Pelton, Krewson Win

Record Total Vote Cast

JOHN PELTON
Student Body President

The results are official. John Pelton, A4, Clinton, and his running mate, Lyle Krewson, A4, Van Horn, have been elected student body president and vice president.

The pair won by a margin of 499 votes. A total 5,050 votes were cast Wednesday in the largest total turnout in campus history and the largest in percentages since the 1961 election.

In 1961 a total of 3,742 votes were cast out of a student body of 10,388, representing 36 per cent of the student body. This year 30 per cent of the 16,829 student body voted.

After the results were announced Pelton said, "I am proud that the student body has given me the confidence that I will need to fulfill this office."

Michael Wolfe, B3, Marshalltown, another presidential candidate, issued a statement conceding defeat.

"I know that John Pelton and Lyle Krewson will realize and accept the responsibility they now have in bringing student government directly to the students."

Lee Weingrad, G, Jamaica, N.Y., the presidential candidate of the Hawkeye Student Party (HSP), said that the number of HSP senators elected was a victory for participatory democracy. "The student government will succeed despite the victory of leadership unsympathetic to the goals of HSP," he said. A total of 10 out of 13 HSP senatorial candidates were elected.

In his victory statement Pelton said, "I appreciate the support and help needed to assume the presidency. I offered issues based on students' interests and needs, and the student body gave their judgment of confidence."

Pelton took note of the record number of voters. Since 1960 no more than 3,742 members of the student body have turned out for an election. Pelton called this "an active and interested referendum of the students."

Weingrad said the HSP "will continue to work hard to be the effective voice of students' rights."

"By reasonable, progressive responsibility, the student government can truly fulfill itself. I am confident that the new senate will accomplish this by being representative of their particular constituencies, but still united as a progressive legislative body," he added.

The four winners of the senator-at-large positions were: Carl Varner, A2, Center-ville; Randy Swisher, A2, Atlantic; Bob Homma, A1, Highland Park, Ill.; and Phil Hubbard, A2, Iowa City, the only member of the HSP.

The student party swept the six positions open for Town Men Senator however. They were: Gary Goldstein, A3, Highland Park, Ill.; Ken Wessels, A1, Dyersville; Jim Hulbert, A4, Cedar Rapids; Bill Scott, A2, Des Moines; Lee Breneman, A1, Mount Lebanon, Pa.; and Bruce Clark, A1, Des Moines.

All three Town Women senators were from the HSP: Carol Jaffrey, A3, Alexandria, Va.; Mary Jane Naumann, A1, Charles City, and Jane Synhorst, A1, Ames.

Jane Anderson, A2, Des Moines, won the presidency of the Associated Women Students (AWS). Vice president is Mary Jo Hultgren, A3, Ida Grove. Secretary of AWS is Marsha K. Morgan, A2, Aledo, Ill., and AWS treasurer is Carol Beaumont, A2, Park Ridge, Ill.

John Ramsey, A3, Audubon, won the 1-year term on the Board of Trustees of Student Publications, Inc. Ramsey beat out Peggy Nordeen, A3, Davenport, by 21 votes, 1,689 to 1,668.

Winning two-year terms on SPI Board were Dick Jennings, with 2,561 votes, and Michael Finn, 2,403. Gary Hopson received 1,942 votes.

Sue Ann Hoover, A3, Davenport, was elected senior class president, getting 552 votes. Vice president will be Michael Shea, who received 532 votes. Secretary for the senior class will be Jane Anton, A3, Waterloo, and Judy Lewis, A3, Des Moines, was elected treasurer.

At 4:30 p.m. the last ballots were cast. By 10:00 p.m. the results were announced. Though this is an hour later than last year's tabulations, the hour difference accounts for 1,500 votes extra, and a double check process.

This double check process, called verifying, involves an actual second tabulation of all the votes. The process is one of taking the names off the ballots, punching them on coded cards, then repunching the coded cards according to the corresponding ballots. If there is a discrepancy, a bell rings to notify the operator.

Woman Selected By Harlem GOP To Face Powell

NEW YORK — City Republican leaders Wednesday nominated a longtime party worker and secretary, Mrs. Lucille Pickett Williams, to run against Adam Clayton Powell April 11.

Mrs. Williams, 50 — unknown outside Harlem — replaces James Meredith as the leaders' choice to run for the seat the House excluded Powell from taking after he had held it for 22 years.

Like Meredith, Mrs. Williams is a Negro. But her candidacy is unlikely to cause the resentment that welled up against Meredith amid charges that he did not know Harlem, and was a tool for white political interests.

A co-leader of the GOP in Harlem's 74th Assembly district for more than 20 years, Mrs. Williams ran unsuccessfully as her party's nominee for the assembly in 1962. But in losing, she polled more votes than Dwight D. Eisenhower, who was the party's successful presidential nominee.

The Republican county committee made her its unanimous choice as Harlem began to prepare for Powell's promised Sunday return in the face of possible arrest.

Most observers believe Powell, who has enjoyed a self-imposed exile in the sun and sea of Bimini Island since late last year, is a certain winner no matter who runs against him.

His Abyssinian Baptist Church, where he has promised to preach on Palm Sunday, sent a representative to Bimini Wednesday to find out what arrangements should be made for the joyous homecoming that the congregation expects.

Skit To Highlight MECCA Smoker

A skit by the 10 MECCA Queen finalists will be a new feature of the traditional MECCA Smoker at 7 tonight in the Union Ballroom.

The smoker will also include skits presented by students from each department of the College of Engineering, a presentation of awards to selected students for scholarship and service to the college, and a beard-shaving contest.

Winners of Wednesday night's beard contest will be announced and the winners will take part in the beard-shaving competition. Prizes of electric shavers and pocket slide rules will be awarded.

The 10 St. Pat candidates, senior engineering students nominated by students of each engineering department, will be introduced: They are Gary L. Brooks, Nevada; Robert W. Harding, Coralville; Carroll Cullum, Marengo; Don M. Clancy, Mount Pleasant.

Robert J. DeWitt, Knoxville; Francis T. Cople, Ottumwa; Jerry H. Voigts, Bristow; Ronald J. Brooks, Coralville; Robert L. Kramer, Marion; and Richard C. Lietzau, Geneva, Ill.

Each queen finalist will question a St. Pat finalist as to how he would handle a certain situation. The St. Pat candidates will then present the queen candidates with similar problems.

The "Purple Sack," who has been visiting engineering classes during the week, will make his appearance at the smoker, according to members of the sponsoring Associated Students of Engineering (AS of E) committee.

The smoker will be open to members of AS of E and instructors in engineering.

Park Commission Will Economize

A combination of inflation and the disappearing possibility of receiving $79,000 from the Federal government's Open Space Program has caused the Iowa City Park and Recreation Commission to initiate economizing procedures in city park development.

At their Wednesday meeting the commission decided to defer planned projects that are not of top priority.

The commission is assigning priority to such projects as the baseball and softball fields at the Leroy S. Mercer Park. Besides the Connie Mack and Babe Ruth little league baseball teams there will be a new Junior Legion team formed this summer for 16 to 18-year-old boys.

NEWS IN BRIEF

WASHINGTON — Members of the Kennedy family, joined by President Johnson, stood in a rainy dawn Wednesday for the blessing of the new grave of President John F. Kennedy. His body was moved Tuesday night, without announcement, some 20 feet to its permanent memorial in Arlington National Cemetery.

DALLAS — The former wife of Lee Harvey Oswald said Wednesday she had never heard of nor met any of the persons mentioned in a New Orleans probe into a possible conspiracy to kill President John F. Kennedy. "I never met David Ferrie — never heard of him," said Marina Oswald Porter, who now is married to Kenneth Jess Porter. Asked if she had ever met or heard of a Clay Shaw or Clay Bertrand, Marina replied in an Associated Press interview, "Not until I saw him on television recently."

NEW ORLEANS — Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison's star witness in his assassination conspiracy case against Clay L. Shaw, testified Wednesday that Lee Harvey Oswald and David W. Ferrie were roommates at the time he heard them plotting with Shaw to kill President John F. Kennedy. Perry Raymond Russo, a 25-year-old Baton Rouge salesman, said he heard Oswald, Shaw and Ferrie conspiring in Ferrie's apartment in mid-September, 1963, about how to kill the president and make a getaway.

WASHINGTON — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd's former bookkeeper said Wednesday the Connecticut Democrat used money orders to pay his bills and roundabout loans to cover overdue taxes because he did not want it known that the money came from a political bank account. But the bookkeeper, Michael V. O'Hare, acknowledged under cross-examination that he forged Dodd's name to money orders used to pay a variety of bills. "In effect, he didn't sign any of these," O'Hare conceded. But he insisted: "Everything that was sent out with the consent of Sen. Dodd."

NASHVILLE — Henry Cabot Lodge is resigning as ambassador to South Vietnam, President Johnson said Wednesday, and will be replaced by a 72-year-old diplomat whose wife also is an ambassador. The President chose an address to the Tennessee Legislature for his surprise announcement that Ellsworth Bunker, former ambassador to India and to the Organization of American States, will succeed Lodge as this country's ambassador in Saigon.

PANORA — A small child burned to death in a fire following an explosion which rocked the family's farm home 2 1/2 miles south of here Wednesday. The child, about 3 years old, was identified as Samantha Larson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lrson. Two other younger children were in the home when a fire broke out in the front room of the farm house. The Larsons managed to get the other two children out of the building unharmed. The parents suffered second degree burns.

WASHINGTON — The House Ways and Means Committee outdid President Johnson's recommendation Wednesday in moving to restore suspended tax incentives for business. It sent to the House a bill that would not only restore the investment tax credit and speeded depreciation rules suspended last October but apply them to many, perhaps most, of the transactions begun during the suspension period.

WASHINGTON — President Johnson has picked an ace negotiator as his ambassador to South Vietnam. Slender, silver-haired and soft-spoken Ellsworth Bunker will go to Saigon with a reputation as something of a diplomatic miracle man because of the way he has dealt with a succession of touchy problems.

Early Showdown Likely In Vietnam Over Constitution

SAIGON — The generals who rule South Vietnam and the writers of its new constitution face an early showdown on how to achieve elected government this year.

The Constituent Assembly has put the finishing touches to a nine-chapter constitution. The members are now expected to vote on whether to approve their handiwork in its entirety and send it along to Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military regime.

The generals have a month to propose changes. These can be overridden by two-thirds vote in the 117-member assembly.

