Israeli Copter Fired On; U.N. Stalls For Time

JERUSALEM (AP) — Arab Jordan said it opened fire on an Israeli helicopter and Israeli reported gunfire from the Jordanian side Thursday as the Mideast teetered on a perilous brink.

Jordan said its guns in the Jordanian sector of divided Jerusalem fired on a helicopter that violated its airspace.

Israel reported several bursts of light-arms fire from the Jordanian side late in the afternoon, one burst hitting a house on the Israeli side.

No casualties were reported. Both sides complained to the United Nations Armistice Commission.

At the U.N. meanwhile, a meeting of the Security Council set for Friday on the Mideast crisis was postponed until Saturday morning.

The delay will allow the 15 member nations more time to agree on an appeal for all-around restraint in the crisis.

War Fever Mounts

As war fever intensified, Israel named Moshe Dayan, the 52-year-old, one-eyed hero of Israel's 1956 military triumph over Egypt, to direct the Defense Ministry.

The appointment of Dayan, a political ally of former Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, followed several days of intense sessions by Prime Minister Levi Eshkol's Cabinet probing proposals to expand the government into a national unity framework.

The great powers eyed the crisis warily.

The U.S. aircraft carrier Intrepid, with 78 jet fighters aboard, steamed southeast through the Red Sea on Thursday night on a voyage that threatened to raise temperatures in the crisis.

The Cairo newspaper Al Ahram reported early today that Egyptian jet fighter planes armed with guided rockets were ordered to tail the British aircraft carrier Hermes.

They were told to prevent the Hermes from approaching Egyptian territorial waters "in any circumstances without permission," said the paper, a semi-official voice of the Egyptian government.

9,000 Citizens Leave

In Washington, the State Department reported Thursday that about 9,000 U.S. citizens have left Mideast countries since the Israeli-Arab crisis erupted two weeks ago.

Shannon Denies Rent Study Need

Dr. Lyle W. Shannon, chairman of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology, told the Iowa City Low Rent Housing Agency Thursday that a proposed study to determine the need for low-rent housing in Iowa City was unnecessary.

He said that the year-long study proposed by the agency would be a waste of time because taxpayers would be unwilling to provide for the need, whatever the study showed it to be.

"I'm afraid we say year after year that we have got to have surveys of need," Shannon told the group, "but this is just a way of postponing the decision."

"The real question to be asked is whether the rest of the community is willing to help the needy meet part of their rent," Shannon said that a study of the need for low-rent housing he had conducted in Des Moines showed that 4,000 to 5,000 units there would hardly begin to fill the need.

"But that is all you can get the taxpayers to talk about," he said.

Wallace Gets OK For Appointment As State Regent

DES MOINES (AP) — By a 53-4 vote, the Senate confirmed Thursday appointment of Ralph H. Wallace, 51, Mason City Republican, as a member of the State Board of Regents.

Wallace takes office July 1, succeeding Republican Wilbur Molison of Grinnell, whose term expires.

No one spoke against confirmation of the appointment although one of those who voted against it, Sen. John Buren (D-Forest City), said he kept silent because "that old saying that if you can't say anything good about a person, don't say anything."

Democratic Gov. Harold E. Hughes appointed Wallace to the post after the Senate failed to confirm appointment of Dr. David Palmer, Davenport chiropractor and a Republican.

Wallace is a consulting engineer and a graduate of Iowa State University. He is a member of the State Board of Engineering Examiners, with a term expiring June 30.

Senate Expands GI Bill Of Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill that would expand benefits under the cold war GI Bill of Rights was passed by the Senate Thursday.

It now goes to a Senate-House conference committee which will attempt to reconcile differences between the Senate and House versions.

The Senate version, passed by a voice vote, would add benefits costing $170 million in the fiscal year beginning July 1 and increasing in the subsequent years.

The bill would:

- Restore eligibility for education and training to 1½ months of benefits for every month of active duty after Jan. 1, 1955, instead of the month-for-month plan adopted last year.
- Increase monthly living allowances.
- Provide assistance, without loss of college benefits, to veterans who must complete high school before going on to higher education.

ACT Aide Has Praise For Junior Colleges

"Over one-half of the college freshmen will be enrolled at two-year junior colleges by the year 1970," James K. Sours, executive vice-president of the American College Testing Program (ACT) said Thursday, speaking at the regular noon meeting of the Iowa City Rotary Club.

