Senate Gives Modified OK To Anti-War Mobilization

By ELAINE SCHROEDER
Staff Writer

The Student Senate voted 24 to 8 tonight in a special meeting to support the National Mobilization to End the War in Vietnam as a "constructive step toward rational discussion."

The modified resolution to support the mobilization was sponsored by Carl A. Varner, Thomas F. Stone, and Student Body Pres. John Pelton. It was introduced after the senate defeated a more extreme resolution sponsored by Frederick L. Wallace, G. New Haven, Conn., which would have required support of the mobilization's goals and objectives.

In addition, the senators voted to endorse the committee on Student Life's (CSL) recent interpretation of the present University policy concerning membership selection practices in campus organizations.

The resolution concerning the mobilization which the senate accepted stated, "The Student Senate at the University of Iowa must seek to adequately and effectively represent student interests."

The resolution also gives senate support to "intelligent and rational discussion concerning the efficacy of United States Vietnam policies."

The senators voted to urge a negotiated settlement with interested parties including the National Liberation Front, to oppose any further escalation of the war, to urge the Johnson administration to fully and honestly inform the American people of developments in Vietnam, to favor a thorough public questioning and examination of the military tactics used in Vietnam and to urge the cessation of the bombing in Vietnam.

In urging the acceptance of the resolution, Varner pointed out that he thought that his resolution would be more acceptable to the majority of the senate's constituents than that proposed by Wallace.

Wallace's resolution which was defeated by a vote of 16½ to 15½, called for full senate support of the mobilization, for the senate to be listed as a sponsor to the mobilization events, and for the senate to affix its name to the call for mobilization. It also provided for copies of the resolution to be sent to the President of the United States, the congressmen of Iowa, the governor of Iowa, the president of the University, CSL, the New York and San Francisco mobilization offices, the Des Moines Register and the New York Times.

The mobilization call states, "We call all Americans to unite and mobilize in a movement to end the senseless slaughter of American GIs and the mass murder of Vietnamese."

In addition, the call places the blame for many of the U.S. domestic problems, including high taxes, high prices and pollution, on the cost of the Vietnamese war.

Stone took a stand against this section of the resolution when he stated, "The point is that you can stop the war in Vietnam, but these problems will still go on."

Another point of opposition to the Wallace proposal was expressed by Varner, who stated, "It seems to me that we were elected to the senate by the student body and that this is not the will of the majority of that body."

Wallace retorted, "What is the interest of the students at the University of Iowa, to graduate and go over and die in Vietnam?"

Also in opposition to the Wallace resolution, William H. Joy, stated that similar opposition could have been directed toward "all the wars that we've ever had and that we're going to have."

Joy, commenting on the unruly atmosphere of the senate meeting, also stated, "I didn't vote for a special meeting for a circus like this to go on."

While the senate approved the less extreme of the resolutions proposed, some senators maintained violent opposition.

Robert J. Griffin, voiced this opposition as he gave his vote and stated that as a future Air Force pilot he would delight in "bombing the hell" out of the Communists.

Other senators who voted against the resolution were Nancy Spiehlman, Larry Goetsch, Dennis Schulke, Gary Cissel, Tom Osborne, Bruce Dugstad, Susan Parry, and Joy. Miss Spiehlman and Miss Parry each have a half vote as Burge Hall senators.

In voting to endorse the CSL interpretation of University policy on membership selection, the senators agreed to send a telegram to the head of the Board of Regents, Stanley Redeker, from Boone. Only three senators voted in opposition to the endorsement.

Carolyn Jean Heeren, A3, Geneseo, Ill., was among those senators voting for the endorsement. Miss Heeren represents University Women's Panhellenic Council which recently submitted a letter to CSL giving the group's reasons for defending a mandatory recommendations system. The endorsement passed Thursday has agreed with prohibiting recommendations.

Howard Treehubbuff was the only senator absent from the special meeting who did not send a substitute. Those sending substitutes were Jane Synhorst, Bill Scott, Glen Meredith and Diane Dennis.

Over 400,000 American servicemen are now directly involved in the war. Last week 177 were killed, 1,345 were wounded and three were missing in action. Losses in the week of March 26-April 1 were 194 killed and 1,679 wounded.

Viet Cong and North Vietnamese dead were recorded as 1,478, a sharp drop from the 2,449 of the previous week.

In an unusual procedure, a spokesman for Gen. William C. Westmoreland's command made a point of announcing American casualty totals for the war. He said 8,931 had been killed and 52,946 wounded in action since 1961. In the past newsmen have kept track of such figures unofficially with week-by-week tabulations.

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP) — Presidents of the Americas, in a historic summit compromise, agreed Thursday night on an eight-point blueprint for the future welfare of 230 million Latin Americans.

President Johnson and each of his fellow chiefs of state were expected to sign the document, with the exception of President Otto Arosemena of Ecuador, who was still huffy because the United States would not agree to a massive new aid program. But he could still change his mind.

While some Latin chief executives ap-

Frei told a news conference he preferred frankness and promises possible of completion to promises of greater appeal that could not be kept.

Peace Events Begin Today With Teach-In, Viet Rally

The first major Peace Week activity will begin on campus today when a teach-in, entitled "The War and the Quality of American Life," will be held from 12:45 to 5 p.m. in Calvin Hall.

Another Peace Week activity, a Vietnamese war protest march, will begin at 6 tonight at College Street Park and continue to the steps of Old Capitol, where a rally will be held. Donald L. Barnett, assistant professor of sociology and anthropology, will be moderator of the rally.

On Saturday students will travel by car to Des Moines to participate in a state-wide march on the state capitol at 9 a.m.

A fine arts program to be held at 7 p.m. Sunday in Macbride Auditorium to raise funds for the medical treatment of napalmed children in Vietnam will end the week of activities.

The teach-in, which will be moderated by John E. Grant, professor of English, will feature speeches by University faculty members and students.

The first block of speeches and speakers are the following: James F. McCue, assistant professor of religion — "A Critical Summary of the American Involvement in Vietnam;" Marvin Mandell, G. Iowa City — "Ethics of Warfare: What It Takes To Kill a Man;" William E. Conner, associate professor of internal medicine — "What Is a Man's Life Worth?"; and Eugene F. Peters, G. San Francisco, Calif. — "Ending the War."

Speakers in the second block of speeches are: Burns H. Weston, assistant professor of law — "The Legal and Ethical Status of the American Involvement in Vietnam;" Robert Bly, poet and editor of Sixties magazine, reading his own poetry; John Hunter, associate professor of English — "Senator Brooks' Conversion;" Roland K. Hawks, instructor in sociology and anthropology — "War and Alienated Intellectuals;" and Billy D. Cline, G. Iowa City — "Wars of National Liberation."

A question and answer period will be opened for the audience after both blocks of speeches. Closing the teach-in will be Laird C. Addis, assistant professor of philosophy, who will discuss "Negotiations," and Everett C. Frost, G. North Coventry, Conn., who will speak on "Toward a Radical Analysis of American Life."

Peace Week activities at the University coincide with similar activities taking place all over the nation as part of a program coordinated by the Spring Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam.

Organizations sponsoring activities at the University are Students for a Democratic Society, the Iowa Socialist League, the Vietnam Peace Committee, the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee and an ad hoc faculty committee.

Defense Springs Surprise Alibi In Speck Trial

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — The defense completed its case Thursday after presenting two witnesses who testified that Richard Speck left a Chicago tavern 1½ hours later than the state's star witness said she saw him in a townhouse where eight nurses were slain.

The alibi testimony came from Murrell Farmer and his wife, Gardena, employees of Kay's Pilot House, a bar and restaurant about 1½ miles from the nurses' living quarters on Chicago's South Side.

Then, with their stories in the record, the defense abruptly rested.

Final arguments were scheduled for Saturday, when the case is expected to go to the jury of seven men and five women.

