NEW YORK — Svetlana Alliluyeva charged Wednesday that the Communist party as a whole and the successors and cohorts of her father, Soviet dictator Joseph Stalin, were equally guilty of the crimes of which they accused him.

She absolved his closest associates of murdering him, saying: "It was quite evident that he was sick and he died. His death was a natural result of illness and nothing else."

Mrs. Alliluyeva, who prefers to use her mother's maiden name, told the first news conference she has ever held, of her complete disenchantment with communism and the lack of personal liberty in the Soviet Union.

More than 400 newsmen and photographers from all over the world jammed into the Terrace Room of the Plaza Hotel to hear her answers to written questions.

Mrs. Alliluyeva, exuding vitality, more bounced than walked into the room, brightly lit for the television cameras.

Without mentioning Nikita Khrushchev's secret speech denouncing Stalin or the campaign to degrade him which followed, Mrs. Alliluyeva said: "Of course I disapproved of many things, but I think many people still in our Central Committee of the Communist party are equally responsible."

Grid Ticket Sales To Be By Priority

By MIKE BARRY
Staff Writer

Upper classmen may order student tickets for the 1967 football season beginning May 8 — with full assurances of seating priority at all home games this fall, Francis (Buzz) Graham, athletics business manager, said Wednesday night.

Ticket orders should be placed with the Athletic Ticket Office at the Field House, Graham said. First priority, he said, will be given to students with lowest identification card numbers, if their applications are returned to the Athletic Ticket Office by June 9.

Only those who plan to enroll at the University this fall may purchase the special $10 student ticket. The student ticket, along with student ID card and fall semester registration certificate, must be presented at the Stadium for admission to the games, Graham said.

Spouse Ticket Cheaper

Students may purchase a spouse ticket for $15, Graham said.

"The price of these tickets is three dollars cheaper this year," he said, "because there is one less home game on the schedule."

Ticket policy is roughly the same as last year, Graham said. The only change, he said, is in student seating.

Students with lowest ID card numbers will be located in the best seats.

"There are 79 rows of seats in the stadium," he said. "Students with highest priority — lowest ID card numbers — who wish to sit in the same seat for all five home games, will sit in rows 20-60. This is the central portion of the best section of seats in the stadium, reserved for students."

On the other hand, he said, students who wish to pick their tickets up on a game-by-game basis, will sit in the first 20 or last 19 rows of the same section. Last year, these students had to sit in the end zone, the poorest seats in the student section.

Plan Favors Upperclassmen

"The purpose of this policy," said Graham, "is to provide the upper classmen, who do not purchase the same seat for the entire season, with seating priority. He will get a better seat no matter which option he chooses this year — the same seat all season or a new seat each game."

He pointed out, however, that when a student wishes to sit with a buddy whose ID card number is higher, both must sit in the high ID number section. For example, he said, a senior wishing to sit with his freshman date, must sit in her section of the stadium.

Students will still be required to pick up their tickets on the Monday or Tuesday preceding each home game, he said. ID numbers and pick up times will be released by the Athletic Department.

According to Graham, there is no provision in current ticket policy for any student to buy tickets for a single game of his choice.

Season Ticket Necessary

He must buy the $10 season ticket or pay public prices, he said. This means that a student without a season ticket must pay $5 for every game he wishes to attend.

"Students wishing to sit together for all five home games," said Graham, "should file their applications together."

Student Leaders Seek To Lower Drinking Age

The Committee to Lower the Drinking Age in Iowa met Wednesday to outline a state-wide student movement to legalize 19-year-old drinking.

The meeting, which was held at the University, was initiated by a University group discussion class concerned with social action.

Last semester the class proposed that the University radio station, WSUI, broadcast more popular music, according to Robert N. Cline, A3, Hilford, a member of the class.

Among those present at the meeting of about 12 people were Student Body Pres. John T. Pelton; Hugh V. Mossman, A3, Vinton, Interfraternity Council president; Randall S. Swisher, A2, Atlantic, student senator; and James M. French, A1, Daventport, delegate to the Iowa College Council (ICC).

Committee Wants Resolutions

The committee agreed to call for resolutions supporting legalized 19-year-old drinking by all Iowa college and junior college student senators.

Swisher told the committee that he would attend an ICC meeting Sunday in Tama to discuss the proposal. Universities and colleges attending the Sunday meeting include Iowa State University, Ames, the State College of Iowa, Cedar Falls, Drake University, Des Moines, and the University.

Mossman said that University officials and instructors were a source of support for the movement.

"An informal check of these people indicated that they were favorable toward such legislation," said Mossman. "But many University officials are afraid to make a formal statement."

Committee Needs Facts

Pelton told the committee that solid arguments and supporting data must be

Forecast

Fair and warmer today; highs in the 50s. Partly cloudy and windy tonight and Friday.

MOTHERS DAY weekend festivities are to be climaxed by a Field House concert by Herb Alpert and the Tijuana Brass at 8 p.m. May 6. Tickets for the concert go on sale today.

Humphrey Backs Viet Commander

WASHINGTON — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey Wednesday defended Gen. William C. Westmoreland against senatorial charges that the commanding general was being used to muzzle Vietnam war critics.

Humphrey told an informal news conference that Westmoreland had made an excellent assessment of the war situation at the Associated Press meeting in New York on Monday. He said Westmoreland would be well received when he addressed Congress Friday.

The vice president declined to say whether any sudden change of policy was involved in Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's statement earlier in the day that the bombing of North Vietnam airfields was triggered by increased activity on the part of Communist MIGs.

McNamara told newsmen as he left a closed hearing of a special committee on European troop deployment that the Communist fighters had been much more active in the last three weeks and to attack their bases seemed wise.

At the hearing, Sen. Charles H. Percy (R-Ill.) said he had been assured by both the State and Defense departments Friday — only a few hours before the fields were bombed — that it was against U.S. policy to attack the fields.

A State Department spokesman said that information was given in good faith at the time to Sen. Percy's office by an officer of the department.

Humphrey said that no one wanted to silence responsible dissent against Vietnam policies or any policies.

Humphrey declined to comment on the airfield attacks, which have been labeled by the administration's critics as an escalation of the war.

Westmoreland said he was delighted the attacks had been ordered. He said unapologetic acts at home were giving comfort to Hanoi. His statement brought a flood of Democratic criticism in the Senate Tuesday.

Alpert Concert Planned For Here

A concert by Herb Alpert and the Tijuana Brass May 6 is planned as the climax to Mothers Day Weekend.

Tickets for the concert will go on sale today at the box office in the Union South Lobby and at Campus Record Store for $3 and $3.50. The concert, sponsored by the Central Party Committee, will be at 8 p.m. in the Field House.

Alpert, a native of Los Angeles, had been a regular patron of the nearby bullring in Tijuana, Mexico. Inspired by the sound of the mariachi music played at the bullfights, Alpert and a friend, Jerry Moss, decided to adapt and record a tune in a mariachi style.

Alpert, who had played the trumpet since he was nine, and his friend set to work in the Alpert garage on the tune entitled "Twinkle Star."

The newly formed partnership, which became A&M Record Company, retitled the song "The Lonely Bull" and it was recorded by Alpert who was backed by a group of musicians who Moss dubbed the Tijuana Brass.

Alpert said that as a youngster playing the trumpet, he loathed the idea of practicing daily, "but after that, it became a habit; like brushing my teeth — a discipline that I appreciate very much today."

Before Alpert formed the Tijuana Brass, he was an independent record producer. During this period of time he successfully produced recording duo Jan and Dean's first recording session and wrote a song entitled "Wonderful World." At the same time he also filled in as trumpeter with pick-up bands and in soundtrack sessions at the film studios.

Johnson Assures Uneasy Germans

WASHINGTON — President Johnson new homeward from Bonn Wednesday after the upwardly moving West German leaders they would be fully consulted on such touchy issues as the nuclear treaty and U.S. troop withdrawals from Europe.

Before leaving Bonn he had his second meeting with Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger since his arrival Sunday for the funeral of former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

The two met for more than two hours and discussed the planned treaty to check the spread of nuclear weapons, U.S. troop deployment and trade and monetary problems.

TMTW To Get Shot In Arm

become even greater. Pres. Howard R. Bowen has estimated that by 1970, enrollment would be 25,000.

Present enrollment is now close to 17,000, meaning that if Bowen's estimate is accurate, there will be approximately 8,000 more students enrolled at the University three years from now.

Eisner said that though new dormitories were being built to accommodate this increase, they probably would not be able to handle all of it. Thus, he said, an increase can be expected in the number of students living off-campus.

For this reason, Eisner said, more off-campus housing should be made available.

"If the Iowa City businessmen don't build more housing, the University will have to," he said.

The University is planning to spend $22,000 to build a playground for children of guests at the Union Iowa House, Eisner said that this money could be put to better use if it was spent on off-campus housing.

He said that if more off-campus housing were available, the cost of dormitory living probably would go down, due to the competition.

Eisner said that dormitories and apartment complexes for graduate students should be built. He said that there should be fewer restrictions in these, and that married couples should be allowed to live in them.

Eisner said that TMTW would try to work with students in influential positions to change the present system of "approved housing." The TMTW's original purpose was to insure safety, sanitation and maintenance, but he said, these duties were being carried out.

Inspections Needed

"The University does not inspect these residences," he said. "Only the landlord checks to see that there are no alcoholic beverages in the room."

The Hawkeye Student Party (HSP), of which Eisner is a member, has stated its intention to organize off-campus students who are eligible to vote in city elections, to win a seat on the Iowa City council. Eisner supports this aim.

"The student pays taxes indirectly in the form of rent, since the landlord is taxed," he said. "The student is a consumer, and therefore should be represented."

U.S. Should Get Tough In Vietnam, Priest Says

The United States must exert direct pressure on North Vietnam to get it to abandon its position in South Vietnam, said the Rev. Daniel Lyons, S.J., in a speech at Phillips Hall auditorium Wednesday night.

The U.S. government should stop worrying about offending the Soviet Union and should protest Russian aid to the Viet Cong, Father Lyons said.

