Under a bright blue, Monday sky 70 persons witnessed the first step toward completion of a $15 million, 35-year-old dream at the University.

Ground was broken for the Museum of Art by Philip Adler, Davenport publisher and University alumnus, who was general chairman of the campaign to raise private funds for the new art gallery.

The $1.6 million museum is part of the $15 million program to expand the fine arts facilities on campus. The gallery will be built northeast of the present Art Building on the west bank of the Iowa River.

"I can't exaggerate the importance of this art gallery," Pres. Howard R. Bowen said at the groundbreaking ceremonies.

Bowen said plans for a fine arts center go back to the 1930s. At that time, he said, the area now occupied by the Art Building and University Theatre was the city dump. With federal aid the area was filled and the Art Building and theatre built, but the project could not be completed because of lack of funds, Bowen said. Now with the help of Federal funds, state funds, student fees and contributions, the Iowa Center of the Arts can be completed, he said.

Partnership

At a luncheon following the groundbreaking Bowen said the program was a "kind of partnership extending over 30 years" among the University, Iowa City, and its many contributors. More than $2 million was contributed, including a million-dollar art collection presented in 1962 by Mr. and Mrs. Owen Elliott of Cedar Rapids.

Frank Seiberling, director of the School of Art, described the structure of the art gallery. He said the building was "not extravagant" but that its modern design provided "inconspicuous protection of art" and considerable flexibility.

4-Story Building

The nearly square, four story structure will contain 39,000 square feet of floor space and will include a 100-seat auditorium below ground. An outdoor sculpture court on the south entrance to the gallery will extend over the auditorium.

A permanent gallery for the Elliott collection and a gallery for temporary exhibitions will surround a central sculpture court.

The building also will house a lounge for visitors, a members' lounge where light refreshments will be available, administrative offices, and a conservation laboratory where restoration and care of art works will be taught.

Lending Gallery

To make available certain works at a nominal charge and to loan works to art associations, a lending gallery is included in the plans.

The building, designed by Harrison and Abramovitz of New York City, utilizes openings in the walls to permit the viewer to see several levels at a time, thus heightening his awareness of spatial variety.

Skylights in the north gallery will help provide a combination of artificial and natural light. Removable light fixtures can be changed so as to illuminate individual art works more clearly. Temporary partitions will allow maximum flexibility in arranging exhibition space.

The gallery is expected to be completed in 1968.

Supreme Court Refuses Cases On Alcoholism And Electoral College

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court refused Monday to hear a case aimed at directing police and lower courts to treat alcoholism as a disease rather than a crime.

Justice Abe Fortas condemned the decision in a sharp dissent. He said criminal punishment of chronic drunks is crude and uncivilized.

Rejected also by the court was a case challenging the Electoral College system and an appeal that it broaden its right-to-counsel doctrine to cover minor offenses.

Justice William O. Douglas joined Fortas in the alcoholism dissent. Justices Potter Stewart and Hugo L. Black protested the decision not to take the right-to-counsel case. There was no dissent from the Electoral College ruling.

No Reason For Refusal

The majority gave no reason for refusing to hear Thomas F. Mudd, an Oakland janitor arrested 34 times in 27 years on drunkenness charges and described in medical testimony as a chronic alcoholic.

Budd's appeal claimed that public drunk-eness is an unavoidable symptom of the disease of chronic alcoholism. Further, he contended that criminal punishment violates the protection against "cruel and unusual punishments" provided by the Eighth Amendment to the Constitution.

Said Fortas: "It is time for this court to decide whether persons suffering from the illness of alcoholism and exhibiting its symptoms or effects may be punished criminally therefor."

"The record and the medical literature admonish us that punishment of alcoholics does society no good. It can be applauded only by the uninformed or the sadistic. It is neither a deterrent nor a cure for those afflicted."

Crude Weapon

"Our morality does not permit us to punish for illness."

"The use of the crude and formidable weapon of criminal punishment of the alcoholic is neither seemly nor sensible, neither purposeful nor civilized."

Joining Fortas, Douglas said simply that "being an alcoholic addict, like being a drug addict, is beyond the reach of the criminal law."

Earlier this year, two of the 11 federal circuit courts, those governing the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina, held chronic alcoholics could not be criminally punished for drunkenness alone.

By not taking the Budd case, the high court passed up the opportunity of laying down a uniform rule for all the courts.

The Electoral College dispute was brought to the court's doorstep by Delaware. Later 12 other states asked to be heard on Delaware's side. Iowa was the first of the 12 to join Delaware.

They questioned the constitutionality of the "winner-take-all" system under which all of the states electoral votes are cast for the presidential nominee who receives a plurality of the state's popular votes.

Street Vacating Hearing Tonight

A proposal by Mercy Hospital that the city vacate the block of Van Buren Street between Market and Bloomington Streets will receive a public hearing at the Iowa City council meeting tonight.

The hospital wants to expand present facilities westward across Van Buren Street.

The proposal to vacate was taken to the Planning and Zoning Commission. The commission voted Sept. 15 to recommend that the council deny the request.

Also on the agenda for the council meeting are the opening of bids on a new tennis center to be built in City Park, reconsideration of bids on a new band platform for College Hill Park and a letter requesting that parking be eliminated from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. along Pleasant Street.

LBJ In Hawaii On First Stop Of 17-Day Far Eastern Tour

HONOLULU (AP) — President Johnson arrived Monday afternoon in the mid-Pacific state of Hawaii from which he will launch his 25,000-mile, 17-day mission to the Far East, hoping for peace.

"We don't expect to pull any rabbits out of the hat at Manila," Johnson said in a brief arrival statement. He referred to his forthcoming conference in the Philippine capital with the heads of nations fighting the war in Viet Nam.

The President and Mrs. Johnson stepped from their gleaming blue and white jet at Honolulu International Airport to receive a cheering welcome from about 3,500 persons, and the traditional leis — flower garlands — from state dignitaries.

Johnson Gives Pledge

Johnson pledged to help build new societies of freedom, peace and prosperity in Asia.

"America's role in this new emerging Asia," he said "is that of a neighbor among equals — a partner in the great adventure of bringing peace, order and progress to a part of the world where more than half the human race lives."

While South Viet Nam is not on the Johnson itinerary, the New York Daily News said Monday it had been told that the President will visit U.S. troops in South Viet Nam during his trip. "Preliminary planning of arrangements and security measures are quietly in progress," the morning paper said in a dispatch from one of its correspondents in Saigon.

Before leaving Washington on Monday morning, Johnson told top U.S. officials gathered to see him off: "I leave you to

U.S. Personal Income Spurts To New High

WASHINGTON (AP) — Personal income spurred another $4.1 billion at an annual rate during September with higher wages, salaries and medicare payments setting the pace.

