

Bowen Loosens Dorm Rules

By CHARLES NORTON
Staff Writer

Pres. Howard R. Bowen approved Tuesday several changes in dormitory rules, including one allowing women to stay in dormitories during vacations and another allowing upperclassmen to cancel their contracts without having to pay the full contract fee.

The changes were recommended by the Student-Faculty Housing Committee, which was appointed by the president to study long-range housing development at the University.

Bowen told the committee that the actions were to be considered interim changes pending further study and that they might be subject to further changes.

The change allowing women to stay in the residence halls during vacations will be in effect for the 1967 Easter recess, which begins at noon Saturday. Former policy has been to close the women's residence halls during vacations because of the expense of maintaining and supervising the halls while few residents were staying in them.

'Special Flexibility' Granted

Although the committee made no recommendation concerning cancelling contracts during the academic year. Bowen told the committee that the University could grant "special flexibility" to upperclassmen and graduates.

The "special flexibility" means that although an upperclassman would be held to his basic contract if he cancelled it during the year, his account would be credited with the amount the dormitory system would save in services after he left. This would amount to a savings of $107 if an upperclassman broke his contract after the first semester.

Under the present rule, the student has to pay the full amount of his contract if he breaks it for reasons other than marriage, dropping registration, medical reasons or other extreme cases.

Bowen turned down a recommendation that the deadline for cancelling dormitory contracts be moved from June 1 to Aug. 1 in the first semester and to Dec. 1 for contracts beginning in the second semester. He said that to permit cancellations as late as Aug. 1 would have the effect of denying accommodations to some students who want them.

Applications Made Early

"Most applications for dormitory spaces are made in the spring because students and their parents wish to be assured early that rooms will be available," he said.

Bowen withheld action on a recommendation that social restrictions on dormitory residents be made and enforced by the students themselves according to age and maturity. He said the recommendation needed more study.

Bowen agreed to change a contract rule which states that authorized representatives of the University may enter any room at any time. The president accepted the terms of the American Association of University Professors' Statement on Academic Freedom of Students which requires a procedure similar to obtaining a search warrant. An application would have to be made to a "responsible authority" stating the reasons for a search and the objects of information sought.

Bowen asked that a poll of male dormitory residents be taken before he acted on a recommendation to reduce maid service in the men's dormitories from daily to twice a week as in the women's dorms.

Other Recommendations Approved
Acting on other recommendations made by the housing committee, Bowen also:

• Approved the suggestion that room assignments be made first to the elected floor chairmen and next to members of the dormitory councils.

• Approved a plan to inform all residents as soon as possible who their roommates will be and what rooms they will occupy.

• Approved the recommendation to remove "unnecessary" furniture from student rooms if desired by the students. Dormitories are now furnished on an "expanded capacity" basis, which means that double rooms are furnished for occupancy by three.

• Approved plans to facilitate ways in which groups of students with similar interests can be grouped together in dormitories for the 1968-69 academic year.

• Approved the idea permitting students to decorate their own rooms, but no painting may be done without express permission of the residence hall director. Students will be responsible for the cost of any necessary repairs.

• Approved a plan in which dormitory residents may leave their possessions in special storage areas during the summer, but rejected the request to make it possible to leave possessions in rooms.

LBJ Undaunted By Ho's 'Rebuff'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson declared on his return from the Guam conference Tuesday night that he would continue to seek an honorable peace in Vietnam despite Ho Chi Minh's "regrettable" rejection of his offer for direct talks.

Johnson said, "We shall of course do our duty in Vietnam."

The President, flanked by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, read a brief statement when he stepped down from Air Force 1 at Andrews Air Force Base.

Rebuffs Called Regrettable

He said he had received "regrettable rebuffs" from North Vietnam in his genuine effort to move toward peace.

Referring to the release by Hanoi of an exchange of letters between Johnson and North Vietnam's President Ho last month, the chief executive said:

"During my flight home I learned that Hanoi had made public an exchange of letters between me and Ho Chi Minh. His reply to me of mid-February and his earlier public reply to his holiness, the Pope, were regrettable rebuffs to a genuine effort to move toward peace."

The President said that this had been the consistent attitude of North Vietnam to efforts by the United States, by other governments, by groups of governments and by leading personalities to initiate peace talks.

"Nevertheless, we shall persevere in our efforts to find an honorable peace," the President said. "Until that is achieved, we shall of course continue to do our duty in Vietnam."

There was a steady mist falling at the airport when the President arrived at 5:50 p.m. with his principle advisers.

Johnson Boards Helicopter

After his brief remarks, the President stepped to a waiting helicopter and was flown to the White House.

Johnson said that he had discussed seven major concerns at his meeting on Guam with South Vietnamese leaders and with the top U.S. military command.

Summarizing these seven points he said they included:

First, the military progress of the war, both in the South and the North.

Second, political progress that is being made in South Vietnam.

Noting that South Vietnam's Prime Minister Ky had given him the copy of the new constitution which the Constituent Assembly, freely elected, had adopted and which the military leadership had approved, the President said "this is the third and most significant step South Vietnam has taken towards granting its people the fundamental rights of democracy."

Reds Spurn Offer

While the President's plane was enroute

LYNDON B. JOHNSON

HO CHI MINH

back across the Pacific the North Vietnamese disclosed that Johnson had proposed direct peace talks in a personal letter to Ho and that the North Vietnamese leader had spurned the offer.

Ho rejected Johnson's proposal Feb. 15, the day after the United States resumed the bombing of North Vietnam following the lunar new year cease-fire truce.

The truce, during which the U.S. bombing was suspended, began on Feb. 8 and Ho received Johnson's letter two days later, on Feb. 10.

U.S. officials said Johnson already had a Hanoi rebuff of the U.S. offer for peace talks when he ordered the bombing resumed Feb. 14.

Election Fraud Charged

By AL KORBEL
Staff Writer

The validity of the election of the new student body president and vice president was contested at the Student Senate meeting Tuesday night.

Fred Wallace, G, New Haven, Conn., said he would file a written protest to the senate's Traffic Court today. At the meeting of the new senate Wallace pointed to what he considered "flagrant irregularities in the voting procedure."

According to Wallace, posters belonging to John Pelton, A3, Clinton, and Lyle Krewson, A4, Van Horn, were behind the polling booth in Quadrangle, on the doors in Quadrangle, and in the Law Building, Pelton and Krewson are the new president and vice president.

If the posters were up in Quadrangle and Law Building during the voting, this would be a violation of the election rules. Posters are not allowed in any University building.