By law, the new national charter is to be promulgated no later than May 3. A presidential election is then promised within six months.

The regime has serious reservations about the original draft and earlier submitted a series of proposed changes. Some were written into the document, but others were ignored.

Sharpest conflict is over whether chiefs of South Vietnam's 44 provinces will be elected or appointed.

A consensus in the assembly favored election. The regime wants these to be appointive posts. As the constitution is now written, province chiefs will be appointed in the first term of the first president and thereafter elected in militarily secure areas.

What becomes of the Constituent Assembly after May 3 is another point in dispute.

The deputies envision themselves as the supreme legislative body in South Vietnam until a national assembly is elected sometime in 1968. The generals are reported willing to let them continue sitting as an interim body but without much power.

Bellow On Plight Of Modern Writer: 'Easier To Become, Harder To Be One'

"... harder to be one"

By DENNIS ISHIBASHI
Staff Writer

Saul Bellow told a near-capacity crowd in the Union Main Lounge Wednesday night that in today's society "it is easier to become a writer, but harder to be one."

Speaking on "The Writer and the Public Today," the noted American novelist was another in the offerings of the University Lecture Series.

Bellow spoke on the problems of young writers in modern society, and discussed contemporary fiction in America. He is the author of "Herzog" and "The Adventures of Augie March" — both winners of the National Book Award.

Starting off on an informal note, Bellow described his speech as "probably a formless essay" and said that an alternate title might be "What Every Young Writer Should Know."

"Iowa City isn't Paris"

for the writer's first task is to "legitimize himself."

Bellow said young writers generally begin by migrating to big cities — especially New York — to lead the life of a writer. "New York is generally thought to be the literary capital of the United States," said Bellow. But he added later that it "is more the center of exploitation than creativity."

"Literary activity is concentrated, I'm afraid, in the universities," said Bellow. He said that the universities have become the literary Paris of the 1920s.

However, he quickly clarified that statement by saying: "Now Iowa City is not Paris... but then Paris isn't Paris either."

He said that universities have become a literary center and have hired writers "not to teach — but to train professional writers."

"Not the vices, just the color," said Bellow.

"... exploit what we have"

"Unsure Of Function"

Bellow said that a young writer is often unsure of his function in society and must do much of his thinking alone.

One of these problems for young writers, said Bellow, is that "modern educated man feels he has all the literature he needs."

He said that it is often hard for modern readers to believe that contemporary writers can add something. Therefore, said Bellow, writers have to deal with the skepticism of the people — a skepticism that assumes "it can see through things."

"The idea," said Bellow, "is not to have something new in literature, but to exploit what we have."

Bellow said that writers have in a sense inherited the problems of the clergy, for they must affirm, console and comfort the soul.

But for young writers, said Bellow, "it is easier to lead the life than to be the thing."

Soundoff Policy To Stay Unaltered: Union Board

There will be no change in the basic policies or structures of the Union Board's Soapbox Soundoff feature, for the time being.

Board Pres. Harry Maas, A3, Wellburg, made the announcement Wednesday after a two and a half-hour meeting of the board.

In discussing the congested Soundoff session in which President Johnson was executed in effigy for "a crime against humanity," the board decided that a new location should be found. Maas said that next Tuesday, if weather permitted, Soundoff would be held on the Gold Feather patio. Otherwise, he said the Soundoff would be moved inside.

Aside from this action, Maas said that the board felt that the Soundoff was established as a free interchange of expression, and to continue this concept they could not establish rules of procedure that would prohibit certain lines of expression. However, Maas said that the problem did call for research to determine whether or not the goals of the program were being met.

Maas also brought up the subject of the rule which forbid the taking of pictures in the Union without registering first.

"It is my personal feeling that such a regulation is unnecessary, and the Union Board plans to investigate the problem," he said.

Loren Kottner, director of Union Board, explained that the regulation was from the Code of Student Life which prohibits the taking of pictures for publication without permission. The Union rule, he said, is actually only a procedure for carrying out this regulation.

In the years he has been here, Kott-ner said, no person has been refused permission to take pictures in the Union.

"This is a common practice in many situations similar to this one," he said. The regulation was originally established to protect university personnel and guests, as well as the legitimate press, he said.

GPA Minimum Raised For M.A.

The Graduate Council has voted to raise the minimum grade point average required for receiving an M.A. degree from 2.3 to 2.5.

The new GPA requirement would go into effect in September of 1968, Alvin H. Scaff, associate dean of the Graduate College, said Wednesday.

In addition Scaff said that all M.A. degree candidates who were admitted to the Graduate College after Sept. 19, 1966 would be required to maintain a 2.5 GPA to be retained in the Graduate College.

The present 2.3 GPA requirement would continue to apply to M.A. degree candidates who were admitted to the Graduate College before Sept. 19, 1966 if they completed their degrees by August of 1968, Scaff said. After August of 1968, he said, the 2.5 minimum GPA would apply to all M.A. degree candidates.

Scaff said the change was to make administration policy consistent with the recommendations of the graduate faculty.

Park Commission Will Economize

A combination of inflation and the disappearing possibility of receiving $79,000 from the Federal government's Open Space Program has caused the Iowa City Park and Recreation Commission to initiate economizing procedures in city park development.

At their Wednesday meeting the commission decided to defer planned projects that are not of top priority.

The commission is assigning priority to such projects as the baseball and softball fields at the Leroy S. Mercer Park. Besides the Connie Mack and Babe Ruth little league baseball teams there will be a new Junior Legion team formed this summer for 16 to 18-year-old boys.

Free tuition

In his campaign platform for Student Senate president, John Pelton advocated a search into the possibility of free tuition for Iowa's state universities and state college. The investigation should be made and free tuition should become a reality.

It is difficult to estimate the percentage that student tuition pays for the total cost of operating state schools. When the millions of dollars of state appropriations are added to federal and private grants to state schools, the proportion of total cost paid by tuition is quite small. Rough estimates range between 3 and 8 percent.

Public grade and high schools were created to give everyone a chance for free education. In those days the technology of our society made it almost mandatory for high-school diplomas and strictly mandatory for grade-school diplomas.

As society progressed, lower-tuition colleges and universities supported by state funds were started in the states. The demand was for higher-educated young adults and the price had to be lowered to encourage more talented youth into colleges and universities. Some universities, as in California and Pennsylvania, charge no tuition.

We are now approaching the day when the bachelor's degree is becoming essential, if not mandatory. The call for college-educated adults is increasing in geometric proportions.

At a time when the demand for college-educated people is soaring, it is important that more qualified youth be attracted to colleges and universities. Many states are creating junior colleges which are within driving distance for students, thus reducing the cost of living away from home while going to school. The junior colleges likewise take some of the financial load off universities and colleges.

Many industrious students have been able to pick up jobs to help pay their college expenses. Various governmental and private credit funds permit the student to borrow money to help finance his college education. Granted, this has been a great aid in making it possible for more students to attend college. But part-time jobs can take up valuable study time and can likewise prevent students from participating in valuable non-academic activities and attending lectures and concerts. Borrowing will help a student get through college, but many potential students are discouraged by the fact that they will have a large debt to pay after graduation.

The abolition of tuition will mean a change in philosophy for state legislatures which, for the most part, have concentrated on ways to cut requests for appropriations for state schools. It seems impossible to visualize such a change in the next few years. But we believe it is a necessary and an attainable goal.

8 Negro students express opinions on Powell case

By ROBERT ALLEN
Staff Writer

Eight University Negro students, interviewed recently, generally agreed that the Adam Clayton Powell issue is a succession of wrongs — three to be exact — with racial undertones.

They all agreed that Powell was wrong in misusing House Education and Labor Committee funds. All thought the House of Representatives was wrong in ousting the 22-year veteran from his seat. Six of them thought James H. Meredith was wrong if he thought he could win Powell's seat.

Powell was the chairman of the Education and Labor Committee until he was removed January 9 for misappropriating funds. He was made to step aside pending investigation of his qualifications for House membership.

A select House investigating committee was appointed to decide on his eligibility. The committee, headed by Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.), recommended to the House that Powell be seated but given public censure, a $40,000 fine, and deprived of all his seniority. But the House blocked the recommendation by a vote of 222 to 202. On March 1 the House voted 307 to 116 to bar Powell from his seat.

Says Powell Was Wrong

Using hand gestures to emphasize his points, Harold W. Cranford, P2, Chicago, said "I would be the first to admit Powell was wrong in his handling of Committee funds. However, to say he was the only one is also wrong." He referred to Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.)

Dodd was subjected to hearings in June and July last year by the Senate Select Committee on Standards and Conduct. The hearings grew out of allegations that he had improperly directed campaign funds, accepted improper gifts and was paid both by the Senate and by private sources for identical travels. Hearings on Dodd's activities are now under way.

Cranford continued, "I would hate to believe we have a Congress that would act in the way it did simply because Powell is a Negro. I can understand his being censured by being removed from his chairmanship position. But to have his seat taken away altogether — that I can't understand."

Leans Toward Muslims

Ruth Spicer, A4, Staten Island, N.Y., talked fast and sure on the phone. She described herself as one who "leans toward the Black Muslims." She said, however, that she was not a member. About Powell, she said, "Nobody is right in misappropriating funds. But there are people in government who have committed acts as bad as Powell, and they haven't been kicked out."

Asked why she thought he was ousted, she said, "I feel he got booted because he was a Negro. I have reached the conclusion that white people want to keep us at the same second class level. He is a Negro and he was in a white class, and what he has done has been blown way out of proportion."

"Definitely, I think Powell was wrong — if he did it," said Norris Batts, A2, Philadelphia, Miss., as he looked up from his reading in the library. He added, "I don't agree with everything he has done. Stripping him of his chairmanship was pretty severe. After all, he has about 22 years seniority. I believe, though, the House did right by stripping him."

Does Not Agree With Unseating

Batts does not, however, believe Powell should have been unseated. He said, "I disagree with the ouster. I think he should have been made to repay the money. Since they had already taken away his chairmanship, just making him repay the money would have been enough."

Wylmarie G. Slaughter, G, Davenport, thought for awhile and said that Powell was wrong in misusing Committee funds. She continued, "I think it is regrettable that his behavior was in such poor taste. I do think he has done a lot of good things on the Committee. But, I think the House was right to censure him."

Miss Slaughter, however, did not believe Powell should be deprived of his seat in the House. She said, "The people of his Congressional district voted for him. They should have the right to have the representation they choose."