In reporting this Monday night, the Commerce Department said personal income — the money individuals receive from all sources — rose to a record seasonally adjusted annual rate last month of $589.5 billion.

undertake a hopeful mission. I ask for your prayers. I shall do my best to advance the cause of peace and human progress."

In his airport arrival statement he said it is the Asian Communist chiefs who are the ones able to bring a quick end to the war. But they are not the ones going to Manila, he added.

Johnson held open the door for a peaceful end to the hostilities at such time as the Reds change their present course.

Threat Received

The first anonymous threat to Johnson's life on his planned visit Saturday to Sydney was reported Monday and nobody was really surprised.

The surprise would have been if there had been no such threat because it is the pattern in Australia. A queen or a president or some other VIP is scheduled and somebody telephones a newspaper and says he is going to shoot him or her, or blow up the plane, hangs up quickly and then nothing happens.

But just the same, police and security men have to check out the threats as far as they can because nobody knows whether the caller means what he says or gets some kick out of looking at the newspaper's big headlines and saying "That's me."

The Sydney Daily Mirror reported a man telephoned and said, "I'm going to blow Johnson's head off." Somebody else telephoned the News in Adelaide and said he had heard a conversation indicating the President's life would be in danger in Sydney.

ONE OF THESE FIVE FINALISTS will be chosen Miss U of I in the all-male election to be held Thursday on campus. They are, from left, Jean Heeren, A3, Geneseo, Ill., Chi Omega; Barbara Henderson, A2, Ramsey, N.J., Delta Gamma; Susie Showers, A4, Kirkwood, Mo., Kappa Kappa Gamma; Nancy Moore, A3, Homewood, Ill., Kappa Alpha Theta; and Kristine Sahl, A2, Ida Grove, Currier Hall.

Men Will Select New Miss U of I In Vote Thursday

The fate of the hopes and dreams of the five Miss U of I finalists now rests with the vote of University males.

An all-male vote from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday will determine which one of the hopefuls will reign over Homecoming activities this weekend.

Tuesday night the five finalists and 10 coeds from their sponsoring housing units will present their pageant skits at University male housing units in an effort to gain male support.

They are scheduled to appear tonight at 15 minute intervals beginning at 5 p.m. at Hillcrest, Phi Epsilon Pi, Alpha Epsilon Pi, Nu Sigma Nu, Delta Chi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Acacia, Delta Sigma, Phi Beta Pi, Si Omega, Phi Gamma Delta, Delta Upsilon and Phi Kappa Si.

Monday night the skits were presented at the other professional and social fraternities.

Wednesday the candidates will be campaigning on campus.

The five finalists, their sponsoring units and their themes are Nancy Moore, A3, Homewood, Ill., Kappa Alpha Theta, "Till There Was Nancy"; Barbara Henderson, A2, Ramsey, N.J., Delta Gamma, "A Portrait of Barbara"; Susan Showers, A4, Kirkwood, Mo., Kappa Kappa Gamma, "Let Showers Reign"; Jean Heeren, A3, Geneseo, Ill., Chi Omega, "Fantastical Jean"; and Kristine Sahl, A2, Ida Grove, Currier Hall, "Sugar and Spice."

Polling places for the all-male vote Thursday are the Union Gold Feather Room, Pentacrest, Schaeffer Hall first floor, Phillips Hall Business Administration Auditorium, Chemistry Building entrance, main Library outer lobby, Hillcrest, Rotunda, and the Law Library.

Coronation of the 1966 Miss U of I will take place at 8 p.m. Friday on the east steps of Old Capitol following the Homecoming Parade.

Rowan Knows There Is 'No Hiding Place'

By DON YAGER
Staff Writer

"I went to the rocks to hide my face; The rocks cried out, 'No hiding place.' There's no hiding place down here," Carl T. Rowan knows from experience the truth of these words from an old Negro spiritual.

"Everywhere I saw the need for courage, for moral strength, and for reasserted belief in the Golden Rule." Rowan wrote in his book "South of Freedom," following his search for the new South.

"Yes, the need is everywhere, and the South knows it, and therein grows the dilemma," he said.

In 1951, Rowan, a Negro journalist, was sent out to see if there was anything new about the racial problem since his childhood. Indeed there was.

He found that, "Never was the race problem more with us, nor in a more sinister way, than in these times of international gloom, when hatreds seem everywhere and differences in men, both racial and ideological, would seem to govern our fate."

Rowan predicted that the only way the Negro could help break the racial barrier was for him to gain courage and moral strength and to remember, "There's no hiding place . . ."

he said. "There are those among us who fear it, and many of us black folk live in it; almost all of us put our faith in it — never, however, accepting the dream that history cures all ills as it creates all of them."

'Not Yet Masters'

"We are not yet masters of our own fate, but we intend to grope and grapple with the present, and try to put a mold of our making on the future. And even the white South believes that, in large measure, we will succeed."

By following the guidelines as set forth in his book, Carl T. Rowan did succeed. In doing so, he proved that it was possible for a Negro to break his own racial barriers and to help loosen the foundations of the racial barriers for all Negroes.

Rowan, who will open the 1966 University Lecture Series at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Union Main Lounge with the topic, "New Frontiers in Race Relations," and his four brothers and sisters grew up in poverty in McMinnville, Tenn. When work was available, their father stacked lumber in a lumber yard.

77 Cent Star

In 1942, Rowan graduated from high school and with 77 cents in his pocket, left for Tennessee State University at Nashville. At 19, he became an ensign and one of the first Negro officers in Navy history.

After the war, Rowan returned to school to receive a degree in mathematics from Oberlin College in Ohio and a master's degree in journalism at the University of Minnesota.

CARL T. ROWAN
To Open Lecture Series

He joined the staff of the Minneapolis Tribune determined to be "just another newsman, not a specialist in so-called Negro news."

While on the staff, he won Sigma Delta Chi awards for outstanding reporting from Asia and India and for segregation cases pending before the U.S. Supreme Court. He also won the Sidney Hillman award for the best newspaper reporting in 1952.

Outstanding Young Man

The U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce selected him as one of the Ten Outstanding Young Men of America in 1954.

Although Rowan was a highly successful reporter by this time, his book, written in 1951, spurred him on to success formerly unknown to a Negro American.

In 1961, President John F. Kennedy appointed him Deputy Undersecretary of State for Public Affairs. During his tenure in this office, Rowan accompanied the then Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson on a good-will tour around the world.

Another milestone in Rowan's life, and in that of the American Negro community, took place in 1963, when he was appointed U.S. Ambassador to Finland. He thus became America's youngest ambassador and the fifth Negro to gain ambassadorial rank.

Ill-Afford To Refuse

In commenting on his appointment, Rowan said, "In a period when the American Negro is demanding greater opportunities and responsibilities, I could ill-afford to refuse to serve as chief representative in one of our most important diplomatic posts. I also felt my going to Finland would hasten the day when American Negroes would be playing the role they ought to play in our foreign service."