His speech, entitled "The Vietnam Dilemma," was sponsored by the Young Americans for Freedom.

Lyons Is Expert

Father Lyons has made three trips to South Vietnam in the past two years. In August, 1965, he was one of four newsmen chosen by the U.S. Defense Department to make a special tour of Vietnam. He made two more trips in 1966.

North Vietnam might ease up on its aggression in the South if its own territory were directly threatened, Father Lyons said.

"It shows futile thinking to say that stopping the bombing in North Vietnam would stop the war," he said.

What is needed is more direct pressure on Saigon, he said. It is characteristic of Communist nations not to like to fight on their home land. For example, Red China entered the Korean War only after the U.S. government had guaranteed that it would not bomb Red Chinese bases.

If the matter of Communist aggression isn't settled in South Vietnam now, it will have to be settled somewhere else in Asia later, Father Lyons said.

If people in the United States are afraid to attack the problem now, in 1967, why will they be any less afraid of the problem in 1972, he asked.

The problem of Soviet help to North Vietnam is one of the United States' biggest problems, he said. Without Soviet help, North Vietnam cannot continue the war. The Soviet Union provided the North Vietnamese with $700 million worth of weapons this year, as compared to $35 million a year between 1955 and 1964.

Father Lyons condemned the U.S. actions of ignoring the Soviet Union's part in the war for fear of "ruining our friendship with Russia."

V. C. Areas Abandoned

The people of South Vietnam are for more anti-Communist than we Americans are," Father Lyons said.

He said that about 50,000 or 60,000 persons flee each month from Viet Cong-controlled areas to free regions of South Vietnam. The people are not fleeing from the areas of U.S. bombing, but rather from Viet Cong terrorism, he said.

Father Lyons said that, although some South Vietnamese defect from the military forces, he had never heard of any joining the Viet Cong.

Father Lyons also spoke against U.S. aid to Communist countries. Aid to these countries makes possible their subversive actions in South America, he said.

He said that only with the economic break provided by U.S. funds could the poorer Communist countries maintain their tyrannical policies.

NEWS IN BRIEF

WASHINGTON — An effort to obtain a $400,000 appropriation for development of Herbert Hoover national historic site at West Branch, Iowa, was abandoned in the House Wednesday. The request will be made in the Senate. Rep. Fred Schwengel (R-Iowa) introduced an amendment to restore $400,000 which had been cut from the Interior Department appropriation bill, but withdrew the amendment before it could come to a House vote.

BILBAO — Facing threatened uprisings by Basque separatists, restive labor and dissident students, the civil governor of Spain's Vizcaya province posted a special notice that he would use extraordinary powers granted by the Franco cabinet in Madrid to suppress May Day disorders. The governor, Guillermo Candón, suspended civil rights last Saturday.

MOSCOW — The space craft that carried Col. Vladimir Komarov to his death had been tested in unmanned flights, a Soviet scientist told mourners Wednesday at a hero's funeral for the astronaut. The disclosure was made by Mstislav Keldysh, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, as he stood atop Lenin's tomb with Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

Obscenity complaint against WSUI

Since when have the words "hell" and "damn" become obscene? An employe of WSUI recently sent a tape of a short story to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) and filed an obscenity complaint. Words such as "damn" and "hell" were censored from the tape. The FCC has written WSUI asking for an explanation of alleged violations of FCC regulations.

There is another possible case of censorship by WSUI in that about 2 1/2 minutes of a play were cut. WSUI spokesmen say it was equipment failure that caused the blackouts. Some believe the blackouts were in fact the work of some self-styled censor.

It is hard to believe that the two four-letter words are really obscene. It is harder yet to believe that equipment failure caused a blackout during parts of the play that had strong language in them.

There are certain four-letter words unfit for speaking either privately or over the mass media. Some of them are obscene and shouldn't reach the public ear through any mass media. Some four-letter words are mild profanities, at most, and should not be considered obscene, especially when they are considered by the author to be an integral part of the work. William M. Murray, author of the play, is right in saying that words taken out of context can be considered obscene.

If there is a "blue-nosed" censor arbitrarily chopping out portions of programs because his definition of obscenity is quite broad, he might be reminded that "Iowa," too, is a four-letter word.

Anti-ogling law winked at

Male students should be grateful that Iowa City sees fit not to enforce a code that penalizes men who "ogle, wink at or attempt to make the acquaintance of . . . any female person . . . with whom he is unacquainted."

It's surprising indeed that such a law exists in a city where winking at or attempting to make acquaintance of females is practiced by almost every male on the University campus. If the law were enforced, the city jails would be packed within a half hour — probably by administration members and faculty as well as students.

It might be a good idea some day for the city fathers to read through some of the old city codes that are outdated, unnecessary and unenforced, and eliminate them.

Who knows, there may even be a law prohibiting men from winking at other men.

By NICHOLAS MEYER
Staff Reviewer

Those who like "Gone With the Wind" will enjoy its Russian counterpart, "Dr. Zhivago." Those who feel less than enthusiastic about the trials and tribulations of Scarlet O'Hara, will find "Zhivago" an even more tedious experience. I should qualify this and note that women will probably be more than pleased with "Dr. Zhivago." Like "Wind" it is essentially a woman's movie, but even allowing this, I find it a failure.

We emphasize, learn about, and enjoy a protagonist through the decisions he makes during the course of the plot. To write a story about a passive hero is a very tricky task, and in his screenplay Robert Bolt has not succeeded. Everything happens to Zhivago and he goes through life blown about by the winds of fortune and chance, like a perpetual autumn leaf. Frequently his eyes fill with tears at some of the horror he is forced to witness (the film is set around and about the Russian Revolution), so that we know he is sensitive. But he does not take ONE POSITIVE ACTION until the end of the film, and that one action kills him.

It is an uncomfortable thought, but David

Lean seems to be going down hill. He is still as painstaking a film-maker as ever, and his films are still pictorially perfect, but his handling of scripts (indeed, the scripts themselves) have sunk a long way since the days of "Great Expectations" and "The Bridge on the River Kwai."

"Lawrence of Arabia," while basically a good movie, was overlong and had a tendency to meander. With "Zhivago" it is no longer a tendency; the film wanders aimlessly all over the place. It is not even "basically" a good film, and it is way overlong.

A further shame in this elaborate but funeral-paced film is the waste of acting talent. Alec Guinness (who has been in just about every Lean film) had his high point in "River Kwai" and has his low point in "Zhivago." He is reduced to the lowly position of narrator and is given difficult lines to say, usually beginning: "I remember it as if it were yesterday . . ."

To have one of the world's greatest actors listed as a star in a three hour movie, and not to give him one dramatic scene is tantamount to sacrilege.

Unfortunately it doesn't stop there. The Egyptian star, Omar Sharif, who made such an auspicious western film debut in "Lawrence," under Lean's direction, has nothing whatever to do as Zhivago except let his eyes fill with tears from time to time, smile boyishly at other moments and, in general, merely observe what is going on around him. There is a limit to how much an actor — any actor — can get across to an audience with just his facial muscles twitching.

Julie Christie plays a nice, poor Russian girl and Geraldine Chaplin plays a nice, rich Russian girl. The difference is not noticeable. Both, however, are nice, as is Zhivago and Ralph Richardson, who has some good moments as Miss Chaplin's father. Everything, in fact, is nice, but niceness isn't drama.

Rod Steiger and Tom Courtney are the only two characters who are not nice, and the film comes briefly to life when they are on the screen, particularly with Mr. Steiger who is splendid as a Russian villain. Rita Tushingham, that pixy of "Knack" fame, is listed in the credits, but is virtually unemployed.

The persistent feeling one gets while watching "Zhivago" is that somewhere in all this there is a story. What has happened to it is not exactly clear. It has obviously been filmed with affection — maybe too much affection. Writer Bolt and director Lean appear to have fallen so in love with the characters that they apparently could not bear to allow one of them any emotion stronger than a smile (not even a laugh) and moist eyes now and then. The net result is a kind of pompous sentimentalism, which I am sure is the last thing these two very able creators had in mind.

Lean uses the Russian Revolution as a kind of backdrop for the action but since there is virtually no action, the reduction of one of the great moments in history to the level of scenery is somewhat presumptuous. If the story justified such treatment one might tolerate it, but since there is no apparent reason why Zhivago's dilemma with life (and his wife and mistress) could not be set in Iowa, one resents the Russian Revolution playing second fiddle to a sea on rate, slow-motion soap opera. Ever "Gone With the Wind" acknowledged the existence and importance of the Civil War as a specific event. In "Zhivago," the revolution is just one more problem complicating matters for all the nice people.

We are told continually that Zhivago writes poetry. Perhaps the most indicative example of the film's failure is that we never see a word of it.

'I must compliment you Mr. Evans for the pretty pattern you made on the answer sheet.'

'How high was your high-level spokesman?'

WASHINGTON — There has been criticism of the press recently for attending what is known in Washington parlance as "the background." The background is an anonymous press conference at which some high official reveals certain "facts" to the press on the condition that the reporters will not identify the source of their news.

The trouble with this type of briefing is that it not only puts the newspaperman under obligation to the official for holding the background, but it also is used as a method of sending up trial balloons which many times are filled with hot air.

I hadn't realized the role backgrounders played in the life of the average newspaperman in Washington until I had my foot up on the bar at the National Press Club the other night and overheard the following conversation between four top-flight Washington correspondents.

The first one said: "A reliable source reported to me this morning that the State Department will soon merge with the U.S. Coast Guard as an economy measure as well as a practical matter."

"I checked this out with a high-level spokesman at the White House," the second reporter said, "and he denied it."

"How high was your high-level spokesman?" the first reporter demanded.

"He was a damned sight higher than your reliable source at the State Department," the second man replied.

"It doesn't make any difference who outranks whom," the third man said, "because I just spoke to an informed source at the Pentagon, not for attribution of course, and he told me off the record that he could not comment on it, which certainly makes one believe there is something to it."

The fourth man became highly agitated. "A government spokesman who backgroundered us this morning said it was his understanding that State was going to merge with Health, Education and Welfare, and the U.S. Coast Guard was going to become part of the Library of Congress."