She added that because Powell was a Negro, he was more vulnerable than other Congressmen. "Knowing that," she said, "he should have been more careful in what he did."

Material For Hanging

"Powell was wrong in misappropriating funds, said Phillip Jones, G, Chicago. "And in doing so, he gave Congress the material they needed to hang him."

He said that Powell had done a fine job as a House member and particularly as chairman of the Education and Labor Committee.

Jones cautioned Negroes in hollering racism. He said, "I don't think it is wise of us as young Negroes to say he is being attacked because he is a Negro. The fact is, the man did not conduct himself in a manner befitting a Congressman."

G. Hubbard, A2, Iowa City, has strong convictions about Powell and the man who deposed him. He dislikes both parties.

He said, "Powell was wrong. Personally, I don't like Powell, I think he is a clown. He got in a position where he could be effective and he blew it. You can say he blew his Congressional cool. I have more respect for men like Rep. Conyers of Detroit and Stokely Carmichael."

He said he had a lot of respect for Carmichael as leader of the Black Power movement. He said he was not a member of the movement, but he was strongly in favor of it.

Criticizes Others

Hubbard spoke just as harshly of other Congressmen and some of their racial attitudes. He said, "I know damn well there are Congressmen who voted Powell out because he is a Negro."

Not as vociferously, Jacqueline D. Brown, A4, Gary, Ind., said that Powell was wrong in using public funds for his personal use. However, she did say she believed there was a degree of discrimination behind his ouster. "I think because Powell is a Negro and also arrogant, it was hard for him to live up to his colleague's expectations."

Anita Lee, A4, New York, over the phone said thoughtfully, "I think Powell was wrong. There is a certain amount of ethics that a Congressman should observe."

As to the race issue, she said, "I realize a lot of people say that Powell's ouster is plain discrimination. But I think we will have to reserve judgment to see if somebody else is punished for mishandling funds." She believes there are other Congressmen as guilty as Powell.

May Hold Special Election

If the Powell case is not resolved in the courts, there will be a special election in the 18th New York District to elect a representative. Last Tuesday the Republican Executive Committee from the District selected James H. Meredith to oppose Powell, but Meredith has since withdrawn.

Meredith is the Negro who broke the color bar at the University of Mississippi in 1962. He gained nationwide attention as a result of this. He also gained attention last year when he was shot while conducting a voter registration march through Mississippi. He is now a law student at Columbia University.

Six of the eight interviewees favor Powell in an election. They believe Meredith would have lost if he had run. Most of the six cited Powell's experience and pull in Harlem as their reason for believing he would have won.

'Oh Dad, Poor Dad' isn't all that bad

By NICHOLAS MEYER
Staff Reviewer

Richard Quine's film version of Arthur Kopit's play, "Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mamma's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad" was completed almost a year ago and was judged so bad a picture that it wasn't going to be released. However, the writers tacked on a whole new sequence of film in which the "Dad" of the title (who is dead throughout the play) makes comments and observations on the action from heaven. Since Dad is played by Jonathan Winters, this rescue work turns out to be fairly successful.

In short, the film adaptation of Arthur Kopit's play isn't all that bad. And for those who are not aware of the play's subject matter, let it be said that its lengthy title isn't merely cute, it tells the entire plot.

"Oh Dad, Poor Dad" seems to me to be one of the most genuinely sick creations of recent years. It probably comes on so strong because it doesn't realize just how incredible all its implications are, and it doesn't seem to be so desperately trying to shock audiences as do films of the "Ecco," "Mondo Cane" ilk. In fact "Poor Dad" being so funny most of the time only serves to intensify its cockeyed Weltschmerz.

It is quite obvious, for example, that playwright Arthur Kopit hates mothers and sees them as the castrators of their sons. Certainly Rosalind Russell — who arrives driving her own plane, wearing black, black sun glasses, vampire red lipstick, an outfit resembling a zombie in mourning, and dragging among other things her husband's coffin (she had him stuffed, she explains with relish) wherever she goes — doesn't do much to help the image of motherhood. She also has a son with her, aged 25, who sucks his thumb and carries a security blanket with him (played by Robert Morse).

The story centers on his son's efforts to break away from his mother's incredible hold on him. It's not merely a question of being allowed to talk on the telephone or go outside for some sunshine (he is ghastly pale) but meeting and loving someone of the opposite sex — who isn't mother. The love appears in the form of the hotel "babysitter" (they are vacationing in Jamaica), who is excellently played by Barbara Harris (last seen here as Sandra Markewitz, the social worker in "A Thousand Clowns"). Miss Harris does her best to seduce the thumb-sucking 25-year-old and to free him of his tyrannical mother. Whether she succeeds or not, I shall not say.

"Oh Dad, Poor Dad" is such a way out, off-beat kind of movie (despite Richard Quine's typical Hollywood direction, color, and photography) that it is hard to predict anyone else's reactions to it. In its own bizarre way, I think it is a very powerful film with something it is very intent on saying. If the film were only about one mother — this one — and her strange hold on her son, it would be meaningless.

If, on the other hand, it is (as I think it has to be) a more generalized point of view, it scares the wits out of me.

Reader asks 3 profs to show us how to solve conflicts

To The Editor:

They say we are the wayward generation — those who cast morality away to a vague situation ethics; those who protest and demonstrate for civil rights, the "right" kind of patriotism, and for freedom, but through rash and vulgar methods; and those who escape from reality almost simultaneously with liquor, sex and LSD.

Well, this is true. I am certain, however, that part or most of the responsibility for the above "waywardness" (who knows, this may lead this generation to a Gold Mine, after all!) lies on the shoulders of our older, mature generations — ideally, though, to some goodly extent, not in reality. Adult interaction, values and decision-making provide some guidelines by which a child, a student, a young adult may understand himself and others, and deal effectively and pleasurably with people.

By Johnny Hart

Now, I point my finger directly at three men — Dewey B. Stult, Lyle W. Shannon, and Donald Barnett. I wish they would please show us how mature, adult people solve problems and personal conflict effectively and rationally. Do they expect us to learn about adulthood in a textbook? I have heard about their discourses through this paper for many weeks, and I see that they have "submitted" formal letters to each other — but their public battle is still on a personal level, it seems, and remains an unsolved spectacle. None of us are satisfied with this, though we may be immature enough to enjoy it.

Upon what basis, or standards, do I criticize you men? Well, I have heard . . . We are a student generation which is eager to know about, and capable of knowing about, problem solving — even without the usual vulgarity, if possible.

Constitution Aims To Protect Rights

By ELAINE SCHROEDER Staff Writer

The new University of Iowa Student Association Constitution aims "to make student an integral part of the decision-making process and to protect the rights of students while they attend the University."

The Student Senate voted 12 to 4 to approve the new constitution at its regular meeting Tuesday night. The senate must approve the constitution by a two-thirds majority at two consecutive meetings before it goes into effect.

The present senators are expected to vote on the constitution for the second time at next Tuesday night's meeting before the new senators, elected Wednesday, take office.

The senators who voted against the constitution were: Mary Jill Wiley, A2, Cedar Rapids; Chandra D. Carr, A1, Iowa City; Diane L. Neumaler, A4, Moorhead, Minn.; and Kathleen Cororan, A2, Iowa City. They opposed it because of Article IV which defines the new Student Activities Board.

Hanson Wrote Section
Student Body Pres. Tom Hanson wrote the one-page section on the activities board, which the senate accepted to replace the five-page draft written by a senate committee.

The activities board would serve as a coordinating body for all student organizations and activities at the University, according to the article accepted by the senate.

The board's purpose would be "to actively promote an integrated program of extracurricular activities which enhance the intellectual, cultural and social growth of each member of the student body."

It would supervise the selection of officers in University groups supported by student fees, set maximum levels for ticket prices at student-sponsored University events and regulate the scheduling of major student events.

Board Decides Disputes
Control of a student activities underwriting fund and jurisdiction over disputes between student organizations would also be functions of the activities board.

A general consensus of agreement was reached on each section of the constitution. Some amendments were made before the senate voted to approve the entire constitution.

Except for the addition of the Student Activities Board, the new constitution has few changes from the old constitution.

One such change specifies that all senate representatives must be given a significantly greater role in the determination of college policies.

Martin Agronsky, a veteran newsman, will be the final speaker in the University Lecture Series for 1966-67. He will speak at 8 p.m. April 10 in the Union Main Lounge.

Agronsky will speak in place of Irving R. Levine in the lecture series. Levine, a news correspondent, was scheduled to speak at the University April 6, but had to cancel a lecture tour of the United States because of illness in his family.

Agronsky, a native of Philadelphia, graduated from Rutgers University in 1936 and began his career as a reporter on the Philadelphia (Israel) Post, an English language daily. Shortly afterward, he began free-lance writing in Europe. Later he worked for the International News Service in Paris, and with NBC as a correspondent in the Balkans, Africa, the Far East and Australia during World War II.

Agronsky then worked in Washington, D.C., for ABC before joining NBC in 1957. He joined CBS News in April, 1964, and has interviewed many major newsmakers on the CBS weekly program "Face the Nation" and other news programs.

3 Debates Set For TV

The University debating team will meet Grinnell College in the first of a series of three debates with Iowa colleges at 4 p.m. Saturday on WMT-TV.

The other two debates will also be broadcast on WMT-TV. On March 25, the team will meet the State College of Iowa. April 1 the team will debate Iowa State University.

Robert L. Kemp, instructor in speech and coach of the team, said Wednesday that the topic for the first debate would be "Resolved: that college students should play a significantly greater role in the determination of college policies."

Kemp said that he would like students to express their opinions on the issue debated. He is planning to get out opinion ballot forms. The respondents will be asked to report their positions on the issue before and after the debate. In this way, Kemp can ascertain the influence the debate had.

Incompletes May Be Fs

Letters of notification were sent by the Registrar's Office today to those students currently enrolled who have grades of "Incomplete" on their permanent records.

Present University policy states that grades not changed before May 24 will be converted to Fs. This is necessary to compute the student's grade point average.

"This special letter shouldn't be necessary, but it's going one step further than necessary to enforce the rule," said W. A. Cox, registrar.

Grades of "Incomplete" may be reported only if the unfinished part of the student's work is small, the work is unfinished for reasons acceptable to the instructor and the student's standing in the class is satisfactory.

Those not presently enrolled in the University but who have outstanding "Incomplete" grades are allowed to make up the grades at any time.

In some cases students will receive notification that they have "incomplete" grades after they have changed the grade. This may happen if the instructor has not yet turned in the corrected grade or it has not been processed yet.