Regents Discuss Autonomy Rule; Action Unlikely

By NIC GOERES

CEDAR FALLS — The State Board of Regents discussed Thursday the membership selection policies by the University Greek organizations but it appears the Board will take no action on the matter.

Discussion resulted from a letter to board Chairman Stanley Redeker, Boone, from Mrs. James C. Moore, president of the Cedar Rapids Panhellenic Council, protesting the University's policy of leaving final membership selection up to the local chapters of sororities and fraternities.

The policy states that no national organization or alumni group may interfere with the membership selection of a campus organization.

Although affecting many campus groups associated with a national organization, the ruling particularly hits many houses in the University Greek system, especially the mandatory recommendation system practiced by most local sororities.

The proposal also states that as of May 8, all such organizations must submit a statement to the Office of Student Affairs stating that their group has met or has started initial steps in meeting the Committee on Student Life's (CSL) requirement.

In a letter to Mrs. Moore, Redeker said the board policy prohibited discrimination on basis of race, creed or color, and that as a regent institution the University was subject to this policy.

Willard Boyd, dean of the faculties and vice president of academic affairs, said the national organization should be allowed to make recommendations but should not obligate the local chapter to those recommendations.

Mrs. Moore's letter charged that there were no Greeks on CSL, which had recommended the policy to Pres. Howard R. Bowen. According to Boyd, there are three Greeks on the committee.

Board member William Quarton, Cedar Rapids, said that the law allowed social organizations to choose its own members. Melvin Wolfe, a regent from Waterloo, said, "I'm not talking about the law. Social rights are as necessary as civil rights."

Quarton replied, "There is a big difference between social association and civil association."

Wolfe recommended that Greeks use voting as basis for selection.

"We live in a democratic society, so these organizations should select their members with democratic methods," he said.

University, City Police Gird For Peace March

By PHIL FLEMING
Staff Writer

Iowa City police and the University Campus Security Department are planning to keep a tight line on law enforcement at tonight's Vietnamese War protest march and rally.

City Manager Frank R. Smiley said city policemen "would be at the march as they would be at any other police function."

Smiley said, "The police will offer help if help is needed. Officers will be as tactful as they can be. They also will be as forceful as they have to be."

The march is being sponsored by the Spring Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam. The local demonstration has been planned to coincide with other marches to be held Saturday in New York and San Francisco.

A similar protest march was held last November and about 400 people were pelted with rocks, eggs, water balloons and cherry bombs. A resolution was passed by the Student Senate criticizing both the Iowa City police and the Campus Security Department for not providing sufficient protection.

Meetings Cited

Smiley said the procedure to be used in the parade was the result of a series of meetings between city and University officials. Taking part in the meetings, besides Smiley, were Police Chief John Ruppert, Campus Security Chief John Hanna, M. L. Huit, dean of Student Affairs, and Eugene F. Peters, G. San Francisco, who represented four University groups sponsoring the rally and march.

Smiley said uniformed officers from both departments had been assigned to the parade and rally to assure peace and order.

Ruppert said one squad car with two men would escort the marchers. He said a second car would bring up the end of the march.

Eight uniformed policemen will follow the parade on foot, according to Ruppert. He said an additional policeman would be riding a motorcycle and would be moving back and forth between the marchers.

Hanna said all available security men would be working the route of the march, both on foot and in patrol cars.

No Policy Set

He said security members would use whatever means necessary to preserve peace. He pointed out, however, that no set policy had been laid down as to how to handle any disturbance. He said their policy would have to depend upon the seriousness of the situation.

The police will be aided in their assignments by members of the Radio Emergency Associated Citizens Team (REACT). REACT is a civil defense organization which provides two-way radio communication and manpower to the police department.

REACT President Robert J. Stika, 716 E. Fairchild, said 25 members would be on hand, at police request, to handle traffic control. Stika said members would keep cars from interfering in the procession and would handle traffic at intersections.

Ruppert said the marchers would be allowed to parade in one-half of the street while the other half would remain open to traffic. Whole streets have been blocked off for marches in the past, Ruppert said.

Participants are scheduled to meet at 6 p.m. at the College Street Park, Hanna said. He said the protesters would then walk west on Washington Street to Clinton Street, north on Clinton to Iowa Avenue and then west to Old Capitol. The parade is scheduled to last 30 minutes, Ruppert said.

A public rally will be held in front of Old Capitol following the march. Donald L. Barnett, assistant professor of sociology and anthropology, will be moderator of the rally. The rally is scheduled to last about 45 minutes, according to Ruppert.

Coordinating the march and rally are the Students for a Democratic Society, the Iowa Socialist League, the Vietnam Peace Committee and the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee.

NEWS IN BRIEF

NEW YORK (AP) — State and city statutes aimed at racial discrimination in housing — a major cause of Negro unrest — faced strong white opposition from coast to coast Thursday. Proposed open housing laws already have been beaten back this year in some localities, and an Associated Press survey showed that similar proposals elsewhere are in for a rough trip.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Printers Union turned down a new contract offer from the Daily News Thursday, even though it contained the first cost-of-living adjustment in New York newspaper history.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate joined the Johnson administration Thursday by following Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's advice to repeal the still-untried presidential campaign-financing plan.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — North Korea agreed Thursday to meet the U.N. Command at Panmunjom truce village Friday to hear a protest against a clash in the demilitarized zone. At least three North Koreans and a South Korean were killed Thursday in the clash U.N. authorities called the largest since the 1953 Korean armistice. They said about 100 soldiers were engaged.

NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — A toxicologist testified Thursday he found lethal amounts of paralyzing drug in the brain of Carmela Coppolino and the defense claimed that it was "taken completely by surprise." The witness, Dr. Charles Joseph Umberger, said he probed for the drug and could say "with reasonable scientific certainty" that it was the cause of death.

American Presidents Reach Accord set for complete accord, still found "pretty general and solid satisfaction about the results."

Johnson, after limited promises of more trade and more aid, urged Latins to work out their own salvation with the United States as a friendly partner.

Ninety miles away Communist demonstrators clashed with Montevideo police as they protested the summit. Tight security kept them from the resort village where the chiefs of state were meeting.

Johnson called for a "decade of urgency" in Latin America to force prosperity and human dignity for "hundreds of millions to come."

Some Disagree
While some Latin chief executives appeared to find Johnson's pledges short of the mark they sought, President Eduardo Frei of Chile took a sympathetic view.

Frei told a news conference he preferred frankness and promises possible of completion to promises of greater appeal that could not be kept.

"We understand the problems of the U.S. President and of Congress," Frei said.

The plan of action covered exactly the agenda prepared by foreign ministers, except for minor editing.

The agenda called for a Latin-American common market, multinational projects, increased foreign trade, modernized agriculture, improved education, harnessed science and technology, expanded public health programs and elimination of un-essential military expenditures.

Several Latin presidents argued with Arosemena, trying to change his mind about refusing to sign. Johnson joined none of the debates.

Businessmen Irritated
U.S. businessmen displayed some irritation at Johnson's summit speech because it did not mention the role to be played by private industry in expanding the Latin-American economy.

"The private sector has to do 98 per cent of the work," said Paul Wallin, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce in Argentina. "The government will do 2 per cent."

Johnson's plea for Latin-American initiative, delivered at the final conference session, accompanied an apparent warming in relations between delegates.

The Latin American Free Trade Association, rated nearly moribund before the summit, moved into position alongside the schedule for the proposed Latin-American Common Market. The association announced tariff barriers will begin going down in 1970, reaching free trade by 1985. Chile, Colombia and Venezuela planned a regional free trade group.

Still, recognizing ancient regional feuds and special interests that have until now defeated common Latin action, Johnson asserted, "We cannot escape from our problems. In unity — and only in unity — is our strength." The barriers that deny the dream of a new America are stronger than the strongest among us, acting alone.

