Johnson Asks Congress To Declare War On Crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson asked Congress on Monday to declare legislative war on crime and to pump $350 million into the fight in the next two fiscal years.

"We can control crime if we will," Johnson said in a special message to Congress. "We must act boldly, now, to treat ancient evils and to insure the public safety."

Crime and the fear of crime have become a public malady, the President said, so it is "our duty to seek its cure with every means at our command."

As a starter, he asked for $50 million to finance a Safe Streets and Crime Control Act in the 1968 fiscal year which starts this July 1. In the following year, he estimated an additional $300 million would be needed.

But there would be heavy emphasis on getting state and local governments to swing their own efforts and funds into the anti-crime campaign. Over the two years, they would be expected to put up about $283 million.

Funds For Planning

The $633-million total for two years would go into planning the battle against crime and into research and pilot projects.

Nicholas Katzenbach, the former attorney general who now is undersecretary of state, said what is in the making is "the most comprehensive, realistic, hard-headed approach to crime ever undertaken in this country."

Katzenbach headed a commission Johnson named more than a year and a half ago to investigate the crime problem and come up with a report. This report reached Johnson's desk two weeks ago and will be made public shortly, the President said. Officials said the program Johnson laid before Congress is consistent with the commission's finding and recommendations.

GOP Critical

Some Republican leaders found fault with the President's proposals. House GOP leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan said Johnson's message "focuses on a number of important problem areas but neglects some key points."

Noting that money and desire are the main ingredients needed for a nationwide attack on crime, Ford said in a statement that, "The best way to provide funds for that attack would be through federal tax-sharing."

The GOP leader questioned Johnson's call for a ban on all wiretapping except in national security cases. Ford said electronic listening devices are "an essential tool in law enforcement" and while the privacy of citizens must be protected "we must not throw out the baby with the bath water."

NEWS IN BRIEF

TOKYO (AP) — Red China's cultural revolution took a back seat in Peking on Monday while Red Guards and other Chinese poured out their wrath on the Soviet Union and some of its East-bloc allies. Japanese correspondents reported riotous scenes at the airport, where about 50 wives and children of Soviet Embassy dependents fled home, and around the embassy itself, where demonstrations were in their 11th day.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — While the Apollo 1 tragedy is being examined "with the highest scrutiny," America's man-to-the-moon program will go on because "this is what Edward White, Virgil Grissom and Roger Chaffee would want us to do," a top space agency official said Monday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler advised lawmakers Monday not to count on avoiding a tax increase by cutting spending or plugging loopholes in the present tax laws. "I don't believe in my heart today that you're going to reduce that budget by $5 billion to $6 billion," Fowler told members of the Senate-House Economic Committee whose questions indicated reluctance to vote a tax increase.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Foreign Minister Cornelin Manescu of Romania arrived in Brussels on Monday for a four-day official visit. This was the first official Romanian visit to Belgium since the war, apart from trade missions.

Council Hears Reports Of City Departments

By DOUG HIRSCH
City Editor

The Iowa City City Council heard 1966 annual reports from city department heads at an informal meeting of the council Monday in the Civic Center.

City Clerk Glen V. Eckard reported that the expenditures of all departments for 1966 totaled $5,526,126. This was an increase of $1,227,595 from 1965. However, Eckard pointed out that the increase required only $65,254 from taxes.

The largest source of revenue was from property taxes and special assessments which accounted for $1,362,566.27. Eckard said he was especially proud that the city received $88,671.25 from the interest on invested funds.

Mayor William C. Hubbard complimented the city personnel and said that city government was operating in "an economic and efficient manner."

"We're operating the type of service the taxpayers want us to operate," he said. The taxpayers tend to take you people and the services pretty much for granted."

However, he said, expansion of the city has created a great demand for city services and the city "is scraping the bottom of the barrel" for revenues. He said that the city was at the 30-mill limit for taxing its citizens.

Employees Praised

Councilman James Nesmith said, "I think we have had good city employees. There have been lots of rumors that we were falling apart after the incident with the city engineer and the city manager. Actually, the city has been doing a good job."

Barry Lundberg, director of the Department of Planning and Urban Renewal, said much of his department's effort in 1966 had been channeled toward the preparation of the urban renewal plan for Iowa City.

The council wanted to vote on whether to send the plan in for federal approval at the Feb. 21 council meeting. However, Lundberg said that there must be a meeting with federal officials before the council vote. The only date on which all parties could meet was Feb. 28. Lundberg said the meeting would then last for two days and the council could vote on it at the next council meeting.

"The second urban renewal project is in the final stages of planning," he added. "In the near future a meeting with the city council will be necessary for several major policy decisions concerning this project, shortly after which this plan could be ready for federal submission."

Seeks Better Communication

He said he would like better communication between the planning department and the Planning and Zoning Commission and the City Council.

"We have an excellent Planning and Zoning Commission made up of devoted men," he said. "I feel we have fallen short of using them to the degree possible. This commission can be of immense help to the council in all areas of decision making if used efficiently."

Chief of Police John Ruppert reported that his department would be up to the allotted strength of 33 men in February. There are now 30 men on the force, 14 of whom have less than two years of experience.

Ruppert said that his department made 2,394 arrests, not including parking violations, during 1966, a decrease of 137 arrests from 1965. Personal injuries in auto accidents increased from 381 to 531. However, there were only 41 arrests on operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated (OMVI) charges during 1966, a decrease of 22.

Hubbard asked Ruppert why he thought there was a decrease in the number of OMVI charges.

Ruppert said, "The new law on the rights you have to give these people. I also think some people are going more away from town."

He added that many times he had trouble getting a doctor to examine drivers which might be charged with OMVI.

Hubbard said, "I'm not sure that this decrease is justified because there is just not that much less drinking and driving."

Crimes Decrease

Ruppert also reported that larcenies over $50, breaking and entering and auto thefts decreased during 1966, but that larcenies under $50 had increased by 40. He also said that he had assigned an officer to take care of the tremendous number of false check cases in Iowa City.

Warren J. Buchan, building inspector, reported that apartment construction had dropped $6 million from 1965. The total value of all construction during 1966 was $13,370,216.