The first man spoke up again. "It so happens that a well-informed unnamed administrative official told us that your government official's backgrounder was in complete contradiction to a 'unidentified source' story he released to the press earlier in the day."

The third man chimed in: "I always get my stories on highest authority."

"Sure, but you attribute any reliable source to the highest authority."

"I have more faith in them than I do in top U.S. officials."

"The other day you even quoted an informed official as an authoritative source."

"That's still better than what you did when you got a story from someone 'in touch with the Pentagon' and changed it to 'a source close to the White House.'"

"I had permission to change it."

"From whom?"

"A highly placed official. Who else?"

'Arrogance of Power'

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the third of four articles taken from the chapter titled, "The Citizen and the University" from The Arrogance of Power, by Senator J. William Fulbright. Excerpted by permission of Random House, Inc. from The Arrogance of Power, by Senator J. William Fulbright, Copyright, 1966, by J. William Fulbright.

The wisdom and productivity of the protest movement of students, professors, clergy, and others may well be questioned, but their courage, decency, and patriotism cannot be doubted. At the very least the student protest movement of the sixties is a moral and intellectual improvement on the panty raids of the fifties. In fact it is a great deal more: it is an expression of the national conscience and a manifestation of traditional American idealism. As one university publication characterized it, the "new radical" movement "is not shallow and sophomoric, it is not based on the traditional formula of generational defiance, and it is not the result of an infusion of foreign ideologies. It is based instead on personal disenchantment and the feeling of these radicals that they must repudiate a corrupted vision of society and replace it with a purer one."

No student generation in recent history has faced both brighter lifetime possibilities and greater short-term uncertainties than the present one. The bright possibilities are those afforded by a prosperous and dynamic America; the uncertainties are those of a cruel and costly war in Asia, a war which has already taken thousands of American lives, a war whose end is not in sight, a war which may indeed grow larger in scale and destructiveness. The central issue in the debate here at home — the issue on which all other questions turn — is whether the sacrifices imposed on the present generation of young Americans are justified by the stakes of the war, whether the diversion of hundreds of thousands of our young men from their homes and jobs and families will yield rewards of freedom and security commensurate with their sacrifices.

The National Interest

It is one of life's injustices that young men must fight the wars that older men begin. To a great extent, therefore, the lives and hopes of the present student generation turn on the wisdom and judgment of the men of an older generation to whom the people have entrusted political power. Surely, considering what they themselves have at stake, it is not improper for young people to question the wisdom and judgment of the makers of our foreign policy. Surely it is the right of citizens in a democracy, especially citizens of military age, to ascertain that the great decisions of war and peace are made with care and deliberation. The calling of public men to account unquestionably adds to their burdens, but the convenience of policy-makers is not sufficient reason for the shutting down of public discussion. The responsibilities of high office are burdensome indeed but they are borne, let it be remembered, by men who actively sought or freely accepted them, men who accepted not only the obligation to use power but the obligation to account for its use as well. When former Press Secretary Bill Moyers reported with respect to the Vietnam protests the President's "surprise that any one citizen would feel toward his country in a way that is not consistent with the national interest," he was denying the existence of a question as to where, in fact, the national interest lies. The answer, one must concede, is elusive, but there is indeed a question and it is a sign of the good health of this nation that the question is being widely and clearly posed.

With due respect for the honesty and patriotism of the student demonstrations, I would offer a word of caution to the young people who have organized and participated in them. As most politicians discover sooner or later, the most dramatic expression of grievances is not necessarily the most effective. That would seem to be especially true in the United States, a country easily and excessively alarmed by expressions of dissent. We are, for better or worse, an essentially conservative society; in such a society soft words are likely to carry more weight than harsh words and the most effective dissent is dissent expressed in an orderly, which is to say a conservative manner.

Expression vs. Action

For these reasons such direct action as the burning of draft cards probably does more to retard than to advance the views of those who take such action. The burning of a draft card is a symbolic act, really a form of expression rather than of action, and it is stupid and vindictive to punish it as a crime. But it is also an unwise act, unwise because it is shocking rather than persuasive to most Americans and because it exposes the individual to personal risk without political reward.

2-Day Conference To Probe Relevance Of Nonviolence

The Midwest Conference on Nonviolence will be held Friday and Saturday in the Union Main Lounge.

The conference will "explore the relevance of nonviolence as an effective means to promote social welfare and social change and also as a way of life," according to Joseph Rosmann, G. H. Harlan, convention committee chairman.

Lectures, workshops, a panel discussion and movies are scheduled.

Registration will be from noon until 5 p.m. Friday. The cost of registration for the conference is $3. Tickets for individual sessions will be available for 50 cents or $1.

The main conference speakers are Cecil E. Hinshaw, the Rev. James Bevel, the Rev. Philip Berrigan, S.J., and Russell Johnson. Hinshaw is scheduled to lecture at 3:30 p.m. Friday on "Nonviolence: Its History and Traditions."

Bevel To Speak
A lecture by Rev. Mr. Bevel is planned for 8 p.m. Friday. He will speak on "Black Power and Nonviolence."

Bevel will also lecture on "The Mobilization for Peace and Nonviolence" at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Father Berrigan will conduct a workshop at 1 p.m. Saturday on "Nonviolence: Its Religious and Philosophical Aspects."

Currently Father Berrigan is working closely with Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) to plan testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee by major faith theologians concerning the morality of the Vietnam war.

Johnson will conduct a workshop at 3:30 p.m. Saturday on "Nonviolence and International Relations."

In the last two years, Johnson has made two extensive trips through Vietnam and Cambodia speaking with peasants as well as top government officials.

Three additional workshops will be held twice Saturday, after the 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. lectures.

Workshop Slated
Richard G. Hutchins, assistant professor of law, will lead a workshop on conscientious objectors.

John E. Grant, professor of English, Laird C. Addis Jr., assistant professor of philosophy, and Johnson will lead a workshop on "Philosophical and Political Relevance."

A workshop on "Community Organization and the Role of Nonviolence in Civil Rights" will be led by James Dunn, community organizer from Des Moines, Mrs. Betty R. Mandell, assistant professor of social work, and the Rev. Mr. Bevel.

A panel will discuss the topic "The Relevance of Nonviolence in International Relations" immediately after Johnson's address Saturday afternoon.

Panel members are Hinshaw, Johnson, Father Berrigan, Patrick L. Alston, assistant professor of history, and Robert B. Baker, instructor in philosophy, as moderator.

In stating the purpose of the conference, Rosmann said, "Another reason for having this conference is that so many people have a very narrow view of the practice of nonviolence and its correlative way of life."

Death Ban Effort Fails In House

DES MOINES (AP) — A Democratic effort to convert a death penalty bill into a constitutional ban on capital punishment failed in the Iowa House Wednesday.

The legislature can't change a bill which is designed to enact a law into a resolution of the type required to propose a change in the Iowa Constitution, said Speaker Pro Tem Lester Kluever, R-Atlantic.

Kluever ruled the move out of order.

Student Health Preparing Statement On Drug Usage

Student Health Service officials are preparing a news release on the use and effects of drugs, and on the practices at the University.

The release was suggested by Pres. Howard R. Bowen, who hoped that it would clarify misconceptions about the situation in Iowa City, according to Phil E. Connell, assistant to the president.

The planned release came to light Tuesday when an interview with Dr. R. A. Wilcox, staff psychiatrist at the University Student Health Service, was printed in The Daily Iowan. The story concerned the use of LSD, marijuana and other drugs.

Dr. Chester I. Miller, director of Student Health Service, complained that the printing of the story violated an agreement he had made with Bowen.

Connell said that Miller and Bowen had made a verbal "gentleman's agreement" to release no other information on drugs before the statement was prepared.

Bowen is out of town for the week and could not be reached for comment.

However, Connell said, "The Administration has no policy of censorship. There are no categories of subjects that must be cleared by the central administration first. There has never been a censorship policy, and there never should be."

CARD OF THANKS
Expressing Gratitude
We wish to express our heartfelt appreciation and gratitude to our relatives, neighbors and friends, for all the lovely and numerous thoughtful acts of kindness shown us with flowers, food, memorials and prayers at the tragic and sudden passing of our beloved daughter Wynne. We are grateful to the doctors, nurses and ambulance attendants for their prompt response to the emergency. Special thanks to Pastor C. J. Burack for his comforting message. Also to the committee in charge of the floral tributes and monetary memorials, and those who provided music for the service and assisted with the functions necessary at such a time. "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of God." We feel assured all will be well, and pray God's richest blessings on each and every one. We would like you to know that we shared the floral tributes with churches, sick folk, homebound persons, dental offices and aged and old friends.

Gentle Thursday To 'Bust Distrust'

Food, clothing, furniture, books, balloons and flowers are among the items to be given away during the celebration of "Gentle Thursday" on May 11.

Gentle Thursday is not being sponsored by any particular group on campus said Manfred J. C. Brandt, A4, Iowa City, coordinator of the event, at a planning meeting Wednesday night.

Brandt said that during Gentle Thursday, "We should try to bust down some of the barriers and distrust for other people, and try to get to know other people."

Gentle Thursday posters suggest people bring, among other things, costumes, bells, flags, drums, guitars, blankets and love.

The posters also read: "May the Baby Jesus Shut Your Mouth and Open Your Mind."

Gentle Thursday activities will include a poetry reading by Allen Ginsberg. A band also is tentatively scheduled to play.

Other tentative plans include dispensing of free soup. No place for the activities has been designated as yet.

Other items to be given away will range from clothing and furniture to irons and electric motors. The items will be placed in a pickup truck, and people will be able to take what they want.

"The way we are giving these items away is unique in the sense that we are not singling out poor people. Everybody has needs, and by giving to everybody, we fill the needs of all people," Brandt said.

The planning committee for Gentle Thursday also hopes as many as 1,000 balloons can be given away.

Tentative plans also have been made by the committee to enter a float in the Spring Festival Parade the evening of May 11.