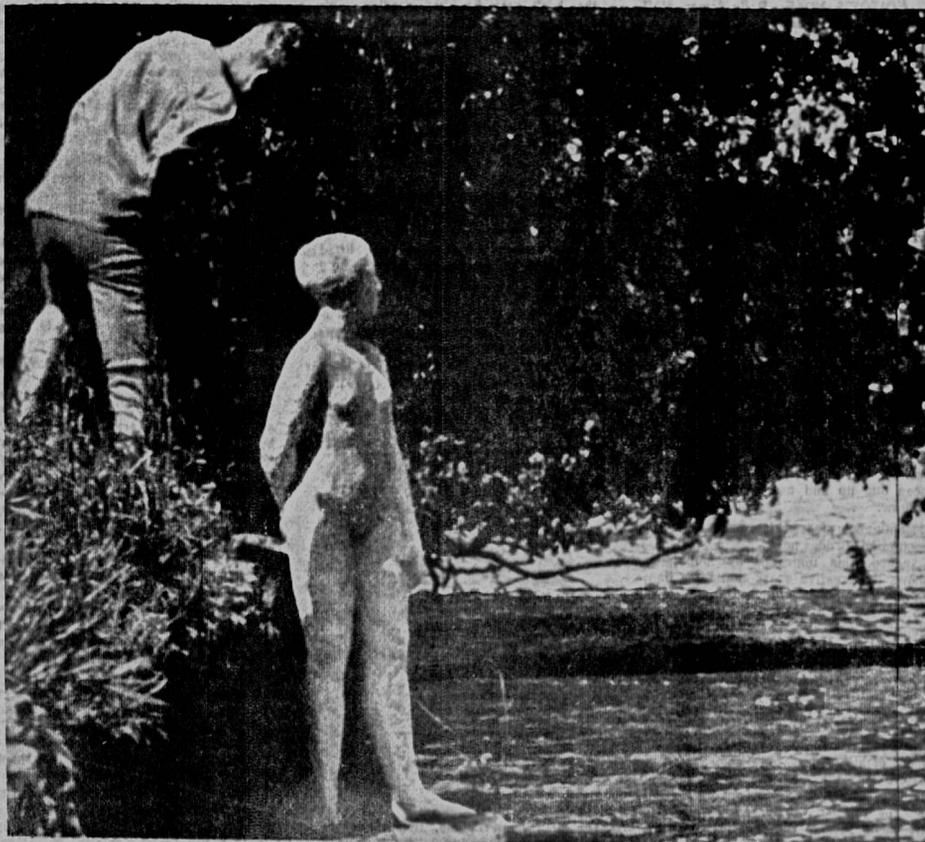

He said that the junior college has a tremendous diversity.

"We are witnessing the kinds of turmoil and confusion that are attending the advent of these institutions," he said. "By the early 1970s over one-half of all the college freshmen in the entire United States will be enrolled at such schools. We have no choice but to make them work, and work well."

He said that the problems of American education are as great and stimulating as its accomplishments.

"It is for this reason that I believe an educationally oriented organization such as ACT faces a future bounded only by the limits of its imagination and its will be achieve," he said.

Sours described for Rotary members the new, $1.8 million ACT national headquarters building in the southeast quadrant of the intersection of Interstate 80 and Highway 1. He said the unit would contain approximately 65,000 square feet and was expected to be ready for occupancy by the summer of 1968.

'SAY, DIDN'T I SEE YOU at Lil' Bill's last night?' That's what a student seems to be saying to this fallen woman, abandoned not down by the old mill stream, but rather on the west bank of the Iowa River. Since the poor gal has feet of plaster, she'll probably not remain there long. Dr. Norval Tucker, associate professor of art, said the statue is the work of Edwin L. Clemmer, G. ## Starbuck Considers His Job-To-Be: 'Every New Writer Is An Innovation'

By DENNIS ISHIBASHI

The resignation of poet Paul Engle, professor of English, as director of the Writers Workshop left open a big spot to be filled some 18 months ago.

But George Starbuck, assistant professor of English and also a poet, the man chosen to fill that spot last month after an extensive search, has a lot to offer and he talked about the workshop, young American writers and his new job in an interview this week.

The workshop, Starbuck said, will inevitably have some changes — but not for awhile. The present curriculum and program will be followed for the time being, but Starbuck said he would like to strengthen and improve it after he takes over officially Sept. 1.

"With luck I may be able to raise more money," he said.

He said he would like to get more financial support for writers and the workshop through donations and fellowships from foundations and private individuals.

Does he plan to install any specific innovations? Not right away, but he quickly added: "Every new writer is an innovation."

Wants Interesting Writers

Starbuck wants to attract writers who are "interesting . . . and maybe a little broke" to teach in the workshop. Vance Bourjaily, associate professor of English and author of "The Man Who Knew Kennedy," will return to the workshop in the fall to teach. He has been on leave of absence for a year. However, Kurt Vonnegut and Jose Donoso will leave their positions with the workshop after this semester. Donoso, visiting lecturer in English, will leave for Europe and Vonnegut, lecturer in English, wants to spend more time on his own writing. He was recently the recipient of a $10,000 Guggenheim grant.

Does Starbuck think the demands of his new job will impose on his poetry?

"Not much," said Starbuck, "I have never been able to write very well when I was too free from other obligations."

The 36-year-old Starbuck has had two books published — "Bone Thoughts," which won the Yale Younger Poets series award in 1960, and "White Paper" in 1966. His poetry has appeared in numerous magazines, including Harper's, Atlantic Monthly, Saturday Review, The New Yorker and The New Republic. Some of his poems have been in anthologies printed by several publishers — Macmillan, Doubleday, McGraw-Hill, Dutton, Holt and Modern Library.

Paperwork Anticipated

Starbuck anticipates "a good deal of paperwork" and considerable administrative duties in his new position. He also expects to travel much less than last year, when he went to 32 campuses to give poetry readings.

He will do some traveling however, and he said when he does travel he "will inevitably be doing a publicity job." But his traveling won't be like the recruiting trips of athletic coaches. In fact, the workshop plans to decrease its present enrollment of 200 students.

The workshop's reputation is good enough that it doesn't have to recruit students, said Starbuck.

Starbuck said he has seen an increase in "sane, liberated, inquiring minds" on college campuses during his travels.

"Things are changing very fast," he said, "especially the character of young writers and their ideas."

"Maybe some of my generation were stunted by the status of the masters. Many of us were taught by rather panicky men with footnotes."

But the younger writers, he noted are raising questions, challenging things, trying out new ideas. The result, he said, may well be "a steadier, more wholesome and thoughtful mentality arising in American literature."

Faced By Dilemma

A writer, however, is often faced by a bewildering dilemma — extreme conservatives attack him for being too rebellious and vulgar, and extreme radicals attack him for being too conformist and traditional. The result, said Starbuck, is a confused young writer who thinks he must "rot on the streetcorner as a personal rebuke to society."

But can creative writing be taught? Yes, says Starbuck — although many writers disagree.

