student can fulfill the last three requirements, there is still some question as to whether he is considered a resident of the city. Eckard said the city had set up a special policy regarding student residence qualifications.

All married students living within the Iowa City limits are considered residents for the purpose of registration. This includes students living in Finkbine Park or any of the University apartments.

Others Are Eligible

Single students are also considered residents if they live in housing not owned by the University and have jobs not connected with the University. If these students have cars, they must have Johnson County license plates or a driver's license showing Iowa City as their place of residence.

Students living in dormitories, fraternities or sororities are not eligible to vote. Also, single students living in non-University owned housing, who are unemployed or have jobs with the University, and have neither Johnson County vehicle registration or licenses showing Iowa City as their place of residence, are not eligible.

Eckard noted that many single students were not considered residents because they lived with their parents in some other city when they were not in college and they did not intend to stay here after graduation.

Mature Are Eligible

However, he added, the mature student with no family relations or residence elsewhere, and who considers Iowa City his home, is generally eligible to vote here.

Eckard's remarks were backed up by an 1880 Iowa Supreme Court decision involving a University student named Vanderpoel who tried to vote in Iowa City in 1878.

Vanderpoel, 22 and unmarried, was not allowed to vote by the election judges on the grounds that he was not a resident. He won the right to vote in a jury trial in the Johnson County District Court, but the election judges appealed to the State Supreme Court.

Supreme Court Decision

The Supreme Court reversed the lower court's decision on these grounds:

"A student is entitled to vote only in the county where his home is, which must be his domicile, or place of abode, as distinguished from a residence acquired for the attainment of an education, or any other purpose of a temporary character.

"Because a student is in another county for an education does not give him the right to vote in the town where he is going to college unless he has intention to change his residence, and he will not be allowed to vote in the new location until actual residence is established and the student intends to remain in the town after graduation."

However, the point of residency leads to another question. If the student is counted as a resident in the census, shouldn't he be considered a resident for voting purposes?

In the special census of 1964, approximately 15,000 students were counted as Iowa City residents. On the basis of this population count, the state returned a certain portion of the liquor control and road use taxes to the city.

$100,000 Profit

This portion amounted to about $10 a person a year. In effect, the city has received at least $100,000 a year since the census because students were counted as residents.

Eckard said the road use tax was used for street construction and repair, while the liquor tax can be used for any lawful municipal purpose.

Jay Hanohan, city attorney, said the census had nothing to do with voter qualification. A census is taken on the basis of where people are at the time of the count, he said.

"If the census had been taken in August, when most of the students weren't here," he said, "they wouldn't have been counted."

"Physical presence is not a determinant of residence for purposes of voting," he said.

Student Senate Strengthens Position In Campus Politics

By EDSON EGGER
Staff Writer

Student Senate passed two resolutions which will give it more power in campus politics at a meeting Tuesday night.

The first resolution makes it necessary for all campus organizations to submit to the Senate for approval any changes in their budgets involving amounts over $100. It also requires that all organizations submit final itemized budgets to the Senate for approval within two weeks.

An exception was made, however, that Union Board would not have to gain Senate approval for any reallocation of funds under $300.

Maas Explains Raise

When the resolution was discussed, Union Board Pres. Harry Maas, A3, Wellsburg, explained why he thought the $100 figure should be raised to $300 for Union Board.

"We figure that if this resolution passes as it now stands, we will have to bring about 60 to 75 programs before the Senate for approval," Maas said. "This will force the Union Board to wait too long before getting new programs started, and it will take up too much of the Senate's time."

Maas explained that an average new program costs about $200.

"Any new programs over $300 we will be glad to present to the Senate for approval," he added.

New Committee

Under this new resolution, a Budgetary and Auditing Committee, headed by Student Sen. Scott Powers, A4, Newton, will be set up to receive requests from organizations for reallocation of funds over $100.

The second resolution concerns appointment of student representatives to Faculty and Student Policy Committees.

The resolution allows the student body president to take the findings of the Senate committee that has screened applicants, and from these findings offer recommended people to the Senate for approval by a two-thirds majority.

Student Sen. Lee Dicker, A4, Iowa City, opposed the resolution because "it eliminates all work already done by the screening committee."

Student Body Pres. Tom Hanson, A4, Jefferson, said the resolution would provide a system of checks on who was appointed to the policy committees.

Slashes Budget

In other action, the Senate slashed the Student Organizations budget in several areas to bring the standing $32,495 request down to the $30,000 level suggested by Philip G. Hubbard, dean of academic affairs.

The Senate voted to cut $1,500 from the Spring Festival budget, with hopes that the program could be underwritten later in the year when its plans were developed.