House Hits Space Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of a House investigating committee released Wednesday slashing criticisms he said were contained in a space agency official's report on the company that built the ill-fated Apollo spacecraft.

Rep. William F. Ryan (D-N.Y.), in making the excerpts public, said the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) has refused to release the report because "the truth concerning NASA's failure to properly supervise Apollo operations and incredible mismanagement on the part of NASA's major Apollo contractor is highly embarrassing to NASA."

A workshop on "Community Organization and the Role of Nonviolence in Civil Rights" will be led by James Dunn, community organizer from Des Moines, Mrs. Betty R. Mandell, assistant professor of social work, and the Rev. Mr. Bevel.

A panel will discuss the topic "The Relevance of Nonviolence in International Relations" immediately after Johnson's address Saturday afternoon.

Campus Chatter

I've just worked out a solution to those all-too-frequent squabbles between couples. And I'm thinking of copywriting the plan and selling it to all women.

If we are to end the quarrels that usually don't solve anything, women will have to take the initiative. Men are unreasonable much of the time. Agree? Now, there must be a subtle way to get around this.

We could win the arguments with feminine logic since they don't understand it. No wonder it's hard to get along with foreign countries when men can't get along with us. That gave me an idea.

"You know sometimes you're not diplomatic at all," I said. "You're exactly like Russia."

"Huh, me Russia? What are you talking about?"

"In fact, every time you are unreasonable that's exactly what I'm going to call you," I continued.

"You're acting a little bit like the United States yourself," he retorted. "But you could settle all this if you would stop arguing and kiss me."

"Ha! Would the United States kiss Russia? Not on your life."

So here we were in this international dispute. But I had a feeling that we would find a peaceful settlement.

"Look, Miss United States, I started out asking you to be a party. Do you want to go or don't you?"

"I couldn't make a commitment like that without thinking it over. But... if I had something new to wear, I could probably go."

He began beating his shoe on the table and yelled, "You Americans!! You don't know the value of a dollar. And all you ever do is spend, spend, spend. Just see how long your economy holds out at that rate."

"Well, now that you mention it, I was thinking of asking you for a small loan."

"So that's it. Besides you're always saying you can't find anything here to suit you."

"Well, if I can find one we both like that doesn't cost a lot, then can I get it," I queried.

He finally agreed. So I picked out a neutral territory for us to shop in. We stopped early that morning at Armstrong's in Cedar Rapids to buy the gown and get home for the party.

They found a chair for him and I found many new styles to try on. The full cage look is very good in formals and I also saw several gowns with a fitted front and a cage back that were darling. Many of this season's formals emphasize back detail with the formal open to the waist. I tried several on. But we finally agreed on a floating chiffon in a deep rose that has been one of their best sellers this season.

Then we stopped on the same floor and rented his tux for the evening from the complete line which is kept in the store. So we had everything done before noon. And all in one stop!

We were just about to leave when I discovered that Armstrong's had a sale in full swing throughout the store. It's their VALUE PLUS SALE which will continue through April 29. It's a store-wide clearance with reductions up to one half on all this season's apparel and special purchases on the coming season's merchandise.

And I've always had a theory about sales. If all those people get up and come early just for bargains there will be something that I will like. So I dug right in. It was so quiet and peaceful in the formal department. But here there was a mad rush to find the best bargains first. We spent the entire afternoon at the sale. And when we finally got back together I was exhausted. Besides my new formal I had found many other items that added to my wardrobe at greatly reduced prices. And my fiancé ended up with the same number of packages for himself as I had.

So it was a good maneuver to stop at Armstrong's and he was very proud of my economical purchases. And we ended the day on peaceful terms because we had found a mutually pleasing department store in which we could both find what we wanted.

Hawk Track Team To Face Top Stars At Drake Relays

By JOEL FABRIKANT Staff Writer

Iowa's outdoor track team will face some of the nation's greatest athletes, including Jim Ryun, Randy Matson and Charlie Greene, as the 58th annual Drake Relays get underway Friday and Saturday in Des Moines.

Hawkeye Coach Francis Cretzmeier is planning to send three relay teams and athletes in five additional events.

The relay teams and their best marks so far are:

- One mile relay team (Fred Perree, Carl Frazier, Mike Mondane and Jon Reimer): 3:10.2.
- Four mile relay team (Rollie Kitt, Steve Szabo, Ron Griffith and Larry Wiczorek): 17:01.1.
- Distance medley team (Mondane, Ted Brubacher, Griffith and Wiczorek): 10:05.1.

Other Hawkeyes competing will be Tom Knutson in the shot put;

Bill Burnette, pole vault; Curt LaBond, six mile; Steve Szabo, two or three mile; and Jon Reimer in the 400 intermediate hurdles.

Knutson has been plagued by sickness since the first indoor meet this year, but is beginning to show the form that earned him third place in the Big 10 last year.

Burnette was last year's conference outdoor pole vault champion at 15-6. This year, he has only gone as high as 15-1 indoors.

Curt LaBond and Steve Szabo, both members of the Hawks' Big 10 cross-country championship team last fall, have been running in distance races, indoors and out.

Jon Reimer is currently the co-holder of the American record in the 330 hurdles and has a career best of :51.7 for the 440 hurdles this spring.

2,900 Enter

The Hawkeyes finished third in this year's Big 10 indoor championships. Outdoors, in Tucson, they lost to Arizona and in Evanston, Ill., beat Northwestern but lost to Minnesota in a triangular meet. Also, a few relay teams and pole vaulter Bill Burnette went to the Drake Relays in Memphis, Tenn., two weeks ago and tied for second in the team totals.

Altogether, 2,900 athletes representing over 350 schools will be competing for honors. There will also be a special high school division.

Of the athletes competing at the Drake Relays, the names of Ryun, Matson and Greene stand out. Ryun holds several collegiate, national and world marks, but his coach at Kansas has decided to use him strictly for relay duty this weekend.

Mats-n Record Threat

Randy Matson of Texas A & M is just about the best "sure bet" America has in this year's Pan-American Games and next year's Olympics. With every heave, it seems, a record is broken, be it in the shot put or the discus.

Charlie Greene has some pretty good credentials of his own. This sprinter from Nebraska has run the 100 in :09.4 and may be the heir-apparent to Bob Hayes' title of "World's Fastest Human." Charlie has lost the 100 only once in his collegiate career — last week, when he came in seventh in a field of seven. It is unlikely this will be the case this weekend.

The other events are sprinkled with stars too. There's Oscar Moore of Southern Illinois in the two mile; Jim Hines and Clyde Duncan of Texas Southern and Rene Matison of New Mexico in the 100; Gene Washington of Michigan State in the 120 hurdles; and Gary Ard of Kansas in the long jump and triple jump.

Iowa Women Win Tournament

The University Women's Recreation Association sponsored a state sports day here last Saturday. Ten Iowa colleges and 175 girls competed.

The schools competed in volleyball, softball, gymnastics, tennis and bowling. Iowa won the overall championship, followed by Iowa Wesleyan and State College of Iowa.

Weekend Sports Here Include Gym Meet, Baseball, Tennis

Four baseball games and two tennis meets against Big 10 rivals, plus a national championship gymnastics meet, will highlight Iowa's sports events here this weekend.

In addition, the track team will compete in the Drake Relays at Des Moines and the golfers will enter a six-team tournament at Evanston, Ill.

Iowa hopes to rise from its eighth place in the baseball standings by taking games from Purdue Friday and Illinois Saturday. Both foes will be met in seven-inning doubleheaders, at 2:30 p.m. Friday and at 1 p.m. Saturday.

The Hawkeyes are 1-2 in the conference. Last weekend they beat Northwestern but lost two to Wisconsin.

The tennis team, sporting a 2-1 Big 10 record, takes on Michigan Friday and Michigan State Saturday. Iowa has beaten Ohio State and Minnesota and lost to Indiana.

Iowa varsity and freshman gymnasts will be among some 125 athletes competing in the United States Gymnastics Federation men's national individual championships at 1:30 p.m. Friday and 7:30 p.m. Saturday. No team title will be involved.

Tickets will be sold at the door. Admission will be $1 for everyone for Friday events, while Saturday's will cost $2 for general admission and $1 for students.

The golfers, who have a 1-1 record, will compete against Illinois, Michigan State, Northwestern, Notre Dame and Wisconsin.

Gridder 'Stonewall' Jackson Tops Iowa Baseball Hitters

Andrew "Stonewall" Jackson, a football player who has turned into a baseball star, is the top batter on the Iowa baseball team, according to statistics released Wednesday by the Iowa Sports Information Service.

Jackson, a sophomore from Des Plaines, Ill., was a starter at defensive end in football last Schneider, who is batting .267. The Hawkeyes are batting .214 in 12 regular season games while their opponents have been batting only .170 against them.

Mike Linden, a junior right-hander from Oswego, Ill., leads the Hawkeye pitching staff with a 3-0 won-lost record and a fine 0.81 earned-run-average. He has allowed only nine hits and two runs in 23 innings and has struck out 25 batters.

Included in his victories are a two-hit, 1-0 victory over Luther, a one-hit, 3-1 victory over Bradley and a six hit, 4-1 victory over Northwestern last Friday in the Hawkeyes' only Big 10 win to date.

Senior lefthanded reliever Frank Renner has posted a 0.90 earned-run-average in 10 innings of work and sophomore right-hander Ben Banta has a 1.08 earned-run-average. Renner is 0-0 and Banta is 1-1 for the season.

'STONEWALL' JACKSON Batting .417

Hawks Hurt In Grid Drills

Iowa's football team scrimmaged Wednesday and according to Assistant Coach Gordon Lee, "the boys looked pretty good."

Two Hawkeyes missed the practice because of minor injuries. Freshman fullback Tim Sullivan received a head injury in Tuesday's practice and sat out the scrimmage for precautionary measures.

Senior linebacker Terry Huff suffered a recurrence of the shoulder injury which kept him out of last year's games. The injury is not serious, however, according to Lee. "It's just something he'll have to live with."

Cornelius Patterson had another impressive day at his new position at fullback. "Patterson seems to have found himself," said Lee. "He's had a very impressive spring."