"Writing is a conditioned, learned, cultural habit," he said. "If it wasn't for the competitive, stimulating examples of other people, writers wouldn't write."

The workshop can help young writers, said Starbuck, by providing advice and criticism — and in some cases, by providing a means of temporary subsistence.

Besides money and recognition, what are the problems facing most young writers?

"Mainly two things," said Starbuck. "Deciding what you're going to devote your attention to and paying close enough attention to detail."

These problems, he said, are related to a young writer's "acquiring confidence in his own achievement." It takes awhile, he said, for a young writer to be able to look at his work and know when to let it stand if it is "sufficient and beautiful."

"A writer must earn confidence in himself," said Starbuck. "But if the young writers are given a chance, American literature will come of age."

City Must Conform To Housing Bias Law

City Atty. Jay H. Honohan informed the Iowa City Human Relations Commission Thursday night that the Iowa City council was going to have to modify its new fair housing ordinance to include a $500 bond requirement for all plaintiffs suing under it.

The new Iowa housing law requires that anyone bringing suit alleging discrimination in housing must first provide a $500 bond to show good faith.

Honohan said the council must move to include the bond provision by July 1, the date the new state law becomes effective, in order that the new ordinance does not conflict with the state law.

Commission Chairman Phillip A. Leff told the group that a state-wide civil rights organization had told him it would make money for the bond available to anyone suing for his rights under the new law. Leff did not identify the organization.

News In Brief

BRIGHTON, Iowa (AP) — Three members of a family of seven drowned Thursday afternoon at Lake Darling where the parents and their youngsters had been fishing. Dead were Clarence Haifley, 49, of West Chester, a son, 17-year-old Clarence, Jr., and a daughter, 14-year-old Bonnie Jeanne.

Pearson Thursday night, is to proceed on to Washington this morning to confer with President Johnson on the Mideast and Vietnam. — AP Wirephoto

Power of Hemingway's style evident in assembled works

EDITOR'S NOTE: Daily Iowan staff reviewer Tom Fensch recently won an Honorable Mention Award in the annual University Book Prize Contest for a collection of Hemingway first editions and autographed critical works about Hemingway.

By TOM FENSCH

"By-line: Ernest Hemingway" edited by William White. (New York; Scribner's, 1967). $8.95. Available at Iowa Book & Supply Co.

"The newspaper stuff I have written," Hemingway once said, "has nothing to do with the other writing which is entirely apart . . . The first right that a man writing has is the choice of what he will publish. If you have made your living as a newspaperman, learning your trade, writing against deadlines, writing to make stuff timely rather than permanent, no one has any right to dig up this stuff and use it against the stuff you have written to write the best you can."

Fortunately for us, "that stuff," Hemingway's newspaper and magazine material covering a span of forty years, has been dug up and assembled into a fine volume.

Hemingway feared it would lower his reputation. It does not. Indeed, this material, by and large, shows the creative spark that later flamed into "The Sun Also Rises," "A Farewell To Arms" and the other novels that made Hemingway the best known novelist of his generation and one of the best this nation has produced.

Hemingway has a very fine sense of portraiture. He knew, in the constricted space of the newspaper and magazine column, how to etch the right lines and reveal the personality, the scope, the timeliness of his subject.

Here Mussolini, in 1923, written for The Toronto Daily Star:

"The Fascist dictator had announced he would receive the press. Everybody came. We all crowded into the room. Mussolini sat at his desk reading a book. His face was contorted into the famous frown. He was registering Dictator. Being an ex-newspaperman himself he knew how many readers would be reached by the accounts the men in the room would write of the interview he was about to give. And he remained absorbed in his book. Mentally he was already reading the lines of the two thousand papers served by the two hundred correspondents. 'As we entered the room the Black Shirt Dictator did not look up from the book he was reading, so intense was his concentration, etc.'" the book was he was reading with such avid interest. It was a French-English dictionary — held upside down."

Several years before he wrote "The Sun Also Rises," he was writing newspaper pieces about Spain and Bull fighting; "Bull Fighting A Tragedy," and "Pamplona in July," for The Toronto Daily Star.

By the time the Spanish Civil War erupted, Hemingway had perfected his knowledge of the science of warfare:

"Teruel Front — We lay on top of a ridge with a line of Spanish Infantry under heavy machine gun and rifle fire. It was so heavy that if you had lifted your head out of the gravel you would have dug your chin into one of the little unseen things that made the stream of kissing, whisper sounds that flowed over you after the pop-pop-pop of the machine guns on the next ridge beyond would have lifted the top of your head off. You knew this because you had seen it happen."

"On our left, an attack was starting.

The men, bent double, their bayonets fixed, were advancing in the awkward first gallop that steadies into the heavy climb of an uphill assault. Two men were hit and left the line. One had the surprised look of a man first wounded who does not realize the thing can do this damage and not hurt. The others knew he had it very bad."

We know of another place when Hemingway wrote of lying on the top of a ridge — only that time to scan a bridge.

"By-line: Ernest Hemingway" is the second book published after his death. "A Moveable Feast" appeared last year. Apparently there are other finished or half-finished Hemingway manuscripts at Scribner's, including the famous "The Dangerous Summer," a novelette of bull fighting, published in part in Life magazine before Hemingway's death. The quality of this unpublished material remains in doubt, which was what Hemingway was afraid of — the damage to his reputation caused by the release of material that shouldn't have seen the light of day in print.

In "Monologue to the Maestro: A High Seas Letter," Hemingway described the way it is to write:

Question: How much should you write a day?

Hemingway: "The best way is always to stop when you are going good and when you know what will happen next. If you do that every day when you are writing a novel you will never be stuck. That is the most valuable thing I can tell you so try to remember it."

