'67 Military Needs For Men Are Lowered By 300,000

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced in President Johnson's front yard Wednesday that he expects new military manpower needs in 1967 to be about 300,000 less than this year's 900,000.

This applies to needs for both draftees and enlistments.

"We are reaching a leveling-off point," McNamara told a news conference.

He said the leveling off applies both to manpower and production. Actually, he said, the total level of manpower in the armed services will be higher than at the end of 1966 but that the rate of increase will be less.

McNamara said the United States still is going to follow the principle laid down by Johnson of providing all the manpower needed for the war in Viet Nam. But he said there will be a lower build-up next year.

Peace Talks Sought, Rusk Says

Another Cabinet member, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, took a turn at the President's front yard lecture to say there is a continuing exploration of every possibility of a peaceful settlement in Viet Nam. He sounded a hope that discussions between British Foreign Secretary George

Brown and leaders of the Kremlin "might show some progress at some point."

"But I would not be able," he said, "to indicate today that we see the prospect opening up in the immediate future for moving this matter from the battlefield to the conference table." Johnson sat in a chair listening to the two secretaries. He didn't comment himself or answer questions.

In fact, his role was that of a master of ceremonies, to provide introductions. For the time being, he had been more concerned with matters in space than on earth.

He presided at a ceremony a few minutes earlier that signaled the end of the successful Gemini man-in-space program with awards to a pair of astronauts and other key participants.

First Formal Speech

The President made his first formal speech since undergoing surgery a week ago Wednesday for removal of a polyp from a vocal cord and closing of an old incision in his side which had reopened. This was the day the stitches from the latter repair work were removed by White House physician Lay Fox, a Navy captain.

Johnson's voice was husky. He slashed a lot of wordage from the prepared text of his talk and held it down to 2 minutes, 51 seconds by the clocking of press secretary Bill D. Moyers.

His doctors had instructed the President to refrain from formal speeches for four to five weeks following the operation. Johnson said the Gemini program has opened the way for the Apollo program to get a man on the moon.

"Apollo," he said, "will make America a truly spacefaring nation."

The three-man Apollo is the certain forerunner of the multimanned spaceships of the not-too-distant future — ships that will bear the experiments and some day the experimenters of many nations — ships that will bear the hopes of all man.

"On the way to the moon we are also finding the way to a better world."

Space Agency Awards

On the chests of Gemini 12 astronauts James A. Lovell Jr., and Edwin E. Aldrin, Johnson had pinned the gold Exceptional Service Medal of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. He awarded them framed citations hailing their accomplishments during a four-day journey through space earlier this month.

Johnson got a surprise in return.

Command pilot Lovell said he and spacewalker Aldrin had been thinking while they were aloft of some lasting memento that might be appropriate for the President. And he produced a framed color photograph which Aldrin handed over to Johnson.

"Mr. President," Lovell said, "this is a picture of your ranch in Texas."

It was taken during the Gemini 12 flight.

NEWS IN BRIEF

ELK HORN (AP) — Two Colorado State University students were killed and two others — including the son of the president of State College of Iowa — injured when a light plane crashed near this southwest Iowa town Wednesday. The dead were identified as the pilot, Chad A. Arnold, 22, and Vernon Disham, 19, both of Fort Collins, Colo. Injured and taken to a hospital in Atlantic in serious condition were James Maucker, 20, son of SCI President J. W. Maucker, and Melinda Rosdail, 23, Elmhurst, Ill.

ROME (AP) — Torrential rains Wednesday lashed the length of Italy, flooded parts of Rome and its outskirts, and sent streams spilling over banks again in flood-damaged Tuscany. The rains — worst since the 48-hour deluge that caused the disastrous floods of Nov. 4 — swept the peninsula from the foothills of the Alps to the shores of Sicily. In the Alpine highlands, the rain turned to snow in freezing temperatures.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York stock market rallied Wednesday after four straight daily declines. The market advanced despite a further parade of discouraging economic news. Generally, the rise was called a technical recovery from an oversold condition. Trading was active. Sales totaled 7,300,000 shares, compared with 6,430,000 Tuesday. In all, 1,410 issues were traded. Of these, 757 advanced, 388 declined and 265 remained unchanged. There were 6 new highs for the year. There were 28 new lows.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Seven months of undercover work by the narcotics squad ended with the arrest of six students and one former student at Tulane University on charges of possessing illicit drugs. Booked on the charges were David L. Burke, 19; Roy S. Elkin, 19; Paul A. Issa, 17; John F. Kirkpatrick, 23; Michael K. McClure, 18; Roger A. Wagman, 17; and a former student, Frederick Pierce, 19. They were arrested on charges of possessing marijuana and LSD.