The Senate also slashed $100 from the emergency fund of the Student Senate, $200 from the Women's Recreation Association budget, and $100 from the Student Senate Research fund.

These cuts brought the budget to $30,595, which the Senate agreed to submit to the University administration as a final budget request.

Grant, Study Proposed To Help City Bus System

City Manager Carsten D. Leikvold recommended Tuesday that the University and Iowa City Council apply for a federal grant for experimentation with the city bus system and that both have a study made of the existing transportation system in Iowa City.

The recommendation was made at a joint University-council meeting. At the meeting, Barton-Aschman Associates, Chicago planning consultants, asked that the city hire the firm to devise an experimental project that could help the city improve the city bus service. Federal transit demonstration grants are available for financing such experiments.

The consultants also suggested that the council order a complete study of the existing bus system. The consultants said they would make the study for $5,000 and would prepare the application for the transit grant for $500.

Recent Subsidy

The University recently gave a $23,000 bus subsidy to the Iowa City Coach Company, which operates the city bus line. In exchange, University students may ride the city busses for 10 cents upon presentation of their current registration. The city has yet to subsidize the company, but the council has talked about giving a $30,000 subsidy and, in turn, having rates lowered for all riders.

At the Tuesday meeting, councilman Loren Hickerson asked whether service had been extended to Benton Street and the married student housing there.

Lewis H. Negus, manager of the Iowa City Coach Company, replied that the addition of routes to the area could not be made until the company received the first part of the subsidy from the University.

Subsidy Agreement

Under terms of the subsidy agreement, the University will pay its part of the subsidy to the city, which will then pay both the University and city subsidies to the bus company.

The two groups also considered a proposal by various Iowa City residents that parking be banned on residential streets from 2 to 6 a.m. daily.

University officials said that the worst parking problem they were facing was students storing their cars here. They said that banning parking during these hours would only make the problem worse.

Conversely, the city has objected to the partial parking ban on freshmen cars at the University. City officials feel that the University just shoved more of the parking problem into the city's lap.

Landfill Suggestion

A suggestion was made at the meeting to allow the University to use the landfill area by the municipal airport as a storage parking lot. A shuttle bus service from the lot to the campus would then be run.

Merritt C. Ludwig, director of planning at the University, said "I think we might be seriously interested in the landfill next year."

Racial Relations Is Topic Tuesday Of Carl Rowan

"New Frontiers in Race Relations" will be the topic of Carl T. Rowan, news columnist and former director of the U.S. Information Agency (USIA), when he opens the University Lecture Series for 1966-67 with an address at 8 p.m. next Tuesday in the Main Lounge of Iowa Memorial Union.

Tickets for the Rowan Lecture are free for students and staff members beginning Friday at noon at the University Box Office in the Union South Lobby. Tickets will be distributed until 5:30 p.m. Friday, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, and from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, or until all have been distributed.

Tickets remaining Monday at 9 a.m. will also be available free to the public.

A native of Tennessee, Rowan gained national prominence in the 1950's as a writer on race relations for the Minneapolis Tribune. He received the Sidney Hillman Award for best newspaper reporting in 1952 and was named one of ten outstanding young men of America by the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce in 1954.

Two books written by Rowan — "South to Freedom," published in 1953, and "The Pitiful and the Proud," in 1956 — were named to the American Library Association's annual list of best books. He since has written "Go South to Sorrow," published in 1957, and "Wait Till Next Year," 1960.

Rowan earned an A.B. in mathematics at Oberlin College in 1947, and an M.A. in journalism at the University of Minnesota in 1948. He has received many honorary degrees.

Dolphin Queen Field Narrowed To 5 Coeds

Five coeds have been chosen to compete in the Dolphin Queen finals to be held Monday. Those chosen are: Nan Gamrath, A1, Fairfield, Kate Daum; Karan Ann Kottman, A1, St. Louis, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Linda Pecaut, A1, Sioux City, McBroom House; Gail Wartfue, A1, Palatine, Ill., Pi Beta Phi; and Devon Williams, A1, Iowa City, Gamma Phi Beta.

The queen will be chosen Monday night. However, her selection will not be announced until the first dolphin show at 8 p.m. Oct. 20.

The dolphin show, "Aquatropolis," will be held Oct. 20-22. Tickets will soon go on sale.

Coralville Sets Date For Hearing

Coralville City Council Tuesday night set a public hearing for Oct. 25 on a $35,000 special assessment bond on a main sewer line in the Coralville Industrial Park off First Avenue.

In other action, the city awarded Clark Oil Company $1,000 for a deceleration lane leading from its station at Highway 6 and Sixth Avenue.