Ballots Seen Missing

Wallace contends that ballots were missing from the Hillcrest dormitory during the noon to 1 p.m. lunch period. Hillcrest was considered a strong point for the Hawkeye Student Party (HSP), and Wallace said that the lack of ballots had cost the HSP votes.

A final complaint by Wallace was that the election committee report read earlier at the meeting of the old senate did not mention these irregularities.

"These irregularities had to be drawn out and I question the hiding of this," he said. "I also question the affiliations and favoritism of the election committee," he added.

Wallace has been an active backer of the HSP.

Two senate meetings actually took place. There was a final meeting of the old senate with Tom Hanson, outgoing president, presiding. The old senate adjourned for five minutes and the new senate with Pelton presiding took over.

Report Questioned

At the old senate meeting Wallace questioned the report of the election committee chairman, Dave Peters, A2, New Hampton.

Peters admitted that there were irregularities in the voting.

"There appears that about 70 ballots were removed from Burge Hall, were marked and redeposited," he said.

"The illegal ballots in no way affected the outcome of the senatorial elections," Peters said. "We are still pursuing it," he added.

Wallace demanded that if there were irregularities and they still were being pursued, the old senate should remain in office until the matter was cleared.

Peters reiterated his statement that the ballot stuffing had no effect on the winning senators. "However, we are still investigating the outcome of the senior class election," he said.

Asked by Wallace if the ballot stuffing was still being investigated, Peters said he did not notice any posters within the building.

At the new meeting with Pelton no effort was made to bar the three off-campus HSP senators who are living in dormitories. Under the provisions of the new Constitution the senators will be allowed to vote even though they will not be living in the place of their constituency.

Pelton had previously expressed his intention to attempt to present the three senators from taking their seats.

could have happened elsewhere, Peters said that it was not likely.

"We only distributed 100 ballots at a time. This was to keep the poll watchers busy by worrying about running out of ballots," he said.

Denies Seeing Posters

Asked if he had seen any posters in Quadrangle or in the Law Building, Peters said he did not.

Wallace then asked Peters how he identified the illegal ballots. Peters said he noted a similarity of slashes used to invalidate sections of the ballot not open to Burge voters.

"There was also a similarity of X's, checks and partial blackening of the boxes next to the names," he said. "Two men from data processing and I went through the 5,050 ballots Friday afternoon to check for irregularities," he added.

He was then questioned about the reason for his not stating the discrepancy in his report.

"We did not want to let our findings be known until we could apprehend the responsible individual or individuals involved," he said. "We did not want to warn them," he added.

Peters pointed out that M. L. Huit, dean of students, was aware of the problem.

Vote Taken

Hanson then told the senators that if they approved the election committee report as it was originally filed, they would also be voting on the acceptance of the new senate. A vote was taken and the senators approved 13 to 5 with one abstention.

After the meeting, Peters said that he did not believe any elected individual was behind the vote fraud.

"If we find the individual or individuals involved, their names will be presented to Dean Huit for proper action," he said.

Pelton said that Wallace's complaint would have to be considered by the Traffic Courts.

"I have no jurisdiction over the matter," he said.

Constitution Cited

Although Wallace tried to prevent the new senate from taking their seats, the new Constitution provides that "new student senators shall take office on the first Tuesday after all-campus elections."

John Rupp, A3, Cherokee, Hanson's vice president, pointed this out at the meeting.

Wallace is a Rienow Hall senator and elections for Rienow will not be held until after the Easter recess.

His contentions of irregularities failed to persuade the senate not to accept Peters' report. These contentions were also countered from the floor by claims of posters belonging to other candidates being closer than 50 feet to the polling places, contrary to the election rules.

David H. Vernon, dean of the College of Law, said he did not notice any posters within the building.

At the new meeting with Pelton no effort was made to bar the three off-campus HSP senators who are living in dormitories. Under the provisions of the new Constitution the senators will be allowed to vote even though they will not be living in the place of their constituency.

Pelton had previously expressed his intention to attempt to present the three senators from taking their seats.

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General U Thant was reported Tuesday to have sent messages to North and South Vietnam proposing a cease-fire and peace talks.

Diplomatic sources said the messages had gone to Hanoi and Saigon last week and led to Saigon's proposing to Hanoi the same week that the two "discuss peace."

Saigon replied to Thant, the informants said, that it welcomed the idea of peace talks but considered that any realistic scheme for a cease-fire must provide for some supervision.

Retiring Student Senate Approves Constitution

By ELAINE SCHROEDER
Staff Writer

The outgoing Student Senate met briefly and accepted the new Iowa Student Association Constitution by a vote of 16 to 2 before turning the meeting over to the newly elected senate Tuesday night.

The new constitution will go into effect as soon as it is signed by Pres. Howard R. Bowen.

Newly installed Student Body Vice Pres. Lyle Krewson called the first meeting of the new senate to order five minutes after the outgoing senate adjourned for the last time.

Student Body Pres. John Pelton presented his appointments to the senate's executive council, which were then approved by the senate.

Kenneth W. Wessels, A1, Dyersville, Hawkeye Student Party, was elected by a 16 to 14 vote to the office of president pro tempore of the senate.

Wessels and Carl W. Stuart, A2, Keokuk, each received 15 votes in the Senate's balloting. Krewson then asked if any senators wanted to change their votes.

Frances Loeb, A3, Guthrie Center, broke the 15-15 tie vote when she changed her vote from Stuart to Wessels.

Those senators appointed to the executive council were: Janice Watje, A2, Buck Grove, executive secretary; Carl A. Varner, A2, Centerville, commissioner of student services; Randy Swisher, A2, Atlantic, commissioner of University affairs; and Bruce D. Dugstad, B3, Waterloo, treasurer.

Later in the meeting, the senate received its first resolution from Stuart, concerning housing contract policies.

Stuart's resolution called for dormitory contracts to be binding for one semester only and for cancellation dates of Sept. 1 and Jan. 1. It also called for housing applications to include the choice of fraternity housing.

Another resolution concerning the University adviser system was presented to the senate by Varner.

Varner's proposal called for a central advisory office with full-time academic counselors.

Both resolutions will be considered at the senate's next meeting April 4.

the Daily Iowan NEWS IN BRIEF

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has given up trying to land helicopters on Vietnam's jungletops. But there's still hope for a sort of instant landing pad formed by air-dropped bags of fiber glass which harden upon impact. What was originally hailed as a remarkable invention — the so-called jungle canopy platform — turned out to be a flop. The troops couldn't be persuaded it was worth using.