JERUSALEM, Jordan Sector (AP) — Students stoned police in this old walled city Wednesday and demanded arms to fight Israel. Tear gas and shots in the air quelled this latest sign of tension among Palestinians living between the Jordan River and the Israeli frontier. About 200 students held out two hours in an antigovernment demonstration in a barricaded courtyard of the Rashidieh secondary school. They hurled stones at police officers outside and chanted, "We want arms!"

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a barely noticeable drop in food prices, Americans found it even tougher making ends meet last month as the cost of everything else continued the sharpest spiral in a decade. "Prices were higher for all types of consumer goods and services except food in grocery stores," the Bureau of Labor Statistics said Wednesday in reporting a four-tenths of one per cent rise in the consumer price index.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department proposed Wednesday to counteract prospective declines in dairymen's prices of fluid or bottling milk produced throughout the country during the next eight months.

British Leader Asks Soviets For Viet Talks

MOSCOW (AP) — British Foreign Secretary George Brown met twice Wednesday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in an effort to generate a joint British-Soviet move to get Viet Nam peace talks started.

But there was no indication Brown got anywhere. Gromyko was reliably reported to have turned down Brown's bid for a joint effort to promote negotiations.

Brown stressed the British government's concern over finding some way to end the bloodshed in Viet Nam.

The Soviet position includes support for Hanoi and the Viet Cong and a refusal to make a public effort to mediate.

Gromyko also was not enthusiastic about Brown's proposal for efforts to ban underground testing of nuclear weapons, according to authoritative sources.

Brown had suggested that U.S. Soviet and British scientists meet in London next month to work out a foolproof system of policing underground tests. The sources said Gromyko's reply killed chances for such a conference.

Informants maintained however, that it was too early to write off as a failure Brown's attempt to break the deadlock over Viet Nam negotiations. They pointed out that he is expected to see Premier Alexei N. Kosygin on Thursday before going home.

Any significant change in the Soviet attitude toward Viet Nam probably would come only from a top leader such as Kosygin.

Thanksgiving Is An Antitheses...

By GAIL DRAUDEN Staff Writer

Thanksgiving is the antithesis of Homecoming — it is the day when thousands pour out of Iowa City.

Freshmen, smug in their 10-weeks' sophistication, and graduate students, despairing of their dissertations, return to Council Bluffs, Des Moines, or wherever they call home.

Coads struggle with over-stuffed suitcases and fraternity men worry about who will feed the St. Bernard. Waiting cars of mothers and grandmothers glare at girls in pants and at long-haired boys.

Thanksgiving is unwritten papers, cold bus depots and Ozark Airlines.

It's noisy families and candlelight. It's seeing how much older Aunt Edna looks, how much taller Cousin Jane has grown, and whether Uncle Fred can keep his job as maintenance engineer.

It's catching up on sleep and reading; it's remembering past Thanksgivings, and wondering what the Pilgrims would have thought of Iowa winters.

It's a blessed holiday before the advent of snow and, perhaps, 'D' slips.

Of course, Thanksgiving is food. Forget cafeteria and greasy spoon fare, popcorn poppers and vending machines.

The fourth Thursday in November is a national holiday devoted to turkey, ham, duck, goose, chicken, vegetables, salads, mounds of potatoes, cranberries, egg nog, and pumpkin pie.

The after-dinner hour — when a feeling of warmth and security begins to spread — is a good time to look back on the year, and give thanks for the fringe benefits of existence.