A new parking ordinance was discussed which would prohibit parking on city streets between the hours of 2 a.m. and 5 a.m.

School Board Says Room For Pupils To Be Scarce During Next Decade

By BRUCE MORROW
Staff Writer

The Iowa City Board of Education examined projected student enrollment for the next decade at its meeting Tuesday night and concluded that building space for the corresponding period might be critically short.

Even with the construction of the new west side high school, the district, during the next 10 years, will require building space to accommodate an additional 1,500 to 1,700 students at the secondary level, according to figures presented to the board.

The elementary school space requirements will fall into line with anticipated funds available. James D. Blank, district director of elementary education, told the board that space requirements between 1966-76 would cost over $1.3 million but that current tax levies will provide the necessary amount.

Possible Solutions

But the estimates of needed secondary building space over the next decade prompted board members to offer possible solutions to the problem, which, according to board member Dr. Michael Bonfiglio, could become desperate.

Board member Robert Randall suggested exploring viewpoints of legislative and gubernatorial candidates toward solving the mounting problem of school building needs.

After discussion, the board resolved to work through local civic groups, such as the PTA and the School Study Council, to present the district's building problems to appropriate legislative officials.

Garner's Figures

Superintendent of Schools Buford Garner presented to the board school enrollment projections based on the 1966 census. According to Garner, there would be an annual increase of approximately 400 to 500 students within the local school system during the next decade.

While this estimate may be slightly conservative in the opinion of the superintendent, the anticipated growth of enrollment during the next 10 years will not be as large, proportionately, as it was over the last decade.

Adding to the board's possible future fiscal problems was a report by Business Manager Robert T. Davis, predicting a deteriorating cash reserve for school board operations. The reason for the continuous drop in stand-by funds, said Davis, was a perpetual rise in costs.

Two architects for pending school district building projects were named at the board meeting.

New Addition

Weyner and Associates were named to finish the proposed addition to Robert Lucas School. The Lucas addition, according to Board Pres. William V. Phelan, should be completed during the current fiscal year and ready for occupation in fall, 1967.

The architects selected to draw up plans for the proposed elementary attendance center in southeast Iowa City were Hansen-Lind & Meyer.

Also at Tuesday's meeting, the board referred to the Johnson County Board of Education the question of whether the Iowa City School Board should pay the cost of transporting students to the Nelson School for Exceptional Children.

Max D. Selzer, Iowa City contractor, was named by the board to be construction supervisor of the new west side high school. Selzer, who will be paid by the board, is to coordinate construction of the building with architectural personnel.

Try SLAP-ing

Gov. Harold Hughes' invitation to Iowa youth to speak out on issues comes at an opportune time for the University student body and members of the Student Legislative Action Program (SLAP).

Among those issues Hughes pointed out in a recent speech at Ottumwa was capital improvements for Iowa's state institutions of higher learning. If ever there were issues relevant to the University student in the upcoming campaign, capital improvements and the University's proposed budget for the next biennium should be top priority.

SLAP, a student organization that is enlisting students to speak to state legislators, is already acting in the direction of Hughes' stated wish. It might also help the cause of SLAP and the University if students were to start writing the state representatives from their home districts and persuade their parents to exert some influence to increase state aid to the three institutions.

If students' parents show the state legislators that the parents, too, want better educational facilities for their youth, then legislators might not be so hesitant about using more state funds for higher education. To get the parents to act, however, encouragement is needed from the students.

It seems unlikely that students will write their representatives on their own accord and perhaps another organized group should be formed under the direction of the Student Senate to do this. Such an undertaking might be too extensive for the senate, which is already working with SLAP.

Hughes and other candidates are interested in what Iowa's youths think, especially when those thoughts can be expressed with words and votes.

Whether the students wish to make their opinions known as an organization or as individuals, the important thing is to use what influence they have to make legislators aware of the improvements the University so badly needs.

When you get to the heart of the matter, the cause is really your own.

Good thinking parking committee

Just about every decision made by the Parking and Security Committee concerning the University parking problem has been unpopular. But for one portion of the University driving group, the committee has made an exceptional decision.

Now car pools may be formed in which University employees and students are permitted to buy a single $45 car pool parking permit. Members of the pool will get refunds on any permits they now have.

The arrangement is particularly favorable for commuters from surrounding towns who wish to share driving duties. It will undoubtedly curb criticism from residents living outside Iowa City who complain that their parking fee helps subsidize a bus system that commuters never use anyway. However, not all commuters are able to enter a car pool.

The committee hopes that the car pool permit will reduce the number of cars using parking facilities and city streets, and this motive alone is worth such a decision.