LANDS END, England (AP) — The supertanker Torrey Canyon lay apparently doomed on the Seven Stones Rocks Tuesday, ripped by an explosion which killed a Dutch salvage officer. A black mass of oil seeping from the torn hull spread across 700 square miles of sea, according to naval spokesmen, and was drifting east toward the holiday beaches of southern England and northern Europe.

NEW YORK (AP) — A survey of public opinion in South Vietnam, from a population sampling the pollsters admit had to be sharply restricted, reported Tuesday that 81 per cent of those questioned want peace above all else. Only four per cent listed victory over Communism, two per cent reunification of North and South and four per cent independence as aims preferable to a quick peace.

Ky, Thieu Play Game With LBJ

An AP News Analysis
By FRANK CORMIER

AGANA, Guam (AP) — Every time President Johnson gets together with the leaders of South Vietnam, on American soil, he seems to get embroiled, quite unwittingly in a game of "Can You Top This?"

There have been two such Johnson meetings with Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky, once in Hawaii 13 months ago, and just this week in this farthest west American territory — "where America's day begins," the Chamber of Commerce says.

Although the Vietnam leaders sometimes, and in some quarters, have been called "American clients," they seized a chance on each occasion to express — in the alien English tongue, no less — their nation's independence.

Each time they captured headlines around the world, despite Johnson's efforts to call the signals.

LBJ Likes Own Plans

Johnson, who would prefer that everything progress according to his own plans, has not taken kindly to these demonstrations. However, he has not put the onus on his allies, Ky and Thieu, but on the American newsmen who chronicle his activities.

This week's Guam conference was a case in point. And it seems to have been a case with a surprising ending.

While Johnson and his sides looked on unhappily, the men from Saigon put the President on the defensive — and at an American-sponsored conference to which they were invited belatedly.

Their line, expressed by Ky, was staunchly nationalistic. He told a news conference in Guam Tuesday:

"There is no reason that you or other people should impose on us to surrender or accept domination from the Communists."

Although this was a direct reproach to antiwar Americans, it could be read as a reproach to the entire American nation which is spending some $55 million a day — and more than 100 lives a week — to fight a war in Ky's homeland.

Thieu's Words Proper

Thieu was much more circumspect. His public words in Agana were proper and unprovocative.

But he is a potential presidential candidate, too. And his behavior back in Saigon may have underlined that fact.

Arriving back home, Thieu announced that South Vietnam has contacted Hanoi through a third party and offered to talk peace. He said there had been no reply yet.

Perhaps — just perhaps — Thieu sensed political mileage in becoming the first Saigon official to talk publicly about a concrete move toward negotiations.

In any case, the men from Saigon practiced their English this week and left Lyndon Johnson with no one to blame except the newsmen who reported their words.

NFO Tosses Out Milk In 6th Day Of Strike

CHICAGO (AP) — Milk from farms and stores alike was given away and tossed away Tuesday — the sixth day of the National Farmers Organization's milk withholding action.

Gov. Warren P. Knowles said his office has noted a sharp reduction in the number of reports of violence and vandalism in Wisconsin.

That's one of the key states in the 25-state area of a holdback aimed at adding 2 cents a quart to the price received by farmers, now generally 8 to 10 cents.

A spokesman for the Federal Bureau of Investigation said in Washington findings in some cases had been turned over to a U.S. attorney so he could determine whether federal law has been violated.

The NFO president, Oren Lee Staley, who says the campaign now is in a crucial stage, said meetings with unnamed dairies were going on.

Staley also said the available milk supply was being cut.

But no milk shortage was reported in Iowa, where the NFO makes its headquarters in Corning.

Robert Koehler, assistant general manager of the Nebraska-Iowa Co-op Milk

Association, said there was more surplus Grade A milk in its districts in Nebraska and western Iowa than there was before the boycott began Wednesday night.

Sheriff's deputies escorted milk haulers in Burnett, Polk, Waushara, Walworth and several other counties in Wisconsin.

State Police arranged to patrol highways in western Pennsylvania.

A dairy farmer near Union City, Pa., said vandals broke a valve on a storage tank and drained 1,800 pounds of milk. Similar reports came from Waterford and Saegerstown, Pa.

NFO members near Columbus, Ind., bought 300 gallons of processed milk and fed it to their hogs.

Others in Terre Haute, Ind., purchased 300 quarts in supermarkets and passed out free glasses of milk in the county courthouse.

Speck Trial Jury
Still Incomplete

PEORIA (AP) — Twenty jury prospects were screened Tuesday in the Richard Speck murder trial, but efforts to seat the third and last jury panel were unsuccessful.

Three men retained at the end of Monday's session were excused by Gerald Getty, who represents the 25-year-old defendant.

Two men and a woman took the excused veniremen's places in the shuffle of tentative jurors. They are also subject to peremptory challenge by either counsel.

Five men and three women have been approved as the first two panels of jurors. They are being held in an isolated wing of a nearby hotel and are not permitted to communicate with anyone including their families.

Sheriff Willard Koepfel of Peoria County, who is charged with the security of these jury members, said Tuesday the eight persons may be permitted to attend church services on Easter.

They have not been permitted to attend church services previously.

NFO fights for higher prices for milk market

The National Farmers Organization (NFO) is at it again. Two years ago the NFO used a hog-withholding action to drive up the market for pork. Now the organization is using the same action to drive up the dairy farmer's take on milk prices.

The irrational actions of the NFO to get price increases for the products of its members is indicative of why farmers have a hard time getting favorable market conditions.

In the milk-withholding action, NFO members are pouring milk (sometimes watered down) over fields throughout the Midwest. It's as much a publicity stunt as it is a withholding action. In some cities, the farmers are buying up all the cartons of milk in the food stores to prevent its purchase by shoppers. If that doesn't work, some of the milk is poisoned with fuel or other poisons. Then there are the threats.

In past NFO withholding actions, the associated tactics have been similar. Violence, or threats of violence, have abounded. Blades mysteriously appeared on roads or highways used by hog trucks on their way to market during the withholding action two years ago.

Getting back to the withholding, it seems of little avail to withhold products to drive up the prices. In the case of the hog-withholding, prices did go up somewhat because of the scarcity. But as soon as the price went up, more hogs were released for slaughter. This just drove the prices back down to where they were before the withholding.

Some farmers have turned down equitable solutions that could have solved the problem of low hog prices. Some packing plants offered contracts assuring hog farmers of a good price for hogs as long as the farmers raised only so many. The operation would have been profitable because the farmer could have raised just the right amount of livestock for a good price. But farmers did not want to limit their output.