To those homesick spirits that remain at the University, the campus is a strange place, with no traffic, no lines, dark halls and quiet buildings.

To everyone, Thanksgiving is only the beginning of the annual surge of good feeling that will grow with Christmas and New Year.

Remember, there are only 25 shopping days until . . .

Iowa City Group About 10 Years Needed To Get New Courthouse Against HUAC

By LARRY FENNEMA Staff Writer

A movement is under way in Iowa City to abolish the House Un-American Activities Committee (HUAC).

The Iowa City Committee to Abolish HUAC, the only one of its kind in the state, was initiated a little over a year ago by Frank Wilkinson, national director of the Committee to Abolish HUAC. Wilkinson spoke Monday at the Law School.

Mrs. Edwin Norbeck, a committee member, said that to date the group had not been very active. However, she said, some large scale programs are planned for the future.

Plans include informing civil rights groups in the state about HUAC's investigation at the next session of Congress of the civil rights movement, Mrs. Norbeck said.

A petition will be sent to law schools around the country to gather discussion and support for the abolishment of HUAC, she added.

Mrs. Norbeck said the committee hopes to gain support from other groups within the First District, particularly in Davenport, the home town of Republican Congressman-elect Fred Schwengel. Mrs. Norbeck said Schwengel had been a supporter of HUAC in the past.

John Schmidhauser, the Democrat incumbent who was defeated in the First District race, has been a supporter of HUAC abolishment, she said.

The committee, which is independent of the national organization, receives its literature and tries to coordinate much of its work with the national committee, Mrs. Norbeck said.

Johnson County Supervisor Emil Novy said Tuesday that it would probably be about five years before the construction of a new courthouse was considered. He said it would probably be at least 10 or 12 years before the construction was actually begun.

Novy said that the population growth of Iowa City would be the determining factor. He said newly created county positions and parking space would also be major considerations.

Novy said that the growth of the University would be another factor. He said the direction in which the University expanded could influence the location of a new courthouse.

The present courthouse, located on South Clinton Street was built at the turn of the century.

First Jail in 1841

The first county buildings were built about 125 years ago. The first records in regard to a county jail date from July 6, 1841. The contractor was James Trimble. The building was to be erected on Clinton Street, a little South of the present courthouse, on the west side of Clinton and Prentiss. The temporary courthouse was on the east side of the street.

On Oct. 9, 1841, Trimble was allowed $1,200 in part payment on his contract for building the jail.

On the same date, F. H. Lee, a Johnson County agent, was authorized to receive proposals until May 2, 1841, for the erection of a courthouse on lot No. 8, block No. 8 in Iowa City. It was to be of brick, 56 by 28 feet and two stories high.

In April of 1857, a vote was taken in Johnson County on a proposal to build a new courthouse. Part of the expense was to be covered by selling swamp land owned by the county. The rest was to be paid for by selling bonds.

County voters defeated both the issue to sell bonds and the issue of using the money from the sale of the swamp lands.

Proposed Again

In 1899, it was again proposed that a new courthouse be erected. A new jail was included in this proposal.

Some $90,000 worth of bonds were to be sold for the construction of the courthouse, and $10,000 worth for the jail. Property taxes would be used to repay the borrowed money. The issue passed in the election by 2,330 to 928.

The entire $100,000 bond issue went to L. W. Prior of Cleveland, Ohio, for Denison, Prior and Company.

The courthouse plans used were those of A. W. Rush, of Grand Rapids, Mich. The plans of C. L. Wundt, of Burlington were used for the jail. Wundt represented the Stewart Iron Works of Cleveland.

Judge M. J. Wade laid the corner stone of the courthouse on Dec. 2, 1899. It was dedicated before 8,000 people on June 8, 1901.

The total cost of the project amounted to about $128,000.

THE JOHNSON COUNTY COURTHOUSE, which was dedicated in 1901, is likely to celebrate its Diamond Jubilee before any action is taken to replace it. Although county government is out that construction will begin on a new building for 10 or 12 years.

The first county building was built in 1841.

Good sign

It is encouraging to note that authorities are becoming more willing to make the lives of prisoners more fulfilling and productive.