Young's film makes viewer think, cry

By NICHOLAS MEYER
For The Iowan

"Nothing But a Man" is a stunning film about an individual's quest to live his own life in an unobtrusive, quiet, but dignified manner. People are willing to let him be unobtrusive, they are willing to let him be quiet, but they are not willing to let him be dignified. This is a situation that most of his friends, including his father, seem to accept, but Duff Anderson (Ivan Dixon) cannot and will not accept it.

It confuses him quite a bit, too. Sometimes, in his fury and shame, he lashes out at the wrong people, including his wife, who makes the mistake of being too understanding. He is an uneducated man, she is the sensitive daughter of a minister. She sees something special in her husband, and he can't forgive her for seeing it. He sees himself as the victim of an unjust system, which he is.

The question is: what shall he do about it? How can he gain the respect of his fellow-men and himself? How can he become a human being who stands up straight and resists the pressures and boycotts society wishes to impose on his existence? He must solve money problems, marital problems, father-in-law problems, employer-relation problems, customer-relation problems - in short, all the problems, which confront a man in life, and become quite ugly when he is not a wealthy man, not an educated man.

The movie is made with great realism, filmed in factories and cities, in slums and gas stations, with a cast composed of both professionals and amateurs. It has its weaknesses: an occasional awkward or fake line in Robert Young's generally sensitive and intelligently written script, an actor who doesn't quite have the grasp on his role (the minister who is the father of the wife, played by Stanley Greene), but these are only minor drawbacks to a film which possesses a consistently high level of articulateness and emotional intensity.

Ivan Dixon does a marvelous job as Duff, the confused protagonist, struggling for the right kind of air in a nightmarish modern world, and Abby Lincoln, a beautiful, yet unglamorous newcomer, is excellent as his sensitive and intelligent wife. Miss Lincoln has an acting mannerism, which sometimes gets in her way (a habit of compressing her lips into a smile when she doesn't want one), but when she overcomes this tendency she should go on to better things still.

Both the stars do artistic and inspired jobs in their roles, and are generally well-supported by an exceptionally able cast. Duff's father (played by an actor with whom I am not familiar) is a sensational portrayal. He is an alcoholic with a maimed arm and a curious flutter of his eyelids denoting a frightening intensity which he carefully keeps under control - but the audience is never able to sit back and be entertained by his performance, so charged as it is with a kind of subterranean violence.

"Nothing But a Man" is an articulate, well-made film that surpasses these clinical summarizations, with artistry, emotion and honesty. It hits some nails squarely on their heads. It gives the audience something to think about and something to cry about, too.

Reds like Nazis?

By LARRY FENNEMA
For Young Americans For Freedom

Last year, it seemed as if the socialists on campus got a big kick out of comparing conservative philosophy with fascism. So, to start the year off right, I'd like to turn the tables just once.

Most of the campus socialists probably know of Lin Piao's "Long Live the Victory of the People's War." In this Chinese version of Mein Kampf, Mao's "close comrade-in-arms" makes clear his intentions to use "wars of liberation" throughout Asia, Africa, and Latin America to isolate and overwhelm the last strongholds of "imperialism" in Europe and North America.

Excerpts from a radio broadcast on Lin Piao's article substantiate these designs: "Commanders are determined to become revolutionaries not only on the domestic scene, but also on the international scene... and to make contributions to the defeat of U.S. imperialism on a global scale..."

"We must, as we did in the past when we regarded the liberated areas as a base area to liberate the people of the whole country, regard China as a base area for the world revolution and valiantly shoulder the heavy task of the world revolution..."

By what logic do the Chinese Reds assume that EVERYONE wants to be part of the world revolution? If one can visualize somebody not wanting to be "liberated," these statements seem to take on a tint of aggressiveness.

One might also take a look at the campaigns of the Red Guard. The admirable Lin Piao has recently accepted the post of commander-in-chief of this outstanding youth group. And since the merits of most groups are judged by their actions, let us examine a couple of examples. Of a small group of Catholic nuns forced to leave a mission in Red China, one was beaten so severely that she died soon after reaching refuge in Hong Kong. But these patriots don't just concentrate on foreigners. Chinese people have been tied to lamp posts, their heads shaved, and their clothes ripped from their bodies. If it were possible to transplant these youths into Germany of 25 years ago, it seems they would have made good candidates for Hitler Youth.

According to some government analysts, the total mosaic of internal developments in Red China seems to suggest that the present Red leaders are expecting and are preparing for ultimate war with the United States. So long as these men maintain their rule, an American policy of appeasement stands no more chance of success than

Your best friend might be one...

WASHINGTON - The Senate internal security subcommittee just released classified material involving the security clearance of eight distinguished American citizens. It was unevaluated material gathered by Otto F. Otepka, and many people protested that this kind of thing harked back to the McCarthy era.