The farmers' problems are further compounded by the proliferation of organizations designed to help the farmer. The trouble is that the organizations are using different tactics.

We realize the frustration of NFO members who feel they must throw away thousands of gallons of milk to win their point, especially when a world of poverty surrounds us.

'Miss Jairus' only partial success

By RICHARD DOUGLASS
Staff Reviewer

The production of "Miss Jairus" by Michel de Ghelderode, now in the studio theatre, is an ambitious undertaking for a university theatre and it is understandable that it is only partially successful.

The plot is simple. Blandine, the daughter of Jairus and his wife, is about to die in spite of the commercial ministrations of the vicar, the doctor and the spiritualist. She dies and her death is lamented by three hired mourners, her father who worries about the propriety of his behavior, and Jacquelin, her lover. Jacquelin convinces LeRoux, the Christ figure, to bring the girl back to life.

The girl is angry at being forced to return to eternity.

She rejects her family and lover in a distinct preference for being buried in the snow or throwing snowballs at the passing clergy. Finally, LeRoux is crucified as part of the Easter pageant, Blandine dies and her parents are left in the darkness calling for light.

Ghelderode described the play as proceeding from the irrational and maintained that even he could not fully comprehend it. So don't be discouraged when you see it.

In the world of the play the second coming is greeted with crucifixion. Not love but greed is the driving impulse of this world. Church bells are rung at so much per stroke, doctor's bills are written clearly, mourners render mechanical "Hail Marys" at an hourly rate and greasy vicars dress in their finest for the carnival crucifixion.

At the center of the play lies Ghelderode's religious vision. In this life the soul has gone out of religion and the empty form has become a means of temporal power. God is dead in that He cannot be reached through the forms of religion, but for Blandine and Lazarus He is very much alive. They expect finally to melt in the universal light, to become singing atoms, to share in God's living dream.

Around this vision is the complexity of images and symbols which cause an inclusive conceptual meaning to elude us. There are the howling dogs lapping blood at the cross, the black and white water, the cross, the fall and, finally, the frantic cry for light in a house of darkness and masks.

However, Ghelderode relieves his tragic vision with delightful comic inventions. The witches in their team effort at lamentation, the vicar with a snowball down his back and the corpse who tells the workmen where to put the coffin give us a well-needed laugh. This mixture of tragic, poetic and comic elements presents a challenge to the actor. He must be emotionally convincing, he must have the vocal facility to make the poetic image vital for us and he must have the timing and technique to realize each farcical moment.

ginning with their opening cross of capes, the mourners are carefully directed with precise farcical business and well-orchestrated focus. Miller's actors often use economical gestures to reinforce the meaning of a difficult image, and his stage pictures at the resurrection and the final death of Blandine are striking.

A major weakness of the production is a lack of variety of pace within and between scenes. It seems to stem from the limitations of the major actors rather than the director. Jared Stein brings Jairus an engaging vigor and vitality. While he manages to keep the difficult long speeches interesting, his variety in pace and volume is insufficient. (At times the whole show is too loud, the actors seeming to think that volume can be substituted for emotion.)

In contrast, Adrienne Moloney's long speech at the end is well-shaped and varied. Susan Kramer, Toni Valk and Claire Keeble as the mourners are precise and animated, although perhaps a bit too likable. Ellen Goldberg as the wife nicely captures the sternness and exuberance of the woman at times but has trouble convincing us of her sorrow.

David Humphreys as the vicar and David Smit as the doctor are often precise in their farcical business but fail to fully realize the humor in their part. The characters lack the breath of life needed even in a farcical character. Betty Vaughn as Old Mankabena and Adrienne Moloney as Blandine give the best performances of the evening. Miss Vaughn gives the witch intensity and a convincing humanity. Her gestures nicely reinforce the meaning of the complex moon-umbilical cord image.

Surprisingly, the minor parts are played very competently, and one wishes to see more of these characters. Marvin Kipp gives the old man a haunting quality, Bradley Bowles brings to the ballad singer a charm and exuberant movement and Alex Eftimoff has the best phrasing of any actor in the play. Ralph Tripp has an engaging stage presence which needs the refinement of experience, and Ralph Hills as LeRoux keeps the Christ figure appropriately direct, subdued and untheatrical. Joanne Bellinger and Ed Berkeley are clear and economical as the neighbor and the joiner.

The set and lighting by Donald Childs work best in the mood scene when the blue light is on the drapery, but the set generally seems unnecessarily drab. The light on the audience during intermissions sustains the mood and leaves us with the uncomfortable feeling that Ghelderode (or Bob Miller) is pointing a finger at us.

After all this, how good is the production? It is uneven but it does have good moments. And a few hours trying to figure out Ghelderode are well spent. You probably won't be successful but you will have some laughs. And you may find that after "Miss Jairus," "Hamlet" is a relief.

STUDENT editor replies to Iowan reviewer

To The Editor:
Dear Mr. Power,

Your latest review of our magazine, the STUDent, is wonderfully contradictory while maintaining a degree of vagueness that is so credible that I wonder if you gained your prowess as a ghost writer for LBJ. I am actually concerned about the plight of your present position. I'm sure that you could more effectively use your great insight and thorough analytic ability by grading Rhetoric themes or composing want ads.

Your initial questions concerning the function and purpose of the STUDent are very good, and indeed you do give the correct answer to them later in your article. We are concerned mostly with entertainment of an informative nature. We are also concerned with information of an entertaining nature. It is unfortunate that you did not ask these questions when our January issue appeared with a full page statement along these very lines. It is also unfortunate that all entertainment is not informative and that all information is not entertaining. However, it is fortunate that you realize that our success in combining information and entertainment is a matter of opinion, so let us turn to some of the opinions that you have given relevant to our success or lack of it.

On Jan. 21, in reference to our first issue, you said, "Personally I found the advertisements effective and quite humorous." As you don't mention them in your latest effort, I assume you still find them to be up to your standards. And the standards or "criteria" that you've selected are certainly good enough for the STUDent. Since, as you note, they are used by Esquire and the New York Times. Long live David and Goliath, Horatio Alger and the Joneses.

The fact that your review of our magazine is worthy for the top of the editorial page this time is very complimentary. (Remember where the first one appeared? Would you believe page five of the Saturday edition?) Consequently the inconsistencies are more prominent and the contradictions are easier to find. Your title leads me to believe that the STUDent should concentrate more on local news, that it "should be strictly Iowan." Yet your praise is concentrated on a story that originated at Ames, not at the U of I.