But perhaps Rowan's primary contribution toward breaking the racial barrier was in January, 1964, when he succeeded fellow-journalist Edward R. Murrow as head of the United States Information Agency (USIA). In this post, Rowan became the first Negro to sit on the National Security Council and to attend the President's Cabinet meetings.

President Johnson placed all psychological warfare activity in South Viet Nam under Rowan's direction in April, 1965.

Resigned In 1965

Rowan once said that four years in government was enough for anyone, so in August, 1965, he resigned as USIA director to become one of the country's top Negro syndicated columnists for the Chicago Daily News.

"I had a feeling of satisfaction beyond what it meant to my personal pocketbook," he said. "It meant that Negroes, like white Americans, can leave government and face economic opportunity commensurate with what they know and are prepared to deliver. This has not always been so . . . I hope that this indicates we've reached a new day."

Rowan said in a recent issue of Ebony that it was essential to recognize two types of Negro Americans — the privileged and the unprivileged. He said it was also essential that these two groups work together with the whites to break the race barriers.

"I believe it would be a tragedy for these so-called two Negro Americans to begin wasting their energies and resources in hostility toward each other," Rowan said. "They may be far apart in terms of standard of living and level of culture . . . but in the psychological world of the heart and mind there is still only one Negro world."

Not One Vast Glob

But, he said it was unreasonable to expect the Negro in America to move ahead as "one vast middle class glob."

"The Negro elite is essential to the Negro's beating down the social, cultural and economic barriers that still block his way to first class citizenship," Rowan said.

"How far Negroes as a whole go will depend largely on the aggressiveness and integrity of this first little army of Negroes who have begun to hobnob with the real power structure in America," he said.

A maze

First it was Market and Jefferson Streets that were made one-way. Now Dodge and Governor have been switched to one-way couplets. It is a trifle disconcerting, to say the least, to converge on your regular route one morning and find two lanes of traffic bearing down on you. But, in time, we shall learn. For such, they say, is logical progression toward a solution to the city's traffic problems.

We feel compelled to observe, however, that if the current trend continues, Iowa City by 1967 will be a maze of one-way streets.

By that time they probably will have paved the Iowa River and made it southbound.

Bruce Morrow

Victims of propaganda

A country's villains are predictable types. In an earlier era America's villain was the Redskin. He was invariably shrieking, skulking, or scalping. During World War II the bad guys were, of course, the Germans and Japanese; during the cold war, the Russians; and now, Chinese Communists.

The Wall Street Journal calls attention to the emergence of the Oriental as America's current bad guy. It quotes a non-Oriental who plays Oriental parts as saying, "We're getting back to the era of the 'Yellow Menace,' and I don't think this contributes anything to prospects for world peace."

It goes on to point out that Japanese film makers frequently choose Americans or Europeans as their villains. And the Chinese Communist version of the Yankee imperialist is, you may be sure, no one you would care to happen upon.

The caricatures of official propaganda and the political cartoon soon begin to appear on movie and television screens and in the comic strips. If no one takes it seriously, it causes no problem. The trouble is that it is relatively easy for nations to get carried away by the half-truths of their own propaganda.

Then, when the enemy is no longer the enemy, public opinion is expected to adjust. But distrust and hatred are not wiped out overnight. Suspicion and hostility linger on to bedevil interpersonal and international relations.

It is hardly surprising that in Communist China, where the anti-American stereotype is widely and officially promoted, the people begin to believe it. Americans need to take care that the reverse does not occur. The comparatively few American-produced hero-and-villain type shows which refrain from stereotyping their characters according to race or nationality are to be commended.

Where people tend to confuse fact and fiction, and this is not uncommon anywhere in the world, the media have a responsibility to refrain from feeding the fears and prejudice of the public they serve.

Smoking signs are ignored in classrooms

To the Editor:

In spite of the "No Smoking" signs posted in almost every classroom on campus, smoking still goes on in probably a majority of classrooms. I would like to register a long overdue complaint about smoking in the classroom.

Most smokers do not seem to give a second thought to the fact that, whereas they may enjoy sucking that tar-laden and probably cancer-inducing smoke into every bronchiole of their lungs, there are some of us who have enough sense to follow the Surgeon General's advice and who just plain do not like breathing smoke in the place of nice clean air.

Not only do smokers foul the air with their smoke, they also turn the classroom into a pig sty. Ask any janitor. No place is this more obvious than in the shining, new English-Philosophy Building. In spite of the "No Smoking" signs, smokers have strewn every classroom floor with their refuse. While smoking they knock their ashes off onto the floor, as if it were the street. And, when they are done, they drop the cigarette butts, too. But not content with that, they then grind them into the floor with their shoes, leaving nasty, grayish-black splatters in the brand-new tile, not to mention the new tables and desks which are already beginning to show the telltale scars of forgotten cigarettes.

Something ought to be done about this problem. The responsibility lies with the individual instructor. He should not assume that, because no one complains, everyone enjoys breathing the instructor's or students' smoke. There is seldom a student, no matter how much he may detest smoking, who is going to ask his instructor or fellow students to quit. Non-smokers have so long had to put up with the smoker, that they no longer realize they have the right to breathe clean air, especially in the classroom where they are a captive audience.

Because no one should criticize something without offering a solution, I close with this suggestion: Psychiatrists have for years explained smoking as an oral fixation left over from the smoker's childhood thumb-sucking days. I suggest that you all go back to sucking your thumbs and leave the air fit for human consumption.

War is continued for economy's sake

By JAMES MICHAEL CALLAGHAN
For Iowa Socialist League
The following is the first of two parts — Ed.

Since the serious escalation of the Vietnam war began, many newspapers have discussed the embarrassing fact that the war is "good for our economy." It seems at first paradoxical that the waste of human lives and our productive capacity in ways unrelated to normal consumption and inimical to human happiness should be good for our economy. Therefore the question of exactly how a war can be good for the economy deserves some consideration.

First of all, a monopoly capitalist economy tends to be unable to operate at full capacity under peacetime conditions, because (for reasons I shall not consider here) it is not maximally profitable to the capitalists to run it at full capacity. War, or the threat of war, can make it profitable by enabling the government to tax the people (usually with their approval of an alleged common external danger) to pay the capitalists great sums of money for supplying the army. That is, the government provides added demand for heavy investment in a war machine, and if this investment is heavy enough, the economy can operate at full capacity.

The question is often asked whether it would be possible for the government to produce the same result by spending a great deal of money on things other than armaments and armies.

Of course, it would be possible if they would do it. But it is very unlikely that this would be done in a monopoly capitalist system, at least on the required scale. To accomplish this, government would either on a large scale, or tax corporations and the rich more effectively than has hitherto been possible in order to institute such massive welfare expenditures that individual income and standard of living would become increasingly unrelated to work, or a combination of both; or the government would simply have to pay the capitalists to produce things that had no use whatever.