I didn't realize how dangerous something like this could be until I was interviewed by a security specialist from one of the government agencies, who was checking up on a good friend of mine who was being considered for an important job.

We shall call my friend Bill Hoganblatt, and I knew him from my days in Paris. The security man was very friendly. "How long have you known Hoganblatt?" he asked me.

"About 18 years," I replied. "I want to say he's one of the finest men I've ever had the pleasure to be associated with. He's a good father, a kind husband, a loyal friend and a great American."

"What kind of people did he associate with during the years in Paris?"

"All kinds. Writers, artists, businessmen. Bill was a very democratic guy."

"Anything strange about these people?"

"Well, some of them were strange. I mean we lived in Paris, and you tend to meet a lot of strange people there - you know, nuts of all kinds."

"Were there any left wingers among these friends?"

"Come to think of it, I think there were. At least some of them had strong political convictions, but I don't believe Bill - then again he never did say much about politics."

"Didn't you find this strange?" the investigator asked as he took notes.

"What about girls?"

"Bill wasn't much of a ladies' man when he was in Paris?"

"That's quite interesting. He didn't like girls then?"

"No he liked girls. As a matter of fact he had several girl friends when he was in Paris."

"Then you'd say he was promiscuous?"

"Let me think. Yeah, he was more promiscuous than he wasn't. To tell the truth, he was a rake."

"Would you say he liked foreign girls better than American girls?"

"I remember once he had two dates - one with a French girl and one with an American girl, and he stood up the American girl."

"How did you feel about that?"

"Well, at the time it didn't bother me, but now that you bring it up it was a dirty thing to do. It makes you wonder about a fellow like that."

"You said it; I didn't. What about his drinking habits?"

"As far as I know he never touched the stuff at all."

"Then you'd call him a secret drinker?"

"Come to think of it he probably was. I never trusted a guy who wouldn't drink in public."

"What else can you remember about him?"

"He used to go to the museum in Paris a lot."

"Did you ever see him go to a museum?"

"No, he just said he did."

"Then he could have gone anywhere during those times. Even to the Soviet Embassy."

"By golly, he could have. I wouldn't have put it past him."

"One more question. As an American citizen would you want Hoganblatt to work for your government?"

"I should say not! I didn't realize what a contemptible rat he was until I talked to you. For all I know he's another Alger Hiss, and I hope he gets what's coming to him real soon."

Writer urges bigger war

We are trying to wage the war in Viet Nam without setting victory as our goal and by asking our forces to fight with one hand behind their backs, charges Hanson Baldwin in an October Reader's Digest article, "To Win the War in Viet Nam, Mobilize!" Our policy has been one of "measured response" to the enemy's actions, a gradual military buildup geared to maintaining business-as-usual at home.

"Because of this guns-and-butter policy," he writes, "military contracts have been delayed and stockpiles depleted. Shortages of many items, even of uniforms, persist. Today we are losing more fighter aircraft than we are producing. Moreover, he says, we are incurring "unnecessary casualties" because instead of extending enlistments of key personnel we are sending green men to the front.

"We must do now," he writes, "what the Joint Chiefs have repeatedly recommended. We must declare a state of national emergency, and Congress must approve a resolution authorizing the limited mobilization of reserves and the extension of enlistments as required."

"Such a declaration by Congress would be a national tocsin to battle; it would serve notice on all concerned that the United States means business, that we intend to win the war in Viet Nam."

3 Judge Panel Chosen To Select Miss U Of I

Two persons associated with the Miss America Pageant and the University of Illinois Union Board President will do the judging at the Miss U of I Pageant Saturday evening in the Union Main Lounge.

One of the judges, Mrs. Robert Longley, Davenport, is on the preferred judges list for the Miss America Pageant. She is a public relations speaker for the Miss Iowa - Miss America Pageant and chairman of the Miss Iowa Scholarship program. Mrs. Longley has been cited by the American Millinery Institute as one of the 10 Best Hatted Women in the United States.

Lester Godin, Clear Lake, will also help judge the pageant. He is a past member of the board of directors of the Miss Iowa Pageant and was general chairman of the Miss Iowa Pageant in 1960 and 1961. In 1962 Godin was a judge for the Miss Minnesota Pageant. In 1959 and again in 1962 Godin was the Jaycees representative to the Miss American Pageant.

The third member of the panel of judges is Robert Potts, University of Illinois Union Board President.

At 11 a.m. Friday the 20 candidates for Miss U of I will meet the judges for the first time at a tea. Later that day the judges will interview each girl.