Peace needs protection

City and campus police have assured us that they have taken as many precautions as possible to stop trouble from erupting in tonight's National Mass Mobilization to End the War in Vietnam.

Two times last year student demonstrators were harassed with egg-throwing, threats and violence. Both times either the police weren't there or they did little to stop the harassment. We hope the precautions taken this year will eliminate this trouble.

Thirteen city policemen and all available campus security policemen will be patrolling the area. They will be able to concentrate on the march and will not have to worry about traffic control. This year, a citizens' band group (REACT) will be directing traffic.

Another precaution has been taken that should relieve tension throughout the march. The demonstrators will use only half of the streets; the other half will be used for traffic.

It is a shame that a peace march should cause so much concern to police officials. Until irresponsible youths and uninhibited adults once and for all are prevented from causing trouble at demonstrations, the trouble will breed upon itself. If bystanders can get by with raising Cain twice, they probably see no reason why they can't get by with it a third time.

We hope the third time is magic. If so, no one should have to walk away from the march with egg on his face.

Cabinet crisis

John Pelton has already had his first cabinet crisis, and that's not an easy thing for him to have since he doesn't yet have a cabinet.

At Tuesday night's Student Senate meeting Pelton asked for passage of a bill to establish an advisory presidential cabinet. The bill was worded "should have" so that the president could decide himself whether he wanted one.

The senators voted to change the bill to a resolution so that it would not go into the constitution and therefore would be effective only for this year. The resolution was later defeated.

Changing the bill to a resolution was a smart move on the part of the senate. Although the proposal would not have been binding, it would have caused future presidents to feel compelled to follow this precedent. The group might have become advisory in name only and might never have performed any function. We have enough of those groups already.

We disagree with the argument, however, that such a group would have been performing the same duty as the present senate. An informal, round-table discussion of 10 or so conscientious students interested in student government could be a great help to a president. Each would express his special interests and opinions without the hind of knowing his statements were bound to be criticized by constituents.

For these reasons we were sorry to see the resolution defeated. Pelton was asking a courtesy of the senate. He was asking them to approve an idea he had to better student government. Perhaps he should never have asked. He certainly was not obligated to do so.

The senate should have had the foresight to approve this resolution simply as an aid to their president.

Draft conference hears both sides

ST. LOUIS — Growing concern about the impact of the draft on American life and institutions was expressed here against the sounding board of the National Conference on the Draft, held on the campus of Washington University, April 6-8. Voices of dissent against the greatly accelerated military conscription in the United States were heard many times during the three-day conference, held under the sponsorship of the American Friends Service Committee.

A clash of differing opinions on the effect of the draft marked the opening of the conference as Dr. Vincent Harding, professor of history at Spelman College, Atlanta, Ga., charged that the Selective Service System is detrimental to democracy and "adds to the sense of brokenness and alienation that young people feel today."

Speaking in defense of military conscription as "a great teacher of democracy," bringing young men of various backgrounds together in the service of their country, was Col. Daniel O. Omer, Deputy Director of Selective Service, who spoke on the same platform with Dr. Harding.

A plea for Congress to reassume its role as a deliberative body which studies and reaches decisions on such matters as the Vietnam war and the draft was made by Congressman Thomas B. Curtis (R-Mo.) who protested Congressional rubber stamping and assailed the needless secrecy surrounding studies that have been made relating to the draft. He called for more public discussion on the draft and the Vietnam war so that people can be more informed and more "rational" foreign policy plans can be offered.

In a dialogue on "The Draft and Foreign Policy," Dr. Straughton Lynd, author, civil rights worker and professor of history at Yale University, asked Edward Woods Doherty, a member of the Policy Planning Council of the Department of State, to confirm or deny the truth of a rumor that, in the next few days or weeks, there will be a land invasion of North Vietnam.

Responding to the question briefly, Mr. Doherty dismissed the question as a "rhetorical trick" and asserted that the only honest answer he could give was "I don't know."

Also speaking at the session which put the focus on foreign policy were Gen. S. L. A. Marshall (ret.), writer and military analyst, and John Swomley, professor of social ethics at St. Paul School of Theology, Kansas City, Mo. Gen. Marshall expressed the belief that the present stage of civilization necessitates the maintaining of a strong military force. Although he admitted that most Americans dislike the principle of enforced military service, he asserted his conviction that there was no alternative course.

Prof. Swomley warned of the dangers inherent in permitting a growing draft and maintaining military garrisons around the world. He said the use of military conscription in support of foreign policy is not in the best interests of democracy.

Colin Bell, executive secretary of the American Friends Service Committee, cited the growth of the military in Germany to illustrate the dangers of giving growing strength to the military. He said the giving of power to the Administration to use conscription to make war without formal declaration of war was a further danger. He called upon the conferees to do something to rescue the word "service" and instill in it the proper idealism.

Noting that there is a great difference between service and servitude, Bell said he would prefer to use the word with reference to the "voluntary, internal impulse to usefulness, a response to constructive opportunity, and involvement in the common weal, a transmuting of sacrifice into joy of living."

Describing the draft as "involuntary servitude," Marvin Karparkin, acting legal director for the American Civil Liberties Union, said such service is inconsistent with the basic concepts of individual liberty. Dr. Karparkin, a member of the Bar Association of the City of New York, charged that the draft system was often involved in punitive acts in dealing with draft-age men.

Joining Dr. Karparkin in calling attention to dangers in the escalated U.S. program of conscription was Bruce K. Chapman, New York journalist and author, who advocated a volunteer professional military and expressed the view that the present military suffers from "an aura of compulsion."

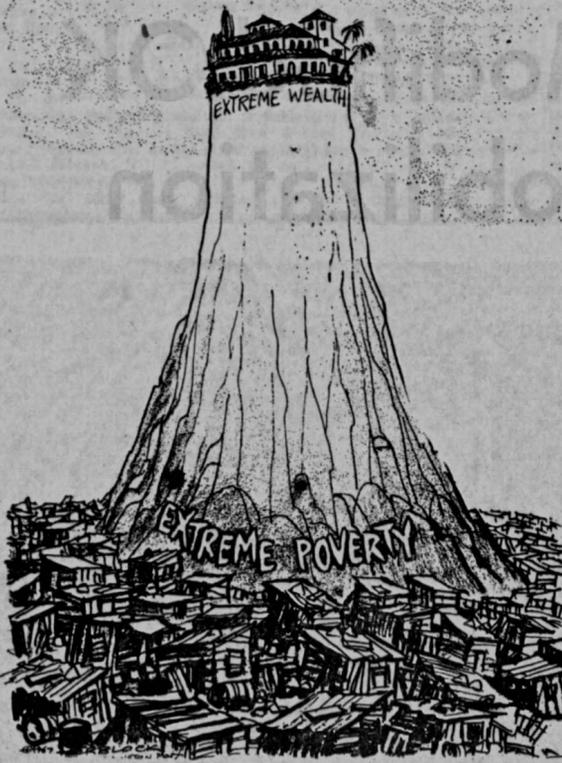

Sister Thomasine Cusack, professor of economics at Rosary College, River Forest, Ill., speaking on the socio-economic effects of the draft, called for creative alternatives to the draft, a closer look at the merits of a voluntary army and recognition by everyone that conscientious objection is a real and honest state of conscience.

Dr. William R. Keast, president of Wayne State University, Detroit, stated his conclusion that systematic deferment of college students should be eliminated as soon as possible.

"Though education and selective service are bound to affect each other in particular ways," he said, "the relation between them should be incidental, not essential, occasional, not pervasive, partial, not comprehensive."

A counselor for young men who have led to Canada as a result of conscientious objection to military service, John Pocock of Toronto, supported conscientious young men who were thus protesting the involvement of the United States in the Vietnam war. He said, "This is neither copping-out or opting-out, because there is no hiding place in the struggle."