Barnett Courses Carry No Credit, Stuit Declares

Contrary to what the Ad Hoc Faculty Student Committee says, students must register with the University to take courses taught by Donald Barnett, assistant professor of sociology and anthropology. And, contrary to what the committee says, students who do not receive grades from Barnett will not get credit for the course.

This is what Dewey B. Stuit, dean of the College of Liberal Arts told The Daily Iowan Monday.

The committee said Friday that a student would not have to register with the University to take Barnett's courses and that students taking those courses would receive credit but not be graded.

Not so, said Stuit. Nor has Stuit notified Barnett that he would not receive his pay beginning March 1.

No action can be taken on Barnett's pay until after Friday, the deadline for submitting grades, said Stuit. Only if Barnett fulfills his pledge not to submit grades will his pay be withheld.

Barnett is scheduled to teach Comparing Cultures, Peoples of Africa and Economic Anthropology during the Spring Semester.

Each student signing up for Barnett's courses are being told that the Sociology and Anthropology Department "cannot guarantee that students in the second semester will receive grades or semester hours of credit."

Kennedy Denies Getting Vietnam Peace Feelers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D-N.Y.), after talking with President Johnson, said Monday he did not bring home any peace feelers from North Vietnam from his recent trip to European capitals.

Kennedy told newsmen: "I never received the impression that I was any recipient of any peace feelers."

Newsweek magazine said Kennedy had received a message from North Vietnam via the French government in Paris last week indicating willingness to negotiate on ending the Vietnam war if the United States would end the bombing of North Vietnam.

Kennedy and Undersecretary of State Nicholas Katzenbach called on Johnson at the White House after Katzenbach had talked for two hours with the senator at his office on Capitol Hill.

Katzenbach said he and Kennedy had gone over various subjects relating to Kennedy's trip and came to the White House to go over the same material with the President.

Kennedy, in an impromptu news conference in the White House West Lobby, said he had filled in Katzenbach and the President on all of his talks with foreign officials in Europe.

Then he added: "I did not bring home any peace feelers."

Kennedy remarked that Johnson as President had many sources of information in Vietnam. He described the chief executive as making a dedicated and diligent effort to finding a peaceful solution.

As Vietnam discussions here focused on Kennedy, six Democratic senators made floor speeches urging President Johnson to halt the bombing of North Vietnam during the lunar new year which begins Wednesday, and to continue the pause in an effort to spur peace talks.

The six, who have previously expressed dissent from the administration's war policies in some degree, are: Sens. Vance Hartke of Indiana, Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island, Wayne Morse of Oregon, Joseph S. Clark of Pennsylvania, Ernest Gruening of Alaska, and George McGovern of South Dakota.

The French Foreign Ministry, the North Vietnamese diplomatic mission in Paris and the U.S. Embassy in that capital all denied Kennedy had received any message from the Hanoi government through the French government.

At the least, some high administration officials appear to feel that Kennedy received from the French their own assessment of the North Vietnamese attitude toward peace prospects, including the French estimate of what it would take to get Hanoi to the conference table.

Just how authoritative such an assessment might be is questionable. And whether it could be considered a "peace plan" would depend on who was interpreting it.

White House press secretary George Christian said Johnson had asked Katzenbach to confer with the senator.

But in answer to a question, Christian said Kennedy did not represent the President nor the White House in his discussions with various European leaders. Christian added that Kennedy had the cooperation of the State Department in arranging his schedule.

CONFUSION OF registration was apparent again Monday, as students competed for course openings and bugged instructors for information. This student didn't bother to find a chair, but rested on the edge of the basketball court while hassling with a last-minute change in schedule. Registration continues today.

Renewal Now Up To Council

By RON FROELICH
News Editor

This is the final part of the series on the proposed urban renewal plan for Iowa City.—Ed.

Opinion in the community on whether Iowa City should initiate a federal urban renewal program is divided. Exactly on which side the opinion is most heavily weighted is difficult to say.

The series leading to this final article has attempted to survey some of the major points surrounding the proposed plan. The survey, although not inclusive of all the ramifications of the plan, has attempted to shed some light on how the community is thinking.

The opinions on the proposed plan range from complete rejection to modification to full endorsement.

One group strongly against the proposed program is the 200-member Downtown Business and Professional Men's Association (DBPMA). Frank Vogel, who heads up the DBPMA, has been a vigorous and outspoken critic of the plan. Time after time during the last few months Vogel has written letters to the Iowa City Council, organized committees and given speeches to stop the program from being adopted.

How effective his work has been is difficult to say. It can be said, though, that Vogel has stirred up a lot of discussion on the urban renewal question.

Aimed At Council

Most of the criticism offered by the DBPMA has been aimed at the council and the city's Department of Planning and Urban Renewal. Much of it centers on the fact that under the renewal program there is no guarantee that businessmen in the proposed 24½ block area would get their property back after relocation.

The DBPMA also thinks that a federal project would deprive businessmen of freedom to make their own decisions, since a federal program here would be subject to supervision from federal officials in Chicago.

Mayor William Hubbard disagrees with this. He has said that in his view a federal urban renewal program offers a sound method of insuring the continual growth of the downtown business district.

There is some doubt that the four other council members support Hubbard's view. Relocation, that part of a renewal program when businessmen would have to pick up and move out, has raised some serious discussion among council members.

Councilman James Nesmith sees the relocation aspect of the proposed renewal as a cause of confusion and something that will not be accomplished overnight.

Group Began Study

A group strongly in favor of a federal renewal project for Iowa City is the 278-member League of Women Voters. The league, back in 1960, was one of the first groups to begin study of a possible renewal project.

Officially, the group takes the stance that its only interest is in "good local government," and it will neither endorse nor reject the proposed plan.

Unofficially, however, the league is credited with providing much of the internal dynamics that has kept renewal at the top of the list of future plans for the community.

An example of the league's effectiveness can be seen in last December's election when voters decided to retain the council-manager form of government instead of switching to the mayor-council form. During the weeks just preceding the referendum, many persons thought the major issue was urban renewal.