At a recent police academy, prisoners convicted for pick-pocketing have given police valuable hints on how to detect and apprehend pick pockets. At another institution, several men convicted for writing bad checks and forgery lectured on the ways that store managers could prevent being taken by bad checks.

Such practices benefit both law enforcement officials and the prisoners, and society as a whole.

Also expected to be presented before the 1967 Iowa Legislature is a "work release" bill which would allow inmates at Fort Madison, Anamosa and Rockwell City to be employed outside the prisons.

The plan is similar to the county jail plan which allows jail prisoners to be employed under strict rules.

The procedure would be closely supervised. Applications for "work release" would go to a committee made up of a state Division of Rehabilitative Services.

Extreme care would be needed in selecting the most trustworthy of prisoners for such work. A chronic violator of the law, prisoners convicted of very serious crimes would probably have very slim chances of getting permission to work, and rightly so.

We hope the legislature gives the bill serious consideration when it convenes in January. Nic Goeres

Big-city dirt

Did Iowa City make you dirty today?

Did you make Iowa City dirty today?

It is a sad observation that a city of this size consists of streets that are continually littered with papers and trash.

Public parking lots are littered with empty beer bottles, broken bottles, cans and paper.

And gutters collect not only drain water, but paper, leaves, and trash of all kinds.

Iowa City, which prides itself on the scope of its citizens, its relationship to the University and the progress for urban renewal does not meet even minimum cleaning duties downtown.

It strikes us that the fall and winter are particularly important times for clean-up. Relatives of university students, here for university activities only get brief exposure to Iowa City. We hope that their picture of downtown Iowa City is a pleasant one. We suspect it isn't.

We suspect that even a brief glimpse of the downtown region suggests merchants that don't care enough to sweep away trash from the sidewalk and government that hasn't taken the time to clean the streets.

This can do harm to Iowa City's image far from here.

"What did you think of Iowa City?" one might be asked, miles from here.

"Iowa City? It's a dirty town. Trash on the sidewalks. Dirt swirling into your eyes."

Will Iowa City risk this picture, carried away by visitors?

It has until now. Will it in the future? Tom Fensch

Student criticizes withholding grades

To The Editor:

Once upon a time, call it February, a draft board in Anytown was in extreme contentment. Not only could they choose from all the dropouts, but now they could also have any university student they wanted.

How could that be? It was due to a new fad on campus called "withhold the Grade." It was more (but not much) than just a game. It was a very BASIC question of morals, principle, and protest! The rules were simple. A student would study like hell to stay above water, and just when he had it licked, the assistant professor would toss him a large boulder, in the form of withholding grades so the student wouldn't be drafted.

Anyhow, it was easy pickin' for the draft. You see, all grades became extinct, including the As and Bs and Cs. There was no longer any distinguishing factor. The board could choose everyone.

So, once upon a time again, call it September, there set on the steps of an empty Schaeffer Hall, a group of professors and assistant profs. Each gazed upon what they were holding tightly in their hands. It was a fragment of a hairy tail which they once believed to have been attached to the world. Of course they did not look ridiculous, for it takes others to observe something, and then call it idiosyncrasy. There were no others; they had all been drafted.

"Strange," said one, "we went almost to martyrdom's extreme to prevent such a thing from happening, yet it did."

"Don't let it bother you," replied another, "we're still holding on to our principle, and isn't that all that really counts?"

The fact is, Mr. Kimmel, the (ha) stirring (ha) article which you wrote confuses me! If I were against the war, which I am not, the last thing I would do is withhold grades. It defeats your whole purpose. If you don't believe it, call the draft board, any of them, and propose this question.

"If there were three students, one with poor grades, one with satisfactory grades, and one with no grades at all, how many of the three, and which ones would likely be called?"

Why don't you re-examine what you think a logical procedure?

Thanksgiving - French style

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON - (It is traditional that every year I pause in my duties and explain Thanksgiving Day to the French people. This holiday which means so much to us is incomprehensible to them, and I sincerely believe if the French could understand Thanksgiving they could understand us.)

