

Traffic Death Toll Rises 7 Per Cent

CHICAGO (AP) — Traffic accidents in 1966 killed a record 52,300 persons, disabled 1.9 million others and cost the nation $9.8 billion, the National Safety Council reported Thursday. The 1966 highway death toll was 7 per cent above 1965, when 48,000 were killed. Howard Pyle, council president, said the increase resulted in part from the fact that the factors contributing to the problem are increasing faster than the efforts being taken to cope with them. In 1966, 96.1 million vehicles operated by more than 102 million licensed drivers logged 935 billion miles on the nation's roads. Pyle added that a downward trend in auto fatalities would eventually occur, although he expects more increases in the years just ahead. "Our hope is that the American public, which must lend its support to every step taken, will recognize that this is a longterm job," he said. The council also reported that Los Angeles had the lowest death rate of all cities with more than one million population and replaced Chicago as the nation's safest large city. Los Angeles recorded 3.1 deaths for every 10,000 vehicles while Chicago had 3.2.

Legal Preludes Wrapped Up; Speck Trial Set For Feb. 20

CHICAGO (AP) — Six months of legal preliminaries to the trial of Richard Speck were completed Thursday with a ruling on the last of 32 defense motions. Speck is charged with murdering eight student nurses in their Chicago dormitory last year. Judge Herbert C. Paschen, who will preside at the trial in Peoria, said he did not anticipate a change in the Feb. 20 starting date. The latest batch of 23 motions presented by Gerald Getty, lawyer for Speck, 25, was taken up in chambers of Judge Paschen under a ruling that barred press and public from information about them. The private hearing took eight days. On each of these days, Speck was present, seated at the opposite end of a long table from Judge Paschen. As the hearing broke up Thursday, Speck was asked by a newsman when he expected to go to Peoria. "Haven't got my bus ticket yet," he replied before he was led to the lockup. Judge Paschen declined to discuss the motion hearings, except to say that each of the 23 motions was "fully argued and ruled upon." Earlier motions by Getty led to shifting of the trial site by Judge Paschen from Chicago to Peoria. Getty argued that Speck could not be tried fairly in Chicago because of wide publicity. Later, Getty asked that the trial be moved again — away from Peoria, for similar reasons. This motion was denied by Judge Paschen. The judge said that he planned to go to Peoria next week to begin discussion of administration matters. He said he probably would meet with Chief Judge John E. Richards of the 10th Circuit Feb. 16. It was not known when Speck will be shifted from the Cook County Jail in Chicago to the Peoria County Jail. In Peoria, Sheriff Willard Koepfel said he was ready for Speck who would be the only occupant of one cell block, under watch 24 hours a day. The cost of the trial is expected to be approximately $200,000. Part of this expense will be the cost of pay for 35 sheriff's deputies and eight women bailiffs at a total of $630 a day. The prosecution staff will be headed by William Martin, an assistant Cook County state attorney on the case since the indictments July 29. The mass killing occurred July 14.

AAUP To Debate Senate Document

All three figures set records. The local chapter of the American Association of University Professors will hold a debate on the proposed Faculty Senate Document at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Old Capitol Senate Chamber. Robert Boynton, associate professor of political science, and Jerry Kolros, professor of zoology, will take the "pro" side of the question and Richard Lloyd-Jones, professor of English, and Henry Hamilton, professor of internal medicine, will take the "con." The faculty will vote on the document the week of Feb. 20.

Modern Ills Old Hat, Archeologist Decides

NEW YORK (AP) — Anxiety beat the white man to the New World and America's oldest civilizations knew acid indigestion, nagging backache and that stuffed-up feeling 2,000 years before aspirin. The conclusions are drawn from toy soldier-sized, red-clay figures pulled from grave sites in Mexico, Central and South America by a physician-archeologist who has spent much of the last 20 years trying to diagnose the illnesses of his pre-Columbian miniatures. "These people hurt like us, they suffered the way we do. They were holding their heads and feeling lousy long before any Europeans were around to give them any 'decadent' diseases," said Dr. Abner Weisman. A clinical professor of obstetrics and gynecology at New York Medical College, Weisman became interested in archeology while working as a U.S. Public Health Service physician in the Southwest. His collection will be on nationwide tour shortly with a first stop in Miami, Fla.

China New Year Brings Confusion

NEW YORK (AP) — The new Chinese year is upon us, and while there is no confusion as to its number — 4665 — there is some confusion as to its name. Is it the Year of the Sheep, or the Year of the Ram, or the Year of the Goat, or the Year of the Lamb? Actually, all are correct, according to T. K. Tong, director of the library of the East Asian Institute at Columbia University.