The first three would be unacceptable to a capitalist system; the last would be so manifestly irrational as to be unacceptable to any taxpayer. Only huge defense expenditures have none of these drawbacks, though even armaments and armies, of course, have no use whatsoever unless there is some external threat. Hence, if this threat does not exist, the illusion of it must be manufactured. If we want the economy to work at full capacity we had better get used to having a persistent need for war or at least the threat of war, unless we change the whole system.

Furthermore the evidence is that we will have to resort increasingly to war itself rather than to stockpiling against some real or illusory threat. This is because as responsible leaders of the U.S. oligarchy have recently begun to realize the arms race actually decreases the nation's chance for survival in an all-out war.

It is this realization that is responsible for the partial test ban treaty and the hope expressed by Roswell Gilpatric, former Deputy Secretary of Defense in Foreign Affairs, April 1964, that by 1970 we could cut arms spending by as much as 24 per cent as compared to the 1964 level. If we decrease stockpiling, war itself, of the "special," "limited" Vietnamese variety, is the best thing left to "prime the pump" of our kind of economy.

A socialist economy would not have to invest in the production of war material in order to maintain full capacity production. If for any reason investment dropped, say investment in armaments, a socialist economy would be able to employ the workers released from the arms industries in consumption goods industries, and absorb the increased supply of consumption goods by lowering the prices so that the decline in profits would be equal to the decreased value of investment.

Such lowering of prices would not occur in a capitalist economy because profit maximization is the objective of the capitalist.

By NICHOLAS MEYER
For the Iowan

A word, serendipity, has been coined to describe the accidental discovery of something very pleasurable and delightful. It is the perfect word to use in describing the feeling that must exist in someone discovering Harold Lloyd for the very first time.

"The Funny Side of Life," which is a re-issuing of several excerpts of Lloyd's shorter films, and includes the complete 1925 feature, "The Freshman," serves a number of very functional purposes, not the least of which is to generate an enormous amount of laughter.

Among other services, it proves conclusively and joyfully that silent screen comedy is not something that relies on the flimsy and frequently affected attitude of nostalgia to be appreciated.

Unlike Chaplin's highly stylized silent screen acting, Harold Lloyd's performances are seemingly nothing more than an actor speaking with the soundtrack taken off the film; everything he says can "fortunately" be understood without the words.

This is the impression Harold Lloyd wishes to give, but it is in fact the triumph of his art that he makes it seem so easy and so clear. Upon closer examination, we find that what looks so realistic is actually very subtly heightened acting.

Lloyd's timing, his facial expressions and the movements of his body are all perfection. He is clear, concise, precise. He knows what he wants his audience to feel, EXACTLY, and he knows just how to get it, not merely approximate it. And he does it without making you realize that he is working at being precise or clear, or even that he is exaggerating his movements.

Throughout it all, he also manages to maintain a posture of immense sincerity, no matter how funny or improbable the external melodramatic situations become.

Meyer responds

To the Editor:

It is not supposed to be part of my job to pass out misinformation in my reviews. Therefore I owe an immediate apology to the gentleman who has kindly informed me of the many accomplishments of Abby Lincoln. I am a newcomer indeed, for not having known her. The only satisfaction that I allow myself is that I liked her without knowing who she was.

To the lady who takes me to task for using the word "entertained" in my appraisal of Julius Harris' performance in "Nothing But a Man," I must plead not guilty. What I said about Mr. Harris (whom I greatly admire) was meant to be entirely complimentary. Unfortunately, the quotation marks I had typed around the word "entertained" in my review were accidentally removed in the printing. I think quotes being there would have resolved our differences.

I plead not guilty, as well, to the review having appeared too late: my reviews are always in plenty of time. The paper, however, devoted its editorial page to the visit of Senator Kennedy to Marion, and ran the review a day late, not knowing that the film had left.

British offices like miniskirts

Miniskirts are great in the office — provided the male employees are too old or too nearsighted to care.

The advocacy of miniskirts for business came at England's week-long Business Efficiency Conference in London at which the official hostesses wore the most modish type of feminine attire.

According to The Insider's Newsletter, the conference chairman explained that "they make a girl feel brisker and lighter, and therefore more efficient."

'Funny side of Life' makes point silently

His humor is not the genius of Chaplin, especially where direction and construction are concerned, but it must be said that he is a better actor, or at any rate, his performances seem less dated even though they are "limited" by his having to work in the era of silent film.

Harold Lloyd is believable — and does it without sound; he doesn't need a voice. After watching him for thirty seconds or so, you begin to hear it.

As to the feature work, "The Freshman," it is hysterically, side-splittingly funny, even though attitudes and preoccupations (for the most part) seemed to have changed radically on college campuses since 1925. But their's was a carefree era (or so we are told), and perhaps being the most popular kid ("Just step right up and call me Speedy!") on campus WAS the most important thing in the go-get-'em Freshman's life.

"The climax of the film is the 'big game' (filmed, incidentally at half time during the Rosebowl game of 1924), in which we see some extremely funny and curious (rules have changed considerably since '24) football.

Harold Lloyd's mastery of his art, his inimitable personal style and sensitivity, his apparent spontaneity and his sense that a movie must be essentially visual to succeed ought to make condescending analyses of today think twice before writing off the silent films as Chaplin & Nothing Much Else. Silent films were capable of barbed satire, high comedy (which includes much better editing of action than is done in films today) warmth, character studies and, in sum, great (not nostalgic) art.

All hail the triumphant lunacy of Harold Lloyd.
See him and encounter serendipity.

World of conformity

To the Editor:

We live in a world of conformity and phonies: conformity because people dress like each other, think like each other, live like each other; phonies because while they live like this they believe in something else. In our society the individual who will stand up for what he believes is a dying species.

Where do the students of the University of Iowa stand in this society? Deplorably, they are joining everyone else in following the crowd. There are those who unthink-

Concerts, films planned at Union

By CHERYL ARVIDSON
For The Iowan

Union Board has multi-faceted events scheduled for the near future which should provide high caliber entertainment for the University campus.

Starting the list of happenings are the Union Board movies. Twentieth Century presents John Steinbeck's "The Grapes of Wrath," at 7 tonight in the Illinois Room. The Thursday and Friday Cinema 16 film will be "The Maltese Falcon," shown at 7 and 9 p.m. in the Illinois Room. The Weekend Movie will be "To Catch a Thief," Saturday and Sunday at 4, 7 and 9 p.m. in the Illinois Room.

The Special Projects committee of the Literary area is planning a foreign poetry reading and criticism at 3:30 p.m. Thursday in the Lucas-Dodge Room. Spanish and French poetry will be read with English comments given. Coffee will be served.