The League of Women Voters saw this and worked vigorously to convince voters that urban renewal and the form of government were completely separate issues.

The council-manager form survived the election, but only by a 55 per cent majority, which gave the councilmen no mandate on how the community felt about the urban renewal question.

Residents Concerned

Besides the DBPMA, the League of Women Voters and the city council, another concerned group, less organized and less vocal, is the affected residents living within the proposed renewal area.

These persons, most of whom have lived in their homes for several years, are comfortable and do not want to move. They are confused about what the proposed project is, and they cannot understand why or how a vote by the council could force them to leave their homes.

Most of these residents are doing little but studying the issue. A few have gone to the urban renewal office with questions about how the program would affect them. They said the answers they received were unsatisfactory.

Unaffected businessmen and unaffected residents, those living outside the perimeter of the 24½ block area, and the University are watching the issue with varied amounts of interest.

Unaffected businessmen have little to say about the renewal question. Some think that urban renewal offers the only solution to the betterment of the downtown area; others think that a modern, attractive downtown might lessen the attractiveness of outlying shopping centers; and some think that it would better their business.

Appear Content

Generally, though, the unaffected businessmen are not too concerned. They seem to be content where they are.

Residents outside the boundaries of the proposed area are divided on the renewal question. Most prefer to hold off on making a decision until more information is made available.

The University has a big stake in the proposed plan. It desperately needs room for expansion. Urban renewal as now conceived would provide that room.

The University also is concerned about its image. An unattractive business district adjacent to the University does not add to its prestige. Urban renewal would provide a quick and sure solution.

Somewhere among the different interest groups, among the varying approaches and among the persons who stand to lose, and those who stand to gain, is the community as a whole.

The city council, sometime this spring, will decide on the urban renewal question. Its decision should be based on what is best for the entire community, not just part of it.

The decision will not be easy. None of the councilmen have announced publicly their decision. They say they need more study, more time, more thought before they can decide.

Much Study Given

But the councilmen have already given the proposal a great deal of study, much time and a lot of thought.

It is more likely that the councilmen have not made their views public because they think that the urban renewal question is a hot political issue in Iowa City.

The December vote gave the council no mandate. The DBPMA is becoming more and more critical, and people are listening. The nagging, seemingly unanswerable question at this time is: what does the community want? The council, admittedly, does not really know.

The council may be able to get off the political hook and find the answer in a proposed non-binding citizens' advisory vote. The council has not decided on this, but if the vote is held, it will be in the spring, before the public hearing.

If the council decides to stage an advisory vote on the question, the entire community would be affected. The advisory vote would be non-binding on the council, but it would be certain to exercise influence over the council's final decision.

What urban renewal can do for Iowa City is at this time a moot question. In other cities where urban renewal has been adopted it has swept through business districts and left a wake of vacant lots, empty new buildings and bankrupt businessmen.

In some cities, though, the plan has revitalized such districts and given communities modern, functional and attractive areas of which they can be proud.

U.S. Launches Attack Near Red River Delta

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The United States disclosed Monday a massive new assault in an area reported to be the Viet Cong national headquarters in South Vietnam and the U.S. commander said. "I'm looking for a fight." Over North Vietnam, bad weather closed in on the Red River delta and much of the country to hamper bombing raids as the United States wound up two years of air assaults on North Vietnam.

Kosygin, Wilson Meet; Vietnam Gets Priority

LONDON (AP) — Alexei N. Kosygin and Harold Wilson plunged Monday night into world-ranging talks beginning with the quest for peace in Vietnam. They ordered a total blackout of news of their exchanges.

The examination by the Soviet premier and British prime minister of possible paths to peace came after Wilson was reported working toward at least a temporary cutoff of American bombing in North Vietnam.

Kosygin, for his part, went into the week-long discussions determined to renew Communist demands for an unconditional end to the bombing before any international peacemaking process begins, Soviet sources said.

The glum-looking Russian premier flew into this chill and foggy capital Monday morning to a warm welcome by Wilson, who spoke of him as an old friend and a "cool and wise statesman."

The top-level British-Soviet conference began against a background of mounting chaos in Red China and rising tension between Moscow and Peking.

This background reinforces Kosygin's need to stabilize the European salient, where old alliances are crumbling and new loyalties shaping up. This has aroused British hopes that Moscow now may be ready to move towards closer cooperation with the West.

The proceedings opened in the Cabinet room at Wilson's 10 Downing Street headquarters. In an hour-long tete-a-tete preceding the formal encounter of their two teams, Kosygin and Wilson swiftly agreed to include five broad themes in their work program:

1. European security, including the future of divided Germany and her frontiers.
2. The Vietnam war and the search for a first step towards active peacemaking.
3. Disarmament, with the emphasis on Soviet-American-British work on a world pact to stop the spread of nuclear weapons.
4. British-Soviet relations, where the focus will be on ways to boost the $500-million annual trade flow and particularly Soviet purchases of British goods and plant.
5. Personal cases, which will allow Wilson to press again for the release of British lecturer Gerald Brooke, jailed in the Soviet Union for subversive activities.

The shakes

A pair of Air Force psychiatrists have discovered that military men sometimes don't feel well when they say farewell to military life.

Their report says such men are likely to get anxious, depressed and irritable, and drink too much. They are apt to become dependent and passive and develop psychosomatic symptoms around the gastrointestinal tract or the chest.

It is the retiring military man with 20 or more years in the service who is mainly affected by the ills of departure. This is a growing medical and social problem, the two psychiatrists say, because within the past year the number of military retirements has doubled.

Other problems faced by retiring troopers are emotional shock and considerable distress. They may also become paranoid in their attitude toward the individualism of non-military life.

The report is quite interesting when seen from the civilian point of view. Any ex-civilian who spent 18 to 22 years a carefree, individual accustomed to the pleasures of relative freedom likewise suffers severe shock when leaving civilian life to enter military life.

As in the case of the retiring soldiers, the new trainee is anxious, depressed and tends to drink too much when he gets the chance. And they are quite able to become dependent and passive.