Stafford, Alum Poet, To Read In Senate Chamber Monday

William Stafford, winner of the National Book Award for poetry in 1963, will read from his works at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol. The reading is sponsored by the Writers Workshop and Department of English and is free to the public. Stafford received a Ph.D. at the University in 1954. He wrote much of his first collection of poems, "West of Your City," during his tenure here. He has B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Kansas, and since 1948 has been teaching at Lewis and Clark College in Portland, Ore. During the 1966-67 academic year Stafford has had a Guggenheim Foundation Award.

Committee Selects 10 Coeds To Vie For Military Honors

Ten coeds were selected as Honorary Cadet Colonel semi-finalists Wednesday by a faculty selection committee for the 1967 Military Ball. This year's ball will be held from 8 to midnight March 11 in the Union Ballroom. The semi-finalists are: Diane Jordan, A4, Palantine, Ill.; Linda Nolan, A4, Guthrie Center; Marianne Rehholz, A4, Waterloo; Janet Dishlip, N4, Sioux City; Sue Curtis, A4, Cherokee; Pat Newell, A4, Malvern; Carla Homan, A4, Alton; Mary Joan Schaeffer, A4, Denver, Colo.; Bille Jean Redfield, A4, Batavia, Ill.; and Judy Sorensen, A4, Hazel Crest, Ill. The semi-finalists were selected from a field of 16 girls who were nominated for Honorary Cadet Colonel by their housing units. The faculty selection committee members were M.L. Huit, dean of students; Miss Helen E. Focht, counselor for women; Dr. Robert N. Hubbell, counselor of students; and Miss Helen Reish, assistant director of the Office of Student Affairs. Senior cadets of the Army and Air Force will reduce the number of girls to five finalists at a smoker at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Union Lucas-Dodge Room. The entire cadet corps will vote for Honorary Cadet Colonel from the five finalists the week of Feb. 27. The theme for this year's ball is "Camelot." Decorations will create the atmosphere of a medieval castle courtyard. Music for dancing will be provided by the Blue Diamonds, a 12-piece band from Minneapolis.

Student Adviser Innovation Brings Praise From Faculty

By FRANK IOSSI Staff Writer

The student adviser program, initiated last spring, has received favorable support from the faculty members involved and may be important in determining the future of the adviser program in general.

for the creation and carrying out of the program in the hands of Miss Kallio.

Later Miss Robertson was appointed co-chairman. The other members of the committee were appointed last fall from the AWS Freshmen Council.

They are: Nellie Chan, A1, Syosset, N.Y.; Pamela Hanover, A1, Des Moines; Virginia Johnson, A1, Rock Island, Ill.; Vicki King, A1, Cedar Rapids; and Mary Layton, A1, Iowa City.

The two girls approached Kelson with the advisory plan. Kelson was very enthusiastic about the program and arranged a meeting of the students; Dewey B. Stult, dean of the College of Liberal Arts; Donald Rhoades, dean of admissions and records; and himself to decide how the program would be implemented.

"The program was created solely from the initiative of the students," Kelson said. Kelson advises the student advisers.

At this time the program was vague; the committee had to decide where to start and how much ground to cover. They decided to limit it to freshmen and new transfer students in liberal arts, which consisted mostly of students who were undecided on a major.

Students for advisers were recruited through articles in the Daily Iowan and through fliers. About 50 responded.

Since about 80 per cent of the freshmen class were to register in the summer, the program was tried at pre-registration.

For both summer and fall registration, one student was assigned to each general liberal arts faculty adviser.

In addition, a student advisory table was set up at registration. It will also be functioning at the Field House for second semester registration.

Outlook For Program After the experiment and one year's registration, what is the outlook for the program?

"It needs revision," said Miss Kallio. "But we think it was a big success although we have nothing to compare it to."

"It should be much easier now. It will be better planned, now that we have something to work from."

The committee sees the possibility of expansion from the liberal arts freshmen and transfer students to include all colleges in the University.

"Of course this would be the decision of the individual college," Kelson said.

Miss Kallio said that she envisioned each college with a committee made up of students of that college with the liberal arts board acting as the coordinating body.

"We also want to devise some kind of a directory of student advisers for students seeking help to contact during the semester. But these are just ideas," she said.

Kelson said that the thoroughness and extensiveness of the program will depend upon the continued initiative of the students and the acceptance of the program by the faculty.

Miss Kelson said that the program would probably be limited to registration, at least for a couple of years.

The success and future of the program will also depend upon the Orientation Council's action in the next year.

The council is going to try to revitalize the present adviser program.

Dean Buresh, A3, Fairfax, one of two students on the council, said, "We want to improve the present program. It isn't fulfilling its capabilities. How the student program will be involved in the reorganization, we don't know. But it should influence any action we take."