On Saturday evening the judges will choose 10 semi-finalists and finally five finalists who will compete for the title of Miss U of I.

Truck Crash Claims Life On Interstate

Wayne E. Kain, 39, 4600 Park Ridge Road, Des Moines, was killed about 6 a.m. Tuesday when the semi-trailer truck he was driving left Interstate 80 and crashed into a ditch.

Kain was headed east when his truck left the highway about 1 1/2 miles east of the local road interchange.

The accident was believed caused by either a flat tire or a blow-out. Kain died instantly of head injuries.

Kain's body was trapped inside the cab for 2 1/2 hours before workmen, using two cranes, were able to pull the cab apart.

Inez Causes Rains, Floods

VALLES, Mexico (AP) — Hurricane Inez was reported to be beating itself out in the nearby Sierra Madre Oriental Mountains on Tuesday, but rains and floods threatened Tampico and the coastal area.

The storm moved inland Monday after erratically circling around the Caribbean and the Gulf of Mexico.

The situation in the oil port of Tampico was said to be serious, with major threats now coming from the clogged and flooding Panuco River.

There was no electric power, communications were down, and highways to most areas such as Matamoros and Veracruz were flooded and cut. There was no railway service, although plane flights might be resumed shortly.

There was also a severe food shortage, due not only to destruction but the fact there was no power for freezers. Food was going bad. Sewage was clogged.

About 40 per cent of the buildings in Tampico suffered some sort of damage, it was reported, although early warnings and evacuation of about 20,000 persons in lowland areas helped avert casualties.

Graduate Study Meet Is Set

Questions about graduate work at the University will be answered by two deans and 15 professors at the Graduate Study Night Session, beginning at 7 tonight in the Union Illinois Room.

The question and discussion sessions are an annual event, sponsored by Mortar Board, senior women's honorary society. It is designed to help those considering graduate work make up their minds.

Following the opening general session, smaller meetings will be held in the Union Miller, Kirkwood and Big 10 Rooms.

INTER-RELIGIOUS COUNCIL

The Inter-Religious Council will meet at 4 p.m. Thursday in the Union Wisconsin Room. The meeting is open to anyone interested.

University Supplies 151 For Peace Corps

The University is the nation's 27th ranking contributor of Peace Corps volunteers. Of the 151 students and alumni who have joined the Corps since its beginning in 1961, 89 were men and 62 women.

Students from the University have served in more than 50 countries. Forty-nine have served in Africa, 50 in Latin America and 56 in the North Africa, Near East, and South Asia region.

Although the Peace Corps still trains its volunteers under contracts with colleges and universities, the emphasis now is on actual practice, according to information provided by the Peace Corps. Increasingly, returning volunteers are replacing professors as trainee instructors.

New trainees do not go through as extensive physical exercises as did early volunteers, the information said. When the Peace Corps was first established, recruits often trained from 6 a.m. to midnight, six days a week. This might mean sitting in lectures for up to 15 hours a day, or extensive physical fitness exercises.

Perhaps the most infamous of the physical fitness tests was the four-day Puerto Rican trek. Trainees were driven 30 miles from camp, handed maps and compasses and told to find their way home through the rugged Puerto Rican back country. A not uncommon experience was sleeping in chicken coops, which were fairly adequate once the chickens on the rafters above were not facing so their droppings were elsewhere than on the volunteers. In the field, volunteers often encounter lack of support from host country officials. Volunteers in the Far East have the least support from the host governments, while volunteers in Africa seldom have problems with disinterested leaders, the information reported.

Corpsmen consider apathy among the general populace to be the greatest problem in the Near East and South Asia; 79 per cent of the volunteers there put this at the top of their list of problems.

Although half the volunteers lived in rural areas, few reported physical hardship, disease or general living conditions to be serious problems.

Wisconsin Court Drops Struggle For The Braves

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin went to the U.S. Supreme Court Tuesday to try to bring baseball back to Milwaukee, but said Atlanta could keep its Braves.

In an obscure footnote to its appeal, the state dropped its year-long legal struggle to return the club to Milwaukee, its home for 13 years.

Instead, the appeal asked in effect that the nation's highest court give Milwaukee an expansion team as a replacement.

Noonan Reflects Hawks Lost Spirit, Therefore Lost Games

By MARLIN LEVISON
Staff Writer

In one corner of the damp locker room stood a spritely dressed middle-aged man intently punching back at questions thrown to him by a circle of reporters.

In the corner directly opposite sat another man — alone, his sweaty chest heaving from the combat he'd just been through.

The locker room was situated below Miami's (Florida) Orange Bowl Stadium, where 27,776 people had witnessed the Miami Dolphins go down in defeat to the Oakland Raiders in the home-town's American Football League opener.