The B draft class pass reception free agency of the closed.

No Immediate Arrest Planned If Clay Refuses Induction

HOUSTON (AP) — Cassius Clay will be free to keep on fighting and preaching for weeks whether or not he takes the oath of Army induction Friday, U.S. Atty. Norton Susman said Wednesday.

"There positively will be no immediate arrest," Susman said. "The wheels of justice grind slowly. It will take the government at least 30 to 60 days to complete its action before an arrest can be made."

Clay's attorneys continued, meanwhile, to exhaust every legal means of preventing criminal action against the heavyweight champion, who insists he will risk jail before going into the Army.

Their plea for a preliminary hearing today — the day before the scheduled induction — was granted by U.S. District Judge Allen B. Hannay.

Today's hearing will have no effect on Clay's scheduled confrontation with the government at 8 a.m. (CST) Friday.

"Clay will be at the induction," Covington said. "Our moves here are to see that he is not treated as a delinquent until we can try the case against the Selective Service System."

Covington and Hodges filed a 67-page suit Tuesday, naming Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, the national director of Selective Service, and 29 other defendants. The suit charges that the present draft apparatus is unconstitutional because there is not enough Negro representation on the various boards.

He said he had been informally assured of support by foreign athletic officials.

He said the first summer games were set tentatively for May 30, 1968 — a day after what would have been Kennedy's 51st birthday — at Los Angeles and the winter games for December, 1968, at Lake Placid, N.Y. Other sites could be chosen, however, said Hull.

The competitions will include the traditional Olympic events and other sports may be added, said Hull. Under consideration are bowling, golf, tennis, water skiing and polo, he added.

Ryun's 880 World Record 'Held In Ransom' By AAU

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The latest shot in the running feud between the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) came Wednesday in a charge that the AAU is "holding for ransom" the world record in the 880-yard run.

The United States Track and Field Federation (USTFF), an adjunct of the NCAA, charged that the AAU was holding for ransom the record set by University of Kansas speedster Jim Ryun, setting its price "continuation of the AAU's total monopoly control of track and field in America."

'In Order'
Charles D. Werner, executive director of the USTFF, said in a statement that "every condition relating to this new world record was in order," when Ryun ran the 880 in 1:44.9 on June 10, 1966, at the USTFF outdoor championship track and field meet at Indiana State University, Terre Haute, Ind.

"The AAU accepted the record at its annual meeting in Honolulu, Dec. 1966, and presumably forwarded it along with other record applications, similarly approved, to the International Amateur Athletic Federation for final acceptance," Werner said.

Werner said the IAAF declined to give any reason when its list of new records omitted Ryun's mark, which bettered the previous world record of 1:45.1 set by New Zealand's Peter Snell, Feb. 3, 1962.

'Not In Order'
"A subsequent release by the IAAF stated that the application form for the Ryun 880 record was not in order," Werner said. "This would imply that USTFF officials had been derelict in filling out the form. Yet, the AAU had approved and accepted the record as a new American record."

"A statement by the AAU then announced that the Ryun record would be approved providing the USTFF would request and obtain a retroactive AAU sanction for the meet. The AAU thus sought to gain credit for a meet which, prior to the competition, they had tried to destroy by threatening the eligibility of all athletes who participated in it."

A total of 113 awards, 59 of which are major letters, have been awarded to Iowa athletes in five winter sports, Director Forest Evashevski has announced.

The major letters consist of 15 in gymnastics, 12 in fencing, basketball and swimming and 8 in wrestling. Track awards will be made in June after the outdoor season. Six minor "I", two manager's awards and 48 freshman numerals were granted.

Servicemen To See Game

NEW YORK (AP) — Many of pro football's flashiest rookie prospects will play in Frankfurt, Germany, June 25 in the newest pre-season all-star football game, the Associated Press learned Wednesday.

Such stars as Floyd Little of Syracuse, Nick Eddy and Jim Lynch of Notre Dame, and Bubba Smith and George Webster of Michigan State will provide a glittering attraction for some 70,000 U.S. servicemen stationed in Europe.

in the planning stages for about a year and apparently has the support of the Defense Department.

One team will represent the Army and the other the Air Force with Bear Bryant of Alabama, Darrell Royal of Texas and Nebraska's Bob Devaney coaching the former and Duffy Coachery of Michigan State, Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame and Jim Owens of Washington coaching the latter.

AAU Plans Kennedy Games

NEW YORK (AP) — Grandiose plans to hold annual international summer and winter games in the United States along the lines of the Olympics and to raise a $10 million sports development fund were announced Wednesday by the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU).

The athletic competitions will be named the John F. Kennedy International Memorial Games in honor of the late president and will start in 1968, said Col. Donald Hull, executive director of the AAU.

The AAU and American Airlines, which contributed $75,000 to kick off the fund raising drive, outlined some of the plans at a press conference.

Hull said top athletes of the world would be invited to participate in the games, a streamlined version of the Olympics. He said he had been informally assured of support by foreign athletic officials.

He said the first summer games were set tentatively for May 30, 1968 — a day after what would have been Kennedy's 51st birthday — at Los Angeles and the winter games for December, 1968, at Lake Placid, N.Y. Other sites could be chosen, however, said Hull.

The competitions will include the traditional Olympic events and other sports may be added, said Hull. Under consideration are bowling, golf, tennis, water skiing and polo, he added.

Bears Trade Ditka To Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles Wednesday sent their scrambling quarterback, Jack Concannon, to the Chicago Bears for massive tight end Mike Ditka in a deal designed to strengthen major weaknesses on both teams caused by retirements.

The Bears also received a 1968 draft choice for their unhappy pass receiver, who played out his option last year and becomes a free agent May 1. The number of the draft choice was not disclosed.

AAUP To Meet Friday Home Ec Banquet To Feature Styles

Three members of the University faculty will represent the University at the 53rd Annual National Convention of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), Friday and Saturday, in Cleveland.

President of the University chapter of the AAUP, James W. Markham, professor of journalism, will be accompanied by Clarence Andrews, professor of English, a past president of the Iowa chapter, and William O. Aydelotte, professor of history.

VIET PEACE COMMITTEE— "The United States in Vietnam" by Kahn and Lewis will be discussed by the Vietnam Peace Committee at 8 tonight in the Union Northwestern Room. Materials for the committee's letter-writing campaign also will be evaluated. For further information call P. Nordlinger at 333-3360.

Reservations may be made until noon Monday for the Department of Home Economics banquet on Wednesday. The banquet will feature a talk and fashion show by Virginia Fiester, an alumna of the department who has her own fashion design studio in Lake Forest, Ill.

The banquet and program are open to men as well as to women. Reservations may be made by calling the Home Economics Office, 353-3176, or by stopping at the office, 123 Macbride Hall. The banquet will be held at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday in the Union Ballroom.

Mrs. Fiester will show colored slides of her workroom and staff and will tell about her experiences in designing costumes for Mrs. Gerald Nugent to wear the week of the wedding of her son, Patrick Nugent, to Luci Baines Johnson last August.

Mrs. Fiester also will show colored slides made at the Washington wedding and the reception in the White House.

The fashion show of Fiester designs, with Mrs. Fiester providing the commentary, will include six costumes which she designed for Mrs. Nugent. Modeling these gowns will be six alumnae of the University Department of Home Economics: Mrs. Dean Jones, Mrs. Stanley Wawzonek, Mrs. Royce Beckett, Mrs. James Clifton, Mrs. William Masson and Mrs. T. T. Bozek, all of Iowa City.

Coordinated mother and daughter ensembles will be modeled by another alumna of the department, Mrs. Hiram Leonard of Iowa City, and her 3-year-old daughter.

Other Fiester designs will be modeled by coeds: Sally Tallarico, A3, Keokuk; Katalin Berenyi, A3, Keokuk; Cheryl Winrow, A2, Naperville, Ill.; Margaret Triplett, A4, Sumner; Mardon Renn, A3, Minnetonka, Minn.; Linda Post, A4, Ithaca, N.Y.; Patricia Larsen, G, Mason City; Carol Davis, A1, Mount Union; Geraldine Baum, A2, Iowa City; and Joy Anderson, A2, Iowa City.

Elizabeth Specht, A4, Monticello, is the outgoing president of the University chapter of the American Home Economics Association, which sponsors the annual spring banquet to honor graduating seniors. Ellen Roe, A3, Norway, is the president-elect.

SDS MEETING— John McDermott, one of the founders and associate editor of Viet Report, will speak to a Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) meeting at 7 tonight in the Union Michigan Room. The meeting is open to the public. McDermott, a former philosophy professor at Long Island University, now teaches political science at the New School of Social Research, New York City. He visited Vietnam in January and February.

FULL HOUSEPOWER Makes A Big Difference

Plugging a number of appliances into one outlet can spell TROUBLE for your home's wiring system. Frequent blackouts . . . flickering lights . . . slow-heating appliances . . . and shrinking TV pictures also occur when electrical needs have outgrown your home's HOUSEPOWER. To find out if your home is one of the four out of five with inadequate wiring, check the following list:

YES NO

- Do your lights dim when major appliances start operating?
- Does your television picture shrink when other appliances are in use?
- Do you have more than two appliances plugged into one outlet?
- Do you have to unplug one appliance so you can plug in another to avoid a blown fuse?

UI Leading In Contest

The University is ahead of the city in Phi Gamma Delta fraternity's annual Penny Days contest.

The contest, which pits the generosity of University students against Iowa City residents, will end tomorrow.

Containers have been placed in Burge Hall, the Pentacrest, the Union and at Iowa Book and Supply. Students and local residents are urged to place their contributions in appropriate containers.

Proceeds will go to charity. If the University comes out ahead in total contributions, all the proceeds will go to the Rust, Iowa, LeMoyné, Expanding Educational Horizons (RILEEH) project. If the local residents come out ahead, a local charity, the School Children's Aid Fund, will receive the money.

'New Music' To Be Aired By Center

An opportunity to hear contemporary music by local composers is scheduled at the Second Composers Symposium of 1966-67 at 8 p.m. Friday in the North Rehearsal Hall of the Music Building.