Further questions concerning "incomplete" grades should be directed to the Registrar's Office.

C.R. Jefferson, Dubuque Advance

DES MOINES (AP) — Cedar Rapids Jefferson powered its way into the semi-final round of the boys' state basketball tournament Wednesday night by crushing Sioux City Heelan, 82-49.

In an earlier game, Dubuque Wahlert advanced to the semi-finals by beating Albia, 58-46.

Jefferson, the pre-tournament favorite, grabbed the lead in the early minutes of play and left no doubts that it was number one as it outran and outshot the shorter Crusaders.

Led by B.J. Trickey and Larry Baker, the J-Hawks raced out to a 41-28 half-time lead and increased their margin to 23 points by the end of third quarter, 59-36. Jefferson then increased its margin to 74-41 before putting their reserves into the game midway through the final quarter.

Trickey, a slick-driving 6-0 guard, led Jefferson with 24 points while 6-7 Baker had 23 and Larry Lawrence 18. Bill Anderson led Sioux City with 14 points, Tom LaPlant had 13 and Ed Wilchin had 10 points for the Crusaders.

In New York, Clay was visibly shaken when told of the order to report.

"If what you say is true, this is gonna be my last fight," he said. "All those people who want to see the greatest heavyweight who ever lived better come see me now."

"I don't want to say anything more. I don't want to talk to nobody. I'm gonna go to a movie and think about things."

Clay is in training for a March 22 title defense against Zora Foley in New York.

Meanwhile, in another attempt to keep Clay out of the Army, his attorneys filed suit in U.S. District Court in Owensboro, Ky., seeking an injunction against his induction on the grounds that there is a racial imbalance on his draft board.

The suit also asks that all draft boards in Kentucky be revamped to eliminate racial imbalance.

Judge James F. Gordon set March 29 for a hearing in Louisville on the request to name a three-judge panel to hear the suit. He turned down a request for a temporary restraining order against Clay's induction, requested by attorneys Hayden Covington of New York and Ernest Woodward II of Louisville.

The suit attacks the constitutionality of a federal statute that, Covington said, "allows the gov-

All of Kentucky's draft boards are acting illegally, he said, because "they discriminate against the Negro race."

Guess what.

Someone doesn't like Iowa's style of basketball play. Sports writer Glenn Miller of the Wisconsin State Journal blasted Iowa's defense and coach after the Hawkeye's 90-87 overtime win over the Badgers at Madison last week.

The Wisconsin writer said:

"To me, there is nothing sweeter in Big 10 sports than beating Iowa.

"That's why it was so much fun, on Feb. 18, to steal one away from the Hawkeyes — on their own floor, in a triple overtime, by a single point, 96-95.

"On the other hand, there is nothing so galling as to lose to Iowa.

"That's why Tuesday night's loss to the Hawkeyes . . . was such a bitter pill to swallow.

Iowa Style Detested

"Some will say the turning of the tables has a nice element of justice and fairness in it. I am not prepared to be so charitable.

"No pastor, I do not HATE Iowa. I just loathe, detest, abhor, and abominate the Iowa style of play, the coach who teaches it, and its sinful success.

"So what is this style of play? Iowa plays defense. It plays close, tight, grasping, clawing, slapping, hacking, leaning, shoving, hooking defense. It hounds its foes. It harasses its opponents from the moment they take the ball out of bounds until they give up the ball.

" . . . So what's wrong with that, you say? Isn't the object of defense as the 'best-disciplined I have ever seen.'

"I dissent. The defensive art of the Hawkeye consists of skillfully committing small, deliberate fouls in the knowledge that most of them will not be called. This gains a positive advantage over an opponent who does not do the same thing.

Lists Miller's Role

" . . . Part of the act is the coach. The defensively-aggressive team has six stars — five on the court, and the coach on the sidelines. He is a calculated part of the system. His role is to keep up the pressure on the officials to make sure they do not turn righteous and start calling fouls for wristslapping.

"Such a coach moans. He groans. He cries. He heckles. He berates. He stamps his foot. He waves towels. He turns his eyes and flings his arms heavenward to invoke wrath. He stays on his feet to remind officials of his presence.

"Now, the Richard Burton of sideline histrionics is coach Ralph Miller of Iowa. And if any one of the 11,500 fans in the fieldhouse Tuesday night thought his sideline performance, or his team's aggression, had any elements of spontaneity in them, he can change his trusting mind.

" . . . And so it works. Quick Iowa wins more than it loses. It draws a lot of fouls — it did Tuesday night — but not as many as it ought to . . .

"Maybe the answer is to meet sin with sin and employ the same tactics. Wisconsin presses at times — but doesn't slap.

"Iowa out-defensed Wisconsin Tuesday.

"I hate Iowa."

Sportswriter Miller tells us what he DOESN'T want for a defense. But we wonder what he DOES want. Surely he doesn't want Wisconsin's defense. The Badgers were seventh in the Big 10 in defense. Iowa was third.

We hear that Iowa's paper airplane throwing fans hope sports-writer Miller covers the Wisconsin game here next year. They need a good dummy for target practice.

Iowa's Gibbs, Ziolkowski Picked In Pro Football Draft

Iowa football players Dick Gibbs and Bob Ziolkowski were drafted by professional football teams Wednesday.

Gibbs, a senior from Chariton, was picked by San Francisco, and Ziolkowski, a graduate in January, was picked by the New York Giants.

Gibbs, a 6-0, 186-pound defensive back, was voted Iowa's Most Valuable Player and team captain for 1966. He led the Hawkeyes in tackles. He came to Iowa four years ago without a scholarship and didn't even letter as a sophomore.

Ziolkowski, a 6-4, 272-pound lineman from Detroit, was unable to play during the 1965 and 1966 seasons because of a broken ankle.

Other college players from the state of Iowa who were drafted Wednesday were quarterback Paul Krause of Dubuque by Denver, tackle Dick Schafoth of Iowa State by Atlanta, tackle Tom Aleneier of Luther by Kansas City, tackle Ted Tuinstra of Iowa State by Detroit, and tackle Paul Pomich of Drake by Buffalo.

Dean Ray Explains Duties As Big 10 Representative

By JOHN HARMON
Staff Writer

One of the nine Big 10 faculty representatives who will decide the future of Illinois' athletic program in Saturday's "show cause" meeting is Dean Robert F. Ray, director of Extension Services here at the University.

A graduate of Coe College, Ray received his advanced degrees from Iowa and has been the University's faculty representative since his 1956 appointment by the Board in Control of Athletics.

As a faculty representative, Ray has the responsibilities of preparing rules of eligibility, deciding upon the election, suspension and membership of institutions and judgment of the eligibility of athletes.

Uniformity Needed

According to Ray, the heart of the entire inter-scholastic athletic program is the standardization of aid and recruiting practices. Without this uniformity there would be no control, no institutionalism in the athletic program and no faculty control.

Thus a system of rules and penalties must be drawn to impose limits on aid and recruiting practices. It is ironic that the present statute, Rule Seven, was originally proposed by the University of Illinois.

After the Indiana scandal in 1960 the Athletic Directors and faculty representatives met and drew up the present rule which at the time was given complete and total support by all the universities, according to Ray.

Illinois Cast 1st

It was agreed by the officials that the first university found in violation of the rule would set the example — if the violation was serious, so would be the penalty. Illinois is the first to violate the rule.

Another guideline which is standard at nearly all Big 10 schools is a memorandum of agreement which the head coach and directors sign each year stating they are in compliance with the conference rules regarding aid and recruiting.

If either coaches or directors are found in violation of the rules, the memorandum is "self-activating" — in effect the men fire themselves.

Process Listed

Dean Ray outlined the process which rule violations follow at the investigative meetings:

After a violation is reported, the commissioner conducts an investigation with the results given to the athletic directors who serve as the first court. If, after examining the commissioners report the directors agree there has been a violation, penalties are imposed.

These penalties can be in the form of reprimands on the institution or the offending staff, limitations on recruiting, or scheduling or severing of relations with the offending institution.

It was at this stage, Ray said, that Illinois was presented with the alternative of firing its coaches or "showing cause" why the university should not be expelled from the conference.

Appeal Allowed

The offender can appeal the director's decision — Illinois did — to the faculty representatives, who in this case sustained the director's decision.

The final step is the faculty representative ruling on the appeal. The Illini's final appeal is Saturday morning in Chicago's Sheraton-Hilton Hotel.

In addition to his duties as a faculty representative, Dean Ray directs the University extension service, which includes such organizations as the Audio-Visual Center, WSUL, and Lakeside Lab. He also coordinates conferences held at the University.

Ray is a past president of the NCAA (1963-64), and is a member of the executive committee of the NCAA and the board of directors of the National University Extension Association.

SAINTS PICK CAGE STAR—NEW YORK (AP)—New Orleans made the last pick in the combined NFL-AFL player draft Wednesday and made it a surprise, tapping Providence All-America basketball star Jim Walker.

New Iowa Cheerleading Group Schedules Instructional Clinic

A new campus organization, the University Hawkeye Cheerleaders, has recently been formed under a new constitution and by-laws, and is completely separate from the Iowa Pep Club, according to head cheerleader Gil Williams, A2, Amarillo, Tex.

The composition of the cheerleading squad and the system of selecting cheerleaders are other major changes.

The squad will from now on be composed of four seniors, four juniors, and four sophomores. Each class will be made up of an equal number of men and women.

All persons interested in trying out for cheerleading will be required to attend an instructional and selection clinic on four consecutive evenings April 3-6 in the Field House.

At these clinics Williams, who is a national cheerleading instructor, and other cheerleaders, will teach applicants two yell which they will be required to perform for a panel of nine judges.

The panel of judges, made up of student and faculty representatives from many campus activities, will select the cheerleading squad April 9 in the Union Ballroom.

Cheerleaders will be selected on the basis of personality, enthusiasm, coordination, ability, and must have at least a 2.2 grade point average. Williams emphasized that it was not necessary to have past experience in high school cheering, nor a knowledge of gymnastics.

Tryouts are open to the public.

Applications are available in the Union Activities Center. Men may also pick up applications in room 309 Quad. All applications are due by 5 p.m. April 3 in the Activities Center.