The final speech at the National Conference on the Draft summed up the view of some of the leaders of the American Friends Service Committee, the sponsoring organization: "This conference is itself a demonstration of the precious freedoms we now enjoy. It is, believe, a vigorous exercise in patriotism, a word I refuse to surrender to any narrow political connotation. And I hope we shall practice that eternal vigilance which is the price of freedom."

Give 'em an inch ...

WASHINGTON — Last week Stokely Carmichael told the students at Fisk University in Nashville to take over the school. There have been similar suggestions made by radical speakers on other campuses, and it's hard for an outsider to figure out what exactly the far-out students would do if they did take over the school. Perhaps it would go something like this.

"Hey man, we are now in complete charge of Banana University. Since it was my idea, I'm the new chancellor."

"Crazy, I'm the president, Dirty Eddie is the new dean of men, Clara is the dean of women and Papa Pete is dean of medicine."
"Hey, Chancellor, there's a bunch of kids outside who want to know when classes are going to begin."
"Tell them they can start any time they want to."
"But there are no professors left. They all took off when you took over."
"Well, get some graduate students to teach them. They're on our side."
"The graduate students say they won't start teaching until they see some bread."
"We don't have any bread."
"I got it, Chancellor. Let's charge tuition and use that to pay the instructors."
"That's a good idea, Dirty Eddie. You announce it to the students. Tell 'em we need tuition to pay the teachers so classes can start again."

administration now and they're going to hang us all in effigy. The student newspaper has come out with an extra edition attacking our high-handed attitude in dealing with their demands."

"What are their demands?"
"They don't know. They said if we were sensitive to their feelings, we'd know what they should demand."

"Clara, you go out and talk to them. Maybe you can find out what they want."
Clara returns. "They're holding a rally now to demand our resignations. They said there will never be peace on campus until they have a say in the running of the school."

"But we represent them."
"Not any more we don't. David and Bathsheba have started a new organization called 'Students Against the Student Administration.' They said we have to negotiate with them or they're going to boycott our antidraft rally tomorrow."

"Oh, they are, are they? Well, we'll see about that. Get me the campus chief of police."
"Chief, this is Chancellor here. The students are holding an unauthorized rally on the promenade. I want your men to break it up and arrest the ring-leaders. Yes, use police dogs and billy clubs if you have to, and call in the National Guard only if it's absolutely necessary."
"Chancellor, the students have just set fire to your motorcycle."
"That does it. I'm going to resign. If that's all they care about higher education, they don't deserve a decent administration."
"We'll all resign. Let David and Bathsheba have the headchases of running this place."
"You said it. I'd rather be back on LSD anyway."
"Wouldn't we all?"

Vermont experiments

NEW YORK April 10 — An unprecedented integration of Catholic and public schools may be achieved in Swanton, Vt., where, according to The Insider's Newsletter, a citizens' committee has proposed a junior-senior high school that would bring 1,400 public and parochial students under one roof.

The committee, headed by the Rev. John R. LaBrake, has suggested that the students follow a standard high school curriculum in the public section of the campus.

In the adjacent "religious wing," Catholics would attend religion classes and non-Catholics could, if they wished, take religion courses offered by their own churches. The church-school — including interfaith chapel — would be built with voluntary contributions of private property. Its administration, separate from that of the public school, would be shared by all faiths. So far, The Newsletter says, local Methodist, Congregational and Episcopalian churches have expressed an interest in participating.

It is hoped by the committee that the new school would end reluctance on the part of Catholic parents in the heavily Catholic area to vote for badly-needed public school bonds.

Today on WSUI

● Pablo Casals is again the guest of honor on Great Recordings of the past at 11 a.m., Bach unaccompanied cello pieces will be played.

● At the other end of the day — and at the other end of the musical spectrum — is Carl Orff's opera "Antigone." Opera time is 7 p.m. The cast includes Inge Borkh in the title role, Ernest Haefliger and Kim Borg with Ferdinand Leitner conducting.

● Looking ahead to Saturday: The musical, Saturday morning at 8:30, will feature Frank Loesser's good old goodie, "Guys and Dolls."

● A two-hour look at the Vietnam teachings will be offered at 10 a.m. Saturday. It will include excerpts from earlier teachings and some observations on their success (or lack of it) and a prognosis for the health of the institution.

● Saturday Supplement, tomorrow following the News at Noon, will offer an analysis of current trends in student government.

Veterans group commander urges trial of Communists for war crimes

To the Editor:
Actions of recent days on the campus have disturbed me, but the lack of counter or positive displays of support for the Administration of our government have disturbed me even more.

Must there be another "Pearl Harbor?" Must there be a sinking of another "Maine" to awaken the citizens of this Country to the fact that we are engaged in a struggle to the death with totalitarian communism? I would not rather be red than dead.

Leaders of this Country over the past generation have decided that we must draw the line and not permit the spread of this Communist plague. Vietnam is one of these lines.

Among the students at Iowa, there are those who yell that we must try President Johnson as a war criminal for his actions in the killing of civilians in Vietnam. Are they so young and naive that they have forgotten that the Communists have killed 60 million people since they have taken power? These people were killed because they strove for freedom. Why not try the leaders of the Communist world?

I do not direct this letter to those who have been brainwashed by the Communist doctrine, for I doubt that this letter will move them from their appointed task of undermining the very freedoms which they utilize to spread their hate-loaded doctrine. I do direct this letter to those of you who sit quietly by and do nothing.

I am proud to represent an organization of those Americans who over the years have stood up and have placed their lives on the line to defend this Country during periods of national peril. As Department Commander of the Disabled American Veterans of Iowa, I urge you Americans who love freedom and this country to stand up and be counted. I urge you to repeat the resolve of American Creed which is as follows:

"I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its Constitution, to obey its laws, to respect its flag and to defend it against all enemies."

I urge you to display to the world at large that you are of that stock of America that has shown the world in the trenches of France, at Omaha Beach, Pork Chop Hill, and even at Da Nang that we will fight to live up to our commitments and our convictions.

As much as you and I and this whole nation desire peace, and as much as we pray for peace, we must in the end be ready to fight for peace.

Students Air Pros, Cons Of Dorm Life

EDITOR NOTE — This is the first part of a series about University housing.
By RACHAEL ROBERTS
Staff Writer

The visitor who walks into the spacious lounges or has a coke in the attractive coffee shops at the dormitories knows little about problems residents beyond the showplaces face.

"Beige walls are not very stimulating," Lynn Weiss, A2, Skokie, Ill., said when she described her room in Currier Hall. "The room needs color — some spice and spark, just as the dormitory itself needs."

In keeping with the color beige, Miss Weiss saw no individuality or warmth in the dormitory. Instead she saw regimentation and an atmosphere of coldness.

Genuineness Noted
But Miss Weiss saw a quality of genuineness in her co-residents in contrast to the physical atmosphere. Whether one could have an influence on the other was debatable, she said.

On the other hand, Patricia Kingman, A2, Collins, said that dormitory life was most compatible with being a student.

"I lived in an apartment for a year, and I do not think every student can cope with that type of life," said Miss Kingman, who now lives in Currier.

Miss Kingman saw the present system of hours as insufficient. She said that she could see nothing wrong with sophomores having privileged hours, if they had parental consent.

The head counselor at Burge Hall, Dorothy Bridley, said that she thought the University was heading toward the abolishment of hours. She noted that other schools throughout the nation were slowly moving in this direction.

Meals Discussed
Although the girls interviewed did not complain about dormitory food, many men in the dormitories said they did not care for it.

However, Timothy Hoffman, A1, Sioux City, commented that the only good thing about living in the dorm was the regular meals.

Jerome Beckman, residence halls adviser at Hillcrest, said he was proud of the food the dormitories served.