Student praises open house

To The Editor:

It should be apparent after the Friday night Burge open house that the suggestion made in the DI a couple of weeks ago was a good one: Open doors will go a long, long way toward a solution of the University's parking problem. And also the student's "parking" problem. The real issue, though, is not cars, but, as always, people.

Grandma and Mother and the Iowa Legislature might think such things as women entertaining men in their dorm rooms — with the door closed yet! — is immoral, illegal and un-Christian. But the idea of co-existing with one's sexual opposite, even for a few hours, is certainly a healthy sign.

Perhaps the severest criticism of dorm life is that it confuses us into believing that "other people" means people of our own sex. How are we to make a smooth transition from the homosexual environment of everyday dorm life to the heterosexual everyday world?

Open houses are a good start toward healthier administrative thinking and toward healthier people. God knows, it's about time.

To The Editor:

Although I confess to sympathy with the sense of moral outrage and despair that drove a number of opponents of the Vietnam war to heave LBJ in effigy, I must point out that the scene was misdirected and detrimental to efforts to stop the war. It was an act akin to voodoo. It may have relieved the participants feelings of guilt and frustration, but its effect in the real world — if any — was opposite to what was intended.

The act was misdirected because LBJ, being the politician he is, will continue to escalate the war only so long as he has at least the tacit support of most of the people. I cannot believe that a majority of the people actively and wholeheartedly supports this adventure. But neither does a majority oppose it, for in between these two groups there is the great gray middle-class mass of the indifferent (but uneasy) who succeed in forgetting about the war most of the time in favor of business, pleasure, and profit as usual. They swallow a plausible excuse for the war as long as it doesn't interfere with the pursuit of happiness.

LBJ will not turn back until those who are indifferent wake up to face the reality of Vietnam: that men in American uniforms, under orders from our government, are committing crimes against humanity like those we condemned at Nuremberg. It is obscene to conduct war in such a way that, for every soldier killed, you murder six women, children and old people and melt a few more alive. It is indecent to uproot an entire population for miles around and lay waste the country side in an area where millions are starving. It is heinous to make the poor poorer in the pursuit of a nation's vanity.

An act of voodoo will not convince the indifferent; it will only direct attention away from the real culprits — us.

● Did you know there's a book called "The Teenager's Guide to the Stock Market?" It's doubtful that it will play any part in today's discussion of consumer education for teenagers on "These Are Our Children" at 9 a.m. The topics to be examined are varied and so might include: extravagant spending, unwise purchases with attendant health problems, automobile accidents and decreased parental control. Joy Haas, an expert in family economics, will be the guest of Gladys Gardner Jenkins.

● The annual Easter Concert of the School of Music will be broadcast at 8 tonight on WSUI and KSUI-FM (91.7). This will be the second and concluding performance of the Requiem Mass by Verdi.

Campus, City Beautification Discussed By Local Group

Campus development plans of the University and opportunities for community beautification were discussed Monday night at a meeting of a committee of the Citizens for a Better Iowa City organization.

General goals of previous beautification committees were presented at the public meeting in the Civic Center. Among areas pointed out as needing attention were: recreational facilities, county conservation programs, attractive approaches to the city and scenic parkways.

The emphasis in the committee reports was on better planning, guided by standards of quality and beauty.

Merritt C. Ludwig, University director of planning and development, spoke on the University's plans for developing its campus in the future.

Ludwig said that the University was working with the projected rapid growth in mind. By the fall of 1975, an enrollment of 25,000 students is expected. This indicates the need for a tremendous building program, said Ludwig.

The last two years the University has been involved in a systematic long-range planning with the architectural firm of Sasaki, Dawson, DeMay and Associates.

Ludwig said the University is planning its developments under the assumption that projected enrollment will eventually reach 30,000 students. The expansion that is underway now and that will increase in the future is being considered in the light of further beautifying the community, Ludwig pointed out.

Other goals of the University include the enhancement of the river bank and removing temporary and obsolete buildings.

A blindfold test for beer.

If anybody ever says you can't pick Budweiser with your eyes shut, you can call his bluff.

First, stick your nose close to the foam of each glass of beer and take a sniff. Notice a difference? The one with the clean, fresh aroma is Budweiser.

Now taste. This gets a bit tricky. But the one beer that tastes like beer without any one flavor jumping out at you (like hops, or an extra sweetness, or sometimes a sour or sharp taste) is Budweiser. That's because Budweiser is blended—by our Beechwood Ageing. We want you to taste the beer, not the recipe.

If anybody pulls a beer-tasting test on you, now you know how to win. Just follow your nose.

Milk Holding Action Starts

By SANDY HANSCH
Staff Writer

At 4 p.m. Wednesday the National Farmers Organization (NFO) in 25 states including Iowa initiated a holding action on milk. But, according to local grocery stores and dairies, it has had little effect.

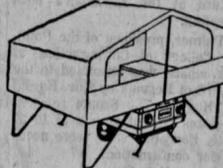

In an effort to show that the NFO action is effective, Coggon, Iowa, farmers poured an estimated 2,300 gallons of milk into a field Sunday. Coggon is about 15 miles north of Cedar Rapids.

Some observers said a portion of the milk dumped seemed to be diluted with water.

Tom Williams, chairman of the Johnson County NFO, said Tuesday, "We do not tell the man holding the milk what to do with it." Some farmers dump their milk, some feed it to other livestock and some separate it and sell the cream.

In the separation process, the cream is removed from the milk and stored. The cream can be stored for about two weeks with no harmful effects. The milk is dumped or fed to animals.

The NFO is holding the milk in an effort to cut off the market supply until farmers can get a price increase of two cents a quart over the eight to nine cents now being received.

"We are asking a two cent a quart increase to farmers throughout the 25 states," said Williams.

"It's the production that concerns us."

"The price of 27 cents a quart that consumers pay doesn't need to be changed even if the farmers do get a two cent a quart increase on the farm."

Although local firms see no shortage in the supply of milk, NFO authorities said the move to hold milk on the farm was gaining momentum in Iowa and other states. However, some NFO members have resumed hauling milk because of economic need.

Several local distributors said the holdout was not harming the milk supply at all.

"We have the regular supply and we don't see that the holdout has had much effect," said one distributor.

Another distributor said that if farmers were rich enough to afford to dump their milk, they didn't need more money.

A third distributor said he believed the farmers were turning the public against their viewpoint. He said it didn't make any sense for the farmers to throw away milk when children across the country and in other countries were starving.

However, Harry Seelman, publicity chairman for the Johnson County NFO, said, "Those who see evil in destroying milk should blame more people than the dairymen. The milk is being held from the market, not without recourse, for a price."