Clay Rejects Traditional Role Of 'White Man's Champion'

By RICK GARR
Staff Writer
(Last in A Series)

The day after he won the heavy-weight championship, Cassius Clay announced to a stunned group of sportswriters that he was a member of the Black Muslims, a Negro anti-integration sect with a vague reputation for violence and hatred of whites. "I don't have to be what you want me to be," he said. "I want to be with my own kind. In the jungle, lions are with lions and tigers are with tigers. That's human nature, too. I don't want to go where I'm not wanted," said Clay.

In the Muslim tradition, Cassius announced that he had been given his new name of Muhammad Ali, rejecting the old slave name that had been given to him by descendants of former slaves.

Impressed By Cleanliness
Ali first learned of the Muslims when he was 17. He and brother Rudy were in Atlanta on a vacation, and they stopped into one of the meetings out of curiosity.

He was impressed by the cleanliness and sincerity of the people; they neither drank nor smoked. But he was not convinced of their radical beliefs. A Kentucky Baptist, Ali had to be persuaded.

The man chosen to convince the brash boxer was Malcolm X, a Muslim leader who later was excommunicated from the group and murdered while addressing a group of his followers.

Public Disclosure Delayed
During his training sessions for the title fight with badman Liston, Ali was formally initiated into the Muslims, but the public disclosure had to be delayed until the outcome of the fight was decided.

"The pressure didn't really start until I flew up to be with Malcolm a few weeks before the fight," said Ali. "And then he came to Miami and into the gym, and everybody was shook up. Even the fight was threatened."

Ali said that certain boxing officials in Miami hinted that if he publicly announced his Muslim connections the fight would be cancelled. So, he remained silent

All" he has completely removed himself from communication with whites. But on this point, Ali tends to disagree.

"I'm stressing just the works that the whites generally have been doing," he said. "They blow up all these little colored people in church, wash people down the street with water hoses. It's not the color that make you a devil, just the deeds that you do."

Ali said that several white people had participated in civil rights marches and died in demonstrations and under tractor wheels for Negroes, and for this reason he could not completely condemn all white people.

"I am an American. I was born here," he said. "We (the Muslims) respect whites for coming from nothin', I ain't no hate or no fight or no arguing. We just want freedom," said Ali.

As mentioned earlier, public misunderstanding of his Muslim connections is one factor in the loss of love between the fans and Ali. But this alone is not the only cause of his rejection.

Violates Tradition
His early brashness and cocksure confidence tainted many into coming to his bouts from the sheer desire to see his fat lip closed. And when this volatile tongue began speaking for an alien and relatively unknown group, the public clamor for his punishment increased.

But in the final analysis, a large part of his rejection must be laid to the traditional role that sports fans demand their heroes play. Ali violated this code.

As long as he was amusing, his bragging could be tolerated. He could be the knight in shining armor that would slay the Liston dragon for all the sports fans. But once he started to draw them back into the realities of life he became a spoiler of the daydream that sports is a twilight zone of storybook, true-to-form heroes.

In the language of the Black Muslims, Ali refused to put himself into the role of a "white man's champion."

Single Parents Form Self-Help Society

By FRANK MYERS
Staff Writer

When divorce, separation or death divides a family, both children and parents face many problems. An organization is being formed in Iowa City to help single parents solve some of these problems.

The first Iowa chapter of Parents Without Partners, Inc. a nationwide organization, met for the first time March 3. A second get-acquainted meeting is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. Friday in the Union Minnesota Room.

Since the organization's formation in 1957, local chapters have been formed throughout the country. Mutual self-help programs, social gatherings for both children and parents, and professional advisory groups are sponsored by local chapters to aid their members.

Single Parent is Eligible

All widowed, divorced, separated or unmarried parents are eligible for membership, according to Nancy D. Stocker, AI, Iowa City, one of the local group's organizers.

One of the most serious problems faced by both single parents and their children is isolation, said Mrs. Stocker.

"You say 'divorced,' and everyone turns and runs the other way," she said.

"When I was divorced my children found that there were limits set for them, too, by mothers of their playmates. It was almost as if we had the plague."

Children raised only by one parent often don't have enough contact with adults of the opposite sex, said Mrs. Stocker.

Main Purpose Cited

"A major purpose of this organization is to solve some of these problems by rebuilding a social network for ourselves and our children."

One monthly meeting of the group will be for adults, said Mrs. Stocker. Social functions, discussions of mutual problems and meetings with professional advisers will be held, she said.

Another monthly meeting will be held for the children. Supervised recreational and handicraft programs are planned for them, said Mrs. Stocker.

Under a proposed plan, one day will be set aside occasionally for all the men of the group to work with the children.

Masculine Contact Needed

"If the fathers do not have cus-tomody of their children or are dead, the children spend most of their time with their mother. This plan would provide some of the masculine contact the children need," said Mrs. Stocker.

"Eventually we will have an advisory committee of local professional people," she said.

"Doctors, lawyers, financial advisers, ministers and social workers will be contacted and asked to cooperate. These will be people organization members can contact when problems arise they cannot solve without professional advice."

Mrs. Stocker said that anyone wishing information about the group can contact her at 338-1968 at any time.

STANDING BESIDE A facsimile of the Gutenberg Bible is Charles Millham, publisher of the Gutenberg Press, Guttenberg, Ia. Millham will bring the Bible to the University Thursday for a Sigma Delta Chi dinner-program in the Union Sun Porch. Sigma Delta Chi is the professional journalism fraternity for men.

Sigma Delta Chi To Have Dinner

Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism society, will hold a dinner meeting and program at 5:30 p.m. Thursday in the Union Sun Porch.

Charles Millham, publisher of the Gutenberg Press, Guttenberg, will be guest speaker. His topic will be "Herr Gutenberg Started Something."

Featured in the program will be a facsimile of the Gutenberg Bible. The volume that Millham will bring is part of a two-volume set valued at $5,000. It was printed in Leipzig, Germany, in 1913 for a Gutenberg recognition celebration and was damaged by bombing during World War II.

Millham bought the set from the Gutenberg Museum in Mainz, Germany in 1956. In his presentation, Millham will talk about Gutenberg's contribution to the spread of knowledge and will answer questions about the Bible.

The cafeteria style dinner will begin at 5:30. The program will start at 6:30 and will be followed by a business meeting and initiation ceremonies for pledges.

The program is open to students and faculty interested in journalism.

DOCUMENTARY CANCELLED

SIMSBURY, Conn. — Station WTIC-TV in Hartford has drawn a protest from the American Independent Movement over the station's decision to cancel an advertised Tuesday night telecast of a CBS documentary entitled "Saigon."

English Prof Wins Grant

Warner J. Barnes, assistant professor of English and director of the Center for Textual Studies at the University, has been awarded a National Humanities endowment for the 1967-68 academic year.

He will do research work at Yale University, the University of Texas, Oxford University and London's British Museum for a preliminary bibliography on James Fenimore Cooper, a 19th century American author.

Grants also have been awarded to 100 other U.S. scholars who have received Ph.D. degrees during the last five years.

SCHOOLS STILL AHEAD

MEXICO CITY — The National Patrimony Ministry found in a survey that Mexico has 26,000 schools and 200,000 bars.

UI Professor To Attend Joyce Seminar

David Hayman, professor of English, will travel to Dublin, Ireland, in June to participate in the First International Joyce Seminar.

James Joyce was an early 20th century Irish poet and novelist probably best known for his highly acclaimed novel, "Ulysses."

The seminar will bring together scholars on Joyce from various parts of the world "in an attempt to get the Joyce scholars into the context of local color," Hayman said. He said that he might present a paper before the group.

Bloom's Day Celebrated

The seminar will be held June 15 and 16. June 16 is known in Dublin as Bloom's Day, named after Leopold Bloom, the hero in "Ulysses" who visited Dublin on that day.

In the spring of 1959 Hayman went to Dublin for six months on a Guggenheim Fellowship. At that time he edited an edition of the earliest draft versions of the chapters of Joyce's "Finnegan's Wake," which Hayman described as a "complicated" "novel in puns," and "probably the most revolutionary book of the century."

He also began work on his "The Wake as Process," a yet-to-be-completed study of the manuscript roots of "Finnegan's Wake."

Teaching Job Awaits

Following the seminar, Hayman will return to the United States to teach summer school at Columbia University, New York City.

Hayman has been doing work on Joyce for many years. He has had one critical work published, "Joyce et Mallarme," a study of Joyce's relationship to Stephane Mallarme, a 19th century poet considered the father of symbolism.

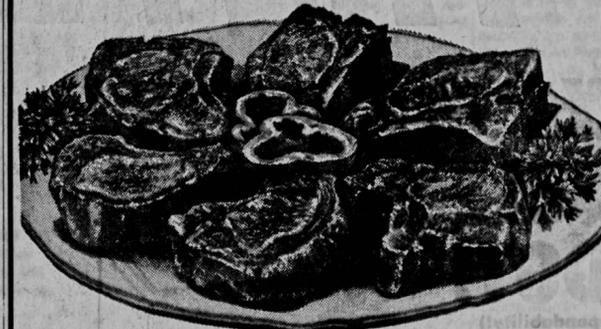

This is Hayman's second year at the University. Prior to coming here, he taught for 10 years at the University of Texas, Austin. He did his undergraduate work at New York University and his graduate work at the Sorbonne in Paris.

UAW Asks Wildcat Rule

WASHINGTON — The United Auto Workers Union asked the Supreme Court Wednesday to rule unions have the right to fine wildcat strikers and workers who stay on the job after a strike has been called.

The argument was on a National Labor Relations Board appeal from a ruling by the U.S. Circuit Court in Chicago that the Taft-Hartley Law bars unions from fining members who cross picket lines.

The case, to be decided later in the term, may have important ramifications on rights of non-union workers, unionists who disagree with actions taken by their leaders and power of unions to maintain discipline in their ranks.

TV Programs Aid Teachers With Science

What things will a magnet attract? How does a compass work? How do you grow bacteria? These and similar questions are being answered by the College of Education in a series of television programs designed to help teachers instruct kindergarten children.

The series is called "The Iowa Television Science Education Program" and will consist of 30 15-minute broadcasts a year. Eventually the series will include programs for kindergarten through sixth grade.

The kindergarten programs are filmed in the television studio of the Old Armory Wednesdays and Fridays and then tried in the University School.

Evaluation Mentioned
Next year, after the programs have been evaluated, the tapes and a teacher's guide will be ready for use in Iowa schools. The programs will be carried on commercial stations, and school districts will purchase time from these stations.

After the kindergarten programs are completed, work will be continued on science programs for the other elementary grades, said Michael N. Mikulak, assistant to the director in instructional services.