By observing male members of the university campus, especially those nearing graduation and those not making "normal progress" one can observe symptoms of hypertension. It seems to dominate their thoughts, conversation and acts.

Although we know of nobody who has made a similar study by psychiatrists on college students, it is easy to observe college men who are depressed, irritable, and drink too much because they know their lives will soon be drastically changed. Any student can judge from first-hand knowledge.

In the case of the retiring soldiers, the psychiatrists recommend early detection of the syndrome and advise the patients that the problems are typical. In the case of the draft-wary student, there's no need to tell him his problems are typical. He already knows.

Goodness gracious

Recently This Week magazine urged people to write whether they favored changing holidays like the Fourth of July or Washington's Birthday so they would fall on Mondays, thus creating more three day weekends.

One opponent of such a plan said the longer weekends would mean "more idle time. The crime rate will increase. Also the number of unwanted pregnancies."

Gee, if it's all that bad it probably wouldn't be a very good idea.

Where have all the spies gone?

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — As one of J. Edgar Hoover's most ardent admirers, I was very surprised to read of the FBI director's stand on a proposed U.S.-U.S.S.R. Consular Treaty. It seems the administration wants the treaty because it would mean that we could have consulates in several cities throughout the Soviet Union. In exchange the Soviet Union could set up consulates in U.S. cities on a quid pro quo basis.

BUCHWALD

The treaty has had tough going in the Senate because Hoover is said to be against it on the grounds that it would only give the Russians a chance to set up more spy cells in the United States and that it would give the FBI more work to do. Hoover raised the question of whether the G-men could control the new threat of espionage.

This attitude about spies and espionage came as a surprise to those of us who have been raised on movies and magazine articles about Hoover and the FBI. The one thing we could always be certain of, until Hoover started writing letters to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was that the FBI could catch any spy a foreign power tried to plant in the United States. The impression that has always been given is that the more spies the Communists sent to this country, the better the FBI liked it. And every time the FBI rounded up a Soviet spy ring the nation cheered and the President gave Hoover another medal.

If the truth be known, Hoover's department thrived on Soviet spies. It was the stuff FBI legends were made of, and there wasn't a man, woman or child in this nation who didn't sleep better at night knowing that as hard as the Communies would try to penetrate our secrets, Hoover and his gallant agents would stop them.

But now for the first time Hoover has indicated that he would be hard put to keep track of Soviet spies if we permitted the Russians to open consulates in our major cities. He has said in effect that the FBI could no longer guarantee us protection against those who would be sent to this country to steal our blueprints and to microfilm our defenses. Hoover, unknowingly sent shudders of fear down our backs, because if he can't protect us against the dastardly Soviet spy system, then who can?

Obviously it isn't a question of manpower, because all Hoover has to do is go before the Senate and explain the new spy threat to them. In exchange he would get all the men he needs. Money is also no problem, because the greater the espionage, the more funds Congress will give him to fight it.

So the only thing one can guess is that Hoover is getting tired of catching spies. A man who has caught as many as he has probably wants to take it easy, and there is nobody in this country who would begrudge him this.

It would be unfair for the government to burden the FBI with new problems just because the administration wants to work out a detente with the Soviet Union.

If the Senate turns down the Consular Treaty for no other reason than to give Hoover a much needed rest, I would be the last to criticize them.

The only thing that worries me is that without fresh spies, where will the FBI get new plots for its television series?

'Clowns' is funny, but meaningful, too

By NICHOLAS MEYER
Staff Reviewer

Murray Burns won't work. He just won't work. He prefers to live on his unemployment insurance, collect Napoleonic eagles and go about the city of New York, generally doing what he enjoys which includes such kooky pastimes as seeing ships depart for Europe, frantically waving goodbye to people he doesn't know on board then wishing them a wonderful time.

But there is a hitch. Murray Burns has a nephew. He is a precocious and engaging youngster, an illegitimate offspring of Murray's sister, whose philosophy, Murray explains to social worker Barbara Harris, "was something that fell somewhere to the left of whoopy. You might call Nick a bastard — or a little bastard, depending on how whimsical you feel at the time." Murray goes on. The point is that Nick is Murray's weakness, the chink in his armor of non-involvement, and when it is explained to him that Nick will be removed from his custody unless he gets a job and shows himself to be a fit guardian, Murray has to make a choice.

"A Thousand Clowns" is the wildly funny and simultaneously meaningful movie derived from cartoonist Herb Gardner's hit Broadway play of the same title. The characters are interesting people who are fun to watch, the language is quick and terribly funny, and the actors, under the able direction of Fred Coe, make this a must-see film.

Jason Robards is truly splendid as the man who won't work, who wants to enjoy life and knows so well how to do it. Barbara Harris makes a captivating heroine and a delightfully inefficient and overly emotional — ("Sandra, have we lost all professional control?") — social worker. Barry Gordon is the most successful child star America has probably ever produced in sound films.

Perhaps the film's best performance is by Gene Saks (director of the musical, "Mame") as Chuckles the Chipmunk, hilariously neurotic star of a children's television program for whom Murray used to write "scriptaroonies." Martin Balsam received an academy award for his performance as Murray's straight-laced businessman brother and he certainly is good, as is William Daniels as Miss Harris' inhibited co-social worker.

These people play together with Mr. Gardner's own adaptation of his play and act their talented heads off. Those lines just keep coming as if there were no tomorrow and they are not just empty phrases, either. "A Thousand Clowns" is a comedy with bite, but even more significant, it is a comedy with relevance. There is not only food for laughter — very hearty laughter — there is also food for thought. "A Thousand Clowns," offers, as Joseph Conrad said a work of art ought to offer — "that unexpected glimpse of the truth for which you have forgotten to ask." That may make things sound more serious than they are, but it is what happens in the film, above and beyond all the side-splitting comedy.

Reader wants explanation of policy

To The Editor:

I have just lost some of my admiration for this student publication. In one article (Jan. 27) both triteness and petty conformity made your pages: "Luci, Pat Still Mum As Women Speculate..." It is good reporting, obviously, but was it really worth it? Mr. Editor, why was such a gossip, non-news article printed? Are both you and the Des Moines Register (which gave the story a front page illustration) just trying to please the public, rather than inform...? Please us (sincerely) by explaining your paper's news publication policy. Thank you.