Nightclub and television personality Danny Thomas straightened his tie and answered a small but question as chief stockholder of the newly organized Miami football club.

Was Free Agent
Karl Noonan, Dolphin flanker-back representing a small but growing part of Danny Thomas' stock, toweled himself off and began packing his gear.

"I'm fighting for a livelihood," said Noonan, in his soft-spoken manner. "I came to the Dolphins as a free agent, and have to prove myself each game, or look for work elsewhere."

Noonan, a native of Davenport, graduated from Iowa last spring after completing three individually successful seasons with several not so successful Hawkeye football teams. The record setting pass-catcher spent the past summer in his home town lifting weights, running, and eating well enough to raise his weight to 193 pounds — 20 pounds heavier than what he weighed wearing the Hawkeye black and gold.

Mental Alertness Needed
"I expected the pro game to be much tougher physically than college ball, but wasn't aware of the mental alertness required of the professional," said Noonan.

"Competition is fierce, and especially so between teammates. If you have a mental lapse or take a physical beating, the guy pushing you is going to get a chance to go full time. Once this happens, with nearly everyone on a professional team possessing equal ability, it's tough to regain your position again," he continued.

"As a professional you learn to pace yourself," said Noonan. "You're no longer playing solely for school spirit, but have to earn money for the wife and kids sitting at home. You keep in top physical shape for your job by learning how much your body can take, and then staying within these bounds," he said.

Hawkeyes Discussed
With a shrug of the shoulders Noonan summed up his opinion on the fortunes of the '65 Hawkeyes.

"Who knows what happened," he said. "With six players drafted by the pros, and a coach that knows football like Burns does, we should have been a winner. We lost our spirit and desire early in the season and it probably defeated us as much as anything else."

"But if I keep playing long enough, I'm bound to be with a winner one of these days," said Noonan with a smile, and with that headed for a hot shower.

Ficeli Strengthens Iowa Line

By DAN GLEASON
Staff Writer

Lately Iowa's line has been changing starters as often as the Argentine presidency changes hands. The Hawks are looking for a winning combination on a young team.

But one stable spot seems to be offensive center. John Ficeli is a hard-hitting, tough competitor who week after week has played consistent football. Coach Ray Nagel, although disappointed in Iowa's offense after the 7-0 loss to Wisconsin, had nothing but praise for Ficeli, saying he had been "outstanding the whole game."

Ficeli is used to a good scrap. In his prep days at Grand Rapids, Mich. Catholic Central, where he was an All-State guard and defensive end, he took up amateur boxing. He was sought by several Big 10 Pacific Coast and Big Eight schools.

Last year he was moved from guard to center with success, and was honored by being selected to North Carolina State's all-opponent team. He also received honorable mention on the Chicago American's All-Big 10 team. He was the only offensive lineman to start every game for Iowa last year.

Praised By Nagel

"We're a young team," Ficeli said. "We're trying to make up for lack of experience and depth with hustle and desire. And those may pay off more in the long run than talent, depth and experience alone.

"This team never gives up," he said. "Always hitting hard and always improving. If we (the offense) can do a comparable job with the defense, we'll give everybody trouble."

Even at 6-2, 225, advocates of monster football consider Ficeli a lightweight. But most of them change their minds after they line up across from him.

"The hardest job of an offensive center," he said, "would probably have to be pass protection. Here you have to hit and hold."

Ficeli is a senior in marketing in the College of Business Administration and hopes to get a position in business and sales relations after graduation.

Ruggers Win, Lose, Tie At Canadian Tournament

By CHUCK STOLBERG
Staff Writer

Twenty-two players represented the Iowa Rugby Club Saturday and Sunday in the Rose City Invitational Rugby Tournament at Windsor Stadium, Windsor, Ontario. The Eagle Hawks finished the tournament with a record of one win, one loss, and one tie.

The team's showing in this tournament prompted Coach Leon Smith to say: "The teams we played up in Canada were better teams than we have played in the past. The boys played some very fine rugby and their play exceeded my fondest hopes. I'm sure each and every one of the players gained some valuable experience on this, their first tour into such a rugby stronghold."

The Cleveland Rugby Club was the opposition for the Eagle Hawks in the first game Saturday morning. Iowa led 4-0 early in the game on a drop goal by Bruce Ross, but eventually lost 6-3 when Cleveland scored two penalty kicks.

The Iowans battled to a 3-3 tie with the BlackRock Rugby Club of Windsor, one of the tournament's top teams. Bill Dawson, a guest player from the Quad Cities Rugby team scored a drop kick for the Eagle Hawks.