Series' Beginning Explained
The series was begun because of a need for more educational material in science, especially on the kindergarten level, Mikulak said.

The Program Development Committee, a subcommittee of the Iowa Joint Educational Television Committee, had a series of meetings with county superintendents and teachers in eastern Iowa, then asked the College of Education to develop science television programs as an aid to elementary teachers.

T. R. Porter, head of science education, and Louise Beltrano, professor in elementary education, are in charge of developing the series.

Lasansky To Exhibit

Thirty life-size drawings providing a commentary on the Nazi era by Mauricio Lasansky, University professor of art, will be on exhibition in the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York City March 22 - April 30.

"The Nazi Drawings" was called "eloquent," "monumental" and "overpowering" by art critics following its initial showing at the Philadelphia Museum of Art Jan. 17 - Feb. 19.

The exhibition will be shown in the Midwest for the first time at the Des Moines Art Center June 23 - July 16. Arrangements for a tour of museums in the West and Southwest for the Lasansky works are being made by the center after the Des Moines show.

In preparation from 1961-1966, the drawings were made with ordinary pencils, toned in red and brown. Explaining their use, Prof. Lasansky said, "I wanted them to be done with a tool used by everyone, everywhere, from the cradle to the grave."

Dedicated to Mr. and Mrs. Derald Ruttenberg of New York City, the exhibition was initiated by Kneeland McNulty, curator at the Philadelphia Museum of Art, who saw the works in Lasansky's University studio.

The exhibition in New York City is jointly sponsored by the Whitney Museum and the University. Prof. and Mrs. Lasansky will be honored at a reception during a preview of the exhibition Tuesday for members of the museum and invited guests.

Iowa Citizens Pledge Eyes

One of life's most precious possessions — eyesight — may be saved for many people one day through the generosity of 15,307 Iowans who have signed donor cards pledging their eyes to the Iowa Lions Eye Bank at University Hospitals to be used for corneal transplants for the sightless.

March is Eye Bank Month and the Iowa Eye Bank will join other eye banks across the nation during the month in an effort to sign new donors.

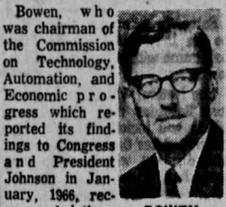

Iowans wishing to sign donor pledge cards can write to the Eye Bank at University Hospitals or contact a member of a local Lions Club. The Lions Clubs of Iowa, through various community projects, have provided financial support for the Eye Bank at the University Hospitals since 1955.

A total of 368 persons have now received corneal transplants from eyes secured through the Iowa Eye Bank. The cornea is the transparent "window" over the pupil of the eye. Certain diseases cause this window to become clouded. In a corneal transplant operation, the cornea is removed from the donor's eye after death and is used to replace the defective one in the eye of a patient.

Technology Unit Endorses

WASHINGTON, D.C. — University Pres. Howard R. Bowen, in testimony at a Senate intergovernmental relations subcommittee hearing this morning, gave his "unqualified endorsement" to a proposed Select Com-

BOWEN
Bowen, who was chairman of the Commission on Technology, Automation, and Economic Progress which reported its findings to Congress and President Johnson in January, 1966, recommended three tasks for the proposed committee. The recommendations, based on proposals already made by the Technology Commission, were:

● A system of national accounting, which would take measurements in terms of human welfare, such as the Gross National Product measures economic factors.

● The use of "systems analysis" to study human and environmental problems, just as systems analysis is used in weapons and space technology.

● A continuing study group to keep abreast of social trends and to suggest policy alternatives to deal with them.

Bowen said that widespread application of technology has resulted in pressure on resources and open spaces, urban congestion and blight, pollution of air and water, health hazards, vast increases in social overhead costs, and a variety of problems relating to human adjustment and welfare.

But, he said, technology is also the means to their solution. "We urgently need to mobilize our technical resources — that is, our knowledge — toward improving the environment and quality of human life." He said the concept of technology should be broadened to include the application of all knowledge including that derived from the social sciences and even the humanities and fine arts.

He pointed out the need to establish priorities in the assault on human problems because of the lack of resources to solve all the problems at once.

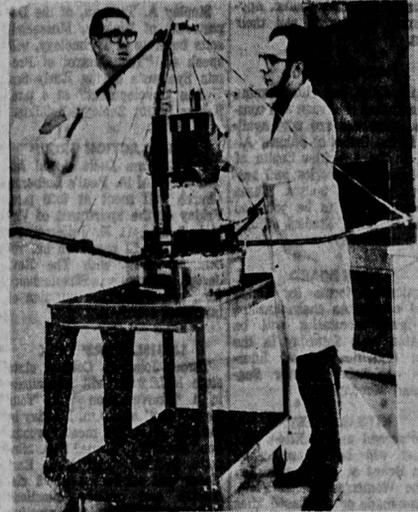

"Our obligation at this time is to find useful ways of taking a broad and long-range view of the needs of American society, to identify the things to be done, to establish priorities, to organize the needed research and development, to encourage public discussion, and eventually to reach sound political decisions."

He told the senators that "our real weakness is at the political or decision-making level, not at the technical level. This weakness relates more largely to our values and our will than to our techniques."

In pointing out the inadequacy of GNP in reflecting social welfare gains and losses, he urged finding "ways of measuring, or at least estimating, our performance and our trends in such dimensions as adequacy of housing, health, and education; the extent and costs of air and water pollution, of destruction of natural beauty, and of crime and delinquency; progress in raising the status of Negroes; etc."

In recommending the use of systems analysis for human and environmental problems, he suggested, as an example, that "transportation should be approached — not separately with reference to airplanes, railroads, ships, pipelines, and highways — but with reference to the movement of goods and people as a whole."

Bowen said, in recommending the continuing study group, that "the commission felt that our fragmented decision-making processes are inadequate to the tasks ahead, and that a new kind of continuing agency charged with looking broadly at the direction and development of our society would be in the national interest."

CHECKING ANTENNA SYSTEM of a University rocket are Stanley Shawhan, resident associate of physics, and John Miller, design engineer. The rocket is one of two to be launched by NASA for study of naturally occurring radio noise in the upper ionosphere.

'Satellite Ears' Listen To Van Allen Sounds

University scientists equipped with "satellite ears" are monitoring sounds emanating from the Van Allen radiation belts surrounding our earth.

These sounds have been under study during recent years while University-built "Injun" satellites circled the globe to gather information about the belts of cosmic radiation trapped by the earth's magnetic field. The belts were discovered in 1958 by University physicist James Van Allen.

Now, two University-built rocket payloads are scheduled to soar nearly 650 miles, into the farthest reaches of the earth's atmosphere where some of the radiation is located, to listen for certain of these noises called "whistlers."

The rockets will be launched in early April and in May at National Aeronautics and Space Administration launching sites at Wallops Island, Va., and Fort Churchill, Canada.

Hopefully, some of the sounds the rockets pick up will confirm theoretical predictions made by Donald Gurnett, assistant professor of physics and project director, and Dr. Stanley Shawhan, project scientist.

Hopes For Verification
Gurnett hopes to verify that a never-before-heard "oxygen whistler" exists. Shawhan will test his hypothesis that negative ions in the atmosphere can be detected by studying certain radio noises.

Whistlers are believed to be radio waves created by flashes of lightning near the earth. These waves spawned by thunderstorms travel upward to the earth's outermost atmospheric layer, the ionosphere, and then follow in the ionosphere the earth's magnetic lines of force.

While traveling along these magnetic lines, higher frequency parts of a wave become separated, or dispersed, from the lower frequency parts. This process is comparable to what happens to a pack of runners during the course of a foot race. Thus, radio receivers in a satellite or a high-flying rocket may pick up some components of a wave first so that the wave sounds like a whistle beginning at a high frequency and then dropping to a lower one — hence the term "whistler."

Because lightning, the whistler's source, broadcasts at a variety of frequencies — as do commercial radio stations — scientists have found it convenient to identify whistlers by frequency in the same way we identify radio stations. Scientists also know that waves of different frequencies are affected differently by their passage through the ionosphere.

Whistler Identified
In 1965, Gurnett identified, from Injun III satellite data, what he called a "proton whistler," so named because it was at the frequency at which protons (hydrogen nuclei) in the atmosphere could cause the wave to be dispersed and thus to whistle.

On the basis of his explanation of the proton whistler, Gurnett also predicted the existence of two others at lower frequencies. These, he theorized, would be explained by the presence of helium and oxygen in the ionosphere.

In 1966, Canadian government scientists heard one of these, the helium whistler, with their Alouette II satellite receivers. Five University receivers to go up with the rockets this spring are designed to detect the oxygen whistler.

The difficulty in detecting these low-frequency whistlers at all arises from the problems of building receivers capable of both picking up the low frequencies and withstanding the rigors of space flight.

Writer's 'Responsibility' Hit

By BARB MYATT
Staff Writer

The novelist has no responsibility to society, according to Saul Bellow, noted American author.

Speaking at a press conference Wednesday, the author of the prize-winning novels "Humboldt Spring" and "The Adventures of Augie March," said that he did not like to talk of the responsibility of the writer, and that the writer should be under no obligation to do anything other than what he wants to do.

"The writer has inherited the duties of the Christian ministry — the problems of the pulpit," Bellow said, referring to the responsibility society has placed on writers.

Bellow differentiated between the realistic and factual writer, and said that although the realistic tradition has dominated throughout our century, people today seem to want facts.

Refuses To Talk

A congenial, smiling, and relaxed man, Bellow emphatically refused to talk about his own works and personal writing skill.

Bellow was asked how his Jewish background affected his writing. Although reluctant to comment, he said that an artist "applies his brush in his own way to the work. You represent what you are and make no excuses for it."

Bellow, the first author to ever win the National Book Award twice, and also the winner of a Guggenheim Fellowship, and 1965 Prix International de Littérature, holds little respect for awards in literature. He attributes this feeling to his experience while serving on selection committees for various awards.

Not Overwhelmed

When questioned about awards he has received, Bellow said, "I accepted them, but I wasn't overwhelmed."

A past instructor of creative writing, Bellow declined to comment on the University's Writers Workshop due to his lack of knowledge of the local department.

In his own experience, he said he found teaching creative writing very unsatisfactory. "A writer is a certain kind of human being. I don't think one can teach another to be that special person."

He added that students get a certain comfort in being called a prospective writer, and a creative writing department is a way to legitimize the student's claim to being a writer.