Union Board plans 2nd semester of events and activities

By CHERYL ARVIDSON
For The Iowan

Union Board is ready to launch into a second semester loaded with plans for some outstanding special events and an improved array of regular activities.

Beginning the second semester movies is tonight's 20th Century feature, "Cyrano De Bergerac." Jose Ferrar's Academy Award performance as Cyrano may be seen at 7 p.m. in the Union Illinois Room. The Cinema 16 foreign film for this week is "Sundays and Cybele." This film may be seen at 7 and 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday in the Illinois Room. The Weekend Movie is "The Prize," starring Paul Neuman, and will be shown at 4, 7 and 9 p.m. in the Illinois Room. Tickets for all films are available at the Activities Center information desk.

Past and current Union Board committee members and chairmen who wish to apply for a Union Board area directorship may obtain applications in the Activities Center. Interviews are scheduled for Saturday and Sunday in the Big 10 Lounge.

On exhibit now in the Terrace Lounge is "The Story of Punch," from the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C. This display is a collection of water color paintings of the puppet characters from the English puppet play, "Punch and Judy." Also included is a commentary on the Puppet story. This display may be seen until Feb. 18.

REFOCUS will be held Feb. 20 to 26. REFOCUS is a series of films, displays, speakers and discussions which will illustrate special techniques in photography and cinematography. John Ezarkowski, director of photography at the Museum of Modern Art, will be one of the featured speakers.

The tentative dates for Symposium are March 8 and 9. Symposium will feature a comprehensive analysis and commentary on the Warren Commission's report on the assassination of John F. Kennedy.

Reader says SDS steps too far

To The Editor:

Section 2, Part (3) of the Smith Act states: "It shall be illegal for any person to organize or help to organize any society, group, or assembly of persons who teach, advocate, or encourage the overthrow or destruction of any government, in the United States by force or violence..."

The last paragraph of the ISL's latest offering states, "The lesson is clear. All attempts to gain power have been and will be destroyed as soon as they begin to threaten the ruling class. Power in America will never be 'given' away — it must be seized. And it will never be gained through non-violent and 'legitimate' methods. It must be seized and it must be seized by force."

Listening and reading the rantings of the lunatic fringe is bad enough, but when they openly support acts against the government, they step too far. The evidence of their illegal act is clear. What will be done about it is another matter.

Brandt Voices Future Hope: United Europe

BERLIN (AP) — West German Foreign Minister and Vice Chancellor Willy Brandt, arriving in Washington Tuesday for talks with President Johnson, says he is looking forward to the day when the East-West split in Europe comes to an end.

The former mayor of West Berlin, itself divided by the Communist wall, added, however: "Of course, it's a long way till we get there."

In an interview shortly before departing on his first visit to the United States as foreign minister, Brandt said:

"The aim of our policy is to overcome the unnatural and artificial division of Europe into two blocs. I am convinced that one day the present political structures will make way for an all-European system in which the division between East and West has been lifted."

His concept of a united Europe sounded similar to French President Charles de Gaulle's view of "Europe united from the Atlantic Ocean to the Ural Mountains." The West German government's recent moves toward friendlier relations with France are among topics expected to be discussed when Brandt meets Johnson.

Asked whether he sees a united Western Europe as a partner of the United States or as a third force between the United States and the Soviet Union, Brandt replied:

"The politically organized Europe we are working for is to be understood as a partner of the United States and at the same time as a factor in stabilizing peace. President Kennedy called for partnership."

Nicaraguan General Defeats Conservative

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Gen. Anastasio Somoza Jr. offered the political opposition a place in his government Monday but he got a prompt rejection.

Somoza made the offer as returns from Sunday's election showed him as winner of the presidency by more than a 2-1 margin over Dr. Fernando Aguero, candidate of the Conservative party.

At a news conference, Aguero spoke darkly of Nicaragua's political future but said he would be a "frank, honest, loyal" oppositionist. Later he changed his phrasing to say his opposition would be "civil and open."

The latest returns from 560 voting districts out of 2,067 showed Somoza with 120,344 votes to 51,131 for Aguero. Running a poor third was Alejandro Abanza Marengo, candidate of a splinter Conservative faction.

Charges of extensive fraud came from opposition party headquarters and Aguero, asked if he conceded defeat through fraud exploded: "No, I've not been

Cape Town Remains Bitter Over Carrier Controversy

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — The U.S. aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt completed refueling and provision Monday and departed for home at dusk, nearly 24 hours ahead of schedule. But controversy over her stay here continued.

The belief in Cape Town was that the carrier — en route from Vietnam — left ahead of schedule because of grumbling among her crewmen over cancellation of shore leaves in South Africa.

The cancellation order came after Washington said shore leave must be subject to racially integrated practices. The carrier has about 400 Negroes among her 3,800-man crew.

This fouled up elaborate arrangements made by the Cape Town City Council and hundreds of South Africans to entertain the carrier's crew members. The arrangements had been made largely on the basis of South Africa's race segregation policies.

Local Option Liquor Repeal Approved By Senate Unit

DES MOINES (AP) — A bill to repeal Iowa's local option liquor law was recommended for passage by an 8-2 vote Monday in the Senate Safety and Law Enforcement Committee.

The action puts it on the calendar where it can be called up for consideration with backing of the committee.

The law as it stands allows county-wide elections to determine whether the county will allow sale of liquor by the drink. This local option provision was a bid for support from drys when the 1963 legislature authorized sale of liquor at taverns and such places as well as by the bottle in state stores.

So far 20 counties have held such elections, and nine have voted dry.

Gov. Harold Hughes has said from the start he opposes local option because of the law enforcement problems it presents. He showed no enthusiasm at a recent news conference for repealing the county option law but did say he would approve repeal if the legislature passed such a bill.

Vietnamese Image To Be 'Improved'

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland has ordered a campaign in U.S. military units to change the image of the South Vietnamese soldier from one who shirks his duty, ducks combat and is likely to desert, it was learned Monday.