Question: What books should a writer have to read?

"War and Peace" and "Anna Karenina" by Tolstol, . . . "Madame Bovary" . . . by Flaubert, "Buddenbrooks," by Thomas Mann, Joyce's "Dubliners," "Portrait of the Artist" and "Ulysses" by James Joyce, "The Brothers Karamazov" and "Anna Karenina" by Dostoevsky, "Huckleberry Finn" by Mark Twain . . . and more . . ."

Question: Do you think I'll (a teenage helper on Hemingway's boat) be a writer?

"How the hell should I know? Maybe you have no talent. Maybe you can't feel for other people. You've got some good stories if you can write them."

"How can I tell?"

"Write. If you work at it five years and you find you're no good you can just as well shoot yourself then as now."

"I wouldn't shoot myself."

"Come around then and I'll shoot you."

There are critics that have said recently that this book is better than "A Moveable Feast" and better than almost anything else Hemingway did except his best short stories. I don't believe it for a minute and neither should you. This selection is good, some of it is excellent and it shows Hemingway's power to come, but it cannot stand beside Hemingway's other, better material. "A Moveable Feast," for all its vitriolic portraits, is a better book.

But this book would be worth the $8.95 for one article alone. It is "On the Blue Water, A Gulfstream Letter," which appeared in Esquire magazine in April of 1936.

"Another time an old man fishing alone in a skiff out of Cabanas hooked a great marlin that, on the heavy sashcord handline, pulled the skiff far out to sea. Two days later the old man was picked up by fishermen sixty miles to the eastward, the head and forward part of the marlin lashed alongside. What was left of the fish, less than half, weighed eight hundred pounds. The old man had stayed with him a day, a night, a day and another night while the fish swam deep and pulled the boat. When he came up the old man had pulled the boat up on him and harpooned him. Lashed alongside the sharks had hit him and the old man had fought them out alone in the Gulf Stream in a skiff, clubbing them, stabbing them, lunging at them with an oar until he was exhausted and the sharks had eaten all they could hold. He was crying in the boat when the fishermen picked him up, half crazy from his loss, and the sharks were still circling the boat."

Later that would be the basis for his classic, "The Old Man and the Sea."

For those who love Hemingway, who haven't been scared away by the critics who attacked him after death, I recommend this collection. It has the sweep of literature. The literature that was "news that stays news," as Ezra Pound put it. And it has the power of the famous Hemingway style.

Buy it.

The Deserving Student (Or: 'Are you kidding me?')

Grad dislikes system of parking lot priorities

To the Editor:
Last fall I hesitatingly purchased a $40 student reserve parking sticker believing that because of the exorbitant cost the sticker would enable me to park in a greater number of lots (and to lots more adjacent to my class buildings). Early in the fall, to my dismay, I realized this was hardly the case, but living four miles from campus, I had no choice but to tolerate the inadequacies of the existing system. Although like many others I complained privately about the situation, recent encounters have forced me to air my views publicly. One night last week I parked in a 24 hour reserve lot at 10:30 p.m. just east of the medical labs where there were five other cars. At 11 p.m. I returned to find a ticket on my car. The absurdity of this ticket need not be discussed (or cussed) here.

Most recent of my discontent happened Wednesday morning. The tennis courts south of the Fieldhouse have now evolved into a massive parking lot capable of holding a much greater number of cars than before. Logically, it would be expected that this expansion would alleviate the normal scrambling for a space which has been customary in that lot for years.

Having parked in the Fieldhouse lot all semester, I was informed by a campus policeman upon entering the lot that the "quota" of student reserve cars was filled up for the day (there were about 15 cars in the lot at that time). The rest of the lot was for hospital staff and employees. I was instructed to drive over to the south end of the Stadium to park. This to me seemed perfectly ludicrous.

The time has come for a re-evaluation of parking lot priorities by the Student Senate. It is fairly obvious where the University parking director's sympathies lie — it surely is not with the students. What is the purpose of a 24 hour reserve lot if it is not even filled to 1/10 capacity after 6 p.m.? What is this new unannounced "quota" for student reserve cars in student reserve lots? Finally, what generally is the use of having a student reserve sticker at all if students are to continually take the abuse and arbitrary treatment of the University-appointed parking director?

Look who's tired . . .

NEW YORK — What makes the tired businessman tired? The answer lies somewhere in the way executives spend their time.

The average executive, according to hours a day commuting; makes 11.5 phone calls a day and receives 15.7; makes 7.4 sales calls a week and receives 13.8 office visitors; writes or dictates 5.8 letters a day and receives 14.1; spends 14 hours a day reading letters, reports and memos.

The figures, compiled by the Executive Guild of Chicago, show that after business hours the executive spends 2.4 hours a week doing office work at home; belongs to 3.8 clubs or organizations, but is active in only 1.9.

He attends 1.6 conventions a year and vacations for 11.8 days. For all this, he earns an average of $28,266 a year.

"I genuinely believe that Bill Newbrough and his paper ought, because of courage, to be entitled to special recognition from the fountain-head of good publication manners."

Coed offers suggestions to improve library service

To the Editor:

Recently I was at the library trying to find recent magazines on whether the Defense Department should continue to give funds to basic research. After three hours of research, I found only two articles on the subject, one pro and one con, both in different issues of the same magazine. I am sure that other students have the same difficulty in finding magazines, and I would like to suggest two changes as a solution to the problem.

Someone should be hired to replace the bound magazines on the shelves as soon as the student who is using them is finished. At 7:30 that evening, only two of the nine bound magazines I needed were on the shelf. By looking around for 15 minutes I managed to find two more of them. At 9:30, three of eight bound copies I needed were on the shelf. At both 7:30 and 9:30, there were no copies of the Saturday Review later than the 1964 issues. If someone put the magazines back, it would be an immense help to students writing papers by providing enough diverse sources and by saving us a lot of time that we now spend roaming around the library hunting magazines.

