Federal Ruling May Eliminate Campus Stations

Property developers in Iowa City face new regulations if the Iowa Supreme Court upholds an earlier decision that buildings cannot be built higher than the top of University Tower, a 15-story building on铆 the University of Iowa campus.

The decision was made by the Iowa Supreme Court in the case of Iowa City vs. Iowa State University, which involved a property dispute between the university and a private developer.

The court ruled that the university had the right to regulate the height of buildings on its property in order to maintain the aesthetic integrity of the campus.

The university has already begun planning for a new building that will replace the now-obsolete University Tower.

Student opinion

This business about Donald Barrnett's dismissal has reopened an is sue which doesn't seem to be a minor topic, and it's in the eyes of some people not to be whether or not the opinions on the subject should be considered to the evaluating of faculty members.

Most of the letters written in this country have some sort of system in which, as students play some role in evaluating faculty members. At Yale, students are part of the evaluating committee which decides which faculty members are to retain tenure. At other schools, students committees make recommendations to the evaluating body.

Some distribute student evaluation data to instructors and professors for their own consideration, at other schools students publish their indi-ments about the faculty so the students have where to seek and where to avoid.

At Iowa, there isn't much of any-
ing. For the most part, an instructor's colleagues can evaluate him fairly well. But the way things are done here, it is really difficult for the interest's point to know how the elements are taking his teaching since

Chiang's return

Reports from China now are telling of internal disorder and chaos. We would caution, however; against taking this at face value. It would be dangerous to believe whatever the newsreels or newspapers say of economic improvement.

If you want to hear the real story, you have to listen to the teachers and students who work there. Chiang's return may mean a return to the normal order of things and the end of the war. But it might also mean a return to the same old conditions.

Novel tries to be hip

By FRED WICKHAM

Back home in L.A., I finally decided to try the hipster look. I mean, I've been a hipster for years, but I thought I could do better.

So I went to the hipster store in town. It was packed, of course. The hipster staff was wearing the usual outfit: a fedora, a turtleneck, and Uggs. I tried on a fedora, but it didn't fit. No, it didn't fit. It was too tight. I thought I was going to faint.

I then tried on a turtleneck. It was too tight, too. I thought I was going to faint again.

Finally, I tried on a pair of Uggs. They were too tight. I thought I was going to faint for the third time.

But then I thought, "Why not try the hipster look?"

I put on a fedora, a turtleneck, and Uggs. I felt like I was hipstering.

But then I realized, I'm already hipstering. I don't need to try the hipster look. I'm hipstering.

So I'm not going to try the hipster look. I'm already hipstering.

End of story.