The U.S. military commander in Vietnam is said to be concerned that U.S. public support of the Vietnamese war may be shaken unless that image is dispelled.

Westmoreland gave the word to his top generals at a recent unpublicized conference. The four-star general emphasized that he does not share any feeling of disenchantment with the Vietnamese troops, and that he believes it is unfair.

Westmoreland told his commanders that anybody who raps the Vietnamese soldiers is criticizing the results of a 10-year effort by thousands of American advisers to shape the Vietnamese army into an effective combat weapon.

The American chief showed he is aware of talk among U.S. officers and enlisted men downgrading the Vietnamese soldier as a fighter.

Although Westmoreland did not mention it specifically, increasing use by Americans of the derogatory term "gook" in referring to the Vietnamese has been noted.

Westmoreland warned that, if such attitudes are not changed, they will spread through news media to the U.S. public and that this, in turn, could imperil U.S. aims in Vietnam. It could boil down to the success or failure of the American effort, Westmoreland said.

Hawks Test Illinois Tonight

Illini Pose Threat To Iowa's 19-Game Field House String

By RON BLISS
 Asst. Sports Editor

Illinois' basketball team will have a chance to finish tonight what it started nearly two years ago when it meets Iowa's Hawkeyes in the Field House at 8 p.m. Illinois hasn't appeared here since March 6, 1965 when it lost to the Hawkeyes 94-84. That victory for Iowa followed a home court loss to Minnesota and started the Hawkeyes on a 19-game home court winning streak that remains intact.

In addition to the victory over Illinois that season, the Hawks won all 12 home games last season and have compiled six straight wins here so far this season.

But it could all end tonight — especially if both teams play the way they did Saturday. Illini Whip NU While Illinois was pinning

Northwestern with its first Big 10 loss of the season, 93-83, in Champaign, Ill., Iowa was losing to Chicago Loyola in Chicago Stadium 98-87 in what Coach Ralph Miller called "the worst performance by any team I've had at Iowa."

The loss was the first experienced by Miller in Chicago Stadium as either a coach or a player, but that wasn't the reason for his anger — poor play was.

"Our effort left us no chance to win," said Miller after the game. "We were simply terrible. If we play this bad Tuesday night, we will get beat by 25 to 30 points. If we're not ashamed of this effort, we should be."

In the game, the Hawks committed 25 turnovers and missed six of seven free throw attempts in the last four minutes of the game when it looked as though they had a chance to pull it out.

ber, but according to Schultz, the loss of these players did not affect the Illini as much as most people think.

"They did not suffer too heavily because of the loss of the players," said Schultz. "They, of course miss Rich Jones, but this Dave Scholz has really turned into a fine player for them."

Scholz is a 6-7 1/2 sophomore who was moved into the starting center slot to replace Dunlap. Since taking over the center position he has averaged nearly 23 points a game and carries an 18.0 average for the season. He scored 26 points Saturday against Northwestern.

Jim Dawson, a hot-shot 6-0 guard, is the Illini's leading scorer. He is averaging 19.3 points per game.

Illinois' third leading scorer, Deon Flessner, will not be available for tonight's game. Illinois Coach Harry Combes announced Monday that Flessner has been lost for the season due to a fracture in the lower vertebrae of his back. The injury occurred early in the Northwestern game Saturday when he fell flat on his back. He had to be carried from the court on a stretcher. Dennis Pace, a 6-3 sophomore will replace him in tonight's game.

The game will begin a half hour later tonight, due to registration in the Field House. Registration doesn't end until 4:30 p.m. today, and even with the game starting a half hour later, workmen will be forced to convert the Field House back into a basketball arena in just three hours.

Wieczorek Sets Big 10 Mark As Trackmen Win In Chicago

Iowa's Larry Wiecezorek set a new Big 10 indoor mile record Saturday as he led Iowa's track team to victory over the Chicago and DePaul track clubs in a triangular meet in Chicago.

The Hawkeyes won nine of the 15 events to finish with a total of 86 points for the meet. Chicago was second with 59 and DePaul was third with 16.

Wiecezorek, a junior from Maywood, Ill., cruised to a 4:06.7 clocking in the mile run to eclipse the previous record of 4:07.6 set by Northwestern's Craig Boydston in 1966.

Jon Reimer was the Hawkeyes' only double winner in the meet. He captured first place in the 70 yard high hurdles and the 70 yard low hurdles.

'Indians Not For Sale,' Cleveland Owner Says

CLEVELAND (AP) — Vernon B. Stouffer, new owner of the Cleveland Indians, turned down an offer for the team that would have netted him $2 million profit, Indian General Manager Gabe Paul said Monday.

Paul said the offer was from outside of Cleveland within the last three weeks but that Stouffer's answer was "the club is not for sale... these are the Cleveland Indians."

Stouffer bought the American League baseball team last August for $8 million. Paul would not say who made the recent offer.

Indiana Tops MSU, 82-77, Ties For Conference Lead

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Indiana hit 55 per cent from the field and came from behind in the second half to beat Michigan State 82-77 Monday night and move into a tie with Northwestern for the Big 10 basketball lead.

A three-point play by Vern Payne with 13:25 to play put the Hoosiers in front at 53-52, and they led the rest of the way. They built up an 80-70 lead with 2:23 left and went to a control game.

Indiana hit 31 of 56 shots from the field. The Spartans got more shots but made only 30 of 76.

Michigan State spurred late in the first half to take a 48-43 lead after trailing at 26-17. Indiana caught up again in the first five minutes of the second half.

Erv Inniger led the Hoosiers with 24 points. Matthew Aitch topped Michigan State with 20.

The victory moved Indiana's Big 10 record to 4-1, the same as Northwestern. Michigan State, now 3-2 in conference play, fell into a third place tie with Illinois.

Overall, Indiana is 10-4, the best among Big 10 teams. Michigan State is now 8-5 for the season.

Heavyweight Title To Clay; Wins On 15-Round Decision

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Cassius Clay survived an early challenge by Ernie Terrell Monday night and came on strong in the late rounds to win a unanimous decision and claim the undisputed World heavyweight boxing championship.