Thursday night at 8, a University Symphony and Choir Concert will be held in the Main Lounge. Continuing the music theme, will be Friday's Hootenanny in the Main Lounge at 9 p.m. The first in a series of special concerts will be presented at 8:30 p.m., Oct. 28. This concert will be performed by five men at the University on a Rockefeller music grant. There is only one such grant given each year, so this will be a valuable and an excellent concert to attend. The first Graduate String Quartet Concert will be held Nov. 7.

The days of October are hurrying by and the Union Board hayride and MacGregor area trip are approaching. The hayride will be Oct. 28, and the trip Oct. 30. Check in the Activities Center for additional information.

That's Union Board, and Happy Homecoming.

Federal Funds Sought For Youth Corps Jobs

Arthur Douglas, director of the Hawkeye Area Community Action Program, said Monday he had sent in an application for a neighborhood youth corps project.

The project, if approved by the federal government, would provide jobs for youths in the county from low-income homes. Douglas said about 40 part-time jobs would be provided for persons between 16 and 21. It is hoped that the part-time jobs will enable the youths to stay in school.

He said about 10 to 16 full-time jobs would be provided for persons between 16 and 21 who had already dropped out of school.

Douglas said the jobs would be in the school systems of Solon, Lone Tree and Clear Creek and in the University Athletic Department, the Iowa City Public Library, the Veteran's Adminstration Hospital and the Iowa City municipal offices.

Besides providing jobs, the project would provide for personal counseling, Douglas said. He said the project would include trips through local businesses. He explained that this would give each youth a look at different types of work, and it would also give the businessman a chance to meet prospective employees.

The jobs which pay $1.25 an hour are expected to run through the entire school year, Douglas said he hoped to extend the program through next summer.

He said that four members of his staff were working in the county on a socio-economic survey. Such a survey is necessary, Douglas said, because the government has set a maximum on income earned by the household of those youths who would be eligible for the program.

Cadets Begin Flight Training

Fourteen University students have begun pilot training as part of their Air Force ROTC program.

This training, which begins each fall at the Iowa City Airport, could ultimately lead to flying in Air Force jet planes.

Each student in the Flight Instruction Program (FIP) attends a 36-hour Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) approved ground school and completes a 36½-hour flying program, all at federal government expense.

Upon completion of the requirements, an AFROTC Cadet receives an FAA private pilot's license. He then is scheduled for Air Force jet-pilot training, after he wins his AFROTC commission. Air Force cadets training this year in the Flight Instruction Program are: John B. Benten, A4,

Springfield, Mo.; Brooks W. Book-er III, A4, Iowa City; Richard H. Evans, A4, Ottumwa; Richard J. Floyd, A4, Des Moines; Paul L. Fooker, A4, Moline, Ill.; James R. Getz, A4, Prospect Hts., Ill.; Delmar Hammond, E4, Cedar Ra-

Soviet Bloc Leaders Confer To Review China's Actions

MOSCOW (AP) — Leaders of the Soviet bloc assembled in Moscow Monday night to try to decide what to do about China's erratic brand of communism and its obstruction of aid to North Viet Nam.

The top Communists from Bulgaria, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Hungary, Mongolia, Poland, Romania and the Soviet Union also are expected to see Soviet cosmonauts launched into orbit Thursday.

Soviet officials refused to confirm reports from Communist sources that at least two and possibly as many as eight cosmonauts would be sent aloft in one earth satellite.

The tone for the week-long talks was set Monday by a staff summation in the Communist party paper Pravda of the Kremlin's anger at Mao Tse-Tung's policies in China.

The whole range of grievances was reviewed by Pravda: China's refusal to cooperate with the So- viet bloc hinders aid to Viet Nam; China's attitude encourages "American imperialism;" China's "great cultural revolution" dis- graces the name of communism.

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH

Way back in 1953 I started writing this column about campus life. Today, a full 13 years later, I am still writing this column, for my interest in undergraduates is as keen and lively as ever. This is called "arrested development."

But where else can a writer find a subject as fascinating as the American campus? Where else are minds so nettled, bodies so roiled, psyches so unglued?

Right now, for example, though the new school year has just begun, you've already encountered the following dis- asters:

1. You hate your teachers.
2. You hate your courses.
3. You hate your room-mates.
4. You have no time to study.
5. You have no place to study.

Friends, let us, without despair, examine your problems one by one.

1. You hate your teachers. For shame, friends! Try looking at things their way. Take your English teacher, for instance. Here's a man who is one of the world's authorities on Robert Browning, yet he wears $30 tweeds and a pre-war necktie while his brother Sam, a high school dropout, earns 70 thou a year in aluminum siding. Is it so hard to understand why he writes "F" on top of your themes and "Eeeyich!" in the margin? Instead of hating him, should you not admire his dedication to scholarship, his disdain for the blandishments of commerce? Of course you should. You may flunk, but Pippa passes.

2. You hate your courses. You say, for example, that you don't see the use of studying Macbeth when you are majoring in veterinary medicine. You're wrong, friends. Believe me, some day when you are running a busy kennel, you'll be mighty glad you learned "Out, damned Spot!"

3. You hate your room-mates. This is, unquestionably, a big problem—in fact, the second biggest problem on American campuses. (The first biggest, of course, is on which side of your mortar board do you dangle the tassel at Commencement?) But there is an answer to the room- mate problem: keep changing room-mates. The optimum interval, I have found, is every four hours.

4. You have no time to study. Friends, I'm glad to re- port there is a simple way to find extra time in your busy schedule. All you have to do is buy some Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades. Then you won't be wasting pre- cious hours hacking away with inferior blades, mangling your face again and again in a tedious, feckless effort to winnow your whiskers. Personna shaves you quickly and slickly, easily and breezily, hacklessly, scrapelessly, tug- glessly, nicklessly, scratchlessly, matchlessly. Furthermore, Personna Blades last and last. Moreover, they are avail- able both in double-edge and Injector style. And, as if this weren't enough, Personna is now offering you a chance to grab a fistful of $100 bills. The Personna Super Stainless Steel Sweepstakes is off and running! You can win $10,000 and even more. Get over to your Personna dealer for de- tails and an entry blank. Don't just stand there!

5. You have no place to study. This is a thorny one, I'll admit, what with the library so jammed and the dorms so noisy. But with a little ingenuity, you can still find a quiet, deserted spot—like the ticket office of the lacrosse team. Or a testimonial dinner for the dean. Or the nearest re- cruiting station.

You see, friends? When you've got a problem, don't lie down and quit. Attack! Remember: America did not be- come the world's greatest producer of milk solids and sorghum by running away from a fight!

The makers of Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades (double-edge or Injector style) and Burma-Shave (regu- lar or menthol) are pleased (or apprehensive) to bring you another year of Max Shulman's uninhibited, uncen- sored column.