Low prices now received for the milk are forcing dairymen to go out of business by the hundreds, according to Seelman. The holdout was started to secure higher prices and stable prices for milk.

The holdout is trying to "make it profitable for dairymen to keep producing rather than go out of business," said Seelman. Dairymen — NFO members and non-members alike — are working together in the withholding action.

Oren Lee Staley, national NFO president said recently, "NFO members are giving tremendous support and it is gratifying that nonmembers are joining in."

John Dane, president of the Johnson County Farm Bureau, said, "We do not object to attempting to convince neighbors to join, if persuasion methods are logical and reasonable. However, our organization cannot and will not condone intimidation."

Dane added, "We believe any individual has the right to market his produce as he sees fit. We also believe any individual has a right to withhold his produce if he wishes and thinks it is economically advantageous to him."

There have been several incidences of violence and illegal activities in connection with the NFO milk holdout.

In Dodge County, Wis., the milk house of an NFO member was blown up. Madison was virtually without milk during the weekend because of a poisoning scare when kerosene was found in a load of milk.

Reports of vandalism continue — mostly involving forcible draining of milk trucks and farm bulk storage tanks.

In Monroe and Benoit, Wis., farmers were arrested on littering charges after allegedly dumping milk on city streets.

Other arrests were made on disorderly conduct charges against NFO members who were blocking milk trucks.

The largest dumping of milk occurred in southern Minnesota where 60 NFO members dumped 12,500 gallons of milk.

License Needed To Serve Meals In Funeral Homes

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — You can't serve meals in a funeral home without a restaurant license, Minnesota Atty. Gen. Douglas Head ruled Tuesday.

The ruling came in reply to a question by City Atty. Joseph Pany of Montgomery.

Pany explained that Montgomery has a lot of residents of Bohemian descent, and it is the custom to serve a meal shortly after a burial.

But the attorney general ordered the Schoenbauer funeral home to stop serving meals unless it obtains a restaurant license.

High-Flying Kite Causes Trouble

DES MOINES (AP) — Spring, boys, kites. They go together.

But Tuesday it was the displeasure of tower personnel at the Des Moines Municipal Airport.

Police were trying to locate a real high flier. Fact is, it was up so high aircraft pilots were complaining.

Tower personnel told police the kite was at an altitude of about 1,300 feet and was in the airport's flight pattern. It also was in range of a radio-television tower.

After a couple of hours of searching, police still were trying to locate the kite. They also were wondering how they would bring it down even if they did find it.

Tickets Available For 'Miss Jairus'

Tickets are still available for the remaining three performances of Michel de Ghelderode's "Miss Jairus" at the Studio Theatre. The play, which deals with the meaning of death, will begin at 8 p.m. today, Wednesday, and Thursday.

Students may pick up free tickets from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. today through Thursday at the University Box Office in the South Lobby of the Union. Others may purchase tickets for $1 at the same times.

Written by the Belgian playwright in 1934, "Miss Jairus" is connected with the Easter season. The play deals with The New Testament miracle of a young girl's resurrection. The play, which follows the form of a medieval mystery play with a setting in 14th-century Flanders, shows the effect of this unusual event on the girl and those close to her.

Robert Miller, graduate student from Malden, Mass., is directing the play as his master's thesis project.

Quartet To Leave On European Tour

The Iowa String Quartet will leave the Cedar Rapids Airport Thursday morning for the group's third concert tour of Europe in 10 months.

The quartet, a resident ensemble at the University, will play return engagements in Searbrucken, West Germany; Basel, Switzerland; and Trieste, Italy, and will give concerts also in the West German cities of Kassel, Cologne and Baden-Baden, as well as Udine, Bressanone, Trento, Bar and Taranto, all in Italy.

Several of the programs will be recordings for European radio stations, which are then played on these stations at various times over a period of three or four years, according to William H. Preucil, associate professor of music and leader of the group.

Schuller Work Included
The quartet's repertoire will include several numbers played for University audiences this year. Among compositions by American composers to be featured will be Gunther Schuller's "String Quartet No. 2," a work commissioned by the Old Gold Development Fund for the Iowa String Quartet and given its premiere in Iowa City in March, 1966, by the quartet.

In its initial tour of Europe last May, the Iowa String Quartet appeared in Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Ireland, Germany and Switzerland. The group's tour of Italy, Yugoslavia and Austria in July and August was part of the cultural presentations program of the U.S. Department of State. The Iowa musicians won standing ovations in a number of European cities on these tours.

Members Listed
Members of the quartet are Allen Ohmes and John Ferrell, violins; Preucil, viola; and Charles Wendt, cello. All are members of the University music faculty.

Besides its annual concert series at the University, the quartet this year is presenting a series at the Phillips Collection, Washington, D.C., and the Des Moines Art Center, and has made concert tours of the West Coast and the East and Southeast, as well as giving individual concerts in several Midwestern cities.

The group will return from its tour April 13.

Viet Cong Launch, Fumble Largest Offensive Of Year

SAIGON (AP)—The Viet Cong launched and lost Tuesday their biggest offensive operation of the year, a four-hour effort to overrun an American artillery position in a jungle clearing in War Zone C near the Cambodian frontier.

About 500 GIs of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division's 3rd Brigade repelled human-wave assaults by 2,500 black-clad troops of the Viet Cong's 22nd Regiment. With the help of planes and a reinforcing armored column, the U.S. troops blasted the enemy survivors into retreat toward Cambodia.

"This is a victory of magnitude," said the 3rd Brigade's commander, Col. Marshall B. Garth, Charlottesville, Va.

AP correspondent Peter Arnett reported from the battle site that two units in the defensive perimeter — a 45-man infantry platoon commanded by 2nd Lt. Johnny Andrews of Seattle, Wash., and a squad of 12 infantrymen posted in an ambush position — had been severely mauled in the attacks, which opened at dawn.

"It was a nightmare," Andrews said. The Americans were running low on ammunition when a column of 113 armored vehicles, including 33 tanks, clanked to the rescue.

Spokesmen said at least 423 enemy dead were left behind in the action, in which the Viet Cong high command apparently had hoped for a smashing success to coincide with the wind-up of President Johnson's Guam conference. There was no estimate of how many dead and wounded they may have carried away.

American losses in the fighting — which mingled point-blank gunfire, grenade-hurling duels and hand-to-hand combat — were set at 30 dead and 109 wounded. Of 18 howitzers that the enemy attacked with rockets and mortar shells, 11 were knocked out. Repairs by the artillerymen, however, put all but four of these back in working order after the battle.