There is no admission charge. The concert will feature nine composers and 10 works by faculty and students of the School of Music. Twenty-six students, members of the Center of New Music and faculty, will perform the works.

The program will include: "Music for Oboe, Clarinet, Viola, and Bassoon" and "Fantasy for Viola" by Robert Block, G. Chicago; "From the 'Septet'" by Christopher Bonds, G. Coralville; "Hemicycle II" for violin and cello by Andrew Duckwa, A2, Cedar Rapids; "Interplay" for flute and piano by Martin Farren, G. Iowa City; "What Time Is It?" by Wendell Logan, G. Thomsen, Ga.; "Trompeten" by Stephen Miller, A2, Cedar Rapids; "Contrasts" by Stephen Syverud, G. Ovinde, Calif.; "A Music For Oboe, Double Bass, and Percussion" by Greg Steinkamp, G. Midland, Mich.; and "Arrivals and Departures for Percussion and Sextet and Tape" by William Parsons, 916 E. Burlington. Parsons is a percussionist for the center.

Richard B. Hervig, professor of composers and music, said that the works to be presented represented a wide range of styles, techniques and many different approaches to music and its composition.

The concert will allow the composers to hear the first performance of their works, which were all composed within the last year, Hervig said.

The Composers Symposium is sponsored by the School of Music each year. There was one concert last fall and the school is planning one for this summer.

Marine Tests To Be Given

Capt. Bruce A. Tester, Marine Corps officer selection officer, will be at the University from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Wednesday, and will be located at the Business and Industrial Placement Office to interview students interested in Marine Corps officer training.

Freshman, sophomore, or junior men may qualify for the Platoon Leaders Class which leads to second lieutenant's commission upon graduation from college.

Seniors may apply now for a 10-week Officer Candidate Course after graduation.

Tester will also be interviewing interested juniors and senior women for the Woman Officer Candidate Course.

Qualifying tests will also be given at this time.

Interested students can make appointments in advance at the Business and Industrial Placement Office.

The Army Officer Selection Team will be on campus May 4 and 5. The Naval Officer Programs Information Team will be interviewing at the University May 15 to 17. Qualifying tests will be given at these times, and students can make appointments in advance at the Business and Industrial Placement Office.

Ethics Committee Plans Censure

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate ethics committee reportedly will make a censure recommendation in the case of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd based on his use of campaign and testimonial funds for personal expenses.

Unofficial word early Wednesday was that the bipartisan panel would submit its report and recommendations Thursday, but by nightfall indications developed of a possible delay.

Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., told reporters after an afternoon meeting the committee had run into some last-minute problems in completing a report on its investigation of misconduct charges against Dodd.

-90 To Visit South America- 3rd Iowa Trade Trip Slated

By JON TAYLOR Staff Writer

"Sell Iowa abroad."

This is the theme of several Iowa businessmen whose aim is to build industry and trade in the state of Iowa.

These men form a commission called the Iowa Trade Mission, which is making preparations for its third promotional trip to foreign countries. The two previous trips were to the Far East and Europe. The next trip is to South America.

William W. Summerwill, president of the Iowa State Bank and Trust Company in Iowa City, will be among those who are to travel to South America. He also went on the two previous trips.

"The voluntary commission is made up of approximately 90 people," Summerwill said. "Each person pays his own expenses."

"As on previous Iowa Trade Missions, we plan to arrange appointments for members of the mission who have potential customers in each of the countries to be visited," Summerwill said.

Brochure Made

"We send a questionnaire to all persons who want to make the trip," he said. "Then we compose a brochure listing each person's name, business, interests and qualifications."

Summerwill said that the brochure was sent to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce which in turn contacted various groups such as embassies, consulates, chambers of commerce and financial organizations in the countries to be visited.

He said that instead of getting new industry to come to Iowa we should expand the industries that are here.

"Iowa industries are as big as they'll ever be unless we can sell more products. That's why we wanted to 'tap' the overseas market," he said.

Competition Noted

Summerwill said that the competition among industries in the United States was very stiff. He said that there were financial expectations in all countries — developed or undeveloped.

"The 'have-nots' want, and the 'haves' want more," Summerwill said. "From all of this flows an up-grading of goods, tastes, ambitions and personal improvement. It is the fuel that feeds industry, science and education."

Summerwill said, "How successful the promotions have been and will be, depends on how well we meet the challenge and how well we sell Iowa."

The Iowa businessmen plan to leave on July 30 for Caracas, Venezuela. They will travel by plane from Des Moines to New York and on to South America. While in South America, on the 21-day trip they will also go to Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo, Brazil; Buenos Aires, Argentina; Lima, Peru, and Bogota, Columbia.

They will return to Iowa Aug. 20.

Summerwill said that the plans for the trip were completed early this week.

Sonar Contract Awarded

Electronic detection of an underwater sound source — such as a boat or a school of fish — is complicated by myriad sea noises and the tendency for a sound traveling any distance in the ocean to be randomly echoed and to undergo changes.

How effective sonar detection techniques can ultimately become is, however, a question which a University engineer is now helping answer.

W. D. Wade, associate professor of electrical engineering, has been awarded a one-year Bell Telephone laboratories contract for $4,936 to develop theory on which sonar receiver design may come to be based.

Applications of the theory could result in improved methods of detecting sources of underwater sounds and improved techniques of underwater communications. The theory will also provide a theoretical optimum detection system as a measuring stick for actual systems.

Wade's job is to determine the "mathematical structure," or ideal arrangements of parts, of a sonar detection system that would most accurately detect specific sound sources among a myriad of ocean noises. This ideal system would miss as few as possible of the signals to which it is tuned while holding constant the probability of a false alarm which may result from spurious sound patterns like those the source could have produced.

Using Wade's mathematical structure, engineers could work to imitate this ideal system with actual electronic gear.

Curriculum Variation Seen Hurting College Admission

By CHARLES HOGEBOOM
Staff Writer

A major problem in the field of education today is lack of coordination between colleges and secondary schools, according to Lauren A. VanDyke, professor of education.

VanDyke was 1966-67 president of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools (NCA) and presided at the organization's 72nd annual conference in Chicago April 2-6.

According to VanDyke, the problem stems from a wide variation in high school curriculums and college admission requirements. Different methods of teacher preparation further complicate the situation.

He said high schools often find it difficult to develop programs for students going to college that would meet admission requirements.

Better Programs Needed
"Many high schools, in order to do a better job, have set up ability grouping programs. This includes advanced placement in areas such as science, mathematics and languages," VanDyke said.

"Different grading standards result and it's impossible to rank students from low to high ability. Colleges are frequently unwilling to recognize different grading scales."

Poor coordination between the requirements that colleges establish for teacher preparation and those standards set by secondary schools adds to the problem, he said.

VanDyke explained that several colleges in Wisconsin, including the University of Wisconsin, now were experimenting with teacher training programs that require a full year of internship.

Internship Offered
The University of Iowa provides prospective teachers with eight weeks of internship after a study of teaching methods in the second semester of the senior year.

Although the basic function of the NCA is that of accreditation in liberal arts, the organization also provides consultants and special commissions to help member institutions with their difficulties.

VanDyke pointed out that because the University of Iowa has worked closely with the NCA commissions, it has avoided many of the problems that beset other schools.

Serves 19 States
The NCA serves 19 states from Arizona to West Virginia. It is the largest of six accrediting associations in the United States and has reciprocal agreements with the other groups.

Membership, which is voluntary, comprises 500 colleges and universities and 3,750 secondary schools. In addition, the NCA accredits 62 secondary schools in 20 foreign countries that the military operates for children of its personnel.

The NCA judges secondary schools in terms of specific minimum standards that must be met. Colleges, however, are not evaluated by definite guidelines.

Communist Media Analyzed In Book

The mass media in Russia and China reflect the efforts of the Communists to reshape all facets of life in their society, according to James W. Markham, professor of journalism.

Used Translators
Markham said he was handicapped in his research by insufficient knowledge of the Russian and Chinese languages. This difficulty was partially overcome through the use of translators and translations of original sources.

Markham, who is head of international communication study, has written about these Communist media systems in his book, "Voices of Red Giants." The book attempts to provide understanding of the communications systems of Communist Russia and China.

"Voices" is a critical study of comparative and cross-cultural mass communication behavior in Russia and China, Markham said.

In a recent interview Markham said he expected the book to be published in late May. The manuscript won a first place award from the Iowa State University Press for most significant new manuscript by an Iowa author in 1965.

Research 5 Years
The book is the product of five years of research. It started out as a comparative study of communications systems of 12 countries. These included the largest democratic and totalitarian states of the world.

The project had to be cut to a manageable size because it was too big, Markham said.

"The Communist countries were chosen first because so little has been understood of the nature of the non-Western world," he said. Scholars generally know less about Russia and China than they do about Europe or Latin America.

One-third of the world's population is exposed to Communist media.

"I think this fact justifies our knowing something about how mass communications systems in those countries work," Markham emphasized.

Studies Early Russia
The book deals briefly with 19th century Russia. Markham said he discussed the 19th century in order to show the origins of Soviet communications systems. Sources and origins of the modern communications system were traced in ancient China.

China posed a problem, he said. Information that came out of China before the Communist takeover in 1949 supplied useful information, Markham said, but the Bamboo Curtain has caused problems in getting information since 1949. These were solved to some extent through the use of translations.

He said there was also difficulty in assessing the number and the circulation of Chinese newspapers. Figures have not been available since 1958.

Background information on the Red giants sets the stage for a comparison of contemporary media, Markham said.

Pastoral Duties Shared
Rev. Duane Addison and Rev. James Anderson share pastoral duties at Christus House. Rev. Anderson was one of the founders of the community during the 1961-62 school year.

Arnie Kvaalen, a former graduate student and an ordained minister who now teaches in the art department at Purdue University, was mainly responsible for the initiation of this in-depth Christian living. The program was modeled after a similar disciplined form of study and worship in Austin, Tex.

Other such houses exist on campuses in Berkeley, Calif., and in Madison, Wis. The only other major Lutheran Church-sponsored one is in St. Paul, Minn.