The other change I am suggesting might not be necessary if the preceding one was enacted, although it would still be helpful. Two copies of the most popular magazines, such as Time and Saturday Review should be provided. I often find that the magazine I need is being used by someone else, but if two copies were provided, there is a good chance that one would be available. Many articles are missing from these magazines, and there is a chance that such an article would be in the second copy of the magazine. Providing two copies and replacing the magazines on the shelf would help eliminate the difficulty of finding magazines.

Med students defend Biopsy

To the Editor:

Biopsy is published annually by the senior medical class with contributing articles and "sexy witticisms" (Coed Doesn't Like Humor in Biopsy, Daily Iowan, May 30) from other members of the College of Medicine. This dubious honor is bestowed upon the seniors because we feel that after four long years of study we deserve the opportunity to "fire a parting volley."

Reluctantly, I must agree with the author of the above letter in that a few of the statements made in Biopsy do not always cast a favorable reflection of the medical student nor do they always appear conducive to constructive criticism. But, what the letter so conveniently neglected to point out was that many fine and worthy medical faculty members were singled out for praise and recognition for their fine efforts in teaching; others, unfortunately, single themselves out for recognition in other ways.

Now, if this "pamphlet is being sold throughout the campus by the 'men' (careful Miss T., that word denotes sexuality) of our College of Medicine," it is only because people throughout the campus want to read it. After all, Miss T., why did you do that?

"Sex" is a relative thing, what to some may have seemed "overcharged with sexy witticisms" may have seemed to others a delightful interlude.

Let your hair down Miss T., "Make Love, Not War."

G. J. Martinez, M4
127 Stadium Park

To the Editor:

I should like to say, in reply to Miss Taylor's letter of May 30, that Biopsy is produced by the students of the College of Medicine for the students and faculty of the College of Medicine. It is primarily a stag production, made for the entertainment, enlightenment, praise, and castigation of the members of the College of Medicine.

If Miss Taylor wishes to pay the admission price and come to someone else's stag show, that is her privilege. People who go to stag shows can't really complain about the films. People who read Biopsy, especially after seeing it three previous times, should know about what they're going to see.

People who don't like stag shows don't attend them. If Miss Taylor doesn't like Biopsy, she should keep her nose out of it.

Administration Tells Congressional Heads U.S. Seeks Diplomatic Solution To Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration told congressional leaders Thursday the United States is trying for a diplomatic settlement of the Mideast crisis ahead of any attempt to test Egypt's proclaimed anti-Israel blockade by force.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara gave special briefings to Senate and House leaders in a move to bolster support for President Johnson's policy in the crisis.

Without going into specifics on how the administration thinks a peaceful solution can be achieved, Humphrey would give no backing to reports that the United States and other maritime powers are planning to use naval force to clear a passageway through the Gulf of Aqaba, Israel's link to the Red Sea.

The vice president also dealt in low key with accounts of more Soviet warships arriving in the Mediterranean.

Acknowledging that "an additional ship or so" has joined the Soviet Mediterranean fleet, he said this amounts to no particular change.

FT. SILL, Okla. (AP) — Pvt. Andrew Stapp, a self-styled revolutionary, was convicted Thursday of disobeying a direct order in a confused court martial scene which included demonstrators chanting: "GIs don't be cannon fodder."

Capt. Daniel Bartholomew, who conducted the court martial on this southwest Oklahoma artillery and missile center, sentenced Stapp, 23, Merion, Pa., to 45 days unconfined hard labor.

Stapp's pay was docked about $67 and he was cut from class E2 private to class E1.

Bartholomew threatened to clear the room of the seven demonstrators, who arrived here from New York Wednesday night, but allowed them to remain as he completed the court martial amid the chants.

Property Tax Uniformity Bill Bugged Down In Iowa House

DES MOINES (AP) — A bill to establish more uniformity in property tax assessments over the state became bogged down in the Iowa House Thursday under a move to give preferred treatment to agricultural lands.

The bill provides that all property, real and personal, shall be assessed for tax purposes at 27 per cent of its actual value.

It declares the actual value to be "the fair and reasonable market value." Market value, in turn, is defined as "the reasonable exchange in the assessment this year between a willing buyer and a willing seller," neither being under any compulsion to buy or sell, and both familiar with all facts relating to the particular property.

The House got into debate on the measure by fits and starts. It first delayed the bill while both parties held caucuses during the morning, then interrupted proceedings to allow copies of it as the Senate passed it to be made for all members, so that they could more easily follow the debate.

Increase Seen
Rep. N.F. Sorg (R-Cedar Rapids) said the bill would "increase — or perhaps I should say restore — the bonding capacity of local governments many of which are at or near the constitutional limit of the bonds they may issue for public buildings.

Rep. Warren Wood (R-Davenport) said it would answer the demands of both schools and industry for "certainty in the assessment and appraisal of property."

Most of the debate Thursday, however, centered on a provision saying that valuations of agricultural property "shall be determined on the basis of its current market value as reflected by its current use."

An amendment filed by Republican Reps. C. Raymond Fisher of Grand Junction, Norman Rooda of Monroe, J. Wesley Graham of Ida Grove and Earl Yoder of Iowa City sought to change this provision.

They wanted the valuation of agricultural property to be based on "its current use, productivity and earning capacity," instead of fair market value.

Objection Raised
Rep. Jo Tapscott (D-Des Moines) protested that "buildings sitting vacant on main street" are assessed at their market value, regardless of their use.