The Hawkeyes scored an 8-0 victory over the Nomads Rugby club of Toronto in the final game. The ruggers from Toronto were previously unbeaten. Center John Raney scored a try to give the Eagle Hawks a 3-0 lead.

Clark Tracy scored a second Iowa try and the conversion by Dawson gave the Eagle Hawks their final 8-0 advantage.

Cyclone Punter Won't Change Shorts Intramural Action

AMES (I) — Little Dave Spealler will wear those blue gym shorts again here Saturday to perform kicking chores for Iowa State in his homecoming game with Colorado.

Spealler, a 5-5, 126-pound sophomore who kicks soccer style, booted a 36-yard field goal and an extra point in his first regular football game last Saturday as the Cyclones beat Kansas 24-7 for their first victory of the season.

He wore a regulation uniform except for the shorts, explaining he couldn't get accustomed to the usual knee-length pants.

"We're so superstitious about those blue shorts he wore Saturday, we wouldn't dare let him change," said Coach Clay Stapleton. "We won't even let him wash them."

AP Honors Bear Player

NEW YORK (I) — When Bennie McRae raced off Wrigley Field Sunday afternoon, he got a standing ovation from the crowd of 47,452. When the game was over and the Chicago Bears had upset the Baltimore Colts 27-17, the Bears gave the game ball to him.

McRae, a former Michigan track star, intercepted two Johnny Unitas passes and knocked down several others to earn recognition by the Associated Press as the Defensive Player of the Week in the National Football League.

With the Bears leading 10-0 in the second period and Baltimore moving the ball, Unitas had first-and-10 on the Bears' five. He sent Jimmy Orr deep into the end zone to run along the back line. McRae shadowed Orr, one step back, and then grabbed the ball, seven yards deep in the end zone for a brilliant interception.

McRae might have gone all the way for a 107-yard run if Unitas hadn't knocked him off stride. Bennie stumbled and finally fell on the Chicago 46 after a 53-yard runback.

"That was the play that killed us," muttered Unitas. "He took away a sure seven points and we never could roll again."

McRae intercepted a second pass later in the same period on the Baltimore 47. On the very first play of the game he almost intercepted a long Unitas bomb. In the third period, McRae hit Orr so hard he couldn't hold onto a pass and then knocked down a sideline pass and a deep pass to snuff out an entire series by Unitas.

Highlanders To Perform Saturday

Seventy-five members of the Scottish Highlanders will perform at the Iowa-Minnesota football game Saturday in Minneapolis. The appearance will be part of the University of Minnesota homecoming entertainment.

The bagpipe band will leave Friday morning to appear near Cedar Rapids at the National Cornpicking Contest at noon, presenting a show of traditional Scottish music and dances there.

Leaving immediately after the performance, the Highlanders will travel by special buses to Minneapolis, where they will stay at the Curtis Hotel.

At pre-game ceremonies, the Highlanders will salute Minnesota by playing the "Minnesota Rouser," and the University by forming "HI, IA" and "Hawks" and playing the "Iowa Corn Song."

During their half-time performance, the Highlanders will present the "Highland Fling" and a half dozen marching formations.

Appearing with the all-girl bagpipe band will be Linda Nolan, A4, Guthrie Center, as drum major. Highlanders director is Alan G. McIvor, who was named Aug. 1 to succeed the late William L. Adamson. McIvor came to the University from a position as admissions counselor at Macalester College, St. Paul, Minn.

Saucer Seen Again

WANAQUE, N.Y. (AP) — Residents and policemen said they saw a brilliant unidentified object flying above Wanauque Reservoir Monday night.

They described the "thing" as saucer-shaped, about the size of an automobile and glowing with a white brilliance. The reservoir, part of the Newark water supply system, is about 25 miles northwest of Newark.

Sgt. Ben Thompson of the Wanauque Reservoir police said he saw the object as he drove a patrol car along the reservoir.

"I saw the object coming at me," he said. "It went straight over my head, stopped in midair and backed right up. It then started zig-zagging from left to right."

Sgt. Thompson said he got out of the car and continued to watch the object for almost five minutes "until the glowing light blinded me."

"It was so bright I couldn't make out any of its features," said Thompson.

Thompson said the object maneuvered, stirring up brush and water in the reservoir.

"It was about 150 feet up," he said.

Thompson said he feared his parked car might be struck by a passing automobile, so he turned on the flashing red dome light.

"The instant it started to flash, the object sped away over the reservoir and, without passing over the horizon, disappeared."

Offices at the reservoir police station received a number of calls from nearby residents claiming to have seen the object, and the policemen reported spotting it themselves from the station.

Numerous reports of unidentified flying objects in the area have been received in the last two years, Wanauque police said.