Born in Lachine, Quebec, in 1915, Bellow grew up in Chicago, earned a B.A. from Northwestern University and did graduate work at the University of Wisconsin.

Besides writing several books, he has written a Broadway play, and contributed fiction to magazines and literary quarterlies.

Bellow was taught at Bard College, Princeton University, the University of Minnesota and the University of Chicago.

Forell Plans Trip To Israel

George W. Forell, director of the School of Religion, will fly to Israel this week to attend a meeting of the Lutheran World Federation Committee on the Church and the Jewish People Saturday through Thursday.

The committee will examine the possibility of establishing an institute for Biblical and ecumenical studies in Israel, and discuss the extent of Lutheran participation in such a project. Conferences will be held at Hebrew University in Jerusalem, the Ministry on Religious Affairs, and the Swedish Theological Institute.

Forell is scheduled to speak at the Anglican Church in Nazareth on Palm Sunday, March 19.

The committee will report to a meeting on March 28 of the Lutheran World Federation in Geneva, Switzerland, which Forell will also attend. He is one of two American members of this 12-man committee, which helped prepare the Logumkloster report on the church and Jewish people, denouncing anti-Semitism as "an estrangement of man from his fellow-men . . . 'Christian' anti-Semitism is spiritual suicide," it said.

Spring Festival Is In The Making

By BARBARA WALKER
Staff Writer

Spring fever victims will get an excuse to really enjoy spring with the coming of the Spring Festival May 11-13.

Plans are underway for a lively three days of merry-making with special quasi-orientation activities for students who will be coming here next year. Events will include a concert by the We Five singing group, a variety show, a water show and a parade.

The festival board has announced a tentative schedule. A parade will be followed by a street dance Thursday night. The parade will be expanded this year by the inclusion of floats with moving parts to advertise the booths of various groups in "Carni," the carnival.

Friday afternoon there will be a water show on the Iowa River with a wide selection of events: water-skiing, a canoe race, a band, intramural finals, a fashion show, sky-diving, and clowns.

Variety Show Set

Kaleido, the all-campus variety show will be Friday night. The show will be emceed and directed by Bruce French, A4, Iowa City, recently seen in "Oh What a Lovely War."

On Saturday morning, a University official will welcome the prospective students and their parents. Afterwards, an open house will be held in dormitories, in sororities, in fraternities and in off-campus housing.

Saturday afternoon there will be an intra-squad varsity football game with a barbecue to follow it.

The festival will come to a climax Saturday night with Carni, which will include the We Five concert. After the concert, booths and displays will be open and a festival queen will be chosen.

Chairman Named

General chairman is Michael Wolfe, B3, Marshalltown, and his executive cabinet consists of Drew Robinson, A3, Maquoketa, treasurer; Maureen O'Bryon, A2, Marshalltown, secretary; Ann McIlrath, A2, Park Ridge, Ill., and Steve Sinn, B4, Clarinda, Carni co-chairman; Ardes Beisler, A3, Arlington Heights, Ill., general publicity; Ann Wayner, A3, Iowa City, promotion; Kathy Corcoran, A2, Iowa City, press-publicity; Jim Harding, B4, Chariton, Water Show; Doug Jones, A2, Moline, Ill., special events; and Ann Breucmier, A2, Waterloo, Kaleido chairman.

1ST BID WAS CHEAPER—

OSLO (AP) — Delegate Soeren Jaabaek 98 years ago told the Norwegian Storting parliament that electric voting could be arranged by using a battery and copper wire, and the cost would be about 1,500 kroner ($215). His proposal was rejected as too expensive. This week on a hand vote the Storting approved installation of an electric voting machine at a cost of 350,000 kroner ($50,000).

Sailing Club Opposes State Horsepower Bill

By BILL EDWARDS
Staff Writer

A bill now before the State Legislature to allow high-powered boats on Lake Macbride is being opposed strongly by the University Sailing Club.

The bill would raise maximum horsepower for boats on three major Iowa lakes from six to sixty-five. The lakes affected are 950-acre Lake Macbride, north of Iowa City, 350-acre Greenvalley Lake near Creston, and 640-acre Rock Creek Lake near Kellogg.

According to Michael T. Touch, A3, Springfield, Ill., president of the Sailing Club, his organization is opposed to the horsepower increase because of the adverse effects of larger wakes on the sailboats. He added that the increased oil slicks created by the bigger motors will stain the fiberglass hulls of his club's boats.

Hopes Might Be Killed

Touch said the increase in horsepower would also kill the club's hopes of developing the area around their clubhouse on Lake Macbride. The club eventually hopes to convince the University of the need for a swimming area near the club house. The land on which the swimming area would be built is part of a 500-acre tract on the lake which is owned by the University.

Opposition to the bill is also being voiced by residents of the Lake Macbride and Iowa City areas, according to Touch. He said the nearness of the Coralville Reservoir, which has no horsepower limitation, would make it especially unnecessary for the present bill to include Lake Macbride.

Erosion Serious

Touch said the lake had a serious shoreline erosion problem, which would be worsened by the wakes of the big motors. He added that the lake was fished heavily and the big motors would harm fishing by stirring up the bottom and generally causing discomfort to the fishermen in their small boats.

Motors up to six horsepower are now allowed on Lake Macbride.

Touch said, "These small motors do not affect the sailboats but we very much want to see the bill for bigger motors killed before it comes to a vote. If it is not possible to prevent the bill's passage then at least we would like to see Lake Macbride excluded from the bill."

Institute To Hear U.S. Labor Aide

WALTER DAVIS
Dept. Of Education

STANLEY RUTTENBERG
Manpower Administrator

Stanley H. Ruttenberg, assistant secretary of labor for manpower in the U.S. Department of Labor, will give the opening address at a unique Institute on Testing which begins Sunday at the University Center for Labor and Management.

The institute is co-sponsored by the AFL-CIO, in cooperation with the Iowa Department of Public Instruction.

Ruttenberg will discuss "Manpower Implications of Testing Programs" at a dinner to be attended by some 25 labor union staff members here for the week-long institute, as well as several members of the administration, including Pres. Howard R. Bowen, Vice Pres. Willard L. Boyd, and Dean B. L. Barnes of the College of Business Administration.

On Monday Ruttenberg will attend informal meetings of the Center staff and College faculty. At 1:30 p.m. he will participate in a symposium for business administration students.

Bertram Gottlieb, coordinator of the institute, said its purpose is to teach union representatives about the technical and collective bargaining aspects of the aptitude and personality tests which are now customary in industry. The institute is the first of its kind in the country.

Sample tests will be used to explain the test's construction and application, how cut-off scores are established, and how job traits are identified. The union's right to obtain test data and the arbitration of test grievances will also be discussed by the institute's seven-member staff.

Walter G. Davis, director of education for AFL-CIO, will speak at Friday's closing luncheon.

Ruttenberg is a native of St. Paul, Minn. He received a B.S. degree from the University of Pittsburgh in 1937, and the next year became assistant to the director of Hull House. Soon after, he joined the CIO and served as director of its research and education department from 1948 to 1955.

Until 1962 he was research director for the AFL-CIO, when he became special assistant to the U.S. secretary of labor in Washington. In 1965 he was named manpower administrator in the Department of Labor, and retained that position when he became assistant secretary of labor for manpower in 1966.

Davis is a graduate of Columbia University who has done graduate work at Columbia's School of International Relations and Brooklyn Law School. He began as a union shop steward in 1946, and by 1958 had become education and research director of the AFL-CIO. From 1961 to 65 he was assistant director of the union organization's civil rights department, and last year became director of the AFL-CIO Department of Education.

He served a year as deputy executive director of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, and was also a consultant to the President's Commission on the Status of Women.

Gottlieb, a visiting professor this year at the Center for Labor and Management, is on leave as industrial engineer for the AFL-CIO in Washington. The institute is co-sponsored by the AFL-CIO, in cooperation with the Iowa Department of Public Instruction.

Other members of the institute's staff are George Hagglund, lecturer at the University of Wisconsin School for Workers; El-Dean Kohrs, psychologist and director of the Passaic (N.J.) Children's Bureau; John Metzler, associate professor and associate chairman of the Newark (N.J.) College of Engineering's industrial relations department; and Duane Thompson, the Center's director of management programs.

Cadets Plan Arsenal Tour

Forty-five sophomore Army ROTC cadets will tour Rock Island Army Arsenal Friday.

The Arsenal, which began its military career as a Civil War prison, is situated on an island in the Mississippi River between Moline, Ill., and Davenport.

The cadets will see relics of Rock Island's prison period and tour the John Browning Museum, a museum of military weapons, named after the famous weapons designer.

Also the cadets will see an operating river lock and tour the offices of the Rock Island Engineer District and the facilities of the Rock Island Arsenal.

The field trip is intended both to augment the sophomore military history course and to encourage an understanding of military life by observing a modern Army post operation.

Rock Island Arsenal, commanded by Col. H.A. Snyder, houses the headquarters of the Army Weapons Command and of the Rock Island Engineer District, Army Corps of Engineers.

Help Sought For VISTA

Jeff Krasnow, a VISTA volunteer assigned to the Community Action Program in Des Moines, will be appearing on campus Tuesday to speak to anyone interested in VISTA.

Krasnow is primarily interested in persons for a special summer program which he will head in the Southeast Bottoms section of Des Moines.

The summer program, which will operate during the summer months, has a great need for volunteers to work in many areas, including recreation, tutoring, group work, job counseling and placement, community organization, neighborhood planning and voter registration. These and other areas of work are open to regular VISTA volunteers.

Krasnow will present a documentary film on VISTA entitled "A Year Towards Tomorrow" at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Union Indiana Room.

VISTA is known as the domestic Peace Corps and volunteers give one year of their lives and work with the underprivileged to help these people be able to help themselves.

All persons interested in VISTA or in the special summer program for which Krasnow will be accepting applications should make an appointment through the Business and Industrial Placement Office for an interview.

Cadets Plan Tour Of Aircraft Plant

Fifteen University Air Force ROTC cadets will fly to St. Louis, Mo., today for a tour of the McDonnell Aircraft Company facilities.

Accompanied by Maj. Norris W. Overton, associate professor of aerospace studies, the cadets will view production facilities for the F4C "Phantom" and the "Gemini" capsules. They will inspect a mockup of the capsules used in the Gemini program.