He said he didn't see why agricultural property shouldn't be treated the same.

"What we are trying to do with this amendment," said Rep. Maurice Van Nostrand (R-Avoca), "is build some of the worst inequities I've ever seen into the property tax structure."

Fisher then offered an amendment to add market value to the factors considered in assessing farm land. He said he thought market value should be considered, "but I don't want it to be the only basis for assessing agricultural land."

In response to a question, Fisher said that "when you consider the importance of agriculture to the economy of Iowa, I believe agriculture deserves special treatment" for tax purposes.

High-Voltage Power Line Electrocutes 6 Soldiers

SPRINGFIELD, Va. (AP) — Six Ft. Belvoir soldiers, erecting a flagpole at a Little League baseball park as a gesture of Army goodwill, were electrocuted Thursday when the pole swayed onto a high-voltage power line.

Witnesses said the soldiers, all from the Ft. Belvoir Engineer Center, were standing on wet ground and leaning in unison against the 35-foot pole to set it upright when it suddenly swayed and struck the electric wires.

All died instantly. Some were badly burned. None was immediately identified by the Army.

The tragedy took place behind home plate, just outside the North Braddock Little League park in this Fairfax County community. Four other soldiers, with a heavy crane, were at the other end of the field. They were not injured.

The flagpole, painted white and topped with a 6-inch copper ball, snagged in the high-voltage lines and continued to lean against them, imperiling bystanders, until rescue squadmen pulled it down with ropes.

Fairfax County's assistant fire marshal, Heywood Johnson, was near the scene when the accident occurred and immediately summoned rescue squads from the county and from Annandale and Burke.

Campus Chatter

Someone once said, "College days are the best days of your life." And as I sit here with five finals down and two to go, about twenty hours behind on sleep, living on a diet of No Doz, Coke, and Ritz crackers, and hating the whole world, I wonder if the person who said that must not have been a high school dropout.

He couldn't possibly know what it's like to go through the last two weeks of a college semester. Most students put themselves on a rigid study schedule to catch up and relearn what they must to pass the exams and not pass out.

They eat, sleep, and drink exams. And it is such a drastic change for most that they vow to never go through another semester like this one. Some camp with their books in bed throughout the exam period and get only an hour or two of rest each night. They fall asleep on top of the course notes they are studying that night — perhaps to learn by osmosis.

And then they run the risk of not making it up for the exam. One girl I know woke up half an hour after her exam had begun. Panic stricken she threw a dress on over her nightgown and ran to the exam in less than four minutes. But there must be an easier way.

There is a definite personality type that pervades final week. The majority are sullen, reticent, surly, and irrational throughout the time they have tests. Then, one by one, they go berserk after their last test is over. The trick is to be the first one to finish.

Nothing suits the college student under the strain of final week. If the sun is out he's tempted to go to the sundeck, and if it isn't he's depressed with the weather. If the exam is hard, then it wasn't fair, and if it isn't the curve will be too high.

And by the end of the two weeks Joe College thinks that if he sees one more No. 2 lead pencil from University Examination Service, he will go crazy.

But there's one thing to keep him going. As he finishes each test he can burn the notes for spite and sell the book back to the bookstore for a dollar or two. But just as he makes plans to spend the reward on himself, people start talking of the wedding and graduation presents they must buy. And they remind Joe that Dad's Day is creeping up on him.

Those people are also saying that Armstrong's in Cedar Rapids is a good place to shop and get all those presents in one stop.

They have a department for the bride, graduation gift ideas all over the store, and a complete line of jewelry, leather goods, and sporting supplies that any dad will be sure to enjoy.

Or purchase a gift certificate from the Service Department on first floor for those on the list who are hard to buy for.

Then with gifts in hand, Joe can pack up and head home for the summer. And as he tells the family what a great life college is, he secretly vows next semester to pass, but not to pass this way again.

men would continue to be informed about the Mideast situation as often as they desire.

Rusk stressed the diplomatic efforts at the United Nations and elsewhere, though he acknowledged indirectly that the U.S. bid for a formal Security Council resolution would not be the final answer.

The United States has proposed a Security Council resolution asking all parties to forego belligerency.

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Some kids in central Florida get kicks from smoking the dainty blue and white petals of periwinkle.

Manatee County Health Director Dr. George D'ame said youngsters in their early teens are floating off to dangerous euphoria on smoke drawn periwinkle pipes.

"I don't know how they youngsters learned about it, but it is my understanding that it is widespread," said the doctor.

Periwinkle, which grows in abundance here, contains vincristine, a drug which lowers the white blood cell count in normal bodies, inviting infection.

Although the drug produces a sensation of floating and well-being, it also causes a withering of muscle tissue, loss of hair, constipation and painful neuritis, the doctor said.

Those who use it show a lack of coordination in their movements and walk with a slapping gait, bringing their feet down flat, said D'ame.

Forest Johnson, county juvenile counselor, said the periwinkle problem reached him in the confession of a 15-year-old from a middle-class family.

ST. KITTS, West Indies (AP) — The British government was asked Thursday to send ships and troops to quell a revolt on the tiny island of Anguilla in the British West Indies.

The request was made by Prime Minister Robert L. Bradshaw of the newly autonomous state of St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla, three islands located about 175 miles southeast of Puerto Rico.

Spotlight On Sports

By RON BLISS

It has been 25 years since Iowa has won a Big 10 baseball title, but if things fall in place the way baseball Coach Dick Schultz hopes they will, the Hawkeyes could break the spell next spring.

The main reason is that all but one man from the Hawkeyes' 1967 pitching staff that compiled a 19-12-1 record are returning and only three starters are graduating. Another reason for optimism is that the Iowa freshman baseball team compiled a 6-0 record this spring, outscored opponents 46-17 and batted .388 as a team.