These guns, making up three batteries of the 2nd Battalion, 27th Artillery Regiment, sat in the middle of a half-mile-wide landing zone established about 70 miles northwest of Saigon to support the month-old Operation Junction City. Posted with them was the 3rd Battalion, 22nd Infantry Regiment.

In the air war B52 Stratofortresses from Guam made four raids in South Vietnam Monday night and Tuesday morning, two of them in support of Operation Junction City.

Bad weather held U.S. squadrons to 65 missions over North Vietnam Monday. A flight of U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs caught a 10-truck convoy in the Mu Gia Pass, a gateway to the Ho Chi Minh supply trail, and blasted it with 750-pound bombs.

Prof Praises Restlessness On Campuses

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—If the students are restless and threaten to picket, a hep college administrator won't try to stifle their protests — he'll do everything but help them paint the signs, a veteran educator says.

Above all, says Dr. E. G. Williamson, a college administrator, don't be overbearing. Williamson is dean of students and psychology professor at the University of Minnesota. Wednesday he will be sworn in as president of the American Personnel and Guidance Association, meeting this week in Dallas.

"This has been quite an exciting decade," said Williamson, who has been at the university 26 years. "Students are much more sophisticated than they used to be and would rather have frank, open discussions of basic issues, of the things that really matter."

Thus he encourages dissatisfied students to speak out even in groups.

"We encourage them to organize demonstrations. Sometimes we even help them. It's a new service," he said in an interview.

He said students unhappy over a proposed tuition hike at the university "wanted to stage a sit-in in the president's office, so we helped them plan it."

"It was a big success," Williamson said. "As a result of the sit-in and the manner in which it was done, the board of regents voted a $100,000 increase in scholarships to offset the effects of the tuition hike," he said.

"Of course, you can't just give in whimsically to every complaint or suggestion," the educator said. "It would just whet the appetite of some. But on the other hand, you mustn't be authoritarian in your judgments because you just give the protesters a secondary issue."

65-Year-Old Car On Honeymoon

WASHINGTON (AP)—The gray-haired man lifted the hood of the ancient automobile, pushed a pump vigorously — to "build up the pressure in the tanks," his bride said — closed the hood, and then stepped to the front and gave the crank a couple of turns.

The motor sputtered and then clattered. The 65-year-old vehicle was ready to carry British jeweler Tom Lightfoot and his bride of three days, the former Rita Billam of London, on their honeymoon trip to New York.

Unique Practices Highlight Football Recruiting Plan

Prep Star Considers Iowa: 'Education, People Important'

A high school football star who plans to attend college must consider several factors in deciding where he will go.

Tuesday, one of these stars, John Handy, was asked what factors he is considering.

Handy, a prep All-America who is considered to be one of the finest all-around athletes Illinois has ever produced, is visiting the campus today as guest of the University.

Q. What type of a school are you interested in?

A. "Size isn't too important. Education is, and so are social factors — the people themselves and your reactions to them."

Q. What are you looking for in a coaching staff?

A. "Youth. Also, the type of ball they play. I prefer a running game."

Q. What are your views on Iowa and the Iowa staff?

A. "I think the staff is great and it's young. I like the town here, too, and I think the people are really enthused and back the team."

Handy, who will visit Iowa coaches and professors in his chosen area of study, is a 6-3, 215-pound running back from Illinois Eight Conference champion Lockport High School in Lockport, Ill. He scored 21 touchdowns the past season and was chosen All-Conference and All-State as well as All-America.

He played halfback and line-

Royals Upset 76ers; Celtics Whip Knicks

The Cincinnati Royals, with Oscar Robertson scoring 33 points and Connie Dierking 29, upset the Philadelphia 76ers 120-116 Tuesday night in the first game of a best-of-five Eastern Division semifinal playoff in the National Basketball Association.

In other playoff action, sharpshooters Sam Jones and John Havlicek combined for 70 points in leading the Boston Celtics to a 140-110 rout of the hapless New York Knickerbockers.

Wilt Chamberlain scored 41 points and grabbed 22 rebounds for Philadelphia.

By AL JAHN
Staff Writer

Have you ever asked yourself: How do certain colleges and universities across the country, Michigan State and Notre Dame being two prime examples, continue to put together the top football teams in the country?

Undoubtedly, one reason for this, not necessarily the most important one, is the fact that those who field the top teams go all out in their recruiting efforts. The importance of recruiting is demonstrated by looking at the way colleges and universities compete heavily with each other each year in trying to attract the top high school athletes to their campuses.

There are certain features that are common to all recruiting programs. Then, there are certain unique practices that various colleges and universities carry out with the idea that maybe this one difference will be enough to persuade the prospect to choose their school over perhaps 100 other choices.

Distinct Advantages

The University of Iowa's football recruiting program has many of those features common to all recruiting programs. But, Coach Ray Nagel thinks Iowa has some distinct advantages to offer the athlete who is thinking about coming here for an education and to participate in sports.

"We, along with Northwestern, are smaller enrollment wise, and this lends to a more intimate relationship," Nagel said. To further emphasize the uniqueness of Iowa, Nagel quoted Louis Zopf, dean of pharmacy as saying: "Iowa is a very comfortable school, and it is unique in having a small college town."

Another feature Nagel said that has prospects leaving with a good impression of the University is the enthusiasm shown for all events, not just the athletic ones. He cited the tremendous turn out for the military ball as an example.

Academic Emphasis

Probably one of the more important, the more unique, and the more impressive aspects of Iowa's recruiting program is the emphasis that is placed on the academic interests of the prospect. He is not just given a hit-and-miss tour of the campus, but is shown schools and departments that he is interested in.

For example, if the prospect is interested in journalism, he is given a tour of the journalism facilities. The prospect talks with faculty members from his chosen field. Some faculty members spend up to an hour talking to these prospects, according to Nagel. "The interest from the Iowa faculty is the best I have ever seen, and this is one of the big reasons for the success of this year's recruiting program," Nagel said.

A unique aspect of Iowa's recruiting program is how high school athletes visiting the campus are individually introduced to fans attending Iowa basketball games at the Field House.

Crowd Enthusiasm

The announcer over the loud speaker asks the crowd if it would like to have these athletes playing football for the University of Iowa next year and a standing ovation from the crowd follows.

Coach Nagel says that although Iowa is the only one that is doing something like this now, he won't be surprised if other schools start doing something along these lines next year.

One other interesting but not totally unique element of the recruiting program here at Iowa is the role of The Daily Iowan. Copies of The Daily Iowan are sent out to every prospect. Nagel says that this is done because of the importance of communication. "We like them to get the feeling of the school. The Daily Iowan is symbolic of the University, and this is what we are trying to sell," he said.