One of our most important holidays is Thanksgiving Day (known in France as le jour de merci donnait).

Le jour de merci donnait was first started by a group of pilgrims (pelegrins) who fled from L'Angleterre before the McCarran Act to found a colony in the new world (le nouveau monde) where they could shoot Indians (les peaux-rouges) and eat turkey (dinde) to their heart's content. They landed at a place called Plymouth (now a famous vintage Americaine) in a wooden sailing ship called the Mayflower (or Fleur de mai) in 1620. But while the peliers were killing the dindes, the peaux-rouges were killing the peliers, and there were several hard winters ahead for both of them. The only way the peaux-rouges helped the peliers was when they taught them to grow corn (mais). The reason they did this was because they liked corn with their peliers.

Every year on the jour de merci donnait, parents tell their children an amusing story about the first celebration.

It concerns a brave captain named Miles Standish (known in France as Kilometres Deboutish) and a young, shy lieutenant named Jean Alden. Both of them were in love with a flower of Plymouth called Priscilla Mullens (no translation). The vieux capitaine said to the jeune lieutenant:

"I am a maker of war (je suis un fabricant de la guerre) and not a maker of phrases. You, bred as a scholar (vous, qui etes pain comme un etudiant), can say it in elegant language, such as you read in your books of the pleadings and wooings of lovers, such as you think best adapted to win the heart of the maiden."

Although Jean was fit to be tied (convenable a etre emalle), friendship prevailed over love and he went to do his duty. But instead of using elegant language he blurted out his mission. Priscilla was muted with amazement and sorrow (rendue muette par l'etonnement et la tristesse).

At length she exclaimed, interrupting the ominous silence: "If the great captain of Plymouth is so very eager to wed me, why does he not come himself and take the trouble to woo me?" (Ou est-il, le vieux Kilometres? Pourquoi ne vient-il pas apres de moi pour tenter sa chance?)

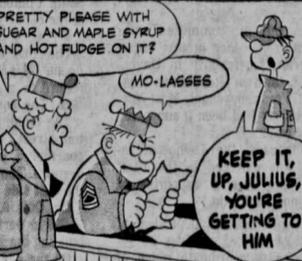

Jean said that Kilometres Deboutish was very busy and didn't have time for those things. He staggered on, telling what a wonderful husband Kilometres would make. But finally Priscilla arched her eyebrows and said in a tremulous voice: "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?" (a chacun son gout.)

And so, every fourth Thursday in November, American families sit down at a large table brimming with tasty dishes and for the only time during the year eat better than the French do.

'Giles Goat-Boy': Collegiate Odysseus

By SUE RICKEL
Staff Writer

"Giles Goat-Boy," by John Barth (Garden City, N.Y.: Doubleday, 1966), $6.95. Available at Iowa Book & Supply.

"Aye, it was just for want of a proper hoof that in my fourteenth year I was kicked instead of the kicker; that I lay crippled on the reeking peat and saw my first love tugged by a brute Angora. Mercy on that buck who butted me from one world to another; whose fell horns turned my sweetheart's fancy, drove me from the pasture and sent me gimping down the road I travel yet."

The traveler is George, narrator and hero of John Barth's farcical allegory, "Giles Goat-Boy." George, the progeny of a computer and a virgin, arises from humble beginnings in a goat barn to pursue a goal worthy of any hero, the redemption of mankind.

He must contend with the universe alone, as did Christ, as did Odysseus. George's universe is the University. To redeem mankind, or Studentdom, George must Pass Finals and go through Commencement, replacing Enos Enoch as Grand Tutor.

Is it George who will be able to quell the Quiet Riot between his own New Tammany College (West Campus) and Nikolay College (East Campus)? Can George contend with EASAC and WESAC, huge computers, the ultimate weapon of each side, which have the power to render whole populations subliminal cretins?

"Giles Goat-Boy" is a miming of chaos. We allow ourselves to be led into a world of educational analogue with a character who is seeking Answers, and we are faced with emptiness and horror. Through the use of his extended metaphor, the University, Barth combines farce with the comic and the satiric to give us a vision of our world that would be difficult to face except as a farce.