The last statistic is especially satisfying to Schultz. This last season, Iowa's main weakness was hitting. As a team the Hawkeyes batted only .229 and finished ninth in Big 10 team batting with a .212 average.

The Iowa pitching staff by contrast, was rated the second best in the conference, according to final league statistics, allowing opponents an average of 2.71 earned runs per game. Iowa finished fifth in the Big 10 this year with an 8-9 record.

Hitting should be no problem next season, however, if the current freshmen baseball players can hit next season as well as they did this season.

Four of the freshmen — Bob Perkins, Terry Schultz, Davis, Dave Krull and Bob Cataldo — hit better than .500 and four others topped the .300 mark.

Perkins, a stocky shortstop from Downers Grove, Ill., appears to be the best of the group. He had 13 hits in 21 at bats for a .619 average and scored 12 runs.

Included in his hits were three triples and a double. He also knocked in four runs, stole two bases and committed only one error in 28 attempts at shortstop.

Davis, an outfielder from Davenport, had a higher average than Perkins, .667, but batted only nine times.

Krull, an outfielder from George, had 11 hits in 21 at bats for a .524 average, scored nine times, drove in five runs, and stole five bases. Cataldo, an outfielder from Des Moines, had 8 hits in 15 times at bat for a .533 average, scored six runs and led the team in runs batted in with nine. Cataldo also had three extra base hits — a home run and two doubles.

The other .300 hitters were Jerry Bruchas, a third baseman from Pittsburgh, Pa., .368; Frank Farrell, a second baseman from Des Moines, .364; Jim Rathje, a first baseman from Davenport, .333; and Gary Breashears, a second baseman from Raytown, Mo., .308.

"It's hard to say what they'll do against Big 10 pitching," said freshman Coach Tom Carlson Tuesday, "but Perkins, Krull, Cataldo, Bruchas, Breashears and Farrell, will definitely be top prospects for next year's varsity team."

Fresh Sparkle On Mound

The freshman team also had some fine pitchers. Best of these was Al Schuette, a left-hander from Staunton, Ill. Schuette, who will also be a top end prospect on next fall's football team, pitched shut-outs in his only two appearances this season, and struck out 19 batters in 14 innings while scattering six hits — all singles.

Another top prospect is Mike Klein, a left-hander from Lincolnwood, Ill., who had a 3-0 record and a 2.40 earned run average.

Other pitchers who could help out are Bob Callahan, a right hander from Morning Sun and Mike Loose, a left-hander from Burlington.

Schultz hopes that this fine freshman group will combine favorably with the nucleus of the 1967 team to make the 1968 season one of Iowa's best ever.

Three Hawks Graduate

Only three starters are graduating — Lee Endsley, Larry Rathje, and Russ Sumka — and Frank Renner is the only member of the pitching staff who will not be back next year.

Among those returning will be outfielder Andy Jackson, who led the team in hitting with a .364 average and ranked fourth in the Big 10 with a .385 average; first baseman Gaylord McGrath who was fourth among Iowa hitters with a .255 average; John Prina, regular third baseman for the past two seasons; and pitchers Jim Koering (5-0), Mike Linden (4-3), Tom Staack (3-3), Donn Haugen (2-1) and Todd Hatterman (2-1).

Another thing that Schultz has going in his favor is a summer collegiate baseball league that will allow several of his younger players to gain valuable experience. He will act as commissioner of the league during its first season.

Schultz Expresses Optimism

The league will have four teams — Iowa City, Davenport, Muscatine and Milan, Ill. — and play a 40-game schedule over a 10-week period.

Iowa will be represented on each of the four teams. When the season ends in August, Schultz plans to assemble every Iowa player eligible for next season and compete as a team in the American Baseball Congress tournament.

Schultz said he expected most of the key varsity and freshmen players to play in the league this summer.

He seems very optimistic about the prospects for the coming season, but isn't saying yet whether he thinks his team can win the Big 10 title in 1968. From all appearances though, he should have a lot to look forward to.

Perez, Rose Spur Redlegs

CINCINNATI (AP) — Thanks to the blooming bats of Pete Rose and Tony Perez, the Cincinnati Reds managed to maintain their National League lead through the month of May.

The Reds' lead dwindled to a mere two games by the end of May — and could well have disappeared if the two sluggers hadn't come to the aid of the injury-riddled team.

Rose hit at a .359 pace during the month and Perez had a .330 batting average. Meanwhile the Reds' team batting average continued at .249 level for the month.

They won 15 games and lost 13. "No, I am not satisfied with that showing," said Manager Dave Bristol.

Some mighty good pitching helped the Reds to overcome the effect of their poor hitting. Fifteen of the games were decided by one run. Cincinnati won six of these, but has a 10-10 margin for one-run games so far this season.

At least one of the Reds' regulars was sidelined with injuries in most of the month's games and two of them were out indefinitely — relief pitcher Ted Abernathy, who pulled a hamstring muscle, and outfielder Tommy Harper, placed on the disabled list with a fractured wrist.

Between them, Rose and Perez made 75 hits, drove in 32 runs and scored 40 times themselves.

Arabs Fear War's Effect On Economy

An AP News Analysis By WILLIAM L. RYAN

The world waits, holding its breath, for the Arabs to drop the other shoe and start the holy war they have threatened for the extinction of Israel. Perhaps one factor holding them back from an irrevocable plunge is that Arab nations would suffer severe economic damage.

The shock to Arab economies from a Mideast war would be severe in an area already plagued by the political problems arising from mass poverty.

Each time the Arabs get themselves involved in a big crisis they tend to damage their own economic future. This time the West is far less dependent upon Arab sources of oil than it was in 1956 when the Suez crisis erupted.