Students join in this community-living that they might better understand the Christian faith and its relation to life at the present time, Rev. Addison said. However, membership is not limited to Christians. Almost every year's register includes 60-70 per cent Lutherans, members of all other major Protestant faiths, Catholic, non-Christians and agnostics.

Christus House residents represent a good cross-section of the University's student body, Rev. Addison said. They are encouraged to become involved in all campus activities.

Sermons based on Scripture are given at the daily vesper service, usually by either of the two pastors. Often students and guests with the desire to share knowledge through communication deliver the homily.

Once each week a Eucharistic service is held for those who wish to take part.

According to literature distributed at the Christus House office it is during worship that the community centers its life, where

Purpose Of Christus House Is Interaction With Others

By SISTER MARY JEANETTE QUINN
Staff Writer

Christus House, Iowa City's new type nationally-known educational venture, is neither a monastery nor a home for boarders. Instead, it is aimed at the achievement of today's idea of interaction with one's fellow man.

Christus House, near the corner of Dubuque and Church Streets, is sponsored by the Lutheran Campus Council and is administered by a Lutheran Church board of directors. Forty-five students of different race, nationality and religion live there.

Those accepted for a year in residence in the program agree to share a common life which involves meals, worship, discussion and study. They reside in house adjacent to the Lutheran Student Center, on the corner of Dubuque and Church.

Undergraduates holding residence memberships live in University approved housing and participate in Christus House meals, worship and seminar sessions.

Residents Worship Together
To achieve the purpose of the dedicated scholar to live not solely for himself, residents participate wholeheartedly in worship, once daily, from 5-6 p.m. Monday through Friday while classes are in session, and to carry on a religious study program of two and a half hours a week.

They also agree to participate in directed conversation at the evening meal, to share in a review of the community at least monthly and to assume practical community responsibilities several hours a month.

A full-time cook is hired to prepare meals for all residents and for those who share in Christus House while living elsewhere. Residents are responsible for their own rooms. Limited maid service, custodial service and laundry facilities are provided.

The cost for room and board is $652.50 a year. This can be paid in nine monthly payments of $72.50, $32.50 for room and $40 for meals. All meals except Saturday supper are served when classes are in session. A $10 fee covers religious study material and books.

Applications Open For Summer
Applications are now being accepted by the pastors at the main office, 124 E. Church St., for the eight-week summer session which begins June 14. While the school year residents are limited to a one-year stay, summer session participants may return without restriction.

Christus House residents represent a good cross-section of the University's student body, Rev. Addison said. They are encouraged to become involved in all campus activities.

Sermons based on Scripture are given at the daily vesper service, usually by either of the two pastors. Often students and guests with the desire to share knowledge through communication deliver the homily.

Once each week a Eucharistic service is held for those who wish to take part.

According to literature distributed at the Christus House office it is during worship that the community centers its life, where its identity and purpose are clarified. It is in worship that members confess who they are and what they have made of themselves.

Residents Help Minority Groups
Often on Saturdays, Christus House residents go to Des Moines to help with the South Eastside Project which involves working with minority groups.

Weekly seminars require small group study of issues relating to the Christian faith and modern life. Informal sessions are led by the Lutheran pastors, assisted by Joan Novak, G. Wilber, Neb.

Sunday evening suppers are served family-style at 5:30. Non-residents may attend at a cost of 75 cents. No reservation is needed.

From 6-7 p.m., Sundays, guest speakers address supper participants.

Cooperative Spirit Exists

Not everyone can share the life at Christus House, according to Rev. Addison. Undergraduates, except freshmen, and graduate students who are eligible for membership need a spirit of cooperation and a helpful concern for the works and projects of others who are also in the pursuit of high studies.

In group living, the student is not enclosed in an ivory tower. His sharing with others aids him to open his deepest self.

Lifelong friendships may be formed through Christus House, and several marriages have resulted, Rev. Addison said. To date, it is estimated that 160-170 University students have spent a year or a summer at Christus House.

At present, there is no formal alumni program.

Kyl Says Parental Guidance Needed To Avoid Drug Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Widespread use of LSD, marijuana and other drugs by teenagers can develop anywhere if parents and responsible youths allow it to happen, Rep. John N. Kyl, (R-Iowa), said Wednesday.

Upperclass families in Washington were disturbed this spring to learn it had happened here, Kyl said. Their experience can provide a lesson for the rest of the country, he said.

Parents here learned scores of children, some as young as 13, had smoked marijuana 10 to 60 times each, and at $5 a smoke, he said.

Kyl, who has taken much interest in juvenile problems here, said he interviewed several families who were involved. These people said they wanted to help families in other places.

Their stories, he said, indicated a number of the youths were more than just curious about the drugs and had little respect for antidrug laws.

The interviews also showed lack of guidance by parents, Kyl said.

"Parents have simply got to make greater contact," he said. "They've got to pay more attention to their kids."

Kyl also blamed student leaders who apparently had known about the drug activities nearly six months before the police were told by a father that his young daughter was suffering from what proved to be an LSD reaction.

Kyl said responsible students apparently didn't want to get involved.

Kyl said, "Youngsters who want to help can do more to promote the right knowledge of behavior and mental health than all the parents and preachers in the community."

Kyl said teenage use of drugs is less likely in small towns in Iowa and elsewhere where parents, teachers and ministers have closer contact with youngsters. He added that a Washington-like situation could develop anywhere.

ROTC Grants Given To 5 Cadets

Five University students have been designated winners of Army ROTC two-year scholarships.

They are: Steven C. Johnson, A2, Iowa City; Lars E. Larson, E2, Cedar Rapids; David F. Mayrose, A2, Des Moines; William G. Teagarden, A2, Boone; and Steven K. Warbasse, A2, Dextral City. All are cadets in the Army ROTC program.

The scholarships, five of the $56 awarded nationally, pay for tuition, books, textbooks and laboratory fees, along with a $50 per month subsistence allowance. Upon graduation and successful completion of the Army ROTC program, the students will be commissioned as second lieutenants and will be available to serve on Army active duty for four years.

The selection of scholarship recipients was based on academic excellence, physical standards, the extent of extracurricular activities, qualities of leadership, college entrance examination board results, and evaluation of motivation and leadership potentials.

Research Grants Awarded To UI

Nearly $500,000 in federal research funds was received by the Department of Physics and Astronomy last month.

Gifts, grants, and contracts to the University totaled $1,869,864. James Van Allen, head of the physics department, received $450,000 from the Department of the Navy on a sustaining research grant. It is for basic research that may eventually lead to rocket, balloon, and more satellite experiments, but actual experiments are not covered.

Objective of the grant is "to extend the knowledge of radiations in outer space and of their relationships to the earth, the sun, the moon, the planets, and the interplanetary medium," according to the research proposal.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration approved $44,989 for David Montgomery, associate professor of physics.

Dance Concert Set For Mothers Day

Tickets for "Vivachi!", a dance concert, and a mothers' luncheon on the University Mothers Day weekend, May 5 and 6, go on sale Friday.

Tickets at $2 for the luncheon at 11:30 a.m. May 6 will be sold at Campus Record Shop and Whetstone Drug store. The sale will continue through May 5 or until the 1,100 tickets are sold.

M.L. Huit, dean of students, will be the guest speaker at the luncheon, and entertainment will be provided by the Old Gold Singers.

The 1967 Mother of the Year, to be chosen from students' nominations, will be announced at the luncheon by Jane E. Anderson, president of Associated Women Students. The Susan Hauncher Award will also be presented to an outstanding coed.

Faculty members and student leaders will be hosts and hostesses for the luncheon.

Tickets for "Vivachi!", the concert to be given by the University Dance Theatre, will be on sale for $1 at the University Box Office, Campus Record Shop and Whetstone Drug.

Performances will be given at 8 p.m. May 5 and 6 in Macbride Auditorium.

Dance Theatre is directed by Marcia Thayer, instructor in women's physical education. Its current membership chosen by audition includes students, faculty and some non-student dancers. Most are studying dance at the University or have had dancing experience elsewhere.

Choreography is done by various members of the Dance Theatre which gives variety to the works shown. Two choreographers may treat the same subject matter very differently. Miss Thayer said recently.

The Dance Theatre does all of its own designing. The choreographer for each number is responsible for the designing and completing of costumes, settings and lighting as the movement is evolved.

Call Undertaker In Coppolino Trial

NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — The undertaker who handled the body of Carmela Coppolino testified Wednesday he was told that her husband, Dr. Carl Coppolino, knew of a drug that would kill and leave no traces.

Called as a defense witness in Coppolino's murder trial, C. Roland Shannon, the undertaker, said on cross-examination that one of the visitors to his funeral home the evening of Carmela's death was Marjorie Farber, the doctor's onetime mistress.

"She told me," Shannon said, "there was a drug that could cause death and couldn't be found. She said Coppolino told her about it."

LIONS CLUB BROOM & BULB SALE

- BARN BROOM $2.00
- WHISK BROOM .75
- LIGHT BULBS $2.00

Views To Be Given

According to PAD, the question of default judgments will probably be raised. Each panel member is to view the issue from his own viewpoint.

Before the discussion is opened to the floor, each panel member is to present a five minute introductory talk.

House Kills Trucks Bills

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa House finally ditched the long truck Wednesday.

It defeated the measure 69-48 and then "nailed down" the action by tabling a motion to reconsider.

This means it would take a two-thirds majority to call the bill up for further action.

The bill would have permitted "double bottom" trucks — a tractor pulling two trailers — to have an over-all length of up to 65 feet. The present maximum length is 60 feet.

The measure would have limited the 65-foot trucks to interstate highways, except that they would have been permitted to go up to five miles off the interstate on 24-foot pavements to reach their terminals.

Pupils To Plant Arbor Day Trees

Pupils in Iowa City Public Elementary Schools will observe Arbor Day Friday by planting trees or bushes on their school grounds.

Procedure Class Set For Senators

Student Body Vice Pres. Lyle Krewson said Tuesday night that he would hold a class in parliamentary procedure for senators for a half hour before the next Student Senate meeting which is scheduled for next Tuesday.