"Second helpings are always available," Beckman commented. "Let's see how many students can go up to a counter downtown for seconds and not get charged."

"Each dormitory has a different menu each day," Beckman explained. There is no standard menu for every dormitory.

Noon Meals Missed
Miss Bridley admitted there was a small problem concerning girls in the dormitories who were not able to take advantage of some meals, especially the noon meals. For example, some nursing students have classes across the river all day.

About a month ago questionnaires which dealt with meals the girls missed and why were distributed to many girls living in dorms.

Miss Bridley said she thought it would be better for the girls and the residence halls' dining service if some accommodation could be worked out for those who could not take advantage of regular meals in the dormitories.

As a result, dormitory dining services would not prepare an excess of food. It was suggested something could be worked out with the Union which would allow the residents to eat their noon meal there.

Michael Hetherington, A1, Davenport, who lives at Hillcrest complained, "The dormitory is crowded and noisy, but dormitories on the whole are not as bad as many claim."

Dorms Noisy
However, Barbara Egan, A3, Fairfield, who lives in Currier Hall, said she and her roommate saw no disturbance of their privacy, although she agreed that the dormitories tended to be noisy.

"While the dormitories do get noisy at times," Dixie Brusich, A1, Peoria, Ill., said, "They are wonderful for new students. One learns about others' customs, beliefs, and personalities." Miss Brusich lives at Burge.

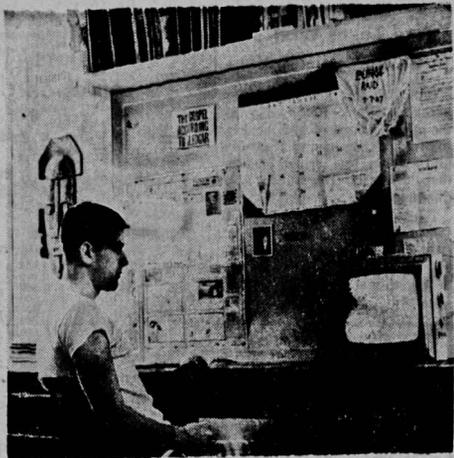

Donna Kuen, N2, Estherville, who lives in Currier agreed with Miss Brusich when she said that she liked the dorms because of the opportunities to visit co-residents' rooms during the day.

"If a student prefers an independent atmosphere, a small group of friends, and is interested in minimizing costs, the dormitory is not for him," Miss Bridley said.

Freshmen Benefited
Beckman said the incoming student lived in the dormitory, especially at first, in order to meet people.

"Then the student recognizes the convenience of the dormitory," Beckman stated. "The resident can take part in planned social events and student government."

"When the student decides that he does not need the convenience of dormitory life any longer, he moves out," Beckman explained. "Many 'outgrow' the dormitory, and desire more independence." Miss Bridley estimated that about 75 per cent of Burge housed freshmen, while Beckman estimated Hillcrest to board 59 per cent freshmen.

Beckman was pleased with the proposal to switch some of the residents on both sides of the river to the other side. He said it was quite possible to house boys in Kate Daum and girls in Rienow II, now under construction. Students will be allowed to vote on the proposal in the near future.

U-Heights Seeks Methods To Deal With Student Cars

Students parking and "storing" cars in University Heights to avoid University parking fees was seen as a problem at that town's council meeting Thursday night.

Councilman George W. Larsen said a student car recently was parked in front of his house at 300 Koser Ave. for four days.

Town Marshal Esther Anna Winters ticketed the car each day without effective results, Larsen said.

Mrs. Winters told the council that parking illegally was a special problem in U-Heights on football weekends. She said the blocking of alleys and driveways was a common complaint.

In reply to the statement that an ordinance to handle such parking situations was needed, Mrs. Winters, a grandmother, said, "We've sure towed a lot of them away, for having no ordinance." She said a local towing service was called and the cost of towing charged to the violator.

U-Heights Atty. Alan R. Leff was authorized by the council to draft an ordinance specifically dealing with unwanted storage of vehicles and legally providing that they may be towed away in that town.

The process of adopting more comprehensive and specific conduct and traffic ordinances to conform with those of Iowa City was also begun. Iowa City currently furnishes police protection to the town as part of its service contract with University Heights. Also at the council meeting street improvements, especially considered for Melrose Avenue, were tabled for further consideration. Jim Shrive, of Shrive-Hall Hattery Engineer Service, presented estimates for street and sidewalk improvements that would cost U-Heights $74,000.

Mayor Chan Coulter said that widening Melrose Avenue was not something to be "jumped into." He said no one could be sure what Iowa City might do to change the importance of costly road improvements.

"We don't want to build a road from no place to no place," he said.

CSL Details Ruling On Local Autonomy

The Committee on Student Life (CSL), in reply to a letter from the University Women's Panhellenic Association, Thursday clarified its interpretation of the Code of Student Life section dealing with local autonomy of membership selection in student organizations.

CSL approved a proposal March 23 stating that no national or organization or alumni group may interfere with the membership selection of a campus organization.

This ruling particularly affects the University Greek system, especially most local fraternities, because they practice a mandatory recommendation system.

An open meeting was held last Saturday to discuss the proposal, which also states that all organizations affected must submit a statement to the Office of Student Affairs by May 8 stating that their group has met or has started initial steps in meeting CSL's requirements.

Requirements Stated
Thomas F. Stone, L2, Iowa City, a CSL member, said after Thursday's meeting, "The ruling does not say a group may not have recommendations, but that recommendations from an alumnus of the organization must not be a requirement for membership by either the national or local constitution or bylaws."

Stone said that the key word was "required," and that the question was not really one of local autonomy but one of discrimination.

He said, "A group must have total ability to pledge a member without any outside interference which would imply possible discrimination."

Student Body Pres. John T. Pelton, a CSL member, said, "A group may receive a recommendation from someone who knows the proposed member and his character, but this must not be restricted to an alumnus of the organization."

System Defended

The letter from the Women's Panhellenic Association presented the group's reasons for defending a mandatory recommendation system. Among those were that the system was a vital tie with the national organization on whom the chapter depended for guidance and financial assistance, and that recommendations were needed on a large campus where most of the girls participating in rush were unknown.

The Panhellenic letter stated, "The Women's Panhellenic Association feels that the revocation for the present required recommendation system, at this time, would be a step backward. We have tried to envision a system of membership without the required recommendation practice, but we cannot see that it would be an improvement for the previously stated reasons."

'64 Campaign By Goldwater Called Favor

WASHINGTON (AP)—Politician F. Clifton White asserts that Barry Goldwater never wanted to be president and ran "only to satisfy his friends and the millions of people who had joined the conservative movement."

White, an early backer, quotes Goldwater as saying after the assassination of John F. Kennedy that he would not run, but that he changed his mind after political allies told him it would appear he was "betraying the conservative cause."

"Never having had any real desire for the presidency," White said, "he went through the motions of campaigning for the nomination and election, but his heart was never in it."

White, a key figure in the draft movement and the campaign which made Goldwater the 1964 Republican presidential nominee, makes those statements in his book "Suite 3505," published Thursday. President Johnson trounced Goldwater in the 1964 election, but White contends the outcome might have been different had Kennedy lived to run for re-election.

O'Brien Warns Of Mail Tie-Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien, who wants to abolish the Post Office Department as a Cabinet agency, said Thursday that a chaotic tie-up of mail could strike any major city.

"There may be some honest disagreement with my suggestion that the postal service become a government corporation," O'Brien told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee.

Developer Seeks Site For Low-Rent Housing

If the Iowa City Planning and Zoning Commission and Council approve a rezoning request from Chicago real estate developer Robert Bartelt, University students will get a break on apartment rental costs.

Bartelt requested that a 74-acre site south of Hawkeye Apartments and west of the new Westside High School be rezoned from single-family residential zone to a combination of multi-family and commercial zones.