Clay, who prefers to be known as Muhammad Ali, was awarded the decision by the verdict of referee Harry Kessler and judges Jimmie Webb and Ernie Taylor.

Kessler scored the bout 148-138 in favor of Clay. Webb scored it 148-133 in Clay's favor and Taylor sided with Clay, 148-137.

Terrell, who lasted longer than any other opponent who has challenged Clay since he became champion, landed several good punches in the early rounds and kept Clay even in the fight until the seventh round.

In that round Clay landed two left jabs and a solid hook to Ter-

Fencers Win 2, Lose 1 In Meets

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Iowa's fencing team lost its first dual meet of the season here Saturday to Notre Dame, 16-11, but came back to score victories over Indiana, 21-6 and Indiana Tech, 24-3 to boost its season record to 4-1.

The Hawkeyes made their strongest showing in the epee event where they won 20 of 27 bouts. They were 19-8 in sabre and 17-10 in the foil competition.

The fencers, now 1-0 in Big 10 competition, will face one of their steepest tests of the season next Saturday at East Lansing, Mich., where they will face Michigan State and Wisconsin in dual meets.

Late Scores

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

Indiana 82, Michigan State 77. Ohio State 80, Northern Michigan 74.

Maine 97, Boston U. 89. Vanderbilt 51, Georgia 41. (OT). Florida 82, Alabama 50. W. Virginia 81, Pittsburgh 62. Va. Tech 75, Geo. Wash. 70. Ga. Tech 81, Jacksonville 71. Norwich 90, Middlebury 57. Len Rhyne 80, Newberry 67. Gannon 58, Cheyney 53.

rell's jaw, and then barraged the WBA champion with a vicious volley of punches that opened a cut over his right eye.

In the next round Clay started to toy with Terrell, demanding "What's my name." Terrell had refused before the fight to call Clay his official name of Muhammad Ali. Instead he called him Cassius Clay, his generally accepted name by the public.

From then on Clay continued to punish his bleeding foe, landing series of punches to Terrell's head while Terrell tried his best to defend himself against the agile champion.

By the 12th round Terrell's face looked like it had been through a mix-master as blood dripped from cuts over both eyes.

Before the 14th round was permitted to begin, the referee called a physician to ringside to look at Terrell. The doctor permitted the fight to continue, but it was just as good as all over for Terrell.

Clay moved in on him quickly in the fourteenth round and smashed away with both hands. Clay consistently landed barrages of punches to Terrell's bleeding face.

There were cheers for Terrell as he walked to his corner at the close of the fourteenth round, but little hope.

In the 15th and final round Clay danced circles around the bleeding giant and continuously peppered him with blows to the head. Terrell drew cheers as he drummed Clay's ribs with a short volley, but it was too little too late.

Clay, a 4-1 favorite, weighed 212½ when he came into the fight to Terrell's 212½.

The victory, Clay's 28th straight, gives him claim to both the World Boxing Association and world heavyweight boxing championship.

Space Talk Set For Here

R. Buckminster Fuller, noted engineer and designer probably best known for his invention of the geodesic dome, will speak at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Art Building Auditorium.

Sponsored by the School of Art, his lecture will be titled "The Space Age — Liberating or Binding?" The program will be open to the public.

Fuller teaches design at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale Ill., during a part of each year. He is serving as a visiting lecturer-teacher for a month at Iowa State University, Ames, and will lecture here through the courtesy of the ISU School of Architecture, of which Professor Raymond Reed is the director.

Fuller became president of Geodesics, Inc., in 1954, and of Polydomes, Inc., in 1957. Lightweight structures manufactured by these firms are designed to support a large span with great efficiency, with pressure exerted on the supporting structure at any point being instantly distributed to all other points to equalize strain and achieve great structural economy.

The geodesic structure developed by Fuller has been adapted for uses and locations ranging from pavilions at the Seattle World's Fair to United States Navy storage units in Antarctica.

Fuller has been an industrial consultant to many governments and to such private groups as the Ford Foundation. He founded the Dymaxion Corporation of Bridgeport, Conn., which developed a house having a metal shell that turned with the sun to maintain the best possible orientation to light and atmosphere. He also invented the Dymaxion three-wheeled automobile in 1932.

Educated at Harvard University and the U.S. Naval Academy, Fuller has toured the world lecturing on design. He has spoken on geodesic structures at many major universities in this country, and has received honorary degrees from many of them for his work in design.

'Clean Rooms' Aid Society

Instruments that help scientists study inner and outer space may give longer service because of two new, specially equipped "clean rooms" at the University's Physics Research Center.

The rooms are virtually free of dust, smoke, and other airborne contaminants. A housewife, living in such an atmosphere, would never have to dust furniture.

A scientist, working in such a facility, can be sure that no damaging airborne particles will be present in delicate mechanisms, according to William Savage, director of solid state physics work in the Department of Physics and Astronomy.

One of the rooms, Savage explains, is a totally clean room for assembling large equipment. Here air is brought in from the outdoors, moved through an elaborate apparatus in an adjoining chamber, and pumped into the room through ceiling filters. Moving at the rate of about 12,000 cubic feet per minute, the room's air is changed about every two minutes.

Air Circulated
A second room contains three "work benches" with hoods and filters through which clean air is continually circulated. These work stations are used for assembling and repairing smaller instruments.

Among projects involving the use of these facilities are a field emission microscope (an instrument capable of viewing extremely small objects); a rocket for studying the upper atmosphere to be launched this spring; and instruments for an Injun V satellite to be launched by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration sometime next November.

Savage is constructing the microscope. Donald Gurnett of the Department of Physics and Astronomy is directing work on the rocket, and resident physicist Richard Whelply is director of work on satellite parts.

Among those assisting Gurnett with the rocket are Stanley Shawhan, also of the Department of Physics and Astronomy, and physics department design engineer James Miller.

Rocket Work

Much of the work on the rocket is done in the totally clean room. Work on the microscope and on instruments such as an Injun V tape recorder is done for the most part at the work stations.