The book is a magnificent venture in its richness and its scope. Barth is a demanding author. There seems to be no limit to his ingenuity, the bounty of his comic vision.

George loses his first love, Hedda, of the speckled teats, to his best friend, another goat in the barn. He kills this goat and, in his remorse, becomes agonizingly aware of his own humanity.

In his quest to establish that it is he who was meant for Grand Tutorhood since he was sired by Sub-Computer Giles (Grandtutorial Ideal Laboratory Eugenical Specimen), George faces many obstacles.

He must contend with the Siren, Anastasia, who is Salome, who is Candy, who can undergo, and does, the most excessive and demoralizing sexual experiences and still remain, to herself and the ones who love her, pure.

He must contend with Harold Bray, impostor, rival for the title of Grand Tutor. "Sometimes I think he's a species instead of one man," a character says of Bray.

Having been, during his eight years at New Tammany, an avant-garde poet, "bearded, booted, long-locked and malodorously," a psychotherapist, a field entomologist and survival expert, Bray was looked on in awe by Studentdom. No one had ever seen him eat or sleep. No one knew where he lived. He spent all his hours in taverns and other people's offices and dwelling places, talking endlessly and knowledgeably on any subject whatsoever, a multifarious Mephistopheles and George's chief adversary for the title of Grand Tutor.

People familiar with Barth's other novels will see George grappling with the metaphysical dilemma of Jake Horner and Todd Andrews, the idea that there is no intrinsic meaning or value in anything.

George first conceives of heroism as maintaining a relentless dichotomy of Passing and Failing, ultimate standards of good and evil in the University. He discovers that the legend found with him when he was abandoned as an infant, "Pass All, Fail All," is the essence of the experience of living in Studentdom. Good and evil, Passing and Failing, are not separate entities. They are qualitative, not quantitative, and are constantly making a beast with two backs.

"Giles Goat-Boy," in its allegorical superabundance, becomes a little too studied, even tedious, at times. One wonders whether Barth wasn't too much caught up in the symbolic structure of his novel and not enough concerned with whether the characters he created would act as he has them act. But this is appropriate to the over-all effect of the novel. It is not a book to peruse. It is a book to be drowned in, engulfed by.

In the multiplicity of Barth's vision, a peripheral element always brings us back to the world which is destroying all of us. If we let ourselves be subjected to the chaos and terror of Barth's University, we need his phenomenal energy and invention to bring us back again.

Reader calls pop stations bland, gutless

To The Editor:

Suddenly, after all these years, the brave new world of student activism is raising a hue and cry against that venerable old font of "pseudo-intellectualism," WSUI. Why? Well, to begin with the ridiculous, it is obviously a Commie organization designed to pump such subversions as Bach, Brahms, and Charles Ives into our red, white and blue-blooded culture, which, as everyone knows, can thrive only on Big 10 football and the "Top 40." Moving on to the absurd, we must consider that the hallowed halls of Yale and Harvard ring daily with the sounds of nature - Beatles, Rolling Stones, etc. So, what's good enough for Yale... (maybe WSUI should program a course in basic logic for "prenatal" critics). You mean that the staid intellectual in New Haven doesn't have more cultural alternatives (marjuna excepted) than his Iowa City counterpart?

Well now, an argument with some dentures in it - the assertion that WSUI plays the same drivel which oozes regularly from the Musak. The only reproach to this is that it requires a remarkable combination of tone-deafness, indiscriminating ear, and aesthetic insensibility to confuse Rudolf Serkin and Roger Williams or Fritz Reiner and Mantovani.

But there is a crucial implication here. If the Superstudents really want to create the world in their own image, why not aim an irate, democratic broadside where it's really needed, not against the positive values of WSUI, but against the bland and gutless programming of commercial stations, which fill the air with endless jingles, D-J small-talk, and that nebulous, neuter (incapable of aesthetic orgasm) and utterly monotonous mood music - music to sleep by. It's like store-bought white bread or Johnsonian rhetoric - a great big mouthful of incoherent Kleenex. Who listens to it intently?