Bartelt spoke to the commission at their Thursday afternoon meeting.

The proposed one, two and three-bedroom apartments to be built on the site would rent for substantially less than the Iowa City average, said Bartelt.

He said the apartment construction would be partially financed from federal funds made available through the Federal Housing Administration (FHA).

Returns Limited
Under government provisions, return on private investment in such an apartment enterprise would be limited to a certain percentage, said Bartelt.

In the case of a $1-million project, he said, the FHA would provide $900,000 and the remaining $100,000 would be private investment. Under these conditions, the government would allow no more than $6,600 per year net return to the owner, he said.

Bartelt stressed that the housing would be open occupancy and not federal supplement-income type. He added, that because government funds, would be involved, the apartments may have to be built in phases.

Priority Cited
However, Barry Lundberg, director of planning and urban renewal, said that under the provisions of the FHA and federal urban renewal, persons displaced by renewal projects would have priority in renting the apartments.

The finance savings from using government funds and the provisions curbing profits are the reasons for the lower rental price, said Bartelt. He said a private developer charges high rents in order to expand his profits.

He said that in a university town, there are two types of people — the "haves and the have-nots." Students, usually the have-nots, can't afford the high cost of rent, he said.

The apartments would not be high rise grouped into rows, but rather will be single units containing eight apartments each grouped in circles of five, said Bartelt.

Conference Cancelled

Cancellation of the Big 10 Inter-Collegiate Conference previously scheduled to be held at the Union, today and Saturday, was announced Thursday.

A lack of response on the part of other regional universities and colleges invited to participate was given as the reason for the conference's cancellation, according to Dean L. Rosen, A3, Des Moines, conference publicity chairman.

Baseball Team Vs. Bradley, Tennis Team Opens Today

Weather-permitting, Iowa's baseball team will face a strong Bradley University team on the Iowa field today at 3:30 p.m.

Heavy rains have turned the playing field into a quagmire of mud in the last two days and Iowa baseball coach Dick Schultz was still uncertain Thursday night as to whether or not the field could be prepared in time for the game.

"It all depends on the weather," Schultz said. "If we have any kind of drying weather at all we should be able to get the field ready in time."

Schultz said he would probably start Donn Haugen in today's game, but also said he planned to use Ben Banta and Jim Koering in the game.

Bradley, which has a 6-1 record, is also scheduled to face the Hawkeyes in a doubleheader

SCHULTZ

Saturday, starting at 1 p.m. Iowa's tennis team is also slated to be in action today. It travels to Ohio State for the first Big 10 meet of 1967 today and then faces Indiana Saturday.

"The team has been coming along real well," Coach Don Klotz said Wednesday. "That competition in Arizona did us a world of good and I've been very pleased with the team's progress."

Klotz said that his team would probably place about fifth or sixth in this year's conference race, and possibly higher if a few young players developed. He picked Michigan and Michigan State as the teams to beat in the conference race.

Black Hawks Win

TORONTO (AP) — Eric Nesterenko's tie-breaking goal in the third period helped carry the Chicago Black Hawks to a 4-3 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs Thursday night in the Stanley Cup playoffs, tying the best-of-7 semifinal series at two games each.

The fifth game will be played in Chicago Saturday afternoon and the sixth in Toronto next Tuesday night.

If a seventh game is needed, it will be played in Chicago next Thursday night.

Birds Win Again As Frank, Brooks Connect For HRs

BALTIMORE (AP) — Frank Robinson socked two homers and Brooks Robinson one as the Baltimore Orioles crushed the Minnesota Twins 7-1 Thursday behind the four-hit pitching of Jim Palmer.

Frank, who hit 49 home runs in 1966 when he was the American League's Most Valuable Player, F. ROBINSON connected off loser Dean Chance in the first and third innings. Brooks blasted the first pitch from reliever Jim Ollom in the fifth.

Chance, who has lost 10 of his last 13 decisions against Baltimore, was driven from the mound in the fourth as the Orioles scored four runs.

Paul Blair capped the rally with a two-run single after a bases-loaded walk to Palmer and a sacrifice fly by Luis Aparicio accounted for the first two runs. Jim Grant relieved Chance after Blair's hit.

Hansen's Double Lets White Sox Win In 9th, 8-5

BOSTON (AP) — Ron Hansen's bases-loaded double highlighted a five-run ninth inning rally that enabled the Chicago White Sox to beat Boston 8-5 in an error-filled baseball game Thursday.

Hansen's double scored Tommie Agee and Tom McCraw, putting the White Sox ahead 6-5. Hansen followed with a two-run single.

The Red Sox made three errors during the big inning, two by third baseman Joe Foy. Boston had taken a 4-3 lead in the sixth inning on three unearned runs. After a single by Carl Yastrzemski, shortstop Ron Hansen and second baseman Adair committed consecutive errors to let one run in. Rico Petricelli drove in the tying run with a single and Mike Ryan's single put the Red Sox in front.

There were seven errors in the game, five by Boston.

Mets Get 1st Win, Edge Pirates, 3-2

NEW YORK (AP) — Chuck Hiller's pinch double drove in the winning run in the eighth inning Thursday as the New York Mets edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 with effective relief pitching by Chuck Estrada and Ron Taylor.

A slim crowd of 5,005 at Shea Stadium saw the Mets score their first victory of the season and end Vernon Law's long jinx over them.

Law, who relieved Woody Fryman in the fifth inning with the score tied 2-2, was rapped for the tie-breaking run with two out in the eighth. Jerry Buchek, who hit a two-run homer off Fryman in the second inning, started the eighth with a single to left. He went to second on Jerry Grote's sacrifice and scored when Hiller, batting for the once-sore armed Estrada, doubled to right center.

The Pirates got their two runs off rookie right-hander Tom Seaver.

-26 Lettermen Return-

Springs Drills Begin Today

By RON BLISS
Assistant Sports Editor

The development of a strong defense will be the main task facing Iowa football Coach Ray Nagel and his staff today when 72 Hawk-eyes take to the practice field at 4 p.m. for the opening of spring football drills.

The Hawkeyes will have the allowed 20 drills within the calendar month, working daily except Fridays and Sundays. Spring practice will come to an end Saturday, May 13 when the team stages an intrasquad game in the Iowa Stadium.

The squad, some 20 smaller than a year ago, includes 26 lettermen, but many positions are wide open—especially on defense.

The defense may well determine whether or not the Hawk-eyes can make a strong showing in the Big 10 race next fall and for that reason the Iowa staff will concentrate mainly on that area.

Seven key defensive men were lost by graduation, including five starters, leaving five positions on the defensive unit wide open.

Those defensive starters returning include John Hendricks, a 6-3, 228-pound middle guard; John Evenden, a 6-3, 259-pound tackle; Andy Jackton, a 6-2, 173-pound end; Scott Miller, a 6-2, 197-pound end; Guy Bilek, a 6-1, 172-pound back; and Bill McCutchen, a 6-0, 189-pound safety.

Nagel is hoping he can find most of his defensive replacements among a fine group of freshmen players, but is also hoping that the return of two lettermen, who missed the 1966 season with injuries, will bolster the squad.

They are John Diehl, a 6-3, 225-pound defensive tackle, who missed the 1966 season with a broken shoulder, and Terry Huff, a muscular 6-1, 210-pound linebacker, who was bothered by a sore shoulder last season.

Offensive linemen returning are Al Bream and Paul Usinowicz; tackles Bill Smith and Mike Lavery; guards Jeff Newland and Phil Major; and placekicker Bob Anderson.