Such facilities are "vital" in the construction of space experiments, Whelply said. "With the high cost of space instruments, it is important that they remain in working order as long as possible."

"Psychological effects" are also to be considered, Savage added. "It is well known that workers tend to be more careful in such a facility, and a number of steps have been taken to improve a worker's mental outlook. "Paints are chosen to make the room appear more spacious, large outside windows are calculated to produce an outside awareness, and windows opening on the hall are psychological equivalents to open doors. People tend to do better work when they feel they are not confined," Savage explained.

Color designs, too, are chosen with an eye to mental comfort. The designs are chosen to help eliminate eye fatigue and focus attention on the work at hand.

Plane Losses In Vietnam War Climb From 877 To 1,172

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon disclosed Monday the United States has lost 550 more aircraft in the Vietnam war than shown in planes loss totals released to the public. This pushed U.S. fixed-wing aircraft losses over Southeast Asia from the officially posted total of 622 to 1,172.

At the same time, an official revision of helicopter losses was in the works which would change the announced figure of 255 to well over 600.

Total Elevated
In all, the changes elevated the total aircraft and helicopter losses, both from combat and noncombat causes, from the previously announced 877 to 1,700-plus.

The additional losses mainly represented aircraft or helicopters which were destroyed or irreparably damaged due to operational causes — accidents, for example — but also included aircraft burned or blasted by the Viet Cong as they sat idle on air strips.

The Pentagon listed fixed-wing aircraft losses this way:

- 622 combat-type aircraft lost to enemy action while flying missions over North and South Vietnam.

- 550 combat-type aircraft which went down not as a result of enemy action; support aircraft such as cargo or observer planes; and "all other fixed wing aircraft losses in connection with the war."

Other Aspects
Pressed on the "all other" aspect of the second category — sources indicated this would include Air Force fighter-bombers which crashed in Laos while bombing Communist infiltration routes into South Vietnam; planes destroyed by such enemy action as border attacks while on the ground in South Vietnam; or aircraft downed in Thailand while en route to or from missions over North Vietnam.

The more than 1,700 fixed-wing and helicopter losses — most of them during the past two years — compares with 3,000 aircraft lost during three years of the Korean War.

POLICE OUT OF SIGHT — NEW DELHI, India (AP) — New Delhi motorists have been complaining about invisible policemen. The police department is now looking for ways to improve lighting at 25 intersections where illumination is so bad drivers can't see the policeman, much less his hand signals.

LEAVE IT FOR THE BIRDS

use a GAS clothes dryer instead

You'll save about 150 back-breaking, basket-carrying hours a year when you use an automatic gas clothes dryer... and you'll have fresh, clean, dry clothes any day of the week, any season of the year.

An automatic gas clothes dryer will dry your clothes fluffy-soft, lint and wrinkle-free for 1/3 the cost of the other automatic methods... about a penny a day... that's all it costs to operate.

Ask your gas appliance dealer to show you the advantages of an economical, dependable gas clothes dryer. Leave the clothesline for the birds. They'll enjoy it.

Magazine Explores Lasansky's Life, Art

Characterizing Mauricio Lasansky's 30 life-size "Nazi Drawings" as "a morality play of genocide," the current issue of Look magazine calls the University artist's work "eloquent, steeped in the silence of arrested time." The issue goes on sale today at newsstands.

Illustrated by photographs of three of the drawings, the Look article says: "The drama tells us that killing erases our identity as man, that in the place of love and hope, murder offers us the furtive terror the violence of the rat pack... The drawings, one by one, make us know that murder destroys the victim, but the executioner, too, dies — and not as a man but as an animal."

Reviewer Charlotte Willard, a University graduate, points out in the article that, except for the crucifixion of Christ, tragic historical events have been transformed into art only rarely. "Bosch with his paintings of Hell, Bruegel with his 'Massacre of Innocents,' Goya's 'Disasters of War' attain the high-tension condensed images that make us feel and know the fact, Lasansky's drawings have this power," Look adds.

Work Exhibited
"The Nazi Drawings" are on exhibition for the first time at the Philadelphia Museum of Art, where they will be shown through Feb. 19. They will be exhibited at the Whitney Museum in New York City from Mar. 22-April 30 and at the Des Moines Art Center June 23-July 16. Following a tour of museums in the West and Southwest, they will be on exhibition at the University

Two Philadelphia art critics have also had high praises for Lasansky's drawings. Victoria Donohue of the Philadelphia Inquirer said: "Man's inhumanity to man is a natural subject for an artist of Mauricio Lasansky's strong social conscience, and his series of 30 Nazi Drawings... have become, in his hands, a truly monumental art form as important as painting and sculpture."

"Completely Unsparring"
She continues: "Lasansky is completely unsparring in his accusations, as he goes beyond the awful events themselves, to point up painful universal truths about man's struggles in his relations with other men. Nor is there anything comparable in the art-work of his contemporaries — instead Goya comes to mind, as the plight of these victims becomes excruciatingly clear in portraits and episodes."

Dorothy Grafly of the Philadelphia Bulletin called Lasansky's drawings "caustic and shocking," adding, "They spare no one, be he clerical, secular, political or military. They show you man at his bestial, frenzied worst."

Prof. Lasansky, who is head of printmaking in the School of Art, will be in New York City today and Wednesday for judging of the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation Fellowships to be offered during the coming year. The artist is a permanent member of the Fine Arts Committee of the foundation.

25 H.S. Students To Research Here

About 25 high school seniors will be chosen by an equal number of University professors to conduct research here for nine weeks this summer.

The program, sponsored by a $10,000 Nation Science Foundation grant, will offer students with strong backgrounds in science courses and extracurricular activities an opportunity to work on a research project under the direction of a University researcher.

Students will work in research laboratories or libraries, participate in discussions and seminars, and take a course in science writing and the philosophy of science. Tours of educational and industrial sites are planned for weekends.

Under the direction of Robert Yager, associate professor at University High School, the program will be from June 11 through Aug. 11. Applicants must have completed the 11th grade, be in the upper 10 per cent of their classes, and have outstanding scores on standardized examinations.