For the substantial body of listeners who honestly enjoy - you know, really dig - the more complex art forms usually called serious music, WSUI is the only radio station within the range of a powerful receiver. For those who legitimately crave the quickie paroxysms induced by the atavistic sounds of rock bottom and roll, they can probably achieve Nirvana by trading in their crystal sets on a slightly more powerful instrument. WSUI may or may not be able to afford a couple of hours for the "in" din, but I should think that KXIC et al. might justly sacrifice some of their "musak." By the way, whatever happening to KWAD?

Satire Opens Next Week At U Theatre

"Ubu Roi," a satire written by Alfred Jarry, will be presented at the University Theatre from Dec. 1-3 and 5-10.

This second production of the 1966-67 University Theatre season has been considered "avant-garde" by critics since its first presentation in Paris in 1896. Translator Barbara Wright has described "Ubu Roi" as a "timeless, placeless" tale which "shamelessly displays what civilization tries to hide."

The cast members, many of whom will play more than one role, are now rehearsing under the direction of David Schaal, associate professor of television, radio, and film. Edward G. Berkeley, G. Scarsdale, N.Y., is assistant director.

Control Of Crime Topic For Lecture

Daniel Glaser, head of the University of Illinois Department of Sociology will lecture on "Types of Crime Problems and Their Control" at 3 p.m., Monday in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol.

The lecture, which will be open to the public without charge, is being sponsored by the Graduate College and the Department of Sociology and Anthropology.

Glaser, who received B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Chicago, has been a faculty member at the University of Illinois since 1954. From 1950 to 1952 he was sociologist-actuary of the Illinois Parole and Pardon Board at Pontiac Prison. He held the same position at Joliet Prison from 1952 to 1954. From 1946 to 1949 he was a prisons officer in the U.S. Military Government in Germany.

He is the author of "The Effectiveness of a Prison and Parole System," and several pamphlets and magazine articles.

Christmas Island Is Holiday Theme Of Festival Show

The International Center and Associated Women Students are sponsoring the 12th annual International Festival, which will be presented in the Union Dec. 10 and 11.

This year's show, "Christmas Island," will consist of scenes from 11 countries as seen in the visions of a sea captain and his English butler who have been shipwrecked on the island for 15 years.

Michael Brown, G. Surrey, England, wrote the script. Alex Eftimoff, G. Whitby, Ontario, is director, and Tony Doheny, G. Pymbal, Australia is musical director.

Connally Hits One Part Of Warren Story

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas Gov. John B. Connally said Wednesday that despite his disagreement with one part of the Warren Commission report he did not think the investigation into the assassination of President John F. Kennedy should be reopened.

Connally was riding in the jump seat of the Presidential limousine in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963, when a sniper shot Kennedy to death. The Warren Commission said Lee Harvey Oswald was the sole assassin.

A bullet plowed through Connally's back, came out through his chest, penetrated his right wrist and struck his thigh.

The Warren Commission said there was "persuasive" evidence Connally was hit by a bullet that had passed through Kennedy's body. Connally said he is convinced a separate bullet hit him.

'PROTESTS' TICKET—CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Police Chief Walter H. Carlson said he received a Thanksgiving "greeting" from a woman disturbed over receiving a parking ticket. A card read: "May your turkey be cold, your gravy lumpy and your stuffing icky."

School Officials Will Meet

"Nobody Loves a Superintendent" will be the subject of the closing speaker at the 51st annual Conference on School Administration and Supervision on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Some 350 superintendents, principals, and supervisors of public and parochial schools in Iowa are expected to attend the conference, theme of which is "Emerging Organizations in Education: Analyses and Issues." The program includes lectures, panels, and tours of university schools and education services.

Home Economics Group Initiates Nine Students

Alpha Psi chapter of Phi Upsilon Omicron, national professional fraternity in home economics, recently initiated nine students into the fraternity.