Several freshmen will be challenging for positions, Nagel said. Among them will be offensive linemen Jon Meskimen, a 240-pound guard; Larry Ely, a 225-pound guard; Melvin Morris, a 245-pound tackle; Al Schuette, a 175-pound end; Greg Allison, a 220-pound linebacker; Rodney Barnhart, a 196-pound linebacker; Pat Dunnigan, a 190-pound halfback; John Shew, a 200-pound fullback or halfback; and Tim Sullivan, a 225-pound fullback.

Sullivan seems the most likely to find a starting position on the offensive squad. The bruising fullback, who rambled for 138 yards in one freshman game last season, is expected to fill in at fullback, allowing McKinnie, who at 195 pounds is somewhat small for a fullback, to move to a tailback position.

Clay Squelches Reports That He'll Enter Service

CHICAGO (AP) — World heavyweight champion Cassius Clay has squelched the report that he would enter military service as a reluctant draftee, to please his mother.

Clay, known as Muhammad Ali and a fervent Black Muslim, told The Associated Press Thursday he never made the statement, attributed to him at Las Vegas, Nev., Tuesday, that he would enter the Army because "it would break my mother's heart if I didn't."

In a long explanation of his devotion to the Muslim faith, Clay made it plain that when it came time for his scheduled induction at Houston April 28, he would make a decision "between the laws of the U.S. Government and Allah."

"I'll make that decision when the moment comes that I face just one man, Uncle Sam," said Clay, whose scheduled title rematch with Floyd Patterson April 25 was knocked out of Las Vegas and Pittsburgh the past two days.

As for his alleged comment at the Las Vegas airport that he would enter the Army for his mother's sake, Clay asserted: "I didn't say that. I didn't say anything like that. I don't know how it got out. Somebody was trying to start something. That was something they wish I had said, but I said nothing like that."

Coach Nagel's other assistants include Bob Watson, Frank Gilliam, Ted Lawrence, Gordon Lee, Lynn Stiles and Bud Tynes.

The 1966 schedule includes home games with Texas Christian, Oregon State, Purdue, Minnesota and Illinois. Road games are with Notre Dame, Indiana, Wisconsin, Northwestern and Ohio State.

NAGEL

'I'm Ready,' Says Podolak

By CHUCK WANNINGER
Staff Writer

When Iowa football Coach Ray Nagel leads his players out on to the field to begin spring practice today, he will have at least one less problem than he had last year.

Last year, Nagel's first at Iowa, he was looking for a Big 10 caliber quarterback without much reason to hope that he would find one. This year it is different. He has a Big 10 caliber quarterback, perhaps one of the best in the conference. That man is Ed Podolak.

Wins Coin Toss
Last fall before the first game, against Arizona, Nagel decided on his quarterback with the flip of a coin. Podolak won the coin toss, and then went on to win over the Hawkeyes fans. In his first college game, Podolak scored 2 touchdowns, passed for another, and led Iowa to a 31-20 victory. He was named Midwest Back of the Week.

Podolak played quarterback the rest of the year, developing a little every week. When the season ended, statistics showed that Podolak ranked just below Purdue All-America Bob Griese in total offense with 1,491 yards.

But all that is past, and today Podolak and the rest of the Hawks begin working for the 1967 year. "Ready? You bet I'm ready!" Podolak said Thursday.

Works On Passing
"Last year I was out to prove myself. Of course, I'll have to do that all over again," said Podolak. "But this spring I'll be able to work more on improving myself."

"I'll work especially on my passing game. I wasn't very happy with it last year, especially during the first half of the season," said Podolak.

Podolak completed 77 of 191 passes last year for 1,041 yards and 3 touchdowns. He has been working out with his principle receivers of last year Al Bream, Barry Crees, and John Hayes.

He has also been lifting weights and running, in addition to doing some special exercises. Gymnastics Coach Sam Baillie gave the football players throughout the winter.

Podolak was also a member of the baseball team until he quit last week.

"Coach Nagel had given me permission to play, but it was just taking up too much of my time. I miss it a little, but I decided to concentrate on spring football," Podolak said, explaining his decision.

Mays, McCovey Help Giants Top Braves, 2-0

ATLANTA (AP) — Willie Mays and Willie McCovey powered San Francisco to a 2-0 National League victory over Atlanta Thursday night, slamming homers to back up the four-hit pitching of Gaylord Perry.

The lean right-hander was never in trouble in his first start of the year, and didn't allow a hit until the fourth inning when Hank Aaron bounced a double off third baseman Jim Hart's glove.

The loss in the Braves' home opener watched by 33,225 was Atlanta's third straight setback. San Francisco evened its record at 1-1.

San Fran. 100 100 000-2 8 0
Atlanta 000 000-0 4 1

Reds Dump Astros, 5-4

CINCINNATI (AP) — Deron Johnson drove in three runs, two with a decisive home run in the fifth inning, and carried the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-4 victory over the Houston Astros before a small crowd of 4,392 Thursday night.

Johnson, who singled home a first inning run for a 1-1 tie, put the Reds ahead 5-1 with his homer off loser Dave Giusti.

Tony Perez broke the deadlock in the fourth inning with a solo homer and John Edwards followed with a run - scoring single after Leo Cardenas bunted safely and stole second base.

ED PODOLAK
Key To Iowa Attack

The Hawks suffered through four early games last fall, and Podolak suffered too. "Of course I was down on myself the early part of the season. Any athlete gets down when he isn't winning."

"But Coach Nagel kept the spirit up. He really helped me a lot. He kept giving me pointers, and he showed that he had confidence in me. That confidence is the most important thing for a quarterback," Podolak said.

Podolak is not used to being a loser. At Atlantic High School he won 13 varsity letters. He quarterbacked his football team to 23 straight victories, and also played in two state basketball tournaments.

"I didn't run as much in high school. And when I threw it was either from a straight drop-back position, or I threw on the run."

"Now we use the semi-rollout where I throw from behind the tackle. This was the toughest adjustment for me," Podolak said.

He May Coach
Podolak is a math major. He plans to get his degree in business administration, then a master's degree in math. And he is keeping open the possibility of college coaching as a career.

"Pro football? I guess everybody thinks of that, but I have so far to go . . ." said Podolak.

Podolak insisted that he was not in the prediction business, but said that Purdue, Michigan State, and Ohio State would be tough competition next fall.

"Iowa? You can bet we're going to have a real good year," Podolak vowed.

Orioles Recall Barber

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles recalled veteran southpaw pitcher Steve Barber Thursday from their minor league training camp at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Barber was relegated to the minor loop camp a week ago Wednesday after he developed arm trouble at the Birds' Miami training camp.

UNION BOARD HAS A BETTER IDEA

So, you made a score at the local party raid, well what do you have to show for it besides a court summons and a bit of silk. Don't get us wrong, the Union Board doesn't have anything against a little good clean fun. Quite the opposite, we endorse it! (Not party raids — good clean fun.)

UB Outings and Crafts Area offers a multitude of spring activities tailored to the students needs. For example, UB Afternoon Off committee plans kite flying, hiking and canoeing excursions to satisfy your lust for the great outdoors.

But if your lust is for the great indoors, UB Tours committee sponsors trips to the Amana Colonies, the Chicago Art Institute and the Museum of Science and Industry.

So, wherever your lust lies, UB has an activity for you.

Hawaiian Film Is Last In Mountaineers Series

Hawaii's famed Waikiki Beach figures in opening and closing sequences of "Here's Hawaii," a color motion picture to be narrated as the closing program of the 1966-67 Iowa Mountaineers Film-Lecture Series.

Willis Butler, former faculty member of Northwestern University's School of Speech and a producer of lecture films, will present the film on Hawaii at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in Macbride Auditorium.

Scenic highlights of the film will include views from mountains on the island of Oahu overlooking Honolulu and the island's coastline, a boat trip up the Waiau River on the island of Kauai, and views of Waimea Canyon.