Detroit's Bob Swift Succumbs To Cancer

DETROIT (AP) — Bob Swift, who three times posted winning records as an acting American League baseball manager but never won the job permanently, died in a Detroit hospital Monday.

The 51-year-old Swift, who took over the Detroit Tigers twice in the past two years when Manager Charlie Dressen suffered heart attacks, was hospitalized shortly after the All Star Game with what was thought to be a stomach ailment.

It was later diagnosed as lung cancer. "The death of Bob Swift is sad news to everyone in the Tiger organization," said owner John E. Fetzer. "As a player, coach and manager under trying circumstances, he gave a full measure of devotion to the game which he loved. I offer deepest personal sympathy to his wife and other members of his family."

When Harry Craft fell ill at Kansas City in 1959, Swift, a coach, was called to manage. He directed the A's to 10 straight victories and 13 out of 15.

"When they let Craft go, I thought I would get the first crack at the job," Swift once said. But the Athletics named Bob Elliott.

Swift moved to Washington where he coached for a year, then returned to the Tiger organization as manager of the Duluth team in 1961.

Dressen suffered a heart attack in 1965 and Swift took over during spring training. The Tigers posted a 24-18 record before Dressen returned.

Last May, Dressen suffered his second heart attack and Swift again became manager. He was 32-25 before being sidelined by illness himself.

Swift caught 1,001 major league games in spite of a .231 batting average. He played with the old St. Louis Browns and Philadelphia Athletics, plus the Tigers.

Frank Skaff took over the Tiger helm when Swift became ill this summer. Dressen died during the season and the Tigers named Mayo Smith manager after the season ended.

Hawks Begin Preparations For Game With Wildcats

By RON BLISS
Asst. Sports Editor

Paul Usinowicz was moved back to tight end and Dave Moreland took over the punting duties Monday as Iowa's Hawkeyes began preparations for Saturday's Homecoming game with Northwestern.

Usinowicz, a 6-4, 210-pound senior from Pompton Lakes, N.J., had been switched from tight end to tackle just two weeks ago to add strength to the offensive line. He replaces Larry McDowell, a 6-2, 197-pound senior from Cedar Rapids who suffered a knee injury in Saturday's 17-0 loss to Minnesota.

McDowell, who also does the punting, will be out for about two weeks according to Coach Ray Nagel. Moreland, a 6-1, 190-pound linebacker from Audubon, will do the punting until McDowell returns, Nagel said.

Others Hurt
Others injured in Saturday's game were wingback Barry Crees, who suffered a knee injury; guard Phil Major, a hip pointer; and safety Bill McCutchen, a sprained wrist. All are expected to be ready for Saturday's game.

"We are bleeding now and we might bleed some more," Nagel said, "but we will get up and fight again. This team is trying the hardest of any team I've been associated with."

Nagel said Saturday's loss was especially frustrating from the standpoint that the team was once again unable to score. Saturday's shutout extended Iowa's scoreless quarter string to 15. The Hawks have not scored a touchdown in 17 quarters.

Frustrating Situation
"I have never been confronted by a situation in which one of my teams could not score," said Nagel. "The offense seems to move the ball well at times, but every time it gets a chance to score something happens."

"The team seems to be trying too hard and this tension could be part of the problem," Nagel continued. "The players get all tied up in thinking they have got to score and as a result, things go bad."

Defense Improving
Nagel said the defense seems to be doing a better job each week and is improving against both the running and passing game of opponents.

Nagel has had special praise for the improvement of guards John Hendricks and Dick Somodi on defense.

He also is well pleased with the steady performance of his two linebackers, Dave Moreland and Dan Hilsabeck. Moreland recorded 15 solo tackles and 8 assists in Saturday's loss.

With attention focusing on Northwestern, Nagel said the main concentration will be on the passing attack this week in practice.

Northwestern Tough
"We need improvement in both our passing and running games if we are going to beat Northwestern," Nagel said.

Nagel said he was looking forward to the game with Northwestern and warned that the Wildcats may be a little tougher opponent than most people are expecting.

"Northwestern, despite its mediocre record (1-3-1), is a good team with excellent personnel," Nagel said. "We have special respect for Bob McKevey (a 222-pound fullback); Woody Campbell, (a 200-pound halfback); and Cas Banaszek (a 235-pound end)."

The Wildcats lost to undefeated Florida in the opener, 43-7; to Indiana, 26-14; and to unbeaten Notre Dame, 35-7. Their only victory to date is a 14-6 win over Oregon State, a team that beat Iowa 17-3 in Iowa City. Northwestern tied Wisconsin 3-3 last Saturday.

Orioles' Powell Is Comeback Player Of Year
NEW YORK (AP) — John (Boog) Powell, the husky first baseman whose improved batting helped the Baltimore Orioles win the American League pennant, was named the circuit's comeback player-of-the-year for 1966 Monday.

The Orioles' slugger collected 124 votes in the balloting by 312 baseball writers in the annual Associated Press poll. Shortstop Luis Aparicio, also of the Orioles, was second with 32 votes and pitcher Jack Sanford of the California Angels was third with 27.

Powell increased his batting average 39 points, his home run production by 17 and his runs batted in output by 37 the past season.

He finished with a .287 average, 34 homers and 109 RBI. He was fourth in batting, the runner-up in RBI and third in homers. In 1965, Powell hit only 243 with 17 homers and 72 runs batted in.

A 6-foot-4½, 245-pounder, Powell is a native of Lakeland, Fla. and a resident of Baltimore. The last was his fifth season with the Orioles for whom he batted .290 with 39 homers and 99 RBI in 1964.

Earl Wilson, Detroit pitcher, was fourth in the balloting with 24 votes. He was followed by Frank Robinson, Baltimore, 23; Mickey Mantle, New York Yankees, 17; Al Kaline, Detroit, 14; Jim Kaat, Minnesota, 13 and Gary Peters, Chicago White Sox, 11.

Orlando Cepeda of St. Louis was named the National League's comeback player for 1966 last week.

Red Wings Sign Howe For 22nd Straight Year
DETROIT (AP) — Gordie Howe signed Monday for a record 21st season in the National Hockey League, inking his contract with the Detroit Red Wings.

The 38-year-old star said "I'm looking forward to my 22nd season."

Previously Bill Gadsby of the Red Wings and Dit Clapper of Boston had played 20 years along with Howe. Both Gadsby and Clapper have retired.

Howe's salary was undisclosed, but Manager Sid Abel called the contract "the finest in Gordie's 21 years with the Red Wings."

McCuskey Has High Hopes For 1966 Wrestling Team

By TERRY FRIEDEN
Staff Writer

Dave McCuskey has seen some good years and some lean ones in his 13 years as head wrestling coach at the University of Iowa. As his matmen begin daily workouts in preparation for the upcoming season, McCuskey has high hopes this will be one of the good ones.