Depend On Oil
In the major producing countries — Iraq, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia — governments depend on oil for 90 to 98 per cent of their foreign exchange and for much of their total income. For example, 95 per cent of Iraq's foreign exchange comes from oil and 60 per cent of its total income. The ratio is even higher for Saudi Arabia.

Egypt, too, leans heavily on oil, though it is not a major producer. About 75 per cent of the tolls Egypt collects at the Suez Canal, its chief source of foreign exchange, comes from oil tankers. President Gamal Abdel Nasser already is in trouble economically, his country near bankruptcy and facing food problems. Because of the crisis, a pending loan from the International Monetary Fund is in doubt.

To Prevent Sale
From Kuwait comes an announcement that the Arab petroleum conference opening Sunday in Iraq will act to prevent sale of oil to any country taking part in "aggression" against Arab states. "Aggression" can be interpreted to mean any move in the West to seek a settlement of the crisis which does not threaten the life of Israel. The Arabs threaten to cancel concessions to companies of offending nations.

The threat is a potent one in many respects. But in the long run, oil is not good to anybody until it comes out of the ground and is marketed.

With each crisis, new market patterns tend to take hold, each time lessening dependence in the West on Arab oil.

In the 1956 Suez crisis, a halt in the flow to Western Europe created an atmosphere of crisis. Europe now has supply sources which do not depend on the Mideast. Last year the area supplied only about half Western Europe's petroleum. The rest came from American and Communist bloc sources, some of which depend on the Suez Canal.

Production Stopped
When Syria last December closed pipelines from Iraq, during an Iraqi dispute with the oil producing company, production was stepped up in the Persian Gulf area. Plenty of shipping capacity was available, and there was no supply crisis. A few months later the pipelines were reopened.

Libya, close to Europe, has been producing oil at full capacity, but a new big discovery can increase the available supply significantly. Libya is Arab and could be under pressure to deny oil to Europe. But it is booming and would be reluctant to turn back the clock.

Algeria's oil production goes mostly to France. It is unlikely that flow would be stopped in any event, since Nasser has appointed President Charles de Gaulle of France as a man free from blame. Nigeria is another source, although it is having its own secession problems in the Eastern region, where the oil is. That flow, which goes mostly to Europe, may be blocked.

Oil companies are not reaching for the panic button.

PARIS — Fighting headwinds, two hulking U.S. Air Rescue Service helicopters made air history Thursday by completing a nonstop flight across 4,270 miles of the North Atlantic Ocean.
The ships — the kind that save lives in Vietnam — took on fuel nine times in making the first Atlantic hop by helicopters without intermediate landings. Each carried a crew of five.
The trip took 30 hours and 48 minutes. "We could have gone on another eight hours," one of the crewmen said, but he looked exhausted.

Cost Of Living In Vietnam Continues To Spurt Upward

SAIGON (AP) — The Vietnamese cost of living, a major factor in the political war here against the Viet Cong, has spurted upward again and threatens to spiral out of control.

In the first five months of the year, the cost of living index has risen 22 to 24 per cent. Only a few weeks ago some U.S. sources were saying the economy had been relatively stabilized.

Now some competent sources say the big danger lies in the second half of 1967.

The view is not unanimous within the American mission. But those looking on the bright side talk of keeping the total rise at between 30 and 50 per cent this year. It went up 70 per cent in 1966, and if it topped that figure this year, the overheated economy could spin out of control.

The problem continues to be too many piastres chasing too few goods. But the emphasis has shifted. In 1966 the demand for imported consumer goods, plus rice speculation, sent the economy skyrocketing. The United States, through its food and commodity import programs, was able to jam enough goods into the market place to dampen the inflationary fires.

Now the pressure is on food prices and for locally produced goods, a shift that apparently caught the U.S. Agency for International Development mission unprepared. The war-fed prosperity, almost entirely restricted to urban areas, has touched off widespread demand for both better and more food.

U.S. rice imports have largely offset shrinking output from the Mekong River delta to the rest of the country, down to 225,000 tons this year from about 450,000 tons in 1965-66.

But such locally produced items as fruit, vegetables, fish and other staples of the Vietnamese diet are lagging behind demand.

A U.S. source said there is no plan now to try to ease the situation with imports financed by the U.S.

He added there also are no plans for price and wage freezes or rationing, all three common in war economies.

Rice prices have soared in the market place, but the increase has gone primarily to middlemen, transport companies and retailers.

Price Fixing Investigated; 6 Indicted

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal probe into nationwide rigging of Wall Street prices led Thursday to the criminal indictment of six men accused of pegging shares on the American Stock Exchange. The cost to regular investors was said to approximate $2 million.

A grand jury named two New Yorkers and four Chicago men on charges of fraud, conspiracy and price rigging last year of Pentron Electronics Corp. stock. About a million shares were involved, with the defendants holding one-third of them.

One of the defendants was Osborn Andreas, 63, of Chicago, who served as board chairman, president and treasurer before leaving Pentron 18 months ago. The indictment claimed he stepped out to further the stock-rigging scheme.

Pentron, once located in Chicago, now is based in Hammond, Ind. It makes railroad, construction and household products.

Senate Amends Air Pollution Bill

DES MOINES (AP) — An air pollution control bill, with some Senate amendments and 50-3 approval, was back before the House Thursday where it first was approved.

The Senate passed the bill and returned it with amendments even though the State Health Department, which first requested the measure, said it was so weakened the bill should be forgotten for this session.

Majority Leader Andrew Frommelt (D-Dubuque) floor manager of the bill, insisted it would be effective.

The measure would create a nine-member commission within the State Health Department with power to set minimum quality standards for air.