Cadets making the tour will be: Richard P. Agnew, B3, San Bernardino, Calif.; Guy O. Bilek, A3, Brookfield, Ill.; John E. Casper, A3, Winterset; David A. Chalupsky, A2, Cedar Rapids; John P. ## Mountaineers To See Movie On South Seas

"Windjammer to Australia" is the title of the lecture to be given by Art Erickson in the Iowa Mountaineers Film-Lecture series Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in Macbride Auditorium.

A resident of Birmingham, Mich., Erickson recently completed a three-year trip around the world, during which he made the motion picture he will show. He traveled in a sailing ship named the Yankee, across the Pacific. He made pictures of many islands, including Pitcairn Island, where descendants of the Bounty mutiny have lived since 1790; Tahiti and other Society Islands; Cook Islands, and the Solomons.

Also shown in the film, will be the Galapagos Islands, where arctic wildlife forms are found on the equator.

The film also includes Erickson's 14,000-mile journey by Land Rover vehicles along the eastern coast of Australia and into barren central Australia.

Il Greco

This is Antonioni's story of a man's inability to forget. Although its style is closer to neo-realism, the film also foreshadows Antonioni's celebrated trilogy. "One of his most important films because . . . its problems and theme are central to his artistic and human personality."

Tickets available at the door and at the Activities Center for 50c.

Dorm Residents To Choose Queen

Hillcrest residents will choose a queen Friday to represent the dormitory.

Candidates for the title are Pamela R. Rodman, A1, Chicago; Devon D. Williams, A1, Iowa City; Susan J. McCreedy, A2, Fairfield; Kristine F. Sahl, A2, Ida Grove; and Jeanne M. Marx, A1, Sioux City.

The queen will be crowned at the Playboy Party that will be held from 9 to 12:30 Saturday night at the dormitory.

Decorations for the party are designed after those of the Playboy Club in Chicago and Herald's Club in Reno. The Friars will provide music. The party is open only to members of Hillcrest Dormitory and their dates.

Museum Director To Give Art Talk

"The Artist in Today's Society" will be the topic of Lloyd Goodrich, director of the Whitney Museum of American Art, New York City, when he speaks at 8 p.m. Friday in the Art Auditorium.

The lecture will be open to the public. Tickets are not required.

A native of New Jersey, Goodrich has been associated with the Whitney Museum of American Art since 1930, having been its director since 1958. He has written extensively on American art and artists, his most recent book being "Three Centuries of American Art," based on the opening exhibition of the new building now housing the Whitney Museum and scheduled to be published shortly.

In 1942 Goodrich initiated the American Art Research Council, of which he is director. He is a member of the editorial boards of Art in America and the Art Bulletin, and a member of the Council Scientific International, the Enciclopedia dell'Arte, and the board of directors of the Edward MacDowell Association.

He is chairman of the Committee on Government and Art, which he was instrumental in forming in 1948, and edited the committee's report submitted to President Eisenhower in 1954. He is also co-chairman of the Joint Artists-Museums Committee and edited its report in 1958.

Traffic, Lighting Discussed At University-City Meeting

The Iowa City Council and University officials discussed the closing of Newton Road, the pedestrian crossings around the Pentacrest, street lighting on Riverside Drive and received a report on Iowa City's bus system at an informal meeting Tuesday.

Merritt C. Ludwig, director of planning and development for the University, presented plans for development of the campus west of the Iowa River. Construction of a basic science building is expected to begin next spring across the east end of Newton Road. Newton Road runs between the University and Veterans Administration Hospitals.

Ludwig said that traffic will be routed around the new building, but that the road would become merely a service route. Mayor William C. Hubbard mentioned the necessity of a Melrose Avenue bridge across the Iowa River. Hubbard said that the construction of such a bridge might be completed by 1970 and Melrose Avenue would be made a six-lane thoroughfare. Lawrence K. Sieck, traffic consultant for the University and Iowa City, reported the results of an analysis of pedestrian and vehicular traffic patterns at the intersections of Capitol and Jefferson Streets, Madison and Jefferson Streets, and Madison and Washington Streets. Sieck recommended placing signs over the through-streets approaching the intersections telling motorists to yield to pedestrians. City and University officials, however, were concerned that such signs would not look good. Placing signs on islands in the middle of the streets was also mentioned. The two alternatives will be taken under consideration. Standardization of poles for proposed street lighting on South Riverside Drive was also discussed. At the same time the Riverside Drive lights are installed, new lighting will be placed on Dubuque Street from Iowa Avenue to Interstate 80 and on Linn, Clinton and Capitol Streets between Church and Jefferson Streets. Hubbard said that he anticipates this initial lighting project will be finished sometime this summer. Frank R. Smiley, city manager, presented a preliminary report by W. C. Gilman and Co. on the Iowa City bus system. The report concluded that the subsidies by the city and the University are "about right for the present routes."

The final report, Smiley said, should be ready in 30 to 40 days. The city and University plan to use the final report for determining new routes and further subsidies.

Police Judge Helps Teens

Are you "in" with the "out" crowd?
This is the title of a booklet Police Court Judge Marion Neely will give to young people beginning today when they appear in his court. The booklet, especially written for teenagers, is an attempt to point out the seriousness of a crime, Neely said. "It is hoped this information will make young people more aware of what happens if they are convicted of a felony or even a simple misdemeanor," Neely said. "A lot of people don't really know what effect a criminal record can have on a person's life." Neely said the Iowa State Bar Association, as part of a statewide campaign, furnished 1,000 copies to be used in his court. "Everyone under 18 years of age and young University students will receive the booklet," he said. An example of the questions and answers provided in the booklet is: Q. Must a store manager or employee wait for a police officer to arrive if he has probable cause for believing a certain person is shoplifting? A. No, a merchant or his employee may take the person into custody to await the police officers. Neely said additional copies would be available at the Iowa City Police Department and would be distributed by local service clubs.

An 18-year-old girl was given Wednesday in Johnson County District Court a suspended 7-year sentence in the Iowa Women's reformatory, Rockwell City. Cheryl Carey, no known address, was sentenced to the women's reformatory on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. District Court Judge Clair Hamilton suspended the sentence. In another case, Melvin J. Schreiber, no known address pleaded guilty to larceny in the nighttime. He was fined $150 and sentenced to 6 months in county jail. Hamilton placed him on an outside work program to pay the fine and court costs.

Jewish Role To Be Topic

Elieser Schweid, lecturer in Jewish philosophy at the Hebrew University, Jerusalem, will speak Friday evening at Hillel Foundation, 122 E. Market St.

This marks the beginning of his month's speaking tour of mid-western and southern universities.

He will speak again at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at the synagogue at 602 E. Washington St.

The topics for the Friday evening discussion will include "The Impact of the War of Independence," "Moral Crisis in Israeli Society," "The Conflict of Generations: Fathers and Sons," and "S.Y. Agnon, 1966 Nobel Prize Winner, as a Religious Novelist and the Concept of Galut in Transformation."

The B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation, in conjunction with the United Jewish Appeal, conducts a cultural and educational program at American and Canadian colleges and universities. They are concerned with the involvement of Jewish youth in problems facing the world Jewry, and a broad understanding of Israel's role in the creative survival of the Jewish people.

Local Businessmen Baffled By Huge Shoplifting Losses

By PAUL BEAVER
Staff Writer

"A local clothing store manager told me he lost $8,000 in merchandise last year to shoplifters," Iowa City detective Sgt. Donald Strand said recently.

If other Iowa City stores are being hit similarly, Strand said, it means a yearly loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

He reported that the clothing store manager told him what he had been doing to prevent shoplifting and added, "frankly, I don't see what more he can possibly do."

Iowa City businessmen are worried about their losses, but, like the weather, there seems to be very little they can do about it.

"If you come in here with the intention of taking a bottle of pills you could probably do it," a druggist noted. "We're poor detectives."

Managers Agree

Store managers agreed that alertness by their employees was the chief means of deterring shoplifting. They work to prevent it rather than to catch customers shoplifting. A men's clothing store manager suggested that employees "keep their eyes on the store even while waiting on someone else." Unconsciously, as he said, the manager moved to face the front of his store.

It is also good to keep more than one employee on the floor at the same time and to put the smaller, more easily stolen items higher on the shelves, he advised.

Much of the shoplifting can be prevented, one manager said, by letting customers know they're being observed.

Publicity Shunned

"We have a problem and one of the ways we combat it is not to publicize it," the manager of a drugstore near campus said as he declined to comment further.

Another manager conceded, "I hesitate to say something about it because I hate to publicize the problem, but it needs to be solved."

Most of the managers asked not to have their stores identified so that they would not be marked a "pushover" by shoplifters.

Managers were not sure how much of their weekly losses were due to shoplifting.

"All we know is that there's a lot of it," managers agree. Weekly estimates by the managers ranged from $30 to "somewhere in the neighborhood of $100."

Strand said that from his investigations an estimate of a $100

a week loss in some stores "was not inaccurate."

Factors Hike Losses

A downtown department store manager said that inventory errors, breakage and employee pilferage were factors that could inflate losses. A few managers attribute a large percentage of their losses to their employees. Consequently, it is difficult for managers to know how much they are losing to shoplifters.

Generally, suspected shoplifters are arrested for stealing less than $20 in merchandise. It is the people they don't catch who are taking merchandise worth much more, Strand said. Either the arresting officer or the store manager can file a charge of petty larceny if the stolen merchandise is worth less than $20. If worth more than $20 it is grand larceny, a felony.

Managers said that it was the busy times of the year when the stores were most crowded that they had their greatest losses. The men's store manager said that Christmas, back-to-school time and sales were his worst.

"It is hard to keep track of everyone when you're so busy," he said.

Spring Decreases Problem

Most thought that spring was not as much of a problem as other times because the buying season was more spread out.

The managers agreed that the items that were prime targets for shoplifters were the smaller, inexpensive ones, such as cosmetics, gifts and socks that could be stuffed easily in a pocket or under a coat. However, Strand emphasized that "they will walk off with anything they can pick up."

Shoplifters do not realize the value of the individual item, one local manager asserted.

"One five-dollar shirt is a small loss to them," he said, "but what people don't realize is that thinking is multiplied by 50 or so."

Often shoplifters will take things they do not need, most of the managers said. Strand said most chronic shoplifters thought it was a game. Sometimes a youngster's club will require him to steal from a store before accepting him as a member.

Resident Known

Strand said he and the store owners knew of certain Iowa City residents who were frequent shoplifters and who would be watched carefully whenever they went into stores.

Managers preferred to deal with each case individually. All said they were lenient to children, but did not hesitate to prosecute adults.

Again the store managers con-