Visitors Listed

The Daily Iowan gives another little boost to the recruiting program by publishing the names of football prospects who will be visiting the campus over the weekend. Nagel thinks that this is helpful, and impressive to prospects because it gives them recognition, and people like to be recognized.

Along with The Daily Iowan, other correspondence with prospects is carried out by mail. Material is sent to a prospect giving him background about both the athletic and academic side of the University, according to Nagel.

There is a standard format that is followed in recruiting an individual prospect. Before the prospect arrives on campus, he will receive by mail a preliminary schedule of what he will do while he is here. Nagel points out that the parents, in particular, like this type of procedure.

By the time the prospect arrives in Iowa City, the schedule he will follow is finalized.

(Tomorrow: a typical schedule for a prospect while he visits the campus.)

Tennis Team Dominated By Sophomores, Juniors

Hawkeye tennis coach Don Klotz called last season's ninth-place finish the result of "green kids, broken feet and senioritis."

"Some of our sophomore kids just didn't have that tournament experience," he said. "Then one of our top boys had that foot injury, and that really hurt us. Then there was one case of 'senioritis' that hurt us."

"When you have a squad of six the loss of one key player can be disastrous."

Klotz said that although there was no one outstanding player on the squad at the moment and that he hadn't decided on who would be playing, the team had depth and invaluable tournament experience.

Sophomores, Juniors Battle
To offset the loss of four seniors through graduation, the Hawks have four sophomores and two juniors fighting for positions in the lineup.

Juniors Dale Le Provost and Rich Strauss and sophomores Allan Jones, Randy Murphy, Nathan Chapman and Rich Stokstad are expected to be top performers for the Hawks.

One newcomer, Russell Murphy, Randy's brother, is making his first tryout with the team and coach Klotz said he might be of great help with his experience.

Tom Powell, a transfer student from Muscatine Junior College, has shown "a good stroke in practice," and he is expected to fill one of the openings in the lineup vacated by the departing seniors.

Prediction Hard

Klotz predicted the Hawks would finish "somewhere in the middle" of the conference standings, and he said it was possible the Big 10 would not be as strong as usual.

"If this is so, and our kids develop, I would hesitate to say

Illinois Reveals Another Illegal Fund

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Receipts and expenditures from three illegal funds were disclosed Tuesday by the University of Illinois.

University President David D. Henry requested statements on them from vice president and comptroller of the university, H. W. Farber.

For the first time in the Illinois recruiting scandal has a third fund been revealed. It was called the "D. R. Mills" fund. Mills retired as athletic director Dec. 1.

Farber's report showed that in the football fund, from 1962 to Dec. 9, 1966, receipts were $15,354.77 and expenditures $14,378.99. In the basketball fund, from 1964 to Nov. 28, 1966, receipts were $10,520 and expenditures $7,043.96.

Farber said the D. R. Mills fund "was established by a transfer out of the receipts of the basketball fund and was set up presumably so that the director of SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois Senate, angered at the forced ouster of three University of Illinois coaches, voted Tuesday for a legislative probe of the relationship between the school and the Big 10 Conference.

Asked if the legislature might recommend Illinois withdraw from the Big 10, Sen. Joseph Peterson (R-Princeton) said: "Maybe there are some recommendations that ought to be made."

athletics could put money into either the basketball or football fund as the need might arise."

Farber's report showed only two payments out of this fund, for $90 and $100, both "for expenses incurred in the administration of the athletic program." Receipts in the fund as of March 1966 were $600 and expenditures $220.

Recent receipts of the basketball fund, until Nov. 28, 1966, of $2,700 have been returned to the donors, Farber said.

The balances of $776.04 in the basketball fund, $973.78 in the football fund and $380 in the Mills fund total $2,131.82.

Farber said a local business man, unidentified had the responsibility for receiving and disbursing the money as well as handling the bookkeeping. Contributions were made in the local area.

Farber's report added: "Disbursements were approved from the respective funds by the head coach, director of athletics or the assistant director."

Coach Promises 'New Look' From Hawk Baseball Squad

This spring marks the beginning of a new look in Iowa baseball. Newly named head Coach Dick Schultz promises to bring change and excitement to the program.

"Officially, I just got the title of head baseball coach last summer," says Schultz. "Even though I had to run the club on the field while the regular coach was incapacitated, I tried to do it the way he did and the way he liked to have it done."

"Of course, this year will be entirely my own. I think you will notice quite a few changes. Some of them are represented in the size of our schedule."

"Playing 49 games is going to give us more experience and more confidence and help us develop our younger players more. We have also been putting the boys through a strenuous conditioning program since Christmas."

Recruiting Active
"Our recruiting has also been more active," he says. Schultz has a pair of junior college transfers he is counting on for help. They are Jim Spiggos and Pete Marasco.

Spiggos comes from Wright Junior College in Chicago, Marasco from Grandview in Des Moines. Spiggos is a left-handed pitcher-outfielder who batted well above .300 for Wright last season.

Schultz expects Marasco to develop into a better hitter. "Though Pete did look good in fall practice," he said.

"We'll be a good ball club," asserts Schultz. "We will definitely be more aggressive and exciting to watch. And if we can develop one or two more aggressive hitters, I think we can be a contender."

"If we don't develop these, I think, because of our good defense, we can still be a first division ball club." In this case, according to Schultz, the Hawks will emphasize the hit-and-run.

The return of Lee Endsley, Russ Sumka and John Prina gives Iowa a wealth of infield experience. First baseman Mickey Moses graduated, but a replacement should come from Schultz's crop of sophomores and transfer students.

Catchers Return
Schultz also has catchers Bob Schneider and John Blackman back from last year's team to handle a veteran pitching staff. Four highly experienced pitchers return, three of them juniors. They are Donn Haugen, Tom Staack and Mike Linden. Frank Renner, a lefthanded reliever, is the senior returnee.

Haugen, Staack and Linden started for the Hawks last season. Staack lost a no-hitter to Michigan State late in the season.

"All our sophomores have good potential," says Schultz, and if they come through as well as our sophomores did last year, we should have a very good pitching staff. Its strong point will be depth."

Another major loss from last year's club, besides Moses, is outfielder Marc Mitchell. Mitchell led the club in hitting in the Big 10 race with a .300 plus average. He signed a contract with the San Francisco Giants.

Two other experienced outfielders return, however. They are centerfielder Larry Rathje from Davenport and Iowa City's Steve Hirko.