Last year was not. The Iowa wrestlers finished with a disappointing record. They won two, lost five and tied two in dual meets with Big 10 competition. At the conference tournament Iowa finished only one point ahead of last-place Illinois, while Michigan State continued to dominate Big 10 wrestling. Not a single Hawkeye placed in the conference meet.

Hawks Improved

But this year things are different. "We'll be improved over last year," said McCuskey. Ralph Reiks, his assistant coach agreed, "We're very optimistic."

There is good evidence to support their enthusiasm. An excellent crop of 13 sophomores are stepping up to the varsity to join five returning lettermen. The young 21-man varsity squad includes only four seniors and four juniors.

The returning lettermen and the probable weights they will wrestle at are Dennis Wegner, 160 pounds; Steve Moss, 177; Tom Fennelly, 177; Russell Sill, 167; and Ray Davis, 152.

Sophos Will Help

The strong Sophomore class is headed by three state high school champions. They are Phil Henning, 160; Paul Austin, 130; and Joe Wells, 145. Other sophomores that placed in the state tournament are Dale Stearns, heavyweight; Verlyn Strellner, 177; and Jan Willard, 177.

There will be nine slots to fill instead of eight for each meet because an extra weight class has been added. The 147 pound class was changed to 145, and the 157 pound class was altered to 160, leaving room to insert a 152 pound class. This will be the first year the Big 10 will use the new weights. Most schools in the National Collegiate Athletic Association used the nine class team last year.

"There will be a lot of competition on the varsity for the starting positions this year," said McCuskey. "This is something we've missed in recent years."

Freshmen Good Too

The future of wrestling at Iowa looks even brighter with a glance at the freshman roster. There are 38 freshmen who practice with the varsity each day. Freshman coach Joe Greenlee is pleased that nearly half of them have placed in their state meets.

The Iowa wrestlers have a 20-meet schedule lined up for the 1966-67 season. The Hawkeys open the season in an invitational tournament at Minnesota on Nov. 26. On Jan. 5, 6, and 7 the team makes a trip East to meet Cornell University, the Military Academy at West Point, and the New York Athletic Club.

The team will be trying to win its third Big 10 championship this year. Iowa won that title under McCuskey in 1958 and in 1962.

New Handicap System Instituted By USGA

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States Golf Association announced Monday that effective next Jan. 1 a new handicap system would go into effect aimed at producing nationwide uniformity.

The principal change from the system now in effect is that a golfer's handicap will be based on the best 10 of his last 20 scores, rather than the present best 10 out of 25.

Simultaneously yardage will be the prime factor in rating the comparative difficulty of holes and courses. The yardage rating chart, graduated in tenths of a stroke, will grade courses in 20-yard segments for men and 18-yard segments for women.

"The almost total emphasis on yardage in the USGA's revised course rating system will promote national uniformity," said the USGA. "At present, rating committees in various districts make considerable adjustment on individual holes; the opinions of rating committees vary widely and are sometimes subjective, rather than based on the standard of scratch golf."

The handicap limit of both men and women has been cut to 36 from the present 50.

Loras Accepted As NAIA Member

DES MOINES (AP) — Loras College has been accepted as a member of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics after a seven-year absence from the group.

Directors of NAIA District 15 voted unanimously in a meeting here to make the Dubuque school the district's 14th member.

L.D. Weldon of Graceland College was named secretary-treasurer of the district, and the directors endorsed nomination of A.W. Buckingham of Morning-side College, immediate past president of the NAIA, to the association's Hall of Fame.

Unitas Squelches Rumors; Passes For 4 Touchdowns

BALTIMORE (AP) — The whispering started early this season. Quarterback John Unitas had a sore arm. His right knee had not fully recovered from last year's operation. Or he had some other injury.

The talk stopped suddenly Sunday, after the Baltimore Colts routed the Detroit Lions 45-14.

The 33-year-old veteran of 11 seasons in the National Football League rarely looked better. Four of his 18 completions in 27 passes went for touchdowns and he did not even play the last 10 minutes.

"You always look good when you win," he replied laconically to the locker room accolades. There also was a wry note in his voice since he had to be aware that the Colt offense had been on the pan after the first four games.

It had scored only eight touchdowns, seven by Unitas passes. As always, the faulting finger was pointed at the quarterback and particularly since eight of his passes had been intercepted.

As in the past whenever the Colts faltered, the secret of Unitas being erratic was an injury, according to the gossip.

He completed his first eight passes and didn't have one intercepted against Detroit.

"He was never sharper," praised ed Coach Harry Gilmer of the Lions.

"He had his finest game of the year," declared Coach Don Shula of the Colts.

Schmidhauser Answers Schwengel's Charge

Rep. John R. Schmidhauser (D-Iowa) said Sunday that he had never used the University for what he called "the petty purpose of advancing my own position."

Republican congressional candidate Fred Schwengel last week charged that Schmidhauser had "failed to take advantage of the University's resources."

Schmidhauser, speaking before a group of about two dozen persons at Trinity Episcopal Church, labeled Schwengel's statement as "a blatant attempt to misuse the University." Schmidhauser said Schwengel had "compounded his falsehoods with bad taste" in his campaign.

"While I have never used the University to further my political career," Schmidhauser said, "I have made use of its vast potential for a fuller contribution to the economic growth and development of the region." He referred to the Southeast Iowa Research Advisory Council which he helped to organize as an example of the University's potential.

The Council, made up in part of University members, endeavors to find ways in which the area's economic resources can be used more efficiently.

Schmidhauser noted that factual material from the Hydraulics Laboratory enabled him to effectively criticize the proposed legislation for dams in the Grand Canyon.

'New Wave' Poet Recital Is Monday

Lawrence Ferlinghetti, a "new wave" American poet, will give a reading of his works at 8 p.m. next Monday in Macbride Auditorium.

The reading is being sponsored by Students for a Democratic Society and the Radical Arts Project.

Tickets cost $1 and will be on sale at the Union, the Paper Place, and by SDS members through Monday.

Ferlinghetti holds an A.B. from the University of North Carolina, an M.A. from Columbia, and a Doctorate from the Sorbonne. He served in the Navy in World War II, then returned to the United States where he "emptied wastebaskets at Time" for a while.

After an extended stay in Paris he and Peter Martin founded the first all-paper-bound bookstore in the United States, called City Lights.

Ferlinghetti began publishing the Pocket Poets Series which includes work by William Carlos Williams, Allen Ginsberg, and several other poets, including a collection of Ferlinghetti's, "Pictures of The Gone World."

Ferlinghetti's most popular book of poetry, "A Coney Island Of The Mind," was published in 1958 by New Directions.

Prof To Direct Placement Of Lewis And Clark Signs

William Petersen, professor of history and superintendent of the Iowa State Historical Society, will direct the placement of signs marking the route of Lewis and Clark as they crossed the state during their historic trip in 1803. There will be 23 markers in Iowa.