Krewson, chairman of the senate meetings, made his announcement at the close of Tuesday night's senate session.

The senators were able to consider all the items listed on the agenda Tuesday night, but they were bogged down for nearly two hours with consideration of the regular senate reports. At the previous meeting, the senators did not get through discussion of all the old business.

"You can expect at the beginning of a new senate that things are going to go slow, but at the rate we're going we've got enough old business to take up the entirety of the next two meetings," said Krewson.

Krewson said that he did not mean that the senate was not a deliberative body, but that the

3 Students Set Recitals

Three University students in the School of Music will present recitals Friday and Saturday in North Music Hall.

Donald Gren, G. Monmouth, Ill., will play works for the harpsichord at 5:30 p.m. Friday. Included on the program are two sonatas by Scarlatti, and Bach's "Partita No. 6 in E Minor."

At 4 p.m. on Saturday William Hartman, G. Ponca City, Okla., will present a bass trombone recital. Hartman will play works by Vivaldi, Hindemith and Robert Jones.

Melvin Pearce, G. Hobbs, N.M., will present a French horn recital at 6:30 p.m. Saturday. Pearce's program will include Telemann's "Suite in F major," Hindemith's "Sonate" and Arthur Harris' "Four Moods for Brass Quintet."

WSUI Says FCC Made No Charge

WSUI station director, Carl Menzer, said Wednesday that the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) notice received a little over a week ago was merely an inquiry and not a charge.

Station officials said they had no further comment about the station's proposed actions regarding the inquiry.

The inquiry by the FCC was in answer to a complaint that had been received from an unidentified WSUI employee. The complaint sent to the FCC said that the station had broadcast profane language on a "Writers at Work" program last month.

Extensive Landscaping Projects To Beautify Enlarged Union Area

Landscaping of Union grounds will give the area west and south of the building a new look for summer.

Jefferson Street adjacent the Iowa House entrance on the south side of the building will be widened. Three trees have been moved from this area to the east of the entrance to facilitate the construction.

The present walk west of the Union will be torn out and another sidewalk will be constructed from the east end of the pedestrian bridge closer to the river bank. It will connect with the existing walk on the south side of the building.

A walled-in patio will be built beside the new Union Wheel Room. It will have a scored concrete surface and a three-foot retaining wall with a concrete sandblasted finish.

New lights will be erected along the new walk and beside the south side of the parking area south of the Union. The globe lamps will be fixed atop dark concrete pre-cast exposed poles.

Hawthorne trees will be planted west of the delivery area. There will also be Honeylocust trees in the patio area. Andorra and Pfizer Junipers and Kwanzan cherry trees will also be planted. The ground surface of the area will lie flat to midway between the building and the river. There it will slope to the riverbank to a four-foot decline. A knoll will be shaped to screen the service area.

To provide adequate drainage, three catch basins will be located on the grounds and the service drive will be curbed.

Don J. Sinek, superintendent of operations in the Physical Plant, said that the landscaping was not done before because the Union was undergoing constant expansion and this area had always been used by construction workers.

Electronic Music Is Weird Marriage

By ROBERT ALLEN
Staff Writer

There is something strikingly different about the sound of music being made and played in 207 Eastlawn.

You listen to it intently. But you stutter when you try to articulate what you hear. Does it sound like a flute? Well, not quite. What about a saxophone? Maybe. A guitar? Possibly. Cymbals? Not really. The fact is, it has all the conventional sounds and then some. It is a strange marriage between the electron and the music note. It is called electronic music.

Electronic music is an approach to composition that is a product of the 20th Century. Robert Shallenberg, assistant professor of music and director of the Electronic Music Studio, said, "The earliest pieces of electronic music which I know of were produced about 35 years ago. There may have been some done earlier."

The Daily Iowan did a story on electronic music in 1965 when the studio was located in a barracks in the Music Department proper, which is directly across the street from Eastlawn.

At that time electronic music at the University was just a few months old. The studio was opened and a teaching program was started in the fall of 1964.

The idea of establishing such a program grew out of a conversation between Philip Bezanson, former professor of music, and James Van Allen, head of the Department of Physics and Astronomy. They felt that electronic music was a part of contemporary music composition and should, therefore, be included in the music composition curriculum at the University. The Physics Department donated electronics equipment to the studio. Richard Herwig, head of music composition, was in charge of the entire planning and establishment of the studio. Bezanson is now a professor of music at the University of Massachusetts.

Director Has Experience
Shallenberg, who had background in electronic music, was hired as director of the studio. He had taught music at Illinois Wesleyan University before coming here. Earlier in his career he had helped develop the University of Illinois electronic music studio.

Now, Shallenberg and his research assistant, Richard L. Auld, G, Iowa City, are teaching electronic music composition and experimenting with their own productions.

There are now four graduate students enrolled in an electronic music course. Four other graduate students have access to the studio. One undergraduate utilizes the facilities as a sideline in music composition study.

Although electronic music is not as recent as many people think, it has not been fully accepted and is still a controversial field of music.

Shallenberg said, "There is a certain amount of inertia in people's thought processes. It takes time to realize that electronic music is something more than mere novelty. In fact, you could probably say that a high percentage of professional musicians still think of it as novelty or experimentation."

Electric Music Not New
Many people also believe that electronic music is a completely new technique in music composition, according to Shallenberg.

He said, "It is not really a new technique of composition. It is really just an expansion of the repertoire of timbres and of kinds of controls of these timbres."

"Timbre is that quality of sound that distinguishes one musical instrument from another."

Inside 207 Eastlawn, arrayed along the left wall, is the electronic equipment that makes the unusual sounds. It reaches within a foot of the ceiling, and extends horizontally about 7 feet toward the back wall. Ingeniously, the technicians have made it into a suite of home-made and patented parts. Auld said that there just isn't enough money to equip the studio as they would like to.

David F. Harrison, G, Lincoln, Neb., who assists in the studio but has no official appointment, described the parts of the equipment and their functions. He said that there were five major divisions of the equipment. They are: primary sound sources, sound modifying devices, routing and control devices, recording and editing, testing, analysis and monitoring.

Sound Sources Is 1st Division
There are five sound sources. The first one is the "white noise" signal source. This source includes all audible frequencies from the lowest perceptible to the highest frequency. Harrison said that this sound is analogous to white color which includes all colors of the color spectrum.

The sine-wave generator is a sound source that produces "pure" tone or "pure" sound. It is characterized by one frequency with no overtones — a continuously smooth sound.

Next is the square-wave generator. This source contains all odd numbered overtones. Its sound resembles the clarinet at its lowest note.

The saw-tooth generator, as a sound source, contains only the even numbered harmonics and gives a wide range of tones. A harmonic is a tone whose rate of vibration is a precise multiple of that of a given fundamental.

The final sound source is the arbitrary wave form synthesizer generator. This device was built by University physics graduate James Cessna, for his master's thesis. At the time he was electronic studio technician.

With this sound source it is possible, by means of 96 variable control knobs to synthesize any conceivable wave form.

After these sounds are produced, they can be modified by other electronic instruments known as sound modifying devices. There are four such devices. The first one is the Allis variable filter. This filter consists of two parts — one adjusts the low frequency cut-off point and the other the high frequency cut-off point. By proper selection they can be set to pass any frequency band.

The balanced modulator is a modifier which gives as its sound output the sums and differences of the frequencies of each of the components of any two sound input signals. Another sound modifier is the attack-decay or bell tone device. This device can "fade-out" sound, analogous to the fading picture of a television set when it is turned off.

The fourth modifying device is the gate. It has two operating states and is essentially a logic circuit. An example of this is: if there is a tone at one input and a pulse at another input, the output in the first state would be a tone at the pulse rate. And in the second state, the output would be the tone interrupted at the pulse rate.

Routing Control Is 3rd Division

The third major division of the electronics equipment is routing and control. There are two parts to this division. The first is the panel. It is a device which allows electrical connections to be made among the various devices in the studio. It consists of phone jacks and patch cords, that is, a cord with a phone plug at each end.

The second part is the mixer panel. This device produces at its output the linear sum of all its input signals. In other words, no input to the mixer modifies any other input.

The fourth major division of the equipment is recording and editing. This division consists of two Ampex 350 two-track tape decks. Harrison said that eventually the equipment would have three decks. The editing equipment consists of tape splicing equipment and a rotating head tape reader. The latter machine is still in the process of development by the staff.

Testing Is 4th Division

The last division of the electronic equipment is testing, analysis, and monitoring. This equipment consists of a frequency counter, VU meter, oscilloscope, audio analyzer, monitor amplifier, and speakers (right and left).

With this equipment a composer can make tape recordings. Then he can splice in wanted sounds and effects and delete unwanted ones. But it takes time.

Auld said, "The amount of time to compose in this studio perhaps is more than in other studios. It depends on how sophisticated your equipment is."

Asked about the future of electronic music as a practical and widely used method of composition, Shallenberg said:

"I think the future of electronic music is already here. There is an amazing number of instances of electronic music that people don't realize is electronic. In work - a day music, like television background music, there are many examples."

Beatles Use Electronic Sound
He went on to say that the last section of the Beatles' "Strawberry Fields" had background electronic music. The musical accompaniment for the Maxwell House coffee percolation commercial is also electronic, Shallenberg said.

The next step, said Shallenberg, is "use of computers as sound generating devices. The music in one of Walter Cronkite's "20th Century" programs was produced this way, according to Shallenberg.

The future of electronic music has not been wholly entrusted to TV commercials, programs, and rock and roll singers. There is an increasing number of serious composers in the country.

Vision And Prayer Is Famous
One of the most well known is Milton Babbitt of the Princeton-Columbia electronic music center. One of his most notable productions is "Vision and Prayer," a setting of a poem written by Dylan Thomas.

Serious works such as this is what is wanted in the field, Auld said.

"We would like to get away from the general connection, in the mind of the public, between electronic music and science fiction."

And then the loudspeakers made those strikingly different sounds again. But I remembered that somebody said, "The future is already here."