Prof. Lawler To Present Lecture On Greek Dance

Lillian B. Lawler, 14 W. Court St., visiting professor of classics, and professor emerita of classics at Hunter College, will lecture on "The Greek Dance" at 8 p.m. Monday in the Senate Chamber of Old Capitol.

Prof. Lawler's lecture is being sponsored by the campus-based Epsilon chapter of Eta Sigma Phi national honorary fraternity in classics.

Prof. Lawler is considered to be an authority on the Greek dance. She has had extensive training, accomplishments, and experience in the field.

She received her B.A. degree from the University of Pittsburgh. Her M.A. and Ph.D. degrees were earned at the University.

After graduating from the University, she had "a brief teaching interlude" at the University of Kansas. From there she went to Hunter College, which is a part of the City University of New York (CUNY).

Prof. Lawler taught for 30 years at Hunter College. She began teaching there as an instructor and when she retired in 1959, she was a full professor.

Besides teaching classics, Prof. Lawler has written and traveled extensively. She would not describe herself as the only scholar in the country who specializes in the Greek dance. But she modestly said, "You might say I am the only scholar in the country who has written a book on the Greek dance."

She has written two books on the subject: "The Dance in Ancient Greece" and "The Dance of the Ancient Greek Theatre." In all, Prof. Lawler has written seven books. Some of them are about Latin. In addition, she has written about 100 articles on the Greek dance.

To get much of her information and satisfy her general interest in dances, Prof. Lawler has traveled around the world in such places as: Pango Pango in American Samoa, Canton, China of the Kwangtung Province, and Innsbruck, Austria.

Heavy Rains Cause Outage In Iowa City

More than 300 Iowa City residents were without electric service Thursday as heavy rains caused a burn-out in an electric capacitor located in the alley just north of the post office.

"We don't know exactly what happened yet," said Roy Finley, Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric Company Manager. "It's just guessing, but we think the capacitor got wet and caused a big load to be thrown onto the adjacent wires."

The city received over an inch of rain Thursday.

When an exceptionally heavy unit of electricity is thrown onto electric wires, they have a tendency to jump back and forth Finley said.

"We think the wires jumped enough to touch and burn in two," he added. "However, we are not sure that this is what happened."

He said that more than 300 homes were without electric service for almost an hour beginning at 8:50 a.m. "There were 60 to 65 homes without electricity for more than three hours," Finley said.

The areas without electric service were along Linn and Gilbert Streets north to Market Street, the area along Van Buken Iowa Streets, and the area just north of Washington Street west to Clinton, he said.

Viet Poster Explodes

NEW YORK (AP) — A poster opposing the war in Vietnam, with explosives hidden behind it, blew up in the face of a schoolboy Thursday causing him minor facial injuries. Authorities said they had found two other booby-trapped posters similar to the one that injured Leon Harf, 15, as he walked along a street. Police said young Harf decided to investigate the poster when he noticed it bulged in the middle.

Thousands Battle Oil Slick; French North Coast At Stake

SAINT-POL-DE-LEON, France (AP) — The largest oil slick yet from tanker Torrey Canyon neared the French coast Thursday night as thousands of workers battled the black tide along 60 miles of the north coast.

Officials said the new threat was a slick of crude oil covering 285 square yards of the sea. It was blown southeast toward the island of Quessant and the Brest area.

Volunteers of every type, from inland farmers to fishing village children, scooped up the sludge all along the coast of the northwestern tip of France. Army and navy units spelled each other with shovels and washbuds.

Improvised floating dikes up to 10 miles long, made of everything from straw to plastic foam, were being strung out by boatsmen to guard river mouths, oyster farms and lobster beds. At least one such dam has been given up as a failure, however.

Interior Minister Christian Pouchet announced that the government was mobilizing a fleet of 20 naval and civilian vessels to dump sand and sawdust on the floating patches of oil offshore in a massive effort to keep it from reaching the coastline.

The oil spewed into the ocean off Cornwall in Britain from the disabled tanker Torrey Canyon last month.

By dumping sand and sawdust on the floating patches, technicians hope to form coagulated masses that will sink.

Doctors Keeping Vigil As Adenauer Worsens

RHOENDORF, Germany (AP) — Doctors kept anxious vigil Thursday over Konrad Adenauer, the grand old man of West German politics, seriously ill with flu and bronchitis.

As medical bulletins reported the 91-year-old former chancellor was weakening, his old friend, French President Charles de Gaulle, wished him speedy recovery. Pope Paul VI sent a similar message.

A spokesman for the Christian Democratic party said there had been no change in Adenauer's condition up to 5 p.m. here from the morning medical bulletin, which said: "the organism's powers of resistance are declining. Heart and circulatory functions are weaker."

Hope Remains
Newsmen saw two oxygen tanks being carried into Adenauer's home during the afternoon. No official comment was available on this.

A spokesman said shortly after 7 p.m. here, "We have not given up hope."
Adenauer was in his family home, which is perched on a hillside overlooking the Rhine River in this sleepy, well-scrubbed village of just under 2,000 persons.

At his bedside were his personal physician, Dr. Ella Beber-Buch, and members of his family.

Memoirs Written
Adenauer has lived in Rhoendorf since the Nazis forced him to resign as mayor of Cologne before World War II. Since his retirement as chancellor in 1963 he has been writing his memoirs. He had a glass-walled bungalow built near the house to serve as a work room.

Adenauer has had a bout with the flu almost every winter since he became West Germany's first chancellor in 1949. On each occasion, newsmen and photographers kept vigil at his house.

All medical bulletins were issued in Bonn by Adenauer's Christian Democratic party.

TAX DELINQUENTS INCREASE
WASHINGTON (AP) — More than one million individuals and employers failed to pay more than $1.4 billion federal taxes due last year, the Senate was told Thursday. Sen. John J. Williams (R-Ind.) filed his 13th annual report on delinquent taxes showing a 12 per cent rise in the dollar value of unpaid accounts in 1966 over 1965.

4 Students To Present Dance Show

Four senior and graduate dance students will present their work in the Young Choreographers Concert at 8 tonight in Macbride Auditorium.

In the first half of the program, Diana Dinsmore, A4, McLean, Va., and Pamela Clark, A4, Lenox, Ill., will attempt to demonstrate the proficiency required of all undergraduates who major in dance and chose to emphasize dance as a performing art.

As a fulfillment of their Master's thesis in choreographic design, Linda Cox, G, Iowa City, and Linda Lee, G, Des Moines, will direct the final portion of the program.

Marcia Thayer, instructor in physical education and director of the Dance Theatre, said both the senior and graduate majors were required to show ability in choreographing dances for the program, which will include groups of various sizes and solo figures.

Ad Program To Recognize Top Seniors

Two seniors in the School of Journalism have been selected as outstanding advertising students at the University and will attend the Annual College Awards Program in St. Louis April 23 to 25.

Tamara J. Dugleby, A4, Davenport, and Alan B. Kotok, A4, Buffalo, N.Y., will be accompanied by John Kottman, professor of journalism and head of the advertising sequence in the School of Journalism.

The event, honoring top senior advertising students from throughout the Midwest, is sponsored annually by the St. Louis Advertising Club.

Ex-Director Of Journalism To Talk Here

Wilbur L. Schramm, director of the School of Journalism from 1943 to 1947, will present a public lecture at 3:30 p.m. Monday in Shambaugh Auditorium.

Schramm, who now is director of the Institute for Communications Research at Stanford University, will discuss "Television as a Teacher: The Case of Samoa." He also will show slides.

Schramm has been author, co-author, or editor of several books, including "Process and Effects of Mass Communication," "Four Theories of the Press," "Responsibility in Mass Communication," and "Mass Media and National Development." Schramm recently has been working on a new book, "The New Media: Memo to Educational Planner." Schramm received his Ph.D. from the University in 1932. He is a former member of the English Department.
The lecture is co-sponsored by the Graduate College and the School of Journalism.