Those initiated were: Jerelyn Boehmke, A4, Belle Plaine; Judith Mitchell, A2, Burt; Martha McMurry Fry, A3, Corydon; Linda Sanders, A2, Deep River; Sharon Satterly, A3, Farmington; Kathryn Fischer, A2, Belleville, Ill.; Audrey Walton, A2, Chicago; Willie Byrd Ford, G, Grambling, La.; and Yoon Hee Kwon, Seoul, Korea.

The talk about untold superintendents will be given by Lester Ball, superintendent of the Oak Park Public Schools in Illinois. Other principal speakers will be Wendell Pierce, executive director of Compact for Education, and Stanley Kegler, interim director of the Upper Midwest Regional Educational Laboratory in Minneapolis. They will discuss the aims of their organizations.

The conference begins on the morning of Nov. 29 with observation of classes in the University Experimental School, Elementary School, and High School. Also offered will be tours of the University Hospital School's Pine School Section for educable mentally retarded children and the Children's Rehabilitation Section for the physically handicapped.

Kegler will speak on "Closing the Time Gap in Curriculum Innovations."

Late Tuesday afternoon the conferees will tour the Iowa Educational Information Center (IEIC) and Measurement Research Center in Iowa City. Pierce will speak that evening on "Creative Approaches to Educational Problems."

On Wednesday morning a panel discussion on "Post High School Education: A Primary Goal of the Iowa Technical-Vocational/Community Colleges" will be led by Paul Johnston, superintendent of the State Department of Public Instruction. Later in the morning Ralph Van Dusseldorp, director of IEIC, will lead a panel in discussion of "Making Use of Educational Information."

Bruce Mahan, dean emeritus of the Extension Division, will speak at the final luncheon on "Conference Perspective: Midway in the Century." Ball's talk about superintendents will follow.

The conference is sponsored by the College of Education and Division of Extension and University Services. The committee was led this year by Willard R. Lane, chairman, and Ted Ulrich, assistant.

Engineers, Mathematicians: Contribute to Technical Programs of National Significance nsa

The "Cipher Disk" ... NSA symbol and one of the oldest and most effective cryptographic devices known.

Creating secure communications systems and equipments unknown anywhere else. This is the mission of the National Security Agency—a mission which in turn creates problems of a high order of difficulty, requiring an uncommon amount of ingenuity.

There is no other organization like it... no other organization doing the same important work, or offering the same wealth of opportunity for imaginative graduates in mathematics or the engineering sciences.

A separate agency operating within the defense establishment, NSA has a critical requirement for:

ENGINEERS. To carry out basic and applied research, design, development, testing and evaluation of large-scale cryptocommunications and EDP systems. Engineers may also participate in related studies of electromagnetic propagation, upper atmosphere phenomena, super-conductivity and cryogenics using the latest equipment for advanced research within the Agency's fully instrumented laboratories. Career programs are designed to develop the professional engineer for a full and satisfying future in research or management.

MATHEMATICIANS. To define, formulate and solve complex communications-related problems in support of the NSA mission. Statistical mathematics, matrix algebra, finite fields, probability, combinatorial analysis, programming and symbolic logic are but a few of the tools applied by Agency mathematicians. They enjoy the full support of NSA's completely equipped computer laboratory where many of them often become involved in both the hardware and software of advanced computing systems. Theoretical research is also a primary concern at NSA, owing to the fact that the present state of knowledge in certain fields of mathematics is not sufficiently advanced to satisfy NSA requirements.

CAREER BENEFITS
With NSA, you enjoy all the benefits of Federal employment without the necessity of Civil Service certification.

NSA's generous graduate study program permits you to pursue two semesters of full-time graduate study at full salary with academic costs paid by NSA. The Agency also encourages participation in professional associations and assists you to attend national meetings, seminars, and conferences.

Located between Washington and Baltimore, NSA is also near the Chesapeake Bay, ocean beaches and other summer and winter recreation areas. The location permits your choice of city, suburban or country living.

Starting salaries, depending on education and experience, range from $7,729 to $12,873. Check now with your Placement Office to arrange an interview with the NSA representative visiting your campus, or write to: Chief, College Relations Branch, Suite 10, 4435 Wisconsin Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C. 20016. An equal opportunity employer, M&F.