J.N. "Ding" Darling, editorial cartoonist for the Sioux City Journal and the Des Moines Register, started the work on the markers. After his death in 1962, the Ding Darling Foundation of Des Moines helped secure congressional passage of a law establishing the 23-member Lewis and Clark Trail Commission.

The Commission, composed of representatives from federal agencies, the foundation and the 11 states the explorers visited, obtained special Congressional authorization for the markers. They were permitted to include interstate highways in the trail and to post the markers on the normally sign-less highways.

The markers, which will cost $1,027, are buckskin brown and white. Two silhouetted figures of brown are shown against a reflectorized white background. One figure is pointing the way and the other is holding a rifle.

New campsites and recreational areas are planned along the route, as well as improvements along the trail.

Declare Belmond Disaster Area

About 150 citizens, federal and state officials joined local authorities in a briefing session in the high school auditorium.

Spokesmen for the Small Business Administration and the Farmers Home Administration disclosed their agencies have declared Belmond a disaster area.

Viet Cong Defector Plan Plays Vital Role In War

By PETER STURTEVANT
Staff Writer

The "Open Arms" program for Viet Cong and North Vietnamese defectors is emerging as a vital factor in Viet Nam.

The program is designed to induce military and civilian Viet Cong to join the government of South Viet Nam.

It is directed at the entire Viet Cong population, specifically in Communist-held or contested areas, ostensibly offering the hand of friendship to those who wish to defect.

It is the intention of the Vietnamese government, after a member of the Viet Cong has defected, to convert him into a dependable citizen through equitable treatment, re-education and vocational training.

The returnee, as he is called, is also a valuable source of intelligence information. He may, for example, know the whereabouts of a Viet Cong military unit, artillery emplacement or weapons cache.

Dual Function

The program has the dual function of decreasing the fighting force of the Viet Cong and strengthening that of the government of South Viet Nam. It may also cause dissension and distrust among the Communist military and political agencies.

What causes a member of the Viet Cong to defect?

The greatest number of returnees turn themselves in near where there is heavy South Vietnamese or Allied troop activity. Thus, the hardships of war are a major factor.

Secondly, the returnee may have lost faith in the ability of the Viet Cong to win. His military unit may have been deprived of adequate food supply for an extended period. He is hungry. He may wish to return to his family. Or perhaps he has lost faith in the "wonders of communism."

Defector Inducement

Two means of inducing the Viet Cong to defect are safe conduct passes, explaining the benefits for a returnee, dropped from planes over suspected Viet Cong-held areas, and posters placed in hamlets and villages where the Viet Cong are likely to be.

In most cases the defector will turn himself in at a district headquarters. After registration he is taken to the provincial capital where he is questioned for intelligence data.

After a more complete registration, he is sent to the provincial "Open Arms" center, where he remains for 45 to 60 days. There he is given political, and in some cases, vocational training.

While in the center, he is given a place to sleep and 24 plasters (about 21 cents) a day for food, which he may purchase in the local marketplace. He is free to leave the center during the day at his pleasure.

The provincial "Open Arms" service chief is responsible for directing the entire program.

During my two-and-a-half-month stay in Viet Nam I served as the United States Agency for International Development (AID) adviser to the "Open Arms" chief in Phu Yen Province. The provincial capital, Tuy Hoa, is on the coast, about 275 miles northeast of Saigon.

30,000 Defectors

The Open Arms center in Tuy Hoa normally has about 250 returnees. The number of Viet Cong who have turned themselves in since Jan. 1, 1966 is about 1,500 in Phu Yen Province alone. The figure for the entire country approaches 30,000.

Providing adequate facilities and training for the returnees is a full-time job for about 40 Vietnamese in the province. Each of the six districts in Phu Yen must maintain a modified facility.

The main center in Tuy Hoa was the scene of much activity during the past summer.

Because of the heavy influx of returnees, it was necessary to build additional housing, kitchen facilities and wells. Recreation was provided, and an Open Arms office building was constructed.

But political re-education was spotty, with only minor improvements made during the summer months.

Among my duties was teaching English to the returnees three times a week.

Fear Assassination

Phu Yen does not as yet have

An Open Arms resettlement area where the returnees can build a home and return to normal civilian life. This remains a dire necessity. At present they are mostly living with friends in government-held areas.

Most of the returnees I spoke with at the center had homes in Viet Cong-held areas, and they feared assassination if they returned to them after the program was completed.

Job placement for the returnees is another problem. Vietnamese employers are reluctant to hire the defectors simply because they are ex-Viet Cong.

It is necessary to have Vietnamese Regional Forces constantly guard the center. Increasingly, the centers have become targets for Viet Cong terrorism due to the growing success of the program.

Vietnamese government officials and their American advisers are putting emphasis on the Open Arms program. It is much easier to cater to the needs of a willing defector than it is to dispatch troops to kill the enemy.

It is costing the U.S. and Vietnamese governments $1,000 to rehabilitate a Viet Cong defector.

But it is costing nearly half a million dollars for each enemy soldier killed.

Closed-Circuit Radio Station Enters 14th Broadcast Year

Radio station KWAD, located in the Quadrangle, is entering its 14th year of broadcasting with plans this year to expand news coverage, campus audience and begin live coverage of basketball games from the Field House.

It will not be known until after Rienow and Carrie Stanley dormitory councils appropriate funds if the station will expand.

Now serving nearly 1,200 students on campus, the 500 watt closed-circuit rock-and-roll station plans to add writers and announcers to its news staff, hook-up Rienow and Carrie Stanley dormitories to the network and find a broadcasting spot in the Field House press box.

"Finding space is always a problem," Morgan said. "We wanted to carry the home football games but there was no space in the football press box."

Assistant Station Manager Bill Morgan, A2, Canonburg, Penn., said the station hoped to add personnel to expand coverage of local, national and international news.

Cultures To Be Examined On WSUI's 'Impressions'

A new radio program that will examine the cultures of foreign countries begins on WSUI at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

"Impressions," an hour-long, monthly program directed and produced by foreign students at the University, will begin by featuring Australia. Future programs will include a special Christmas program and studies of Japan and India.

The culture and characteristics of several countries will be presented through songs, discussions, stories, poetry and music, according to Mrs. Wallace Maner, adviser to the International Center. The series is a project of the International Center.

The International Singers, a 20-voice chorus which will perform on all the programs, is made up of students from Japan, Nigeria, New Zealand, Norway, China, Israel, Holland, India and the United States.

Music for the series has been arranged by musical director Anthony Doheny, G, Pmybal, Australia.

Alex Efimoff, G, Whitby, Ont., Canada, is the series director. A Ph.D. candidate in dramatic arts, he is also narrator and chorus director.

Doheny and Efimoff composed and arranged an original theme song for the series.

Mrs. Maner wrote scripts for three of the programs.
